Section 1

"All the News That's Fit to Print."

The New York Times.

Copyright, 1930, by The New York Times Company.

THE WEATHER
Cloudy and slightly colder today; tomorrow cloudy and warmer.
Temperatures yesterday—Max. 30, min. 27.

Section 1

VOL. LXXIX....No. 26,321.

NEW YORK, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1930.

Including Rotogravure Picture Section in three parts—Magazine and Book Sections in Rotogravure.

FIVE CENTS In Manhattan, Bronx and Brooklyn | Elsewhere TEN CENTS Except in 7th and 8th Postal Zones

MORE NAVAL BUILDING SURE, BUT LONDON PARLEY'S GAIN WILL BE IN FIXING LIMITS

FIVE POWERS ARE INVOLVED

Outlay for New American Warships Is Estimated at $1,000,000,000.

PRELIMINARIES COMPLETED

Cut in Fleets and Abolition of Battleships and Submarines No Longer Issues.

DELEGATES URGE PATIENCE

Progress Marked by Extension of Holiday, Curb on Submarines and Limitation Method.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The London Naval Arms Conference has now got its preliminaries out of the way and should get down to material considerations. Its highest hopes were three: First, reduction; second, abolition of submarines, and, third, elimination of battleships. They all have been disposed of.

As the conference approaches its second month it has been settled that battleships are not going to be done away with. It is settled that submarines will still submerge when the meeting is over, and reduction has got so far into limbo that the statesmen have now realized that the chief results of the London conference will be some of the finest naval construction programs the world has yet seen.

Italy will never be able to build what she demands. France will build most of what she demands. The Japanese will get an extra cruiser or two. Britain has some considerable replacement to do. And for the United States to carry out the program the conference will provide for us to achieve parity with Britain by 1936 will call for building which will leave only small change out of $1,000,000,000.

Limitation Is Chief Aim.

It may seem somewhat pathetic that a conference which was heralded with so many hopes for reduction should have reached the stage where pessimists may cry that all is lost save limitation. But your optimist will reply that limitation was the big purpose of the conference and that any conference which achieves that purpose is, after all, quite a fine conference.

Despite all the kaleidoscopic figures being bandied around London, which would have left Archimedes guessing, there is small room for doubt that the London naval conference is going to make a treaty. As to the contention that the French figures have all but wrecked the conference, for six months the French have been telling those figures to any one who would listen, so there was no secret about them, and it is a very good guess the French are going to come down about 20 per cent.

True enough, the Japanese wish two more cruisers than the English and Americans would have them get. But who believes the Japanese will not finally settle for one more cruiser? And so on. Nobody is going to break up the conference and a treaty is going to be made.

That treaty will no longer leave the sky as the limit in naval construction. All classes will come under what the French call a "plafond," which means "ceiling," and ceilings are high. But there will be another conference in 1935, and if each nation builds all it threatens to there will then be fine chances for reduction.

It is only unwise to belittle the value of limitation here and now. It will be a great accomplishment. It will be something that never existed before.

Work Likely to Start Soon.

Now that the clarification process is about completed, it is commonly said in London that next week will be the decisive week of the conference. That perhaps is going too fast in predicting. It will be better to give the conference two more weeks before it gets down to grips.

There must still be many private conversations, which the statesmen do not wish called secret. There will be much more jockeying before the delegates can announce accords. It will all come out all right. There is no nation represented here which can afford to spoil the affair. However, despite the perfect atmosphere in which battleships, cruisers and submarines are being discussed, there is one subject on which

Continued on Page Six.

EVELYN LAYE in "Bitter Sweet" Moves to ... Theatre Mon. Night; prices $1 to ...

Royal Dinner Is Considered For Naval Parley Delegates

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—A state dinner at Buckingham Palace for the delegates to the naval conference is being considered by court officials, it was learned today on the King's return from Sandringham. It would be the first state dinner at the palace since the King fell ill and the first for any American guests since Woodrow Wilson visited London in December, 1918.

The King appeared in better health today without the cough which was noticeable at the opening of the naval conference, and it is felt he could bear the strain of an official banquet without risk.

Soon after his arrival at the palace the King plunged into official business, receiving Shah Wali Khan, the new Afghan Minister to London, and Richard R. Maconachie, new British Minister to Afghanistan.

HOOVER CONFIDENT OF LIMITATION PACT

Private Advices From London Naval Conference Delegates Cheer Administration.

NO CUTS LOOKED FOR NOW

But President Hopes Agreement on Navies at Parley Will Lead to Reductions in 1935.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.
Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Notwithstanding the positions taken at the London Naval Arms Conference by France and Japan, particularly with regard to auxiliary ships, the Hoover Administration is not downcast nor fearful that no treaty will emerge from the proceedings.

Joseph P. Cotton, Acting Secretary of State, who has the benefit of confidential advices from the American delegation and has conferred with President Hoover on the situation almost daily since the conference convened, said today he was not discouraged, and felt that the conference outlook was as favorable as could be expected.

Beyond this brief assertion Mr. Cotton declined to comment upon the naval parley for publication, but it is well understood that official advices from London indicate agreement on armament limitation.

Look for Cuts at Next Parley.

Apparently the prospective treaty will provide for little or no immediate reduction by scrapping except in the battleship class. The Hoover Administration now believes the armament agreement will consist of a stabilization program for the navies of the world based on limitation of categories and of replacements and that this will lead to actual reduction at the next naval conference, now tentatively projected for 1935.

With France and Japan standing for relatively large fleets of submarines, and as destroyers are needed to combat submersibles, it is felt in naval circles that little can be accomplished at London with reduction of either of those categories.

The possibilities for cruisers are not yet clear, due to uncertainties over the final position of Japan with regard to ratios, but the American proposals now call for building approximately ten cruisers of 7,500 tons each in place of five of 10,000 tons each and this will mean an expense of about $20,000,000 more than

Continued on Page Six.

RED ATHEISTS DRIVE TO ABOLISH RELIGION IN 5-YEAR CAMPAIGN

Members Spurred at Congress in Moscow to Lead Mass Movement on Churches.

73 CLOSED IN THE CAPITAL

An Anti-Easter Demonstration With Shows and Carnivals Is Prepared.

'GODLESS MOSCOW' SLOGAN

The Metropolitan Sergius Denies Soviets Persecute Subjects for Religious Beliefs.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Feb. 15.—Within the last twelve months, in the city of Moscow alone, seventy-three more churches have been closed by orders of the Moscow Soviet, the latter announces.

The Congress of the Moscow League of the Godless, meeting in the Red Hall of the Moscow Communist Party Committee to elaborate the league's "five-year anti-Christian plan, has adopted the slogan, "For a Godless Moscow, for a Godless Collectivized Village," and has declared for an anti-Easter campaign starting on March 15. To show that the "godless workers do not need rabbis or religion, either," this congress has applied to the Moscow Soviet for immediate permission to requisition the so-called Choral Synagogue, the largest synagogue in the whole Soviet Union, as the Godless League's headquarters.

Will Celebrate Movement.

As this year the Russian Easter falls on the fifth anniversary of the inception of "militant godlessness," an anti-God mass, shows, carnivals and parades are to be held. Art, literature and the theatre are to be mobilized under the orders of the Godless. An anti-Christian revue, "Baptize Russia!" is the first show to be made ready. About 10,000 new militant Muscovite Godless members will "be offered to the Communist party."

"No gods on the collective farms" is the key slogan of this official league, the godless "hammerers brigades" of the Young Communists are helping the authorities to "liquidate" the kulaks, or richer peasants.

Comrade Polidorof, president of the Moscow Communists' anti-religious commission, in addressing the Godless congress on "Godlessness and Collectivized Farming," spoke of all the advantages which agrarian collectivism offered to atheism.

"If in the past," he said, "we have been extremely cautious in handling appeals to pull down the churches, from now on we can be much braver. The policy of full collectivization has reconstructed our entire anti-religious work. For, under this full collectivization, we are expelling the kulaks and nearly all the church wardens of the kulaks.

"This does not mean that we must now extirpate the church by administrative orders, but it does mean that we must organize to lead the mass movement for putting down the churches."

M. Polidorof was referring to the new anti-kulak decree drafted by the Commissariat of Justice, now in the course of reconstruction as the Commissariat for the Preservation of Socialist Order. In all regions of so-called full collectivization, under that decree, all kulaks must be evicted, and their houses, land, stock and implements handed over to the nearest collective. Each local executive must draw up lists of kulaks for deportation from their district, while the regional executives must have the kulaks deported to "remote places, either uninhabited or grievously lacking in laborers."

In those districts where plans for full collectivization have not yet been

Continued on Page Twenty-two.

Another Arrest of Alleged Liquor Buyer Is Made in Washington to Test the Law

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Determined to ascertain if it is possible to convict as a violator of the Volstead act a purchaser of liquor, the authorities here, having failed in their first attempt, are making a new effort.

For the first time in the annals of the District of Columbia prosecution of an alleged liquor buyer will be attempted in the local police court not only on a charge of buying but of possession.

Last night John Wayland, a street car conductor, was arrested with Myrtle Shoolts, a negro woman, after policemen alleged they saw him buy a gallon of corn liquor for $5 from her. The policemen said they were standing in an alley and looking through a window of the woman's house and saw the exchange of money and liquor.

They entered the house, seized the whisky and money, they allege, and arrested Wayland and the woman. Two men also were arrested and held as witnesses.

Wayland was charged with purchase and possession of liquor under Section 6 of the Volstead act. He pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial. Failing to provide $1,000 bail, he was held in jail. The woman also pleaded not guilty to a charge of possession, also demanded a jury trial and was released on $2,500 bail. It is said she will be prosecuted under the Jones act.

A few days ago an attempt was made here to convict Joseph P. Carley of buying liquor in violation of the Volstead act, but the case fell through because no one could be found to testify to having sold liquor to him.

Several futile attempts have been made of late to convict a buyer of liquor as equally guilty with the seller. In Philadelphia Alfred E. Norris, a socially prominent broker of New York and the Quaker City, was found guilty of transporting liquor after he had admitted buying it from Joel D. Kerper, but the Federal Court of Appeals reversed the conviction.

Assistant Federal Attorney David A. Hart considers that in the Wayland case he has one which he can prosecute successfully. It is surmised here that in case of a conviction the case will be taken to the higher courts and, if necessary, to the Supreme Court.

HOOVER, SUN-TANNED, STARTS FOR CAPITAL

President Failed to Gain Fishing Honors, but He Appears Rested by His Vacation.

MIAMI INVITES HIM BACK

Party Caught Eight Sailfish and Mrs. Stone Won Long Key Club's Season Trophy.

From a Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

ABOARD PRESIDENT HOOVER'S TRAIN EN ROUTE FROM LONG KEY TO WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Hardened and tanned by six days of fishing under a semi-tropical sun off the Florida keys, President Hoover is headed back tonight for Washington.

It was little short of uncomfortably warm when the President, Mrs. Hoover and their party of fishing companions boarded their special cars at Long Key tonight, and they could hardly believe the report that something like a blizzard was blowing at the other end of their journey, with several inches of snow already in the capital city.

For a man of Mr. Hoover's fishing prowess, his six days of angling in the warm Gulf Stream were not extremely successful, but if he was disappointed in not landing as many of the sailfish as he originally had hoped, he was compensated by a rest such as those closest to him say he has not had for a long time.

He spent the entire six days on the water and when he came ashore to board the train tonight it was the first time he had set foot on land since Monday, when he boarded the houseboat Saunterer at the fishing dock and put out to an anchorage in the Gulf, a quarter of a mile from shore.

Due in Capital Tomorrow Morning.

The Hoover party's six special coaches are coupled to the second section of the Florida East Coast Railway's Havana Special and are due to arrive in Washington early Monday morning.

It was made clear for the President late this afternoon that his return to the capital two days ahead of his original schedule is not due to any emergency or problems in connection with the London naval conference. It was said, as when the announcement of the changed plans was made, that the President would not fish on Sunday and would only have about half a day if he remained over until Monday, hence he decided to pack his trunk of fishing tackle and head for home tonight.

The President spent half of his last day on the water in an attempt to regain the fishing honors in the party, which have receded further and further from him since his first catch Monday.

Gets One "Strike" in Several Hours.

He fished for several hours from the rear of a small boat, cruising in the Gulf Stream about six miles out and several miles to the north, near Alligator Light. He was after sailfish, the specialty in these waters, and more particularly was he after one that would tip the scales above sixty-six pounds, the record made by Mrs. Harlan F. Stone, wife of Associate Justice Stone, on Wednesday.

Mrs. Stone did not stand idly by today, however, but went out to the Gulf Stream to exert every effort to uphold her championship. She had not only the record for the Hoover party at stake, but likewise the championship for the the Long Key Fishing Club for this season. Her sixty-six pounder was the largest caught off Long Key this year and in recognition of this the club is to present her with a gold button.

The woman champion did not have to make much of a defense, however. The President got only one

Continued on Page Nineteen.

Mixer of Mixers! Club Style. Always demand Abbott's Bitters.—Advt.

UNION LEAGUE POLLS MEMBERS ON DRY ACT

Seeks Views on Having City Republicans Openly Advocate Modification or Repeal.

A HEARING ALSO PLANNED

Young Group Invites Both Sides to Debate—Leaders, Fearing Party Split, Decry Moves.

Two moves to get an expression of city Republicans on prohibition, which threatens to divide the party in this State, have been started within the last few days, it was learned yesterday.

The Union League Club, the oldest and most conservative Republican body in the city, is sending a questionnaire on the subject to its members. The subcommittee on prohibition of the New York Young Republican Club's committee on party policies and reorganization will meet next Thursday at the National Republican Club to hear expression of views on this matter.

Drys Demanded Hearing.

The decision to hold an open hearing followed protests of dry members of the club on hearing that the report of the subcommittee probably would recommend that the Republican party in New York City should take a stand against prohibition.

The decision of the Union League Club to send a prohibition questionnaire to its members was made at a meeting on Thursday. The resolution came from the club's committee on public affairs and was introduced originally by George B. Wightman. It was adopted without opposition.

The questionnaire, which is now being sent out, asks each member whether or not he favors repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and, if not, if he favors amendment of the Volstead act.

The decision of the Young Republicans to permit the "drys" to be heard before its report on prohibition was made public following receipt of a letter of protest from David Barnett, former chairman of the constitutional campaign committee, which was formed to advocate enforcement of the prohibition law. Mr. Barnett contended that believers in prohibition were entitled to be heard, and this view was accepted by a majority of the members of the committee.

The members of the subcommittee are J. Edward Lumbard Jr., Frederic R. Coudert Jr. and Sanford Cohen, but it is probable that the full committee of nearly twenty members will meet on the question. Definite arrangements for the meeting have been delayed by the illness of Mr. Lumbard, but it is proposed to permit any one interested to speak and not to confine those appearing to club members.

There has been much criticism by organization Republicans of the committee's recent report on party reorganization, in which the committee charged that certain unnamed party leaders had "sold out" to Tammany. Members of the club, it was said, desire to avoid any accusation of hasty or prejudiced action in its committee's report on prohibition.

Leaders Deplore Inquiry.

The announced intention of the Young Republican Club committee to bring the prohibition issue to the fore is deplored by most of the party leaders as tending to widen further the breach between the wets and the drys, which is regarded as a serious menace to party success in next Fall's State campaign.

A year ago an attempt was made to put the National Republican Club on record as opposed to prohibition, but a resolution to that effect was beaten by a combination of the drys and the organization Republicans

Continued on Page Two.

AIR TRAVELERS: HOTEL LENOX, Boston, official club quarters, Nat. Aero Ass'n.—Advt.

THREE FOUND GUILTY OF AUBURN MURDER; 3 OTHERS ACQUITTED

Thomas, Force and Udwin, Convicts, Face Death for Killing of Prison Riot Leader.

WILL APPEAL THE VERDICT

Counsel Plans Fight to Avert Execution—Absolved Trio May Be Tried on New Charge.

BECKER TRIAL ON MONDAY

Brooklyn Man Is Accused of Murdering George Durnford, Principal Keeper, in Outbreak.

From a Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

AUBURN, N. Y., Feb. 15.—Three of the six Auburn convicts who have been on trial for their lives for three weeks were found guilty of first degree murder this afternoon by a jury which spent twenty-two hours considering their fate. The other accused men were acquitted. All six defendants received the verdict with leering sneers.

The three who must die for the murder of Henry Sullivan, leader of the December prison mutiny in which eight other men were killed are Jesse Thomas, Claude Udwin and William Force.

The three who escaped paying with their lives for a futile fight for liberty were Frank Leagan, Leo Lewis and Albert Cassidy. They probably will be tried later on charges of felonious assault and, if convicted will be sentenced to life imprisonment.

The jury's verdict left Supreme Court Justice Cunningham with no alternative but to send the three guilty men to the electric chair. He will pronounce sentence Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, he said. It will be the first time in ten years of service on the Supreme Court bench that he has been called upon to do so in a capital case.

Counsel to Appeal.

A slim chance remains that the death sentence will not be carried out. Perry E. Leary, Benjamin C. Mead and Harry A. Gleason, attorneys respectively for Force, Thomas, and Udwin, all said they would appeal after Justice Cunningham denied their routine motions to set aside the verdicts, as contrary to the law.

Force and Thomas placed little hope in that quarter. Thomas, sputtering anathema at the jurors in an undertone, and Force, livid and weak-kneed, asked their lawyers to "let us take it now and get it over with." Udwin shook his head, and urged them not to "be donkeys."

By some ironic freak of chance the defendants came into court handcuffed and chained in pairs, of which one of each was to hear words which he knew meant death. Leagan was shackled to Thomas. Lewis was teamed up with Udwin and Force and Cassidy were joined by bonds of iron.

"I wish I'd got it too," said Leagan, who is 20.

Udwin and Leagan were partners in crime. Both were serving twenty-five to thirty years in Auburn for robbing a Buffalo bank. Both were identified as participants in the prison uprising in which nine men were killed, but Leagan testified in his own defense that he took no active part in the phase of it in which Sullivan was killed. Udwin did not take the stand.

Two of the Convicts Are Lifers.

The other convicted men were lifers. Thomas, who was 20 years old the day of the riot, was sentenced as a fourth offender under the Baumes laws. He was known as Two-Gun Jesse, and the natives

Continued on Page Twenty.

BAR ASKS VITALE REMOVAL ON CORRUPTION CHARGES; COURT HEARING SET FOR HIM

SHOW CAUSE ORDER ISSUED

Magistrate Is Directed to Appear Friday in Appellate Division.

FAWCETT RELEASE SCORED

Freeing of Alleged Thief Called "Deliberate, Willful and Corrupt Misconduct."

ROTHSTEIN LOAN ASSAILED

No Charges Based on Hold-Up of Dinner—Committee Is Unanimous on Report.

The Bar Association yesterday asked the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court to remove Magistrate Albert H. Vitale from the bench on the ground of official misconduct. Victor J. Dowling, as presiding justice, issued an order directing the magistrate to show cause on Friday why the association's application should not be granted.

The petition for the removal of the magistrate, a rare occurrence in the history of the city courts, was accompanied by the report of the subcommittee which investigated him. In only two of the many complaints lodged against Magistrate Vitale did the committee find ground for action, although, after inquiring into the political activities of the magistrate, the committee censured him.

The first count against Vitale dealt with the loan of $19,940 which he received, through the late Leonard A. Snitkin, an attorney, from Arnold Rothstein, murdered gambler. Of this episode, the bar committee observed that it "was incompatible with and in reckless disregard of the honor and dignity of his office, and his said conduct tended to and did impair public confidence in the integrity and impartiality of criminal justice."

Accused in Fawcett Case.

The second charge against the magistrate was based on his discharge of Charles Fawcett, who was before the magistrate on a charge of larceny. He had confessed his crime to the arresting officer. The magistrate dismissed the charge without hearing the policeman and after supporting every objection to testimony made by the lawyer for Fawcett. The attorney, incidentally, was retained to defend Fawcett by Rothstein.

The committee found that Magistrate Vitale had willfully and corruptly failed to consider the evidence in the case. The document filed with the Appellate Division did not mince words on this case.

"The respondent's action," the report said of Vitale, "in this regard was not due to ignorance, carelessness, indifference or oversight, but was in manifest perversion of justice and constituted deliberate, willful and corrupt misconduct in his office as a city magistrate."

Taking notice of the fact that Vitale, after discharging Fawcett, issued an order directing that $79 found in his pocket—which was the sum stolen—be returned to the complainant, the report scored the magistrate soundly. The committee said that Magistrate Vitale had the money returned so that Joseph C. Harth, who made the complaint against Fawcett, would take no further steps in the matter.

Apart from the petition embodying the two charges, the bar committee handed in its report separately. The report dealt with charges on which the magistrate was exonerated, although chided here and there. The unsustained charges include several court cases of which there had been criticism, the fixing and accepting of bail, and the magistrate's association with men of police records at the testimonial dinner to him, which was held up.

Two Prosecutors Named.

Kenneth M. Spence, chairman, and George Z. Medalie, examiner, of the Committee on Criminal Courts, Law and Procedure, which investigated the magistrate, were appointed to prosecute the charges against the magistrate. If Vitale elects to fight the charges rather than resign he will be represented by Max D. Steuer.

The order which was served on the magistrate yesterday afternoon requires him to appear before the five justices of the division at 10 A. M. on Friday. Owing to the fact that Mr. Steuer left the city via Florida for Havana several days ago, to remain a fortnight, it was predicted yesterday that the magistrate would ask delay.

When, however, the magistrate stands before the court he will be

Continued on Page Twenty-nine.

Vitale Refuses to Comment; Tries to Reach Steuer in South

Magistrate Vitale, at his home, 872 East 180th Street, the Bronx, refused last night to comment on the application by the Bar Association for his removal.

"I don't think it would be proper at this time," he said, "to make any statement. Whatever I have to say will be said at the proper time—at the hearing before Justice Victor J. Dowling. I will make an effort to get in touch with my counselor, Max D. Steuer, who is now in Florida."

HUGE POWER PLANT 100 FEET UNDER CITY

Biggest Substation in World Moved Into Bedrock Under Grand Central Terminal.

SERVICE NEVER CUT OFF

$3,000,000 System Ran Trains While Being Moved to Make Way for New Waldorf.

Down 100 feet in the solid bedrock of Manhattan at the heart of the Grand Central skyscraper zone, the world's largest power substation, installed at a cost of $3,000,000 by the New York Central Railroad Company, will open in complete operation today.

The opening ends, six weeks ahead of schedule, an emergency program started March 4, 1929, and rushed to completion by a series of engineering shortcuts and night and day labor shifts.

From its site in one of the deepest excavations of Manhattan Island, sixty feet below even the foundation base of the towering Chrysler Building a few yards to the east, the new station supplies the power for hundreds of daily trains and the light and elevator current for all the Grand Central Terminal buildings.

Housed with it in the long underground crater below Lexington Avenue and Forty-third Street is the hot-water heating plant of five twenty-ton boilers which supplies much of the heat for the apartment houses, hotels and office buildings which make up the Grand Central Terminal group.

The underground plant is an enlarged replacement of the company's old power substation in Fiftieth Street between Park and Lexington Avenues, which has been demolished to make room for the new forty-story Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Engineers Hail Work.

Although the transfer of the plant has received almost no public attention, the progress of the work has been closely followed in engineers' circles. One of these observers described it yesterday as "one of the most intricate and difficult pieces of work ever undertaken in this city."

The greatest difficulty lay in the necessity for the maintenance of full electric, hot-water supply and heating service for a railroad terminal and a skyscraper group while the power plant, a city block in area, which supplied that service was being dismantled and moved to an underground cavern seven blocks away.

The program was put through ahead of schedule without interference to the operation of the terminal, of the railroads entering it or

Continued on Page Eighteen.

Byrd Ship Steers Crabwise for Barrier Lee, Plowing Choppy Seas 200 Miles From Base

By RUSSELL OWEN.

Copyright, 1930, by The New York Times Company and The St. Louis Post-Dispatch. All rights for publication reserved throughout the world.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Feb. 15.—The bark City of New York is following a crabwise course to reach the members of the Byrd Expedition. She is making southing but no easting, and today dead reckoning of her position showed that she had made about sixty miles south.

Captain Melville's dead reckoning position at noon was 77:45 south and about 179:30 west. This would place the ship about forty miles north of the Barrier and some distance to the west of Discovery Inlet, or about 200 miles from Little America.

Captain Melville is apparently trying to get into the lee of the Barrier, where the seas will be less severe and he can make more headway, even against the wind, which still holds from the east here and is southeast at the ship. Then he can turn to the east and, skirting the Barrier, reach the Bay of Whales.

He reports choppy seas, which confirm the impression among the sailors here that he is getting under the lee of the Barrier. A blizzard is blowing, however, and the visibility is very poor.

As he does not mention the formation of ice on the ship today, apparently that condition is not getting worse. He winds up his message by saying: "All well."

The ship's crew must be worn out, however, because they have had a continual gale and battle with high seas and ice since leaving the pack. If all goes well they should reach here in a few days. We certainly hope so, inasmuch as a calm spell now would bring freezing weather.

Capt. Keller, Veteran Police Raider, Quits Force To Join Campbell in Dry Enforcement Work

Police Lieutenant Ezekiel E. Keller, who as an acting captain attached to former Police Commissioner George V. McLaughlin's confidential squad led gambling raids on many political clubs, resigned yesterday from the Police Department to become a prohibition agent under Prohibition Administrator Maurice E. Campbell, it was announced yesterday by Mr. Campbell. He said Keller would assume his new duties tomorrow morning. Keller will receive a pension of $1,750 a year from the Police Department, and a salary of $2,300 a year as prohibition agent, it was said.

Keller, who was born in 1876, joined the department in 1900, became a sergeant in 1913, and a lieutenant in 1921. He was a candidate at the last examination for a captaincy, and when the results were made public he was eighty-seventh on the list. Since that time forty-seven lieutenants have been promoted to captain, and it is believed that Lieutenant Keller would also have been appointed had he chosen to remain in the department.

Keller's reputation for carrying out orders cost him twenty days' pay when, in charge of the police keeping crowds in order at the return of one of the divisions from France, he refused to permit Special Deputy Commissioner John A. Harriss to cross Fifth Avenue at Forty-second Street. Keller did not know Mr. Harriss's connection with the department, and charges were made against him by Mr. Harriss. At his trial Keller insisted he had only obeyed orders form Commissioner Enright and that Mr. Harriss had failed to identify himself.

After Police Commissioner Whalen took office he abolished the confidential squad and reduced Keller to lieutenant, and assigned him to desk duty in the Wakefield precinct.

Keller could not be reached at his home, 1,210 Woodycrest Avenue, the Bronx. By resigning at this time police officials say that he will lose the benefit of an increase in pension which automatically would come with the promised salary rise for lieutenants.

ED WYNN Opens at Ziegfeld Theatre Tues. Night, Feb. 18; mats. Thurs. & Sat.—Advt.

BEEDY CHIDES BECK IN HOUSE DRY REPLY

Reminds Wet of Sworn Duty to Constitution and Declares 'Compromise' Impossible.

MATCHES HIM IN SCRIPTURE

Maine Champion of Prohibition Goes Back to Noah, Nineveh and Handwriting on Wall.

COLLEAGUES VOTE THANKS

La Guardia Counters With Taunt to Enforce Law—Kansan Urges Strictures on New Yorkers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Denouncing a policy of compromise in prohibition enforcement, which he said would constitute a weakening of the sanctity of the Constitution, Representative Carroll L. Beedy of Maine acted as spokesman for the dry majority of the House today in answering arguments against prohibition advanced last week by Representative James M. Beck of Pennsylvania.

With many references to ancient characters and epochs in support of his contention that the experiences of history disproved the argument that spirituous drinks were one of the prerogatives of mankind, Representative Beedy won applause and a rising vote of thanks from his colleagues and drew an extemporaneous reply from Representative La Guardia of New York.

Also contributing to the prohibition discussion, which was the sole topic considered by the House, was a speech by Representative W. H. Sproul of Kansas, who advocated considerably more stringent penalties for violations of the laws and the "enjoining of every resident of New York" to observe the laws, with jail sentences mandatory for violations.

Non-Jury Trial Bill Modified.

Representative Charles A. Christopherson, author of a bill embodying the recommendation of the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission that United States commissioners be empowered to hear minor prohibition cases and recommend action to Federal district judges without jury trials, except on appeal, modified his measure to remove the element of double jeopardy.

Under the previous resolution, if an accused person appealed from the finding of the commission and asked for a jury trial, the Federal Attorney would have the right to drop the misdemeanor proceeding which had put the case in the commissioner's hands and elect to try the defendant on a felony charge under the Jones law. In its revised form the bill provides that on appeal the misdemeanor charge must be preserved.

Answers Scripture With Scripture.

Replying to Representative Beck's own use of scripture for his wet arguments, Representative Beedy cited Noah's embarrassment when "he drank of the wine and was drunken and was uncovered in his tent," the warning given to the Babylonians in the handwriting on the wall during a drunken revel, the destruction of Nineveh because its people were "drunken as drunkards" and the decision of some historians that "Rome perished of intemperance."

"Let those historic references suffice to show that in by-gone ages, when the sale of intoxicating liquor had been permitted under whatever safeguards and protection, it has ultimately proven a demoralizing influence and a vital contributing cause in the downfall of nations," he added.

He also quoted Abraham Lincoln as having said "that from the days of earliest history, 'that even then it was known and acknowledged that many were greatly injured by it.'"

Asserting that centuries sometimes must elapse before great truths become generally recognized, Representative Beedy continued:

"I submit, however, that though we may not yet have approximated unanimity, the majority will not concede that intoxicating liquor is so potent with evil consequences that it must be treated not as a good thing but as a bad thing. I submit that this should be the conclusion of thoughtful men based upon the general experience of mankind as evidenced by the records of history."

Acrobatics of Modification.

Replying to the pleas for modification advanced by Representative Beck and by Representative Fort of New Jersey, he said:

"Both succumbed to the seductive urge for compromise. Both attempted to ride two horses traveling in opposite directions at the same time. This feat has been, is and always will be impossible of accomplishment. It is impossible for any one to ride the prohibition horse and the every-home-a-brewery horse at the same time without disaster."

"There is a grave threat to the Constitution, Representative Beedy found, "not alone through usurpation, but through inaction and failure of the Federal or State governments" to uphold the laws and the mandate of the Eighteenth Amendment, while limiting the individual he termed as "undeniable" as amendments limiting the powers of government.

"Every advance in the perfection of a representative system of government has involved curtailment of the liberties of the individual," he declared. "No great national policy which has ultimately strengthened our industrial and political fabric and thus reflected credit upon its supporters has been possible without a limitation on individual rights."

The "fight for ideals" was an essential of government, Mr. Beedy stated, including prohibition among the ideals and adding that in this fight there must be no "double standard" or compromise.

Rebukes Beck on Constitution.

Recalling that Representative Beck on Washington's Birthday of last year had pleaded for an awakened conscience "in the matter of constitutional morality," the speaker addressed him, saying:

"And I supplement that plea with the expression of a hope that the gentleman himself, who has given so much of his life to a defense of the Constitution, will never again, because of any consideration incident to prohibition, descend from his position as defender of the Constitution to enunciate a principle amounting in its final analysis to nothing short of nullification."

Then he gave this analysis of Representative Beck's proposal:

"Would the legalized sale of wine and beer eliminate the problem presented by the bootlegger and the rum-runner? Both were here prior to prohibition. Would it eliminate those who long since found little satisfaction in wine and demanded hard liquor? Certainly not.

"Prohibition has not resulted in perfect law enforcement, nor would the legalized sale of intoxicants when restricted to wines and beer.

"Demand for hard liquors would still continue, and the more affluent, who are now willing to pay an exorbitant price to the man who will supply them in contravention of the present law, would also be willing to pay a high price for a supply in contravention of a law which permitted only the sale of beer and wine.

"We should not only be taking a backward step but we should be indulging in halfway measures which would be of no avail either in eliminating the bootlegger or law violation."

Proportion of Dry Law Violators.

Representative Beedy also disputed Representative Beck's parallel drawn between the Bloody Assizes of Justice Jeffreys, in the reign of James II, who prosecuted 1,200 persons in four weeks, and the 56,000 Federal prohibition prosecutions last year.

Saying that the prohibition violators who were prosecuted constituted only five ten-thousandths of 1 per cent of the population, he added:

"To speak in the same breath of the Bloody Assizes conducted by Justice Jeffreys and criminal trials conducted under the American system of jurisprudence (to make no mention of the parallel drawn between the American Congress and the lawmaking Pharisees rebuked by the Saviour for hypocrisy) is, to say the least, not in accordance with the usual gracious and fair attitude which ordinarily characterizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania."

Then, addressing the wet minority on the floor, Representative Beedy said:

"You sit in the Federal Congress sworn under oath to support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic. I am unable to construe much of the talk made in this forum denouncing law enforcement officers, maligning our Coast Guard, iterating and reiterating the folly and impossibility of all attempts to enforce prohibition. I say I am unable to construe such efforts as conduct in keeping with a sacred oath to defend the Constitution against its domestic enemies."

La Guardia Contests Citation.

Representative La Guardia, in replying said that whether prohibition was good or bad was not the issue, for "prohibition has not stopped the manufacture, sale or consumption of liquor." Then he also reverted to allusion to the ancients, saying:

"It is true that excessive drinking occurred in ancient times, but the civilization established in Babylon still survives, the art and literature of Greece survive and the civic, scientific and legal accomplishments of the Roman Empire survive today."

Taking up the experiences of Maine, whose prohibition statutes far antedate the Eighteenth Amendment, Representative La Guardia quoted Senator Arthur R. Gould of that State, who is retiring at the expiration of his term, as saying that "conditions never were so bad as today," and he read statistics to show that one person for each thirteen of Portland's population was arrested for intoxication in 1929.

"If we had the same ratio in New York City," he added, "we would be allowed 60,000 drunks a year. As a matter of fact, we have about 13,000 a year."

His reply to Mr. Beedy's Lincoln citation was the presentation of a copy of a license issued to the former President and his partner for a tavern in New Salem, Ill., dated March 13, 1833, which detailed the spirits that might be sold, with the prices.

Replying to the reference to the Bloody Assizes, Mr. La Guardia charged that one Federal judge had obtained prohibition agents whom he sent to Canada for liquor, had them sell it to customers and then raided and prosecuted the possessors.

Change in Bootlegger's Status.

Before prohibition, he said, the bootlegger was "an object of contempt, but now he is in demand," and he added that the universal demand for liquor had caused this change in his status.

"You have a majority in the House and a majority in the Senate," he told the drys. "Why not stand up and appropriate sufficient money to create the enforcement you pretend to have?"

Representative Beedy interrupted, saying:

"If I had the power I would cut the prohibition staff in half and double the salaries, so agents would not be faced with a premium when they go out of office."

"The postoffice employes handle millions of dollars," Representative La Guardia replied. "There is no department of government where temptation does not exist. Also, there have been officials receiving twice the salaries of prohibition agents who have been corrupted."

"Are there any tables to show how much a man's salary must be increased to keep him honest?" asked Representative O'Connor of Oklahoma.

Prophesying dire results for the Department of Justice in receiving the work of prohibition enforcement from the Treasury Department, Representative La Guardia continued:

"There never has been any trouble in the Department of Justice, but watch it two years from now. There will be the same condition as in the Treasury Department. You will make the Attorney General a national super-sleuth."

Comparing the degrees of crime in popular estimation, as between thieves and judges, he said:

"You'll not find thieves sitting beside judges at banquets," implying that bootleggers had been known to receive this honor.

"BEER RING" HEADS GUILTY

Three Sentenced at Cleveland to Year in Atlanta—Two Fined.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 15 (AP).—Three of the principal defendants in the government's prosecution of the Pennsylvania beer ring were sent to prison today.

William Loughran and William Quinn, both of Scranton, pleaded guilty to conspiracy and were sentenced to one year and one day in Atlanta prison and fined $5,000 each.

Charles Basso, Cleveland restaurant owner, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to one year and one day. They will begin their sentences Feb. 26.

Jacob Mayer, brew master for the Anthracite Beer Company, of Greenridge, pleaded guilty yesterday and was fined $1,500.

Charles Graves, former deputy for a justice of the peace, at Parma, Ohio, and Martin and Anthony O'Boyle, dry raiders, of Panama, go on trial Monday in the same case. The way was paved for prosecution of the defendants when an indictment against the beer company was nolled because it was no longer in existence.

CAMPBELL UPHOLDS DRASTIC DRY RULES

Insists He Will Act Against Hotels Permitting Drinking at Even Private Functions.

PROPRIETORS ARE WORRIED

"Cannot Expect Employes to Spy on Guests," They Say After Counsel Sees Administrator.

Prohibition Administrator Maurice Campbell issued a statement yesterday in which he showed clearly that he had no intention of modifying in the least the drastic enforcement methods he began last week by raiding and threatening with padlocks hotels in which his agents, posing as guests, alleged they had purchased liquor from employes.

Major Campbell, whose superior, Commissioner Doran, declared that the local administrator's hotel raiding tactics did not represent the prohibition bureau's national enforcement policy, went even further yesterday when he warned that he would take action against any hotel or restaurant which permitted liquor to be served even at a private dinner or any such function.

Hotel men, admittedly worried as to just what steps they should take in order to comply with the enforcement plans of Major Campbell without killing their business, did not wish to be quoted with respect to this latest dictum of the administrator.

Some of them said, however, that hotel proprietors and employes could not reasonably be expected to "spy upon their guests' every motion toward their hip pockets.

Major Campbell's latest statement was made after he had conferred late Friday with Frank A. K. Boland, counsel for the Hotel Association of New York City, who called at prohibition headquarters, 641 Washington Street, to offer all reasonable cooperation and to seek some modification of the severe enforcement program outlined by the administrator last Monday.

"As I had previously done," said Major Campbell, "I again informed Mr. Boland that the display and consumption of liquor in public places must cease and that if it did not I would take legal steps to see that the law was enforced.

"I also called attention to the practice of permitting the service of liquor in hotels and restaurants at private dinners or other functions of which I had knowledge, and stated that, if the practice was not discontinued, I would be compelled in the interest of law enforcement to act in the matter."

WHITE IS ACQUITTED IN VIRKKULO KILLING

Minnesota Jury Frees Customs Patrol Officer Who Shot Man Dead in Auto.

DULUTH, Minn., Feb. 15 (AP).—Emmet J. White, Federal customs patrolman, was acquitted tonight by a Federal court jury of eleven men and a woman in the killing of Gust Henry Virkkula of Big Falls while attempting to stop his car to search it for liquor.

After the verdict freeing him was read the 24-year-old customs officer smiled for the first time during the trial, which started Wednesday morning. He shook hands with his counsel and thanked the jurors. Since Virkkula's death White was transferred from his first station at International Falls to the Duluth customs office. He intends to continue in the customs service.

The case went to the jury at 4:50 P. M. after Judge William A. Cant had eliminated, on the ground of insufficient evidence, the charge of second degree murder on which White had been indicted by a State court. The judge told the jurors they could acquit White or find him guilty on charges of third degree murder or second degree manslaughter.

Long arguments by counsel, the State of Minnesota in the position of the prosecutor, and the Federal District Attorney's office as the defender, marked thee close of the trial.

George A. Heisey, Assistant Federal District Attorney, said that the shooting of Mr. Virkkula on a lonely country road near Little Fork, Minn., twenty-five miles south of the Canadian border, was an accident, for which White felt more sorrow than any one else. White discharged a riot gun four times when Virkkula failed to halt in answer to a signal held by E. V. Servine, another customs officer with whom White was stopping automobiles from the north to search them for liquor, just before midnight last June 8.

O. J. Larson, former member of Congress, retained as special counsel for the State, declared that White shot recklessly, without regard for life.

PADLOCKS LIDO VENICE, RESORT AT SARATOGA

Six-Month Order by Court Hits Racing Season Business of Place Said to Cost $1,000,000.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 15 (AP).—Federal Judge Frank Cooper signed here today an injunction padlocking for six months the Lido Venice, a Saratoga resort reputed to have cost $1,000,000. This means that the establishment will not be able to reopen until the middle of August, when the Saratoga racing season will be half over.

Judge Cooper said that before the Lido Venice might resume business its owner must post a $5,000 bond, which would be forfeited in case of any new violation of the prohibition law. He mailed the padlock order to James H. Mitchell of Saratoga, who, Judge Cooper said, was recorded as owner of the property.

About thirty similar padlock orders have been granted by Judge Cooper since Tuesday. Enforcement leaders here have stated that 1,700 resorts in Northern New York would be padlocked.

McCooey to Cut Vacation.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 15.—John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader, who has been spending the week in Atlantic City, declared today that he might have to cut his stay short to keep several dinner engagements in New York. He had intended to remain over Washington's Birthday. He said he may return home tomorrow or the next day.

ACTS TO CURB GUNS OF THE COAST GUARD

Suffolk Prosecutor Orders an Inquiry Into Indiscriminate Shooting Charges by Citizens.

AUTOS REPORTED FIRED ON

James Hildreth Says He and Friends Were Stopped by Volleys Returning From Dance.

Special to The New York Times.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., Feb. 15.—District Attorney Alexander G. Blue of Suffolk County ordered a general investigation today of charges of indiscriminate firing upon local citizens by Coast Guardsmen in search of rum-runners. This action followed a new complaint of unjustified Coast Guard activity by a group of prominent Suffolk County men and women, who said that while on the way home from a Masonic dinner early this morning Coast Guardsmen had fired several volleys at them.

Although no one was injured, James Hildreth, Superintendent of the Bureau of Marine Fisheries of the State Conservation Commission, who made the complaint, swore out second degree assault warrants against "John Doe" and the District Attorney announced that this John Doe investigation would cover the scope of all the complaints of improper use of pistols by the Coast Guard.

"I am going to get to the bottom of this," said District Attorney Blue. "I am going to stop this practice of indiscriminate shooting by Coast Guardsmen at citizens of Eastern Long Island."

Other Recent Complaints.

The latest shooting charge follows closely upon complaints that earlier in the week shots had been fired from the Coast Guard cutter Eagle and Nimiha at East Hampton when residents of the vicinity approached the water line where liquor from a stranded rum-runner had been jettisoned.

Superintendent Hildreth told the District Attorney that he and his wife and a number of other persons prominent in the life of the county had attended a dinner and dance of the Montauk Square Club at the Fort Pond restaurant in Montauk. A dozen or more men and women were returning to their homes about 3:30 o'clock this morning, he said, when near Napeague Beach shots were heard and bullets whizzed by.

Mr. Hildreth, driving the first car in line, said he pulled up short and jumped out of his automobile. There was another volley, he said, as the other cars approached to come to a halt behind his.

"I found myself surrounded by Coast Guardsmen," he continued. "Captain Warner, Captain Frank D. Warner, head of the Ditch Plains Coast Guard station, came up and apologized and explained they were looking for liquor trucks. He asked us to forget the incident."

Mr. Hildreth gave the names of Lennon Edwards, Leslie Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. William Young, Fred Scribner, Mrs. Mary Scribner, L. M. Stephens, Benjamin H. Barnes, Mrs. Ethel Barnes and Mrs. Helen Hildreth as among those who had been in the automobile party. District Attorney Blue expects to call them to testify at the opening of the John Doe proceeding in East Hampton on Tuesday morning before Justice of the Peace Harry M. Leek.

The District Attorney issued subpoenas for all members of the Ditch Plains and Napeague Coast Guard stations. He said Commander Sullivan of the Long Island Coast Guard area had called him twice during the afternoon and promised him cooperation in curbing use of pistols. The Commander told him, the District Attorney said, that Captain Warner reported he stood in the middle of the road at Napeague Beach and fired one shot in the air an automobiles approached at a high rate of speed. Mr. Hildreth, according to the District Attorney, denied the cars were speeding and insisted that two volleys of several shots each were fired.

Deputy Sheriff Questioned.

The District Attorney also questioned during the day Deputy Sheriff John P. Jensen, who had conducted a preliminary investigation of the complaints of firing on citizens by the two cutters. Jensen listed seven men who said they were fired upon. They are Wilson Hedges of Montauk, Cecil C. Wyen, William Petty, Frederick Budd and Romeo Bozze of Sag Harbor, William Ross and Frank Ross of East Hampton.

Jensen reported that the steam trawler Notus, suspected as a rum-runner, had gone aground off Shafwank, near East Hampton, and that about 600 cases of liquor were in the water not far from the beach. When people gathered on the beach, watching the salvaging of the liquor, he said, they heard three blasts from a siren of a Coast Guard boat, which were followed by a burst of fire from machine guns on the cutters. Petty, according to Jensen, was scorched by sand as the bullets hit the beach near him. No one else was injured. Jensen also said that others complained of a similar incident the next morning. He said he protested to an officer on a Coast Guard boat and was assured there would be no more firing.

The District Attorney said he would include investigation of these complaints in his investigation and that he would send a complaint to Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, Coast Guard commandant at Washington.

SUSPENDS DRY AGENTS WHO SHOT IOWA NURSE

Doran Acts Pending Report on Inquiry—Woman Was Riding in Auto.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP).—Two prohibition agents serving under the Iowa administrator were ordered suspended today by Prohibition Commissioner Doran to await the result of an investigation into the shooting of Miss Nellie Church, a nurse, near Knoxville, Iowa, last Saturday.

Commissioner Doran said he had ordered a special inquiry into the incident.

Miss Church, according to the reports received, was riding in an automobile at which the two agents, Roy Moon and Charles Hindley, fired. After the wounding of the nurse, the prohibition agents said the shot had not been fired directly at the car, but at the ground underneath it.

The incident occurred after a near-collision between the car in which the agents were riding and the one occupied by Miss Church and another nurse.

LIGGETT TESTIMONY BRANDED AS 'GOSSIP'

Gov. Green of Michian, in Note to House Committee, Lays Wet Charges to Enemy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Governor Fred W. Green of Michigan, arriving here today, issued a brief letter denying "gossipy allegations" in testimony before the prohibition hearing being conducted by the House Judiciary Committee.

As the committee was not sitting today, he could not appear before it personally to contradict testimony regarding the "Governor of Michigan" having been allegedly involved in extra-legal parties, which was given by Walter W. Liggett, a writer, on Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the testimony of Mr. Liggett regarding Kansas caused a definite plan of action to be laid by authorities of that State in an effort to disprove his statements that liquor was easily obtainable there. Attorney General W. A. Smith of Kansas will appear before the committee when it reconvenes on Wednesday, Representative W. P. Lambertson announced, and efforts were being made to locate Mr. Liggett for cross-examination.

As an added inducement in aiding Kansas to uncover alleged evils of prohibition, Mr. Lambertson also wired the office of Mr. Liggett's employer in New York City, offering all expenses and "courteous treatment" if Mr. Liggett would go to Kansas and lay his facts before a grand jury.

Concurring statements were issued by four Michigan udges, Homer, Ferguson, Maurice H. McMahon, Lester S. Moll and Allan Campbell, who also were specified in Mr. Liggett's testimony. They denied that at a banquet, attended by the Governor, at which they were guests of honor, liquor was served or improper entertainment given. Likewise, they denied that guests included bootleggers or other objectionable persons.

Governor Green, who came here to serve as chairman at the memorial exercises on the anniversary of the sinking of the battleship Maine, made his statement in the form of a letter to the judiciary committee. In it he said:

"My attention has been called to statements made to the committee early this week in which 'the Governor of Michigan' was mentioned. My personal and official conduct is an open book to the peopleof Michigan, whom I have been privileged to serve for many years.

"It is my honor to have served fourteen terms as Mayor of Ionia, a typical American city. Michigan has honored me as Governor for two terms. At the moment I am serving as National Commander of the United Spanish War Veterans.

"I have no desire to dignify gossipy allegations, admittedly based on the statements of a political enemy, but I would like the committee to read the attached statements made by Judges Homer Ferguson, Lester Moll, Allan Campbell and Maurice McMahon of the Circuit Court.

"I am very willing to help the committee in its work and will be glad to appear before it if it so desires."

The suggestion that a national convention be called for the consideration of prohibition was contained in a letter received today by Representative Clancy, member of the committee, from Harry E. Toy, former assistant prosecutor of Wayne County, Mich., who had planned to testify before the committee but will be prevented by other engagements.

RETIRING NURSE HITS AT BOOTLEG LIQUOR

Says Alcoholic Patients Are Slower to Recover Than Before Prohibition.

Chronic alcoholics do not recover as easily today as they did before the advent of prohibition, was the opinion expressed yesterday by Miss Margaret Reilly as she retired from Bellevue Hospital, where she had been a nurse in the alcoholic ward since 1917. Miss Reilly, who was born in Ireland, has been a nurse in city and State hospitals for thirty-three years.

"Now prohibition might have advantages which I will not deny," Miss Reilly declared, "but no one can tell me it has reduced the number of 'chronics' in my ward. We have steady customers, in regularly three and four times each month, to sleep it off.

"But one thing I have noticed is that it takes them longer to snap out of the effects of the poison they buy these days than it did before prohibition came. They fall harder and they lie longer."

Although prohibition has not decreased the number of "chronics," Miss Reilly admitted it has not increased them. "But this is not due so much to prohibition as to the economic conditions, to my way of thinking," she added. The nurse sounded one optimistic note when she reported a steady decrease during the past few years in the number of persons blinded by poison liquor.

Miss Reilly, who lives at 416 East Twenty-sixth Street, received her training at Kings Park State Hospital for the Insane. She remained there for fourteen years before going to Bellevue. She celebrated the nineteenth anniversary of her arrival there on Oct. 3.

American Speed Fliers in Cristobal.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 15 (AP).—Lieutenants Will W. White and Clement McMullen, on a speed flight from Newark, N. J., to Buenos Aires, landed at Cristobal, Canal Zone, at 6:13 o'clock tonight on the second stage of their journey, they reported to the radio station here of the Pan-American Airways tonight.

URGE WETS TO UNITE TO END 'DRY EVILS'

Speakers at Lawyers' Luncheon Say Prohibition Has Made Crime a Big Business.

"NOW IN A CIVIL WAR"

Pennsylvania Professor Calls for "Organized Mass of Votes to Fight Anti-Saloon League.

Coordination of all organizations opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act to promote temperance and eliminate the "evils of prohibition" was urged yesterday at a luncheon of the Voluntary Committee of Lawyers, Inc., in the Hotel Plaza. Assailing the prohibition law from legal and medical viewpoints, speakers visualized the country in a state of civil war, with crime for the first time a lucrative profession as a result of prohibition.

Dr. Samuel W. Lambert, former president of the New York Academy of Medicine and president of the Association for Preservation of Constitutional Rights, condemned the restrictions the law had placed on physicians in prescribing liquor. He saw the situation in regard to medicinal alcohol unchanged, but "the correction of the medical problem only a part of the larger question of prohibition."

"It looks to me as if this country is now in a civil war and that it is fortunate that the opposing sides are not grouped on a geographical basis," he said. "If it were so, this actual state of affairs would be palpable to all and might easily develop into a more serious condition than the present one of sniping skirmishes.

"In the meantime I believe that the cause of temperance will be advanced if all the organizations working against present day prohibition can be united on some one definite plan and no opponents of the Eighteenth Amendment shall waste their energies by a multitude of separate attacks from disconnected points of view."

Crime Is Now Big Business.

Professor Francis H. Bohlen of the University of Pennsylvania, speaking on the legal aspects of national prohibition, asserted that there never has been a nation-wide prohibition in the world.

"We all know," Mr. Bohlen continued, "that prohibition has made crime for the first time a lucrative profession. As such, it is big business, highly organized, with ample resources, financed by every sort of method, including the corruption of civic, State and national authorities. That is a well-known fact. All questions of crime must necessarily concern the lawyer."

To obtain any modification of the prohibition law, Professor Bohlen said, "we must convince two classes: the class which does not feel the insult which the present act is to all the individual rights which we believe that we possess, and the industrialists who "regard as the summum bonum the gaining of two or three hours of productive work time on a Monday morning."

Voted Should Be Massed.

Mr. Bohlen reminded the gathering the "we are face to face with an opposition which is enormously powerful politically." He said that speaking of prohibition as a matter of religion was merely a mockery and a sham. In opposing the "force of organized votes," he said, those who are against prohibition must see to it that "the sentiment for decency and moderation, the temperance movement as against the intemperance of prohibition, shall be organized in a way which can make itself felt.

"It must be known that there is an organized mass of votes which can be thrown into the election as a counterpoise to those of the Anti-Saloon League. Then the candidates will be free to vote not only as they drink but as they think, and that we must have."

Austen G. Fox, who heads the Voluntary Committee of Lawyers, Inc., presided.

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, was among those at the speakers' table.

BRUCE URGES STAND BY ANTI-DRY BOARD

He Writes to Stayton and du Pont Advocating Change in the 18th Amendment, Not Repeal.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 15.—William Cabell Bruce, former Senator from Maryland, has written to Captain William Stayton, chairman of the Board of the National Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, and Pierre S. du Pont, chairman of the board's executive committee, for their interpretation of the phrase in the resolution adopted Feb. 4 calling for a "face-the-facts" conference.

That the proposed conference might result in an alteration of the stand of the national association with regard to the repeal or the amendment of the Eighteenth Amendment is seen as another possibility.

Thus far the association has stood for repeal. There is a growing feeling, especially among the Baltimore members, it was stated today, that amendment is the goal to pursue in the future.

"We want the association to take up the amendment of the amendment," Mr. Bruce declared.

"It would be unwise to think of attempting to repeal the amendment. The amendment should provide the possibilities for some adequate system for the governmental control or dispensation of beverages."

While it is hoped by many of its local advocates that the proposed conference will be composed not only of representatives of the association but delegates from all of the leading anti-prohibition organizations in the country, definite announcement of the personnel of the meeting is withheld.

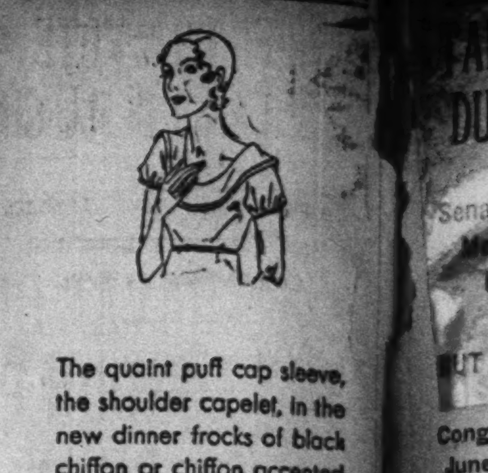
UNION LEAGUE POLLS MEMBERS ON DRY ACT

Continued from Page 1, Column 5.

opposed to bringing up the issue. At present the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, of which former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth is the State head, is actively at work up-State with an announced policy of opposing dry Republican candidates in sections of the State which voted "wet" in the prohibition referendum. Prohibition also has become an issue in the Legislature, where defeat of a State enforcement bill is indicated by the defection of a sufficient number of Republican Senators to destroy the party majority in the upper house.

The Republican county organizations in New York City have declared in the past against prohibition in its present form, but the party leaders here always have shown a willingness to acquiesce in a "middle-of-the-road" policy on prohibition and the nomination of a candidate for Governor of the same description. With virtually all the rural up-State county organizations dry, most of the Republican leaders here have always been opposed to stirring up the issue any more than necessary.

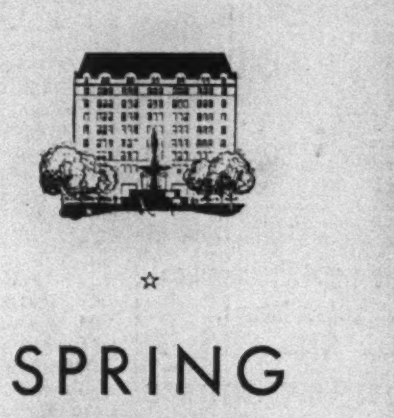
BRUCK-WEISS



20 West 57th Street

BLACK DINNER FROCKS

The quaint puff cap sleeve, the shoulder capelet, in the new dinner frocks of black chiffon or chiffon accented with lace evidence a charming Directoire influence.



SPRING TRENDS

Bergdorf Goodman's new collection sounds the first notes of spring. It gives a new importance to the ensemble, not only for daytime but also for evening, sports, lingerie and lounging. It introduces the new suits fitted at waist and hips. It presents the hat-shoe-and-bag ensemble.

BERGDORF GOODMAN

ON THE PLAZA

Final Clearance

Furs of Quality

Coats of Mink, Caracul, Broadtail, Ermine, Sport Furs and other furs in popular demand

Hickson INC

FIFTH AVE. at 52nd ST., NEW YORK

BOSTON BUFFALO PARIS

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Haas Soeurs Inc.

MILLINERY and GOWNS

743 FIFTH AVENUE

Bet. 57th and 58th Streets, New York

BIG DRESS SALE

500 DRESSES

Must Be Sold at Once

15.75 29.50 39.50

Sizes 14 to 44

NEW JERSEY ADVERTISERS may telephone classified advertising orders for The New York Times to Mulberry 3900—the Newark office of The Times. All classifications except Business Opportunities, Public Notices and Situations Wanted acceptable by telephone.—Advt.

TARIFF BILL VOTE DUE EARLY IN MARCH

Senate Action Now Appears More Hopeful, to Benefit of Country, Watson Says.

BUT FARM ROW STILL PENDS

Congress Heads Plan to Adjourn June 12, Depending on Speed of Measure in Conference.

SPONGE IRON RATE IS CUT

In Short Sitting, Democrats Win One Motion, but Lose on Putting Boron Carbide on Free List.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Passage of the tariff bill by the Senate early in March, which he now believes probable, will do a great deal to relieve business uncertainty, enlarge production and consumption and increase employment, Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, Republican floor leader, said today.

Mr. Watson recently was fearful that the scaling of industrial rates by the Senate coalition might result in the defeat of the bill by the House, which is represented also as unalterably opposed to the debenture and flexible tariff amendments voted in the Senate, but he is now of opinion that some sort of compromise will be effected in conference which will assure the enactment of a new tariff law before the current session of Congress comes to an end.

"President Hoover wants a tariff bill enacted, thinks it will be a mistake not to pass one, and I am of the opinion that Congress should proceed accordingly," said Senator Watson. "Tardy action by the Senate in considering the tariff program has tended to create business uncertainty and to hold back the purchase of goods of various kinds. I think that when the bill goes through the Senate, probably the first week in March, there will be a favorable reaction in all lines of business."

Mr. Watson will continue to exert his influence to expedite the tariff measure in the Senate, but pointed out that its passage probably could not be brought about before March 1 owing partly to the time that had been lost this week in debate on the nomination of Charles Evans Hughes to be chief justice, which probably will be continued to some extent next week.

Senators Goff of West Virginia and Fess of Ohio, Republicans, have given notice of an intention to answer the attacks made on the Supreme Court and Mr. Hughes. Accordingly, indications are that the tariff bill will have to be laid aside on Monday for the benefit of Senators Goff and Fess and others who may be disposed to reply to them.

To Draft Subsequent Program.

But with this issue out of the way, Mr. Watson said it would be the aim of the Republican organization to keep the tariff bill before the Senate until it was finally acted on. When the tariff action has been completed, Mr. Watson said the leaders would proceed to the framing of a legislative program to govern the procedure of the Senate for the rest of the session.

After the tariff will come bills providing for the disposition of power at the Muscle Shoals plant and the measure, already passed by the House, looking to the transfer of the Prohibition Bureau from the Treasury to the Justice Department. Efforts will then be made to give right of way to the Couzens bill to establish a communications commission.

As things now stand at both ends of the Capitol, the Republican leaders believe the session will end about the last week in June. June 12 has been tentatively fixed as adjournment date, but few believe that it will be possible to quit by then. But all members of the Senate and the House are anxious to adjourn the earliest possible date. The Fall campaign will be full of uncertainties and candidates are anxious to get back to their districts early.

The tariff may prove to be a stumbling block in the way of early adjournment. If there should be a protracted struggle in conference, Congress might be held here indefinitely, unless in the midst of the negotiations a decision should be reached to let the bill die in conference. The administration will do its utmost to prevent such a contingency.

While Senator Watson is now in a more optimistic mood over the outlook for the tariff bill than he was a few weeks ago, he is still far from satisfied with the industrial rates of the bill as they are being written by the coalition. He thinks that it is essential to the continued prosperity of the country that many of the industrial rates of the 1922 act should be raised and that there should be few or no reductions below the 1922 level.

He regards the present unemployment as due in large part to the fact that last year $5,000,000,000 worth of foreign goods were imported into the United States, a large proportion of which, he believes, could have been produced in the United States under adequate protective rates.

Farm Fight Still Threatening.

Two big fights loom before the Senate as that body enters upon the final stages of discussion of the bill. One will be made in behalf of the program submitted for the Farm Bureau Federation providing for higher rates on certain agricultural products, and the other will revolve around articles affecting the Aluminum Company of America, which numbers among its important stockholders Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

The Senate farm bloc, speaking for various agricultural organizations, intends to make another effort to increase the rate on dressed beef from 3 cents a pound, the present duty, to 8 cents a pound. The pending bill taxes this product at 6 cents a pound.

It also will ask for an embargo on blackstrap molasses, the principal source of industrial alcohol; protective rates on hides and leather goods, which are now admitted free; an ad valorem duty of 45 per cent on fats and oils, which are taxed at varying rates by the bill, and an increase in the rate on casein from 5½ cents a pound, as recommended by the Finance Committee, to 8 cents a pound.

In their attempts to force the adoption of these rates, Western Republican Senators are counting on strong support from the Democratic side. The coalition is by no means united on the farm program as outlined. Spokesmen of farm organizations have given warning that if more protection is not accorded on the items named they will advise the Western Republican contingent to vote against the bill.

A particularly strenuous effort will be made to increase the duty on dressed beef. At present there is an embargo on Argentine beef, but this is likely to be lifted at any time. In that event, cattle raisers contend, the proposed 6 cent rate would not be effective.

The Senate recently voted to continue hides, boots, shoes and other leather goods on the free list, thus scrapping the protective rates proposed by the House and the Finance Committee. A protective rate of 10 per cent ad valorem on hides will be demanded by the Senate farm bloc, which will join forces with those elements seeking proportionate compensatory rates on articles of leather.

Philippine Issue a Factor.

Progressive Republicans from the West will join hands with Southern Democrats to put a limitation upon the importation of duty-free products from the Philippines. Senator Broussard, Democrat, of Louisiana, has announced that he will offer an amendment limiting the Philippine sugar imports to 600,000 tons a year and a like restriction will be sought on cocoanut oil from the islands.

The South, engaged in the production of cottonseed oil, and the West, complaining that Philippine cocoanut oil is cutting in on sales of vegetable oils and fats, are insistent that Philippine trade on these products shall be curtailed as a measure of protection to the farmers of the South and West.

The name "Mellon" has frequently cropped out in the Senate debates in connection with the rates proposed on aluminum. It is likely to be heard again when the Senate returns to the paragraph of the bill dealing with that product.

Senator Walsh of Montana, the acting Democratic leader, has given notice that he will ask for a reduction in the present duties of 9 cents a pound imposed on sheet, bar and coil aluminum and 5 cents a pound on the crude article. He wants to restore the Underwood rates of 1913, which were 3½ cents and 2 cents, respectively. If the coalititon rallies around the Walsh amendment, as now seems probable, it is likely to be adopted.

Owing to inability to maintain a quorum, the Senate quit today at the end of a two-hour session. On motion of Senator Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky the duty on sponge iron was fixed at 75 cents a ton, as compared with the rate of $2 a ton carried by the bill as reported. A motion by Senator Barkley that boron carbide be transferred to the free list was rejected. This product is taxed at 25 per cent ad valorem by the bill.

Snow Falls in the City for Many Hours; Colder Here Today; Zero Weather in West

Snow started here at 2:18 o'clock yesterday afternoon and fell steadily during the rest of the afternoon and evening and well into the night. The local Weather Bureau officials expected that the total fall would not exceed three or four inches. Cloudy and colder weather was predicted for today.

The city's average temperature yesterday was 32 degrees above zero, with a high of 35 at 1:30 P. M. and a low of 27 at 6 P. M. By 8:30 o'clock last night a snowfall of 1.8 inches was recorded by the Weather Bureau.

At 6:45 o'clock last night the Street Cleaning Department put its regular night force of 1,700 men to work clearing away the snow in the five boroughs, aided by ninety plows. As the snowfall was light, officials of the department foresaw little difficulty in clearing it away but they said last night they were prepared to put extra men to work today.

In Swanton, Vt., town officials turned to chemistry in the hope of finding a solution for the problem of averting what threatened to be the second serious ice jam of the Winter, according to The Associated Press. Dr. Howard Barnes and Dr. A. E. Moesveld, professors in the ice research departments of McGill University at Montreal, surveyed the Missiquoi River and later submitted an estimate of $2,500 as the cost of breaking up the jam.

The Middle West had zero and subzero temperatures yesterday, but not for long. Temperatures that started falling on Friday reached the 10 and 20 below zero yesterday, but the forecast for today was for rising temperatures. Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas and Iowa reported subzero readings, and Illinois, Nebraska, Missouri and Montana were on the verge.

JAIL 100 IN CHICAGO, TAKE 3,000 IN WEEK

Police Continue Round-Up as the Racketeers Flee City—Killer of Tony Lombardo Sought.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15 (AP).—One hundred more suspects, including five who were armed and twenty-one men with criminal records, were corralled in the police round-up of hoodlums today while investigators sought a clue to the assassins of Tony Lombardo, a thief, who was killed last night apparently for poaching on racketeers. The killers of Lombardo ran away so quickly they left a sawed-off shotgun on the scene.

Since last Sunday police have arrested more than 3,000 suspects in a campaign against crime. Most of the known gang leaders have been in hiding and have evaded arrest, although Myles O'Donnell, reputed West Side gang chief, was caught in a surprise raid on a West Side café. He obtained his freedom on a $1,400 bond for disorderly conduct.

Police records showed a 50 per cent reduction in crime during the week, attributed to the concerted drive. Commissioner of Police William F. Russell reiterated his orders for harassing the underworld until undesirables have been driven out of town.

The killing of Lombardo was the only gang slaying of consequence during the week. He was shot down in a Northwest Side alley where he evidently had been "put on the spot." The only motive police could evolve for his slaying was that he had tried to "muscle in" on the racket game. He was not related to Tony Lombardo, the Italian leader and ally of Al Capone, who was shot down in the heart of the Loop last year.

Police said Ray O'Laughlin, gunman and robber slain in Detroit during a hold-up two days ago, was a Chicago hoodlum who had been driven out of the city. O'Laughlin, the police said, was a pal of George Barker, labor terrorist, who was indicted yesterday for carrying arms.

Detroit Fights Increase in Crime.

DETROIT, Feb. 15 (AP).—Detroit police officials today said the city was the victim of a gangster exodus from Chicago. The police said they have found themselves forced to combat scores of high pressure racketeers, hoodlums and gangsters schooled in Chicago, but forced to flee that city.

To this influx of undesirable characters the Detroit police attribute seven violent deaths, two successful daylight payroll robberies, two successive hold-ups of the Western Union Telegraph Company's downtown office and a host of lesser crimes in the past two weeks.

Two payroll robberies today netted a total of $6,100, one of them being at Providence Hospital, where the nun who acts as cashier was robbed. In the other a $1,100 payroll was taken from a woman cashier who was in an automobile.

The body of the week's third "ride" victim was found late in the day near a road in Macomb County, a few miles from the city limits. Apparently a foreigner, the man had been shot ten times.

TARIFF TRUCE TALKS TO OPEN TOMORROW

27 European and 3 Non-European Nations to Participate Fully—Six to Send Observers.

E. C. WILSON THERE FOR US

United States Is Listed as "Also Present"—Preliminary Draft of Convention Prepared.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Feb. 15.—"A preliminary conference with a view to concerted economic action" has been adopted as the designation of the conference opening Monday in Geneva, generally known as the "tariff truce" conference. The designation adopted is judged to be more accurate, as the conference has to deal not only with a customs truce, but also with facilitating economic relations by all practicable means, especially by reducing the hindrances to trade.

The conference beginning Monday is considered here to be the most important of its kind since the 1927 international economic conference. Twenty-seven European and three non-European countries are participating with fully accredited delegations. Six non-European countries are sending observers. The United States, to cite the official list of delegates, will be "also present" through Edwin C. Wilson, who has been instructed by Washington to be in Geneva during the period of the conference.

All the States of Europe are participating save Albania, Russia and Turkey. The non-European States sending delegates are Japan, Colombia and Peru. Observers will be sent by Brazil, China, Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Mexico and Persia. The several delegations will include seventeen Cabinet Ministers and several former Ministers.

Move Launched in Assembly.

The meetings are a result of the European economic situation and its repercussions on the delegates at the last League Assembly. These delegates urged the League to do its utmost to better the situation, which, in the absence of any systematic general application of the recommendations of the 1927 economic conference, had not improved sufficiently. Premier MacDonald, M. Briand and Dr. Stresemann at that time advocated agreements to increase economic freedom, set forth the most striking aspects of the European problem and pointed out the inconsistency of the European economic organization with present-day conditions. The Belgian Foreign Minister, Paul Hymans, finally made the concrete proposal of a tariff truce which immediately was backed by William Graham, the president of the British Board of Trade, with a wealth of data.

The preparatory work was undertaken by the League's technical organizations, its economic committee preparing the preliminary draft of a convention for the conclusion of a tariff truce with the view of putting an end to the raising of customs tariffs. By it the countries agree to maintain the treatment which they at present accord by consolidating import and export duties and by exchanging effective guarantees with regard to internal taxes and prohibitions and all impediments to trade.

Not to Affect Existing Treaties.

It is formally laid down in the draft of the convention that it shall not invalidate any bilateral treaty establishing a more favorable régime or any rights or obligations arising from such a covenant. This draft of the convention, as the German representatives stated at the council meeting in January, "is only to provide a starting point for the discussion and is not to prejudice the conference in its deliberations."

The extent of the hope that a tariff truce can be established may be judged from a recent circular letter sent by Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary General of the League, reminding the States of the necessity of sending delegates empowered to sign a convention. But this is not considered to be an end in itself. The aim of a truce, League circles say, is to allow further concerted action to be pursued on a firm basis and in an atmosphere of confidence with the object of facilitating economic relations by all practicable means.

Y.W.C.A. CONFERENCE OPENS

150 Business and Professional Delegates Gather at Newburgh.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Feb. 15.—About 150 delegates to the regional conference of business and professional girls of the Young Women's Christian Association began a two-day session here tonight with representatives from Long Island, Greater New York and the lower Hudson Valley attending.

At the dinner tonight Miss Abbie Graham, author, of New York City, gave travel talks, and Miss Isabel Dress of New York City told of national board activities.

The associations represented are Central Branch, Bronx; Eastern Brooklyn, Brooklyn Central, Ashland Place, Brooklyn, Harlem and West Branch, all of New York City; Mount Vernon, White Plains, Jamaica, Yonkers, Greenpoint, Long Island, Scarsdale, Kingston and Newburgh.

REPUBLICANS AT SEA ON FALL CAMPAIGN

Defer Considering Claims of Gubernatorial Aspirants Until Legislature Adjourns.

NONE IS ANXIOUS TO RUN

Plans Depend on Record of Legislative Majority, Now Far Behind in Its Work.

By W. A. WARN.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 15.—The quest for a Republican candidate for Governor has virtually come to a halt, pending final adjournment of the Legislature. The several aspirants whose names have been mentioned are pursuing the Woodrow Wilson policy of "watchful waiting."

Before throwing their hats into the ring they are waiting to see what the deliberations of the Legislature will bring that can be converted into campaign material for the spirited contest in which, they are well aware, they will be confronted by Governor Roosevelt, who is almost certain to be a candidate for re-election.

At the present writing the attitude of most of those who have been mentioned as possible Republican candidates can best be described as one of aloofness. As yet the Republicans have made no visible progress in their effort to put Governor Roosevelt on the defensive.

Should the weeks that remain of the legislative session, in which the bulk of its work must be done, bring no improvement in this situation, there is a prospect that the Republican nomination for Governor may go by default to some one not now in the running because of indifference to an empty honor on the part of men prominent in the party.

Normally the Legislature should by this time be about midway in its labors and should have hit a stride which, with a gradual gain in momentum, would bring the session to a close by the end of March.

Hardly any of the important legislation on the Senate and Assembly files, however, has been reached. A survey of the pending bills, including important amendments to the Public Service Commission law, the Untermyer unification measure and other New York City legislation which the Republicans dare not slight in a Gubernatorial year, would indicate that the session this year will extend into April if the Republican majority is to acquit itself with honor and profit.

William J. Maier, chairman of the State Committee, who is taking a rather hopeful view of the outlook, before starting on a brief vacation in Florida said that no decision with regard to a candidate for Governor and the rest of the slate would be reached before the end of the session.

As there has been as yet no building up of a candidate with organization backing, this will give the Republicans a rather late start, especially in view of the fact that the Democrats have their candidate prepared for the race.

United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, who would have considerable support, both in New York City and up-State; Senator George R. Fearon of Onondaga, who ranks with Mr. Tuttle on the strength of his following, mostly from north of the Bronx; Senator Seabury C. Mastick of Westchester and Attorney General Hamilton Ward all have claims on the nomination which they would press if they actually were eager to run.

So far they are virtually the only ones who have been seeking support, but not one of them has announced that he is a candidate.

The more recent boom for Borough President George U. Harvey, local to his bailiwick of Queens, is viewed here generally in the light of comic relief, and it has given the Republicans on Capitol Hill about the only good laugh they have had in contemplating the outlook for the State campaign.

Another boom that may eclipse the others is budding but is not likely to come out in the open unless the advantage is with the Republicans when the legislative session ends. Speaker McGinnies of the Assembly so far has contrived to keep under cover a movement for his nomination, not lacking in organization, among Republican members of the House over which he presides. Should it be regarded as opportune, the belief on Capitol Hill is that his candidacy will be announced about the time the Legislature adjourns.

It is known that Mr. Maier is not oblivious of the fact that Speaker McGinnies will be a big factor in the situation from now on, being in a position where he can do much to shape legislative policy to help the party.

Aside from this Speaker McGinnies as a candidate, according to the prevailing view among Republicans on Capitol Hill, would be better able, on the strength of his record as Speaker and member of the Assembly for the last fourteen years, to enlist the vigorous support of the drys without alienating any except the extreme wets.

The Speaker invariably has voted for dry enforcement bills when the vote has been close enough to make his vote count, but he has never sought by coercion to drive Assemblymen representing wet constituencies to vote with the majority for a dry bill, although he has been in a position to do so.

Prohibition is the one issue out of the many that will figure in the campaign that the Republicans most fear, because of its potentiality for creating discord in the Republican ranks.

WESTCHESTER TAX UP $1,000,000 IN 1930

Total County and State Levy $7,965,245 Compared to $6,869,693 Last Year.

YONKERS TO PAY $1,795,245

Mount Vernon's Share $1,110,865—State Budget Including Judiciary and Armory Taxes $298,567.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 15.—The total county and State taxation for Westchester in 1930, including judicial and State armory taxes, the county budget, school taxes, charges against the towns for institutions and sewer taxes, as announced today by Fred Merritt, clerk of the Board of Supervisors, amount to $7,965,245. The same taxes last year amounted $6,869,693, showing an increase of approximately $1,000,000. In the apportionment of these taxes to the four cities and eighteen towns of Westchester County, Yonkers, the largest municipality, pays the largest individual share, $1,795,245; Mount Vernon, $1,110,865; New Rochelle, $813,483, and White Plains, $695,581.

The amount to be paid by each town and city, together with the amount paid last year, was announced as follows:

Corporate Area.	1929.	1930.
Bedford	$105,364	$136,141
Cortlandt	268,208	338,754
East Chester	311,681	357,656
Greenburgh	459,050	538,601
Harrison	184,934	221,236
Lewisboro	26,200	31,013
Mamaroneck	290,907	335,889
Mount Pleasant	273,927	324,186
Mount Vernon	718,730	1,110,865
New Castle	95,068	121,896
New Rochelle	788,139	813,483
North Castle	76,702	81,462
North Salem	22,026	32,679
Ossining	185,757	234,200
Pelham	183,413	244,465
Poundridge	10,160	11,223
Rye	446,264	597,113
Scarsdale	207,378	224,001
Somers	23,549	31,644
White Plains	592,363	695,581
Yonkers	1,559,731	1,795,245
Yorktown	40,135	44,484
Total	$6,869,693	$7,965,245

The total State budget for 1930, including judiciary and armory taxes, amounts to $298,567 for Westchester County. The bulk of the taxes are placed on the county budget of $5,860,049. To these items must be added the shares in the cost of the Bronx Parkway, which the corporate areas along this parkway are paying each year.

Another sum which the communities pay in these taxes is the charge of supporting the poor and children in county institutions. The towns also must pay their share of State and county highway maintenance.

Today's News Index

Sunday, February 16, 1930.

Guide to Sections

216 Pages

I.	30	General News
II.	22	News and Financial, Deaths
III.	8	Editorial
IV.	40	Book Review (Rotogravure)
V.	24	Magazine (Rotogravure)
VI.	8	Rotogravure (Pictures)
VII.	8	Rotogravure (Pictures)
VIII.	8	Rotogravure (Pictures)
IX.	20	Amusements
X.	20	Features, Automobiles
XI.	8	Sports, Shipping and Mails
XII.	8	Real Estate
XIII.	16	Classified

Sunday Suburban Rotogravure Sections
1. New Jersey, Staten Island.
2. Westchester and Connecticut.
3. Brooklyn and Long Island.
4. Bronx, Harlem, Washington Hgts.

Each suburban picture section contains 16 pages of local pictures. Distributed only within its own locality.

General News—Section I.

NAVAL CONFERENCE.

More naval building sure, but parley will fix limits. Page 1
Hoover is confident of naval limitation agreement. Page 1
Complications are seen in France's present program. Page 5
Huge American outlay for navy forecast in parity move. Page 5
Japanese to confer with Americans and British tomorrow. Page 6
Senator Walsh of Montana favors Mediterranean pact. Page 6
MacDonald host to 30 newspaper men at Chequers. Page 7

NEW YORK.

Bar report asks removal of Vitale for "willful and corrupt" act. Page 1
Text of bar report presenting the charges against Vitale. Page 29
N. Y. Central opens huge power station under 42d St. area. Page 1
Union League Club queries its members on prohibition. Page 1
Campbell to maintain strict dry enforcement for hotels. Page 2
Speakers at lawyers' luncheon urge wets to unite. Page 2
Bail bond agents unite to end evils after two lose licenses. Page 4
Elisabeth Marbury depicts New York of past. Page 10
Admirers all over world hail Elihu Root on 85th birthday. Page 14
Luncheon speakers deny machine age stifles culture. Page 16
Knickerbocker players win team-of-four contract bridge title. Page 18
Gasoline price war is expected in the Spring. Page 21
Hold-up men get $7,300 in three payroll raids. Page 24
Physicians' art show opens at the Academy of Medicine. Page 26
Morgenthau recalls his days as a pupil at Public School 14. Page 26
Music and Theatres. Page 28

THE SUBURBS.

Suffolk prosecutor acts to curb Coast Guard shootings. Page 2
Westchester to pay $1,000,000 more taxes in 1930. Page 3
New Jersey education bills assailed at Legislature hearing. Page 16
Mayor of Atlantic City says he will fight move to oust him. Page 24
New Jersey officials asked to explain $200,000 bank deposits. Page 25

ALBANY.

Republicans at sea on choice of candidate for Governor. Page 3
Utility Board seeks more authority over holding companies. Page 12

WASHINGTON.

Beedy of Maine replies to Beck in House on dry law. Page 2
Watson predicts tariff bill action early in March. Page 3
Improvement in wheat prices predicted as visible supply falls. Page 11
Senate endorses quest for newsprint supply in Alaska. Page 17
Alastair MacDonald over radio gives his views of New York. Page 19

GENERAL.

Hoover, tanned by sun and rested, begins return to capital. Page 1
Three found guilty, three acquitted in Auburn murder. Page 1
Government sues 19 California oil companies for price-fixing. Page 15
Illinois labor head leads move to oust John L. Lewis. Page 17
Chicago officials and Strawn group study financing plans. Page 20

FOREIGN.

Red atheists drive to end religion in five-year campaign. Page 1
Thirty nations will open tariff truce sessions at Geneva. Page 3
Italian commission report censures Nobile on Italia disaster. Page 7
Chinese rebel leaders in mysterious conference in Shansi. Page 8
King Alfonso abolishes the Spanish National Assembly. Page 8
Doctor stresses gain in British health following drink decline. Page 9
Soviet drives fast toward goal of complete socialization. Page 22

Section I (Continued).

AVIATION.

Aviation show, in closing, reports 200,000 paid admissions. Page 23
International Aircraft Exposition opens in St. Louis. Page 23

General News—Section II.

NEW YORK.

Soviet decree regulating religious groups made public here. Page 1
Six more schools enter oratorical contest; total 315 for region. Page 1
Taxi drivers plan to fight Whalen order on uniforms. Page 1
Internal Revenue Bureau issues directions on income taxes. Page 2
Barnard head of Lincoln on view at art museum tomorrow. Page 3
Interstate park seeks data to aid restoration of forts of 1776. Page 3
Pastors will preach today on lives of Washington and Lincoln. Page 4
Revolutionary leader's will shows "de" Steuben, not "von." Page 5
Program of current events for this week. Page 19
First asparagus of season arrives at city's markets. Page 22
Exhibition depicts history of transportation in this country. Page 22

THE SUBURBS.

Princeton alumni to hold four-day reunion beginning Thursday. Page 1

GENERAL.

New fossils found in dinosaur canyon in Arizona. Page 1
Sen. Wagner says he will push prohibition debate. Page 1
Two Cornell fraternities offer to build dormitory units. Page 5

FOREIGN.

Maine disaster commemorated by 50,000 in Havana. Page 1
German liner Europa, refitted after fire, starts service March 19. Page 1
Charles A. Weyerhaeuser of St. Paul dies at Bombay. Page 7

SOCIETY.

New Jersey society kept busy by many events. Page 5
Second Knickerbocker Assembly is preceded by many dinners. Page 6
Miss Rose Cecelia Sheehan married to Kenneth F. Shea. Page 6
Elizabeth Dublin engaged to marry George Marshall. Page 6
Miss Elizabeth M. Bacon married to Anthony F. Bisgood. Page 6

FINANCIAL AND BUSINESS.

General business shows further gains in last week. Page 9
Reichsbank adopts new plan for distribution of profits. Page 9
Prof. Fisher analyzes the recent stock market slump. Page 9
B. & O. seeks prize in full control of Reading Company. Page 9
Convertible bonds boomed by use in stock market. Page 9
Deposits in savings banks decreased $195,000,000 in year. Page 9

Section II (Continued).

FINANCIAL AND BUSINESS.

National Investors group decides to issue quarterly reports. Page 9
Expansion of cake oven gas industry by Koppers expected. Page 9
Marshall Field stock, admitted in Chicago, offered at $50. Page 12
$83,179,600 bonds called for redemption this month. Page 13
Reports of Stock Exchanges in Paris and Berlin. Page 13
Ontario's gold output $2,742,488 in January. Page 14
Investment trusts show swift recovery from recent slump. Page 15
Fire insurance companies invest more in common stocks. Page 16
Gasoline tax collections in nation rose 47 per cent in 1929. Page 18
The Merchant's Point of View on business conditions. Page 20

	Page.		Page.
Stock Sales	10	Out-of-Town	17
Topics	11	Wheat	18
Bond Sales	12	Cotton	18
Foreign Exch.	13	Produce	18
Over Counter	14	Incorporations	18
Curb	16	Bus. Records	19

Editorial—Section III.

TIMES Watch-Tower observations from Washington, Richmond, Boston, St. Louis, Omaha, San Francisco and other American cities. Pages 1 and 2
TIMES week-end cable dispatches from London, Paris, Dublin, Vienna, Madrid, Moscow and other foreign capitals. Pages 1, 3 and 8

In the Book Review—Section IV.

The Gun That Fired on Paris—Reviewed by T. J. C. Martyn. Page 1
Harr Wagner's Life of Joaquin Miller—Reviewed by Uffington Valentine. Page 2
Miranda, Romantic Figure of Three Revolutions—Reviewed by T. R. Ybarra. Page 3

In the Magazine—Section V.

The Twilight of the Opera Gods—By T. R. Ybarra. Page 1
A Portrait of the New Chief Justice—By Harold Phelps Stokes. Page 3
Surveying the Scene in Palestine—By Emil Ludwig. Page 4
Things That Make Boston What She Is—By R. L. Duffus. Page 6
The Souvenir Hunter Seeks New Fields—By Lewis Nichols. Page 8
Mr. Grundy States His Political Faith—By S. J. Woolf. Page 9
Archaeology Sheds Light on the Bible—By P. W. Wilson. Page 10
The Glider Leaves Sport for Utility—By T. J. C. Martyn. Page 12

Special Features—Section X.

Again an Issue: What Is Intoxicating? Page 1
New York City's Three-Billion-Dollar Business. Page 3
A Survey of America's Far-Flung "Empire." Page 4

Sports—Section XI.

Tilden ranked No. 1 in tennis for tenth straight year by U. S. L. T. A.
Yale conquers Princeton at hockey, 4 to 2, in thrilling contest.
U. S. scores clean sweep over England in racquet cup tourney.
Musicant's field goal beats Fordham five for City College, 24-23.
N. Y. U. quintet topples Manhattan, 29-7, Lefft leading attack.
Elder sets world's record for 60 meters in Crescent A. C. games.

ADVERTISING INDEX

	Section	Page		Section	Page
Amusements	9	3	European	3	3
Art	9	12	Financial	2	10
Aviation	10	14	Horses	11	6
Births, Deaths	2	7	Hotels	9	4
Boats	11	5	Lost & Found	2	2
Book Exch.	4	38	Music	9	9
Business Opp.	2	21	Musical Instr.	9	10
Business	2	20	Public Notices	2	1
Buyers' Wants	2	20	Radio	10	17
Camps	5	22	Real Estate	12	3
Cemeteries	2	7	Resorts, Tours	9	16
Educational	3	7	Shoppers'	9	15
Engagements	2	7	Undertakers	2	7

A CORRECTION BY GIMBELS

Certain people seem to be under the illusion that a store which sells for cash only can consistently sell for less than a store which extends the convenience of credit.

THIS IS NOT SO!

SHOP GIMBELS AND SEE FOR YOURSELF

The evidence will be found on every floor and in every department—throughout the store—throughout the year.

GIMBELS will not knowingly be undersold.

GIMBELS meets every competitor on an equal basis.

SHOP GIMBELS AND SEE FOR YOURSELF

"First Suits" for Spring

Let yours be soft enough to wear now, under a fur coat; and let it, by all means, wear a blouse that is as important as the suit itself! At this moment, our collections present particularly charming examples of these soft suit-costumes . . most of them without fur . . all of them with the "exquisite look" for which Kurzman clothes are famous. . $95 to $325

importer Kurzman
661 Fifth Avenue

Jay-Thorpe
57TH AND 56TH STREET, WEST

Fur Clearances

Closing out all our remaining exclusive models at very DRASTIC REDUCTIONS

BAIL BOND AGENTS PLAN ETHICS CODE

Unite to End Evils as the Licenses of Two Are Revoked by the State.

SOME GET PAY FOR NOTHING

Case Cited of 35% Taken From Premium Before Reaching Company Writing Bond.

As Francis P. Ward, Deputy State Superintendent of Insurance, announced yesterday that the licenses of two insurance agencies would be revoked as the result of his investigation of the bail bonds situation, seventy-five members of the recently formed Bail Bond Agents' Association met in the McAlpin Hotel, where it was announced a code of business ethics would be adopted by the organization tomorrow or Tuesday.

The spokesman for the organization, Tobias A. Keppler, attorney, was selected executive director and counsel. He announced that the association would not only cooperate with the authorities "in cleaning house," but would prosecute bail bond agents found splitting or attempting to split fees.

Mr. Keppler made the point that a 3 per cent charge for bail bonds of $3,000 or less was inadequate, as of this amount the agent received only one third. He said the remainder was taken by the company writing the bond and the agent did not get a sufficient return for his labor.

Mr. Keppler said also that the association would defend any bail bond agents unjustly accused by the authorities. He declared that the association would prosecute as well as defend bail bond agents.

Mr. Ward in his statement said the agencies involved are the Bergen Agency, Inc., whose license will be revoked on the ground that "it has demonstrated its incompetency to transact business as an insurance agent," and the Beecher Agency, which will lose its license because of "incompetency and untrustworthiness to transact business further as insurance agents," or any individual license granted to Morris Beecher or Nat Beecher.

Commissions for Doing Nothing.

Mr. Ward in his statement said in part:

"In the course of an investigation conducted by Superintendent of Insurance Conway concerning the bail bond evils it developed that, although a duly authorized agent of a company that wrote a certain bail bond received only $10 for his service he was advised that instead of forwarding direct to the company the check covering the premium paid for the bond it was forwarded to an agency. That agency deducted therefrom 10 per cent, rendering no service whatever in connection with the particular bond, and forwarded the premium, less the 10 per cent commission, to a second agency, which deducted therefrom 25 per cent, and that finally the premium found its way into the office of the company, less 35 per cent of the actual amount which should have been paid to the company for writing the bond.

"This particular instance concerns the writing of a bond by one Joseph Titus, authorized agent of the Capital City Surety Company, now in process of liquidation pursuant to an order of the Supreme Court. Titus, as agent, negotiated the writing of the bond with the Capital City Surety Company and the preliminary steps were taken by one Morris Beecher of the Beecher Agency, representing the company that passed upon the collateral and necessary incidents as to the writing of the bond.

"After the bond had been furnished the premium therefor was paid to the Bergen Agency, which is conducted by one Barney Bergen, a brother of Harry Bergen, formerly doing business as Harry Bergen, Inc., and whose license was revoked by the department some months ago.

Name Is a Subterfuge, It Is Charged

"It was brought out at the hearing that Barney Bergen performs no duties that would in any way show he was carrying on such a business as would require an agency license and that the business was being conducted under his name as a subterfuge to allow Harry Bergen to continue his activities in the insurance world.

"The Bergen agency in this particular instance collected 10 per cent of the premium, although it had performed no service whatsoever in reference to this particular bond, and the Beecher agency collected 25 per cent of the premium under an alleged agreement between the Beecher agency and the Capital City Surety Company heretofore named. Although the Beecher agency passed upon the necessary steps prior to the writing of this bail bond as a representative of the Capital City Surety Company and the bond was finally written by the Capital Surety Company, the premium, less the many commissions paid as above set forth, was paid to the Equitable Surety Company."

The additional grand jury that is conducting an inquiry into conditions in the magistrates' courts will reassemble on Tuesday and will continue the investigation of bail bond abuses, District Attorney Crain said yesterday.

These three witnesses have been subpoenaed J. Langan of 144 Park Place, Brooklyn; Jack Albert of 51 Second Street, Manhattan, and Alfred G. Yakel of 273 Windsor Place, Brooklyn. Four witnesses who were to have been called, were withdrawn by the District Attorney.

Semi-Annual Sale of Housewares Begins Tomorrow (Monday). As Usual Gimbels will Meet Every Competitor on an Equal Basis.

SHOP GIMBELS AND SEE FOR YOURSELF

Franklin Simon & Co.

MONDAY—For Madame and Mademoiselle

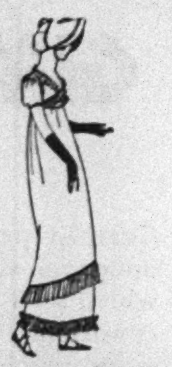
MORE OF THOSE MUCH WANTED LONG WHITE GLACÉ GLOVES

7.50

16-Button Length



Smart women buy these gloves when they can get them, whether they happen to need them at the moment or not. For this length is so much in demand that it is not always available. We are happy to announce a new shipment for tomorrow.

THE INDIVIDUAL GLOVE SHOP . . . STREET FLOOR

Franklin Simon & Co.

MONDAY—For Madame and Mademoiselle

PARIS OPENING IN NEW YORK OF NEW SPRING PARIS HATS

This is more than even a Paris Opening, for the smartest hats from all the Paris Openings will be assembled in one shop where you can find what every important Paris house is doing.

Original Models . . . Copies and Adaptations Made on Your Own Head

THE INDIVIDUAL FRENCH MILLINERY SHOP . . . FIFTH FLOOR

Franklin Simon & Co.
A STORE OF INDIVIDUAL SHOPS
FIFTH AVENUE . . . NEW YORK

MONDAY . . . For Madame and Mademoiselle

YOU WILL, OF COURSE, WEAR A SUIT THIS SPRING

Whether You Think You're a Suit Type or Not

THE PINCHED-IN WAIST-LINE SUIT
You must be rather a type to wear this suit. Clean cut and immaculately tailored, this suit is the "trotteur" at its very best.

THE CAPE SUIT
A true dressmaker suit. Soft, feminine and decidedly young in feeling. Well adapted, because of its clever proportions, to any figure.

THE SEVEN-EIGHTHS COAT SUIT
High-waisted, soft and slightly fitted in the Vionnet manner, this suit, with its indicated waist-line any type can wear.

PARIS has decided, in a season of femininity, that we are to wear tailored suits this spring. So Paris has designed suits that are individual, feminine, and as new in feeling as the rest of the season's clothes. The well-known "strictly tailored" suit has changed character; has acquired a new softness; has a new feminine note.

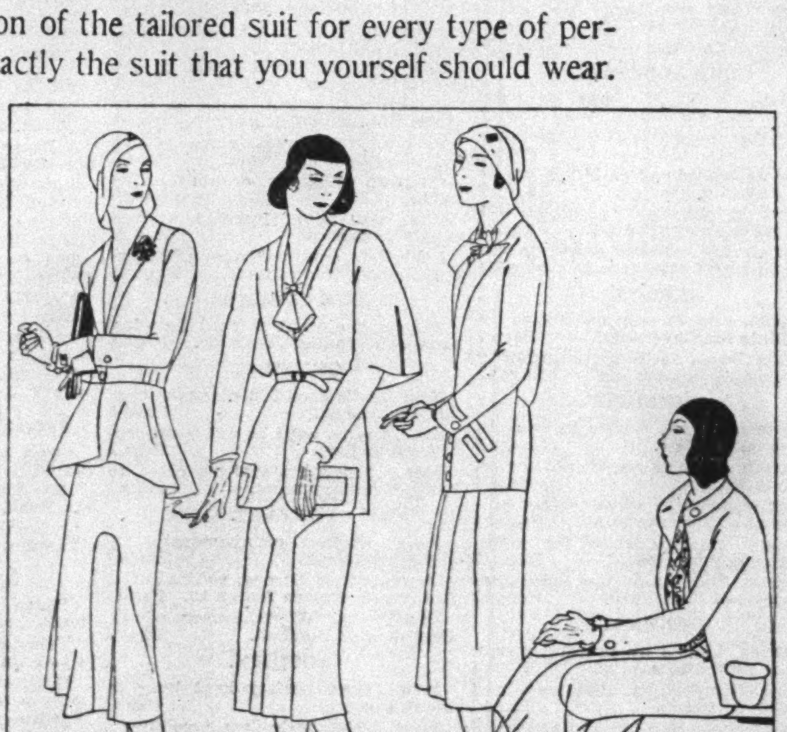
There is now a new version of the tailored suit for every type of person, and one of these is exactly the suit that you yourself should wear.

THE PEPLUM SUIT
There is no suggestion of the "strictly tailored" about this suit which is formal enough to be worn in the afternoon.

THE CAPE SLEEVE COAT
Here the cape fashion, modified to the dimensions of a sleeve, has dignity enough for the woman of more mature type.

THE BLOUSED BACK SUIT
This suit fits snugly about the hips to make one line with the skirt, and blouses like this season's dress at the back.

THE BOLERO SUIT
Another dressmaker suit—the direct descendant of the bolero dress, and consequently quite soft and easy to wear.



Of sharkskin, silky or rough tweeds, soft wool dress fabrics, new twills or coverts—in all the new dark or pastel colors.

48.00 to 250.00

INDIVIDUAL SUIT SHOPS FOR MADAME AND MADEMOISELLE . . . SECOND FLOOR

Franklin Simon & Co.
A STORE OF INDIVIDUAL SHOPS
FIFTH AVENUE . . . NEW YORK

Monday—For Madame

NEW DRESSES in the Fashions the Paris Openings Have Made Important

49.50

A New Collection

Silk or Sheer Crêpe Daytime Dresses, Many with Matching Jackets
Silk Crêpe Sleeveless Dresses with Embroidered Coats for Afternoon
Pastel or Printed Chiffon Ensemble Dresses
Lace Dresses in Black or Colors with Jackets
Lace and Chiffon Dresses for Formal Evenings

Sizes 34 to 44

THE INDIVIDUAL DRESS SHOP FOR MADAME . . . FOURTH FLOOR

Monday—For Madame and Mademoiselle

NEW HANDBAGS

EXPENSIVE MODELS FROM EXCLUSIVE MAKERS

5.95

These Bags would Ordinarily Sell for $10.00 to $16.75

Expensive bags, every one,—with all the little details that make the finer bag. Of fine pin seal or calfskin in pouch models with top or back straps; also envelopes. They come in all the fresh spring colors: greens, reds, grays, blues, beiges, browns or black. Included are imported leather bags and seed pearl* evening bags.

Simulated*

THE INDIVIDUAL BAG SHOP . . . STREET FLOOR

Franklin Simon & Co.
A STORE OF INDIVIDUAL SHOPS
FIFTH AVENUE . . . NEW YORK

Monday—For Madame

A New Collection of BLACK COATS Lavish with the Furs Smart People Want Most 79.50

New Coats at a Sale Price

The Black Coat with Fine Black Baby Lynx
The Black Coat with Soft Black Karakul
The Black Coat with Black Dyed Fox
The Black Coat with Skunk
The Black Coat with Natural or Sable-Dyed Squirrel

Every model has an enormous fur shawl collar and deep cuffs, and that with karakul has a wide front border, too. Beautifully man-tailored, silk lined and interlined.

Sizes 34 to 44

THE INDIVIDUAL COAT SHOP FOR MADAME . . . FIFTH FLOOR

COMPLICATION SEEN IN FRANCE'S OUTLINE

Naval Program Would Mean 61 Per Cent of British Strength in 1936.

CRUISERS OFFER PROBLEM

Proposal to Build Two Checkmates Battleship Elimination—Italy's Claim Adds Difficulties.

By P. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Careful consideration by the British Admiralty experts of the French figures of their requirements have led to a conclusion by some of these experts which is far from encouraging for any plan of reduction and may set a standard of naval limitation higher than Prime Minister MacDonald had hoped. Of course, there is still a possibility the French may be induced to reduce their claims, although the alternative they are asking to the present program of a new protection pact has as small support here as in the United States.

Following will be, roughly, the comparative strengths of France and England by 1936 if present programs are adhered to:

Global tonnage, France 61 per cent; capital ships, 34 per cent; 8-inch cruisers, 67 per cent; light cruisers and destroyers, 76 per cent. In submarines, France has the predominance, England having only 63,000 tons compared with France's present total of 97,875, and her claim for 99,629 tons.

One of the most difficult points for settlement will be the French desire to build two new battle cruisers of between 20,000 and 25,000 tons, intended to neutralize Germany's "pocket battleship," the Ersatz Preussen. Even though the French have undertaken not to replace during the next five years any of their old battleships and to hold a battleship holiday with the others to the extent of 105,000 tons, the decision to build these two new battle cruisers effectively checkmates any intention the British Government may have had for the elimination of battleships at the end of the holiday period.

Just as Japan's desire to retain the Mutsu and the American desire to retain the Maryland class at the Washington naval conference led to the construction of the Rodney and the Nelson by England, the construction of these two new French ships during the next few years will tend to complicate the situation at the next conference.

The French proposal is that between now and 1936 she should build 241,000 tons, but of this 198,000 would be for replacements, most of which, it is acknowledged, are overdue. The remainder of 43,200 tons would be in addition to the existing strength.

This leaves a very small margin for any paring down work to be done by the conference. At most, all that can be expected is that France should delay laying down one or two of the 10,000-ton cruisers on her program and forego the additional submarine tonnage which she is asking. In reality, it is admitted that the French position is very strong mathematically, because argument against replacement cannot be carried very far and the French came to the conference well armed with old ships to scrap and new ones to project.

If the Italians, as expected, maintain their claim for parity with France, or even if they don't put it into effect, it seriously affects the British position. For two fleets of 75,000 tons in European waters, even if one of them is largely potential, are more than the British can accept. Argument, therefore, when Premier Tardieu and Foreign Minister Briand return from Paris is expected to be warm, though it is believed it can be settled on the basis of France scrapping more old ships as new ships are put in commission, and perhaps slowing up her building program on some units.

In judging future possibilities, it is wise to refrain from an exaggerated view of these difficulties. Both M. Tardieu and M. Briand are anxious that there should be a successful outcome to the conference, although they naturally are desirous that it should be an outcome which will carry compensations to France which will wipe out the memory of the Washington rebuff. They will not push their claims to the breaking point.

MENCKEN SAILS FOR HOME.

Crowded Much Into Visit for Arms Sessions—Contrasts Liquor Laws.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—H. L. Mencken, who is now homeward bound aboard the Bremen, crowded into his three weeks' sojourn in England, besides attendance at the conference sessions and meetings with many notables, visits to Manchester and Chester, where he saw his first English football match, and a day at Oxford with Dr. Bridges, England's poet laureate. He also inspected the Croydon airport, where he saw Van Lear Black, Baltimore publisher, off to China, Baltimore publisher, off to China; much time in Fleet Street.

Mr. Mencken was particularly interested in how the liquor trade is regulated here by licensing and fixing the hours of closing. This he contrasted with his own State of Maryland, where "there are no closing hours since prohibition."

Semi-Annual Sale of Housewares Begins Tomorrow (Monday). As Usual Gimbels will Meet Every Competitor on an Equal Basis.

SHOP GIMBELS AND SEE FOR YOURSELF

GRANDI STARTS WORK ON ITALIAN PROGRAM

His Statement of Naval Needs Expected to Insist Upon Parity With France.

By ARNALDO CORTESI.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Foreign Minister Grandi left London today for a week-end at Brighton, where he intends to devote his time to the compilation of a statement setting forth the Italian naval needs similarly to what has been done by the four other powers at London. Before his departure, he had a long talk with Ambassador Morrow in which the difficulties represented by the high figures for the French total tonnage in relation to the Italian claim to parity with France were frankly and exhaustively discussed.

The Italians fully realize that in their differences with France they cannot expect much help from the American delegation, which shows no inclination to take sides in a question which it considers none of its business. They feel, however, that America is indirectly affected to a greater extent than might at first be imagined, for if France insists on her high figures England may feel obliged to revise her estimates upward, which in turn would lead to an increase in American building.

Signor Grandi hopes, therefore, that it may be possible to induce the American delegation to use its good offices to induce France to reduce her figures to a point where the Italian claim to parity with France may be accepted without interfering with the application by England of the two-power standard with respect to Continental European powers.

As for Signor Grandi's statement of Italian naval needs, which it is expected will be made public early next week, it is understood he intends merely to reaffirm the position of Italy maintained since the beginning of the conference that she requires a navy second to none in Continental Europe. He will point out that this demand is a consequence of the viewpoint that no nation has naval needs which can be stated in absolute terms, but only relative ones depending on the strength of other powers.

He will end by underlining that in asking parity with any other Continental European power Italy merely is defending a right acquired at Washington.

ARMS CARS A SPECTACLE.

London Watches Drivers Spring to Seats at Signal of Noon Recess.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—At noontime daily when the arms conference is in session visitors to the London Museum watch a scene as animated as changing of guard. Cars of the British Government, placed at the disposal of the delegates, are parked outside the museum, each with a delegation's national flag.

When the conference is in session the chauffers talk in groups or stamp up and down to keep warm, but at the sign from St. James's Palace that delegates are adjourning for lunch, each man springs into his seat and the cars move out in quick succession assigned to their places by the police on duty at the palace entrance.

MUCH NAVY BUILDING IS FORECAST FOR US

$450,000,000 Would Be Needed for Cruisers Alone to Reach Parity With Britain.

10-YEAR PROGRAM LIKELY

New Warships Are Required in All Categories Except Battleships, Which Are in Disfavor.

By L. C. SPEERS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The vast gulf between naval reduction and American parity with Britain was emphasized today when it was disclosed that the official American estimate for cruiser parity alone will necessitate the appropriation by Congress of not less than $450,000,000.

This figure is based on the proposal for eighteen vessels with 8-inch guns and a sufficient number of ships with 6-inch guns, all of 10,000 tons or slightly less. This may be something of a shock to the average citizen, who as a rule has visualized the cruiser problem in terms of reduction rather than parity, and may not have taken into consideration that it is impossible to reduce without abolishing, so far as the American Navy is concerned, the standard type of 10,000-ton treaty ship. At present only two are in commission, leaving sixteen under construction, authorized, or to be appropriated for, in addition to a fleet of smaller cruisers, before equality with the British is reached.

The standard cruiser, as designed by the United States Bureau of Construction, averages in cost about $17,000,000, while the cost of smaller types of 7,000 tons or 8,000 tons will be approximately $13,000,000 each.

But the London Conference appears already to have eliminated a future cruiser construction bill of approximately $350,000,000, which would have to be added to the $450,000,000 total if the conferences between President Hoover and Premier MacDonald and the subsequent conferences of the American and British delegations in London had not lopped off twenty cruisers in the British program.

What is true as to cruisers is also true as to all other categories except battleships, in which class no new construction is contemplated for some time to come, because it becomes more evident daily that the other signatories to the treaty are not ready to conceed a new dreadnought to America as a replacement for the Arkansas, and even if they did agree it is the general opinion that Congress would hesitate a long time before authorizing another ship of this type.

The American delegation fully realizes the sentiment of Congress has been steering airward for some years now and a large influential group in both Houses is inclined to support the argument of some of the navy's air experts that the battleship is practically obsolete under existing conditions. This being true, it would be no surprise if the delegation failed to press with any consistency the proposition involving a new ship to replace the Arkansas.

These being the facts, the Americans here realize the necessity of making clear back home that parity is possible only as the result of a huge expenditure in the next ten years, which generally is accepted as the time needed to reach exact equality with Great Britain in all categories. It is realized that the American people might just as well know now that while the London treaty will show notable reductions in the programs of all nations, which means the cancellation of construction totaling hundreds of millions of dollars, it is also true that no reduction in the American naval bill is probable for many years to come.

Security, efficiency of the navy and absolute parity with Britain are the American demands now, and will be to the end. This means parity but not a reduction in terms of dollars as the man in the street interprets it.

The delegates, naval advisers and clerical staffs quit work this afternoon until Monday, when the delegation will hold an executive session to discuss ways to harmonize the American position with the programs of other powers.

PARIS PRESS RESENTS OBSTRUCTION CHARGE

France Asked to Disarm to Save Expense to Other Nations, Le Temps Declares.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—The French press tonight gives evidence of resentment of charges that the French attitude is preventing accord at the London naval conference, and in turn makes the charge that other nations are trying force France to make concessions without giving any guarantees in return.

This position is most frankly and concisely summarized in Le Temps, which says, "In reality, without an admission of it, what is being done at London amounts to an attempt to oblige France to renounce establishing her security without giving a guarantee of any sort; in other words, disarming in order to save expense to other nations. For England states that if France persists in meeting her navy needs the British Navy cannot reduce to an extent permitting the economies desired. If this did not concern such an important matter as the organization of world peace, one would be moved to laugh. To us it seems ludicrous for one nation to ask another to make a sacrifice of her security for the sole reason of allowing other countries to economize in their budgets. But that is exactly what France is being asked to do.

"We are willing to consider a compromise if offered large guarantees, such as a Mediterranean pact and accord in the Atlantic, but they must give up the hope of making us dupes. Without guarantees we are bound to look after our security in accordance with our own estimates. France can confidently enter the political stage of the London negotiations, because she knows exactly what she wants and how to get it."

Oil Ship "Sinks" Turkish Palace.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 15 (AP).—A curious addition was made to the annals of maritime mishaps today when a Rumanian oil boat crashed into a Turkish palace. Near the town of Kanlidja, on the Asiatic shore of the Bosporus, the oil boat was caught in the swift current and crashed into Kadri Pasha's ancient wooden palace, which was partly built over the water. The ship hit with such force that the palace tumbled down and was destroyed.

ASK US TO PUT TEETH IN KELLOGG TREATY

British Sunday Papers Say Pledge to Move Against Aggressor Would Assure Navy Cuts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—In a chorus of dismay over the week's developments in the naval arms conference, the Sunday newspapers call on the United States to "give teeth" to the Kellogg pact by pledging itself with the other nations, to act against an aggressor.

Not since the conference opened has there been such a broadside in the London press, nor one so openly directed at the United States and President Hoover. By making a decision now, it is argued, President Hoover can assure reduction and avert the new naval competition which pessimistic editors see developing at St. James's palace.

The Conservative Sunday Times heads its leading editorial, "The Conference: Can America Save It?"

Wickham Steed, writing in the same newspaper, sees the conference wallowing in arithmetic and thinking war while talking disarmament.

J. L. Garvin writes in The Sunday Observer that the pre-war mentality seems to be in the saddle and that there will be hope for the conference only when "security in peace" is considered, instead of "security in war."

What is causing mutual nervousness and suspicion, in the opinion of The Sunday Times, is that no one knows what the United States will do if the Kellogg pact is broken.

"The Kellogg pact is not trusted," the paper says. "It remains as it was when promulgated—a pious resolution, without machinery to implement it. Before the powers can begin in earnest to think in terms of peace and disarmament as though they meant it the pact must be given teeth. It must be strengthened by further treaties specifically binding the signatory nations to enforce their pledges against war. The powers must be able to feel certain that no other power will dare to break its word and that any nation violating the pact will call out against itself the concerted action of the other signatories."

Such action, The Sunday Times contends, is bound to collapse unless it is unanimous.

"To be plain," the paper adds, "the possibility of the whole thing rests upon the willingness of America. The world is waiting to learn how much conviction lies behind the American bid for disarmament and whether the people of the United States are ready to make some sacrifices and even to take some risks in order to realize the faith that is in them and to make it come true.

"There is only one alternative, and it is almost too plain to require statement. Either the nations mean what they say about peace, or the ships—whatever their categories—and guns—whatever their size—they are talking about so earnestly at St. James's, will become the basis of a new race in armaments that is certain to end in war. There can be no escape. The world will be mad to delude itself.

"A unique opportunity waits and the lead must came from over the water. Will President Hoover make the momentous, historic appeal to his countrymen? We believe they would respond."

In a near-by column Wickham Steed argues the United States is still bound by Part V of the Versailles Treaty, even though it was rejected by the Senate. This is the article imposing disarmament on Germany as a prelude to general disarmament. In the separate peace treaty with Germany, according to Mr. Steed, the United States retained the "benefits" of certain parts of the Versailles Treaty, including Part VIII, on reparations, and Part V, on military, naval and air clauses.

"Logically, therefore, the United States is as fully bound as Germany and the other signatories by the general proposition of Article V," the writer says. "If the naval conference fails, there will be no general limitation of armaments and Germany will argue—not illogically—that she has been absolved from her bargain."

J. L. Garvin in The Sunday Observer agrees that the "surpassing issue" confronting the conference is not one of technical details, but of the reality of the Kellogg pact.

"Are we to go on with pre-war methods?" he asks, "or are we to work with all our grit and brains for a change of mind as well as change of heart? The future of civilization demands more risks for peace. Competitive armaments or even disquieting armaments, organized by any nation so as to compel balancing measures by its neighbors, mean, at last, pressure, counter-pressure and explosion. That is precisely the old pre-war story. Except that at Washington no disarmament conclave has yet been a success. Is the dreary tale to be repeated by the signatories to the Kellogg pact from whom these proceedings spring?"

Exclusive
STOUT APPAREL
Made to Order • Ready to Wear
COATS—ENSEMBLES
Daytime DRESSES
EVENING GOWNS
MILLINERY
In large head sizes
Lingerie—Negligees—Hosiery
Whitney's
15 West 46th

APARTMENT HOMES in all sections of the city and in near-by suburbs are offered in the Apartments to Let columns of The New York Times. There are furnished and unfurnished apartments, large and small, single and duplex. Manhattan apartments in the classified columns are listed according to number of rooms available.—Advt.

final clearances all remaining

KURZMAN FUR COATS

drastically reduced for an immediate close-out

This is an investment year for furs, and these values are important enough to choose now for next years needs!

Mink . . .	$1550 to $6000
formerly $3100 to $12,000
Caracul	$375 to $1750
formerly $750 to $3500
Broadtail	$1300 to $2375
formerly $2600 to $4750
Ermine	$825 to $1600
formerly $1650 to $3200

and other informal and sports coats $100 to $500

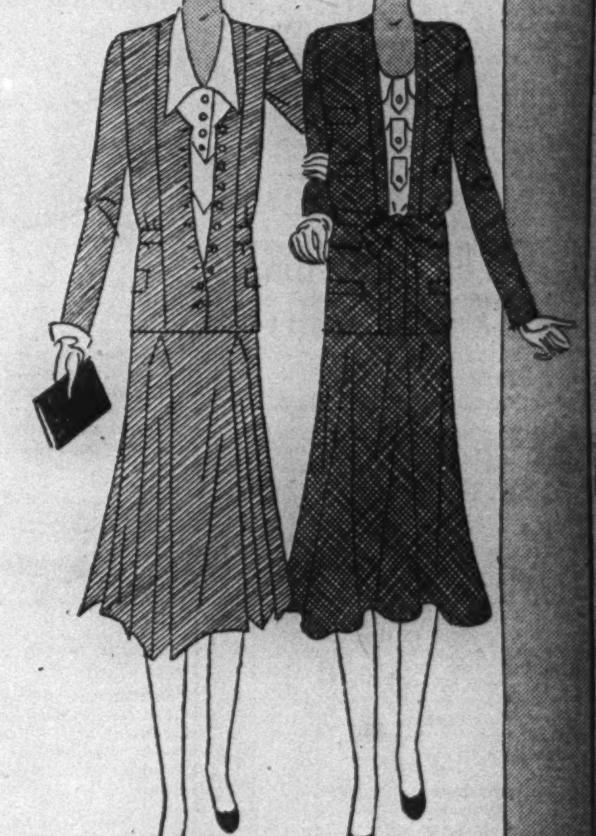
661 Fifth Ave.—52nd-53rd Sts.

Kurzman

practising furriers

BONWIT TELLER
FIFTH AVENUE AT 38TH STREET
NEW YORK

We Have the Ensemble Suits that Suit Those Looking for Good Looking Suits



New collar line and extremely short jacket, lining matches printed tuck-in—a gay young suit . . . .
Above, left 95.00

Youthful line in back bolero finger-tip jacket, two-piece covert . . . . .
Above, right 79.00

Decidedly new is the front button suit and boyish blouse; pleated skirts, the last word from Paris . . . . . .
Center, left 145.00

Tied in front, youthful, becoming to size 16 or 36. Covert, silk pique blouse . . .
Above, right 110.00

Belted, patch-pocketed cardigan in thin woolen; effective to say the least . . .
Below, left 59.00

Belted cutaway combines tailored swank with becoming softness of dressmaker suit, new pin-point dot woolen. Charming blouse . . Below, right 135.00

Women's and Misses' Suits.....Second Floor

JAPAN WILL CONFER WITH US AND BRITAIN

Important Meeting of the Three Delegations Is Scheduled for Tomorrow.

SUBJECT IS NOT REVEALED

Expected to Include Tables and Figures Exchanged Recently on Ratio Problem.

By CLARENCE K. STREIT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—An important meeting of the leading members of the American, British and Japanese delegations is scheduled for Monday, the Japanese announce. This will be the first time since 1927 that these three delegations will thus confer together. It is understood that those present will include Secretary Stimson, Senator Reed, Ambassador Morrow, Prime Minister MacDonald, Foreign Minister Henderson, First Lord of the Admiralty Alexander, former Prime Minister Wakatsuki, Minister of Marine Takarabe and Ambassador Matsudaira.

Close reserve is being maintained on what questions will be discussed, the Japanese professing not to know themselves what the agenda will be. There is reason to believe that the tables and figures the Americans and Japanese have been exchanging lately will be one of the subjects. It is hinted that political ways and means of facilitating solution of the ratio problem—such as the various projects for bolstering up a peace pact—also will be aired. It is understood that another purpose of the meeting is to discuss with the Japanese the situation resulting from similar triangular meetings the last two days among Americans, British and French.

Since the London conference began the Japanese delegates have conferred only once with Mr. MacDonald, on Jan. 28, and twice with the Americans, Feb. 4 and 12—at least so far as important conversations are concerned. In these exchanges of views of the Americans and British on one side and the Japanese on the other, each has made its initial test proposals on figures in auxiliary categories, revealing considerable disparity in views on cruisers and submarines, and to a less extent on the scrapping of capital ships. The fact that they now plan to hold their first triangular meeting is considered to mean that the second stage has been reached in which the business of trying to iron out the divergencies will begin.

Negotiations are being conducted on a basis of two alternative tables, figures A and B, the former based on the United States having eighteen big cruisers and the latter on her having fifteen. The main divergencies on the cruiser and submarine figures, it is stated, may be represented with substantial accuracy as follows:

By the Anglo-American Table A, 8-inch-gun cruisers, Britain 146,800 tons, the United States 180,000 and Japan 108,400; light crusers, Britain 192,200, the United States 147,000 and Japan 98,200. The Japanese Table A gives Japan 126,0 tons of 8-inch gun cruisers, 100,000 tons of light cruisers, but otherwise is the same.

By the Anglo-American Table B, in 8-inch-gun cruisers Britain would have 146,800, the United States 150,000 and Japan 90,000; light cruisers, Britain 192,200, America 189,000 and Japan 113,400. The Japanese Table B gives Japan 108,400 in 8-inch-gun cruisers and 120,000 in light cruisers, but is otherwise the same.

On submarines, both the Anglo-American tables propose about a 70 per cent ratio for Japan, the figures, it is said, giving Japan less than 50,000 tons to be reached in 1936, while Japan demands the retention of her existing strength of 78,500 tons, which would mean virtual parity, unless Britain and America build heavily.

LONDON CONFERENCE TO FIX NAVY LIMIT

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Continued from Page 1, Column 1.

harmony may not be so close. When the French bring out publicly their proposal that if every one promises to help them when they are attacked they will not need so much tonnage to protect themselves, a more difficult situation for Mr. Stimson and his colleagues may arise.

The French do not intend to ask us to join the League of Nations or anything like that. But they may ask that we agree not to do business with the aggressor in the next war, which means selling to the aggressor ammunition and supplies. If that would save our building 100,000 tons of ships at a cost of around $200,000,000 our delegation may find it worth considering. Anyway, it will be an interesting argument.

Accomplishments to Date.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—As the fourth week of the five-power naval conference ended tonight the delegates pointed to the definite accomplishments to date:

1. A prospective five-year battleship holiday.
2. The "humanizing" of submarine warfare assured.
3. The settlement of the global tonnage problem, a controversy of years' standing.

As for the things they hope yet to accomplish, they pleaded for patience as the most necessary virtue for the success of the disarmament negotiations.

HOOVER CONFIDENT OF LIMITATION PACT

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Continued from Page 1, Column 2.

that embodied in carrying out the 10,000-ton cruiser program already authorized by Congress.

The savings on battleships will be great, inasmuch as it apparently will not be necessary for the nations to lay down the replacements contemplated between now and 1936 under the Washington naval treaty. For the United States these replacements would have consisted of ten battleships at a cost of about $400,000,000. In addition, it appears assured that the United States will scrap three and Great Britain five capital ships at an early date as a result of the London treaty, resulting in a saving in maintenance costs.

Although there is some talk in London of a possible Atlantic security pact among Great Britain, France and the United States, which might encourage France to reduce her naval demands, slight encouragement is to be found here for such an arrangement. The administration is frankly skeptical of Senate approval of such a compact. Representative Britten of Illinois, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee and a big-navy advocate, said today that such a treaty was out of the question.

There is confidence that Senate approval would be given a treaty which stabilized the navies of the world and provided for actual reduction in battleships. There are mutterings in Congress over an arrangement which would hold down battleship costs and thereby perhaps permit other nations, not so powerful economically as the United States, greater freedom to proceed with construction of vessels in the auxiliary classes which some of these other nations apparently do not wish to have subjected to reduction or sharp curtailment, contrary to the wishes of the United States. It is not believed these sentiments in the Senate are of formidable proportions.

Although there has been a quite definite popular belief that the United States in entering the London conference expected to see actual reduction in all categories, no responsible official of the administration will admit that now. Declarations in the past, which have been interpreted as pointing to a program of reduction all along the line, it is contended by supporters of the administration were made in the light of the existing condition of the navies of the world, and it was clear from the first that great difficulties stood in the way of sweeping reductions.

Special conditions of all the powers represented at London have naturally been urged, nationalistic feelings have permeated many of the deliberations, but progress has been made in the opinion here.

The American delegation, as understood here in official circles, never has intended to work at London along any hard and fast lines but to approach all aspects of the problem with an open mind and in a spirit of accommodation consistent with the requirements of national defense.

Within this broad field, Secretary Stimson and his associates have had as their main idea the limiting of navies and building programs without putting undue emphasis on the disposition of immediate competent fighting units. In this way, it is felt the United States will contribute to having the navies of the world stabilized for a number of years.

HENDERSON ASKS PATIENCE

Too Early to Be Disappointed With Naval Conference, He Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Arthur Henderson told an audience at Birkenhead today that it was too early to be disappointed with the Naval Conference.

"We are now deep in details and directly confronted with difficulties that have to be solved," he said. "Decisions naturally come slowly, and there has been some public disappointment, but such incidents are connected with every international conference."

There is ground for confidence, Mr. Henderson declared, in the determination of all five delegations to overcome the difficulties. Even if submarines and battleships cannot be abolished now, he said, the movement for abolition already has received "a powerful inpetus" from the conference.

WALSH FAVORS PACT ON MEDITERRANEAN

Montana Senator Decries Fears Expressed Here About Our Signing.

SUGGESTS A RESERVATION

Ban on Any Call on Us to Use Force Would Suffice, He Says in Radio Talk.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Discussing "Peace" in a radio talk tonight over the National Broadcasting System sponsored by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, Senator Walsh of Montana decried the fears held by some Americans that the United States might be drawn into a foreign war if it signed a treaty at London proposing that the signatories should respect the insular possessions of other signatories in the Mediterranean.

Senator Walsh expressed the belief that such an entanglement would be made impossible if the treaty contained a reservation, similar to that written into the Pacific pact of 1922, stating that the treaty contained "no commitment to armed force, no alliance, no obligation to join in any defense" of Pacific possessions of other powers if threatened.

"The same feeling that association with European power in any way might involve the United States in European wars," he said, "accounts for no little opposition to our participation in the permanent court of international justice."

In his discussion of the proposed Mediterranean pact, the Senator said:

"In connection with the work of the international conference now in session in London in an effort to save the world from the tremendous burden and obvious risk of competition in the construction of vessels of war, it has been suggested that an agreement in character like the Pacific pact be entered into with respect to insular possessions in the Mediterranean, or to preserve peace among the nations having special interests in those waters.

"A storm of protest has been raised against any such agreement on our part, in which I cannot join.

"Altogether aside from humanitarian considerations, it is my judgment that we have everything to gain and nothing to lose by such an agreement, selling the apprehensions of those troubled with fears of involvement by a reservation like that attaced to the Pacific pact.

"I have no illusions that any such agreement will command the requisite support in this country, but what more likely than that when any of these nations get fighting mad at each other, and yet cannot fail to reflect upon the awful sacrifice involved in war, they would welcome the good offices of the United States as a perfectly disinterested party and delight to see it sit at a table in an effort to avert the catastrophe they must all dread?"

"It ought to be realized now that we are more than likely to be involved in any general war in Europe. In their frenzy some one or all of the belligerants are likely to violate our rights and to bring us into the conflict to maintain them or to redress wrongs from which we have suffered.

"To my mind we take less chances by helping to avert such a conflict than we do by keeping out of it with honor once the conflagration is lit."

TURKEY HAILS GREEK AMITY

Venizelos's Declaration of Faith in Angora Causes Joy There.

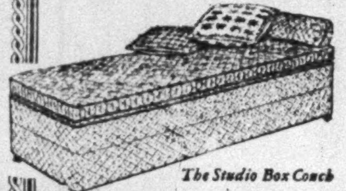
Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 15.—The declaration of Premier Venizelos of Greece that he is convinced Turkey's policy is peaceful and non-aggressive is being hailed with joy at Angora.

A new era of good-will between the two countries is expected if the treaty of amity now before the Greek Cabinet is signed. The correspondent for the newspaper Aksham predicts a cordial welcome if Premier Venizelos goes to Angora for the signing.

Hall

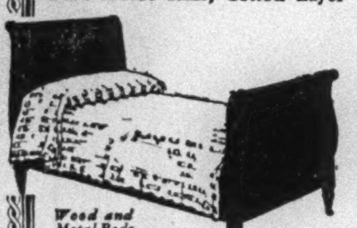
Custom Made BEDDING for Comfort



The Studio Box Couch

For apartments, and small living rooms—attractive, convenient—by day a handsome couch, at night a comfortable single bed. Roomy compartment for storing bedding or clothing.

Hall Quality throughout—Upholstered Box Spring—choice of Pure Horse Hair, Cotton Layer



Wood and Metal Beds

Felt, or Inner Spring Mattress—attractive covering.

Hall Mattresses and Springs are custom made to suit your individual requirements of a firm or softly yielding bed. Only in custom made bedding can you get a mattress and spring that gives complete relaxation to the body, essential to restful, comfortable sleep.

Day Beds

Whatever you need in bedding, it can be supplied at Hall's—at reasonable prices. Your purchase may be made direct from us or through your own dealer or decorator.

The Hall Line of Bedding
Pure Horse Hair Mattresses
Inner-Spring Mattresses
Cotton Layer Felt Mattresses
Upholstered Box Springs
Link and Woven Wire Springs
Comfortables and Blankets
Wood Beds — Metal Beds
Wood Day Beds — Feather Pillows
Studio Box Couches and Studio Beds

FRANK A. HALL & SONS
25 West 45th Street
New York, N. Y.
Specialists in Bedding for 102 years

OPPENHEIM, COLLINS & CO
34th STREET—NEW YORK

Just Received!

Fine French TRANSFORMATIONS

With two and three inch sight-proof partings

17.50

In a variety of natural shades

"INECTO" HAIR TINTING by EXPERTS

Delettrez—Paris BEAUTY METHOD
Used Exclusively in our Beauty Salon

Phone for Appointment—Wisconsin 4200—BEAUTY SALON—Street Floor Balcony

NEW YORK
BROOKLYN
PHILADELPHIA

OPPENHEIM, COLLINS & CO
34th STREET—NEW YORK

CLEVELAND
BUFFALO
PITTSBURGH

Monday—At Decidedly Low Prices

WOMEN'S AND MISSES'

DRESSES AND GOWNS

Daytime and Evening Fashions

18.00 28.00 38.00

Including 25.00 to 75.00 Values

Every frock and gown in this interesting collection is an authentic Spring fashion...every style is a definitely assured success. Developed with great originality, of silk crepes, satin and chiffon in subtle plain shades and delightful new prints.

OPPENHEIM, COLLINS & CO

Monday—Sale Continued

Special purchases from leading furriers combined with our own regular stock

FUR COATS

At Original Cost or Less

If requested, charge customers will be billed April 1st, with the privilege of extending payments over April, May and June . . . Other patrons who desire their selections stored may make a reasonable deposit and enjoy the same payment convenience. Free storage offered to all, until Fall.

NO EXCHANGES . . . NO CREDITS . . . ALL SALES FINAL

FUR COATS	Regularly 245.00 to 375.00	135.00
FUR COATS	Regularly 295.00 to 425.00	195.00
FUR COATS	Regularly 350.00 to 450.00	235.00
FUR COATS	Regularly 395.00 to 475.00	275.00
FUR COATS	Regularly 550.00 to 1250.00	395.00
FUR COATS	Regularly 575.00 to 1500.00	495.00

Higher Priced Fur Coats also offered in this Sale at proportionate savings

OPPENHEIM, COLLINS & CO
34th STREET—NEW YORK

Exceptional—For Monday

NEW NIGHTGOWNS OF CREPE DE CHINE OR CREPE SATIN

3.75

Values to 5.90

One of the most attractive collections of lace trimmed and tailored models we have ever assembled.

A variety of lovely new styles in dainty pastel shades.

FLAT CREPE NEGLIGEES LACE TRIMMED OR TAILORED

9.75

Value 15.00

Deep-tone lace in a beautiful Alencon pattern trims this charming negligee, lovely enough for any trousseau. Coral, French blue, orchid or nile.

The tailored model (not illustrated) combines two shades of amethyst, capucine, green or blue.

EMBROIDERED SATIN BOUDOIR SLIPPERS

2.00

Unusual Value

All-over modernistic embroidery gives a new touch to these satin slippers with flexible chamois soles and baby French heels. Sizes 3 to 8.

NILE, ROSE, ORCHID, BLACK

NOBILE IS CENSURED IN OFFICIAL REPORT

Commission Blames Him for Loss of Dirigible Italia on Polar Flight.

SCORES CRITICISM OF MEN

Board Points Out His Lack of Experience as Pilot and His Conduct in Being Rescued First From Ice.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Feb. 15.—Grave reflections on the conduct of General Nobile, commander of the ill-fated airship Italia, are contained in a report of a commission of inquiry issued today at Rome. The report is published in book form, covering 134 pages, and gives a detailed description of the preparation for the polar expedition, the various flights made by the dirigible in the polar region, the disaster which overtook the airship when returning to its base at Kings Bay, the conduct of the survivors after the disaster and the relief work.

The conclusions of the Commission of Inquiry were made public the first time on March 3, last year, and publication of the full text of the inquiry by the Italian Government is now made because of various books which recently have been published on Nobile's expedition, including the General's own account, regarded here not only as inaccurate but audacious.

In the report there is, of course, little that was not already known, but the fact that the Italian commission has had the last say on the disaster will no doubt create a great impression, especially as its criticism of Nobile, both as commander of the airship and for having allowed Lundborg to rescue him first, is more serious than the brief summary of the commission's findings indicated. Throughout the report one could vainly look for anything which sounds like praise for Nobile, while all his other companions, especially Captain Mariano and Zappi, who were lost with Malmgren on the ice, are warmly praised.

Envelope Torn at Start.

When the Italia reached Kings Bay from Milan, the report says, all the crew had already lost enthusiasm for the expedition and were very fatigued. Just before the last flight, which was to end in disaster, a small tear was discovered in the envelope of the airship. This was repaired, but the commission thinks it would have been more prudent to postpone the departure until a thorough examination had been made.

Nobile is further criticized for having allowed too many passengers aboard the airship, the presence of some of whom was unnecessary. An Italian journalist, for instance, who flew with Nobile over the polar regions, was "superfluous," and Nobile himself seemed opposed to his going on the flight.

Nobile is again criticized for having made the flight in spite of adverse atmospheric conditions and for having circled over the North Pole for an unnecessarily long time. As regards the causes which finally determined the disaster, the commission rejects the explanation furnished by Nobile in his examination and approves the theory advanced by General Crocco, an expert on dirigibles, who asserts that the fact that the airship suddenly lost height was due only to false manoeuvring.

"Lacked Experienced Pilot."

In particular, Nobile is criticized for not having kept the prow of the dirigible against the wind, thus landing it at the terrific speed of a hundred kilometers an hour. Indeed, the report states that the expedition was lacking "an experienced pilot possessing that trained capacity which is to be acquired only by a long course in navigation."

In its examination of the conduct of the survivors, the commission unanimously affairms that the conduct of Captains Mariano and Zappi cannot in any way be censured, but on the contrary is worthy of praise. As regards the "monstrous" rumors that Mariano and Zappi killed and ate their companion Malmgren, the commission strongly rejects them, pointing out the chivalrous conduct of both officers throughout their careers as well as the testimony of all the other survivors, especially the mother of Malmgren, who was satisfied with the explanation offered by them concerning her son's tragic end.

Concerning the rescue of General Nobile before the other members of his party, the commission, while admitting Nobile weighed less than Ceccioni, who was the most badly injured of all the survivors on the ice, ironically points out that Nobile added to his own weight by taking with him his pet dog Titina and several books. Taking all the evidence on this point into consideration, the commission arrived at the conclusion that his companions did not urge Nobile to leave first, but Nobile was simply told to act as he thought fit.

His Return First Censured.

When Nobile arrived aboard the Citta di Milano, he was unable to furnish useful information for rescue work beyond what was already known. Nobile's statement that he desired to be rescued first in order to take charge of the rescue operations, therefore, is flatly rejected by the commission. The report, indeed, states that Nobile immediately realized his serious blunder and wished to rehabilitate himself by asking to be allowed to rejoin his companions in the red tent.

Passing to the rescue operations, the commission thinks that every possible effort was made for the discovery and assistance of the rescue of the survivors in the red tent and the group of men carried off with the envelope of the airship. The work was accomplished by the Italians with the efficient cooperation of foreigners, it is stated. The commission arrives at the unanimous conclusion that "the precise responsibility for the disaster rests on the commander of the airship Italia for an erroneous manoeuvre, a specific responsibility aggravated by general responsibility for the composition and utilization of the crew. In all the conduct of the expedition up to the disaster and after, General Nobile has shown himself to have limited technical qualities as a pilot and a negative capacity for command."

Nobile, moreover, is accused of disloyal conduct in having raised funds for the expedition by alleging that Germany was preparing another polar expedition, thus taking an unfair advantage of the patriotism of his fellow-countrymen.

The commission was presided over by Admiral Cagni, who took part in the Duke of Abruzzi's polar expedition, composed of Generals Vacchelli, de Pinedo, Cavalli, Admiral Denti di Piraino and Senator Puija.

ROYALTY TO MEET VISITORS.

Duke and Duchess of York to Attend Reception to Naval Delegates.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The Duke and Duchess of York expressed the intention of attending Lady Londonderry's reception to the naval delegates at Londonderry House next week. This will be the first time since King George opened the conference that members of the royal family have had the opportunity of meeting the delegates.

The wives of the Americans visited Windsor Castle last week, but the King and Queen were then at Sandringham, whence they returned today.

M'DONALD HOST OF NEWSPAPERMEN

Entertains at Chequers Thirty Representatives From Nations Represented at Conference.

DISCUSSION ON HISTORY

Prime Minister Admires Poems and Stories of the Southern Area of the United States.

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP).—Laying aside all formalities, Prime Minister MacDonald this afternoon received about thirty American, French, English, Japanese and Italian newspaper men who are in London covering the naval conference. They were his guests at Chequers, the historic Elizabethan country home of British Prime Ministers.

Mr. MacDonald, dressed in a gray jacket and plus-fours, showed them the art treasures in the house, which was donated to the nation by Lord Lee of Fareham, husband of the former Ruth Moore of New York. He was assisted by his daughter, Ishbel, and his son, Malcolm.

After tea, scorning to wear his overcoat despite a bitterly cold wind, he showed the newspaper men over a large part of the estate, leading them to a hilltop to point out the spires of distant Oxford.

Returning to the manor house, he discussed books and history with his guests in front of an immense open fire. Ishbel, wearing a red and black "MacDonald" plaid skirt, flat-heel shoes and a tight-fitting black jacket, sat in one corner of a large settee listening attentively, and occasionally making a comment on the discussion.

The Prime Minister expressed his admiration for "John Brown's Body," a poem by the American writer, Stephen Vincent Benet, and also for Henderson's life of Stonewall Jackson.

Some one suggested that he was fond of Southern history.

"Ah," he said, "the history of the South has never been written," indicating that he spoke in a figurative rather than in a literary sense.

A sudden snowstorm brought into sharp relief the scenic beauties of the estate, and Mr. MacDonald laughingly said that he had "arranged for it" specially for his guests. He frequently got up from his easy chair by the hearth to tune in his radio on music broadcast by a Dutch station.

After a three-hour visit the newspaper men returned to London by train.

Peru Plans 960,000 Pounds Loan.

LIMA, Feb. 15 (AP).—President Leguia today approved a law authorizing the Finance Ministry to issue an internal loan amounting to 960,000 Peruvian pounds in 7 per cent bonds. The loan is to be guaranteed by the profits of the Reserve Bank.

Femininity in the active mood

ZIG-ZAG

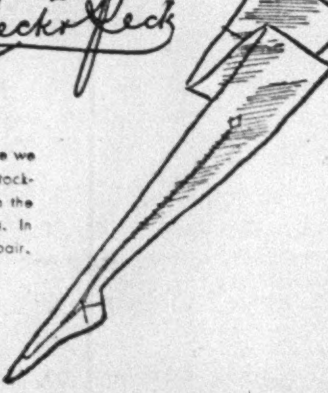
An intoxicating pattern in a new sports suit

Behold a stunning Peck & Peck suit of Zephyr and silk to accent clipped fairways and open country. Its semi-fitted jacket has a softly rolled collar and adjustable belt. Its yoked skirt is slightly flared with double pockets. And the smart little slipover has cap sleeves that hug the arm affectionately, $55. The hat, too, is very sporty, of soft Baku soir with uneven brim, $22.50.

PECK & PECK

FIFTH AVENUE AT 55th STREET | FIFTH AVENUE AT 42nd STREET
FIFTH AVENUE AT 47th STREET | MADISON AVENUE AT 69th STREET

Peck & Peck



For the "Zig-Zag" suit above we nominate this Peck & Peck stocking of fine French lisle with the slenderest of open clocks. In harmonizing shades. $4 a pair.

The biggest scoop in Spring millinery news is not Paris, but BOUCHERON!

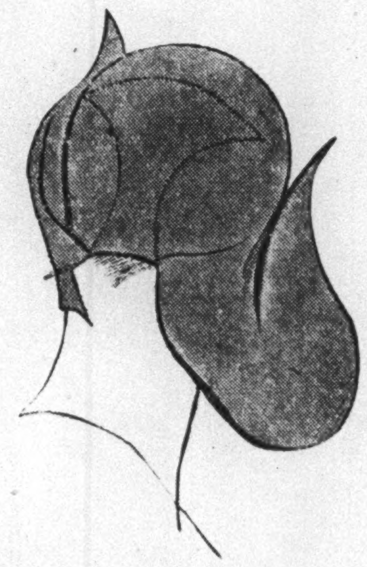
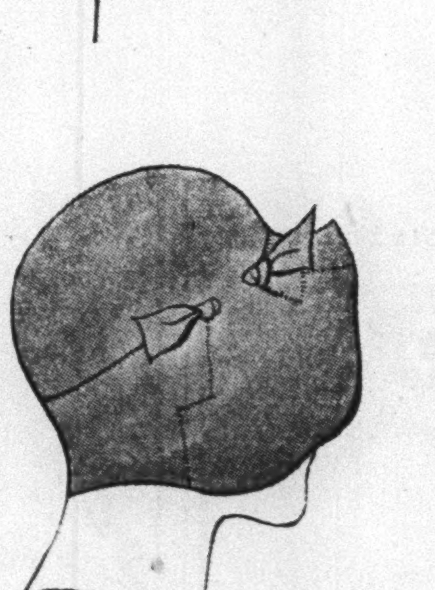
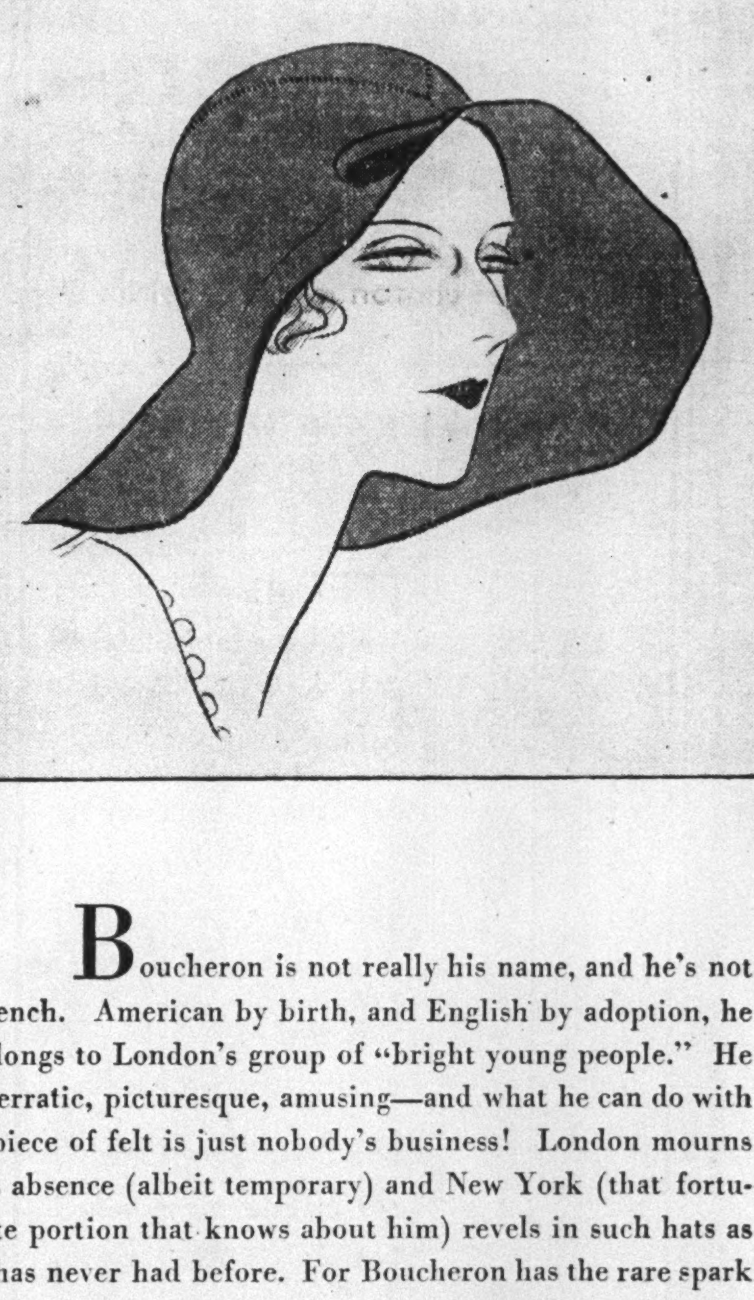
—the young man whose hats have been creating a mild sensation about town, and who numbers among his patrons the smartest women of two continents.







Boucheron is not really his name, and he's not French. American by birth, and English by adoption, he belongs to London's group of "bright young people." He is erratic, picturesque, amusing—and what he can do with a piece of felt is just nobody's business! London mourns his absence (albeit temporary) and New York (that fortunate portion that knows about him) revels in such hats as it has never had before. For Boucheron has the rare spark of genius and the talent for expressing the spirit of his times. His hats fall into two classes—the naive and pretty—the sophisticated, and just a bit wicked. He does that wider-brimmed felt (very shallow of crown) that we've all been longing for, to perfection. Because Best's believes in buying the smart thing where we find it, we have Boucheron models; seventeen of them, to be exact. Copies of ten will be ready Monday, and more are arriving every day.

Original Boucheron models in black felt, 35.00
Best copies in black and colors, 15.00 and 17.50

Best & Co.

Fifth Avenue at 35th Street—N. Y.

Paris Palm Beach London

CHINESE WAR LORDS MEET IN SECLUSION

Yen Hsi-shan, in Mysterious Retirement at Chienan, Talks With Feng.

SHUNS NANKING DELEGATES

Famine Conditions in Shensi Are So Bad Everybody in Province Is Expected to Be Dead Soon.

By HALLETT ABEND.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, Feb. 15.—Yen Hsi-shan, who is now the ruler of a domain having a population of 70,000,000, has gone into mysterious seclusion at Chienan, Shansi, eighty miles from the capital of the province, and is living in extreme simplicity within two miles of the place of retirement of Feng Yu-hsiang, where they hold daily conferences.

Yen declines to receive Nanking delegates, but he also refuses to join Hsi Yu-san in a proposed new civil war against Chiang Kai-shek. Hsi Yu-san, who ten days ago declared he was loyal to Nanking, refuses to surrender forty locomotives and 800 cars of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, which he grabbed at the time of the December mutiny, and he is now holding Honan.

The situation is complicated by Hsi Yu-san's cooperation with the Kuominchun, the so-called People's Army, and former Kuominchun forces which now hold the corridor from the borders of Shensi clear to the tidewater city of Haichow, the eastern terminus of the Lunghai Railway, with the exception of the junction at Lunghai at Hsuchow. Peking is disappointed at the indefinite postponement of Yen's proposal to move his headquarters to this city.

PEKING, Feb. 15 (AP).—Famine conditions in Shensi Province are described as growing worse each day in special correspondence from Sianfu, Shensi, to the vernacular newspaper Takung Pao. The advices paint pictures of conditions which are unprecedented, due "to the natural calamities and civil wars of recent years."

"Indeed," the correspondence continues, "the day is not far distant when there will not be a single soul in the province where famine has stalked for four long years."

Scenes of utter desolation everywhere are described. Entire fields are covered with bodies of those who have died of starvation, and the dead include persons in all stations of life. In the Fenghsiang district, with a population of 203,485, a total of 99,814 have died, and 1,900 families have been wiped out in another district.

Women in another district were said to be willing to marry for 8 or 10 cents with the hope of gaining food. "The most tragic part of the situation," the advices said, "is that those formerly engaged in relief work now are themselves seeking relief. Many formerly well to do now are reduced to begging."

HUGHES QUITS HAGUE COURT

Cables Resignation to Secretary General Drummond of the League.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Feb. 15.—Charles Evans Hughes today officially communicated to Sir Eric Drummond, the League Secretary General, his resignation as a judge of the World Court.

"In view of my appointment as chief justice of the United States," he cabled, "I find it necessary to sever my connection with the Permanent Court of International Justice. With much regret I hereby resign as a member of the court. This resignation is to take effect immediately. I have sent a similar message to President Anzilotti."

Signor Dionisio Anzilotti of Italy is the President of the World Court.

Chamberlin Plane Forced Down.

Bad weather balked the efforts of Clarence D. Chamberlin to fly from the Jersey City Airport to St. Louis yesterday when the transatlantic pilot ran into a heavy snowstorm over the Allegheny Mountains. He and two companions left the airport at 7:30 A. M. and three hours later were forced to land at Hagerstown, Md. The party will continue the flight tomorrow. They are to take part in the International Aircraft Exhibit in St. Louis.

CHIANG TO GET AUTO COSTING $47,000

Nanking President Orders From America Most Luxurious Car Ever Seen in China.

By HALLETT ABEND.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 23.—The most costly and luxurious automobile ever brought to China will soon be imported to Shanghai by an American firm, acting under orders from General Chiang Kai-shek, the chairman of the Nanking Government.

The contract price of this motor car, landed at Shanghai, is 80,000 Haikwan taels, which today is about $47,000 in American money and is equal to $110,400 in Shanghai money.

This automobile, which is one of the highest priced makes manufactured in the United States, will be unusual in finish and equipment. By special order, the whole of the metal work on the body of the limousine, and even the hood, will be of half-inch thick navy steel plate, which is designed to shed the bullets or bombs of would-be assassins.

Two extra seats project from the back of the car, built high enough to permit the occupants to see forward over the hood. These will be occupied by special guards with machine guns.

The running boards are unusually long, and along the top of the car, on each side, will be four grip-handles welded into the armor plate. These will be for the guards to clutch, for four guards, each with a revolver in hand, will ride on each running board. Delivery is due in April.

Workers Protest Estate Manager.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GUAYAQUIL, Feb. 15.—Discontentede workers of an alleged communistic gorup held a mass meeting yesterday on the San Miguel estate, protesting against Colonel Borja, the resident manager, according to reports from the Milagro district. The estate recently was sold to E. Hope Norton by Paul Fitzsimmons on account of the hostility of the inhabitants.

ALFONSO ABOLISHES NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

Municipal and Provincial Groups Will Be Revised Following End of Primo's Organization.

ARMY PROMOTION CHANGED

King Decrees It Must Now Be According to Seniority—Regime Still Seen as Dictatorship.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Feb. 15.—King Alfonso signed a decree today abolishing forever the National Consultative Assembly, the powerless and abortive body created by General Primo de Rivera to give the people a semblance of a popular vote.

The King also signed a decree making all promotions in the army the result of seniority, and ending the practice, which was one of the things most objected to by the army during General Primo de Rivera's régime, of making promotions by favoritism—a method which caused much intrigue and which made the army a political factor.

Premier Berenguer recently issued orders to commanders to restrain officers from taking part in politics.

A radical army officer who has taken part in most of the revolts of the last decade said: "Out of 1,000 officers who intrigue, 999 do so to gain promotion. Only one is a republican from conviction. If the army is, once for all, kept out of politics, a truly constructive step will have been taken—the first real one of the new régime."

Recently, the selection system was largely abolished in the navy in favor of seniority.

The government is still functioning fundamentally as a dictatorship, and, if anything, a sterner one than Primo de Rivera's. Some uneasiness is felt in government circles as to whether the elections shall be free or controlled.

The speeches of Professor Miguel de Unamuño and Señor Ferroux have caused a temporary curtailment of speechmaking, as in the case of Señor Sanchez Guerra. The nation has been hanging on the words of Señor Sanchez Guerra, not, it is observed, because they are powerful or commanding, but because they represent the middle attitude. On the question whether the general tendency is to the Left or to the Right much, it is felt, depends.

So far King Alfonso has acted with a deep understanding of his people and of the political situation.

MADRID, Feb. 15 (AP).—Following the dissolution of the National Assembly, meetings will be held on Feb. 25 of the municipal and provincial councils, which will now be revised.

Advices from Oviedo today said a group of 150 students last night staged a manifestation in front of the newspaper Region, shouting insults at the editorial staff and breaking windows. The police finally routed them and there were no injuries.

Laborers in Cadiz staged a demonstration in front of the City Hall asking that the present Mayor, appointed by Primo de Rivera, be allowed to continue in power. The Mayor spoke to the crowd, saying that if they wished he would accept their petition to be forwarded to Madrid. After his speech the crowd dispersed.

SAN REMO, Italian Riviera, Feb. 15 (AP).—General Primo de Rivera arrived today for a brief stay with his Spanish family here.

Van-Lear Black Reaches Algiers.

ALGIERS, Algeria, Feb. 15 (AP).—Van Lear Black, Baltimore publisher, flew here from Seville today after encountering severe thunderstorms along the African coast. His plane behaved excellently on the trip. He will leave for Tunis Monday.

NOTHING IS PERMANENT IN FASHION BUT GOOD TASTE

Any Shop for Suits

The Tailored Woman for Correct Lines and Skilful Workmanship

Tailored Woman suits prove that we are tailors by training, as well as tailors by trade. Their lines are perfectly balanced—their workmanship is extraordinarily fine—they have those subtle touches that go unrecognized by the uninitiated but mean so much to the woman who appreciates genuine smartness.

Debutante suit of finely marked imported covert cloth, in navy blue, oxford, tan, red or green . 85.00

Silk shirts . . . . . from 10.50 to 14.50
Sleeveless silk blouses . . from 22.50 to 38.50
Sleeveless linen blouses 10.50
Long-sleeved silk blouses . from 18.50 to 38.50

THE TAILORED WOMAN
632 Fifth Avenue at Fiftieth Street

Jay-Thorpe

FIFTY-SEVENTH STREET, WEST
Palm Beach Miami Beach

one thing is certain in paris

all emphasis is on the cutting

THE best models that we saw at the Openings were all very intricately cut—and things were done with the cape idea that have never been done before. .

Jay-Thorpe believes that many women will wear capelets this spring . . but that the ultra-smart will be known by the sophisticated way in which their capes are cut! For instance, among new models—

The coat of soft tweeds, above left, has a tiny cape around each sleeve, cut to flare . . . 155.00

The Sport Shop dress, right, has a diagonal cape cut in one piece with the bodice. This model in tweeds, 135.00. In heavy crepe . . . 115.00

HATS TO WEAR WITH CAPES

Two new hats that a very smart client of ours bought for her new caped wardrobe—left, Colette Goupy's felt cap held on one side by a grosgrain wheel . . the Marcelle Lely hat of felt, right, pleated up over one eye-brow in a fan. Made on the head . . . 28.00

JAYTHO . . SMART PERFUME . . EXCLUSIVE WITH JAY-THORPE

Are You Suit Conscious?

You should be, because the "feminine" tailored suit of sharkskin, starleen, covert, or the new "lacy" tweed is the most important feature of Spring style—and Russek's version of it is perfection!

O'Rossen's Tailleur, copied in Sharkskin, $75.

$59.50 to $195

Ever since fashion went feminine; we've been trying to effect a compromise. And we've arrived at it, at last, in the "feminine" tailored suit! Though it's man tailored to the last stitch, it's miles removed from the "mannish" suit of seasons agone—you've only to notice the new, "nipped in" waistline and curved hip, and the slim, graceful shoulders to be assured of that!.

And we've actually been able to do all this at $75! It hasn't been easy, by any means, but we've the satisfaction of knowing that every woman who wears one of these suits is going to realize that "there's no suit like a Russeks suit"—anywhere—and the longer she wears it, the more certain she'll be!

Materials—Sharkskin, the material all smart London is wearing, and America can't import rapidly enough; Starleen, the sensation of the Paris openings; "Fairyleen" covert and Telga, Forstman & Hoffman's featured fabrics; and the new "lacy" tweed everyone's talking about.

Tailoring—based upon the specifications of the most exclusive custom tailors for men.

Facings—much wider than you'll find on the usual suit.

Canvasing—finest gauze canvas, wider than the facing, tucked full length of front and shoulders, taped with linen on the outer edge, to assure straight hanging of the jacket.

Buttonholes and Lapels—all hand made, hand felled, and hand buffed.

Fronts and Facings—tacked together close to the edge, to prevent the "rolled fronts" that spoil so many jackets after a little wear.

Blouse and Lining—made of men's wear silk shirting, in decidedly individual colors and patterns.

Intricate Seaming—the nightmare of the average tailor, executed with the precision for which Russeks tailors are famous.

Linings—are unconditionally guaranteed for two seasons.

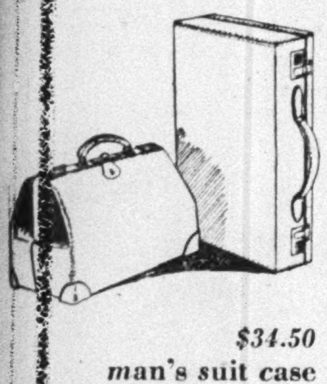
Misses' Shop—Sizes 12 to 20—Fourth Floor
Women's Shop—Sizes 36 to 46—Sixth Floor

RUSSEKS
FIFTH AVENUE AT 36TH STREET

If you are going away you will add to the enjoyment of your stay by ordering The New York Times sent you regularly by mail. No other newspaper gives the same satisfying news of affairs throughout the world. Weekday and Sunday sent for a month for $1.25. For other rates see editorial page.—Advt.

ESTABLISHED 1845
MARK CROSS
FACTORIES WALSALL WESTBURY ENGLAND

the world's greatest leather stores



$34.50
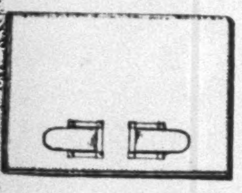
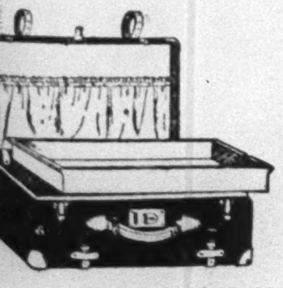
man's suit case real buffalo leather, brown color. Sturdily made to withstand hard usage. Tan cloth striped lining. 24 inch man's travelling bag to match. Real buffalo leather.
20 inch $33.50

$14.50
pullman toilet bag
Ideal for train, steamer, or motor travel. Rubberized silk, attractive colors; rubber lined. Compactly and completely equipped for the woman traveller.



$14.00
envelope purse
Smartly tailored of black patent leather and attractively lined with colored silks. Attached change purse and mirror. Handle on back. Purse 9½ x 6½ in.

$22.50
"cross" card table
black, green or red lacquer with attractive Japanese design decorated border. Black satin covered top.
others from $9.00



$12.50
"cross" week-end case capacious yet light weight; for the man or woman traveller. Black enamel cloth, re-inforced with tan or black sewn on leather corners. 24, 26 and 28 inch.
32 inch $15.50

Mark Cross
The World's Greatest Leather Stores
Uptown, WIS. 9360 Downtown, CORt. 1631
NEW YORK
Fifth Ave. & 37th St.
175 Broadway
Boston: 145 Tremont Street

FINDS DRINK DECLINE AIDS BRITISH HEALTH

Sir George Newman Says Worst Death Rates Coincide With 18th Century Spirits Orgy.

FINDS LIFE IS LONGER NOW

He Tells Licensing Commission Problem Is to Stop Moderate Drinkers Becoming Excessive.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Considerable interest has been aroused by testimony given yesterday by Sir George Newman, chief medical officer of the Ministry of Health and the Board of Education, at a sitting of the Royal Commission on Licensing. A brief summary of Sir George's conclusions, with his condemnation of the cocktail, was published in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning, and the full testimony is given herewith.

Sir George said that for many years he had been a student of the effect of alcoholic excess on the individual and on the community as a whole, from the public health point of view. He produced official figures showing the death rates in England during the last three centuries, pointing out that the highest rates were recorded between 1701 and 1791.

"After 1871 there was a remarkable decrease," he said. "The high rates coincided with a wave of alcoholic excess, mainly in spirit drinking."

Lord Amulree, chairman of the commission, said:

"Generally speaking, I notice London shows a higher death rate than that of the whole of England. How do you account for that?"

Stresses Dietary's Importance.

Sir George replied:

"I should account for that by saying that life in the provinces was healthier than life in London. That difference does not exist today, because sanitation and civilization have generally undergone a much greater degree of evolution in London than throughout the country during the last 150 years. Probably the dietetic habits of the people form a greater factor in public health than anything else except heredity. Dietary has a more direct and quick result on the health of the people than any other element.

"I look upon heredity and what I shall call nature, on the one hand, and nurture and the way of living on the other as the two fundamental factors that affect the health of the individual and of the community. The fact that between 1720 and 1750 the number of deaths greatly exceeded the number of births has been attributed not to pestilence so much as to the social habits of the people, immigration into London, and particularly to alcoholic excess. An orgy of spirit drinking characterized that period, when gin became known as the real grand destroyer.

Links Drink to Tuberculosis.

"In 1750 London physicians attributed 14,000 cases of illness in the metropolis to the excessive drinking of gin. About 1820 the nobility patronized brandy, the well-to-do middle classes drank the newly introduced spirit called rum, and the working classes imbibed the spirit known as British gin. Alcoholism rendered the people more susceptible to pneumonia, venereal disease and tuberculosis.

"When, thirty-five years ago, I started work as a public health officer I visited hundreds of public houses both in London and other parts of the country. I found persistent evidence as to the relationship of public houses to tuberculosis. At that time public houses were not only centres of liquor consumption but centres of expectoration. I knew of no scientific evidence to support the view that alcohol increased or fortified the natural powers of resistance of the body to infective processes, or that alcohol directly strengthened the tissues of the body. Alcohol was narcotic rather than stimulant in its action, and its main effects, apart from the effects of its continued excessive consumption on particular organs, were exerted upon the nervous system. Its nutritious value was strictly limited and transient, and its habitual use as an aid to work was physiologically unsound.

Finds British Healthier.

"It cannot be doubted there has been an amazing transformation in the health of the people, for whom life is wider, better and longer, and death more remote. Undoubtedly many health problems remain, but the English people are becoming more sober, healthier and longer lived than between 1720 and 1750 or 1838.

"I have never known a highly skilled surgeon—and by virtue of my position I have met very many, from Lord Lister down to the present ones—who felt his work of operating on the living body, having the body at the mercy of his fingers, could be done better by drinking alcoholic beverages. This does not mean every great surgeon is a teetotaler, but they have to be abstemious.

"There is no ground for believing any perceptible portion of infant mortality is now due to mothers illegally giving alcohol to their infants. On the other hand, there is unpleasant ground for believing some infants are overlain in bed. This type has occurred more frequently in poor districts, being usually twice as high on Saturday night and Sunday morning as any other night of the week.

"The limitation of the opening hours of licensed premises has been conducive both to sobriety and less broken time in industry. Compared with the eighteenth century, in spite of the increased population, the emergence of vast industrial problems and the varied emancipations of recent times, we are relatively sober in England."

Opposes Beer Campaign.

Sir George produced figures which showed half the insured population visits the doctor once a year.

The Rev. Henry Carter asked whether drinking cocktails was undesirable from the medical point of view.

Sir George answered:

"From the medical point of view, I should think it undesirable. It depends, of course, what is in the cocktail."

Mr. Carter referred to certain advertisements and asked: "What do you think of the advertisement, 'Whisky as a self-cure for influenza?'"

Sir George said: "I should have thought most cases were not fulfilling that function."

"How about, 'Stout for the nursing mother?'" was another query, to which Sir George replied—"Well, I think much depends on the habits of the lady in question. I should not likt to commend or condemn without knowing the facts of the case."

Asked what his view would be from the public health standpoint, of a concerted campaign urging the people to drink more beer, Sir George said—"I should hope it would fall. It would make it more difficult from the public health point of view."

Replying to a question put by Arthur Jenkins, Sir George said, as far as he knew, excessive drinking was not a cause of cancer and he did not know what effect alcohol would have on a cancer already formed.

James Fitton asked: "Has beer any value for the workman?"

Sir George answered: "Yes, but it is slight and transient."

Mrs. E. D. Simon demanded: "Should I be putting it fairly if I said the problem before the commission is to prevent the moderate drinker from becoming an excessive one?"

To that Sir George replied: "Yes, that is the position as I see it."

Sir John Pedder said: "Do you think further legislation could help toward a still greater increase of sobriety?"

"I cannot go so far as to say that, but I will say that in the future legislation will still be necessary," Sir George declared.

American Ship Officer Drowns.

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 15 (AP).—Waldon A. MacIntire, first officer of the steamship American Legion, was drowned today when he fell into the sea while going aboard.

FRANCE LOWERS TAX ON THEATRE TICKETS

Fails to Meet Owners' Demands, but Hope Is Held for Acceptable Compromise.

MAY AVERT GENERAL STRIKE

Chamber Also Adopts Bill Reducing Income Levies on Salaries.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—Items in a finance bill reducing the taxes on amusements, which have been so high that theatres in Paris have threatened a general strike, was adopted by the French Chamber today.

The Paris theatre ticket tax is reduced from 7.20 per cent to 5 per cent, and that on music-hall tickets from 12 to 10 per cent. Motion picture tickets, in accordance with the rating of the house, will be taxed from 5 to 25 per cent instead of from 7.20 to 30 per cent. The provincial theatres will be required to pay only half the rate set for Parisian houses in the same category. All government theatres, concerts and amusements are exempted from taxation.

These reductions do not conform to the demand of the theatre managers, but they represent a compromise which it is believed will avert the threatened strike.

Another item in the finance bill reducing the rate of income taxes on salaries from 12 to 10 per cent was voted today.

Discussion of the finance committee's proposal to apply the German payments to the general budget instead of to reduction of the internal debt, which Finance Minister Henri Chéron refused to accept, was deferred until Monday. The government's final attitude will be taken up in the Cabinet Council Monday, following an important meeting of the finance committee tonight.

FIRE DESTROYS 9 PLANES.

Hangar and Aircraft Worth $125,000 Burned at Lansing, Mich.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 15 (AP).—Nine airplanes and the hangar of the Wolverine Flying Service were destroyed in a fire of undetermined origin, which broke out at the Capital City Airport shortly after midnight today. The damage was estimated at $125,000.

There are three other hangars at the airport.

Robbed of $340 in Elevator.

Thomas Hughes, a bookkeeper, was robbed of a payroll of $340 at 9 A. M. yesterday in an elevator at 247 West Forty-second Street. Hughes had drawn the money from a nearby bank for the George A. Weichert Company, a dental laboratory, at that address. He said he was followed into the building by a tall, well-dressed man, about 25 years old, who drew a pistol and snatched an envelope containing the money. The man escaped.

DON'S SPEEDSTER READY.

Racer Believes His Car Can Make 275 Miles an Hour.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Kaye Don has put his Silver Bullet car, in which he will attempt to beat Major Segrave's world land speed record of 231 miles an hour, through its final tests at Wolverhampton. Both he and the designer, Louis Coatalen, are thoroughly satisfied with its performance.

Don thinks his car can do 275 miles an hour, but will be satisfied with a speed of around 240 or 250. The car is fitted with two twelve-cylinder engines, each with two banks of six cylinders, which will make 4,000 revolutions a minute, the greatest yet recorded. Each engine weighs less than 1,000 pounds and developes 2,000 horsepower.

A novel feature is an airbrake resembling an airplane rudder to reduce the speed before the ordinary breaks are applied. There is an ice tank under the front, through which the water will pass to prevent overheating. Don is now at Wolverhampton, but will leave for Daytona within a week.

Mt. Holyoke Defeats Yale in Debate

Special to The New York Times.

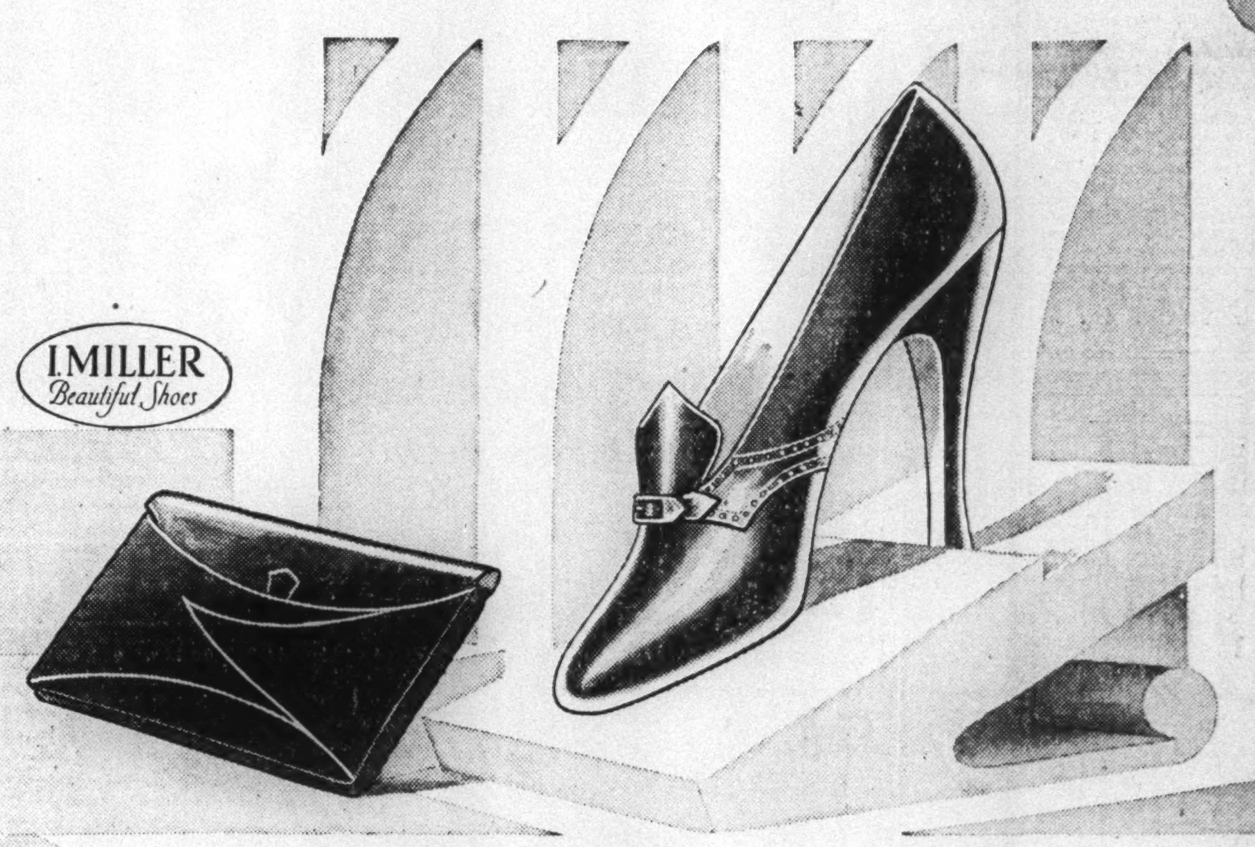
SOUTH HADLEY, Mass., Feb. 15.—The debating team of Mount Holyoke College supporting the negative side on a resolution that the principle of censorship should be condemned, won by a 2 to 1 vote in a debate with Yale here tonight. The judges were Dr. Gordon Dewey of Amherst College; Dr. Louis Hunter of Smith College, and the audience.

I. MILLER

Presents

the pompadour slipper

with the magic touch of 1930



Modern? Ah yes indeed! But with all its new-world charm there's a flavor about this little creation that makes one dream of powdered wigs and gallantry and silver buckles and frou-frou silks. And yet . . . it's such a practical model too! See that center seam in the vamp? It's all but magical the way it slenderizes your foot. And those straps that encircle the pointed tongue . . . marvelous bits of leather that adjust themselves for a snug and perfect fit. You'll adore it! And when you discover that we're showing this same model in seven different materials and combinations, your only difficulty will be in deciding which ones you'll choose for your very own . . . May we expect you in tomorrow?

THE POMPADOUR SLIPPER is available in black kid with red or white piping; brown with beige; beige with brown; green with lighter green; blue with grey and patent leather with green . . $16.50

FIFTH AVENUE at 46th Street | 49 WEST 34th ST. Opp. McAlpin | 450 FIFTH AVE. Below 40th St. | BROADWAY at 46th Open until 9 P. M. | 498 FULTON ST. Cor. Bond, B'klyn

CITY'S PAST VIEWED BY MISS MARBURY

Describes the Changes in New York Life Since the Civil War Days.

COMPARES "HIGH" PRICES

Visions Day When Planes Will Land on Roofs—Discusses Broadway and Theatre.

Members of the Saturday Afternoon Forum of the National Democratic Club heard seventy years of New York's progress depicted yesterday afternoon, when Miss Elisabeth Marbury, Democratic National State Committeewoman, told of the changes on Manhattan Island since she was born in 1856. Miss Marbury, who spoke at the forum's weekly meeting in the clubhouse, 233 Madison Avenue, carried her audience through the Civil War, the Franco-Prussian War, the Spanish-American War and the World War.

She related how her father had pinned on her plaid dress, while she was a child, a badge of Lincoln. She recalled Lincoln's assassination and his funeral, which she viewed as a special guest from A. T. Stewart's store, then located at Chambers Street and Broadway. Lincoln's death frightened her, she said, because she feared that the rebels would get control of the city.

She remembered how everybody complained about the high prices of commodities after the Civil War, when eggs were 10 cents a dozen, butter 18 cents a pound and turkey was sold at the then fabulous rate of 1[illegible] cents a pound.

Miss Marbury told of the change in the theatres, and said she believed the artists of the late nineteenth century were far superior to those of the present day. She saw Mrs. George Gould make her début, and contended that Alice Nielsen was the greatest Juliet of all time.

She recalled how she received her early education of the theatre, when she was taken on a Friday night to see a show, provided she had been a good girl during the preceding week. She spoke of the early theatres, Wallack's, the Union Square Theatre, Daly's, with John Drew—the heart breaker—and the Broadway Theatre, and even old Broadway, when the streets were lighted with incandescent gas mantles, not the Broadway of today with its myriads of lights, all due to the foresightedness of Arthur Williams, the present vice president of the New York Edison Company, who saw in electricity proper illumination of thoroughfares.

That Broadway, too, she went on, was not the Broadway of today. Miss Marbury remembered how north of Forty-second Street were farms, with chickens and pigs. There were no lofty buildings, there was no skyline, there wasn't the distant rumbling of elevator trains or subways. There were different actresses there. They came from Europe, but there was no Grover Whalen to meet them, but "I still believe, that with the exception of Caruso, McCormack, or a few such outstanding stars, they were superior to the present day members of the profession."

She visualized the New York of the future. She saw the housetops as airplane landing fields, with roofs congested with planes. She could see the growth of still loftier buildings, heavier taxation, too, to pay the city officials higher salaries commensurate with their responsibilities; better teachers "and a better New York of which New Yorkers can be proud."

STERN BROTHERS
42nd and 43rd STS. WEST OF FIFTH AVENUE

May We Tell You What Facial Your Complexion Needs?

OUR Delettrez Consultant will carefully examine your skin and plan just the right beauty Treatment for you

3.50 to 7.50

She will also advise you on your correct make-up and the blending of exquisite Powder Shades for day and evening.

Consultation Without Charge

DON'T let gray hair interfere with a youthful appearance. Using the famous Inecto Notox method, our licensed experts will tint your hair to match its former shade exactly.

Telephone Longacre 8000

BEAUTY SALON—SEVENTH FLOOR

STERN BROTHERS
42nd and 43rd STS. WEST OF FIFTH AVENUE

A Gem of an Idea from the Paris Openings..

Two Hats to Give a Gown Two Moods

A saucy small one and a langourous large one

ON "good" days, when you look especially radiant, show all of your face by wearing an impertinent little beret. On days when a faint trace of fatigue tells its tale in your eyes, wear a flattering feminine brimmed hat that casts alluring shadows. We have a talent for harmonizing the "two-hat" idea with the gown, with you, and with your mood!

Both the beret and the brimmed hat are in "petit point baku soie" an exquisite supple silky new straw . both in black with pink grosgrain trimming

25.00 each

FRENCH MILLINERY SALON — THIRD FLOOR

STERN BROTHERS
42nd and 43rd STS. WEST OF FIFTH AVENUE

Unusual Sale—Persian Rugs

In Choice Qualities and Beautiful Patterns —At Far Below Regular Prices

145.	195.	295.
Gorevans 9 x 12 ft.	Mahals 9 x 12 ft.	Lilihans 9 x 12 ft.

THIS collection includes many specimens of fine Oriental rug weaving seldom to be found at such remarkably low prices. The splendid variety offers types suitable for every home.

THE GOREVANS Always favored by those who appreciate the beauty of Orientals but must consider the cost. Now priced lower than in recent years.

THE MAHALS.. Not to be confused with rugs usually found at this price. These are lustrous, heavy textured, diversified in design and color, and true to the Oriental tradition of durability.

THE LILIHANS.. Closely woven, deep piled, silky surfaced rugs, many closely resembling Sarouks in the finely detailed patterns and colorings.

Scatter Size Orientals and Strips

Lilihans 3.6 x 4.10 ft.	49.50	Hamadans 2.4 x 3.8 ft.	18.50
Mossouls 3.2 x 6 ft.	35.00	Karadjis 2.9 x 4.4 ft.	15.00
Persian Runners 2.6x8 to 10 ft.	29.75	Pushtis 2.6 x 2.8 ft.	9.75

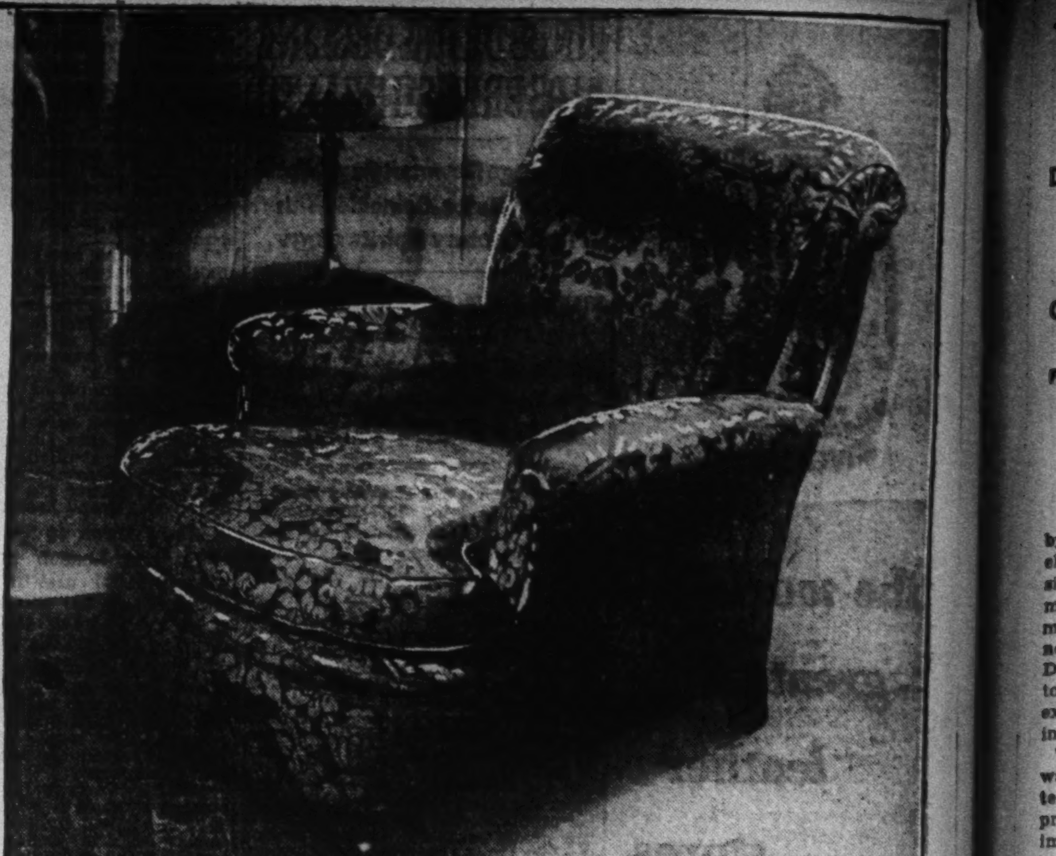
SIZES ARE APPROXIMATE   SIXTH FLOOR

STERN BROTHERS
42nd and 43rd STS. WEST OF FIFTH AVENUE



An Unprecedented Offering

250 Large, Luxurious Down Cushion, Down Back, Lounge Chairs

Custom constructed—covered in your choice of 30 fine damasks, velvets, tapestries, brocatelles, mohairs, antiqued satins

69.50

Made to sell for 125.00

THESE distinguished chairs duplicate in every costly detail a favorite expensive English type club chair at twice this price! The custom construction and fine tailoring which make the English original the ultimate in luxury have been completely retained in this superb reproduction.

It is a full sized low-slung lounge chair. The reversible seat cushion is 27 inches deep, down-filled to a thickness of 6 inches, and rests upon a spring filled platform with rounded spring edged apron. The semi-attached down-filled back pad, two inches thick, is adjusted to the spring filled back with tailored precision. The chair is 32 inches wide over all; both seat and back are completely webbed.

DAMASKS in rust, green, gold, red or henna.

BROCATELLES in red, rust, gold or green.

TAPESTRIES in taupe, rust, green or brown.

VELVETS in green, red, rust or gold.

MOHAIRS in green, taupe or red.

ANTIQUED SATINS, multicolored, in gold, rust or green.

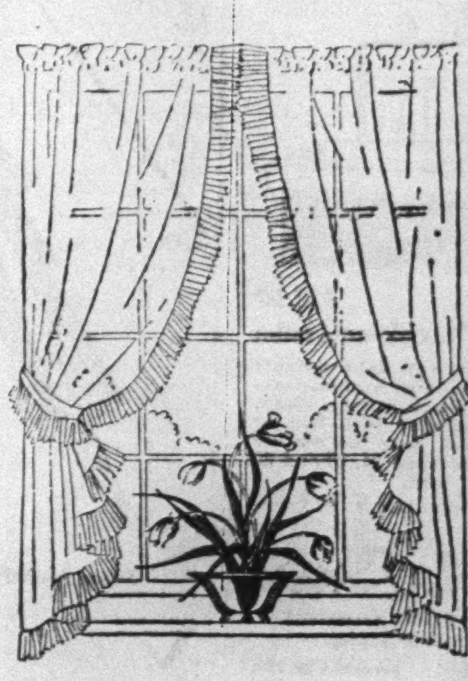
Budget Payments on Furniture May Be Arranged

FURNITURE CORRIDORS—SEVENTH FLOOR

Pastel Organdy Spring Curtains

3.45 pr.

Stern's New Low Price



THESE debonair, pertly fluted curtains of sheer crisp organdie in charming pastels will bring welcome—and inexpensive—spring freshness to your windows.

In green, gold, rose, blue, peach or orchid. Complete with tie-backs.

Mail and telephone orders (Longacre 8000)

DRAPERY SECTION—FOURTH FLOOR

WHEAT PRICE RISE DUE, BUREAU SAYS

Decline of 40,000,000 in World's Visible Supply Is Reported in a Department Bulletin.

COTTON DEMAND IS LOWER

Farm Products Quotations in Next Few Months Are Likely to Remain Under Last Year's.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Favored by a decline of some 40,000,000 bushels of the visible supply of wheat since the peak last October, improvement in wheat prices from the recent marked decline appears likely in the next few weeks, a bulletin by the Department of Agriculture predicted today. Much of the improvement is expected as a result of an anticipated increase in European demands.

The situation in the cotton markets was reported somewhat improved after the recent sharp decline, but no prediction was made of any expected improvement, while lower demands were reported both in the United States and in foreign markets.

The bulletin predicted that the general level of farm prices during the next few months would remain below the corresponding figure for the same period a year ago.

On Jan. 15, although suffering a decline from Dec. 15, the index of prices received by producers averaged 134, as compared with 135 on Dec. 15 and 133 in January a year ago. The corresponding index prices for 1929 were 136 for February, 140 for March and 138 for April.

Lower prices for cotton and grains have now more than offset advances in live stock, fruit and vegetable prices.

Eggs have registered the usual seasonal declines. Further advances in hog prices and a slight improvement in butter also have taken place.

All Wheat Classes Lower.

The department's survey of wheat conditions showed that despite the decline in the visible wheat supply the total was still larger than a year ago, when the level was at 37,000,000 bushels.

Shipments from the Southern Hemisphere were reported considerably smaller than a year ago. Shipments from the United States increased slightly. Stocks in Liverpool were larger than a year ago, but stocks of foreign wheat at Continental ports are comparatively small and the floating supply only about half as large as a year ago.

The bulletin predicted that farm prices for wheat would remain the average for January, due to the decline in market prices. The farm price of wheat in January averaged 107.5 cents per bushel, about the same as in December and still 3 cents above the average of January a year ago.

Prices of all classes and grades at principal markets declined from 126 cents a bushel the first week in January to 118 in the last week of the month. The prices of all classes shared in the decline, hard Winter wheat declining most and soft red Winter the least during the month.

The world wheat supply situation was reported unchanged during the last month, with the foreign demand for American wheat continuing "disappointingly weak."

No attempt was made to forecast definitely the 1930 wheat crop, but the bulletin said "the condition of the Winter-sown crops must be watched closely for the remainder of the season."

Indian Cotton Prices Down.

One of the reasons assigned by the bulletin for the present hesitant prices of cotton was the lower consumption of American cotton in foreign countries, due to large supplies and lower prices on Indian cotton. A recent narrowing of the spread between the prices of Indian and American cotton, however, was reported.

The low point in recent cotton prices was reported to have been 14.67 for middling at important markets Feb. 6. By Feb. 13, however, the situation was said to have been considerably improved, with prices averaging 15 to 25 cents on that date.

Consumption of cotton in the United States during the first six months of the 1929-30 season was reported as about 128,000 bales, or 4 per cent less than in the same period last year. Exports for the same period were 686,000 bales, or 12 per cent less than in the same period last year, and supplies in the United States are now larger than a year ago.

Activity in most foreign countries, except France, Italy and China, continues at low levels.

JERSEY YOUTH ENDS LIFE.

Parents Are Unable to Find a Motive for Suicide in Fanwood.

Special to The New York Times.

FANWOOD, N. J., Feb. 15.—Francis J. Clark, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard C. Clark of Farley Avenue, committed suicide by inhaling gas in his room early this morning. He left a note reading "Good-bye" and signed "A."

The youth, who was employed in New York City, formerly was a trooper in the Twelfth United States Cavalry. Last midnight he returned home and went to his room. At 4 A. M. his father smelled gas and found his son, fully clothed, on the bed, apparently unconscious. Two wall gas jets were turned on. Near by was the note. He summoned Dr. William McGlynn and the pulmotor crew of the Plainfield Fire Department. They worked on the young man in vain.

Dr. C. A. Brokaw, Essex County physician, said the case was a suicide. Mr. and Mrs. Clark declared that Francis had been in good health, had had no trouble with his employers and had had no love affair. He seemed cheerful yesterday, they said.

BEALS APPEALS TO MORROW

American Author Also Protests to Borah on Detention in Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 15 (AP).—Carleton Beals, American author and newspaper man, today sent cablegrams to Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, who is attending the naval conference in London, and to Senator Borah in Washington, protesting against his detention by Mexican authorities yesterday. He expressed the fear that he might be deported.

Mr. Beals has so far received no notification to leave the country.

Starts Term for Screen Tax Fraud.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 15 (AP).—Miss J. Marjorie Berger, Hollywood income tax counselor, appeared at the United States Marshal's office here today and surrendered, to begin a prison sentence of two years and a half for making out a false income tax return for Dorothy Mackaill, screen actress. Miss Berger preserved a cheerful poise until she entered the women's ward of the Los Angeles County jail, where she broke down and wept. Six other indictments are pending.

SEES THIRD DIMENSION AS NEXT MOVIE FEAT

Dr. Stuart of Princeton Says Today's Pictures Will Look Crude Twenty-five Years From Now.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 15.—Twenty-five years from now people will laugh at the crudeness of our movies just as we laugh at those made twenty-five years ago, Dr. Donald Clive Stuart, Professor of Dramatic Art at Princeton University, said in an interview here today. The movies have made rapid strides already, he believes, and promise great things for the future. Among the improvements in motion pictures which Dr. Stuart expects to see is the third dimension.

"I also expect," he declared, "to see a larger screen used, one that will fill the whole proscenium arch. Natural colors will be almost exclusively used, giving plays an appearance of naturalness."

Dr. Stuart took strong exception to a statement made last year by D. W. Griffith, prominent movie producer, that "in five years dramatic art will cease to exist," saying:

"Dramatic art will be killed when all actors refuse to appear on the stage, and that will never happen. The motion picture theatre will always be drama once removed from dramatic art. But just as long as people will flock to the theatres to see movie idols in person, so long will the living drama live."

He also voiced the opinion that the movies had awakened an appreciation of dramatic art and that little theatres and civic theatres had become much more a vital part of American life than ever before.

"Never in the history of America has there been as much interest in dramatic activity as there is in 1930," he declared.

"Ninety per cent of those who go to the drama don't know what their tastes are," Dr. Stuart said in lamenting that many persons flock to the movie houses because they have nothing better to do. He urged the American movie-going public to learn to select good movies from bad ones, but not to censure the movie industry for an occasional poor picture.

"You can't expect an artistic thrill out of a movie to which you go just to kill time," he said. "If you get it, your're lucky; if you don't keep quiet about it."

TWO DIE, 1 HURT IN PLANE.

Machine Crashes at Chico, Cal.—Two Injured in Kentucky.

CHICO, Cal., Feb. 15 (AP).—James Elfendahl, 21, pilot, and Percy Little, 25, were killed and Clifford Squires, 22, was seriously injured in an airplane crash last night. Their plane sideslipped and fell 250 feet.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 15 (AP).—Harold Rhoads and Earl Bach, both 17 years old, were seriously injured this morning when their airplane fell at the Lexington Airport. They were up about 200 feet when the motor went cold and the machine went into a tail spin. Bach may have suffered a fractured skull. The airplane was demolished.

SEIZED IN POLICE SLAYING.

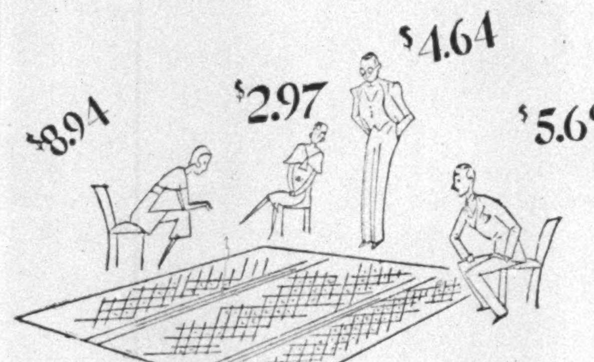
Benny Gordon, Found in Detroit, to Be Asked About O'Brien Killing.

"Cock-eyed" Benny Gordon, known on the east side as "The Two-Bits Gambler," and also under the names of Wallace and Hartman, was arrested in Detroit yesterday in connection with the murder of Patrolman Maprice O'Brien of the West 123d Street station, and is now on his way back to New York. O'Brien was shot and killed at Fifth Avenue and 113th Street when he surprised and broke up a dice game.

Louis Hyams, captain of detectives, said last night that he did not believe Gordon guilty of the murder.

"But," he explained, "we are sure Gordon knows who did kill Patrolman O'Brien."

He added that Gordon had been traced to Detroit by Detectives Hodges and Brown, who have been investigating the slaying of O'Brien, and arrested there at the home of Sam and Simon Waxler, cousins of Abe Axler, a reputed member of the "Purple Gang."



But we all guessed WRONG

It was in the office of our Publicity Director and we were guessing the price of a new bedspread being exhibited by a proud buyer. $8.94—from a decorator! $4.64—from a copywriter. The head of the Comparison Shopping Department, who gets around a lot and has become inured to shock from Macy's low prices, guessed $2.97.

Then the buyer told his story. For six months he has been planning these bedspreads. Two delightful flower patterns were printed for us on cretonne of a special width, with a border in the print. We are making up thousands of them in our own workrooms where we can supervise the details. There are two patterns, each in four color combinations—single and double sizes.

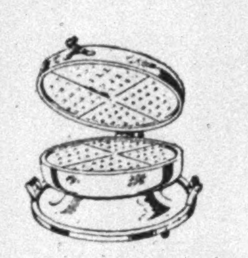
And then he told us the price! $1.79

Drapes to match 89¢ a pair

Second Floor, West Building

MACY'S

34th STREET & BROADWAY



Electric waffle iron is the most efficient way we can think of baking delectable waffles. This one is priced only.......$6.94

Electric percolator. Usually $7.44. We bought a large quantity which accounts for the low price. Nickel plated......$5.84

Smart new cages in green and black, usually $3.24. Now priced at....$2.94. Stands to match, usually $1.89. Now.......$1.79

Fibre bathroom hamper comes in white and colors. Sturdily built.. Usually $3.71 to $6.34. Now $3.44 to...............$5.94

Step ladder made of western spruce, has iron spreader and pail rest and is fully rodded. 5 ft. size. Usually $1.48. Now $1.29

Child's hot water plate. Keeps spinach warm until one gets down to the picture on the bottom. Usually $2.74. Now $2.19

Electric illusion grate; has the look of an open fire but needs only to be plugged into an electric socket. 24-in. width. Usually $13.94...........$11.24

Colored porcelain top kitchen table, size 25" x 36". All hard wood base. Ivory and blue. Ivory and green. Green and white. Usually $11.74....$9.94

Box seat kitchen chairs. A sturdy construction keeps them from falling apart. Good-looking, in white, green or ivory. Usually $3.39. $2.89

Forged iron mail box; takes good care of your mail and lends a homelike air to your entrance. White metal finish. Rustproof. Usually $8.44. $7.74

Triplicate saucepan set that cooks three foods separately at one time over one burner. Of aluminum with detachable handle to fit. Special $1.64

One compartment bread box with drop door that makes it handy to use and easy to keep clean. Colored outside, polished tin inside. Usually $1.59. $1.39

A kitchen clock that keeps its back to the wall and does 24 hour sentry duty. In cheerful colors, yellow, blue and green. Usually $4.69. Now.......$3.96

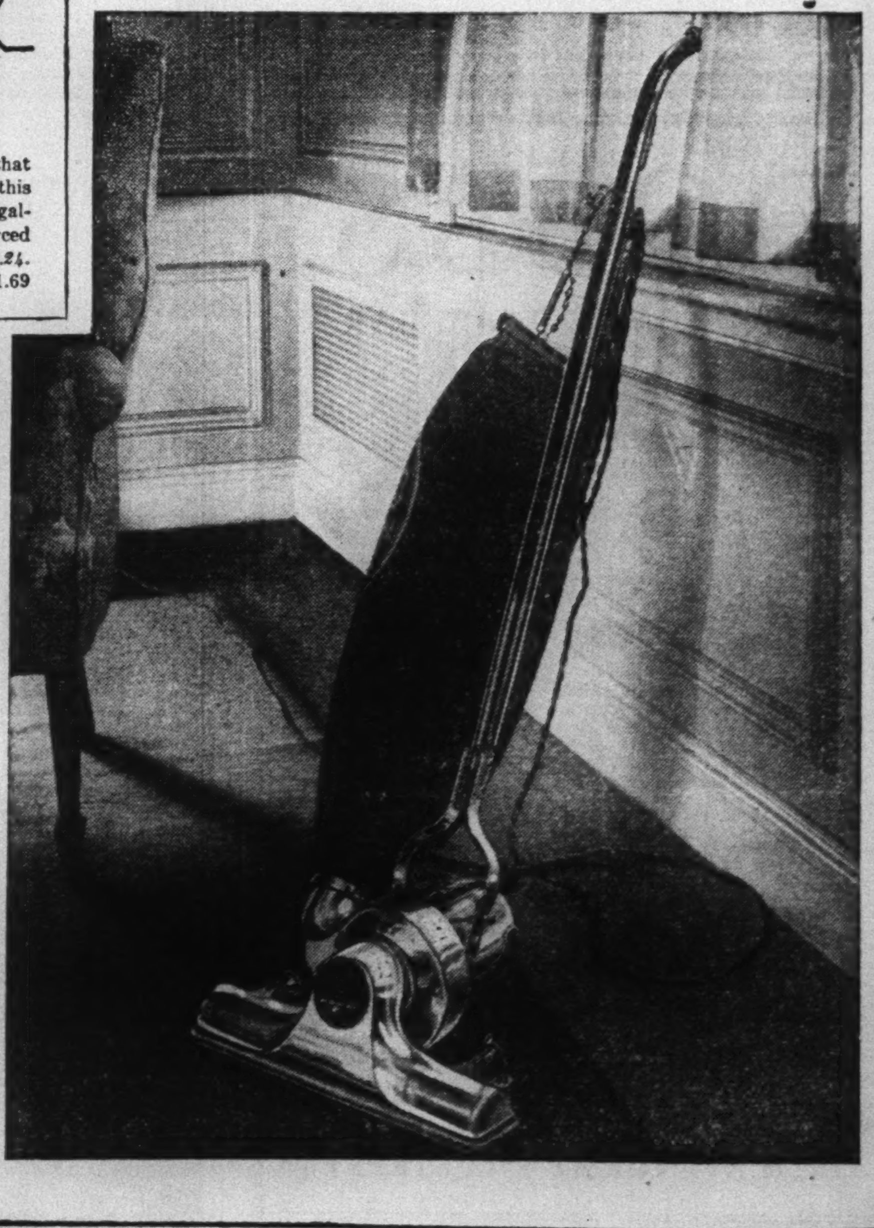
Rubberized cretonne shower curtain that is quite able to stand between you and the world. Size 70" x 70". Usually $2.79. Now.......$2.49

Rotary ash sifter; that makes short work of this wintry job. Heavy galvanized iron, reinforced handle. Usually $2.24. Now.............$1.69

Sale!

House-wares in Macy's Basement

When we say "sale of housewares" we definitely mean sale on practically everything one needs for keeping house. Things for cooking, baking, cleaning. Things for the pantry, bathroom, ice box. And for good measure, things for the fireplace. We can only list a few of the hundreds and hundreds of things here. So make up your list and you will be pretty sure to find what you want at unusually low prices. Furthermore, we endeavor to undersell by at least 6%, regardless of sale prices elsewhere.



Vacuum Cleaner

Complete with Attachments

$36.75

Usually $43.25

This is the lowest price at which we have sold this cleaner in recent months. If you are up-to-date and thrifty minded, this saving of $6.50 should recommend it immediately to you. Furthermore, the attachments make it simple to clean those inaccessible and dust-collecting spots behind the radiator, corners of chairs and sofas, folds in draperies. The brush is motor driven and efficient in bringing new life to little and big rugs.

MACY'S

34th STREET AND BROADWAY

[Other Macy News on Pages 18, 19, 22 and 25]

UTILITY BOARD ASKS EXTENSION OF POWER

Wants Wider Jurisdiction Over Holding Companies and Motor Bus Operation.

AND REGULATE AIR TRAFFIC

Report Asserts State Must Soon Take Up Definite Unification of Rate Structure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 15.—In its annual report made to Governor Roosevelt and the Legislature today the Public Service Commission stressed a suggestion that the law should be amended to give the commission broader jurisdiction over holding companies. A similar recommendation, made to the last Legislature, was largely responsible for the creation of the special legislative commission, headed by Senator Knight, to survey the public service law.

Because the Knight group has not submitted its report, the commission said it did not feel at liberty to discuss in detail just what steps should be taken to clothe it with more authority in dealing with holding companies.

The report shows that last year 2,1?2 orders were issued in proceedings which the commission initiated, compared with 1,902 in the previous year. Informal complaints considered last year were 7,451 and 11,?31 tariff schedules were filed as against 9,025 in 1928. On Dec. 31, last, there were 877 corporations, municipalities and individuals engaged in serving the public in some capacity, all under the jurisdiction of the commission, as compared to 888 in the preceding year.

Reviews Phone Rate Case.

In reviewing the history of the telephone rates controversy, including the proceedings before the commission and the United States District Court up to the time of the filing of the decision of the Federal Court on Nov. 7, last, the report said:

"The position of the commission in four very important connections was sustained by the statutory court which found the fair value of the telephone company's property used as of July 1, 1928, to be $397,207,925, or $120,991,683 less than was found in the report of the special master. The decision reduced the master's allowance for going value to $10,000,000 as found by the commission, and likewise made a series of reductions on the master's allowance for overhead.

"The court also passed upon the question of depreciation reserves in accordance with the contentions of the commission. The court later amended its original finding of fair value, bringing it up to $400,571,699, as compared with $397,207,925."

After stating that the last year saw the greatest consolidation of electric corporations in the history of the State, the report went on:

"Practically two interests now control in the up-State area, viz., the Niagara-Hudson group, which comprises the Niagara Falls system; the Syracuse, Utica, Northern New York Utilities; St. Lawrence County and New York Power and Light systems and the associated group which includes the Empire Gas and Electric Company, the Elmira Water, Light and Railroad Company; the New York Central group of companies, the Rochester Gas and Electric Company group, Plattsburg Gas and Electric group and the Harlem Valley group.

"The consolidated group covers Greater New York and Westchester County and the Long Island Lighting Company serves the entire island outside of Greater New York, excepting that portion served by the Patchogue Electric Light and Power Company.

Mergers Unifying Rates.

"Mergers have continued and with them has come a consolidation of rate schedules to cover the areas merged. This has tended to a unification of rate type, although not necessarily of amounts of charges.

"There have been no increases of a general nature. In some instances where a company has wished to eliminate an archaic form of rate a few increases have resulted. The number of these and the increased revenue resulting have been very small.

"Rural rate extensions have been filed so that there exists in the State today for almost its entire area a rural rate plan based on a guaranteed revenue per mile of line divided between the customers served by each extension. In general this revenue is $24 per month per mile of line.

"The Rochester Gas and Electric Corporation is the only corporation which has not adopted this form of extension plan or a modification of it. Such cooperation adheres to a plan of spending three times the estimated revenue to be received annually from the line in question and asks the prospective customers to contribute the difference between the amount and the actual cost of the line.

"The experience had with the guaranteed minimum revenue plan indicates that it is much to be preferred to any other, and it is believed that by the end of the year 1930 the State will be served by a single type of plan."

Complaints Above Normal.

The number of complaints last year was above normal and this the commission attributes to increased activities of electric corporations and the general use of electricity.

"The majority of the complaints," the report said, "resulted from misunderstanding. Requests for extensions of distribution lines have furnished one of the major sources of complaint.

"These complaints usually arise from the failure of the public to appreciate the principle upon which the extension is made. In nearly all these cases when properly explained, satisfaction is expressed by the complainants."

"A situation in connection with rates to be charged by corporations which deserves more than passing notice is fast developing. A map of the State, prepared to indicate the franchise areas, shows that there is scarcely a habitable area left within which a franchise is not now in effect. The areas of control now are under the dominant control of but two or three major corporations, but a case of extreme rate dissimilarity is frequently presented.

"'While in some instances this condition may be justifiable, it is poor consolation for a customer who lives within one-half mile of another to be told he must pay half again as much for his service as his neighbor merely because of the conditions imposed by the area in which he lives.

"It follows, therefore, that inevitably the State must soon address itself to a definite unification of rate structure and to the establishment of rates which shall have as little dissimilarity in result as possible. This is not an impossible problem.

"Interconnection is leading directly to the establishment of this as a possibility. One of the main features which it accomplishes is to eliminate costly plants or sources of power which make for such a dissimilarity. It is believed that the time is not far distant when such a condition will no longer exist."

The commission renewed its request of previous years for legislation to allow the submetering of electricity. It also requested that it be clothed with authority to regulate the operation of airplanes as common carriers and have additional authority over motor bus operation.

The total number of grade crossing eliminations considered by the commission up to the first of the year was 792, involving 1,322 crossings of steam and electric railroads. In the last few years the commission has ordered the abolishing of 735 crossings at an estimated cost of $97,156,200. The program for the present year involves ending 299 crossings at an estimated cost of $43,182,100.

Certain requirements have been opposed by the railroads on the ground that they included highway improvements which were not essential to a safe elimination, the report said, but the commission has under consideration certain minimum requirements and a better understanding as to the application of such requirements has been reached with the result that appeals from subsequent orders have been less frequent.

Texans Greet Coolidge, Give Wife Flowers; He Will Be Asked to Dedicate Arizona Dam

HOUSTON, Texas, Feb. 15 (AP).—Leaving a trail of autographed albums across Eastern Texas, former President Calvin Coolidge, who, with Mrs. Coolidge, is paying a "duty call" to the South and West, is on his way to El Paso tonight loaded with the best wishes of cities along the route.

Mr. Coolidge was dressed by 5:30 o'clock this morning, ready to shake the hands of two little girls who waited on the depot platform at Lake Charles, La.

The former President had expected to greet his uncle, F. H. Moor, a rice planter of Welch, La., twenty-two miles east of Lake Charles. Mr. Moor, believing the hour was too early, took a seat in the chair car. He was located and brought to the Coolidge drawing room by a brakeman. Mr. Moor chatted with the Coolidges until the train reached Houston.

More than a thousand persons, headed by R. B. Morris, chairman of the Harris County Republican Executive Committee, today greeted Mr. and Mr. Coolidge. A corsage of orchids was presented to Mrs. Coolidge.

The couple stood on the back platform of their special car and shook hands with those who pressed forward.

Mr. Coolidge asked several questions regarding the economic situation here and expressed to Mayor Walter Montieth his regret that he could not stay longer in the city.

The Mayor of a grammar school student government organization succeeded in getting a formal welcome across. As Mr. Coolidge was autographing cards and shaking hands, Carroll Church, the young Mayor, said:

"Mr. Coolidge, I welcome you in behalf of the students of the Eastwood School."

The former President smiled and thanked the boy.

Mr. Coolidge said he planned to greet those who might come to stations to greet him, but would make no speeches or stop-overs between here and Los Angeles.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 15 (AP).—Former President Coolidge will be asked to dedicate the recently completed Coolidge Dam in the Gila Valley, named in his honor, when he passes through Arizona tomorrow for California.

P. D. Overfield, chairman of the dedication committee named two years ago, will extend the invitation to the former President, who declined to attend any dedicatory exercises as long as he was President.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 15 (AP).—Calvin Coolidge started something when he asked a group of New Orleans creoles what was the origin of the word "creole."

"It means a child born of purebred French or Spanish parents in a New World colony," one of them explained.

"I know, but what is the derivation of the word?" inquired the former President.

"Why, er——" And they looked from one to another. None of them knew. They agreed to find out and let him know the origin of their own, particular and distinct word.

So they went to reference books and sent him this:

"Creole—A descendant of white people, born in Mexico, South America and the West Indies. Derived from Spanish word criado, a servant. Criado turned into criadillo, then creolle, and finally creole."

Now the creoles are wondering how this word, which is the hall-mark in Louisiana of high breeding, education and social grace, had such a derivation.

NORRIS PLANS MOVE FOR ELECTION INQUIRY.

He Wants a Committee With Traveling Fund to Investigate Outlays in Senatorial Races.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP).—Signs of the approaching Congressional campaign were seen today as plans were discussed in the Senate for authority to conduct an inquiry into expenditures of Senatorial candidates.

Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, who is among the candidates in this year's election, said he was prepared to offer the resolution for an investigating committee to watch over campaign expenditures. Informal discussion of this step has revealed considerable sentiment for such a move, he explained, but the resolution probably will not be offered until the pending tariff bill is out of the way.

Discussing the resolution for an elections investigation, Senator Norris said, "My idea is a committee appointed by the Senate with funds for traveling and for calling witnesses."

"Of course," he said, "the committee would not centre its attention on one State. I would want it to go into Nebraska, as well as other States, and be ready to make a full investigation wherever trouble arises or grave charges of election irregularities are made."

A similar committee four years ago under former Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, investigated the Senatorial primaries in Pennsylvania and Illinois. On the basis of its reports Senators-elect Frank L. Smith of Illinois and William S. Vare of Pennsylvania were denied seats by the Senate.

Eugene F. Clark Better.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 15.—The condition of Eugene F. Clark, secretary of Dartmouth, was reported as improved tonight, and his doctors declared that the crisis had passed in his fight against pneumonia. The oxygen tent has been removed, and although the doctors declare that the secretary is not out of danger, they say there is no immediate cause for concern.

Miami Clumwomen Fly to Havana.

HAVANA, Feb. 15 (AP).—A thirty-two-passenger flying boat of the New York-Rio and Buenos Aires line arrived here this afternoon from Miami carrying a delegation of Miami clubwomen.

Henri Bendel
INCORPORATED
10-12 and 14 WEST 57TH STREET
NEW YORK

DEPARTMENT OF READY-TO-WEAR
(SECOND FLOOR)

NEW FASHIONS FOR SPRING AND SOUTHERN WEAR SPORTSWEAR
COATS SUITS
DRESSES

ILLUSTRATED
READY-TO-WEAR FROCK OF CREPE MONGOL IN NEW SPRING SHADES.
BEIGE . . . MAIZE . . . ROUGE
BLUE . . . WHITE . . . GREEN $70

All manner of new and lovely lamps are assembled here at Ovington's. Lamps that have braved the canons of conventional design and followed the moderns to new charm and beauty. But lamps, nevertheless, that cling to Ovington's old fashioned code of reasonable prices—lamps that the February discounts of 10% to 50% have made values of rare occurrence.

Invest your living room in a few pre-Spring fancies!

THERE are discounts at Ovington's now on lamps and furniture. There are drastic reductions on screens and on mirrors and on decorative hangings. There are splendid values in sterling, pewter and in shining plate!

So, what if the ground-hog did pop out and peek and then disappear? What if he did retire for six more cold and dreary weeks. It's only one more good reason to make your home cheerful, only one more inducement to make your rooms gay!

And that you can do with these Ovington discounts. Everything chronicled in our first paragraph and mentioned in the brief captions is less now and will be for February by 10% to 50%.

OVINGTON'S
"Gifts from all over the World"
Fifth Avenue at 39th Street
Telephone: Caledonia 8700

Beautiful and decorative hangings are included in the discounts and all paintings, etchings, mezzotints and frames. And all Venetian glass, all bronzes and all Capo di Monte reproductions are less by 10% to 20%.

DOBBS
HATS READY TO WEAR

The Dobbs SUZETTE is charmingly hand-needled in lightest weight felt—exquisitely smart for sunny days in the Southlands! In a wealth of soft colorings and a complement of headsizes! ↔ $19.50

FIFTH AVENUE AT 57th STREET

SAKS-FIFTH AVENUE

Announcing the Annual
February Sale of Handbags
1800 Bags Selling Regularly as high as 28.50
7.50
800 Custom Hand Made Bags made expressly for and obtainable only at Saks-Fifth Avenue

Greatly reduced to 10.50

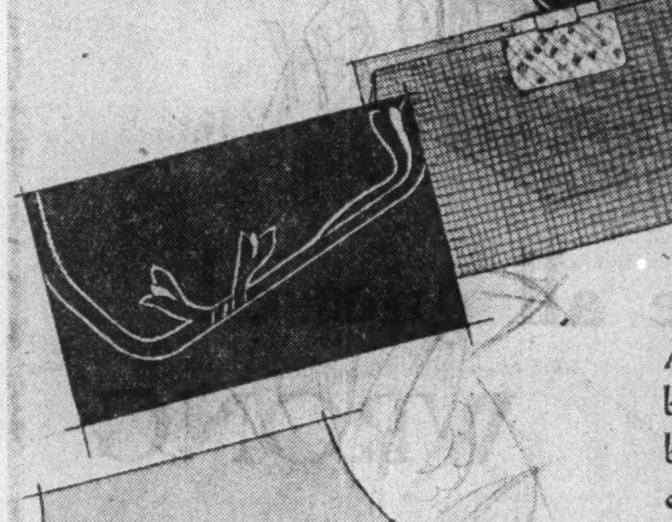
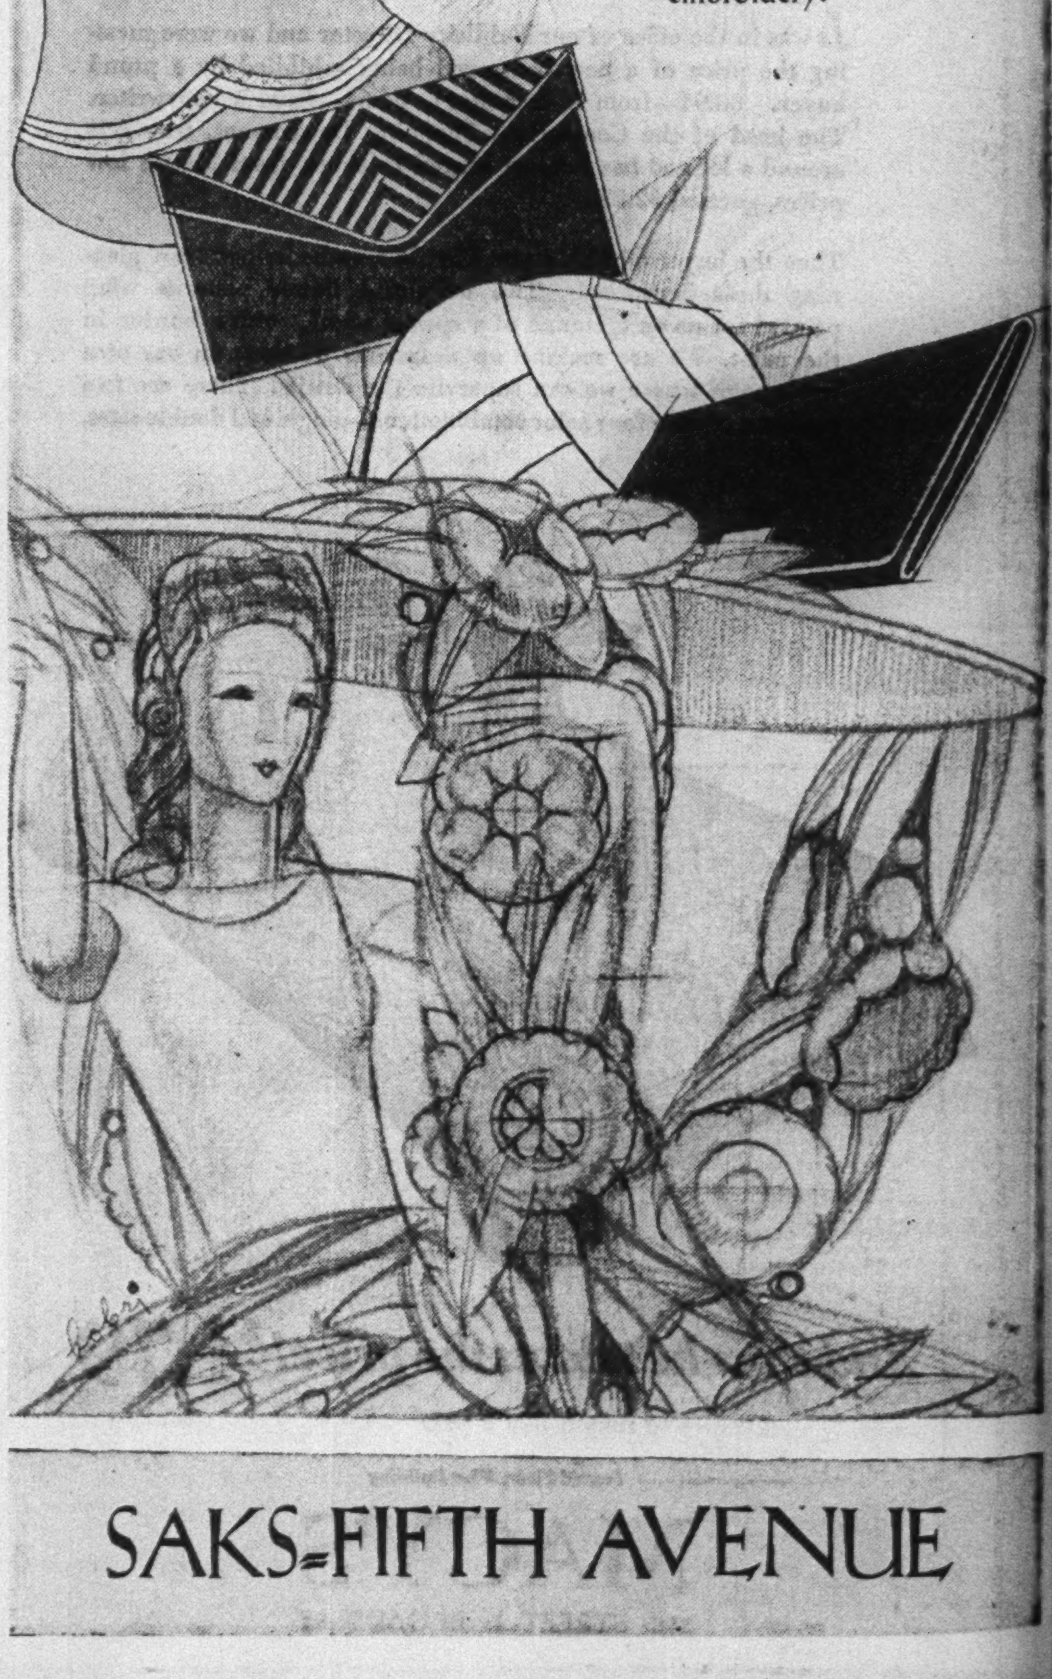
These handbags will appeal especially to the woman interested in the correct ensemble, for she will find it very simple to match the bag with shoes by Saks-Fifth Avenue. Each bag beautifully made, and a rare value indeed!



Afternoon and Evening bags in calf, suede, brocade and beauvais embroidery.



SAKS-FIFTH AVENUE

SAKS-FIFTH AVENUE
NEW YORK

Announcing for Tomorrow A Very Important Sale of Handkerchiefs for Men and Women At about one third off the regular prices

A new, complete, and most remarkable collection of 'Kerchiefs, imported by Saks-Fifth Avenue and offered at one-third off, simply to widen the already big audience of the Saks-Fifth Avenue 'Kerchief department. Almost every kind of 'kerchief included ... from the dainty chiffon to the most beautifully embroidered Appenzell.

Note the qualities and the prices.

FOR WOMEN

Chiffon Handkerchiefs . . . were 50c to 6.50 reduced to 25c, 65c, 1.50, 2.95 and 4.50

Linen Handkerchiefs, embroidered . . . were 75c and 1.50 reduced to 35c and 75c

Appenzell Handkerchiefs . . . were 1.95 to 4.95 reduced to 1.50, 1.75, 2.95 and 3.50

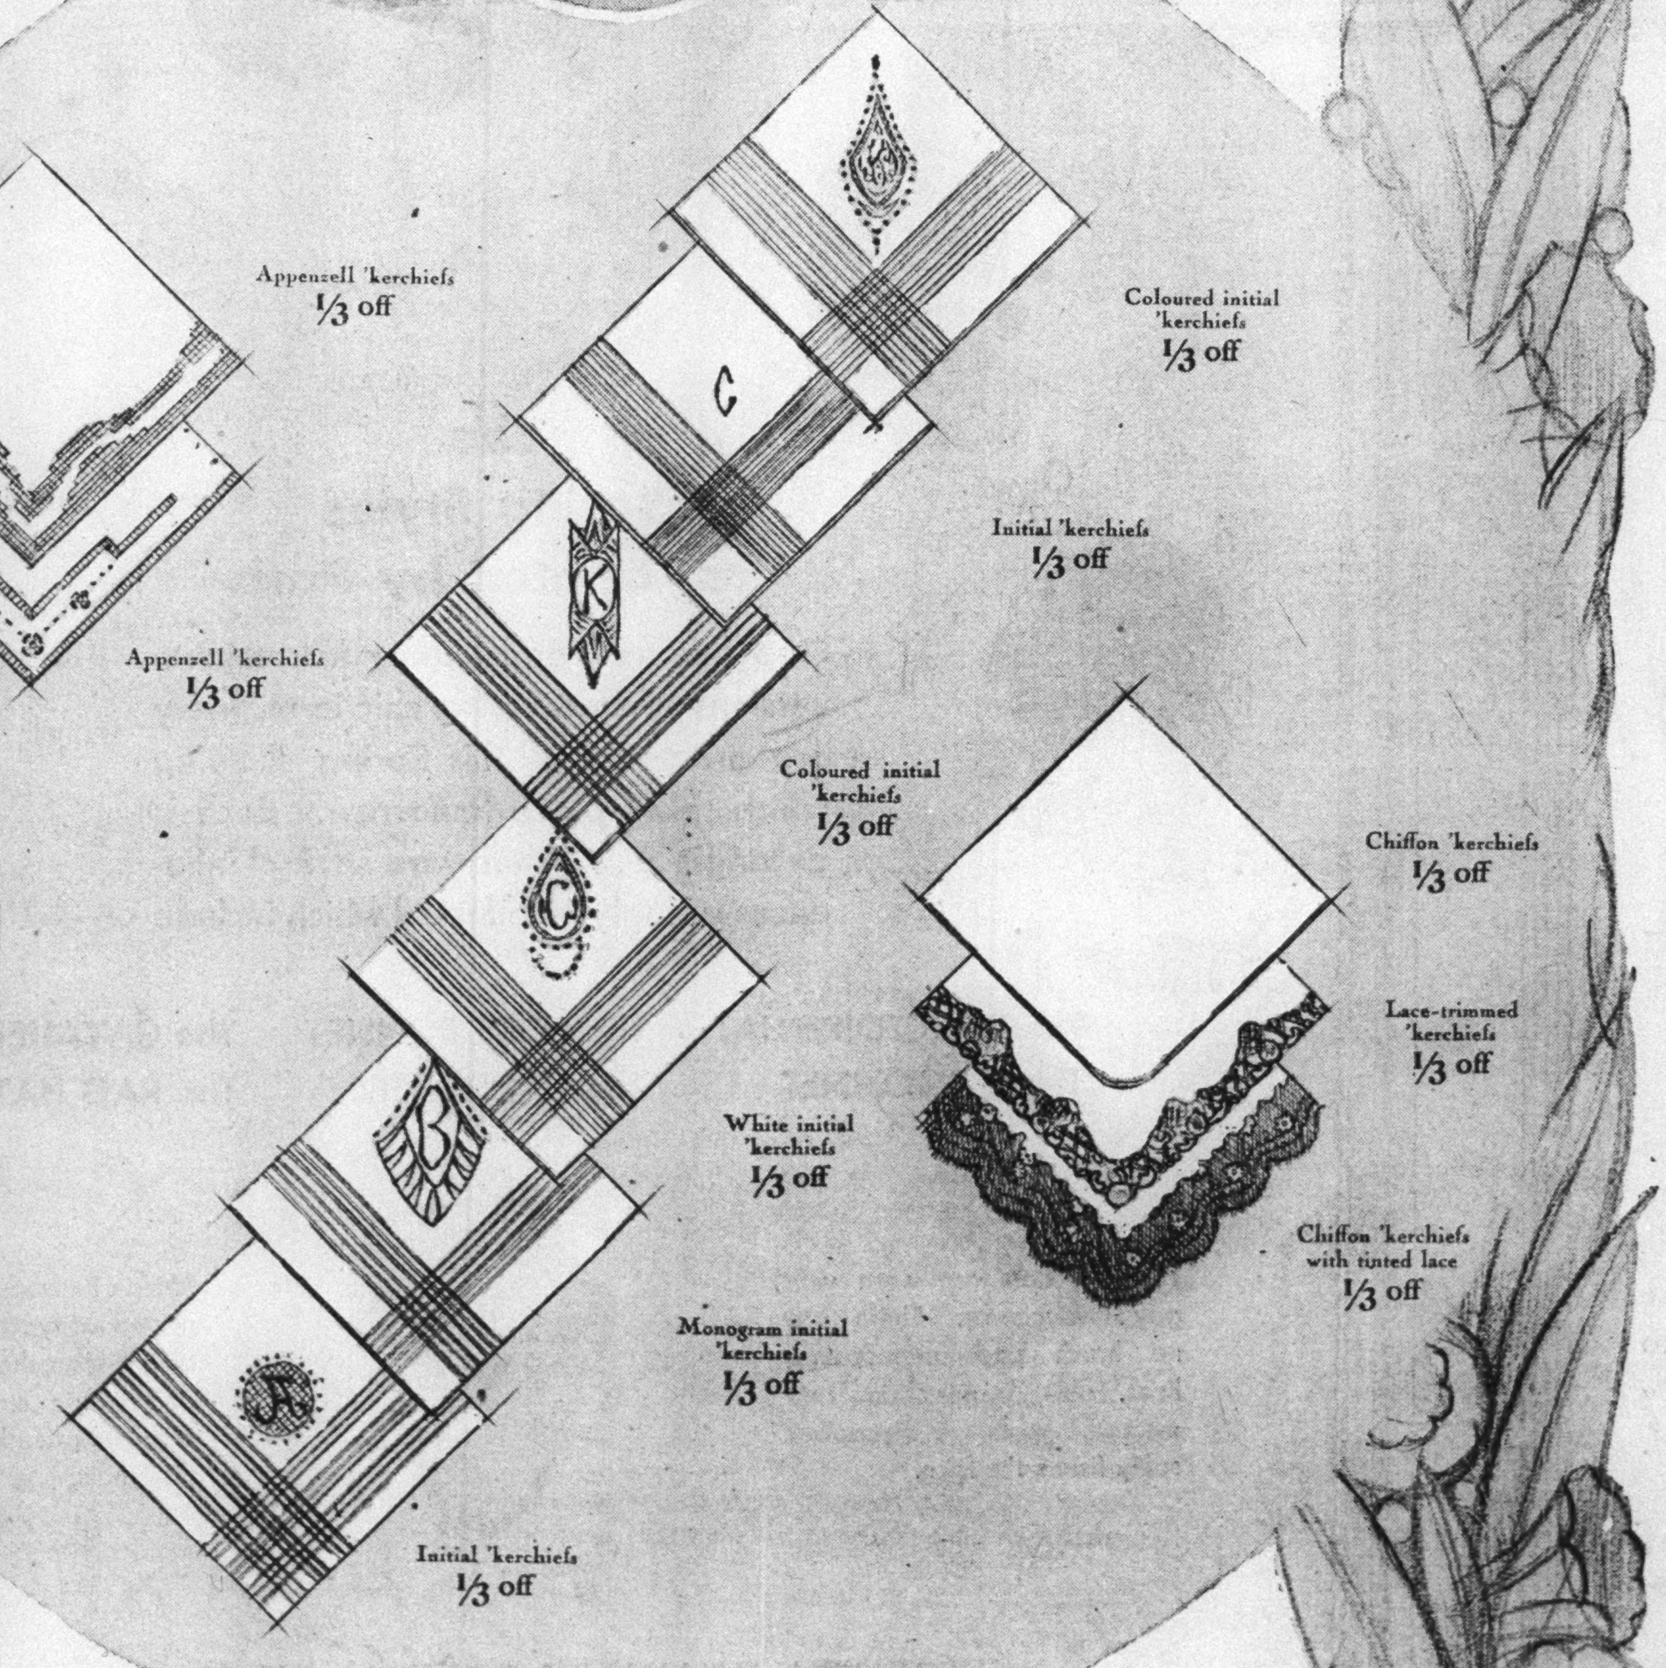
Initial Handkerchiefs . . . were 1.00 to 1.50 reduced to 65c and 1.00

Initial Handkerchiefs (boxes of 3 or 6) were 1.50 to 8.50 reduced to 1.75, 1.95, 2.50, 3.50, 5.95

FOR MEN

White Linen Handkerchiefs . . . were 75c to 1.75 reduced to 50c, 75c and 1.00

Initial Handkerchiefs . . . were 1.95 to 7.50 reduced to 1.35, 1.95, 4.50 and 5.50



$33,000 worth of 'kerchiefs in this sale

there are so many beautiful 'kerchiefs in this sale that satisfactory choosing is reduced to a certainty. All new merchandise to sell at higher prices...all purchased for the regular Saks Fifth Avenue stocks.

SAKS-FIFTH AVENUE
NEW YORK

Tomorrow

The Important Sale of TOILETRIES

At Remarkably Low Prices

Together with many other items are included the following...

Soap

Conti Castile Soap. Box of 12 cakes — 1.19
Morny's Toilet Soap. Regularly .50 a cake Box of 3, .95
Imported Sea Water Soap. Box of 12 cakes — 1.45
Wrisley's Hard Water Soap. Box of 6 cakes — .95
Jergen's Soap. Iris or Cold Cream. 4 cakes — .75
Imported French Bath Soap made especially for Saks. Box of 6 cakes in Yellow, Rose, Blue, Green cakes, 1.15
Imported Novelty Soap. Suitable for Bridge Prize. Box of 4 cakes — .95
Imported Mem. Guest Soap. Box of 36 cakes of assorted odors. Regularly 1.00 — .85
Cuticura Soap. Box of 3 — .42
Woodbury's Soap. Box of 3 — .42
Palmolive Soap. 12 cakes — .75
Lux Soap. 12 cakes — .75
Physicians' & Surgeons' Soap, 12 cakes — .79

Bath Preparations

Saks Bath Essence. (Omy odor.) Regularly 8.00 — 5.45
Bathasweet, large size — .59
English Narcynthia Bath Tablets. Box of 12 tablets, .85
Dr. Sand's Sea Pine Bath Salts. 5-lb. Tin. Regularly 3.45 — 2.45
Isabey's Mon Seul Ami Bath Powder. Regularly 2.00, 1.45

Toiletries

Gabilla Lip Stick, Light and Dark. Regularly 1.25 — .55
Mad Nail Polish — .29
Leclerc Face Powder. Rachel, Ocre, Natural. Regularly 2.50—with Individual Powder Puff .85 — 1.95
Orris Powder. Regularly .50 Bags — .45
Orris Powder. Regularly .25 Bags — .19
Isabey's Mon Seul Ami Face Powder, Rachel, Naturelle, Mauresque and Ocre. Regularly 1.50 — .95
Caron's Compact Powder. Ivorie-Nacre, Blanche, Naturelle, Ivorie-Rose and Clair. Regularly 5.00 — 1.95
Caron's Compact Powder. Blanche, Naturelle, Ivorie-Nacre, Ocre, Mauresque, Clair, Ivorie-Rose. Regularly 3.50 — .95
Caron's Face Powder (white only). Regularly 6.00, 1.95
Caron's Rouge Compact. Light, Medium and Dark. Regularly 4.00 — .95
Caron's Rouge Compact. Light, Medium and Dark. Regularly 4.50 — 1.45

Creams and Lotions

Hind's Honey & Almond, Large — .59
Frostilla, Large — .59
Frostilla, Medium — .29
Frostilla, Small — .14
Pond's Cold Cream, Large — .29
Pond's Cold Cream, 1-lb. Jar — .97
Dagget & Ramsdell, 1.00 Jar — .61
Dagget & Ramsdell, Large Tube — .29

Shaving Preparations

Palmolive Shaving Cream — .23
Mennen's Shaving Cream — .23
Listerine Shaving Cream — .23
Latherite Shaving Cream — .31
Pinaud's Lilac Vegetal — .83

Miscellaneous

Perfection Military Brushes, 5.00 to 8.00 a pair — 3.75
Imported Fine Quality Tooth Brushes — .25
A P W Rolls. Regularly 50. Carton of 4 — 1.55
A P W Flats. Regularly 45. Carton of 6 packages, 2.25
Imported Nail Brushes Values up to 4.95 — 1.45
Silk Tourist Bags All Colors, Floral Design Regularly 4.95 — 2.25
Silk Wash Cloth Cases of Same Material Regularly 1.00 — .65
Bath Room Bottles in Rose, Blue and Amber, with Inscriptions. Regularly 2.95 — 1.95
Imported Shaving Mirror, Magnifying Glass, Regularly 3.45 — 2.45
Imported Shaving Mirror, Magnifying Glass, Regularly 6.25 — 4.95
Eight and Ten-Piece Boudoir Sets in Maize, Orchid, Jade and other colors. Values up to 34.50 — 17.50

STREET FLOOR

ELIHU ROOT HAILED ON 85TH BIRTHDAY

Veteran Statesman Celebrates Quietly at Home Here With Members of Family.

FLOOD OF GREETINGS SENT

Admirers and Former Associates All Over the World Pay Tribute—Recent Achievements Recalled.

Elihu Root, veteran American statesman and jurist, spent his eighty-fifth birthday yesterday quietly at his home at 998 Fifth Avenue, with only members of his family present. The only festivity was a family dinner last night, attended by Mr. and Mrs. Elihu Root Jr., Mr. Root's daughter, Mrs. U. S. Grant 3d, and his granddaughter, Ruth Edith Grant. Mr. Root's other son, Edward Wales Root, is abroad.

Although Mr. Root denied himself to all callers except those of his own blood, the outside world presented its congratulations in scores of letters, telegrams and cablegrams from all over the world, many of them from prominent figures with whom Mr. Root has been associated in his long years of eminence in international life. Flowers in profusion were also sent to the Root home by admirers.

Greetings From His College.

Among the remembrances was one which linked Mr. Root with his youth two-thirds of a century ago. It was a telegram of greetings from the 400 undergraduates of Hamilton College at Clinton, N. Y., Mr. Root's birthplace. Mr. Root received his baccalaureate degree at Hamilton in 1864. Only one other member of Mr. Root's class survives. He is Professor Theodore S. Gardner, who lives on the Isle of Jersey.

The telegram from the college men read:

"We who are not unaware of the invaluable services which you have rendered to Hamilton College in the past and which you continue to render in the present, wish to congratulate you upon the occasion of your eighty-fifth birthday."

Mr. Root was born in the main room of the administration building at the college, in which the board of trustees, of which he is chairman, now meets.

At his home yesterday it was said that Mr. Root was enjoying his usual good health. Despite his age, he has made the past year rich in accomplishment and has added to the honors and distinctions which have come to him in thirty years of active public life.

It was exactly a year ago last night that Mr. Root sailed for Europe on one of the most difficult missions of his career, the attempt to end the impasse which had existed between the United States and the World Court for two years. Mr. Root, who was one of the international group of jurists by whom the World Court was originally framed, had the task of trying to work out a compromise by which the United States could enter the court and still keep the independence of action demanded by the isolationists.

Hailed as "Father" of Court.

He was hailed at Geneva as "the spiritual father of the World Court," and his vigor and personality were the subject of admiring world-wide comment. The fruit of his mission was the adoption of the "Root formula" and the reframing of the World Court statutes in a way which proponents of the World Court believe safeguards the United States if it enters the court. As a result of Mr. Root's efforts, the United States has signed the three protocols providing for the entry of the United States under reservations, and these are now awaiting the action of the United States Senate.

Within the last year Mr. Root has been elected president of the New York Institute and has received the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Laws from New York University, which it has awarded only once before, to Chief Justice Hughes.

Last November a little known phase of Mr. Root's interest was shown when he received the president's gold medal of the National Academy of Design for "distinguished services to the fine arts." The honor was chiefly for Mr. Root's resurrection of "L'Enfant's plan for the development of the city of Washington." A month ago Mr. Root received the Eleanor Van Rensselaer Fairfax Medal for eminent public service, given by the Colonial Dames.

ELECTED OHIO SCHOOL HEAD

A. F. Warren Picked for Post at Western Reserve Academy.

Arthur Fiske Warren, head master of Collegiate School in New York City for more than nineteen years, has been elected head master of Western Reserve Academy, at Hudson, Ohio, according to an announcement made yesterday by Warren Bicknell, president of the board of trustees of the academy.

The academy was founded at Hudson in 1826 as the preparatory department of Western Reserve College. In 1882, when the college moved to Cleveland, its buildings and campus were left to the academy, which continued until 1903, when it closed because of lack of funds. It was reopened in 1916 through the generosity of the late James W. Ellsworth, who gave gifts amounting to $4,500,000.

Members of its board of trustees who live in New York City are Lincoln Ellsworth, polar explorer and son of the late James W. Ellsworth; Bernon S. Prentice and Richard H. M. Robinson.

Ecuador May Reduce Pensions.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GUAYAQUIL, Feb. 15.—Pensions of retired government employes may be reduced soon as a result of the discovery that the reserves of the pension bank will be too low to meet the requirements. El Commercio suggests a remedy of increasing assessments of government employes and of increasing years of service required for retirement.

MANIU INSISTS CAROL ADHERE TO AGREEMENT

Rumanian Government Will Not Sanction Visit by Prince Within 10 Years except by Permission.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Feb. 15.—As a result of a letter from the former Crown Prince Carol, addressed to Queen Marie and a duplicate addressed to the Regency Council, expressing the wish to return to Rumania for the marriage of his sister, Princess Ileana to Count Alexander of Hochberg on May 1, Premier Maniu has stated privately that his government adheres strictly to the agreement made by Prince Carol that he will not return to Rumania for ten years without express permission.

In well-informed circles it is stated the government has decided, in order to avoid any repetition of such personal letters on Prince Carol's part, to establish a regular channel of communication, of which he can avail himself whenever he has any suggestion of a political nature to advance.

Queen Marie of Rumania will leave Bucharest Thursday with Princess Ileana for Costanza. There they will embark for Cairo, where the Count of Hochberg will meet them. On the same day Queen Marie of Yugoslavia, a sister of Princess Ileana, will leave Bucharest to return to Belgrade.

ASKS REICH TO LIMIT SALE OF HARD LIQUOR

Committee, by Vote of 14 to 13, Urges Ban in Mornings and on Pay Day.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 15.—Hard liquor will be barred from sale throughout Germany during certain morning hours and throughout Fridays and Saturdays, which nominally are pay days, and on election days, if the Reichstag approves a bill recommended by its Committee for Social Economics. Its inclusion in the new license law was approved by Socialists, Communists and some members of the Nationalist party, while the Democrats, Centrists and other Liberals opposed it, the vote being 14 to 13.

As the committee previously had also advocated adoption of a bill providing for earlier closing hours for public houses and night life generally, anti-reformers are hastily marshaling their alarm brigades for the purpose of spiking what has already been called the opening gun of the prohibition forces.

Meanwhile, the powerful German Federation of Brewers is stoutly protesting a prospective 50 per cent rise in the beer tax, which is included in the Finance Minister's dragnet for new revenues. The brewers declare it is outrageously unjust to assess them arbitrarily an additional burden of $50,000,000 while $80,000,000 could be gathered in through a slight increase in the turnover tax, which would be uniformly distributed instead of being confined to a single industry.

(ABOVE) A simple sports hat of Knox felt worn with swagger coats. $10

(RIGHT) The new varying brim felt worn with chiffon prints in matching colors. $15

Knox is a specialist in Women's Hats

The nuances of time and place are critically observed by Knox the Hatter. The result is that the style assurance which pervades the Knox town hat is equally certain to exist in a Knox sports hat, or any hat that possesses the Knox label.

A new semi-dress felt hat worn in colors to match the ensemble. $10

The Women's Shops of KNOX THE HATTER

The Colony Room, 711 Fifth Avenue (at 55th)
458 Fifth Avenue (at 40th) — Roosevelt Hotel (Madison at 45th)
261 Broadway (Singer Bldg.) — Paramount Bldg. (Broadway at 44th)

B. ALTMAN & CO.

FIFTH AVENUE AT THIRTY-FOURTH STREET • TELEPHONE: MURray Hill 7000

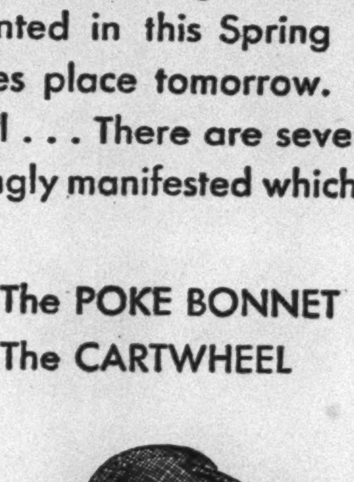
ALTMAN MILLINERY

The Spring Styles as dictated by Paris

One hundred and twenty last minute versions of captivating chic in millinery are presented in this Spring showing which takes place tomorrow. Each is an original . . . There are several influences strongly manifested which include

The DIRECTOIRE HAT — The POKE BONNET — The CAVALIER HAT
The BIGGONNET — The CARTWHEEL — The RAG HAT

The new hats are worn with gay insouciance. There are no harsh and unbecoming lines. Folds, drapes, brims and even the materials themselves softly frame the face.



Altman Reproductions in the imported lacey straws, linen, shantung, tuscan, sheer crin, antelope and exotic straws that Paris employs priced $18.50 to $45. Originals, $45 to $75

FRENCH MILLINERY SALON—THIRD FLOOR

Gloves—First Floor — Dresses—Third Floor

SUES 19 COMPANIES AS GASOLINE TRUST

Government Accuses California Oil Concerns of Conspiracy to Fix Prices.

INTIMIDATION IS CHARGED

Complaint Says Defendants Refused to Sell Gasoline to Retailers Not Agreeing to Demands.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15 (AP).—United States Attorney Hatfield filed suit today against nineteen California oil companies to enjoin them from "conspiracy to maintain an unfair price for gasoline."

The suit was filed in Federal District Court on orders from the Attorney General of the United States. The suit, aimed at the seven major and twelve smaller companies, also seeks to enjoin the companies from "engaging in violation" of the anti-trust laws.

Mr. Hatfield also asked that agents for the defendants be restrained from posting prices at gasoline stations.

The major oil companies named in the suit were the Associated Oil Company of California, the Texas Oil Company of California, the Union Oil Company of California, the Standard Oil Company of California, the Richfield Oil Company of California, the General Petroleum Corporation of California and the Shell Oil Company of California.

The twelve independent companies are the Marine Refining Corporation, the Hancock Oil Company, the MacMillan Petroleum Company, the Rio Grande Oil Company, the Edington-Wirz Refining Company, the Hercules Gasoline Company, the Seaside Oil Company, the Shamley Gasoline Company, the Sunland Refining Company, the United Refining Company, the Vernon Oil Refining Company and the Western Oil and Refining Company.

F. M. Long of Los Angeles also was named as a defendant. The suit alleges he was "the medium" for the arrangement between the seven major companies and the twelve independent concerns, whereby the major companies purchased gasoline from the other twelve, on condition of sale at fixed prices, to the end of preventing the independent companies from competing with the major companies.

The suit also alleges that all the companies "have operated under an agreement between themselves to eliminate competition as to prices, terms and conditions of sale of gasoline, fixing uniform and non-competitive prices to be charged by all of them for said gasoline.

"They have agreed to refuse and in fact have refused to sell, furnish, transport, supply and deliver gasoline to any retailer in the Pacific Coast area who refuses to sell at prices so fixed."

The complaint, in conclusion, states that the gasoline business in the Pacific Coast area has been under the domination of the companies who have "stifled and eliminated" all competition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The Department of Justice announced today that it had filed in the district court at San Francisco a petition in equity charging nineteen oil companies operating on the Pacific Coast with a conspiracy to monopolize and restrain interstate trade and commerce, by maintaining fixed prices for the sale of gasoline.

HIGH FEVER ATTACKS AMBASSADOR MOORE

Little Hope Is Held for His Recovery by Attending Los Angeles Doctor.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 15 (AP).—Slight hope was held today for the recovery of Alexander P. Moore, American Ambassador to Poland, who is critically ill here from a throat and lung infection.

Dr. P. G. White, attending physician, said the patient had a temperature of 104 degrees.

The physician said Ambassador Moore was in a semi-delirious condition following a distinct decline in his condition last night. Through the day no change was noted.

The patient's state of health became so serious yesterday that he was moved from a sanitarium, where he had gone to obtain relief from a "bad cold," to the California hospital here.

The infection, friends said, apparently had long existed without Mr. Moore's knowledge. Following a visit here with friends in the motion-picture industry, Mr. Moore went to Palm Springs, a resort near Los Angeles. He was stricken with a cold and when he failed to respond to treatment entered the sanitarium.

Ambassador Moore is 63 years old and formerly published several Pittsburgh newspapers. He was appointed Ambassador to Poland recently by President Hoover and previously had served as Ambassador to Peru and Spain.

TAFT SHOWS PROGRESS.

Doctors Report That Ex-Chief Justice Had Satisfactory Day.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP).—Physicians attending William Howard Taft said tonight that the former chief justice had passed a very satisfactory day and that he was progressing well.

A bulletin, issued at noon by Dr. Thomas A. Claytor and Dr. Francis R. Hagner, said:

"There is no material change in the condition of the former chief justice. He is resting quietly."

During the day Speaker Longworth presented to the House a communication from Mrs. Taft thanking the House for the resolution adopted expressing regret over the ill health of her husband.

TAFT PORTRAIT ON VIEW.

Ipsen Work One of 43 Paintings Shown Here by Salmagundi Club.

Paintings by members of the Salmagundi Club make up the February art exhibition of the Union League Club. Among the forty-three paintings on display is a recent portrait of former Chief Justice William Howard Taft by Ernest L. Ipsen, N. A., which is to be hung in the Supreme Court in Washington. Other paintings include a typical landscape by Bruce Crane, "The Little Girl o' the Village," by Charles W. Hawthorne, N. A., and "Along Central Park," by Guy Wiggins, A. N. A.

Other artists included in the show are E. R. Blumenschein, N. A.; Roy Brown, N. A.; George Elmer Browne, N. A.; Maurice Fromkes, A. N. A.; Charles S. Chapman, and Charles C. Curran, N. A. The exhibition will continue through Feb. 22.

$25 Added to the Neediest Fund.

A contribution of $25 was received yesterday from Florence Kurwitz for the Neediest Cases Fund of THE NEW YORK TIMES. This raised the total received for the fund to $339,512.87.

UNION SECRETARY SEIZED.

Jersey City Man Is Said to Admit $3,000 Chortage in Accounts.

Joseph Leblanc, 44 years old, of 2 Oak Street, Jersey City, secretary of the Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders and Helpers of America, Local 2, was arrested last evening on charges of embezzlement by the Union City police on the complaint of Edward Ulrich of 57 Hague Street, Jersey City, president of the local and director of the international union.

According to Deputy Chief Angelo Stanton of Union City, Leblanc admitted being short about $3,000 in his accounts, which he said he lost in speculation.

A statement issued last night by Ulrich and John J. Dowd, vice-president of the international, said that an incomplete audit shows about $5,000 is missing.

Leblanc assumed the duties of secretary about three months ago when thta officer became ill. He is being help in $5,000 bail in Union City to await a hearing.

TWO ATTACK GUARD, FLEE BAY STATE PRISON

Escape by Window of Concord Reformatory—Convict Scales Wall at Canon City, Col.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, Mass., Feb. 15.—Two Concord Reformatory inmates, serving jail terms for larceny and armed robbery, clubbed their guard into unconsciousness with a hammer, stole his revolver and escaped today. The prisoners, John F. Buchanon, 28, and James S. Vincent, 21, both of South Boston, were still at large tonight, although State police were mobilized for a search. The guard, Daniel O'Connell, was in the reformatory hospital with a probable fracture of the skull.

Buchanon and Vincent were repairing a desk in a small room of the hospital building. The wounded guard said they turned on him together and while one pinioned his arms from behind, the other clubbed him with the hammer.

They broke a door leading to a small attic room containing an unbarred window. From this window they dropped 25 feet to the roof of the Administration Building.

Swinging into the building unobserved through an open window, they walked coolly downstairs and out through the main door.

The alarm for their escape was delayed until O'Connell, partly regaining consciousness, began to groan and attracted the attention of other guards.

CANON CITY, Col., Feb. 15 (AP).—Characterized by prison officials as one of the most desperate criminals housed in the institution, Leo W. McGentry today made his escape from the Colorado State Penitentiary by scaling a wall.

Colonel Patrick J. Hamrock, recently appointed to reorganize the prison administration along military lines following convict mutinies and other disorders, said the staff of guards in the section where McGentry escaped had been diminished by ten men because of illness. McGentry had been gone for several hours before his absence was noted.

ARNOLD CONSTABLE
FIFTH AVENUE AT 40TH STREET

The Entire Stock of Southern Apparel

in the Sun Bronze Shop

at 25% Off!

This smart little shop, which has outfitted hundreds of southbound travelers, is now making room for new French fashions. If you are preparing for a cruise, a trip to Havana or Bermuda, you may choose, here, successful fashions for southern wear or for summer wear... at substantial savings.

Sports Frocks ... Sports Suits ... Beach Costumes

Original prices will be shown—Reductions will be taken at time of purchase.

For women and misses

ARNOLD CONSTABLE SUN BRONZE SHOP ... THIRD FLOOR

Clearance Furred Coats

Emphasizing Black Coat Fashions in Smart Fabrics and Fine Furs

87 Furred Sports Coats — $26.50 — Reg. $39.50 to $59.50

80 Furred Town and Sports Coats ... including black coats. — $39.50 — Reg. $59.50 to $89.50

67 Richly Furred Dress Coats ... many fashions in black. — $50.00 — Reg. $79.50 to $100

62 Superior Quality Dress Coats ... featuring black coats with black or contrasting furs. — $77.00 — Reg. $109 to $159

Sizes for women, misses, petite and larger women

ARNOLD CONSTABLE COAT SHOP ... THIRD FLOOR

Reduced! Smart

Evening Wraps

Furred velvet and lame wraps in short, three-quarter and long models. Sizes for women and misses.

$29.50 $39.50 $59.50

Formerly $39.50 to $89.50

ARNOLD CONSTABLE EVENING WRAP SHOP ... THIRD FLOOR

ARNOLD CONSTABLE
FIFTH AVENUE AT 40TH STREET

Taffeta Hats...

The Most Important New Paris Fashion

Fashion is determined to make us look pretty this Spring, and she does it most effectively in these new taffeta hats. Soft and frilly, they give the face a frame that's infinitely flattering, the most truly "feminine" hats that Paris has sent to date. Copied, expertly, in our workrooms and trimmed with the same quaint ric-rac braid used on the original imports.

Mado replicas pictured . $18.50

Other taffeta hats . . $15.00 to $22.50

ARNOLD CONSTABLE MILLINERY SALON ... SECOND FLOOR

ARNOLD CONSTABLE
FIFTH AVENUE AT 40TH STREET

PARIS SUCCESSES

confirm the fashion forecasts of Arnold Constable

Each of these fashions was introduced, here, before the Paris showings. Each proved to be an important, repeatedly seen fashion at the Paris showings. Not that we have clairvoyant powers. Not that we are such good guessers. But continuous, intelligent study of trends and developments does enable us to foretell ... often far in advance ... fashions that are bound to grow in importance.

LACE

Introduced October 20... Herald Tribune

An overwhelming success last fall and winter, lace is again sponsored for spring by Chanel, Molyneux, Augustabernard, Lanvin, Callot, Worth. Specialized at Arnold Constable.

(Illustrated) Evening gown with separate bolero. Misses' sizes . . . $39.50

SHORT SLEEVES

Presented November 5... Evening Sun

Paris has gone in for short sleeves more enthusiastically for spring, and we predict that the enthusiasm will spread. For short sleeves are so young and flattering.

(Illustrated) Silk crepe frock with lingerie touches. Misses' sizes $49.50

NAVY

Featured January 19... New York Times

Our absolute confidence in Navy was confirmed on the very first day of the Paris showings. Navy and light navy appeared so often that it looks like a "blue" spring.

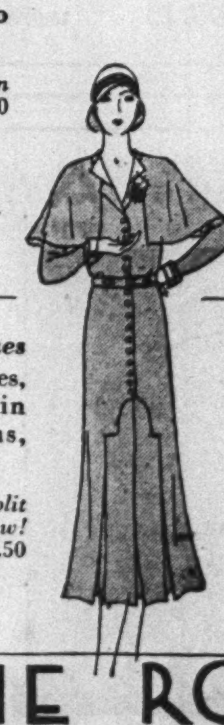
(Illustrated) Suit of soft woolens, silk crepe blouse $59.50

JACKET COSTUMES

Announced January 27... Evening Sun

Since then we find that Marcel Rochas, Molyneux, Chanel, Lenief, Lanvin, Jenny and Maggy Rouff also like jacket costumes for spring.

(Illustrated) Lily of the valley print on navy blue. Misses' sizes . . . $35.00



CAPES

Presented February 9... New York Times

Everybody in Paris featured capes, and we show cape fashions in afternoon and evening gowns, suits, coats and sports apparel.

(Illustrated) Silk crepe frock with split cape. Note crystal buttons. New! Misses' sizes $49.50

OPALINE ROSE

Introduced February 10... Evening Sun

Opaline Rose is Patou's 1930 color, he used it time and again to trim black, brown, navy and gray... and so do we. Our announcement appeared the moment the shade was verified.

(Illustrated) Flat crepe frock. Misses' sizes $49.50

SCHOOL BILLS STIR JERSEY EDUCATORS

Opposition to Pending Changes in State System Voiced at Legislative Hearing.

FRAMERS DEFEND PLANS

Survey Commission Head Says Revision of 20-Year-Old Laws Is Needed for General Good.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 15.—District Boards of Education, through E. D. Turner of Belleville, protested today before a legislative committee against haste in action on pending bills to revise the State's educational system. It was specifically asked that the principal bill, Senate 76, be held up until its provisions could be studied along with the report of the committee that has been making a survey of the school situation.

Senator Albert R. McAllister, chairman of the committee having the bills in charge, assured Mr. Turner that there was no intention to rush action and promised to consider the request for a further hearing. Opposition was directed not so much to the main bill as a whole as to certain of its provisions. Many minor changes were suggested.

Many Groups Represented.

Organizations represented at the hearing included the New Jersey State Teachers' Association of Trenton, for which Dr. William J. Bickett was spokesman; the New Jersey Federation of District School Boards, the State Council of Education, the New Jersey League of Women Voters, local school boards and organized labor.

Senator N. P. Pierson, chairman of the Educational Survey Commission, said the bill embodied "the essence of what was believed best for the school system." He pointed out that there had been no revision of the school laws in twenty years, during which conditions had changed.

Charles A. Hise, vice chairman of the commission, said he thought criticism of the measure was due to misunderstanding and called upon the educators present to subordinate local problems to the broad questions involved. One of the chief purposes, he asserted, was to provide a better distribution of State school moneys.

Not one bit of power or privilege was to be taken from the local districts, he continued, but he pointed out that there must be a centralization of control if the best results were to be achieved. In justification of the reorganization of the State Board, he said the present body of eleven members was too large for the most efficient and effective work.

Regarding a tax for higher education, proposed in another bill, Mr. Hise, who is a member of the State Board of Regents, said a levy of one-third of a mill was not planned at this time. The bill, he pointed out, provides for a levy of "not more than one-third of a mill."

The chief bill was then considered section by section, the first item being the matter of submitting district school budgets to the voters.

An objection came from Horace Snebily of Westfield, who spoke for the Federation of District Boards, saying the voters should be required either to accept or reject a proposed budget and should not be allowed to alter it. He also thought the county superintendent should not be limited to the amount of the preceding year's budget in certifying to the Tax Board a request for school funds in cases where budgets were voted down.

Result of Two-Year Study.

The main measure, which embodies many of the suggestions of a committee which spent two years in a study of the educational program, would create a commission on public education to replace the present State Board of Education. The new body would consist of seven members, named by the Governor with Senate consent.

The State Education Commissioner would be the chief executive officer of the board and would be empowered, as now, to name at least five assistant commissioners at $8,000 a year. At present the assistant commissioners receive $7,000. Four types of school districts would be created, the first three being districts embracing a single municipality and classed by population, the fourth would comprise districts containing two or more municipalities.

Distribution of school moneys would be revised, but the sources of school moneys would continue to be the State school tax, income from the school fund, main stem railroad tax receipts and surplus revenue.

As now, 90 per cent of the school tax would be returned to the counties on a basis of ratables and the income from the school funds distributed according to attendance.

Each district Board of Education would be required to maintain a system of health supervision and boards in a district having an enrolment of 2,500 pupils or more would be empowered to appoint a superintendent for a term not to exceed five years.

Pupils could be excused, under the provisions of the proposed act, for two hours each week to attend outside classes for religious instruction offered by churches or church organizations.

The State Board of Examiners would be abolished, as would such bodies in the various counties.

WRITES OF "BIG BERTHAS."

Volume by American Tells About Germany's 75-Mile Guns.

The complete story of the "Big Berthas," the 75-mile guns that threw shells into Paris during the 1918 offensive, has been told for the first time in a book published last week by Jonathan Cape and Harrison Smith. The volume goes into details concerning the manufacture and use of the big guns by the Germans and is said to contain information new to the public.

The author is Colonel Henry W. Miller, who during 1918 and 1919 was chief engineer and chief of the technical service on all heavy artillery of the American Expeditionary Forces. His book, entitled "The Paris Gun," is the result of his investigations of the guns in France and Germany at the authorization of the government. A review of it appears in today's Book Review section of THE TIMES.

DENY MACHINE AGE STIFLES CULTURE

Four Speakers Assert It Gives Leisure and Means for Real Development.

ONE SEES SPIRITUAL LOSS

T. C. Desmond, at Republican Club Luncheon, Questions Gains in "Terrible Whirl."

The machine and the machine age were praised yesterday by all the speakers save one at the last of this season's non-partisan discussion luncheon at the National Republican Club, 54 West Fortieth Street. The subject was "Is the machine killing the spirit and culture of civilization?" Those who asserted that it was doing quite the reverse were Dr. Harvey Nathaniel Davis, president of Stevens Institute of Technology; Dr. Howard McClenahan, secretary of the Franklin Institute, Philadelphia; Ralph Thomas Walker, architect, and Magnus W. Alexander, president of the National Industrial Conference Board.

The opposite view was presented by the presiding officer, Thomas C. Desmond, an engineering contractor. While the machine age gives leisure for cultural and spiritual development, he said, it is doubtful whether it is doing more than making such developoment possible. He said that he preferred the ancient masterpieces of art, architecture and music.

"Men in certain lines of work now have a five-day week," he said. "The question is, what are they doing with their time? We see them in their cars on week-ends, speeding into the country. Do they stop in the day time to go out into the fields to study geology or botany? Do they stop at night to gaze at the galaxies of the stars? Is the machine age shoving us further into a terrible whirl, whirl, whirl or giving us the spiritual values for which we long?"

The growth of the machine must precede, not follow, the growth of civilization among the masses, said Dr. Davis, who stressed the value to the spirit of science, "not to precipitate the environment but to understand it, not to look backward for guidance but to face a situation, come to a conclusion and steadfastly carry it out."

This spirit of science, Dr. Davis said, will carry over into sociology, philosophy, religion and even politics.

On the cultural side, he asserted, the scientific spirit is bringing into life "an appreciation of the beauty of the here and now."

Dr. McClenahan said that while productions in the arts were not up to the standards of the past, appreciation of art never was greater. He stressed the improvement in the conditions of labor, the higher standards of health and the spread of philanthropy. Referring to the charge that quantity production deadens the thinking of those engaged in it, he said:

"My experience in universities and educational work leads me to fear that the average man finds thought painful. Perhaps the men taking part in quantity production, without doing much thinking, are happiest."

That the machine takes away individuality was denied by Mr. Walker, who said that there is more individuality under the machine than in the time of the hand craftsman when the apprentice religiously followed the pattern set by the master. The selectivity of the radio and the motion picture, he said, actually helps toward a cultural individualism that is far greater than any the world has known in the past.

Venue Change for Brady Denied.

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 15 (AP).—Judge J. D. Moore today refused to enter a change of venue in the case of John W. Brady, former civil Appeals Court judge, charged with murder of Miss Lehlia Highsmith, stenographer. He said he had decided to retain venue here. A recent trial ended when the jury disagreed. Transfer of the case to another county was requested by the prosecution.

DISPUTE JAMS TRAFFIC NEAR WHITE HOUSE

Mississippi Representative and McCarl's Negro Chauffeur in Row on Right of Way.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Traffic was congested in front of the White House today when Representative Jeff Busby of Mississippi, driving his own automobile, and a negro chauffeur for Controller General McCarl engaged in a dispute over the right of way. Finally a policeman ordered both drivers to leave the scene.

The controversy began when the limousine driven by the chauffeur, in which he was alone, and Mr. Busby's car came within inches of a collision. Both cars stopped abruptly, with the Mississippian's front bumper almost touching the right front fender of the McCarl machine.

Mr. Busby accused the chauffeur of cutting in front of him on the wrong side of the intersection of Pennsylvania and West Executive Avenue.

The chauffeur would not move, nor would he give his name. He told Mr. Busby, "You'll know me when you see me again."

Some members of the crowd urged Mr. Busby to use forcible measures. Others demanded that the traffic officer arrest the chauffeur. The dispute ended when the driver would not give Mr. Busby his name, and the Mississippian said he would look up the matter later.

Fight Marriage License Fee Rise.

BOSTON, Feb. 15 (AP).—The Massachusetts City Clerks' Association, meeting at the State House, went on record today in opposition to an increase in the marriage license fee from $1 to $3. The increase was recently recommended by a State commission. The clerks felt romance should be encouraged, and if an increase was necessary a $2 fee would be sufficient, and so recommended.

FULLER DENOUNCES STATE PARTY CHIEFS

Assailing Pre-Primary Convention Idea, He Calls Massachusetts Leaders 'a Corrupt Outfit.'

BOSTON, Feb. 15 (AP).—Former Governor Alvan T. Fuller today revealed his opposition to any pre-primary meeting of Massachusetts Republican leaders to select a candidate for the United States Senate in the election in November. He set forth his views in a telegram from Florida to Harry P. Gifford of the Essex Club.

Mr. Fuller also severely criticized the Republican State Committee, saying that "if its expenditures and activities in the past were investigated," it "would be proven to be, in my opinion, a corrupt outfit and should be fired bag and baggage and the premises fumigated."

"The Republican big wigs would not dare sponsor legislation substituting a convention before the primary," he said, "yet they would circumvent the primary if they could. Like the cast in the adage, they let 'I dare not' wait upon 'I would.'

"If the Republican politicians hold convention or play favorites before the primaries or nominate a candidate who believes in special privilege or one who would vote for Vare or defend Bingham, then the Republican machine will merit as stinging a rebuke as they received in the Springfield Congressional election.

"The old gang that controls the Republican party are determined to rule or ruin. I believe if they keep on the way they are going they will deserve to lose the election in November."

William M. Butler, former Senator and chairman of the Republican National Committee during the second Coolidge Administration, yesterday announced his candidacy for the nomination. The only other announced candidate is Eben S. Draper, former State Senator of Hopedale.

AVEDON
FIFTH AVENUE at 40th ST.

You don't have to wait until Spring to wear these new Spring coats

98.75

When you see these bright colored coats, with the new fitted waistlines and the off-the-shoulder collars of badger you will want to wear one right away—and you can, because the new cashmere suede is heavy and the coats are interlined.

Final Clearance!
WINTER COATS
$50 were to $98.75
$68 were to $110

AVEDON
FIFTH AVENUE AT 40th STREET

Agnès has her own ideas about polka dots

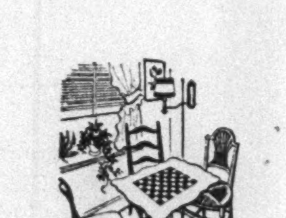
—so she stitches them on the crown of a shiny, new Panamalac straw with white thread. Alphonsine tucks her new sisol straws like a frock. Valois has discovered a new tweed-ish straw for a little cloche. Avedon copies are faithful but never expensive, as more and more of the young world is finding out!

sketched above, 25.00

ABRAHAM & STRAUS
FULTON ST. at HOYT
BROOKLYN

NOW THE "famous forty" ARE ENTERTAINING AT HOME

THEY'RE followed all over the globe—this "Famous Forty"—trailed, to see what they're wearing at Cannes, what they're doing at Cadiz. ● Theirs is that ultimate know-how that sets fashions. ● The yeast of international social registers. ● So when they take up their homes with a livelier interest than they have for years, there's fashion significance and a bid for more gracious living. ● One hears debs and young matrons talking about clothes "to wear to houses" . . . things with a bit more elegance than one would choose for a restaurant. ● And the house itself becomes important. ● The game room with its permanent card tables and its ping pong is as essential as the pantry. ● Powder rooms . . . with a certain quaint Victorianism . . . preen the romantic poufs of modern ladies. ● Dining rooms are fashionable again. ● And everyone is going in for originality in table decorations. ● Yes, it's fashionable to entertain at home again. ● And at A&S a lovely home need not mean a fat purse, for A&S every day is having more and more really fine things copied at popular prices . . . document prints in our 69¢ chintzes; the lines of a $498 English club sofa copied in a chair at 98.50. ● Dozens of other instances prove again that You CAN Afford the Right Style at A&S. ●



Apartment dwellers are converting the foyers into game rooms.

Closets — even small ones! — can be made into delightful powder rooms, with a little imagination.

Sheer linens and sheer glassware for tables have the same feeling for delicacy as the new evening gowns.

Permanent card table of mahogany	$31.50
Sheer linen luncheon set in color	19.75
English dinner service in Gainsborough pattern, 97 pieces	65.00
Sheer goblets in the new popav color . . . . doz.	14.00
Ping pong tables, apartment size	30.00
Games of backgammon, bridge keno, anagrams, etc.	50c to $35
New chintzes that copy museum documents . . . yd.	.69
English short sofa or love seat	495.00
French Sevres table lamp	65.00
Queen Anne dining room furniture, 10 pieces . . .	195.00
Lounging chair, deeply cushioned	49.50

You CAN afford the RIGHT STYLE at Abraham & Straus

ABRAHAM & STRAUS
FULTON ST. at HOYT
BROOKLYN

The Classic

POLO COAT

Styled by A&S

$29.75

The lowest price at which we've seen this kind of camel's hair

100% camel's hair — and as soft, silky, and caressing as the best!

We bought six polo coats from six leading makers. We tried each one on various people. Then we tried on the A&S coat. The one which had the best lines, which was most generally becoming, which had the air, the "something" that stamps the really smart coat was chosen. And that's the A&S Polo Coat —styled by A&S—made up in the high quality generally associated with high price. The A&S coat. . . .

—at least 4 inches wider than most polo coats.
—hand-tailored, with hand-finished buttonholes.
—swagger belt at the higher waistline.
—the correct, "long-limbed" sports length.
—clean cut, youthful, notched lapels.
—four smart bone buttons placed exactly right.
—silk-lined throughout and interlined.

Mail and Telephone Orders accepted from all parts of the country . . . Sizes 14 to 20 for misses and 36 to 44 for women.

A&S COAT DEPARTMENT—THIRD, CENTRAL

BEGIN OUSTER MOVE AGAINST J. L. LEWIS

Illinois Labor Federation Head Issues Call for Miners' Convention March 10.

LAYS UNION EBB TO LEWIS

Four States Represented in the Committee Which Will Seek to Adopt New Constitution.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 15.—Charging that John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, is responsible for the greatly diminished membership and loss of power, a call has been issued at Chicago for "an international convention" to be held in Springfield March 10.

The call is being sent out by a committee composed of John H. Walker, president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor; Alexander Howett of Kansas, John Brophy of Pennsylvania and two Ohio State officials. The avowed purpose of the meeting is to oust Lewis and adopt a new constitution.

The committee report charges that Lewis, who is now engaged in a legal battle to remove Harry Fishwick from the presidency of the Illinois union, is responsible for many mishaps to the union in recent years.

In the Illinois contest Lewis lost his first legal move when the Circuit Court refused to dissolve an injunction restraining him from interfering with the Fishwick organization.

All local unions of the State are invited to send delegates to the reorganization meeting. Credentials are to be sent to Walter Nesbit, secretary of the Illinois miners.

Defeats Are Cited.

The committee report, in part, says:

"The history of the United Mine Workers of America under the régime of John L. Lewis has been an unbroken series of defeats. The régime has thrown hundreds of thousands of our members and their families into the depths of poverty and destitution. Hand in hand with the numerical and financial disintegration of our union has gone the loss of its morale and the degradation of its institutions.

Election stealing, convention packing and slugging of delegates have reduced the old-time democracy of the union to a ghastly farce."

Loss in membership in various States was cited in the report.

It was explained by the committee that the reorganization was made necessary by the fact that the international union constitution expired March 31, 1929, with no steps taken to renew its validity or adopt a new one. President Lewis was not in Springfield when word of the call came.

Traced to Feud With Farrell.

The decision to form another bituminous miners' union was taken by the Illinois District of the United Mine Workers on the ground that, owing to the failure of the international union to call a convention at the time stated in the constitution, the organization itself could no longer function as an international union.

The convention scheduled for March 10 is expected to mark the intensification of the warfare between the international union officers and the Illinois District officials. The trouble broke out last Fall when Lewis revoked the charter of the district and demanded that Fishwick turn over all district properties to the parent body.

Fishwick refused and obtained an injunction restraining Lewis from proceeding to oust the officers of the district whom Lewis had charged with insubordination and illegal use of funds.

Back of the feud between Lewis and Fishwick is an old quarrel between Lewis and Frank Farrington, former president of the Illinois District. About four years ago Farrington gave up his union post for a $25,000 a year job with the Peabody coal interests.

Farrington was ousted from the union after Lewis had made public provisions of the contract shortly after Farrington had sailed for Europe. Lewis has charged Farrington with being the backbone of the opposition of Fishwick.

St. Paul-Winnipeg Air Line Starts.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 15 (Canadian Press).—Airplane service for passengers between St. Paul, Minn., and Winnipeg was started today with the arrival of the first plane from Winnipeg. The passenger service will be operated over the week-ends only.

SENATE BACKS HUNT FOR PULP IN ALASKA

McKellar Resolution for Survey of Possibilities for Newsprint Supply There Is Adopted.

NEW RAILWAY VISIONED

Line, Together With Water Routes, Would Tap Forests for American Publishers.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP).—Action looking toward insuring an ample supply of newsprint paper for American newspapers was taken today by the Senate in adopting a resolution by Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, requesting the Secretaries of Interior and Commerce to furnish all available information concerning the supply of wood pulp in Alaska.

The resolution was adopted without debate and without a roll-call when Mr. McKellar called it up for consideration. He had told the Senate in presenting the measure yesterday that it was "essential from the standpoint of public interest" that American newspapers have a plentiful supply of newsprint and that he had been informed Canadian newsprint manufacturers had entered into a combination to fix prices of the commodity.

The Tennesseean said it was believed that wood adapted to the manufacture of newsprint paper could be found in Alaska and that it should be utilized by the United States.

"If it can be found," he asserted, "we should have the advantage of it."

By means of water routes and a railroad built in Alaska by the government, Mr. McKellar said, the product could be delivered in this country at a reasonable transportation cost.

A NEW SPRING COAT NOW

DOES A GREAT DEAL FOR THE MORALE

Just at this time . . . when we are in between the seasons . . . we can think of nothing better to lighten depressed spirits than one of these new Spring coats . . . You needn't wait for Spring to wear it . . . for each one has a lightweight interlining to make it warm enough for current use . . .

65.00

(1) Broadcloth coat . . . with gently flaring skirt and adjustable tie-belt . . . collar of either blue fox, squirrel, fitch or jap weasel . . . Pirate blue, tan and black . . . sizes 34 to 46. 65.00

(2) Copy of a Patou model . . . with graceful cape and flared skirt dipping slightly at back . . . Of Telga in Pirate blue, tan and black . . . sizes 34 to 42. 65.00

Women's Coats . . . Fourth Floor

SAKS-34 STREET
AT BROADWAY

the new velvetta
DOESUEDE GLOVES

3.95

By the French makers of the famous Velvetta gloves (guaranteed washable), Exclusive with Saks-34 Street

In all the smart shades or white . . . Simple slip-on Biarritz model.

SAKS-34 STREET
AT BROADWAY

THE SUIT BLOUSE

5.95

The newest, smartest type of blouse this season . . . It is of handkerchief linen . . . hand-made throughout . . . A versatile blouse, one which is equally at ease with the tweed suit . . . the tailored suit . . . and the dressy suit.

With or without sleeves . . . in solid pastels . . . or white trimmed with fagotted bands of color . . .

Sizes 32 to 42

Blouses—seventh floor

SAKS-34 STREET
AT BROADWAY

Suits,,

THE MOST IMPORTANT FASHION FOR SPRING . . .

SAKS 34TH STREET FASHIONS

Ever since the first word came from Paris . . . and before the smart woman and young debutante proclaimed their popularity . . . we have been ready with our suits . . . Suits which, consistent with the mode, are entirely different from those of previous years . . . with all their new femininity . . . graciousness of line . . . and attention to minute details.

Illustrated are just five smart versions of our new suits for Spring.

Sizes 12 to 20—36 to 46

SUITS—FIFTH FLOOR

Peplum suit with a bloused back . . . after Patou . . . In a fine tweed mixture . . . the blouse of crepe de chine with a pleated frill . . . Sizes 12 to 20. 65.00

Suit after Augustabernard in the new Shanta fabric . . . the coat suggesting a bolero . . . In black, and blue . . . with frilled collar blouse of silk crepe in South Sea green . . . Sizes 12 to 20. 49.50

An interesting version of the cape suit . . . of twill . . . in navy and black with a dressmaker blouse of silk crepe in soft golden tan . . . Sizes 12 to 20. 69.50

Covert tailleur with coat nipped in at the waistline and satin bound . . . In brown, green, tan, navy and black . . . Sizes 12 to 20. 39.50

Suit of mixed tweed . . . with tailored three-quarter coat . . . silk crepe blouse blending with tweed colours . . . Sizes 36 to 46. 79.50

SAKS-34 STREET
AT BROADWAY

VETERAN FOUR WINS HIGH BRIDGE HONOR

Liggett - Reith - Sims - Wernher Team of Knickerbocker Club Takes Contest Title.

NET MARGIN IS 2,345

Decisive Scores Featured Their Progress Throughout Eastern Championship Tourney.

A veteran quartet, Winfield Liggett Jr., George Reith, P. H. Sims, and Sir Derrick Wernher, representing the Knickerbocker Whist Club, won the Eastern team-of-four contract bridge championship yesterday afternoon by their victory in the finals against Mrs. Sims, Mrs. Emory Clement, Oswald Jacoby and H. Boscowitz, also a Knickerbocker club team, played at the club.

Both pairs of the winning team made a plus score. Messrs. Reith and Liggett defeated Mrs. Sims and Mrs. Clement by 1,920 points for the forty-board match, and Mr. Sims and Sir Derrick, playing the same boards as Mrs. Sims and Mrs. Clement, won from Messrs. Jacoby and Boscowitz by a net of 425. The net margin of victory for the team was 2,345 points.

The match was the final event in the Eastern meet, and brought victory to the Knickerbocker Club in two of the three major events. The third, the contract pair championship, was won by Geoffrey Mott-Smith and Richard Frey of the Embassy Bridge Studios in the final play of that event, which began at 9 o'clock Friday night and was not concluded until nearly two yesterday morning.

The Mott-Smith Frey victory was briefly reported in late editions of yesterday morning's NEW YORK TIMES.

Decisive Scores Featured Play.

Three of the members of the Knickerbocker Club's victorious contract team-of-four were also members of the auction team-of-four which won the other major event for the club on Friday morning. The auction team was headed by Sidney Lenz, the other members being Messrs. Liggett, Reith and Sims. Both teams, although they were not officially designated as such, were generally regarded as the senior, or A, teams of the Knickerbocker, and their victories were not unexpected.

Messrs. Mott-Smith and Frey, on the other hand, are distinctly younger players in point of actual years of experience. Nevertheless they were regarded as favorites by many followers of the ranking bridge experts, and their victory was popular, judging by the behavior of the crowd which waited throughout the long period of play and showered congratulations on the winners when it was over.

Both the winning contract team-of-four and the winning contract pair gave consistent evidence of their superiority in every session of play in their respective events. The Liggett-Reith-Sims-Wernher combination eliminated its opponents by the most decisive scores registered in every match from the first round.

Mott-Smith a Youthful Champion.

Messrs. Mott-Smith and Frey were the high scorers in their section on the first two days of play, and their margin of five and one-half match points in the last session was the biggest margin scored in the entire contest.

Mr. Mott-Smith is one of the youngest players to have attained top rank, being 27 years old and having played "serious bridge" for six years. Ten years ago he had never played at all, and it was over his violent protest that he was drafted to make up the fourth in a family game which had been broken up by the departure of his older brother to college. At that time it was his ambition to become a magician, and he felt that bridge was a bore and a waste of time.

Four years later he began work for a bridge magazine, and from that he became secretary and literary assistant to Wilbur C. Whitehead. He has published two books on bridge. Mr. Frey was one of his pupils.

KENTUCKY REPUBLICAN WINS SEAT IN HOUSE

Charles Finley Elected by Big Margin to Place Vacated by Robsion.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 15 (AP).—Charles Finley of Williamsburg, long a Republican leader in the Eleventh Kentucky District, was elected to Congress in today's special election on the face of returns from approximately half of the precincts with all counties heard from.

Mr. Finley had 8,648 votes to 3,443 for Nat B. Sewell of London, his Democratic opponent, on returns from 250 of the 533 precincts in the district. The election was called to fill the place in the House of Representatives recently vacated by John M. Robsion, who was recently appointed to the Senate.

The vote was unusually light, due to snow and cold weather and the general feeling that the district would go Republican as usual. The election was quiet.

Mr. Finley led in every county except in Laurel, Mr. Sewell's home county, where the Democrat had 582 to 567 for Mr. Finley on reports from 16 out of 32 precincts.

MRS. LODGE WINS DIVORCE.

Wife of Nephew of Late Senator Also Gets Custody of Child.

A decree of divorce in favor of Mrs. Helen Hoffer Lodge, daughter of Colonel Jay E. Hoffer, U. S. A., retired, of 21 East Eighty-seventh Street, from Henry G. Lodge, former Lieutenant of Engineers in the army and nephew of the late United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday. The decree was signed by Justice Levy on the report of Official Referee Joseph E. Newburger. It awards Mrs. Lodge $2,000 a year alimony from her husband's earnings of $6,000 and custody of their daughter, Polly, 8 years old.

Mrs. Lodge, who married the defendant at St. Thomas's Church on June 30, 1920, based her suit on a Labor Day trip her husband took to Atlantic City in 1927.

HOUSE PASSES SUPPLY BILL.

Measure Carrying Half a Billion for Veterans Goes to Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP).—Carrying more than half a billion dollars for World War veteran activities, the annual supply bill for twenty-eight independent government offices and agencies was passed today by the House and sent to the Senate.

The measure also carries $1,900,000 for the Federal Farm Board. The original allotment in the bill for the Federal Trade Commission was increased by $143,000, bringing the total to $1,530,460, to permit an increase in the work of investigating anti-trust violations.

SIFT STORY OF TEACHER BAN

State Officials Act on Report That Monroe, N. Y., Barred Catholic.

Following a request by the Civil Liberties Union, the State Commissioner of Education has started an investigation into a report that a teacher had been refused a post in the Monroe, N. Y., public schools because she was a Catholic, the union announced yesterday.

The union's statement said that a newspaper report to the effect that Anna Mulholland, the teacher, had been told to report to school if she were a Protestant but not if she were a Catholic was the occasion for the demand for an inquiry.

HOSPITAL SHAKE-UP WINS NEGRO PRAISE

Group Calls Harlem Staff Inefficient and Commends Doctors of Their Race.

DISCLAIM RACIAL BIAS

Experienced Surgeons Dropped by Commissioner Greeff Get No Explanation.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People hailed the recent reorganization of Harlem Hospital by Hospital Commissioner Greeff as a praiseworthy recognition of the competence of negro physicians yesterday through its secretary, Walter White, while the twenty-five physicians dismissed continued their efforts to obtain a further explanation of the shake-up.

"The association is very happy to see negro physicians recognized in the reorganization of the medical board," Mr. White said, "not because they are negroes but because they are competent doctors. We would not approve the placing of negroes on the staff merely because of their race but we are glad that the city recognizes their ability. Our understanding of the situation was that the old staff was inefficient and that former Hospital Commissioner Schroeder planned to raise the status of the hospital by a complete reorganization. We feel that that plan has been successfully carried out by Commissioner Greeff."

Dr. Louis Friedman and Dr. Henry S. Pascal, two of the more experienced surgeons who were dropped, received yesterday no explanation of their dismissal from Commissioner Greeff or Dr. George David Stewart, chairman of the reorganization committee. While Dr. Friedman and Dr. Pascal are determined to carry their cases to the limit, they had not decided yesterday to bring them before either the New York County Medical Society or the Academy of Medicine.

Criticising as "ridiculous" the statement of Dr. H. J. Rubenstein that he had recommended most of the changes, Dr. Friedman said that he had never known Dr. Rubenstein in his twenty-one years at Harlem Hospital.

"Dr. Rubenstein was an interne at Harlem for the Littaur Pneumonia Research Fund, I found through inquiry today," Dr. Friedman said. "He was never a member of the surgical staff there and did not serve on Dr. Stewart's committee. He is in no position to make such a statement."

Dr. Godfrey Nurse of 185 West 135th Street, a negro surgeon, who said he was dismissed from Harlem Hospital without explanation a year ago by Dr. John F. Connors, added his protest against the shake-up. He said the ability of Dr. Connors to direct Harlem Hospital was "highly questionable" and declared that he had "publicily expressed opposition to having colored physicians on the staff." He also said that Dr. Connors, the surgical director, was influential with the administration and negro politicians who "did not represent the best interests of their race." In his own case he said the promise of an investigation and explanation of his dismissal was not kept by Mayor Walker.

SEES WORLD PEACE IN INDEPENDENT INDIA

Speaker at Foreign Policy Luncheon Says Hindus May Resort to Methods of 1776.

An independent India will assure international peace and universal disarmament, Sailendranath Ghose, president of the American Branch of the Indian National Congress, declared in an address yesterday at the luncheon discussion of the Foreign Policy Association at the Hotel Astor. The address was broadcast over the National Broadcasting Company chain.

"Subjected India is the exciting cause of international fivalries, international jealousies and the lust of conquest in the materialistic nations of the world," said Mr. Ghose. "The possession by the sword of India by Great Britain has aroused similar desires for colonial possessions by other powers, who imitate Britain's tactics to maintain such possessions by their army and navy.

"It is because of India that England maintains the biggest navy, and it is because of India that America will have to build up to British demands to maintain American naval parity with England. It is because of India that Japan, France and Italy may have to build up their navies to match British challenge.

"Navalism, militarism, commercialism and imperialism thrive on the subjection of one people by another, and they must be banished from this earth so that the nations of the world can honestly begin to think of renouncing war as an instrument of national policy. India's independence will be the only cause of world peace and universal disarmament.

"India has declared that she must be free. She has decided to throw off the yoke of foreign rule and alien oppression. She will again take her place in the family of free nations of the world.

"If the desire of the Indian people for the precious, inherent right of liberty is met with ugly, unyielding military resistance, England, which has been the cause of more wars than any other nation in world history, must again resume responsibility for the misery and suffering which will ultimately result.

"We shall obtain our liberty by peaceful means if possible. If not, we shall resort to the means employed by the American people in 1776."

Edward Thompson, lecturer in Bengali at Oxford, and guest professor in English at Vassar, declared that the choice before India is not a choice between freedom and slavery.

"It is," he said, "a choice between becoming a weaker Mexico or a more ridiculous China, or becoming a self-respecting country."

Professor Thompson deplored the presentation of the situation in India so that it encouraged the American people to think that they were now seeing the scenes of their own revolution re-enacted before their eyes.

HUGE POWER PLANT 100 FEET UNDER CITY

Continued from Page 1, Column 7.

of street traffic, and without injuring a workman or damaging any apparatus.

The substation was forced into its unique site by the ever-rising midtown real estate values. The economic necessity for some change in the location of the old plant was foreseen some years ago, and a careful study of comparative costs in 1923 showed that it would be cheaper to move at least part of the power house equipment underground than to maintained it on the surface. In all the early plans, however, it was presupposed that the major power apparatus would remain at Fiftieth Street.

But early last year the company agreed to lease to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Corporation the entire Fiftieth Street block. It was then necessary to revise, on the basis of removing all apparatus from Fiftieth Street, the plans previously made.

Vault Carved in Rock.

As a part of the company's program for general expansion the great stone vault where the plant is now housed had already been carved out beneath the Graybar Building. Stretching down through four deep levels bounded by living rock walls, the excavation was 250 feet long and 60 feet wide. Engineers, estimates showed that it would be possible to install the entire substation within it.

The time limit set by the signing of the lease seemed to engineers appallingly near when the work of transfer started. It was an undertaking which, under normal conditions, would demand at least six months for planning and a year for execution.

But the dates were immovably set. The old boiler plant house and standby battery building in Fiftieth Street was dated for clearance on Nov. 1, 1929; the traction substation and lighting substation by Jan. 1, 1930. Meanwhile, of course, the service had to be maintained.

The lease was signed on March 4 and emergency work started at once. A practical merging of the electrical engineering and drafting forces of the company with those of the terminal engineer, the General Electric, and the Thompson-Starrett Companies, was effected. F. B. Freeman, chief engineer for the New York Central's Buffalo and East division, was placed in full charge.

Every possible short-cut was adopted. No drawings other than rough, preliminary sketches had been made, and there was no time to remedy this before the work began. The details of the general plan were thoroughly familiar to the engineering chiefs, and the field work started with verbal directions replacing blueprints. The drawings were completed as work progressed.

Despite these trying conditions no change in any major plan was necessary during the course of installation.

Apparatus Weighs 850 Tons.

The total weight of the apparatus in the new substation is more than 850 tons. Some of this is new, but much of it was brought down from Fiftieth Street. None of it could be placed except after a piece-by-piece lowering process down the fifty-foot drop from the unloading platform to the substation main floor. Three 4,000-killowatt armatures, each weighing twenty-nine tons, were thus lowered.

A second major problem confronting the engineers was the transfer from Fiftieth Street of an 8,000 ampere electric storage battery made up of 150 cells. Each cell weighed 4,550 pounds and was filled with sulphuric acid.

The usual procedure in moving such a battery is to remove the acid and the lead plates submerged in it and reassemble the cells at the new site. But this was an emergency job with time a factor of utmost importance. An unprecedented experiment was made. The top surface acid only was removed, wheels were placed under the tanks, and the entire battery was hauled underground from Fiftieth Street to Forty-third Street and installed.

This was effected without spilling a drop of acid and without damaging in any way the $250,000 battery.

The electric substation as it now stands consists of this battery, of five large General Electric rotary transformers which convert traction power totaling 17,000 kilowatts for trains, and of five other converters which provide 8,000 kilowatts for lighting and elevators.

Air Cleaned Before Use.

Air, thoroughly cleaned before use, is drawn down into the cellar from the street level. It is expelled after use through a chimney which reaches to the top of the Commodore Hotel.

The problem of shifting the electric feed was solved by the construction at Forty-ninth Street of a circuit breaker house with switchboards under distant control through twelve heavy cables from Forty-third Street. These cables carry the average current to the breaker house, where it is subdivided among the various third-rail feeders.

Added to all this there were seventy tons of bar copper to be made into busses, drilled, bent and insulated; 25,000 feet of conduits to be installed in the floors, and twenty miles more of steel conduits to be placed and supported in an elevated position throughout the terminal. In addition, several miles of high tension and control cables were installed. To map the whole project, both electrical and mechanical, 500 drawings were necessary.

Indict 3 in Alabama Bank Failure.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 15 (AP).—Sam C. King, former vice president of the Bank of Ensley and a former member o fthe State Banking Board, was indicted on three counts by a Jefferson County grand jury today in connection with the failure of the Ensley bank last month. Earl Fricks and W. H. Smith, former employes of the bank, also wereindicted.

"No fabric is smarter than Flat Crepe at Present"—VOGUE

Silk Flat Crepe

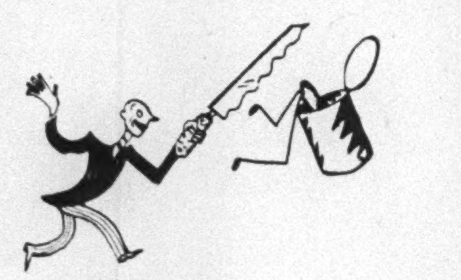
$1.44 YARD

At the low price that sold thousands of yards a few weeks ago. It is a "best seller" at the regular price, so that at $1.44 it is a real find. Inexpensive enough to make half-a-dozen lovely things for very little money—a sports dress and a bridge frock, blouse, slip, negligee and lounging pajamas. 39 in. wide. In 50 colors, including the new shade, Patou's Opaline Pink No. 1.

SILK DEPARTMENT
Second Floor, East Building

MACY'S
34th STREET AND BROADWAY

8 P. M. FRIDAY is the closing time for Business Opportunities for Sunday insertion in The New York Times. Advertisements received later are subject to omission.—Advt.



Macy's Pursues the Elusive Vitamin

Right into the Can!

The scene is an orchard in the heart of the California peach growing section; a tree laden with choice fruit holds the centre of the stage. The choice fruit remains on the tree till it is fully ripe (tree-ripened fruit has the greatest number of health-building vitamins). Then, when perfectly ripe, it is picked, processed, and popped into a Macy Lily White* Can the very same day, (before exposure to the air allows many vitamins to elude our eager grasp). And that is why, when you buy Lily White* peaches, or any other canned fruit at Macy's, you are getting a maximum of vitamin content, as well as natural delicacy and flavor.

Yellow Cling Peaches, Lily White* Brand, dozen extra large cans $5.14, each 44¢.

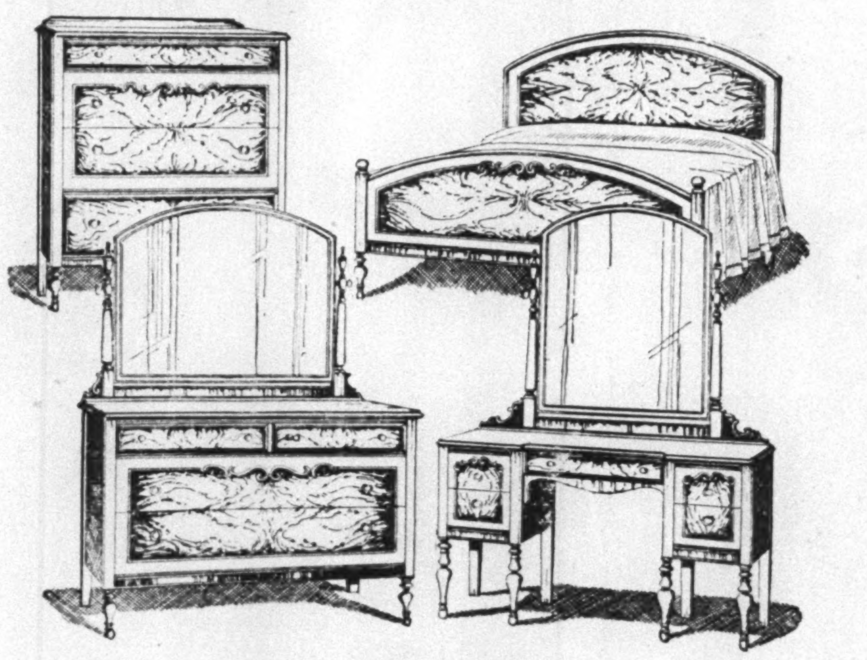
MACY'S GROCERIES
Fifth Floor, Middle Building

*Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

MIDWINTER SALE OF MACY FURNITURE

Just 100 of these 4-piece

Bedroom Suites



$139.00

"It's a lot of furniture for the money," was what one of our salesmen said about this suite. It's true—and it's good furniture, too. In its design, workmanship, and beautiful finish, this suite offers features for which you would be willing to pay more. Pieces are generously proportioned, dresser and vanity have large mirrors, and the handsome carvings and mouldings give the suite an air of distinction. All pieces priced separately; twin beds and smaller pieces to match.

It will pay you to remember that Macy's policy of endeavoring to undersell by 6% holds regardless of sale prices elsewhere.

SEVENTH FLOOR

MACY'S
34th STREET AND BROADWAY

[Other Macy News on Pages 11, 19, 22 and 25]

DOLLAR DOT Pajamas
ZIPPY ZIG-ZAG Pajamas
COWBOY CHAPS Pajamas

$17.74

All for luxurious lounging—all for this very low price, for the simple reason that Macy's can buy so many!

Moreover, we chose our own silks, and we chose our own styles, and if we must say so ourselves, the pajamas are adorable! The trousers are as full as pajama trousers well can be, the blouses are sleeveless and the coats fit nicely.

Third Floor, West Building

MACY'S
34th STREET AND BROADWAY

CALLS SKYSCRAPER AN 'INGENIOUS TOY'

But Alistair MacDonald, as an Architect, Tells New York to Build It No Higher.

"THE NEW BABYLON"

Not America, the British Premier's Son Says in Radio Address at Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Alistair G. MacDonald, eldest son of Premier MacDonald of Great Britain, who has been touring the United States, in a radio address over the Columbia Broadcasting System tonight described the New York skyscraper as "just a delightful and fascinating monument of folly."

Mr. MacDonald, an architect, explained his visit to this country by saying, "I felt that I must see what is going on in America."

"Whether I ever dare to go back to New York, where I am due in a day or two, depends on how you receive the remarks I am now going to make," he remarked.

Attacks New York and Skyscrapers.

"The difference between New York and the rest of America is great. I know that New Yorkers like to think that they are America, but I rather feel that America is a place all by itself. While in New York I thought that the skyscrapers and the other tall buildings were very fascinating and alluring.

"I shall never forget my first sight of the skyline. I involuntarily remarked, 'The new Babylon!' when I saw those proud buildings rearing their heads above the clouds. But I have now come to the conclusion, after traveling across the country and back, that a skyscraper may be a very ingenious toy and very amusing to work on and something to talk about when erected, but really what else is there in the building?

"It seems to me that it is just a delightful and fascinating monument of folly. These buildings collect great masses of people together in one spot and literally pile them one on top of each other in order to give somebody else the job of trying to regulate the traffic.

"I know that the argument is that land is so valuable that these buildings have to go up. My reply to this is that the land should not be allowed to become so valuable. You cannot overcome nature or natural surroundings or natural limitations.

"The situation reminds me of King Canute, who tried to regulate the waves as they came up to the beach. Even though I am a comparatively young man, I consider that there must be limits to all things. And when it comes to cutting out fresh air and quiet thought and natural life simply because of an inflated land value, it seems to me that my contention is upheld and that the building of many more skyscrapers (the present ones are all right) will defeat the whole object of high buildings."

Approves of Chicago's Buildings.

Mr. MacDonald said he liked the way Chicago was cooperating with nature in developing its buildings, was greatly impressed by the "grandeur" of the Far West, and denied that America was a new country. It has "just as wonderful a story to tell through the ages as any other country, but everybody seems to be so busy trying to make the country new that they are apt to forget about the forces of nature."

He termed Hollywood a "very important centre of industry."

Mr. MacDonald said that he found America, despite the similarity in language, a "foreign country," with different habits and different modes of living.

"It is therefore all the more necessary for the people of Great Britain and the people of America to try to understand each other," he said, "and it is better to do that by putting on one's hat and paying a personal call rather than by writing or even telephoning."

Hoover to Go to Alexandria, Va., For Washington Birthday Fete

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Herbert Hoover, thirtieth President of the United States, has accepted an invitation to attend a celebration in honor of George Washington, the first President, in Alexandria, Va., on Feb. 22. The George Washington Birthday Association will have charge of a parade to be reviewed by Mr. Hoover.

The association will soon extend an invitation through the newspapers and the radio, asking as many "true Americans as possible" to journey to Alexandria on that day.

John Garland Pollard, the new Governor of Virginia; Senator Fess, chairman of the George Washington Bi-centennial Commission, and other officials will be on the reviewing stand.

BOOK BORROWED 41 YEARS.

Relative of Preacher, Now Dead, Returns It With Apologies.

BURLINGTON, N. C., Feb. 15 (AP).—Back in June, 1889, the Rev. Rufus Pegg borrowed a book from Mr. and Mrs. William M. Cates of Gibsonville.

That was forty-one years ago.

Today C. H. Cates of Burlington, a son, got the book back.

It appears that the Rev. Mr. Pegg, a circuit rider, forgot the volume. At any rate, it reposed in his library for years and after his recent death a relative discovered the book had Mrs. Cates's name in it.

He sent the book back, expressing regrets it had been kept so long.

HOOVER, SUN-TANNED STARTS FOR CAPITAL

Continued from Page 1, Column 4.

strike, and the fish got away. He fished in a small boat with Jeremiah Milbank of New York, whose houseboat, the Saunterer, was used by Mr. and Mrs. Hoover and their party for quarters during their stay.

The entire party had returned by lunch time. Just before Mr. Hoover put in an appearance at the Saunterer, a gray blimp came out of the northeast, circled around the palatial houseboat a couple of times and dropped a message to Mrs. Hoover, who went up on deck to wave.

Invites Hoovers to Return.

She picked up the message just as President Hoover came aboard from his morning's fishing and they read it together. It was a note from Mayor C. H. Reeder of Miami, expressing the hope of his city and Southern Florida that the Presidential party had had a good time and inviting them to return soon for more fishing.

The party, including the President, spent most of the afternoon in preparing for the homeward journey. As they packed, the little fishing flotilla which gathered at Long Key for the President began to break up, each boat making back to its home waters. The fifty-foot fishing sloop Orca, which was sent from Palm Beach as the President's personal angling craft, raised anchor in mid-afternoon and headed for Miami. Captain Herman Gray and his crew of three were expecting a rather rough night out on the choppy sea, but anticipated reaching Miami some time tomorrow.

The other boats, including the Kilkenny, a navigation vessel which Mr. Hoover's secretary, Lawrence Richey, Mrs. Richey, Lieut. Commander Joel T. Boone, the President's personal physician, and two members of the White House secretarial staff have used for quarters; the Dixie, navigation boat used by the Secret Service operatives in standing guard near the Saunterer; the Taragon, navigation boat used for the same purpose and two Coast Guard patrol boats, will put back to their regular waters along the Atlantic and gulf ports.

Hoover Thanks Boats' Officers.

Soon after lunch President Hoover called officers of the little flotilla to the Saunterer and thanked each for contributing to the pleasure of his vacation. In the group were Commander A. L. Dryden and First Officer McCoy of the Kilkenny, Captain R. L. Packard and First Officer W. S. Hancock of the Taragon, Captain R. C. Drummond of the Dixie and Captain J. L. Truscott of the Coast Guard.

While President Hoover himself did not have as much luck with the wily sailfish as he had hoped for, his party as a whole is returning to Washington with a record of eight to its credit. The credit to the President is chiefly that he started it off by landing one of the game sailers thirty minutes after he reached the Gulf Stream Monday. Out of the eight another must be added to the record of the White House family, a thirty-eight pounder which Mrs. Hoover expertly landed after a twenty-five minute battle Thursday.

Others in the seven were the championship fish caught by Mrs. Stone, one by Justice Stone, and two each by Mark Sullivan, Washington writer, and Dr. Vernon Kellogg, Washington scientist, companions of Mr. Hoover on many a fishing trip.

The President relaxed late this afternoon after the packing had been completed and his baggage had been started on its way to the train. He and Mrs. Hoover and their party remained aboard the Saunterer for dinner and then proceeded to the train.

Railroad Veteran's Pension Too Late

GALESBURG, Ill., Feb. 15 (AP).—Approval of a pension for Edward N. Suydam, 67 years old, came in the mails today in recognition of forty years' service as a baggageman for the Burlington Railroad, but it crossed paths with death, which came one hour earlier. Mr. Suydam had retired in October.

ASKS AID FOR MOTHER OF FIRST WAR VICTIM

Bloom Offers Bill for Compensation for Death of Sailor on April 1, 1917.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The plight of the widowed mother of the first American sailor killed in the World War was revealed today in a bill for special relief introduced in the House by Representative Bloom.

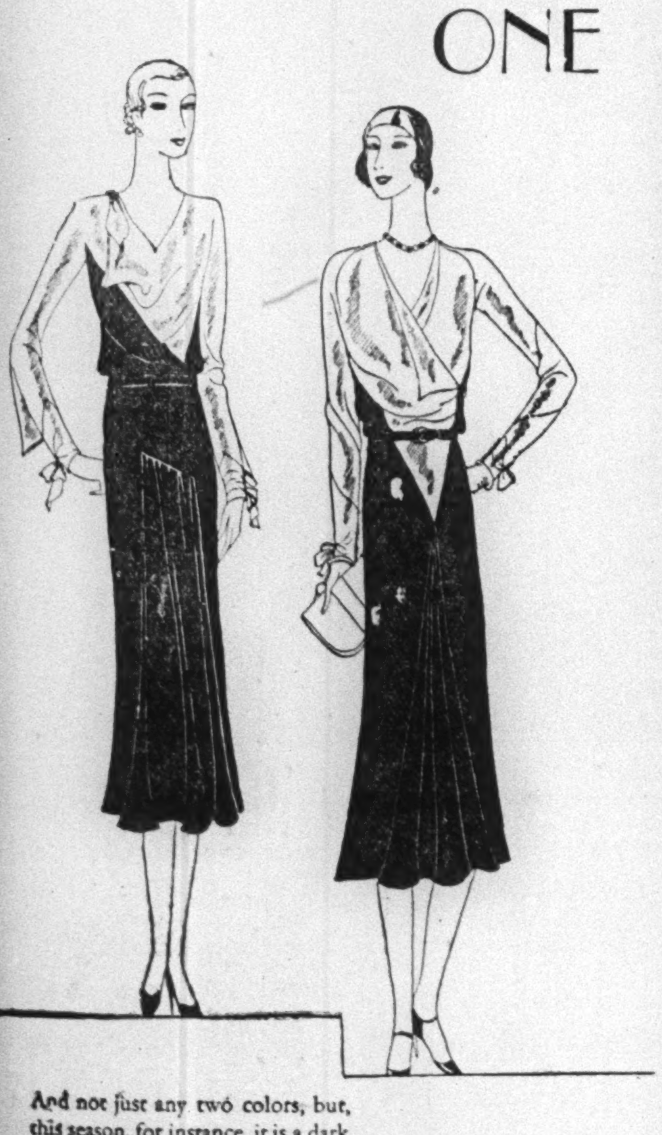
Joseph I. Eopolucci had been a sailor with a perfect record for ten years prior to the World War, and shortly before the United States declared war he was assigned to the merchantman Aztec.

The Aztec went down off the coast of France on April 1, 1917, a victim of a mine or torpedo, and while the remainder of the detachment escaped in another boat, Eopolucci was in one which disappeared without a trace.

As war risk insurance was effective only after April 6, 1917, the date of the declaration of war, Mrs. Annie M. Eopolucci of this city, Joseph's mother, could not make a claim. Her other son, William, was killed in the Argonne on Sept. 2, 1918.

Representative Bloom, who said she is destitute, asked that she be granted $5,000, the same grant that was made to families of victims of the Cyclops, a collier that disappeared without trace on March 4, 1918.

Sometimes TWO Colors are Smarter than ONE



And not just any two colors, but, this season, for instance, it is a dark color and a pastel that are chic together. Black and pink, black and light blue, navy and pink and navy and light blue in flat crepe show how subtle and charming these combinations can be. 12 to 20.

$48.75

THE BETTER DRESS SHOP
Third Floor, East Building

MACY'S
34th STREET & BROADWAY

[Other Macy News on Pages 11, 18, 22 and 25]

MACY'S
34TH STREET & BROADWAY

Exquisite imported tweed. The kind of thing one usually finds at a prohibitive price in an exclusive shop. But we aren't exclusive—and our prices aren't prohibitive. Note the smart padded shoulders.

The Suit . . $54.75
The Coat . . $84.75
The Hat . . $13.74

The TWEED of your Suit should go with

The TWEED of your Coat

and

Your HAT should go with both!

The suit which is new and nipped and natty is made of pin-check men's wear suiting. The tweed coat with its nipped in waist is also checked —but the checks are larger and softer. Thriftily priced!

The Suit . . $38.75
The Coat . . $38.75
The Hat . . $8.94

LITTLE SHOP
Third Floor, East Building

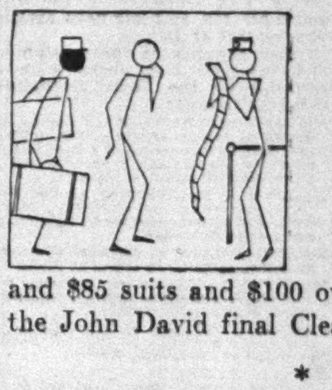
THE MILLINERY SHOP
Second Floor, East Building

ADVERTISEMENT.

Shopping for Men with Betty Bruce

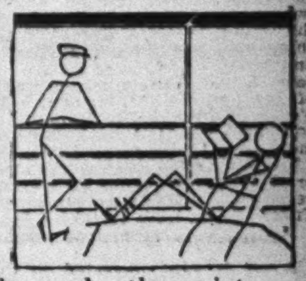
HAVANA BOUND!

What the well-dressed husband wears aboard ship and ashore



WHEN YOU LEAVE NEW YORK he should look his smartest. Your new clothes and the steamship tickets may cost a lot—but even so—there's no reason why that man of yours should look shabby when handsome $75 and $85 suits and $100 overcoats can be purchased at the John David final Clearance Sale for $57!

* * *



FOR LOUNGING ON DECK and participating in shuffle board and other ship's sports there's nothing nicer for a man than tweeds. John David Shops have medium weight, four-piece suits (coat, vest, trousers and knickers) of this material in tan, brown and gray heather mixtures ($55 to $115) and caps to wear with them ($3.50).

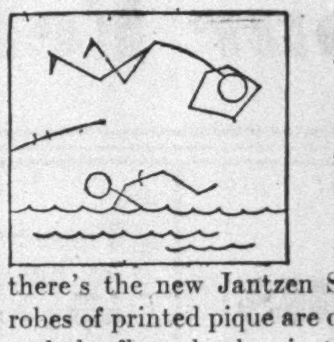
* * *

WHEN YOU GO ASHORE in a summery frock he ought to be attired in a cool, tan silk poplin suit ($55). An imported tie and handkerchief set of creamy tan and brown English foulard ($5) would look well with this suit and white buck shoes trimmed with brown leather worn with clocked lisle hose. John David Shops have imported socks of lisle with hand embroidered clocks of black, navy and corn color ($2.50).

* * *

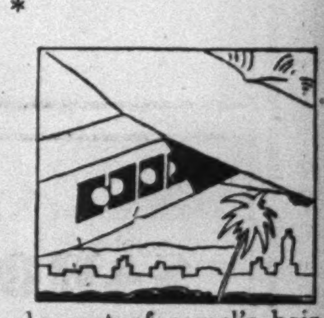
FOR PLAYING AROUND HAVANA he really ought to have several linen suits. The John David single-breasted ($25) and double-breasted ($35) models in white and colored linens are extremely smart. A sport jacket of blue or brown English gabardine ($45) to be worn with white, cream or striped flannel trousers ($20) should certainly be included; and a dinner jacket, of course, preferably the John David Nonchalant of black, extremely light weight, tropical worsted which may be worn without a waistcoat because it's double-breasted ($55).

* * *



FOR THE MORNING DIP at La Playa suggest the new Insignia Shirt ($12) in combinations of navy and copen or Havana brown and corn color, and flannel trunks to match ($5). For swimmers who prefer a one-piece suit there's the new Jantzen Speed Suit ($6). Terry lined robes of printed pique are colorful and practical ($16.50), and the flannel robes in the Guards' style are much in vogue ($25).

* * *



IF HE'S AIR MINDED you'll probably fly to Miami. A camel's hair coat is snug and warm for sky riding—nice to wear in Havana when evenings are chilly — and spruce for week-end and sports wear back home this Spring. A John David full polo coat of camel's hair ($100) is an all 'round practical topcoat.

* * *

Smart southern wear for men is displayed at the following John David Shops: Fifth Avenue at 43rd Street, Broadway at 32nd Street and New Street at Exchange Place.

* * *

It's pleasant and easy to say, "charge it" when you see something you like at a John David Shop. The Credit Manager, Broadway at 32nd Street, will tell you how to obtain this convenient service. Write to him, or call BOGardus 5100, for information.

JOINT BODY STUDIES CHICAGO'S FINANCES

Strawn Group Will Meet Officials Again When Latter Compile Data.

CITY SEEKS $27,150,000

Cook County Board Plans to Pay County Employes With Tax Notes Instead of Cash.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—A meeting today between three representatives of Mayor William Hale Thompson and a subcommittee of the Strawn citizens' rescue committee failed to reach an agreement whereby funds from the $20,000,000 taxpayers' pool would be made available through the Strawn group to meet payroll and other essential governmental expenses. The joint committee will sit again, however, when the city officials have available data asked for by the citizens' representatives.

The city officials and the Strawn group met under a plan sponsored by Lewis E. Myers, a member of the Board of Education. While they did not evolve a plan for replenishing the municipal treasury, which has long been without cash because of uncollected 1928 and 1929 taxes, hope for relief was created among the Thompson committeemen, City Controller Schmidt, Corporation Counsel Ettelson and John A. Richert of the City Council finance staff.

The citizens' committee was represented by Silas H. Strawn, Robert F. Carr and Ernest R. Graham.

The City Hall spokesmen apparently were prepared to defend the administration against any charge of waste, extravagance or stuffed payrolls, but the citizens' representatives are said to have refrained from any reference to municipal mismanagement.

But it was suggested to the city officials that it would be extremely difficult to raise $27,150,000 before a valid tax assessment has been determined upon. The obtaining of this sum by the sale of 1930 tax warrants was essential for public services, Controller Schmidt had said.

Two financing plans were considered, both involving getting the cooperation of the banks and large taxpayers of Chicago. The Strawn committee obtained the promise of aid from a number of large property owners, and it reported that others have since offered aid, if those in charge of the plan will see that waste is curbed and that legislation is enacted to prevent a recurrence of the present situation.

The banks want the tax levies of 1928, 1929 and 1930 and the corresponding tax anticipation warrants validated by the Legislature. According to the estimates of the Strawn committee, there will not be enough 1928 and 1929 taxes collected to pay off the warrants issued for the two years, plus the interest on them.

The Cook County board, meanwhile, decided it could not wait for money from the pool of the taxpayers, who are willing to buy city and county warrants and use them when the tax bills are sent out some time in June, provided specific promises are given as to how the money will be spent. In a special session it ordered tax anticipation warrants to the amount of $1,339,653 issued to county employes in lieu of cash, a move opposed by the banks as tending to depreciate the value of the warrants. The county employes have not been paid since Dec. 15.

BEIRUT VICE CONSUL BECOMES CAREER MAN

D. F. McGonigal of Troy Is Advanced in the Diplomatic Service—Other Changes Made.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Donal F. McGonigal of Troy, N. Y., non-career Vice Consul at Beirut, Syria, has been confirmed as an unclassified foreign service officer, vice consul of career, and secretary in the diplomatic service, and has been assigned vice consul at Beirut.

Other changes in the foreign service the past two weeks were announced by the State Department today as follows:

WILLARD GALBRAITH of Los Angeles, confirmed as foreign service officer, unclassified, and as vice consul of career and secretary in the diplomatic service, and assigned as vice consul at Panama.

WILLIAM J. McCAFFERTY of San Francisco, now consul at Chihuahua, Mexico, designated second secretary of legation, and assigned to Guatemala.

HUGH S. MILLER of Chicago, now consul at Milan, assigned as consul at Malta.

MAURICE C. PIERCE of Madison, Wis., now consul at Bergen, Norway, assigned as consul at Stuttgart, Germany.

FRANCIS H. STYLES of Fall Church, Va., now consul at Antwerp, Belgium, assigned as consul at Chihuahua, Mexico.

HAROLD R. BROWN of Roxbury, Mass., now vice consul at Georgetown, British Guiana, has resigned, effective March 15.

ERICH A. W. HOFFMAN of Milwaukee, now clerk in the consulate general at Budapest, appointed vice consul at that post.

The services of John Neil Murphy of Socorro, N. M., consular agent at Arequipa, Peru, are terminated, due to the closing of the agency.

SEES DIVORCE AS BIG ISSUE.

Chicago Speaker Says It Is More Discussed Than Prohibition.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15 (AP).—Divorce is the subject of more discussion in the United States than prohibition, the Rev. Dr. Charles Darsie of Indianapolis told an adult education group at the International Council of Religious Education today.

"More persons at the present time are falling out with the Christian conception of monogamous marriage, which means one husband and one wife united for lige, than over the question of strong drink," he said.

"In our big cities there is one divorce for every three marriages; in the country the divorce rate, while not yet so high, is steadily rising. One of our biggest problems today is how can we train Christians to face and handle the new theories that are rising over marriage.

"We talk about 'happy marriage' so much that many people marry simply to find happiness. Sometimes they don't, and—well, if they entered marriage simply in search of happiness and find unhappiness instead, about all they can do is get out of marriage."

He said the race was not put here solely to pursue its happiness, and that ther should be other determining factors in the contracting of marriage.

THREE FOUND GUILTY OF AUBURN MURDER

Continued from Page 1, Column 6.

of Auburn remember him as a bandit who held up a local jewelry store.

Force drew his life term for taking part in the prison riot of July 28, in which four men escaped after setting fire to the institution's workshops. He is 28 years old.

Lewis was the only lifer among the convicts who were acquitted. Twenty-nine years old, he offered a defense of insanity, but the jurors declared it was not that which saved him from the chair.

Cassidy is serving a ten-year sentence, and had he kept out of trouble would have been eligible for parole in 1936, when he would be 29.

The jurors had begun their deliberations yesterday after the court charged they must find each of the defendants guilty of murder in the first degree or nothing. Twenty-one hours and forty minutes had passed since they filed out of the court room, but of that time only about eight hours and a half were spent in actual consideration of the evidence.

Juror Announces Verdicts.

When the jury sent word that verdicts had been reached, the convicts, who were waiting in cells on the punishment gallery of the "big house" down the street, were summoned. The court room was filled, mostly with women. Maurice Udwin sat stiffly in the first row of spectators, breathing a prayer for his son. Then the prisoners came in, trying to stride nonchalantly and failing in the attempt.

Justice Cunningham emerged from his chambers and mounted to the bench slowly with his black robe billowing behind him. Through a door on the opposite side of the silent room came the jurors. One glance at their faces was enough to tell that some, at least, of that row of men in prison gray were going to be condemned to death. The defendants sensed what was coming and stiffened.

The roll was called. The jurors and the prisoners answered to their names with cracked and hollow voices. Thomas licked his lips. Somewhere a woman giggled and Leagan, who seems always on the verge of hysteria, hid a smile behind his free hand.

G. Walton Ockenfels, clerk of the court, turned and faced the jurors with the customary question: "Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon your verdict?"

Fred Whipple, an Auburn salesman, one of the three men in the box who is not a farmer, arose and reading from a paper, said:

"We find the defendants Thomas, Force and Udwin guilty."

"How do you find as to the other defendants?" the clerk asked.

"We find the defendants Leagan, Cassidy and Lewis not guilty, and we wish to say that the acquittal of Lewis was not based on insanity."

Convicts Try to Laugh It Off.

The defendants sat in a sullen row glaring at the jury. Thomas's gaunt face went as white as the snow on the court house lawn. His thin lips curled in a snarl. He mumbled curses under his breath.

It seemed as though Force's backbone gave way, for he sagged limply in his seat and for a moment looked as though he were going to cry.

Udwin, ever the "tough guy" playing to the gallery, rallied them all by his bravado, and in a moment all three were trying to laugh it off.

The jury was polled for each convicted defendant. Dully, with eyes cast downward, each of the jurors confirmed the elected foreman's report of their decision. Motions to set aside the verdict were made and lost.

Marie Leacan, whose brother escaped a death sentence by so narrow a margin, slipped into court and sat down beside Udwin's father.

"What is it?" she asked the old man.

He did not answer, did not hear her probably. He was staring straight across the court room at the judge. The girl was told her brother had escaped. She did not smile, but rested her hand upon the elder Udwin's coat sleeve.

Becker's Trial Starts Tomorrow.

On her other side sat Sam Becker, a Brooklyn youth, whose brother Max will go on trial in this same court room Monday to answer to the charge that he murdered George Durnford, principal keeper of the prison at the outset of the last fatal riot. He looked upon this verdict as a weather vane.

When the polling was over, the defendants held hasty conferences with their lawyers appointed by the court to defend them at $1,000 a head. Force and Thomas could be heard pleading in hoarse undertones to "get it over with." Udwin would have none of that. Justice Cunningham declared he would sentence all three men at the same time and put it off until next Wednesday when the Becker trial will be under way.

Then he directed that the six men be sent back to the penitentiary, the guilty ones to be turned over to the "Sheriff of Cayuga County upon presentation of a warrant of conviction and sentence."

Before the defendants left the room, the judge turned to the jury and said:

"Gentlemen, I want to thank you for the good judgment and consideration you have displayed in this case and I here and now excuse you from further service at this term of court."

Convicts Returned to Prison.

The prisoners were marched out of court and loaded into the van which has transported them to and from the prison, heavily guarded by State troopers. As Udwin passed the bench where his father sat he said out of a corner of his mouth:

"Everything is all right. Take it easy."

The father did not reply, but as soon as his son had gone he fell back in his seat. His head fell into his hands and he shook with sobs.

"Can you do anything? He's a good boy! It's a mistake," he gasped to Mr. Gleason, Udwin's attorney, who tried to comfort him.

Mr. Robinson walked across the court room to where District Attorney James J. Hosmer was standing. It was the newly elected prosecutor's first murder case.

"Let me congratulate you," said the defense attorney, extending his right hand.

"Please don't," said Mr. Hosmer, looking toward the seat where Udwin's father was crying.

Other Indictments Pending.

To newspaper men later Mr. Hosmer said the only statement he could make was that he had "merely carried out the duty imposed upon him by the law and by his office." He would not comment when he was asked if he would bring the acquitted men to trial on sealed indictments handed up by the grand jury which indicted them for murder.

It is generally understood about the court house that these indictments charge the prisoners with felonious assault for shooting three guards, Albert Holshauer, Claude Dempsey and Lucius Huguinin, in the December mutiny.

The nine farmers and three business men who composed the jury did not loiter long about the court house. They have been away from their homes for nearly three weeks, but before they left, William Nugent, who relinquished the post of foreman to Mr. Whipple, gave an inkling of how the jury reached its verdict.

He didn't recall how many ballots were taken, he said. There were "too many to remember." At one time last night, he revealed, the twelve men stood eleven to one in favor of convicting all six defendants of first-degree murder.

All Nearly Convicted.

How close the six men came to sharing a common doom in the electric chair was revealed after court recessed when one of the jurors admitted that once they stood eleven to one for conviction of every man.

In the trial the State contended that all six men on trial "aided and abetted" in a felonious attempt to escape from Auburn prison and that during the attempt a bullet from a convict's gun killed Sullivan. A homicide committed during the commission of a felony becomes first degree murder according to the law.

The defense sought to prove that a bullet fired by a State trooper, prison guard or local policeman ended the convict leader's life.

In addition, Lewis pleaded insanity, Leagan swore that he would have quit had he not been threatened with death by another convict, and Thomas admitted he carried a gun into the guard room, but said he gave it up to Hugunin fully loaded and unfired.

Force said he had not stepped foot through the guard room where Sullivan was killed. Cassidy and Udwin said nothing in their own defense.

Among the witnesses called against the accused men were General Edgar S. Jennings, former warden of the prison, and eight prison guards captured with him and held as hostages by the convicts.

The former warden admitted he signed a note ordering the gates of the prison opened for the mutinous convicts.

Tells How to Study Newspapers.

A syllabus entitled "The Study and Appreciation of Newspapers, for the Use of the Schools," by Max J. Herzberg, principal of the Central High School of Newark, has just been published. The syllabus includes outlines, methods and exercises for the study of a newspaper, and the author suggests "that THE NEW YORK TIMES may conveniently be used by teachers and pupils."

2 CARPETS Unusually Priced in our February Sale

FERNDOWN Broadloom

A splendid carpet made exclusively for W. & J. Sloane and ideal for any room in which a wall to wall floor covering is desirable, is noted for its depth and richness of pile, its long wearing quality and its variety of 10 colors. It may be obtained in widths of 27" and 36" and also in larger widths of 9', 10'6", 12' and 15'.

Now $5.00 per sq. yd.
Regularly $6.75 per sq. yd.

LASCONY Broadloom

An imported seamless carpeting, unusually lustrous in weave, made in 28 colors and in widths of 9', 10'6", 12', 13'6", 15', 18'.

Now $10.00 per sq. yd.
Regularly $12.50 per sq. yd.

W. & J. SLOANE
575 FIFTH AVENUE AT 47th STREET
NEW YORK CITY

An Interesting Group of ORIENTAL RUGS in our February Sale

SAROUKS Size 9' x 12'	These Sarouk Rugs are of a superior quality, being made to order using Kermanshah wool and dyed with much more care than is given the usual type of Rugs from this district. They represent most unusual value.	Now $495.00 to $600.00 Formerly $800 to $950
SAROUKS Size 10'6" x 13'6"	For rooms of larger proportions our February Sale offers Sarouks in this size. The quiet harmony of colors and the interesting allover designs in which they come, make these Rugs especially desirable.	Now $695.00 to $875.00 Formerly $1,050 to $1,350

W. & J. SLOANE
575 FIFTH AVENUE at 47th STREET
NEW YORK CITY

WHAT an inviting atmosphere may be obtained in the Dining Room with furniture of fine woods, faithful design and excellent craftmanship. These are the attributes of the Dining Room Furniture found on our floors, all priced much lower for our February Sale.

A Duncan Phyfe group in mahogany	$450.00
An Early American suite in cherry and maple	$526.00
A delightful Queen Anne group in walnut	$600.00
Jacobean suite in solid oak	$780.00
Chippendale suite of mahogany	$995.00

These are a few of the many, all of which show the Sale reductions.

W. & J. SLOANE
575 FIFTH AVENUE at 47th STREET
NEW YORK CITY

PRICE WAR LOOMS IN GASOLINE TRADE

Far-Reaching Cuts Predicted as Result of Reductions in Oil Quotations.

RIVALRY KEEN IN EAST

Situation Is Intensified by the Shell Invasion—Battle Is Expected in Spring.

Prospects of a widespread gasoline price war in the coming Spring and Summer are seen by observers in the oil industry as a result of the reductions in the price of crude oil made last week in the midcontinent field. The companies making the price cuts were the Prairie Oil and Gas Company and the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company. They followed the lower schedules put into effect nearly a month ago by the Standard Oil Companies of New Jersey and New York.

The price reductions mean that the large distributing companies are saving about $500,000 daily in the cost of crude oil, as computed from the production figures of the midcontinent field during the week ended Feb. 8. With this differential, it is argued, the distributing companies dependent upon the midcontinent field for their crude supply will not be helpless in the matter of meeting price competition from California producers in the Eastern distributing field.

Despite the record-breaking consumption of gasoline during the season of peak use of automobiles last year, executives of practically every company complained that there was no profit in the business, due to the multiplicity of filling stations and the keen competition among them for trade. While the Standard Oil Company of New York started all the official gasoline price cutting that was done last year, officials of that company said the lower schedules were announced merely to meet prices of competitors who had not made official announcements of reduced prices.

Invasion by Shell Interests.

The unsatisfactory conditions of last season, so far as the gasoline distributing companies were concerned, were attributed to the invasion of the Eastern markets by the Shell Eastern Petroleum Corporation, a subsidiary of the Royal Dutch Shell Company, and the large importations of California gasoline on the Atlantic seaboard. Previously the Eastern markets had been served principally by gasoline refined from midcontinent crude oil, and the entry of California crude products into New York, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, and as far west as Ohio, put a new factor into the field that admittedly upset trade practices.

Cuts in midcontinent crude prices were predicted last Fall, but none came, and it was understood that the larger companies were waiting to see whether voluntary reductions in production in the midcontinent field and the working out of the California law for stopping the waste of natural gas would bring the crude supply down to the point of demand. That this probably was the case was shown by the statement made by W. S. Farrish, president of the Humble Oil and Gas Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, in announcing the reduction in crude oil prices in the Texas fields on Jan. 15. He said gasoline stocks were mounting to figures where they could not be profitably disposed of and blamed the refineries for the amount of crude oil that was being processed, thus forcing the distributing companies to store the commodity.

Reduction of Stored Stocks.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has gone on record as being against the storage of crude oil or products, beyond the amount necessary for the actual operation of the company. While it has more than this on hand now, it has been steadily decreasing its stores for the past three years, and it is expected that the opportunity will be taken to work off additional of the stored crude oil before raising the price of crude oil. Observers in the oil field expect that a cut will be made in the price of California crude, now that the major midcontinent buyers have met the reductions first established by the Standard Oil subsidiaries.

To what extent the present reductions in the price of crude oil will affect the retail price of gasoline is only a matter of conjecture. While the midcontinent buyers are now in a better position to meet the California production-price basis, the differential between actual cost and selling price is a difficult matter to estimate. It is believed, however, that the institution of a seaboard cost, plus freight and handling, price schedule, which was recently done by Standard Oil of New Jersey, was predicated upon a cut in the price of midcontinent crude oil.

The other large filling station owners have followed suit in adopting a cost plus system of establishing retail prices, and generally their schedules agreed with those of the New Jersey Standard company and that which was subsequently announced by the Standard Oil Company of New York. It is generally understood that the retail schedule recently announced leaves a sufficient differential above the reduced crude prices to put the users of Midcontinent petroleum on a little bit better than an even basis with the California crude refiners.

May Delay Merger Deals.

The action of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company, in meeting the cut in the Midcontinent field, is believed in some quarters to indicate that the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation will not proceed with any plans which may have been made for its acquisition of the properties of the Rio Grande Oil Company, a California concern. The Sinclair Crude Company is 50 per cent owned by Sinclair Consolidated, and during the month that elapsed while the Sinclair Company maintained the old price in the Midcontinent field, it was conjectured that the probability of procuring California production was the motive in not meeting the Standard Company. With Sinclair reducing the price, the action of Prairie Oil and Gas in reducing prices yesterday, was expected.

When the heavy sales period in the gasoline field arrives, beginning the latter part of April and reaching its peak in the early part of July, practically every company with filling stations in the Eastern territory will have stocks of the motor fuel on hand produced at a lower cost than was the case in 1929. It is confidently expected by well-informed authorities that the first indication of price cutting from any source will be the signal for a price cutting war in which the two Standard Oil companies will be in a position to meet all prices with as much profit as any competitor can make.

Spanish Fliers in Endurance Test.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Feb. 15.—Colossal Morato and Lieutenant Haya, Spanish fliers, left Seville on a thirty-hour endurance flight over Spain to test their Breguet landplane, planning to land Sunday at Madrid. If the test proves the plane satisfactory, it is reported they will attempt a Seville-to-Havana flight, or a non-stop flight in the direction of the Far East.

MATERNITY APPAREL SHOP

Newest current styles adjustable for wear during the maternity period—and afterwards.

Extraordinary Sale!

New Spring FROCKS

$18

Exceptional values! Newest printed crepes. Flat crepes. Georgettes. Copies of higher priced Paris models. Black, navy and smart new colors.

Special!

68 piece LAYETTE— $18

LANE BRYANT, separate specialization, 3rd floor

1 West 39th Street, NEW YORK • 15 Hanover Place, Brooklyn

Every once in a while we get to thinking about this thriving city of Newark and our neighbors remark our increased chest-measure. Then we contemplate the metropolitanism of northern New Jersey and a couple of buttons pop off our vest.

This is particularly noticeable immediately after a visit to Newark Metropolitan Airport. It's the eastern terminus of the United States Air Mail, you know . . not to mention passenger air-travel . . and that's enough to make anyone puff up with pride! But we'd better get down to earth. There's plenty to do right here at Bamberger's. Now that the new thirty-seven story Lefcourt-Newark Office Building is so far advanced, and other buildings are well on their way to scrape the sky, it behooves us to keep right on feeding new ideas to the Bamberger Restaurant. When the additional hundreds of office-workers come trooping in to eat at noontime we'll have to watch our peas and carrots. Then there's all that activity along the Pennsylvania Railroad, what with a new Newark Terminal on Market Street all arranged for and a new railroad bridge across the Passaic actually under construction! Good thing that Bamberger's luggage and travel wear are all they should be! And now, ladies and gentlemen, our attention travels north along the Hudson River. That bridge they're building is causing more stiff necks than a safe-raising bee at lunch-hour! And with the Holland Vehicular Tunnel entering its third successful year we'd better check up on our sporting goods department so we'll be all prepared for the army of New Jersey-bound golfers. We've noticed, too, that hundreds of people who come to New Jersey to play remain to live. Oh well, we'll just go on improving our furniture floor and continue to keep the prices all over the store well under control so that the new-comers will gain an even better impression of Newark and New Jersey. Being "One of America's Great Stores" imposes such a responsibility on us and civic virtues become so strenuous at times. There are even plans for a Newark subway thundering along. But we like the activity. We liked it thirty-seven years ago when we first started business and we still like it. The Greater Bamberger Store was opened formally last October and judging from the way people have taken to it, it wasn't a day too soon! So step right along, civic growth, we're making pretty big strides, too.

L. Bamberger & Co.

"ONE OF AMERICA'S GREAT STORES" NEWARK, N. J.

COPYRIGHT 1930, L. BAMBERGER & CO., OWNERS AND OPERATORS OF STATION WOR, PUBLISHERS OF CHARM MAGAZINE

SOVIET DRIVES FAST FOR SOCIALIZATION

Kremlin Revives Militant Policy With High Taxation Killing Private Enterprise.

CRITICS URGE LOWER SPEED

But Stalin Only Goes Faster—Presses Collective Farms to Assure Grain Surplus.

By WALTER DURANTY,
Moscow Correspondent of the New York Times.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—History is being made fast in Russia in these days as the Communist party under Joseph Stalin's resolute leadership drives headlong for the complete socialization of town and country.

The new economic policy, Lenin's temporary compromise with capitalism, private enterprise—call it what you will, has been replaced in the last few weeks by a revised policy fundamentally identical with the so-called militant communism of the years 1918 to 1921. Agriculture is being put on a collective basis—that is on a Communist basis—as rapidly as possible, and in the towns private enterprise, or rather the individual accumulation of capital, is becoming taboo.

Small stores, or booths in the markets, or the licensed huckster selling goods from a tray on the street corner, are tolerated, but it is scarcely an exaggeration to say that no individual accumulation of more than 10,000 rubles (about $5,000) can be held intact by the owner. The Soviet State does not simply take it away from him, as in the earlier militant communist period, but there comes a tax of such staggering proportions as to be equivalent to outright confiscation.

M. Stalin's critics in the Communist party itself say he is going too far and too fast. They do not disapprove his aims, but they question the wisdom of his methods. M. Stalin replies—and the majority of the Communist party unquestionably supports him—that a sharp, savage smash at the obstacles is better than whittling at them or trying to dodge them. It is harder for the time being and inflicts a greater strain upon the nation, but in the long run it is held to be quicker, cheaper and more likely to be successful. The result is that "tempo" has become a word of power in Russia. Everything and every one is being driven at top speed, with little count of the cost at home or abroad.

To the criticism, "You are going too fast," M. Stalin replied, "Then I shall go faster still," and put his words into effect. The industrial production program has been so speeded that the first three months of the fiscal year which began on Oct. 1 showed a failure to meet the schedule in almost all departments. Some are only 1 or 2 per cent below, but others are as much as 10 or 15 per cent below. The Kremlin's answer was a stern insistence that the program must be carried out, that factory managements and the heads of the workers' organizations must be held responsible, that the goods needed for the success of the five-year plan and agrarian reform must be produced somehow.

This insistence gives the key to the whole situation in Russia today. The Kremlin, the Communist party, M. Stalin himself, are not themselves free agents. Their reversion to 100 per cent communism ise not wholly voluntary, but is imposed by necessity. They saw that while Russia, slowly and with difficulty, was being industrialized, while their control over the towns and urban workers grew ever stronger and more definite, there was something gravely wrong with rural affairs. Agriculture, which is, and must be for several years and perhaps for a whole generation, Russia's life-stream, was becoming progressively less useful to the Soviet State. The division of land which followed the revolution by the break-up of the landlords' estates was continuing steadily with a disastrous effect upon the national economy.

The 20,000,000 small farms which were in existence in the first year of the Soviet's power had become 30,000,000 by the end of 1928. They supported their owners—meagerly, according to the American standard—but sufficiently to let them live better and eat more than in the old days. But the surplus production for the needs of the urban population and the army, to say nothing of export, grew less and less.

To take one instance, there is a former landlord's property in the black earth belt near Samara, on the Volga, which before the war produced an average of 12,000 tons of grain annually. The 200 peasant families, say 1,000 "souls" in all, who worked the land for the magnate, received about 4,000 tons as wages, for their own consumption and for sale, to buy goods with, and so on. The remaining 8,000 tons was a surplus for the cities or for export.

In the year 1928 that property was split into 250 small holdings which produced 5,000 tons. The State grain collection and State taxes took 2,000 tons, leaving the villagers with less than they had before the war.

Last year twenty-five families began a small collective farm, which produced a full third higher than the best individual farms around. This year the whole property is once more to be worked as a unit, and its manager—an honors graduate of the Samara Agricultural School, who has full authority and responsibility—is pledged to produce 10,000 tons of grain. He said he was sure to get it unless weather conditions were abnormal.

In this case the local peasants themselves saw the advantages of collectivism, but in many places it has been necessary to use considerable, and often brutal, pressure against the farmers, who would prefer to stay on an individual system. A recent decree gave the local authorities power to confiscate the land and other property of the richer peasants who opposed collectivism and, if necessary, to deport them. Because it is a logical process—individual farming does not produce a sufficient surplus and the State needs and must have a surplus—the collectives can produce a surplus and therefore collectives must replace individualism.

That collectivism coincides with Communist theory is almost incidental. The important point is that it will, or should, or is expected to give results which individualism could not give, or did not give. For that reason more than for any theoretic Communist reason collectivism has become absolute and forms the inevitable keystone of the Kremlin policy.

RUSSIA ARRESTS RABBIS.

Letters Compromising the Soviet Government Reported Found.

MOSCOW, Feb. 15 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Almost every leader of the Minsk Jewish community, including Rabbi Pevsner, Rabbi Osher Kershtein and Rabbi Gluskin, have been arrested charged with maintaining illegal connections with organizations abroad. Russian secret police claim they have discovered in the homes of the arrested rabbis letters addressed to Jewish organizations abroad which compromise the Soviet Government and asking that the Jews of Russia be saved from annihilation.

The secret police also alleged that Rabbi Glazer of New York, who visited Minsk in August, 1929, held an illegal conference with the Minsk rabbis. When Rabbi Glazer arrived in Paris on his way to the United States he revealed to the press that he had information on religious persecution in Russia which the G. P. U. asserts was given him at the illegal Minsk conference.

SOVIET SEIZES PROPERTY.

Takes $50,000,000 Worth From Private Traders and Others.

MOSCOW, Feb. 15 (AP).—Diamonds, precious metals, jewelry, foreign currency, antiquarian articles and other private property amounting to 100,000,000 rubles (about $50,000,000) have been seized from private traders and other classes described as "parasitical" for payment of taxes owed to the government.

It was officially announced today that the precious metals, as well as Russian and foreign money and gems, would be turned over to the State bank, while the furniture, clothing, household articles and other seized property will be sold to members of the trade union through the share and co-operative stores at moderate prices to be fixed by a special valuation committee. Buildings and living apartments formerly belonging to private traders will be given exclusively to workers' families.

TO DRAFT LAW ON WOMEN.

Inter-American Group Meets in Cuba to Plan World Statutes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Feb. 15.—"We are meeting to propose a world law in behalf of the international status of women," Doris Stevens of New York, chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women, declared here today. She arrived with a delegation of American women yesterday to open a meeting of the commission here.

One woman from each of the twenty-one countries in the Western Hemisphere are attending the conference, the delegates to which were appointed by their respective governments. The commission was created two years ago by the sixth Pan American Conference. Since that time the members have studied nationality laws as they affect women with the view of submitting a nationality treaty for world codification.

The conference will meet next month at The Hague. A draft of the treaty will be prepared here.

Quake in Crete Scares Inhabitants.

ATHENS, Feb. 15 (AP).—A severe earthquake last night at Candia, Crete, plunged that city into darkness. No lives were lost, but the inhabitants, remembering the great shock of 1926, were panic-stricken. The quake was felt distinctly in Athens, but its epicentre was in Northern Crete.

RED ATHEISTS DRIVE TO ABOLISH RELIGION

Continued from Page 1, Column 8.

completed, the kulaks meanwhile have been forbidden to sell their stock or implements or even to divide up their belongings with their sons and daughters. Moreover, all such past transactions are illegal, for the new decree is retroactive.

Most of these kulaks—and there are 700,000 families who have been branded as such in the Soviet Union because they have refused to join the collective farms—are what we should call small landholders.

Metropolitan Denies Persecution.

MOSCOW, Feb. 15 (AP).—The Soviet press united today in attacking foreign reports that religion was being "persecuted" in Russia, and in attempting to silence them by the publication of replies to a questionnaire put to the authorities of the Orthodox Church.

After Izvestia and Pravda, official organs of the government and the Communist party, had described the reports as part of a concerted international movement against the Soviet Union, Russian newspaper men put the following questions during an interview to the Metropolitan Sergius, chief patriarch of the Russian Orthodox Church, and to members of the synod.

Q.—Is it true that religion is persecuted in the U. S. S. R., and if so in what form?

A.—Religion in the U. S. S. R. has never been subjected to persecution before or now.

Q.—Is it true that an atheist society is closing the churches, and how do believers look upon it?

A.—Yes, some churches have been really closed. But this was done not on the initiative of the authorities but at the request of the people, in some cases on the decision of the churchgoers themselves.

Q.—Is it true that clergymen and churchgoers have been subjected to repressions for their religious beliefs, arrested, exiled and the like?

A.—Repression by the Soviet Government against believers and clergymen have been applied not for their religious beliefs but for anti-government acts, just as against other citizens. It must be said that the Church's misfortune is that in the past it identified itself too closely with the monarchist system, as is well known. Therefore church circles failed to appreciate in due time the entire significance of the great social revolution and continued to behave as an open enemy of the Soviet power under Kolchak, Denekin, &c. The best minds in the church, such as the Patriarch Tikhon, realized this and strove to rectify the situation, recommending to all their followers that they refrain from opposing the will of the nation and be loyal to the Soviet Government. Unfortunately some of us are still unable to understand that the past will not return, and continue to act as political opponents of the Soviet power.

Q.—Is religious propaganda allowed in the U. S. S. R.?

A.—Ministers of the church are not forbidden to perform religious ceremonies, nor to deliver sermons. But, unfortunately, we do not show sufficient zeal for this ourselves. Persons reaching the proper age are allowed to be taught religion.

Q.—Are reports of brutalities toward the individual church ministers by agents of the Soviet power, published in the foreign press, true?

A.—These reports have nothing in common with the true facts. They are all inventions and slanders unworthy of serious people. Individual priests have been prosecuted, not for religious services, but for various anti-government acts, and this takes place, of course, not in the form of persecutions or brutalities but in the usual procedure.

In answering the first question, the Metropolitan and the members of the synod added that "according to the decree of separation of Church from State, the religious profession is absolutely free and unpersecuted by any State organ."

"Moreover," they said, "the decree of the Central Executive Committee and of the Council of People's Commissars of the R. S. F. S. R. [European Russia] in 1929 about religious congregations completely precludes the least possibility of religious persecution."

As to the Godless League, they said that "the atheists in the U. S. S. R. are an organized private society and their demand for the closing of the churches is not considered obligatory by government bodies."

Denounces Pope's Attitude.

The Metropolitan attacked Pope Pius for his recent denunciation of an "anti-religious campaign" in Russia.

"The Pope considers himself the vicar of Christ, but Christ suffered for the oppressed and downtrodden, whereas the Pope in his declaration proved himself to be in the same camp with the English landowners and the Franco-Italian 'money-bags,'" the members of the Synod present declared.

"Christ would not have done this. He would have condemned such a retreat from the real path of Christianity. It is stranger still to hear from the Catholic Church accusations that the Soviet Government is persecuting non-Catholics, because the whole history of the Catholic Church is a continuous chain of persecutions of non-Catholics, including torture and burning at the stake.

"It seems to us that the Pope in this case follows the old traditions of the Catholic Church, thus provoking his flock against our country and kindling the fire of war against the people of the Soviet Union.

"We consider the Pope's statement superfluous and unwarranted. Orthodox believers are in no need of such protection. We can defend our own Orthodox church ourselves.

"The Pope has had dreams for a long time of Catholicizing our Church, which, being always firm in its attitude toward Catholicism as a false teaching, could never connect itself in any manner with Rome."

The members of the Synod who took part in the interview were, in addition to the Metropolitan Sergius, Archbishop Serafin of Saratoff, Archbishop Alexis of Khutinsk, Archbishop Phillip of Zvanigorod and Archbishop Pitirim of Orekho-Zuevsk.

Press Sees World Attack Plan.

Izvestia and Pravda today declared that the present attacks on the Soviet Government abroad for its suppression of churches and its plans to wipe out the richer peasant class were part of a concerted international movement against the Soviet Union.

Citing the Pope's recent denunciation of the Bolsheviki for their efforts to throttle religion, the acquittal of alleged forgers of Soviet currency in Germany, the attacks in the British Parliament on the anti-religious policy of the Soviet Government, the charges against Communists in connection with the disappearance of General Koutiepoff in Paris and Mexico's break with the Soviet Union "under instructions from Washington," Izvestiya said that all such attempts "to interfere with the construction of socialism in the Soviet Union under the pretense of defending religion will be decisively erpelled."

The newspaper said that a critical financial situation existed in the capitalistic world, affecting even the heart of capitalism, the United States, and declared that the outside world was apprehensive and jealous of the Soviet's enormous industrial and agricultural progress.

"Don't the capitalists realize," Izvestiya asks, "that the laboring masses of the entire world now more than ever before understand that simple—but, to the bourgeoisie, killing—truth that the Soviet Union is the laboring man's fatherland and that laborers by shooting at the Soviet Union really shoot at themselves?"

Izvestiya continued with the contention that the present hostile campaign against the Soviet Union was a real threat of war and that the Soviet Government had every reason to believe that the imperialistic world would not hesitate to begin open warfare against the union when a favorable moment arrived.

"We have been absolutely correct in mobilizing the masses against this danger and in appealing to the revolutionary proletariat of the entire world to fight against it," concluded the paper.

A summary of the Russian Soviet laws on religion, church members and church property is printed on Page 1 of the Second News Section in this issue.

Training Supervisor

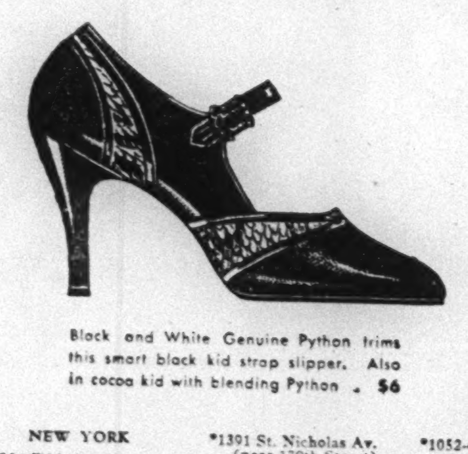
CONTROLLER'S OFFICE

R. H. Macy & Co. Inc.
34th STREET & BROADWAY, NEW YORK

require a training supervisor (man or woman) over 25 years of age, who has had a thorough mathematical grounding and is familiar with weekly production records, unit costs, etc.; who can organize methods of instruction and supervision. Must possess a pleasing personality, good appearance and be capable of making excellent contacts. Apply by letter, stating age, education and previous experience.

$6 in Youthful Interpretations of ADVANCE SPRING STYLES

Natural Python contrasted with the season's newest shade of cocoa kid and outlined with delicate Gold Pipings . . . $6



Black and White Genuine Python trims this smart black kid strap slipper. Also in cocoa kid with blending Python . $6

WISE gives you new styles—advance creations, all that is smart and youthful—for only $6. Why purchase last season's "odds and ends" and "left-overs" at sales? Paris dictates and WISE sponsors Genuine Python in a host of becoming styles. Remember the WISE thrifty price $6. No need to pay more. Get the WISE habit—save and be stylish.

...SILK STOCKINGS...

Exquisitely sheer silk stockings. Full Fashion. Picot tops. New Spring shades $1.15 a pair . . . 3 pairs $3.25

NEW YORK
384 Fifth Avenue (near 36th Street)
120 W. 34th Street (West of 6th Ave.)
25 West 42nd Street (West of 5th Ave.)
•137 W. 42nd Street (East of Broadway)
•1548 Broadway (near 46th Street)
•202 W. 125th Street (at 7th Avenue)
•1391 St. Nicholas Av. (near 179th Street)
•2929 Third Avenue (near 151st Street)
•949 So. Boulevard (near 163rd Street)
•254 E. Fordham Rd. (nr. Valentine Ave.)

BROOKLYN
478 Fulton Street (near Elm Place)
•1052-4 Flatbush Ave. (near Beverly Rd.)
•1531 Broadway (cor. Hancock Street)
•5418 5th Avenue (near 54th Street)
•1722 Pitkin Ave. (near Thatford Ave.)

NEWARK
649 Broad St. (bet. New & W. Park St.)

•Stores open evenings

WISE SHOE

AFTER TWO YEARS OF PERFECTING THE QUARTER-SIZE . . .

henning

now introduces the New Precision of

QUARTER SIZES

in Custom-Special Shoes

All HENNING custom-special originations which were formerly $27.50 and $32.50 are now offered at

IN STOCK
Opera pumps
Twenty-two different materials.
$12.50

$18.50 and $21.50 up in QUARTER-SIZES

PERFECT fit in footwear is a subtle achievement often impossible when only half-size lasts are employed. So HENNING, attaining a new peak of precision in the art of fitting the delicately balanced feminine foot, has developed a QUARTER-SIZE technique in making custom shoes.

Now any foot can be fitted with the exquisite precision of the skin itself.

And furthermore, HENNING Custom Specials, embodying the new exactitude of quarter-sizes, are offered at $18.50 and $21.50 up, instead of the former prices of $27.50 and $32.50.

henning CONTINENTAL BOOT SHOP
24 East 56th St.

Let HENNING Designers Harmonize Your Shoes and Gowns

Co-ordination—the latest mandate of the mode! Since HENNING focused the light of fashion on the feet, some ten years ago, no more significant idea has been advanced. HENNING has placed at your service America's foremost creators of footwear fashions. These interpreters of the mode will assist you to design or select the inevitably correct styles and colors in shoes to emphasize any individual costume theme you favor.

Now—more than ever—the smart woman will turn to HENNING for the special services that only HENNING can render.

Charge it at Gimbels

See 24 Charming Spring and Summer Frocks That You Can Easily Make Yourself

Butterick Frock, 2672, with Jacket 2790, of Everglades Chiffon Voile

Cutting Service Without Charge
A Butterick representative will cut out a dress for you according to any Butterick pattern.

Shop Gimbels and See for Yourself

A FASHION SHOWING OF "BUTTERFIELD" FABRICS

MONDAY to WEDNESDAY
February 17 to 19
12 Noon and 2:30 P.M.

With Mannequins and a Fashion Talk

Printed Pueblos and Plain	29c yard
Printed Pandora Chiffon Voile	38c yard
Normandy Voiles	48c yard
Printed Everglades Chiffon Voile	64c yard
Printed Rayon Pique	85c yard
Rayon Chiffon, Photographic Prints	98c yard
"Embrayon" Chiffon Voile	98c yard
Durbar Printed Crepe	98c yard
Elmway Printed Flat Crepe	1.50 yard
Oakway Flat Crepe, Plain Colored	1.50 yard

GIMBELS
33rd & Broadway PENnsylvania 5100

FOR SUNDAY INSERTION in The New York Times under Business Opportunities, orders should be received by 8 P. M. Friday preceding. Bank and business references must accompany orders from new advertisers, and these should be sent early in the week to allow time to investigate.—Advt.

WORLD AIR SHOW OPENS IN ST. LOUIS

Scores of Planes and Up-to-the-Minute Accessories Are on View in Great Arena.

PROBLEMS ARE DISCUSSED

Industry's Leaders Confer on Means of Increasing Confidence of the Public.

From a Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 15.—The second International Aircraft Exposition, under the auspices of the Aaronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, Inc., opened its doors here this evening.

Eighty-seven planes and hundreds of aeronautical accessories are on display at the great arena, a huge building on the scale of Madison Square Garden, and in the two large annexes. At the emergency landing field, a block away from the exposition halls, planes were still coming in until dark tonight, and more are expected tomorrow and Monday.

But the exposition itself, to be opened daily until a week from tomorrow night, is but a small part of aviation week in St. Louis. At the large hotels in the city conferences and conventions having to do with every possible branch of the aeronautical industry, from primary and college education in the various branches in the science to meetings of the members of the aeronautical manufacturers' section of the chamber with representatives of the Department of Commerce, will be held every day next week.

The exposition, besides being the most comprehensive in the display of planes ever held in this country, is regarded by leaders in the industry as the most important because of these conferences. The industry, it is frankly granted, is facing something of a crisis.

Business Has Slowed Up.

Confidence in air transport, based on the enthusiasm following the spectacular flights of 1927 and 1928, has promoted a great business involving millions of dollars. This business has experienced a decided slowing up during the past twelve months.

Here at St. Louis this week, the business leaders of aviation hope to find out, through interchange of experiences, through a study of each other's products, and through the public reaction to the exposition, something of what is in store for them not only in 1930, but for several years to come. The air transport men will tell the manufacturers what they need to make air transport pay. The manufacturers will in turn tell the transport people what these planes are going to cost.

The advertising and sales experts will compare notes and suggest ways and means to stimulate the American public to ride in planes and pay for their rides, and the export men will confer on the matter of establishing confidence and interest in American planes and engines abroad.

As for the show itself, the leading manufacturers have done their part to display to the visitors and the possible purchasers the best that America has yet produced for air travel.

Lindbergh Credited With Growth.

It is about three years since a young airmail pilot sought out several St. Louis business men and broached to them a "crazy" project. He wanted money enough to buy or build a plane to fly the Atlantic, and he stipulated that he should make the flight alone.

In this exposition, there is not a single plane, from the great Keystone Patrician and Curtiss Condor, flagships of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation's large exhibit, to the small sport planes shown by the Great Lakes and the Nicholas Beazley companies, which does not owe in part the fact of its being here to the dream of that young air mail pilot three years ago. He is expected here before the show is closed.

The outstanding gathering of planes and engines is that of the Curtiss-Wright group. This company is evidently not being scared by the failure of aviation to keep up with the enthusiasm with which it started its phenomenal growth three years ago.

Its planes and the motors and accessories of its companies are spreading through two of the three halls. In the central arena a small lake has been constructed to display an amphibian afloat. Grass-like carpets, covering thousands of square feet of floor space, simulate landing fields for the Curtiss Robin, the Kingbird, a twin-motored cabin monoplane shown in public for the first time; the Travelairs, built in several models, and the Curtiss Tanager, winner of the $100,000 Guggenheim safe aircraft prize.

The Wright company is showing a complete line of motors from the new Gipsy, with 90-horsepower, to the great nine-cylindered Cyclone, which develops 550-horsepower.

Motors Have Large Display.

Another exhibit of interest and importance is that of the companies in the United Aircraft Transport group. The Pratt & Whitney motors occupy a large booth, and the centre of attraction here perhaps is the new three-horsepower Wasp Junior. Alongside is the new Stearman, and across the aisle is the display of the Standard Steel and the Hamilton Propeller companies.

Speed planes occupy important space. The Detroit Aircraft Corporation is showing several Lockheeds, among them a new Lockheed-Sirius of the type recently built for Colonel Lindbergh. Walter Beach has his Travelair mystery plane, winner from the army and navy in the free-for-all at the national air races.

The Fokker Aircraft Corporation is displaying the latest model of its tri-motored F-10, now in use on thousands of miles of airways in this country, Central America and the West Indies. Close to it is the new all-metal Ford, such as is flown on Transcontinental Air Transport, Colonial and other passenger lines.

While the show opened its doors officially this evening, there was a "pre-showing" of the exhibits this afternoon for the benefit of 7,000 St. Louis schoolboys. They swarmed uncontrolled through the halls, climbing into, over and under the planes, touching controls and patting the shiny wings.

AIR SHOW CLOSES; 200,000 VISITED IT

Crowd on Final Day the Largest —Many Inspect the Giant Burnelli Plane.

EXHIBITORS ARE PLEASED

Glider Industry Reports It Gained Many Friends, Among Them Licensed Pilots.

As the second annual New York Aviation Show closed its doors last night in Grand Central Palace the members of the show committee of Aviators Post 743, American Legion, announced that more than 200,000 persons had paid admission to the ten-day exhibition. The date for the show next year has not been set, the committee said, but it will take place in Grand Central Palace in February.

Yesterday's crowd was the largest of the show. In contrast to the crowd last Saturday, most of the visitors were adults. A steady line of persons strolled up the long flight of steps and through the cabin of the huge Burnelli twenty-passenger monoplane, then down the other side and past the gunnery cockpit of the Army Falcon with its revolving turret, machine guns and the fully loaded bomb rack beneath.

The exhibit of THE NEW YORK TIMES, covering the history of aviation since 1490, when Leonardo da Vinci made a glider with many of the characteristics of the modern airplane, attracted a steady stream of persons throughout the day. Depicting the greatest achievements of aviation in pictures and fac-similes of the newspapers of the times, the exhibit served to settle many disputes among the visitors on the flights of Lindbergh, Byrd, Chamberlin, Wilkins and others.

Crashes were many on the third floor as hawkers sent little paper and wood models soaring in circles. The stairways and corners of the building were littered with tiny airplanes which had come to violent ends against the walls or pillars.

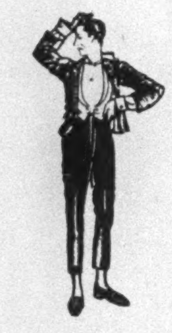
The exhibitors declared themselves well satisfied with the interest shown in aviation by the New York public, although not many airplane sales were recorded. The management of the show established a new precedent in not announcing the actual number of sales, as such practice has only led to false impressions in the past.

The glider industry reported a great many new disciples, however, many of whom are already licensed pilots. Most of the gliders exhibited will be brought out to the open spaces of near-by Long Island and New Jersey in the coming week and will be demonstrated in flight.

But few of the exhibitors will move their displays to the International Aircraft Exhibit in St. Louis. Clarence D. Chamberlin's little plane, the same which made a dramatic entry through the Holland Tunnel and the city traffic, was dismantled immediately after the doors closed and will be flown to St. Louis today.

Hearn's on 14th street

saves you money



That dinner engagement—that was going to cost you fifty bucks to accept — because you've gotta buy a new tuxedo—

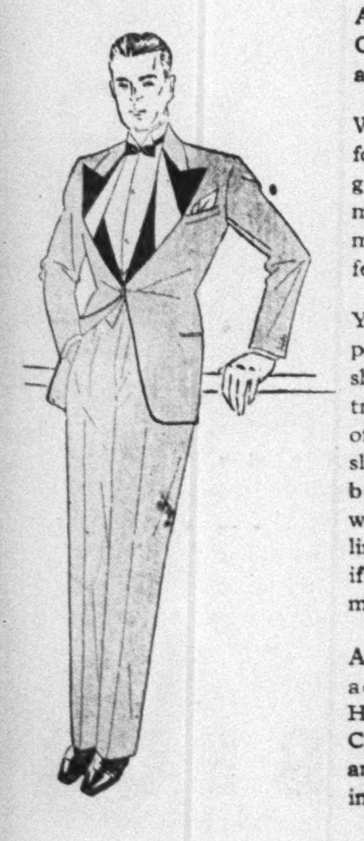
Well, Hearn's on 14th Street saves you Money. On this deal it will save you exactly $25. In fact, you can afford to accept the invitation.

If you don't think these $25 tuxedos of ours look like—and feel like—and fit like $50, don't buy one!

But the chances are, you'll be the life of the party!

These Dinner Clothes Actually Cost Only

$25



And there is NO CHARGE for alterations.

Which means that—for your $25, you get that custom-made look which makes "all the difference."

You get the new peak lapel, the wide shoulders, the full trousers, the choice of plain or robe sleeve, the herringbone unfinished worsted and the silk lining that you'd get if you paid twice as much.

And you get acquainted with Hearn's Stylwear* Clothes for men—and that's an asset in itself.

On the Main Floor
Come in by door No. 30

*That's the Hearn Trademark.

See today's American and World for other Hearn advertising

Charge it at Gimbels

Take a "Cook's" Tour Now and Check Your Needs!

GIMBELS

Semi-Annual

HOUSEWARE SALE

BEGINS TOMORROW

WE'VE RANSACKED TWO CONTINENTS

For New Things
Trick Things
Wringers and Singers
Beaters and Heaters
Roasters and Toasters
Fryers and Dryers
Boilers and Broilers
Stools and Tools
Pans and Cans
Pressers and Dressers
Ladders and Padders offered now at

CONSISTENTLY LOW-PRICES

A young army of salespeople to serve you quickly

SHOP GIMBELS AND SEE FOR YOURSELF

Roman Stools 1.00
Regularly 1.54. Unpainted; cane seat, for dressing table or radio stool.

Mop-Wringer Pail 95c
Regularly 1.19. Galvanized pail; long-handle mop and wringer saves wetting hands.

French Fryers 89c
Regularly 1.35. Wear-Ever Aluminum. Removable wire basket.

Unpainted Chairs 1.59
Regularly 2.09. Saddle seat, panel back.

Waxing Outfits 2.49
Regularly 3.29. Waxer and can of liquid and paste wax.

Bread Boxes 1.39
Regularly 1.69. Green, blue, yellow or ivory enamel.

Canister Sets 94c
Regularly 1.29. Yellow, blue, green or ivory finish.

Lacq for Furniture
Qt. 1.79; pt. 94c; ½ pt. 57c.

Flat Wall Paint 2.89
Gallon. Waterproof.

Refrigerators 25.64
Regularly 38.44. Alaska. Oak finished; cork insulated; 33½ x 17 x 45¼ in.

Canaries 4.49
Regularly 5.95. Young Harz Mountain male birds guaranteed singers.

Tables 6.94
Regularly 7.24 and 8.74. Porcelain top. 25x36 or 25 x40 inch top.

Waffle Irons 6.45
Regularly 8.45. Chromium plated; heat indicator.

Step-On Cans 2.98
Regularly 3.84. Step-on. Red, yellow, blue, white or green.

Bath Stools 1.95
Regularly 2.49. White, green, orchid or blue.

Sauce Pans 89c
Regularly 1.45. Mirro aluminum. 3-qt. size.

Skillet Sets 1.24
Regularly 1.80. Griswold cast iron; 8 and 10½ inch.

Fireplace Sets 24.75
Regularly 32.50. 5-piece fire set, solid brass andirons, and black wire screen.

Vollrath Dishpans 1.89
Regularly 2.45. Vollrath enamel; 9-qt.; green, blue, yellow, bisque.

Brooms 69c
Regularly 98c. Green, red, orange, or blue color handles.

Vegetable Bins 1.89
Regularly 2.19. Green, blue, white, or yellow finish.

Double Boilers 1.89
Regularly 2.50. Wear-Ever aluminum. 2-qt. size.

O'Cedar Mops 39c
Regularly 59c. Choice of dust or oil mop.
No mail or phone orders

Floor Brushes 74c
Regularly 1.29. Green, blue, yellow or red colored.

Clothes Baskets 49c
Regularly 79c. Braided top and strong handles.

Forks & Knives 4.74
Regularly 5.64. 6 knives, 6 forks; "Universal" resistain steel blades. White handles.

Book Stands 99c
Regularly 1.29. Unpainted. For books or bibelots. 27 inches high

Shower Curtains 2.49
Regularly 3.49. Full size; rubberized rayon in green, orchid, blue, gold and rose.

Outdoor Dryers 5.94
Regularly 7.50. Revolving style; 100 feet of line.

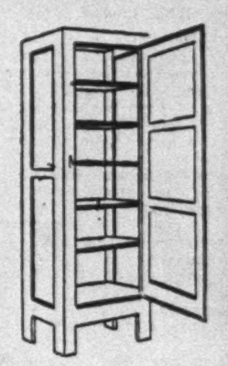
Cages and Stand 4.94
Regularly 5.95. Handsome wire stand; two-tone stand.

Percolators 1.59
Regularly 2.35. Mirro aluminum. 8-cup size.

Electric Toasters 3.69
Regularly 4.49; Flip-Flop; chromium plated.

Table Oilcloth and Shelving, discontinued patterns, less than half price

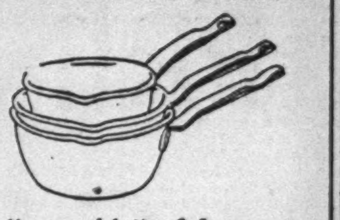
1000 LINEN CLOSETS



9.94
Regularly 11.44

Finished in gay green, white or ivory to suit your furnishing. 5 roomy shelves. Broom Closets to match at same price.

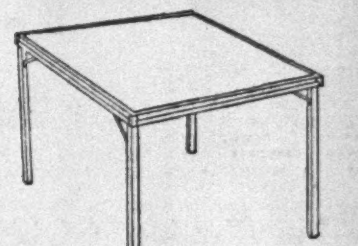
1000 SAUCE PAN SETS



1.34
Regularly 2.35

A whole sauce pan "ensemble" of famous "Wear-Ever" aluminum. 1-qt., 1½-qt. and 2-qt.—the size that "team up" best in most kitchens!

1000 CARD TABLES

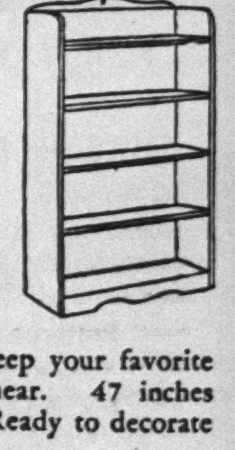


95c
Regularly 1.29

Card tables that won't "jiggle"—strongly constructed and strictly first quality! Simulated leather top in moire design. Frame in green enameled finish.

No mail or phone orders filled for this card table

200 UNPAINTED BOOK CASES



4.94
Regularly 5.94

Just the handy size to keep your favorite volumes conveniently near. 47 inches high with 5 shelves. Ready to decorate or paint your pet color!

We are Pleased to Fill Mail and Phone Orders. But it's so much more fun to come in, if you can!

GIMBELS
33rd & BROADWAY PENnsylvania 5100

ROBBERS GET $7,300 IN 3 PAYROLL RAIDS

Clerks Are Coerced in 2 Paper Box Plants Just After Armored Cars Depart.

ONE SUSPECT IS CAPTURED

Four Men in Well-Planned and Executed Job Rob Spring Factory in Brooklyn.

Robbers escaped with about $7,700 in hold-ups in New York yesterday, in two of which paper box firms were the victims of a gang that arrived in each instance soon after the delivery of the payrolls by an armored car. The greatest amount was stolen from the Spear Box Company, 270 Eleventh Avenue, where six women bookkeepers and clerks were covered by the pistols of three masked men while the fourth scooped pay envelopes containing $3,509 into a cash box.

The money had been delivered at 10:30 A. M. Ten minutes later the bandits arrived in a blue sedan and held up Ruth Saltzman, Ceil Saevitz, Pearl Gordon, Lillian Margolies, Lea Lynn and Ruth Simon. One hundred and fifty employes on the three floors of the building knew nothing of the hold-up. As the thieves were departing William Conescu, president of the company, came out of his office. A bandit started after him, but Mr. Conescu fled and the bandits continued on their way, easily escaping.

A little later four bandits, believed to have been the same gang, entered the offices of the Favorite Paper Box Corporation and robbed Abraham Shapiro, the manager; Tillie Kamerling and Belle Strom, employes, of the $378 in cash in a desk.

"Be a good guy," one of them urged Shapiro and he showed them the desk money and the empty safe. The employes had been paid on Friday.

Another hold-up occurred in an elevator at 247 West Forty-second Street yesterday morning. Thomas Hughes, a bookkeeper for the George A. Wilchert Company, a dental laboratory, entered the building with $340 he had drawn from a bank. As he stepped into the elevator, operated by Ernest Bergman, a man at his heels drew a pistol and ordered the operator to "mind your own business and keep on going." Bergman complied while the robber took from Hughes the envelope containing the money. At the fifth floor the thief ordered Hughes out while Bergman was forced to take the robber to the ground floor, where he escaped.

John Volte of 1,139 Eighty-sixth Street, Brooklyn, driver on a laundry wagon, foiled an attempt to hold him up in a hallway at 103 Mott Street at 2 P. M. Instead of obeying the orders of two men, one armed, to throw up his hands, he shouted for help. Patrolman Bellin chased a youth into Hester Street and then to a garage at 142 Mulberry Street, where, after firing in the air, he arrested Philip Sattano, 18, of 129 Mott Street. A pistol was found in the street near the scene of the hold-up.

Four men entered the quarters of the Charles Fisher Spring Company at 240 Kent Avenue, Brooklyn, at 11:45 yesterday morning, held up a dozen employes and Max Fischer, a member of the firm, and escaped with $3,400 that clerks were sorting into pay envelopes in an inner office.

Three of the men entered the office, leaving a fourth at the head of the stairs leading to the street. They asked for "the boss" and were told that he was in an inner office. Two men went in, leaving the third near the door of the outer office. Mr. Fischer was in his office superintending the making up of the payroll when the two entered with drawn revolvers. They scooped up the money, and with the customary warning against any outcry sauntered out, pick up their companions, and drove away in a sedan automobile.

Mr. Fischer had drawn the money on Friday from the branch of the Manufacturers Trust Company at Broadway and Berry Street, Brooklyn. The loss was covered by insurance, Mr. Fischer said. Employes at the plant received their pay as soon as a duplicate payroll could be made up.

First Woman Named to Canadian Senate; Mrs. Wilson of Ottawa a Mother of Eight

By The Canadian Press.

OTTAWA, Feb. 15.—Canada's first woman Senator, Mrs. Norman F. Wilson of Ottawa, was appointed this evening, Premier Mackenzie King announcing that the selection had been approved by Lord Willingdon, the Governor General.

In announcing the appointment, the Prime Minister explained that the Government had been anxious to take advantage of the earliest opportunity to recognize the right of women to sit in the Senate of Canada.

Mrs. Wilson, the Prime Minister pointed out, had taken an active part in dealing with social questions. Her father had been a Senator and her husband a member of Parliament. For years she has been active politically. She is honorary president of the National Federation of Liberal Women of Canada, an organization which she had been instrumental in bringing into being.

She is the mother of eight children.

Mrs. Wilson is the daughter of the late Senator Mackay of Montreal. She has large business interests in her own right, and her capable management of them is one of her achievements.

CHILD WELFARE GROUP PRAISED BY LEHMAN

He Pays Tribute to the Late Sophie Irene Loeb for Her Work for Widows and Mothers.

Lieutenant Governor Herbert H. Lehman praised the work of the Child Welfare Committee of America at the annual dinner meeting of the committee last night at the home of Dr. Warren Smadbeck, a director, at 48 West Seventy-fourth Street.

Mr. Lehman paid tribute to the late Sophie Irene Loeb in behalf of widows' pensions and mothers' aid which the committee fosters throughout the country, and told of her efforts to aid underprivileged children. The committee, he said, had performed valuable service during the past year in carrying out its program for strengthening mothers' aid laws and pointed out that only four States—Alabama, New Mexico, Georgia and South Carolina—were still without some legislation based upon this principle.

August Heckscher, president of the committee, presented the annual report. More child welfare measures were passed in 1929 than in almost any previous year, he said.

"There are still some 1,500 orphan asylums in the United States in which over 200,000 children are housed," said Mr. Heckscher. "Doubtless there will have to be institutions for delinquent, deficient and crippled children in need of specialized care. But the able-bodied child, the child whose only fault is poverty, is best cared for in a suitable home—the home of his own mother or a proper guardian or foster parent. We are hoping to accomplish this by getting the communities to amend the existing mothers' aid laws so that adequate provision shall be made against the needless breaking up of homes when the father or principal breadwinner dies or becomes incapacitated."

Other speakers were:

Dr. GEORGE J. RYAN, president of the Board of Education.
VICTOR F. RIDDER.
Dr. CHARLES H. JOHNSON.
MARGARET WOODROW WILSON, first vice president of the committee.
Judge SAMUEL D. LEVY of the Children's Court.
JAMES E. WEST, Chief Scout Executive.

Mr. Lehman was elected to the board of directors, as were Benjamin Antin, Dr. Henry Dwight Chapin, Irvin S. Cobb, Mrs. E. B. Curtiss, Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Dr. John A. Harriss, Mr. Heckscher A. A. Parks, Judge Levy, Dr. Smadbeck, George F. Thompson, James W. Wadsworth, Miss Wilson and Mrs. C. G. Wyckoff.

RUFFU WILL FIGHT MOVE TO OUST HIM

Atlantic City Mayor Says He Has No Reason to Resign Because of Impending Inquiry.

CALLS HIS RECORD CLEAN

Appointment of Bartlett as Special Prosecutor Is Hailed by County Judge Smathers.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 15.—A reiteration of Mayor Ruffu's determination not to resign while under fire came from his office today in answer to the impending investigation of his official and private business activities by Special Prosecutor Herbert C. Bartlett of Cumberland County.

It was also learned at the Mayor's office that he would resist every effort to have him ousted, as he feels there is no justification for the present attack on him. He says he is willing to take his chance in a court of law, where his attackers will have to produce evidence to back their contentions.

"Why should I resign?" he asked. "I have done nothing to resign for. Just now I am busy preparing to carry out the desires of the banking interests that have called for a financial holiday on new public works. If it comes to court action, or any other move which has been threatened, I shall certainly defend myself.

"My record, as I have said before, is clean of any wrongdoing in public office. I am not a grafter, and if the truth be known I shall go out of office in due time with less money than when I entered it. I can meet those who are attacking me, knowing as I do that I have nothing to fear. I have nothing hidden to discover. Whatever business I do, personally, is done through local banks, and they know about it."

Commenting upon the appointment of Mr. Bartlett and the attitude of the civic interests represented by Charles S. Moore and Wetmore Brown, Mr. Moore said today:

"It is my intention first to seek a conference with Bartlett, who, I am informed, will have complete charge of the investigation of conditions which we hope to correct. It is not the intention of Mr. Brown or myself to interfere with the regular course of the probe and prosecution. I wish to emphatically state that our attitude will be one of cooperation as far as possible."

County Judge William H. Smathers said of Mr. Bartlett's appointment:

"The appointment of former Judge Bartlett as special assistant prosecutor is very gratifying to me, and I will congratulate the prosecutor for his selection of a man whose ability and integrity will not be questioned by any one."

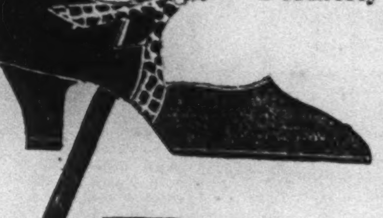
ANTIQUES BRING $68,022.

Rare Rugs and Art Objects Sold in Four-Day Auction Here.

The four-session sale of antique furniture, rugs and art objects from the estate of the late C. A. Gould, Mrs. V. M. Jourdain and others closed yesterday at the American Art Association Anderson Galleries, Inc., with a grand total of $68,022.

An imperial Ch'ien-lung carved semi-opaque white jade covered vase of flattened archaic bronze form with t'ao t'ieh loose ring handles connected to the domed cover by linked chain rings brought $1,050, the sale's top price, from E. Jackson. A carved translucent white jade incense burner, cauldron shape, on three shi-tzu headed stump feet, loose floral ring handles and six smaller kylin headed handles about a periphery, with dome cover carved in undercut relief with three kylin figures pulling at trailing draperies was sold to E. Jackson, Inc., for $975.

FINAL SALE $7.50



Formerly to $18.50

TOMORROW from 8 A. M. until 6 P. M. there will be offered 2672 pairs of street, afternoon and evening slippers from the regular Shoecraft stock. Sizes 8½-9-9½-10—$1 more. The shop at 27 West 42 Street is open until 9 o'clock in the evening. NO CHARGES.

Sizes 1 to 10, widths AAAA to C, but not in all models crosstown shop 27 W. 42nd Street bet. fifth and sixth aves.

SHOECRAFT

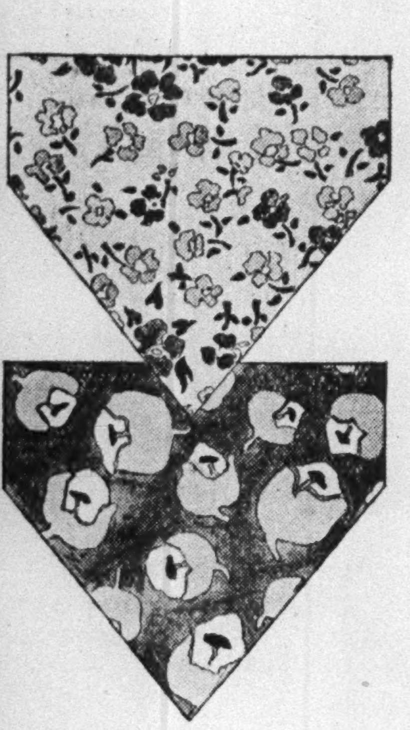
midtown shop 431 Fifth Avenue bet. 38th and 39th sts.



B. ALTMAN & CO.
FIFTH AVENUE AT THIRTY-FOURTH STREET
TELEPHONE: MURray HILL 7000

*

Beginning Monday—

IMPORTANT SALE of PRINTED SILK CREPES

$1.90 yd.

39 inches wide

New spring prints in small, sprightly patterns and larger, bolder effects; flattering colors harmoniously combined. These prints are destined to fashion the smartest new Spring dresses.

ALTMAN'S FOR YARD GOODS

SILKS — FIRST FLOOR

*

Patterns reflecting the newest phases of the mode—First Floor

FIFTH AVENUE AT THIRTY-FOURTH STREET

B. ALTMAN & CO.

MADISON AVENUE AT THIRTY-FIFTH STREET

TELEPHONE: MURray HILL 7000

BEGINNING MONDAY—

Sale of Printed Taffeta Evening Dresses

EXCEPTIONAL AT $39.50

Each of the three models offered outlines a new silhouette accented by the ingenious details that distinguish this season's vogue.

The prints are delightfully varied to meet individual taste; each is distinctive and of a quality not usually found at this price.

Three charmingly youthful models in sizes 14x to 20

MISSES' DRESSES — THIRD FLOOR

[JER]SEY OFFICIALS [C]ALLED IN BANK DEAL

[Treasu]rer and Controller to Be [Que]ried on Deposit in Little [F]erry National.

[CHANDL]ESS ASKED TO QUIT

[...] Fee From Lodi Sewer [Contrac]tors Who Indirectly Got Pay From $200,000 State Fund.

[Special] to The New York Times.

[TREN]TON, N. J., Feb. 15.—Sena[tor ...] D. Abell of Morris County, [...] of the legislative audit and [...]mmission, announced today [...]ce of subpoenas for the ap[...] on Monday of State Treas[urer Alber]t C. Middleton and State [Controller] John McCutcheon. Their [...] is desired in connection [with the in]vestigation of the deposit[...] [$20]0,000 of public funds in the [Little Ferr]y National Bank in Bergen [County, al]legedly to enable the bank [to purcha]se Lodi Township sewer [...]

[Senator] Abell said the subpoenas [...] issued until the committee [...]d that the officials planned [...] letters requesting their at[tendance.]

["We reg]ret," Mr. Abell said, "that [it is nec]essary to issue subpoenas, [but we b]elieve the Controller and [Treasurer] should be anxious to ap[pear and] clarify the circumstances [under wh]ich the deposit was made. [The publi]c is deeply interested and [...] to the information."

[The Se]nator said subpoenas had [...] issued for Charles Rosen[berg, pres]ident of the bank, and U. [...] Bratt, formerly attorney [for Lodi] Township.

[Senator] Abell said no subpoena [had been] issued for Senator Ralph W. Chan[d]less of Bergen County, who [negotiate]d the deposit.

Mr. C[ha]ndless has said that he ac[cepted a] fee of $10,000 for his part [in the tr]ansaction. He was counsel [for three] contractors engaged in the [constructi]on of a $220,000 sewer [project in] Lodi.

After [th]e deposit had been made [the bank] purchased township bonds, [enabling] Lodi to pay the contractors. The m[on]ey has since been with[drawn by] a draft issued by Middle[ton.]

Mr. [Ro]senberg has said that, in a [telephone] conversation with Mr. Mc[Cutcheon], arrangements were made [to keep] the money in the bank for [three yea]rs. This the Controller de[nied.]

[Demand] and Chandless Resign.

[Special] to The New York Times.

HAC[KE]NSACK, N. J., Feb. 15.—A [petition] calling for the resignation [of Ralph] W. Chandless as State Sen[ator fro]m Bergen County on the [ground th]at he had used his political [influence] unethically was placed in [circulatio]n here today.

The [pe]tition charges that Chandless [has admi]tted accepting a $10,000 fee [from co]ntractors building a sewer [in Lodi] Township for inducing the [State Co]ntroller to deposit $200,000 [of the S]tate's funds in the Little [Ferry N]ational Bank in order to en[able th]e bank to purchase bonds of [the to]wnship which financed the [sewer bu]ilding. These bonds, it was [charged], previously, had been reject[ed by the] controller and treasurer as unlawful for investment by the State.

"The payment of the said sum of $10,000 to Ralph W. Chandless under the circumstances admitted in his signed statement discloses an incorrect and unethical conception by him of the high office of State Senator," said the petition.

The petition further demanded that Douglas G. Thomson and Daniel E. Pomeroy, who it asserted had sponsored Chandless and now are sponsoring the candidacy of Dwight W. Morrow for United States Senator, demand Chandless's resignation "as an indication that they repudiate the methods of Mr. Chandless and sincerely uphold the ideals in public office which the Hon. Dwight W. Morrow stands for."

A special meeting of the Bergen County Bar Association has been called for Monday at which a proposal for an investigation of Chandless's acceptance of the fee will be discussed.

Mr. Chandless in a statement defending his acceptance of the fee accused John Borg, publisher of The Bergen Evening Record of Hackensack, of attacking his action for political purposes.

"Within my rights as an attorney," said Senator Chandless, "I represented the sewer contractors who were endeavoring to collect $200,000 due them by an almost bankrupt municipality. I had just as much right to do this as any other lawyer has to take the collection of any claim or retainer even from a criminal."

Edda Mussolini to Wed Son of Father's Aide; Rome Hails Alliance of Fascist Families

By The Associated Press.

ROME, Feb. 15.—The engagement of Edda Mussolini, daughter of the Italian Premier, to the son of the Minister of Communications was announced today, and tonight the press of the capital rejoiced. No date for the wedding was set.

She will wed Galleazzo Ciano, son of Costanzo Ciano. He is 27 years old and is secretary of the Italian Embassy at the Holy See. Signorina Mussolini is 19 years old, the elder of Il Duce's two daughters and a sportswoman. She also is an excellent linguist, a skilled violinist and pianist, and has traveled widely.

Premier Mussolini this afternoon gave a reception for a few friends and officials at his home, and there made formal announcement of the bethrothal.

Newspapers hailed the news delightedly. Lavoro Fascista, in a front-page editorial calls Edda the "gracious daughter of the head of the government," saying the new family about to be founded "will bear with it a precious inheritance of two names so high in Italian hearts."

La Tribuna calls the event "a reason for intimate and profound joy for all the great Fascist family." It praises Signorina Mussolini as a model young woman of the new Italy, pays tribute to her fiancé and concludes: "Let us, therefore, salute the bethrothal of these young people with the purest Fascist shout of joy—joy alala!"

The Giornale d'Italia hails the proposed marriage as "uniting the family of the head of the government with that of one of his oldest and most faithful collaborators."

Osservatore Romano does not comment, carrying merely a brief paragraph on the Premier's reception and announcement.

Despite their editorial comment, the papers were forced to handle the news in curious fashion. They were permitted editorial comment, but were forbidden by government order to carry more than a brief announcement in the way of news—no biographical material and no photographs.

Meanwhile hundreds of congratulations are pouring in for the engaged couple.

TRAIN KILLS PATROLMAN.

Member of Garfield, N. J., Force Is Hit at Erie Crossing.

Special to The New York Times.

GARFIELD, N. J., Feb. 15.—Patrolman Vincent Pudelski, 32 years old, was killed today by an Erie train at the Somerset Street crossing. The patrolman had just left headquarters in his sedan. The gates were up and the gateman, John Offagy, 62 years old, was found asleep in his booth. He was awakened and arrested by Patrolman Michael Turco.

Pudelski had been a member of the Garfield force for six years. He left his wife and four children.

HOLDS 2 IN KIDNAPPING OF PRICE IN NEW HAVEN

Officials Plan Extradition—Accused Men Identified Here by Victim and Friend.

Harry I. Fleisch and Samuel Handel, charged with being members of the gang that abducted Max Price in front of his home in New Haven, Conn., on the night of Jan. 28 and released him eight days later without obtaining any of the $25,000 demanded as ransom, were remanded for thirty days to the Tombs yesterday by Magistrate Stern.

Fleisch and Handel were identified by Mr. Price and Charles C. Sherman, a neighbor, as two of the seven that participated in the alleged kidnapping. Nelson R. Durant, Assistant City Attorney of New Haven, announced he would take immediate steps to have the two extradited.

Fleisch and Handel were arrested by Detective Edward A. Kirwan in a drug store at Fifty-first Street and Broadway, where he said he overheard them negotiating over the telephone with Mr. Price's relatives in New Haven for the release of the 66-year-old realty man on payment of the ransom.

Mr. Price said he recognized Fleisch as the driver of the automobile into which he was pushed on leaving his house in Kensington Street. Sherman picked out Handel as the one who pushed Price into the taxicab.

Detective Kirwan testified that Handel told him that a man named Birnbaum, whom he had known in Detroit, called him, saying he had a $3,000 job for him. Handel denied that the job was the abduction of Mr. Price or that he participated in the kidnapping.

James D. C. Murray, attorney for Fleisch and Handel, moved for the dismissal of the informations against his clients. Instead, Magistrate Stern ordered the pair held as fugitives from justice.

Domestic Rugs
featured in our
FEBRUARY SALE

THEY are now being shown in a greater variety and in effects which will immediately capture the interest of all contemplating purchases of this character.

Prominent among the various weaves are the surprisingly accurate Reproductions of Washed Oriental Carpets.

REPRODUCTIONS OF ORIENTAL RUGS
9' x 12'
from $125.00 to $190.00

SEAMLESS WILTON RUGS
9' x 12'
from $65.00 to $125.00

SEAMLESS AXMINSTER RUGS
9' x 12'
from $35.00 to $49.50

SEAMLESS VELVET RUGS
9' x 12'
from $35.00 to $65.00

BORDERED PLAIN RUGS
In Taupe, Jade, Raisin, Beige, Blue, Rose
9' x 12'
$49.50

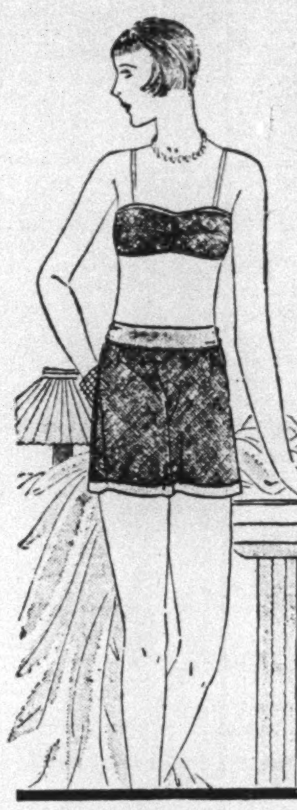
ANTIQUE HOOKED RUGS
from $8.00

BATH RUGS
Washable and Colorful
from $3.25

W. & J. SLOANE
575 FIFTH AVENUE at 47th STREET
NEW YORK CITY

SAKS 34TH STREET FASHIONS

Introducing . . .
MESHETTES



Panties and bandeaux . . . made of a new low-lustre, lacy mesh rayon . . . light, porous and simple to wash . . . just the thing to wear to business and on the golf course under your tweeds . . . So inexpensive you can easily afford several in the various charming colour combinations.

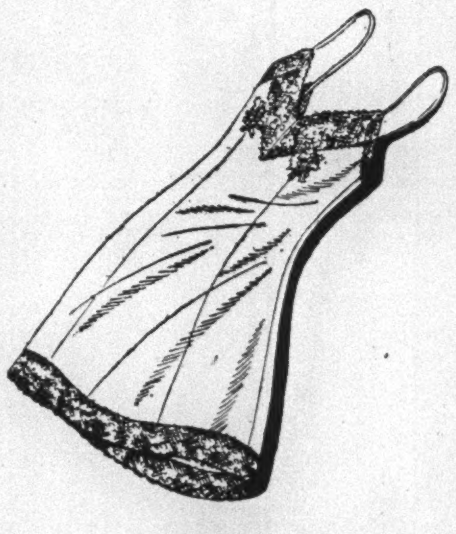
Pink and peach — Peach and nile
Nile and canary — Canary and peach
Azure and peach — White and azure

Panties, .95
Bandeaux, .75

LINGERIE—THIRD FLOOR

SAKS - 34 STREET
AT BROADWAY

Unusual Values
SILK COSTUME SLIPS



4.95

In the new lengths . . . for the longer gowns . . . Made of good quality satin and crepe de chine . . . with fitted princess or straight lines . . . bodice tops . . . or V cut backs . . . Attractively trimmed with lace . . . and having narrow shoulder straps. In blush, banana and peach. Sizes 34 to 44.

LINGERIE—THIRD FLOOR

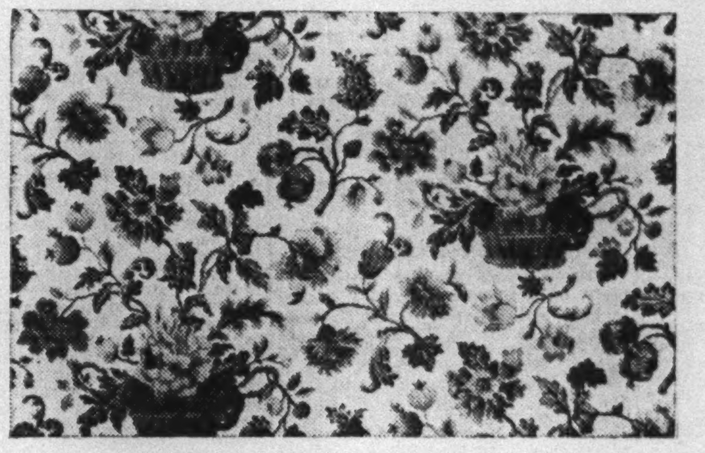
SAKS - 34 STREET
AT BROADWAY

[Other Macy News on Pages 11, 13, 19 and 22]

MACY'S
34TH STREET & BROADWAY

Colorful Accents for your Living Room and Bedroom

The wise use of color in your draperies and in the accessories of your rooms does much to enrich the appearance of your home. And at Macy's, of course, your selection entails only a moderate expense.



50-In. Printed Linen from England

$1.98 YARD

This flower basket design from England is a successful roller print which achieves the decorative charm of blocked linen at small cost. Four color combinations. 50 inches wide. CHINTZ ROOM—Sixth Floor, East Building

Brightly Colored Floor Hassocks

89¢ EACH

These gay floor hassocks are very convenient for informal parties and are comfortable and decorative footstools. Of artificial leather in a variety of designs and bright colorings. Sixth Floor, East Building

Lustrous Moquette Couch Covers

$9.94 EACH

These decorative covers are very effective for the studio couch or the daybed. They are imported and the design comes in predominating colors of henna, taupe or blue. They measure 9 x 5 feet. Sixth Floor, East Building

Solid Color Double Blankets

$6.94 PAIR

The clear, fresh colors of these blankets are charming against white sheets or pastel sheets of a contrasting shade. Sateen-bound; size 66 x 80 in. In green, gold, rose, blue, tan or lavender. Second Floor, West Building

PROF W. S. DAVIS, NOTED AUTHOR, DEAD

Former Member of Faculty at University of Minnesota Succumbs at 53.

WROTE HISTORICAL WORKS

Many of His Books Have Been Widely Read—Dies in Exeter, N. H.

EXETER, N. H., Feb. 15 (AP).—William Stearns Davis, author of historical works and Professor of History at the University of Minnesota from 1909 to 1925, died today in the Exeter Hospital, at the age of 53.

Professor Davis was widely known for his "Gilman of Redford," "The Whirlwind," "The Roots of the War" (1918), "A Day in Old Athens," "The Friar of Wittenberg" and "An Outline History of the Roman Empire."

A native of Amherst, Mass., he was graduated from Harvard in 1900. The university awarded him a Master of Arts degree in 1901 and that of Doctor of Philosophy in 1905.

His early college teaching was at Radcliffe and Beloit. Before going to the University of Minnesota he was a member of Oberlin College's faculty. In 1925 he came here to devote himself to writing.

A widow, the former Alice W. Redfield of Minneapolis, survives. The funeral will be held on Monday. Burial will be in Pittsfield, Mass.

Other books by Professor Davis, besides those mentioned, were "Belshazzar," published in 1902 and reissued in 1925; "Life on a Medieval Balcony," 1923, and "Europe Since Waterloo," 1926, which were reviewed at length in THE TIMES; "A Friend of Caesar," 1900, his first book and a successful one, and "A Victor of Salamis."

MRS. MARY OLIVER PERRY.

Granddaughter of Revolutionary Hero Dies at 90.

Mrs. Mary Oliver Perry, widow of the Rev. Samuel M. Perry and one of the few surviving granddaughters of the American Revolution, died on Friday midnight at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Damerel, 234 East Nineteenth Street, Flatbush. Mrs. Perry, who would have been 91 years old on Wednesday, had been in good health until stricken on Thursday. Funeral services will be conducted at her late home this afternoon and tomorrow, also at Smyrna, Del., where the interment will be made.

She was the granddaughter of David Richards, who fought in the Revolutionary War as a member of the "Blue Hen's Chickens" regiment and whose family homestead in Smyrna was used as a barracks. Her husband, who died about eight years ago, had held Presbyterian pastorates in Maryland. Although eligible to join any of the Revolutionary patriotic societies in the country, Mrs. Perry did not hold membership in any of them. She is survived by her daughter and five grandchildren.

Harvey E. Platt Dead.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—Harvey E. Platt, president and treasurer of the J. L. N. Smythe Company, paper merchants, died last night at the Graduate Hospital in his sixty-first year. Services will be held Monday afternoon at his Overbrook home. Mr. Platt was born in Glens Falls, N. Y. He helped to found the firm which he headed until his death. He was a member of the Union League and University Clubs. A widow and a son, Harvey E. Platt Jr., survive.

Nicholas P. Wedin Buried.

Funeral services for Nicholas Peter Wedin, former Sheriff of Hudson County, N. J., who died Thursday of heart disease, were held yesterday at St. Aloysius Roman Catholic Church, Jersey City, the Rev. Martin J. Duffy officiating. Burial was in Holy Name Cemetery, Jersey City. Representatives of the three Democratic political factions now at odds in Jersey City attended the services.

Edwin Rochven Wallace.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Feb. 15.—Edwin Rochven Wallace died at the Stamford Hospital yesterday. He was 73 years old and was a native of Darien. He had been a seafaring man all his life and in recent years had been master of private yachts. Mr. Wallace is survived by his widow, three sons and two daughters.

J. C. Wilmarth.

EL PASO, Texas, Feb. 15 (AP).—J. C. Wilmarth, formerly general manager of the El Paso Herald, died suddenly here yesterday. He retired from active business several years ago and since then had devoted his time to civic affairs. The body will be sent to Janesville, Wis., his former home, for burial. Mr. Wilmarth had resided in El Paso since 1898.

Morgan H. Bowman.

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 15 (AP).—Morgan H. Bowman of Uniontown, Pa., banker and capitalist, died here early today. He had been stricken with pneumonia on his way to Florida with his daughter, Mrs. Richard Coulter. His age was 81.

Other Obituary Notices are printed on Page 7, Section Two.

JOHN J. PAGE DEAD.

President of Blackford's, a Century-Old Fulton Market Firm.

John J. Page, president of Blackford's, 133 Beekman Street, a firm of fish dealers which has been in Fulton Market for a century, died on Thursday at his residence, the Hotel White, Thirty-seventh Street and Lexington Avenue, of pernicious anemia, after a year's illness. He was 68 years old and had been associated with Blackford's since 1885. He was a member of the National Democratic Club.

Surviving Mr. Page are his widow, Dora Leonard Page; two sons, Eugene and Leonard, and four daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Hookey and the Misses Marjorie, Elizabeth and Geraldine Page.

A mass of requiem will be offered at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in St. Gabriel's Church.

GEORGE H. STORMS, 83, DIES

Civil War Veteran Sold Rockefeller Much of His Estate.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 15.—George H. Storms, who with co-heirs once owned and then sold to John D. Rockefeller, Sr., most of the latter's holdings in Pocantico Hills, died at his home in Sunnyside Avenue here this morning at the age of 83.

Mr. Storms enlisted in the Union Army under age by running away to Albany. He fought with the army of the Shenandoah and took part in Sherman's march to the sea and in the siege of Richmond.

He and other heirs of his parents sold their estate for a little more than $100 an acre.

Marquis Claes Lagergren.

Announcement was made here last night of the death Thursday of the Marquis Claes Lagergren at his residence in Rome, the Palazzo Brancaccio. The Marquis, whose home was Tyreso, Stockholm, Sweden, was a former Private Chamberlain to Pope Leo XIII. In July, 1922, in Stockholm, he married Mrs. Gardiner Sherman of New York, a daughter of the late John Ogden. Ira Nelson Morris, American Minister to Sweden, and Captain Axel F. Wallenberg, Swedish Minister to Washington, attended the ceremony.

Frederick H. Grindley.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 15 (By the Canadian Press).—Frederick H. Grindley, secretary of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists and editor of Scientific Agriculture, died at his residence here early today. A severe illness two months ago resulted in Mr. Grindley's confinement in a hospital for some time, but he seemed well on his way to recovery when a fatal attack of pleurisy was suffered. He was 40 years old.

The Very Rev. Sixtus Lagorio.

The Very Rev. Sixtus Lagorio, O. F. M., of the Franciscan Order of Friars Minor, who was pastor of St. Anthony's Church in Sullivan Street for some years prior to 1929, died yesterday in the French Hospital at the age of 67. He had also been a member of the faculty of St. Anthony's Seminary at Catskill, N. Y. Services will be held in St. Anthony's Church at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

George F. Thorne Dies Suddenly.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENFIELD, Mass., Feb. 15.—George F. Thorne, a train dispatcher on the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine Railroad at the East Deerfield freight yards, died suddenly today of heart disease in the lobby of the Hotel Devens. He was 60 years old. Railroad officials and Greenfield police are attempting to locate relatives. It is reported he had a brother in New Jersey.

Frank Orchard.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Feb. 15.—Frank Orchard, local manager of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company for twenty-seven years, died of pneumonia today at the age of 55. He was born in Omro, Wis.

ART WORK SHOWN BY PHYSICIANS HERE

Exhibition of 200 Paintings and Other Creations Opens at Academy of Medicine.

WIDE RANGE OF SUBJECTS

Canvases Include Many Landscapes—Only One Is Based on Medical Subject.

The New York Physicians Art Club opened its fourth annual exhibition last night with a reception at the Academy of Medicine, 103d Street and Fifth Avenue. Until March 15 the oil paintings, water-colors, prints, sculptures, and photographs which make up the exhibition will be on view daily.

Only a few of the artists show in their choice of subjects any preoccupation with medical problems which might disclose their identity as physicians. Aside from a picture of a physician examining a patient by fluroscopy, painted by Dr. Louis Rachlin of Brooklyn, the canvases depict no subjects not familiar to the laymen.

Geographically, these subjects range from Mount Fujiyama, in Japan, to Lake Louise and Amalfi, Italy, though the majority depict familiar American scenes. A trace of modernism in the landscapes is perhaps more noticeable this year than at the last show. Other subjects of these physician-artists vary from a contented cat to cheese and crackers and the styles are correspondingly diversified.

Dr. Henry A. Bancel, 34 Nassau Street, has entered in the exhibition five water-colors, several of which are marines and one a study of a Colonial house. Dr. Hermann Fischer, another water-colorist, also shows marines. Dr. I. Rosen is showing a large water-color of tulips. Dr. B. S. Barringer has framed a modernistic study of an old deserted house in ancient wood, which looks as if it might have been a timber of the house portrayed. Dr. Alonzo de Grate Smith and Dr. H. B. Richardson of Darien, Conn., have entered still lifes.

Dr. Beran Wolfe is showing diversified sculptures, among which is a ceramic figure study with a steel-colored glaze. Dr. I. Seth Hirsch also has sculptures in the show. Most of the exhibits, which number more than 200, are the work of New York physicians. This exhibition is perhaps more local in character than its predecessors, since physicians in other cities have followed the example of their New York colleagues and started shows of their own.

Among the other exhibitors at the show are Dr. Lionel Auster, Dr. J. C. Ayer, Dr. Solomon Bauch, Dr. Fensick Beekman, Dr. H. H. Champlin, Dr. George H. Pierce, Dr. Robert L. Dickinson, Dr. Percy Fridenberg and Dr. James A. McCreedy.

Mrs. D. E. Foster.

Special to The New York Times.

TRURO, N. S., Feb. 15.—The death occurred here last night of Mrs. D. E. Foster. One of her three sons is Dr. M. C. Foster, assistant professor of mathematics at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn. Another son is Dr. D. D. Foster of the research department of the Bell Telephone Company, New York. Mrs. Foster was 70 years old and a prominent member of the Baptist Church in Truro.

Miss Lela Mary Wright.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—Miss Lela Mary Wright, founder of the Wright School at Bryn Mawr, a preparatory school for girls, died at her home there yesterday. She was 55 years old. Born in St. Louis, Miss Wright was graduated from Miss Aikens School at Stamford, Conn., and entered Bryn Mawr College in 1902.

FORMING REPUBLICAN CLUB

Mrs. J. D. Berry Jr. Tells Plans of New Jersey Women.

Mrs. John D. Berry Jr. of Newark, vice chairman of the New Jersey State Republican Committee, said last night that the Women's Republican Club of New Jersey, which she and Mrs. W. Reginald Baker, Republican national committeewoman, are organizing, is in no way connected with the defunct club of which Mrs. Lillian F. Feickert was president.

"Even if Mrs. Feickert's club had continued in existence we would have formed this new club," Mrs. Berry said. She announced its purpose would be mainly educational and that it would take no part in primary campaigns as an organization, but only in general elections in support of the Republican candidates. It is planned to hold three large meetings a year.

Aiding Mrs. Berry and Mrs. Baker are ten active Republican women, five of them holding office in the party and selected by Mrs. Berry as "official members," and the other five selected by Mrs. Baker as "unofficial members." Mrs. Berry said she did not expect the club to be completely formed before several weeks.

PLAN SHOW TO AID BLIND.

Community Workers to Present 4 One-Act Plays on March 9.

The Community Workers of the New York Guild for the Jewish Blind will present four one-act plays on the evening of March 9 at the Ritz Theatre. Under the direction of Gladys Pabst, an all-feminine cast will play "Poor Me," by Elsie West Quaife and May Rose Nathan, and "They Were Deceivers Ever," by Richard L. Melville.

The men of the company, directed by Charles Edgecomb, will present "Poets All," by Conrad Seiler, and "The Show Must Go On," by Richard Willis.

The proceeds of the performance will be divided among the groups for a vacation fund.

HAYWARD REWEDS EX-WIFE.

Leland, Son of Col. Hayward, Marries Mrs. Inez Gibbs Sayles.

Leland Hayward, only son of Colonel William Hayward by his first marriage, and Mrs. Inez Gibbs Sayles were remarried on Friday in Dallas, Texas, according to a special telegram to THE TIMES yesterday.

At Mr. Hayward's home, 215 East Seventy-third Street, it was said he and his bride were expected to arrive today. The marriage took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilde Gibbs of Dallas and New York, parents of the former Mrs. Sayles. Mr. Hayward and his bride will go to Colonel Hayward's Palm Beach home on the honeymoon.

Mr. Hayward secretly married the former Miss Gibbs in 1921, when she was 18 years old and he was a student at Princeton University. It had been reported before the marriage that Miss Gibbs's engagement to Frederic Clark Sayles Jr. of Irvington, N. Y., was forthcoming. Three years later the Haywards were divorced in Paris and several months afterward Mrs. Hayward was married to Mr. Sayles. This union was dissolved on Jan. 30, 1928, in Remo.

MORGENTHAU TELLS OF DAYS AS PUPIL

At Luncheon to Teachers, He Reviews the Progress of America Since 1870.

HONOR GUEST AT P. S. 14

Miss Mary V. Moore, the Principal, Describes His and Wife's Aid to School's Boys and Girls.

Recalling the days when he was a pupil in Public School 14, Henry Morgenthau recounted many of the changes that have taken place in the world, especially in America, since then in an informal talk yesterday to the teachers of the school in the music room of the American Woman's Association Club, 353 West Fifty-seventh Street.

The occasion was a luncheon given by the former Ambassador to Turkey and Mrs. Morgenthau to the teachers in appreciation of the progress made in the health program of the school, where the principal, Miss Mary V. Moore, and her teachers have worked with the cooperation of the Bellevue-Yorkville Health Demonstration.

As one who was a graduate from the school in 1870, Mr. Morgenthau recalled many of his experiences as a pupil who entered the school at the age of 12.

"It is remarkable how things have been going on all these years," he said. "When I was a pupil at the school the United States was really in its swaddling clothes. To think that I've seen all these changes. And all through my life I have never forgotten the splendid impression the teachers of Public School 14 made upon me."

He told of seeing one of the first telephones in operation over a distance of 150 feet at the American Institute, and of the early typewriter model and Corliss engine of 1,400 horse power at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876.

"This steam engine was a wonder at that time," he remarked, "and how insignificant it seems today."

Speaking of the "princes and generals" of industry of the present day who have climbed to the top through their own ability, he mentioned President Hoover as a man who had risen from the masses.

He then reviewed the advance of evolution and America's rise to become a world power, telling the teachers they were destined to witness a more beautiful drama in world affairs than had taken place within the last half cenutry.

Miss Moore, the principal, described Mr. and Mrs. Morgenthau as home-like people, who had, in a quietly helpful way, assisted the teachers with any project that would enrich the lives of the boys and girls, especially those in the undernourished group. Other speakers were Miss Teresa Fields, executive director of the American Woman's Association Club; Miss Nina B. Laughlin, executive consultant in health education of the Bellevue-Yorkville Health Demonstration, and Miss Joel Long, in charge of the dental clinic at the health centre.

DEFENDS WAR BOOK CLERIC.

Author of "Retreat" Tells Critics Such Chaplains Did Exist.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—C. R. Benstead, an artillery officer during the war and now a Lieutenant Commander in the British Navy, today answered the critics of his novel, "Retreat." He was absent from England when the controversy arose concerning his picture of an army chaplain, but he has now returned from Spain in H. M. S. Emperor of India.

Among those who attacked the book was the Rev. P. T. B. ("Tubby") Clayton, who said Commander Benstead's parson "need not be wept for, since he never lived or died."

Commander Benstead asserted he knew two such chaplains as he had portrayed. "Others," he declared, "saw them and said so publicly and privately. The so-called challenge of "Retreat" concerns the position of Christianity in a world abandoned to wars.

It asks a question: Was the chaplain as a preached of Christ's gospel of peace a passenger in the war or was he not?

"To depict this appalling incongruity in the sharpest relief, I selected an exceptional man in exceptional circumstances. I pointed out he was not typical. I point out now there is nothing intrinsically discreditable in him. He is a spiritually finer man than those who took the easier mission."

"Retreat" was published in the United States yesterday.

JUDGE LEHMAN HONORED.

Guest of Men's Club of Temple Emanu-El on Father and Son Night.

Judge Irving Lehman of the Court of Appeals and president of Congregation Emanu-El was guest of honor at a dinner given by the Men's Club last night in the temple at 1 East Sixty-fifth Street. The event also was the annual Father and Son Evening. About 150 attended.

Judge Lehman called on the club to help keep alive the traditions of Temple Emanu-El and Temple Beth-El and pleaded for a restoration of the warmth and beauty and joy of Judaism, which he feared were lessening in America.

Many speakers paid tributes both to Judge Lehman and to his predecessor as president of the temple, the late Louis Marshall. Among the speakers were:

Dr. SAMUEL SCHULMAN, rabbi of Temple Emanu-El.
MYRON SULZBERGER, Municipal Court Justice and president of the Men's Club.
ROGER STRAUS, president of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods.
ADOLPH S. OCHS.
MILTON M. GOLDSMITH, toastmaster.

At the same time a meeting of the Woman's Association of the American Ort, a society devoted to the fostering of Jewish agriculture and industry in eastern Europe, was held in another hall in the temple. Dr. G. F. Beck, director of the Labor Temple School of New York, spoke on Spengler's "Decline of the West." Mrs. Leon Harris presided.

The RIGHT SHOE FOR SUITS . . .

The strap shoe of suede trimmed with leather, in black, brown and sunburn. 12.50

We have chosen this shoe . . . in opera and one-strap styles as an example of the perfect type of shoe for suits . . . It expresses the same tailored feeling, it is simple and graceful as to line, and has a definite chic...combining as it does suede and leather, and a solid leather heel.

The tailored opera pump of suede trimmed with leather . . . black, brown and sunburn. 12.50

SHOES—THIRD FLOOR

SAKS-34 STREET
AT BROADWAY

CLOSING TIME FOR BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES advertising for insertion in The New York Times on Sunday is 8 P. M. Friday preceding. Advertisements received after that hour are subject to omission.—Advt.

Semi-Annual Sale of Housewares Begins Tomorrow (Monday). As Usual Gimbels will Meet Every Competitor on an Equal Basis.

SHOP GIMBELS AND SEE FOR YOURSELF

CREATORS FOR FORTY YEARS OF THE WORLD'S FINEST GLOVES

Touraine
536 FIFTH AVENUE
AT 44TH STREET

The Last touch to your costume – but decidedly not the Least

They must be a subtle complement to the mode ... that is why Touraine studies the styles from hat to shoes and creates gloves that faithfully interpret the current trends.

AT THIS NEW AND DIFFERENT STORE THEY ARE
$2.95 and $3.50

Slipons ... Novelty Slipons ... Novelty Cuffs ... in Kid ... Suede ... Capeskin

Paris is doing grand things with blouses—

And in New York they're lovelier and more important than ever—

And Russeks collection is loveliest and most important of all!

This happy-go-lucky affair of fine pique, with embroidered monogram, short sleeves and buttoned front. Fancy it at . . . $3.95

This blouse of white crepe, with its gracefully casual neckline, fitted waist and faggoting. Try to duplicate it at . . . $9.95

A short sleeved sports blouse of striped men's wear silk shirting has inverted tucks to allow freedom to the shoulders $9.95

The split bertha collar and crystal buttons of this soft sleeveless blouse are ultra-feminine — and ultra-flattering . . . $14.95

Oakleaf tucking on the collar and frill of a pastel blouse of flat crepe is decidedly novel — and attractive . $9.95

Sports Shop—Sizes 14 to 20—Street Floor

RUSSEKS
FIFTH AVENUE AT 36TH STREET

IF YOU ARE NOT SLENDER

Georgette, black, blue, green, $35

Black, orchid, white-chiffon $35

Dinner dress, black and castor, $35

Spring Frocks Go Lunching, Teaing, Dining, Dancing

$35

A Specialized Group—at a Specialized Price

These chiffon, lace, georgette, flat and printed crepe dresses bespeak their newness with boleros, capes, even hemlines, hemlines that dip in the Spring fashion, waistlines defined, and new Spring shades. They are all correctly proportioned to fit the larger figure—short or tall. And they are very unusual values . . . . .

Misses'-Plus & Little Women's Sizes, 18+ to 28+ and 35½ to 47½. Women's Sizes, 38 to 56½

Lane Bryant
1 West 39th St., New York
15 Hanover Place, Brooklyn
917 Broad Street, Newark

BAKU HATS

AT SUCH A VERY LOW PRICE (special, of course) that you simply must have one!

BEDELL

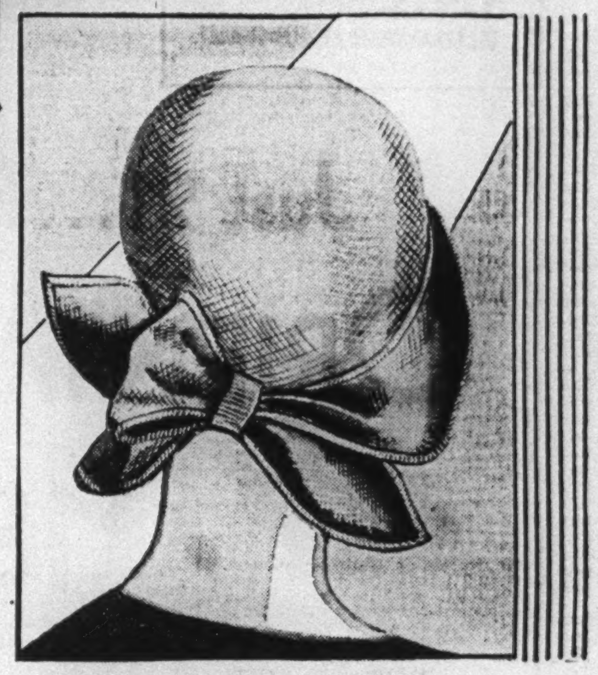
THIRTY-FOURTH STREET NEAR FIFTH AVENUE

Plenty of black, because black is so important. And the colors! All the new blues, from soft to bright to navy—violet, beiges, reds, greens, brown, natural. Choose one for every frock at this price!

$6

Regularly $10 and $12.50

BAKU BANGKOK BALLIBUNTL



ALL SIZES 21½ to 23

NO smart wardrobe will be without these three favored straws, Spring of 1930. That's what makes this Bedell millinery event so spectacular. That's what makes it so very imperative for every forward-looking woman to share in this Advance Sale now!

You will be charmed with the profusion of charming new styles available at this extraordinary low Bedell price! Simple cloches for sports wear — drooping brims to complement chiffons, georgettes, and prints—small off-the-face types with brims manipulated in a hundred interesting ways — snug-to-the-head variations and tricornes for tailored ladies.

SALE NEW LACE DRESSES

Bedell presents every smart version at the startling price of $18

As every smart woman knows, the lace frock is the darling of the season for afternoon, evening, and all informal occasions!

Made to sell at $35, $29.75 and $25

All the other leading silk frocks of Spring 1930, too, at $18

...gay, small prints, lovely chiffons, sheer georgettes, Canton crepes—moire and satin for evening.

Certainly, every woman should rejoice to share in a fashion-event so definitely important and unusual as this! Styles that will charm you . . . for these frocks are all copies of high-priced originals!

Lace frocks with puff sleeves—lace frocks with jackets—lace frocks with capelets—lace frocks with narrow belts—lace frocks in the new lengths—lace frocks with new necklines . . . . Lace frocks in black, white, red, blues, eggshell, greens, purple, navy, rust, pastels . . .

Lace frocks of a quality you had probably no idea you might find at $18!

BEDELL DRESS SALON : : THIRD FLOOR

NOTABLE RECITAL BY RACHMANINOFF

Pianist Displays a Remarkable Range of Dynamics and Effects in Carnegie Hall.

STRAUSS DANCES DELIGHT

He Plays Schumann's "Novelettes" With a Force and Compactness Rarely Bestowed Upon Work.

By OLIN DOWNES.

A recital by Serge Rachmaninoff in Carnegie Hall is invariably a significant musical event. The sheer greatness of the man's style and musical conception are as impressive the twentieth time as they are the first.

Mr. Rachmaninoff seemed to have special inspiration and special command of his instrument yesterday afternoon. The Beethoven sonata, Op. 78, must go unreviewed by this writer. It was followed by one of the largest and in some respects most redundant of the Schumann novelettes, the one in F-sharp minor, Opus 21. The performance was not precisely in the manner of Schumann, at least as exemplified by other and sympathetic Schumann interpreters. The colors were stronger than Schumann's, and clearer. The Schumann arabesques of tone and the mysterious pedal effects which can be used with so much charm in this piece were sacrificed in a measure to a style more virile, direct, masculine in intention. Everything was in clearer, bolder lines than Schumann's writing would seem to suggest, and by so much was the music given a saliency, force and compactness rarely bestowed upon it. It was Schumann perceived and conveyed by an individuality of sterner stuff than the dreaming Eusebius. But that was proved to be Mr. Rachmaninoff's right, and our interest and advantage.

Mr. Rachmaninoff played the Chopin B-flat minor sonata differently from any other pianist of whom we know, with singularly felicitous mingling and contrasting of the two principal emotional elements of the opening movement—the mood of desperate resolve and the Hamlet broodings, self-questionings, self-tortures, which are particularly evident in the part known as the "free fantasia" of the movement. These Chopin improvises upon; they rather develop symphonically his thematic material. Before the reprise of this movement, if memory serves, Mr. Rachmaninoff omitted one chord, with a gain in conciseness and dramatic effect. The funeral march was grim and black and the relentless resumption of the march with its implacable tread, after the melodic interlude, will not soon be forgotten. The mood of grimness and of a brooding and tragic contemplation were maintained beneath the most tempestuous passages and ruled the strange whirling measures of the finale. This sonata is too accessible to mediocrities. When a master plays it the effect of the music is prodigious.

The last group of the program comprised studies from Rachmaninoff's "Etudes Tableaux," Op. 33, and the Strauss-Tausig transcription, "Man liebt nur einmall." In the studies, which are short and extremely well written, Mr. Rachmaninoff showed to a greater degree than in any other moment of the afternoon his full and remarkable range of dynamics, his control of nuances, tone-color and other pianistic effects. His performance of Strauss's dance music delighted every one by its vitality, virtuosity and finesse. Mr. Rachmaninoff of course played encores, to a packed house.

Lighthouse Players' Program.

Three one-act plays will be presented at the Booth Theatre on the afternoon of March 13 by the Lighthouse Players of the New York Association for the Blind. "Not in Evidence," by Anne Murray; "The Third Angle," by Florence Ryerson, and "On the Lot," by Florence Ryerson and Colin Campbell Clements, will comprise the program, under the sponsorship of the company's advisory committee of Broadway playwrights and actors.

The official Newark-Trenton Diocesan Pilgrimage to the Eucharistic Congress at Carthage sailing on the specially reserved steamer

"Rochambeau"
April 23, 1930

During stay at Carthage the ship is your hotel

also

Rome
Passion Play at OBERAMMERGAU
Lourdes

Basic Tour . . . . . 40 days
Extension Tour . . 52 days

Rates as low as $472

For full information apply to Pilgrimage Headquarters

Trenton Diocese: Chancery Office
153 No. Warren St., Trenton, N. J

Newark Diocese: 19 State Stree'
New York City

HAROLD BAUER GIVES A BRILLIANT RECITAL

Pianist at Times Brings Out Tone Colors Resembling an Orchestra's.

Harold Bauer, the distinguished pianist, appeared in recital yesterday afternoon at Town Hall. The printed list included the Fantasia of Mozart in C minor; that of Haydn in C major, the pianist's own arrangement of Bach's B flat Partita, played charmingly "in the style of the harpsichord"; Beethoven's "Moonlight" sonata; Brahms's E flat Rhapsody and pieces by Schumann, Chopin, Debussy, Schubert and Mendelssohn.

It would seem that Mr. Bauer's long training as a violinist might have something to do with the lyric tone he evokes from the pianoforte, for if there ever was any pianistic succession of tones which might be described as possessing sustained singing quality, those of Mr. Bauer justly claim that distinction. Probably, also, Mr. Bauer is intimately acquainted with orchestral timbre, as is Pablo Casals, who is at once 'cellist, pianist and orchestral conductor. Many times during the recital the pianist made the instrument seem to step out of its limits, especially in passages of massive chord structure, and to assume the variety of tone-color of an orchestra. Perhaps, however, instead of searching for involved explanations of Mr. Bauer's versatile art, it would be simplest to say that he is a musician and virtuoso who is intimately acquainted with every resource of his chosen instrument.

A distinguishing characteristic of the program and its interpretation was that he played it yesterday afternoon with as fresh and individual reading as if he were presenting the items for the first time, instead of what must be scores of times. Mendelssohn's E minor "Scherzo," with the sheerly delicate work of the soloist, especially delighted the auditors, who demanded a repetition.

The large audience lost no occasion to evidence its enthusiasm. At the close of the printed program there was the customary flocking of admirers to the stage and many encores.

NEW OPERA TO BE LAID IN CHILDS' RESTAURANT

Georges Antheil, Young Composer, Asks for Pictures to Aid Him in Writing Score.

Georges Antheil, young Camden composer, hopes to represent a Childs restaurant on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera Company next year as the scenic background for the American opera he is now writing, it was learned yesterday. Mr. Antheil, noted for his strange use of instruments, such as cowbells and sledge hammers, in his "Ballet Mechanique," is, according to Charles B. Case Jr. of 41 Fisher Place, Trenton, his agent in this country, now at work on the score in Europe and has requested pictures of Childs Restaurants to aid him.

Mr. Case, in a letter to the Childs Company, said the composer had been commissioned by Otto H. Kahn to write the opera, a statement on which Mr. Kahn was not reached for comment and on which the Metropolitan remained silent. There has been considerable rumor and report concerning the forthcoming work and John Erskine has been named several times as the librettist, on which he, too, was silent.

Mr. Case, in wrtiing to the Childs Company, said:

"Scenes of this opera, which is to be given in this country next year, are laid in Childs and it is desired to render the scenery sets in as faithful detail as possible."

OLD THEATRE TO END NOTABLE CAREER SOON

Greenwich Village Structure to Be Razed This Month—Many Plays Produced There.

When "General John Regan" ends its engagement at the Greenwich Village Theatre, Seventh Avenue at West Fourth Street, known since last Fall as the Irish Theatre, that house will conclude its career of fourteen years, in which it has presented a variety of musical and dramatic productions. As recently announced, the theatre, which was built by Mrs. Marguerite Barker in 1916, will be torn down late this month, to be replaced by a nineteen-story apartment house.

Among the plays produced at the theatre were Eugene O'Neill's "Ile," "The Fountain," "Diff'rent," "The Straw," "Desire Under the Elms" and, under the management of the Provincetown Players, "All God's Chillun Got Wings." Other well-known productions there were "The Better 'Ole," with the Coburns; "Samson and Delilah," with Jacob Ben-Ami; the first "Greenwich Village Follies," in 1919; Congreve's "Love for Love," Maxwell Anderson's "Outside Looking In" and a revival of "Fashion." Players who appeared there included Frank Conroy, the first director of the theatre; Nance O'Neill, Margaret Wycherly, Emily Stevens, Alice Brady, Joseph Schildkraut, Otto Kruger, Walter Huston, Clare Eames, Paul Robson and Mary Morris.

Billie E. Stout Marries Dramatist.

Billie E. Stout of New York, a principal in the Pacific Coast company of "Follow Thru," was married yesterday in Hollywood to Herbert Ashton Jr. Mr. Ashton, who is the author of "The Come-On Man" and "Brothers," is now writing for Columbia Pictures. Miss Stout is the daughter of J. B. Stout.

"LA TRAVIATA" REPEATED.

Miss Bori and Jagel Delight at Matinee—Miss Mueller in "Butterfly."

Lucrezia Bori and Frederick Jagel delighted a large matinee audience yesterday at the Metropolitan Opera House with impersonations of the two lovers in "La Traviata" which pictorially and vocally left little to be desired for a vivid and convincing performance of Verdi's tuneful music-drama. There were many recalls after each act. Mr. De Luca as Germont received a deserved ovation after the "Di Provenza" and the others in an excellent cast included Mmes. Egener and Falco and Messrs. Bada, Gandolfi, Picco and Ananian. Mr. Serafin conducted.

Puccini's "Madam Butterfly" was repeated last night at the Metropolitan Opera House with Maria Mueller as Cio-Cio-San and Armand Tokatyan as Pinkerton. Others in the cast were Ina Bourskaya, Phradie Wells and Messrs. Scotti, Paltrinieri, Malatesta, Gustafson, Quintina and D'Angelo. The usual large Saturday night audience greeted the interpreters warmly. Vincenzo Bellezza conducted.

Crain Promotes Marro and Moore.

P. Francis Marro, Chief Deputy Assistant District Attorney in charge of the Homicide Bureau, was promoted to Assistant District Attorney, with a salary of $7,500, by District Attorney Crain yesterday. William B. Moore, nephew of Mr. Crain's predecessor, Joab H. Banton, was promoted to Chief Deputy Assistant District Attorney. Mr. Crain also announced the resignation of Alexander Lehman as an Assistant District Attorney, and the appointment of Arthur Markewich, with a law office at 51 Chambers Street, as a Deputy Assistant District Attorney.

ORATORIO SOCIETY GIVES VARIED PROGRAM

Chorus Sings Works of Wide Range—Instruments Seldom Heard Are Played.

The Oratorio Society of New York gave a concert of early a capella and modern choral music last night before an audience of good size in the Town Hall under the direction of Albert Stoessel. Added interest was given to the program by several instrumental works for combinations of instruments infrequently heard today. They included short pieces for flute and harp by Blas de Laserna, Loeillet, Widor and Rimsky-Korsakoff, played by Marcel Grandjany, harp, and Rene Le Roy, flute; Debussy's sonata for flute, viola and harp, with Messrs. Stoessel, viola, Grandjany and Le Roy; and a group of harp soli by Respighi, Bach, Ada Zeller and Grandjany.

The chorus, which was large, sang music from Praetorius, Vittoria and Bach to modern works by Loeffler, represented by Psalm 137 ("By the Rivers of Babylon") and folksongs arranged by Hugh S. Robertson and R. Vaughan Williams. The Loeffler work, for four-part chorus of women's voices with accompaniment of organ, harp, two flutes and 'cello obbligato, enlisted the services of Sallie Possell, flute; Naoum Benditzky, 'cello; Hugh Porter, organ; Messrs. Grandjany and Le Roy and Alfred M. Greenfield, accompanist.

HELENE HASKIN ON STAGE.

Prospective Society Debutante In Chorus of Fred Stone's Show.

After studying singing for two seasons under the direction of Mrs. Ernest Van Rensselaer Stires, daughter of Mme. Louise Homer, the opera singer, Helene M. C. Haskin is appearing for the first time on the stage as a member of the chorus of Fred Stone's new musical extravaganza, "Ripples," it was learned yesterday. Miss Haskin joined the company several days before it opened in New Haven on Jan. 28, without rehearsing the usual five weeks required by participation in large musical shows.

Miss Haskin is 18 years old and resides with her mother, whose address is listed in the social register as 117 West Fifty-eighth Street. In June, 1927, she was graduated from St. Agnes's Episcopal School in Alexandria, Va. Miss Haskin will soon make her debut in society.

OUSTS McCORMICK DOCTOR.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Feb. 15 (AP).—Dr. A. J. Kempf, psychoanalyst, who has been receiving $120,000 a year to treat Stanley McCormick, was ordered ousted from his position March 15 by Superior Judge William Dehy today.

Judge Dehy instructed that new medical care be provided for McCormick, denied Mrs. Stanley McCormick's petition to be appointed sole guardian of her husband and ordered that two guardians be added to the board, which now consists of the wife and Harold McCormick and Mrs. Anita Blaine McCormick.

Semi-Annual Sale of Housewares Begins Tomorrow (Monday). As Usual Gimbels will Meet Every Competitor on an Equal Basis.

SHOP GIMBELS AND SEE FOR YOURSELF

THE APARTMENT SEEKER finds the Apartments to Let columns of The New York Times a convenient and dependable guide. The listing of apartments by street address and in the case of Manhattan (in the classified columns) by the number of rooms available makes these announcements easy to refer to.—Advt.

ARNOLD CONSTABLE
FIFTH AVENUE AT 40TH STREET

AT AVERAGE SAVINGS OF ONE-HALF.

Just 21 . . . Room Size

ORIENTAL RUGS

$185

NAME	SIZE	GRADE	NAME	SIZE	GRADE
Sparta	12.2 x 8.11	$325.00	Gorovan	12.5 x 9.5	$325.00
Chinese	12.0 x 9.0	395.00	Chinese	12.0 x 9.0	395.00
Gorovan	12.10 x 9.2	325.00	Hunzah	14.1 x 11.1	375.00
*Hunzah	14.0 x 11.0	375.00	Sparta	12.1 x 9.1	345.00
*Kirman	11.11 x 8.11	465.00	Gorovan	12.10 x 9.10	335.00
Sparta	12.2 x 8.8	420.00	Gorovan	13.1 x 9.1	325.00
Gorovan	13.0 x 9.4	350.00	Gorovan	13.5 x 9.5	340.00
Hunzah	14.2 x 11.2	375.00	Chinese	10.0 x 14.0	545.00
Sparta	12.1 x 9.3	345.00	Gorovan	14.3 x 8.10	350.00
Gorovan	13.4 x 8.10	325.00	Gorovan	13.7 x 9.0	395.00
			Gorovan	12.11 x 9.4	325.00

*As is.

EXTRA LARGE ROOM SIZE

ORIENTAL RUGS

$690

NAME	SIZE	GRADE	NAME	SIZE	GRADE
Hamadan	20.0 x 12.2	$1500.00	Meshed	22.8 x 11.9	$1925.00
Sparta	20.1 x 11.4	1140.00	Kirmanshah	16.2 x 10.11	1425.00
Meshed	22.2 x 11.10	1895.00	Kirmanshah	19.0 x 11.10	1950.00
Sparta	24.0 x 12.1	1285.00

LARGE SCATTER SIZE

PERSIAN RUGS

The $45 Grades

A collection of lovely Persian pieces . . . every one with the lustrous sheen and remarkable colorings obtainable only in Rugs of the finer type. Particularly noteworthy are their generous proportions, which average 3 x 6 feet.

$29.50

ARNOLD CONSTABLE—Rug Floor—Fifth

No C. O. D.'s—No Credits—No Approvals

BEGINS TOMORROW!

Clearance SALE of WHOLESALE SURPLUS

HART SCHAFFNER & MARX SUITS and WINTER OVERCOATS

$27.50

692 - $35 suits
1146 - $42 suits
2062 - $50 suits
1549 - $60 suits
1066 - $65 suits

197 - $35 overcoats
312 - $42 overcoats
862 - $50 overcoats
398 - $60 overcoats
241 - $65 overcoats

Such an event is possible but once a year -- don't pass it up. Single and double breasted suits in winter, year 'round and spring weights. Overcoats of choice American and European weaves. Desirable styles.

Small charge for alterations

WALLACH BROTHERS

NEW YORK
53 Broadway
265 Broadway at Chambers
Fifth Ave opposite the Library
Fifth Avenue corner 28th
41st at 7th Avenue
246-248 West 125th St.
Fordham Rd. cor Marion Ave
Court corner Montague B'klyn
Central Terminal Building Flushing L.I.

JAMAICA, L. I.
Jamaica Ave cor 166th St.

NEW JERSEY
13 East State Street, Trenton
828-830 Broad Street Newark

VITALE'S REMOVAL URGED BY THE BAR

Continued from Page 1, Column 8.

in the position of having to overcome the charges against him. If he fails to do so, the court will sit to hear the evidence or, as is likely, appoint a referee to conduct the trial. The hearings in the matter will be open. Upon conclusion of the proceedings the referee will submit his report to the Appellate Division for approval or disapproval.

Dowling Receives Report.

The report was presented to Justice Dowling in the court building, Madison Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street, by Mr. Spence and by Charles C. Burlingham, president of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York. They reached the court at 11:30 A. M. and went directly to Justice Dowling's chambers. They were in chambers for thirty minutes.

When they came out Mr. Spence announced the signing of the show-cause order, and then handed out copies of the report of the investigating committee. The two counts lodged against Magistrate Vitale in the petition were supported by affidavits by Mr. Spence, Mr. Burlingham and Mr. Medalie.

Mr. Spence has been subpoenaed by District Attorney Crain to appear on Tuesday before the grand jury which is making an investigation of the magistrate's courts and their personnel. He will be asked to tell what the committee discovered in connection with the case of Albert C. Bunner, Holland Tunnel policeman, whose automobile caused the death of two persons last August. He also will be asked to tell what was discovered about bail bonds and the releasing of prisoners.

The petition set forth the fact that the committee had been scrutinizing the magistrate's judicial conduct since Dec. 19, at the request of the Appellate Division. Hearings had been held and the magistrate and his attorney had been given opportunity to examine witnesses, the document related. The committee report had been approved unanimously by the executive committee of the Bar Association, the petition recited, and the committee, after weighing the testimony alleged "that the respondent has been guilty of the acts hereinafter set forth and that such acts are cause for his removal from office."

Text of Rothstein Loan Charge.

The first charge, as set down in the petition, was as follows:

Prior to the 14th of June, 1928, the respondent purchased on margin through the firm of Joseph Walker & Sons, stock brokers, of 61 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, in the city of New York, certain shares of Bancitaly stock which were then being carried for the respondent's account by said firm. On said last mentioned day the respondent wishing to purchase on margin additional shares of said stock through said firm and being without ready cash or funds sufficient for that purpose solicited and persuaded one Leonard A. Snitkin, esquire, an attorney and counsellor at law, then, as the respondent well knew, practicing in the criminal courts and before the city magistrates in the city of New York, to attempt to procure for the respondent a loan of $25,000, or of so much of said sum as said Snitkin might be able to obtain without collateral security and without any statement of the respondent's financial responsibility.

To that end the respondent gave said Snitkin a blank promissory note, signed by him, and authorized said Snitkin, in the event that he succeeded in obtaining said loan, to fill in the same, or cause the same to be filled in, as to amount, the name of the payee and time and place of payment in such manner as might be acceptable to the lender. On the 18th day of June, 1928, in consequence of such solicitation and persuasion, said Snitkin, acting on behalf of the respondent and with the respondent's authority as aforesaid, induced one Arnold Rothstein to cause the Rothmere Mortgage Corporation, of which said Rothstein was then the president, to make a loan to the respondent in the sum of $20,000.

Reviews Handling of Loan.

Pursuant to the said authority of the respondent said Snitkin filled in said note so signed by the respondent, or caused the same to be filled in, so that it became the promissory note of the respondent for the payment by him on July 2, 1928, to the order of said Rothmere Mortgage Corporation of the sum of $20,000 at 47 West Fifty-seventh Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, and said promissory note was thereupon discounted by said Rothmere Mortgage Corporation for the sum of $19,940.

Said Rothstein on the same day delivered, or caused to be delivered and received by the respondent at the office of respondent's brother, one William J. Vitale, Esquire, an attorney and counselor at law, at 560 Tremont Avenue, in the Borough of the Bronx, the bank check of said Rothstein and payable to the order of the respondent for said sum of $19,940, which said sum represented the proceeds of said discount.

Said check was enclosed in a letter signed by said Rothstein directed to the respondent at his brother's said office in which letter Rothstein addressed the respondent as "Dear Judge," expressed his happiness at being able to accommodate the said respondent and conveyed to him his best personal regards, and in which said letter said Rothstein advised the respondent that the blank promissory note theretofore signed by him, the respondent, had been made payable to the Rothmere Mortgage Corporation in the sum of $20,000 and was payable on July 2, 1928, at 47 West Fifty-seventh Street.

Sees "Moral Obligation."

When the respondent received said check he well knew that Rothstein was a resident of the Borough of Manhattan, was a person of evil fame and reputation and a notorious common gambler, and that the acceptance by him of said loan from said Rothmere Mortgage Corporation would place him, the respondent, under a financial and moral obligation to said Rothstein.

Nevertheless, the respondent accepted and retained said check and collected the same and thereafter and before his said promissory note fell due used a part of the proceeds thereof, to wit, the sum of $18,000, as margin for the purchase of additional shares of Bancitaly stock through said rm of Joseph Walker & Sons.

The respondent obtained said loan without furnishing any statement concerning his financial condition and without giving any collateral security for said loan. Said loan was not procured or made in the ordinary course of business, as the respondent well knew. The respondent improperly and willfully used the prestige, power and influence of his office to procure said loan and in conducting and procuring said loan and accepting and using the proceeds thereof as heretofore alleged, as the respondent well knew, was incompatible with and in reckless disregard of the honor and dignity of his office, and his said conduct tended to and did impair public confidence in the integrity and impartiality of criminal justice.

Reviews Fawcett Case.

In detailing the second charge against Magistrate Vitale the petition incorporated affidavits by Mr. Harth, by the arresting officer, Patrolman Richard Hannigan of Traffic D, and one of Harth's witnesses, Walter Krakower. They told the story of the theft, the chase of Fawcett and his arrest.

According to the affidavits Fawcett entered the coffee store of Mr. Harth, at 2,461 Jerome Avenue, the Bronx, on Aug. 8, 1928. Harth was called away by a telephone call and when he came back two minutes later found the cash register had been rifled. Krakower, who had seen Fawcett closing the drawer of the register, his hands being meanwhile "full of money," told Harth.

Hannigan arrested Fawcett, and late that afternoon the prisoner was held in $1,000 bail by Magistrate Gottlieb, who adjourned the case until Aug. 13. Fawcett on that date was arraigned before Magistrate Vitale, and the Rothstein attorney, Fred D. Kaplan, appeared to defend the prisoner. The stenographic transcript of the proceedings before Vitale was included in the petition.

Tells of Dismissal of Charge.

The transcript showed that every time Kaplan objected or moved to strike out testimony by Harth or Krakower the magistrate acceded. Patrolman Hannigan, to whom Fawcett had confessed taking the money because he was "broke," stood by, awaiting the opportunity to testify to that effect.

After establishing that no one actually saw Fawcett's hand in the till of the register, Magistrate Vitale spoke to Hannigan.

"Have you anybody that saw this defendant taking the money out of the register, officer?" he asked.

"No," said Hannigan.

"The defendant is discharged," said the magistrate.

On Aug. 16 Magistrate Vitale signed the order directing the return of $79.31 to Harth. The magistrate's order, in speaking of the sum, said that the sum had been "proven on oath before me to be the property of said Joseph Harth."

The Committee's Conclusions.

After thus setting down all of the facts on this case which had come to its attention, the committee in the petition set forth its conclusions as follows:

When the respondent conducted said examination of said charge against said Fawcett he had before him said depositions of Harth and Hannigan verified the 8th day of August, 1928, and said depositions constituted and were evidence in support of the charge upon said examination. The respondent did not read said depositions to the defendant as required by law.

On information and belief your petitioner alleges that prior to or some time during the examination of said charge against said Fawcett and before the respondent inquired of said Hannigan, "Have you anybody that saw this defendant taking the money out of the register, officer?" the respondent had read said depositions of Harth and Hannigan and well knew that in said depositions said Hannigan deposed and said under oath in substance and to the effect that he, the said Hannigan, had seen the said Fawcett run out of the store of the said Harth, that he apprehended said Fawcett, and that said Fawcett confessed to him that he had committed the offense charged.

In ordering the discharge of said Fawcett and finding that there was not sufficient cause to believe that Fawcett was guilty of the offense charged, the respondent deliberately, willfully and corruptly disregarded said depositions of said Harth and Hannigan and he deliberately, willfully and corruptly suppressed said evidence in support of said charge against Fawcett therein contained.

Says Vitale Knew Facts.

It was the duty of the respondent, as he well knew, in conducting said examination, to elicit and ascertain all the material and relevant facts concerning the alleged theft by said Fawcett from said Harth and to call and fully examine as witnesses before him persons who knew such material and relevant facts. The respondent well knew that said Hannigan had knowledge of material and relevant facts concerning said alleged theft, but the respondent deliberately, willfully and corruptly failed to call and fully examine said Hannigan as a witness.

Your petitioner further alleges on information and belief that the respondent well knew and believed that the testimony given before him by said Harth and said Krakower and said depositions of Harth and Hannigan were sufficient cause and evidence to lead him to believe that said Fawcett was guilty of the offense charged, and the respondent in dismissing the charge against the said Fawcett and finding that there was no cause to believe him guilty of the offense charged acted corruptly, and he deliberately, willfully and corruptly did not fairly consider the evidence before him and determine the question as he, the respondent, in truth and in fact believed the administration of justice required.

Charges "Willful Misconduct."

The respondent's action in this regard was not due to ignorance, carelessness, indifference or oversight, but was in manifest perversion of justice and constituted deliberate, willful and corrupt misconduct in his office as a city magistrate.

The respondent made and signed the aforesaid order dated Aug. 16, 1928, directing the property clerk, Traffic D, of the municipal police to return $79.31 to said Harth and containing the finding that said property had been proved on oath to be the property of said Harth, for the purpose of preventing dissatisfaction on the part of said Harth with his, the respondent's, dismissal of said charge against said Fawcett, and for the purpose of inducing said Harth to take no further proceedings against said Fawcett.

The petition and the report filed by the Bar Association were accompanied by a letter from Mr. Burlingham, pointing out that the investigation had been undertaken at the request of the court, and that the findings were transmitted at the direction of the association's executive committee.

Text of Bar Committee Report in Vitale Case

The following is the complete text of the report of the Bar Association's committee on criminal courts, law and procedure on the investigation of Magistrate Vitale:

New York, Feb. 14, 1920.

To the Executive Committee of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, New York City.

Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the request of the president of the association, the committee on criminal courts, law and procedure has examined into the conduct of City Magistrate Albert H. Vitale. The committee has conducted its investigation and held hearings at which witnesses were examined. At these hearings Magistrate Vitale was present and represented by counsel.

Your committee makes the following unanimous report:

Charges Recommended.

The committee, after careful consideration, concluded that two aspects of its investigations and inquiry required the presentation of charges of misconduct on the part of Magistrate Vitale sufficient, in our opinion, to warrant his removal from the office of city magistrate of the city of New York. Accordingly, there is attached a proposed petition to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, first department, which we recommend be filed against him. All of the facts upon which these charges are based are fully set forth in the proposed petition and accordingly do not need to be referred to further in this report.

The Roman Gardens Incident.

On Dec. 7, 1929, when Magistrate Vitale returned from a vacation, his fellow-members of the Tepecano Democratic Club arranged for a dinner to be given to him. At that time he was "honorary president for life" of the Tepecano Club. The dinner was held at the Roman Gardens at 187th Street and Southern Boulevard, in the Bronx. Some time after 12:30 A. M. (Dec. 8), seven gunmen entered the premises and robbed the diners, including Detective Arthur C. Johnson of the New York City police force, whose service revolver was taken from him.

The robbers left the premises about 1 o'clock. No report was received by the Police Department until about 2 o'clock. It was obviously Detective Johnson's duty to make this report immediately. In his explanation for the delay, he claims that he was advised by Magistrate Vitale and by former Magistrate Delagi, another guest, to withhold the making of the report until information of some kind could be obtained concerning the robbery. This is denied by both Magistrate Vitale and Mr. Delagi. The circumstances attendant upon this delay do not contradict the version of the incidents testified to before this committee by both the magistrate and Mr. Delagi. Johnson's explanation as to the cause for the delay, and the fact that he first attempted to communicate with District Attorney McGeehan, do not overcome these denials.

Discredits Johnson's Version.

The committee does not feel justified, in view of all the circumstances connected with Johnson's activities at the time, and his attempts to obtain additional information from the diners before telephoning to the Police Department, in accepting his version of the occurrence, and therefore cannot find that Magistrate Vitale did anything in this connection to prevent the police from obtaining immediate information from a member of that department, as prescribed by its rules, or that he attempted in any way to suppress from the police the fact that a robbery had been committed.

Detective Johnson has stated to the committee that his stolen revolver was returned to him by Magistrate Vitale at about 5 o'clock at the Tepecano Democratic Club, which is located on 187th Street, slightly more than a block away from the Roman Gardens. He states that, at a time not precisely fixed, but some time after 2 o'clock and possibly at 3 o'clock, at the Roman Gardens, he talked on the telephone with either Magistrate Vitale or a person speaking for him, and that he was asked to come to the clubhouse.

Johnson states that in this telephone conversation there was said "something about a gun," or "rumors about the gun," or similar words. He says that he had been at the clubhouse a short time before this conversation; that he went to the clubhouse upon receiving this telephone call with a superior officer at 3 o'clock; talked to Magistrate Vitale with his superior, but that since the latter was interested in whether Johnson had acted properly and with the courage required of a policeman, the telephone conversation about the gun was not followed up.

Reviews Return of Pistol.

Johnson states that Deputy Chief Inspector Mulrooney, head of the Detective Bureau, arrived at the clubhouse some time thereafter, possibly 3:30 or 4 o'clock in the morning, and in a room in the clubhouse questioned him concerning his conduct, and that Magistrate Vitale was present. He says that after the Inspector left, Magistrate Vitale called him into a room and showed him a revolver which he said had been recovered, and which Johnson recognized as the service revolver of which he had been robbed. He says that he asked Magistrate Vitale how the revolver had been recovered and that the latter stated that he was unable to tell him.

Magistrate Vitale states that shortly after 2 o'clock Dr. Joseph Ferraca and Dr. James Ferraca came to him as he was about to enter the Tepecano Democratic Club after all of the diners had left the Roman Gardens, showed him a revolver and stated that it had been found near their automobile, in front of the Roman Gardens; that he thereupon telephoned to the Roman Gardens for Johnson, who came over; that he delivered the revolver to Johnson and told him that it had been found on the sidewalk. This is denied by Johnson. Both the Drs. Ferraca testify to the finding of the revolver and its delivery to Magistrate Vitale at about the time and under the conditions stated by him.

Tells of Change in Report.

At about 6 A. M., at the station house, a report, as required by the Police Department concerning a robbery, was prepared by Detective Johnson and others, wherein it was stated that the revolver had been found on the sidewalk outside of the Roman Gardens. This report was not sent to Police Headquarters because the captain in charge of the division, after hearing all the facts, stated that since the finder was not named, the report should correctly state that it had been returned to Johnson by Magistrate Vitale. A new report was prepared stating this and was sent to Police Headquarters.

Inspector Mulrooney testified that during his visit to the Tepecano Club he inquired into the facts of the robbery; that Magistrate Vitale was present, and that Mr. Delagi was present for at least part of the time. Inspector Mulrooney stated that at the conclusion of his inquiry some time between 4:30 and 5 o'clock in the morning, he said in substance to Johnson, "Your best bet is to go and find that gun." He is certain that Magistrate Vitale was present. The fact that the inspector told him this in the clubhouse is denied by Detective Johnson.

There is no evidence from which the committee is able to establish that Magistrate Vitale heard this statement made by Inspector Mulrooney to Johnson, even though he was probably present at the time. Mr. Delagi, who was present, stated that he did not hear this statement. Since it cannot be established that Magistrate Vitale heard Inspector Mulrooney's statement to Detective Johnson, the committee is unable to find that Magistrate Vitale permitted a responsible police official to leave with the impression that Johnson's pistol was still missing when in fact it had been recovered, according to his own statement, more than two and a half hours before.

The committee therefore feels that it is not warranted in charging that Magistrate Vitale suppressed evidence, obstructed justice, or interfered with police activities, with respect to information concerning the loss and recovery of Johnson's pistol.

Criticizes Attitude Toward Police.

Other details of proof were considered by the committee in this connection. It is needless to refer to them further than to say that they tend only to the general confusion, and do not give sufficient enlightenment to warrant any definite opinion.

A detective, assigned by his superiors to interrogate Magistrate Vitale concerning the manner in which he recovered Johnson's revolver, made several efforts to see him and question him on the subject. On two occasions he found him busy holding court and too busy to speak with him. Two or three days after the robbery, Magistrate Vitale went to Police Headquarters for the purpose of identifying pictures in the photograph gallery of persons suspected of the robbery, but not apprehended. He attempted to speak to the Police Commissioner who apparently declined to talk with him.

On the night of Dec. 16, while having his dinner in a restaurant, the detective questioned the magistrate concerning the return of Johnson's pistol. The substance of the testimony of both of them is to the effect that Magistrate Vitale expressed his grievance against the Police Commissioner for having circulated what he regarded as false stories concerning him which held him up to public contempt and ridicule, and for that reason he declined to give any information to anybody connected with the department, adding that he would do so at the proper time.

Thereafter, and prior to his appearance before the grand jury during the last week in December, Magistrate Vitale made a statement to the District Attorney of Bronx County as to the recovery of the revolver in substance conforming to the statement to this committee, and a few days later testified before the grand jury to the same effect.

The committee is of opinion that Magistrate Vitale, as a citizen, should have disregarded his animosity toward the Police Commissioner, regardless of his belief that he was justified in this view, and should have furnished the detective who made the inquiry with the information sought.

The committee feels, however, with respect to this incident, that there is not sufficient evidence available to the committee to warrant the presentation of any charges.

Doubts Terranova Was at Dinner.

It has been stated that seven persons with criminal records were present at the dinner in the Roman Gardens, and that Magistrate Vitale was closely associated with them. One of them is a person named Ciro Terranova, commonly referred to as the "artichoke king," concerning whom so much was recently printed in the press. The committee is unable to obtain any evidence that he was present at this dinner. An examination of the minutes of the proceedings on charges against Detective Johnson similarly failed to establish this fact.

Magistrate Vitale stated that Joseph Catania, Daniel Iamascia and Paul Marchione were present at the Roman Gardens on the night of the dinner, but that they did not sit at the horseshoe at which the guests sat, but at a side table, as did other persons in the Roman Gardens Restaurant who had nothing whatever to do with the dinner. Magistrate Vitale denies any intimate association with these persons.

He admits that he represented Joseph Catania in a criminal proceeding in New Rochelle in 1923 upon his arrest, when he was delivered to the New York City authorities and discharged in a magistrate's court. He stated that he had no knowledge of the arrest of Catania upon a charge of burglary when he was discharged by another magistrate on Jan. 24, 1924. He stated that Catania was once arraigned before him, charged with bookmaking, and that he held him for Special Sessions.

Reviews Links With Others.

He stated that he knew Daniel Iamascia was mixed up with bad company and stole, but that for the past five or six years, under the influence of the Tepecano Democratic Club, he had behaved and evidently helped his father build some houses. He had been convicted of unlawful entry in 1920 and had some other arrests resulting in no convictions, the last occurring in 1924.

Marchione had been sent to the Elmira Reformatory in 1914 on a charge of assault. Magistrate Vitale stated he did not know that fact, but knew that he had been arrested in 1924 on a homicide charge, which was dismissed.

Magistrate Vitale admitted an acquaintance up to about two or three years ago with Ciro Terranova, whom he regarded as a successful business man, but stated that he knew of no trouble concerning him except when "arrested or taken in for interrogation" in connection with the murder of one Marlow. He states he obtained his information from the newspapers. Other persons having what is commonly called criminal or police records, whose names were mentioned as having attended this dinner, have not been shown to have been present, nor to have been associated with the magistrate.

The committee is unable to find, from the foregoing, any clear evidence tending to establish Magistrate Vitale knowingly associated with persons of criminal tendencies in such a manner as to bring the administration of justice into disrepute.

Political Activities.

Before becoming a magistrate, Magistrate Vitale had been for a number of years connected with the Tepecano Democratic Club as a director and chairman of the board of directors. This club is located in the Bronx and its activities are political. About the time of his appointment as city magistrate, he was made "honorary president for life." He was actively connected with this club in some manner during the entire time that he has been a city magistrate.

Restriction upon a magistrate's political activities so far as statute is concerned is contained in the Inferior Criminal Courts act, Section 102, of which the following is the material portion:

"No justice or city magistrate shall engage in any other business, profession or hold any other public office or shall serve as the representative of any political party for any Assembly, Aldermanic, Senatorial or Congressional district in the executive committee or other governing body of any political party organization or politicial party association."

Regardless of the question whether the office was in fact merely honorary, the statute contains no prohibition against Magistrate Vitale's activities in the Tepecano Democratic Club, or against his holding the office of "honorary president for life." In the opinion of the committee, and apart from any provision by statute, public political activities on the part of a judicial officer are inconsistent with a judicial position and tend to lower confidence in the judiciary.

Objects to Club Programs.

At the annual balls of the Tepecano Democratic Club, certain programs, or journals, are distributed. In these journals nothing other than advertisements appear, except a dance program, a greeting by Albert H. Vitale as the Honorary Life President over his facsimile signature, and his photograph in judicial robes. The greeting in these journals for 1928 and 1929 concludes as follows: "May this evening's event prove particularly lucrative to the many advertisers of this journal."

The advertisements include those of practicing lawyers, which state their profession and give their office addresses, as well as those of a considerable number of professional bondsmen. The spectacle of a city magistrate apparently helping to promote the business interests of advertising lawyers and professional bondsmen is calculated to impair confidence of the public in the magistrate's freedom from influence. It encourages the belief that connection with the club, or contributions by advertisements in the journal may be of value to those seeking improper influence with the judiciary. It tends to create the impression that certain advertising lawyers and bondsmen are favored persons with the magistrate.

Criticizes Presence at Polls.

It is admitted by Magistrate Vitale that, at the last general election, he attended in a public school house in which four polling places were located, during a substantial part of the morning and a substantial part of the afternoon, and that while there he participated publicly in discussion and argument concerning the propriety of claims made by a Deputy Attorney General as to the conduct of election officials and others in demonstrating the proper operation of the voting machines.

There was no necessity for his attendance at the polls as a political party worker. If he were not a magistrate, that would be perfectly proper and even commendable. In view of the fact that disputes at the polls as to violations of the election law are likely to terminate in criminal proceedings in the magistrates' court, or in disorder, which is likely to terminate likewise, his presence at the polls under these conditions was highly improper.

His presence and activity at the polls as a partisan necessarily gave notice that in any disputes that might arise his partisans could seek encouragement and aid from him at a time when he was known to occupy a judicial office. A magistrate, like any other judicial officer, has the right to his political opinions, but political activity of this character is bound to diminish rather than inspire public confidence in our judges.

Fixing and Accepting Bail.

It was stated by Magistrate Vitale that while out of court and frequently at the Tepecano Democratic Club in the late afternoon, upon proper police certificate he fixed and accepted bail when application was made to him. Most of the cases in which bail was so fixed and accepted were cases of selling or possessing liquor in violation of the Volstead act. Authority on this subject is conferred by Federal statute.

The fixing and taking of bail in these cases involves no illegality or impropriety. In spite of the large number of magistrates in the city of New York, no provision is made for the assignment of a magistrate to the duty, at all hours during which courts are not in session, of fixing and accepting bail in cases where nothing is to be gained and injustice may be done by the prolonged detention of the defendant. The presence of a magistrate at a political club where he may be found for this purpose is not calculated to inspire public confidence in the administration of justice. The severance of the administration of justice from political association is highly desirable.

The Mary Morris Case.

This case is referred to because it was the subject of considerable public discussion. Mary Morris was first arraigned before Magistrate Vitale on Jan. 19, 1929, charged with petit larceny for obtaining a sum of about $40 on the claim that she could cure the defendant's husband. She was a gypsy. The case was adjourned to the following day, when she failed to appear. Her bail was forfeited, though her lawyer appeared and claimed there was some misunderstanding about the date.

On Feb. 4, 1929, she appeared without counsel, and was charged with vagrancy (fortune telling) as a violation of Section 887 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. She pleaded guilty. The District Attorney was represented. The Assistant District Attorney and the arresting officer advised the court that the people had lost no rights and had not been prejudiced in any way by reason of the defendant's failure to appear on the earlier adjourned date. The Assistant District Attorney consented to the remission of the forfeiture of bail.

Upon inquiry by the court the arresting officer advised Magistrate Vitale that, in his opinion, the defendant was out of the business of fortune telling, that it was her first offense, that she was married, and the Assistant District Attorney consented that sentence be suspended.

It is quite clear from the record that there was no impropriety in the emission of the bail forfeiture. The circumstances connected with the change of the complaint from larceny to vagrancy are not known to the committee. Whether a charge of larceny could have been successfully sustained is debatable. From the record before us there is nothing in the conduct of Magistrate Vitale in this case which warrants criticism.

The Cokely Case.

In a speech made before the Bronx Chamber of Commerce on March 17, 1928, Mr. William A. Cokely stated that a lawyer in the Bronx, whose name he did not then disclose, had said that certain civic and fraternal organizations were about to make an effort to have his candidacy for a Supreme Court nomination endorsed, and that he had $50,000 in cash to accomplish this. The next morning he was served with a subpoena procured by the then District Attorney of Bronx County to appear before Magistrate Vitale in a case against John Doe.

Magistrate Vitale was visited by the District Attorney of Bronx County at his home during the night and upon the District Attorney's representation that a subpoena could properly be issued upon oral complaint, a subpoena was so issued for Mr. Cokely. The magistrate before whom the subpoena was returnable did not compel Mr. Cokely to testify. Mr. Cokely later appeared before the grand jury.

Mr. Cokely complained that Magistrate Vitale acted illegally and improperly in the matter. The District Attorney, in his advice to Magistrate Vitale, interpreted the inferior criminal courts act, Section 82, as permitting a magistrate to issue a subpoena in a case in which an oral complaint was pending. This legal proposition is not free from doubt. The statute simply permits the issuance of a summons, but no summons was issuedl in this case.

Nothing is to be gained here by legal discussion. The uncontradicted evidence is to the effect that Magistrate Vitale, whether right or wrong, acted on the advice of a responsible prosecuting officer. His error, if any, was based on this advice. The former District Attorney insists that his advice was correct. No charge can be predicated upon this incident, as is involves no more than a possible erroneous exercise of judicial power.

The Scheedel Case.

On April 26, 1929, Patrolman Scheedel of the traffic squad arrested Bennie Berman, a taxicab driver, for obstructing traffic at the time that Madison Square Garden was emptying prize fight patrons. He claimed that the defendant resisted arrest, kicked and punched him, and that he received a scar on his face as a result. He charged Berman with felonious assault.

Scheedel claims that Magistrate Vitale, before whom the case was heard first on May 15 and again de nova on May 17, improperly dismissed the case, in the face of the evidence, and that he attempted improperly to use his judicial office to compel Scheedel to accept a settlement of $75 as compensation for his injury.

An examination of the minutes discloses, because of the unsatisfactory nature of the evidence and the contradictory character of the corroborating evidence submitted by Scheedel, that no criticism can be made of the magistrate's dismissal of this complaint.

Officer Scheedel's testimony as to the efforts of the court to compel his acceptance of a money settlement is not sustained by witnesses but is denied by them.

This charge cannot be sustained.

The Knepper Case.

Herman Knepper was charged in August, 1928, with accepting interest in excess of 6 per cent on a loan that did not exceed $300. He first consulted counsel, whom he did not retain, and then retained former City Magistrate Delagi. The case came on to be heard before Magistrate Vitale in the Sixth District magistrate's court, in the Bronx. The case was dismissed on legal argument based upon a brief prepared by Mr. Delagi, on the ground that since $300 was received by the complainant, the borrower, and additional moneys had been expended by the defendant in title searches, &c., the loan actually exceeded the sum of $300 and therefore was not a penal violation of the banking law.

Mr. Delagi was paid $500 by the defendant for his legal service. It is suggested that the defendant had dropped the lawyer whom he had consulted in the first instance and retained Mr. Delagi for his supposed influence with Magistrate Vitale.

No evidence has been obtained to sustain this claim. The suggestion that Mr. Delagi received a larger sum, supposedly for the purpose of paying a portion of it to Magistrate Vitale, is wholly without foundation. The defendant's check in the sum of $500 to Mr. Delagi has been exhibited to the committee in refutation of this claim.

The Bunner Case.

Alfred Bunner was charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Charles Poppi and Augusta Binghold by his culpable negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle at Eighth Avenue and 130th Street, New York County. He was himself seriously injured and taken to the Harlem Hospital. Pending his arraignment and in order to effect his transfer to another hospital free from restraint, his father, Albert D. Bunner, appeared before Magistrate Vitale in the Bronx, where he was sitting at the 161st Street court, and offered to give bail for his son to answer in the Homicide Court in Manhattan.

The magistrate apparently communicated with some person in the Homicide Court and fixed bail in the sum of $2,000, which Albert D. Bunner gave as surety, setting forth in his affidavit of justification that he owned two automobiles of the value of $4,000 and bonds valued at $3,000 subject to no encumbrances. The surety was sworn by Magistrate Vitale. The defendant was admitted to bail and the bond taken to the police station where the arrest was recorded.

Subsequently long delays arose in the delivery of the bail bond to the magistrate's court. After the recovery of the defendant from his injuries, he appeared and was discharged in the Homicide Court by another magistrate.

There is no evidence of any impropriety on the part of the magistrate in accepting Albert D. Bunner as surety. A magistrate may accept bail from a person who justifies only in personal property and who possesses no real property. Magistrate Vitale is not shown to have had anything whatever to do with the delay in the delivery of the bond to the Homicide Court.

This case was investigated by the committee because of the publicity attending it at the time of its discussion. Nothing has been developed by the investigation that warrants any action or criticism.

Miscellaneous Matters.

Many other complaints and suggestions concerning the conduct of Magistrate Vitale were inquired into by the committee. These were brought for the most part by persons who had litigation in the Magistrates' courts. They have been carefully inquired into, but none of them warrants action or specific criticism.

The committee, with the aid of the Police Department, made such inquiries as were possible of the many felony cases that had been dismissed by Magistrate Vitale during the years 1928 and 1929. In the absence of the full records of the Magistrates' courts, which it was not possible to obtain in this very brief period, and limited solely to the police records, mainly reports of arresting officers, the committee has been unable to discover anything from this source which warrants action or comment.

Respectfully submitted,

Committee on Criminal Courts, Law and Procedure.

KENNETH M. SPENCE, Chairman.
FELIX C. BENVENGA, Secretary.
EARL B. BARNES.
EMORY R. BUCKNER.
W. BRUCE COBB.
HAROLD HARPER.
JOHN E. JOYCE.
NEWMAN LEVY.
JOHN D. LINDSAY.
ROBERT E. MANLEY.
BENJAMIN A. MATTHEWS.
GEORGE Z. MEDALIE.
JOHN McKIM MINTON, Jr.
JOHN CALDWELL MYERS.
RAYMOND L. WISE.

GIRL CONFESSES BANDITRY.

Buffalo Prisoner Tearfully Admits She Led Raids, Say Police.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 15 (AP).—Her defiant air giving way to a storm of tears Buffalo's asserted "blonde bandit" has confessed, according to police, that she was the leader of a series of hold-ups in the city.

Mabel Paller, 20, brought here with her companions, Pater Dombkiewicz and Eddie Izydorczak, alias Palmer, from Alabama, was paraded before a number of their alleged victims at Police Headquarters. D. L. Glickstein, whose $20,000 jewelry stock was stolen, and Max Kantrowitz, jeweler, both identified members of the trio as the robbers who held them up.

The girl was said to have admitted four hold-ups here, in all of which Dombkiewicz took part. Izydorczak was with her in all but the raid of Kantrowitz's store, she said.

Police expect the three may enter pleas of guilty to charges of robbery while armed.

Scars of seventy-two shortgun pellets in Dombkiewicz's back, according to police, link him with the attempted hold-up in December at Frank Smigiera's butcher shop, in which Edward Samuel, a robber, was shot to death by Leo Smigiera, the butcher's son. Leo fired at a second robber, who made his escape in a shower of buckshot.

URGES DEEPENING UPPER MISSISSIPPI

Gen. Brown's Recommendation for 9-Foot Channel Submitted to Congress by Hurley.

NEEDED FOR NAVIGATION

Depth Would Insure Economical Traffic, He Says—Expenditure of $98,423,000 Asked.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP).—Secretary Hurley today transmitted to Congress an army engineers' report recommending that detailed plans for a nine-foot channel from the mouth of the Missouri River to St. Paul-Minneapolis be prepared and submitted to Congress upon completion of a survey now in progress by a special board.

The report, signed by Major Gen. Brown, chief of army engineers, contained the conclusions of a special army board in its study of navigation possibilities of the upper Mississippi. Two tentative plans were submitted by the special board, proposing the expenditure of $98,423,000 to improve the stream from the mouth of the Missouri River to St. Paul.

The special board warned, however, that it was not deemed advisable to recommend execution of these plans until its general survey had been concluded.

Major Gen. Brown, in transmitting the special board's report to the War Department, recommended that all permanent structures on the upper Mississippi River under the existing project be executed with a view to adoption, without reconstruction or relocation, to plans for an ultimate depth of nine feet.

Part of Valley System.

General Brown said that reliable and economical navigation was not practicable at a depth of six feet but would be assured by a depth of nine feet.

"Improvement of the main stem of the Mississippi River as far north as the cities of St. Paul-Minneapolis," General Brown wrote, "goes logically in hand with the recently completed nine-foot project on the Ohio to Pittsburgh and the ultimate opening of the Missouri to the greatest feasible depth. It is an essential part of the Mississippi Valley system and part of the route from that system to the Great Lakes."

Expenditure of $50,332,000 for additional work under the existing six-foot project, which has not been completed, would be provided under one of the tentative plans. The second plan would call for the expenditure of $48,091,000 in constructing eleven dams necessary for completion of the nine-foot channel between Minneapolis and the mouth of the Illinois River at Grafton.

Construction Planned.

The $50,332,000 fund would be used for dredging at the upper end of the Twin City dam; construction of a parallel lock 56 feet by 360 feet in the Twin City dam; construction of six locks and dams between the Hastings dam and the mouth of the Wisconsin River; a dam with parallel locks to replace existing locks at the Le Claire-Rock Island rapids; a parallel lock of standard Ohio River dimensions at the Keokuk dam; dredging at the head of Keokuk pool, and improvement by regulation between Quincy and the mouth of the Illinois River.

The special board's plans were passed upon by the Army Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, which stated in its conclusions that "from the information presented it is unable to determine upon a satisfactory plan either for betterment of the existing project or for the provision of a nine-foot depth."

It suggested that final action on the case be deferred until the present survey has been completed.

Semi-Annual Sale of Housewares Begins Tomorrow (Monday). As Usual Gimbels will Meet Every Competitor on an Equal Basis.

SHOP GIMBELS AND SEE FOR YOURSELF

To Executives:

COMPARE the care taken to ascertain if applicants for employment are efficient with the thoughtlessness that usually deprives earnest employees of the most effective aid to good work, and to the full expression of their will-to-work.

The aid referred to is the breathing of vital, stimulating, healthful, unheated, fresh air, than which no physiological factor is greater in power to effect worthwhile results,—wherefore the custom of giving vacations in summer.

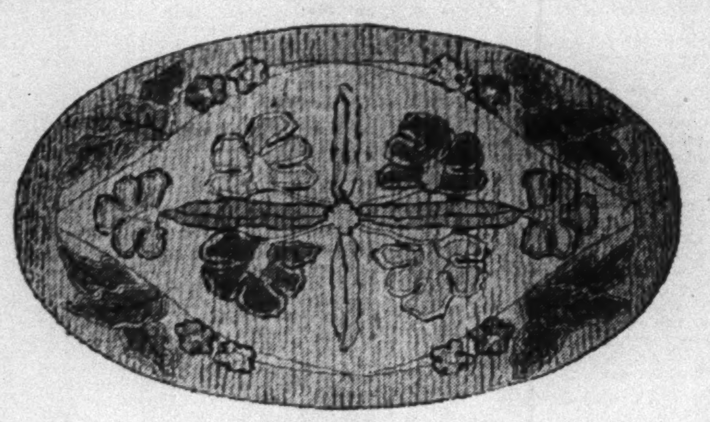
The value of the employee lies in his genius, talents, intellect, ambition, personality, etc., all of which are negatively affected by the breathing of devitalized steam-heated air.

Winter is the time for intensive working. Inefficiency, sickness and absenteeism are preventable. Depression is largely a mental attitude. Give your employees a vital, cool atmosphere to breathe, make intensive work possible, and increased profits will repay the cost many times.

Atmospheric Results Guaranteed. Installations made anywhere. Booklet and references on request.

THEODORE R. N. GERDES, M. E.
Registered Professional Engineer
Manufacturer and Contractor
105-107 Bank Street . . . . New York, N. Y.

Charge it at Gimbels



A Connoisseur's Collection!

Sale of 1300

OLD HOOKED RUGS

6.85

HALF PRICE AND LESS!

Sizes 2'6x4 up to 3x5 Feet

The entire collection of a connoisseur who gathers only the scarcer, lovelier old pieces that collectors prize and decorators "rave" about! Exquisite hand-made rugs to spread the bloom of old-fashioned gardens about your fireside, in nursery, bedrooms, and "barespaces". So fashionable that this 1300 will go out in a day! We suggest that you shop early.

400 Small Hooked Rugs
½ Price
2.97
Average sizes 1'6x3 to 2x3 feet

Seventh Floor

Shop Gimbels and See for Yourself

GIMBELS
33rd & Broadway PENn 5100

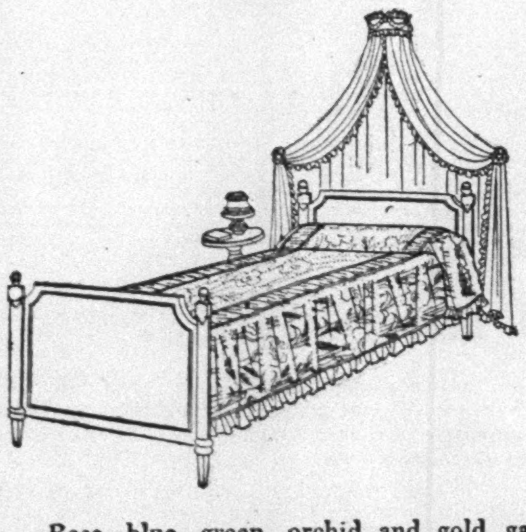
Charge it at Gimbels

Embossed and Satin Rayon

BEDSPREADS

In Colors That Set the Room Aglow

5.94



The manufacturer made them up especially for us during a slack period. Hence the low price.

Rose, blue, green, orchid and gold gain special beauty from the rich, gleaming surface of these rayon satin and rayon embossed bedspreads. 72x108 for twin beds, 90x108 for double beds—long enough to pull up over the pillow with bolster effect.

Mail and Phone Orders Filled

Second Floor

GIMBELS
33rd & BROADWAY PENn. 5100

SHOP GIMBELS AND SEE FOR YOURSELF

WE BELIEVE THAT CHOOSING A BED OUGHT TO BE AS EASY AS SLEEPING ON IT . . .

SHOP GIMBELS AND SEE FOR YOURSELF

The OLD FASHIONED WAY of Choosing a Bed

We might refer to it as the "try and get it system." Choose the bed on one floor to the accompaniment of earnest acrobatics which make you almost as tired as the salesman,—hie yourself to the elevator to the floor for coverings,—and then try to find the pillow cases (yes, just try to find them). Return home exhausted and collapse on your old bed.

BEDDING SHOP—TENTH FLOOR

As the bird-like eye of our artist so accurately reveals, the Gimbel idea is to present a great variety of beds in a convenient amount of space—every bed complete from castors to comforts.

All you have to do is walk along the aisle and wait for your eye to strike the couch of your dreams.

Plump the pillows, thump the ticks, caress the covers, sound the springs—until you've found your perfect bed. For it's here—among this distinguished collection of Simmons, Ostermoor, Englander, Greenpoint and other famous beds.

CHARGE IT AT

GIMBELS

33rd & BROADWAY PENnsylvania 5100

Section 2

SECOND NEWS SECTION
GENERAL NEWS
SOCIETY—MARRIAGES AND DEATHS

The New York Times.

SECOND NEWS SECTION
BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES
FINANCIAL AND BUSINESS NEWS

Section 2

N
Copyright, 1930, by The New York Times Company.
SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1930.

***

N

NEW SOVIET DECREE ON RELIGION DRASTIC

Text Received Here Severely Limits Activities and Denies Juridical Rights to Churches.

PROPERTY IS NATIONALIZED

Groups to Get Use of Buildings "by Contract" Which May Be Voided Easily.

CHILDREN'S WORK BARRED

Minimum Age for Members Fixed at 18 Years—Even Hiring of Janitors Is Regulated.

The decree regarding religious associations in Soviet Russia which evoked a storm of protest from all denominations and caused the Pope and the Archbishop of Canterbury to set aside special days for prayers of intercession, was made available in full yesterday by the Jewish Telegraphic Agency.

A document of some 6,000 words, the decree prescribes rules governing every phase of the existence of religious organizations, the method of listing and handling free-will offerings and the repair of buildings used for religious purposes.

Even the hiring of janitors, the acquisition of wood for fuel and the repairs of the prayer buildings are covered in the decree. The rules are so drastic as to limit the clergy and teachers to conducting their offices in the territory in which they reside permanently "and which belongs to the particular religious association."

Providing that every citizen may become a member of only one religious-cultural association, the decree defines a religious association as "a local association of believing citizens who have reached the age of 18 years, of one and the same religion, direction or sect, to the number of not less than twenty persons who have associated themselves for the joint satisfaction of their religious needs."

Juridical Rights Denied.

At the outset the decree says flatly that "religious societies and groups of believers do not enjoy the rights of juridical bodies." Thus, being deprived of legal existence, the religious associations are then hedged about in the provisions of the decree to the extent of sixty-eight paragraphs.

Religious associations are forbidden to create mutual aid banks, cooperatives, industrial associations "and generally to use any property in their control for any other purpose except the satisfaction of their religious needs." They are forbidden, moreover, "to assist their fellow-members by giving them material support," or to hold "special meetings for children, youths and women for prayer purposes and generally biblical, literary, needlework and other meetings for the teaching of religion, &c." They also are forbidden to arrange "excursions and children's platforms, to found libraries and reading rooms, to organize sanitariums and medical assistance."

In buildings used for prayer, "only such books may be kept which are required in connection with the particular cult."

Religious societies and "groups of believers," as the phraseology of the decree reads, may not function until after they have registered with the proper administrative department, meaning the local executive committee or the city Soviet or the executive committee of the volost or other higher body. Declaration of registration must be filed on a special form prescribed by the government.

Get Use of Property by Contract.

After registration, believers may receive "by contract" from the local government the free use of special houses of prayer and objects especially designated for cult purposes.

While executive officers of religious bodies may enter into arrangements dealing with repairs of buildings, the hiring of janitors and the purchase of fuel, they may not rent candle factories or establish printing shops for the publication of "religious and moral books."

Executive and auditing agencies of religious associations may meet without permission of the governing authorities, but they may not organize nation-wide associations except by special permission of governmental bodies. Permission for congresses and conferences in the territories of the autonomous republics is granted by the People's Commissariat for Internal Affairs or the administrative agent corresponding to this body in the autonomous republic.

While national or federated religious congresses may form executive bodies to carry out their decrees, lists of the executives, together with the minutes and proceedings of the Congress in duplicate, are to be provided to the government body which granted permission for the gathering, on governmental blanks furnished for that purpose.

Many Functions Forbidden.

"Religious congresses and the executive organs by it selected do not enjoy the rights of juridical bodies," the decree says, "and besides this they are not enabled to:

"(1). Establish any kind of a central treasury for the collection of voluntary contributions; (2) to establish any compulsory assessments for any kind; (3) to own any property of the cult or obtain any such property under contract, or to become possessed of such property by way of purchase, or to rent any premises for religious gatherings; (4) to enter into any kind of contract or to form any kind of enterprise

"Property required for the carrying on of the cult, such as was surrendered to the believers forming the religious society, under contract, and such other property as was acquired by them or donated to them for the necessities of the cult, is considered

Continued on Page Three.

Boy Scout, 14, Sentences Man In North Carolina Court

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Feb. 15 (AP).—A 14-year-old boy passed sentence today on a 49-year-old man in Winston-Salem Municipal Court.

In the observance of Boy Scout week, Earl Clowers was allowed to occupy the bench with Judge Tom Watson for an hour.

John Crews, who had been tried earlier in the day for drunkenness, was brought back in court for resentence. He had been unable to pay a fine.

"You sentence him," said Judge Watson to Clowers.

"Sixty days on the chain-gang if convicted of drunkenness again," announced the boy without hesitation.

TAXI DRIVERS PLAN FIGHT OVER UNIFORM

Alamgamated Association Will Force Test Case on Whalen's Right to Issue Order.

ALSO WANTS RATE RULING

Luxford Concern Defers Action on Licenses for Talk With Muldoon Early This Week.

A test case to decide whether Police Commissioner Whalen is within his rights in ordering taxicab drivers into uniform will be brought into court by the Amalgamated Taxi Association, John J. Donohue, president of the association, said last night. The uniform regulation is supposed to go into effect on March 1. On that date, Mr. Donohue said, drivers for the Amalgamated will appear minus the prescribed hats and dusters "to see what the police will do about it."

"Orders are all right from a foreman to his gang," said Mr. Donohue, who is a boss himself, "but you can't spread them around where you have no right to. The commissioner wears what he likes; sometimes in the pictures it's a bathing suit and sometimes its a high hat. We think we can wear what we like and are willing to go to court to find out whether or not we can."

Mr. Donohue's organization will also defy the Police Department ruling on low-rate cabs, it was said last night. "There are too many of these rulings jumping out from nowhere. We want to find out what the courts think of them," the Amalgamated president declared.

Meanwhile a dispatch from Palm Beach reported that Mr. Whalen had nothing to say concerning the taxicab situation here or any other departmental matter.

The plan of the Luxford Taxicab Corporation to apply yesterday morning for licenses for its Ford taxicabs was not carried out. Its officials "desired to confer with Second Deputy Police Commissioner Muldoon, in charge of the Hack Bureau, before making formal application," according to Walter W. Davis, president of the corporation. Mr. Davis said he would confer with Mr. Muldoon early this week and then would apply for the licenses.

It was reported that the conference with the Deputy Commissioner would not concern rates, but minor matters. The Luxford company intends to adhere to its latest decision to put the Ford cabs on the streets at the prevailing "15-5" rate, it was said.

HAITI COMMISSION WILL SAIL FEB. 25

Main Group Will Go on Rochester From Key West—Others to Leave Here Tuesday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The principal members of President Hoover's commission for the study of conditions in Haiti will sail from Key West, Fla., on the cruiser Rochester on Feb. 25, and several assistants and stenographers will leave New York on the steamer Ancon next Tuesday.

Those sailing on the Ancon will be Rees H. Barkalow, a former foreign service officer, who will be secretary and disbursing officer of the commission; Fernand L. J. Dumont, a veteran translator for international commissions and conferences, and four State Department stenographers, Vera G. Nierling, Marguerite R. Roddy, Merlene Everett, Grace N. Carlisle and Germain Tougas.

Those sailing on the Rochester will be W. Cameron Forbes, chairman; Henry P. Fletcher, Elie Vezenia, James Kerney and William Allen White.

With them will be James Clement Dunn of the State Department, counselor of the commission; Dr. Victor G. Heiser of the Rockefeller Foundation, who will be medical adviser to the delegation; Charles H. Marshall of the firm of Butler, Herrick & Marshall in New York, who has a thorough knowledge of French; Warren H. Kelchner of the State Department, who will be assistant secretary to the commission; Robert C. Redmayne, stenographer-secretary with the commission, and Richard T. Strong, another stenographer-secretary.

SEES NEW STRIFE IN SOUTH.

Civil Liberties Head Lays Labor Riots to Lack of a Middle Class.

Further violence against the textile workers of North Carolina in their efforts to form unions was predicted by Roger Baldwin, president of the American Civil Liberties Union, at a meeting yesterday at the Civic Club, 18 East Tenth Street. Mr. Baldwin said that a new impulse in the South was in conflict with the traditions which have existed since the Civil War.

"The South lacks a middle class as a basis of public opinion," he said, "with the result that every one must be classed either for or against the workers. The tendency of the ruling class in the South is to go get your gun and conduct a holy war against labor organizers from the North, who are always referred to as 'Communists' and 'Roosians.'"

NEW FOSSILS FOUND IN DINOSAUR CANYON

Arizona Region Proved to Be Among Richest in World in Reptilian Traces.

WORK OF EXPEDITION TOLD

Bones of Small Species, Believed to Be 120,000,000 Years Old, Brought Here for Study.

By GILBERT E. GABLE.

Seventy-five miles northeast of Flagstaff, Ariz., flanked by bizarre-looking rocks lies what is known as Dinosaur Canyon. The way to this forbidding formation of cliffs leads in from the [illegible] edge of the Painted Desert, about 25,000 square miles of dun sand and red rock, with mounds and cliffs in pastel shades of vivid contrasts.

In the hollow of this canyon, under a layer of solid rock, scientists accompanying the Walter E. Hering Endowment Expedition from the University of Pennsylvania and the American Museum of Natural History found more than 300 dinosaur tracks last November. The discovery has proved to be the largest collection of footprints of the prehistoric monster ever found in the world, and the impressions were exceedingly clear, showing the three-toed feet of dinosaurs of several species and sizes.

The University of Pennsylvania was represented by Lr. J. Alden Mason, curator of its American section. The Museum of Natural History group was headed by Barnum Brown, curator of the Department of Palaeontology.

A third division of the expedition was headed by R. L. Stearns, president of the Kentucky & Tennessee Railroad, and included Lewis Bryant of Roberta, Tenn., whose private museum there houses thousands of arrow heads and archaeological relics from all parts of the world.

Early last year a Navajo Indian came into Klo-a-chee-Kin (Painted Desert House), the Indian Trading Post at Cameron, Ariz., at the edge of the Painted Desert. He looked at a slab of stone built into the rock wall above the fireplace of the post-office, on the surface of which was the mark of a three-toed foot. In a few Navajo sentences to Hubert Richardson, he said he knew a canyon where there were many similar tracks.

Indian Guides Him to Spot.

Next day Mr. Richardson, with the Indian as his guide, drove out across desert and mesa to the east. Most of the way led through a deep gully lined and bedded with salmon-colored sand. After eight miles of it they came to a stop against an impassable bank.

Half a mile ahead were formations of red sandstone like a forest of monuments, some of them as much as 200 feet high. Behind them the wall of cliff rose in colorful strata. Near the entrance to this bowl, the Indian led Mr. Richardson to a surface of rock.

On this rock, Mr. Richardson saw depressions resembling the mark on the stone over his fireplace and the famous dinosaur tracks found some time ago near Tuba City.

A few days later I came into Cameron and outfitted at the post for a trip to Rainbow Bridge, about 110 miles northeast of Cameron. Mr Richardson told me of the peculiar tracks so I detoured for a day and we retraced the trail over the desert and through the sand wash.

We counted nearly 200 tracks, undoubtedly those of the dinosaur, and tried to picture the colossal reptiles which, judging from the tracks, must have measured from twenty-five to thirty feet in length and down to the size of a large turkey. I had seen the group of skeletons in the dinosaur gallery in the American Museum of Natural History in New York and knew that the tracks at out feet were made in what was then sandy clay over 100,000,000 years ago.

There seemed only one logical appelation for this grotesque bowl, as we knew we were looking at the largest discovery of dinosaur tracks ever found in the world and so we named it Dinosaur Canyon. Scraping of the area a few days afterward brought to light 100 more tracks.

Among these tracks are many series in line and evidently made by the same animal. One such group includes thirteen tracks, another eleven.

The find was reported to the authorities by the writer and the expedition was organized. On Nov. 11, the members of the expedition left Flagstaff for the Painted Desert, and the work proceeded for exactly a month.

Clay Mounds Give Up Fossils.

Not far from the location of the dinosaur tracks was a group of blue clay mounds. These Mr. Brown at the beginning of the research recognized as a likely location of animal remains. Under his direction one of the blue clay hills was examined and on the first day he recovered the partial skeleton of a prehistoric reptile not unlike an aligator.

Further digging disclosed a partial skeleton of an entirely different species never before known to science. It will take careful examination and comparison with known species to determine even a name for this queer denisen of what was once the shore of a vast sea millions of years ago and is now a waste of colored sands. However, enough of the skeleton has already been uncovered to make this possible if it can be removed to the scientific laboratories of the American Museum. Near the bones of the reptile were found thin pieces, possibly the remains of dinosaur eggs.

This reptile, as described by Mr. Brown, was about the size of a rabbitt. Parts of the skull and jaws, as well as limb bones were found scattered along a hillside of the canyon, and it took four days to gather together the minute remnants, some of the teeth and bits of bone no longer than pencil points.

Casts were made of several of the dinosour tracks, and these are now in the American Museum of Natural

Continued on Page Five.

Athletes Equal Other Groups in Scholarship, Some Exceed Average, Columbia Dean Finds

Members of Columbia University's varsity and freshman teams ranked as high scholastically during the last academic session as their non-athletic classmates, according to a statistical report made public yesterday by Herbert E. Hawkes, dean of Columbia College.

The scholastic standing of students engaged in athletic activities at Columbia University, Dean Hawkes said, indicates that participation in athletics does not seriously affect study. Several teams ranked well above the general average of the college as a whole.

In the system of marking at Columbia the approximate numerical value of an A grade is 15 points. Other equivalents are 11 points for B grade, 8 for C, 5 for D and 1 for F. The first three grades are satisfactory.

The 283 members of Columbia's twelve varsity teams, the report revealed, attained a numerical average of 9.06, which is equivalent to a grade of C plus. The same average grade was made by 184 freshmen athletes with a numerical rating of 9.09. Excluding duplications, 396 students were active members of Columbia's teams during the last session.

The approximate average for Columbia College is 9.45, also equal to a C plus grade.

In comparative averages the freshman tennis team, with three members, led the tewnty-three recognized athletic teams with an average above B. Its closest competitors were the members of the varsity swimming team, who averaged 10 points, also equal to the B rating.

Other teams which ranked higher than the general average of the college were the freshman rifle squad, with a rating of 9.54; the varsity marksmen, with 9.59, and the freshman fencing team with 9.93.

The basketball teams led the major sports group scholastically with a numerical average of 8.93. They were followed by the crew with 8.91, baseball with 8.76, track with 8.56 and football with 8.32.

The thirty-seven men on Coach Glendon's varsity crews topped the major sports teams academically with a rating of 9.02, which is worth a C plus grade. The sixty-seven members of the varsity and junior varsity football teams averaged 8.5. Forty-four varsity players averaged 8.63. Members of the freshman football team were able to attain only an average of 8.08.

Dean Hawkes said the comparatively low standing of the members of the freshman football squad was probably due to the failure of the first-year men to acclimate themselves to their college environment before the start of the football season in the Fall. In seven of the eleven sports having both freshmen and yarsity teams the members of the varsity received higher average grades than the freshman athletes.

The academic ranking of the sports was as follows: tennis, rifle, fencing, swimming, wrestling, basketball, crew, water polo, cross-country, baseball, track and football.

PRINCETON ALUMNI PLAN 4-DAY REUNION

McCarter Theatre Dedication to Be Part of Program Beginning Thursday.

CORNELL HEAD WILL SPEAK

Dr. Farrand to Address Meeting of Association With Dr. Hibben—Several Athletic Events.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 15.—Dr. Livingston Farrand, president of Cornell University, and Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton University, will address a meeting of the Princeton National Alumni Association as part of the activities of the Washington's Birthday alumni week-end beginning Thursday. A four-day program has been arranged under the supervision of John Colt.

One of the chief events of the reunion will be the opening of the new McCarter Theatre, which will be the home of the Princeton Triangle Club, student dramatic organization. The Triangle Club will present its current production, "The Golden Dog," in the new theatre Thursday night and again on Friday night. The dedication will take place Friday.

At the dedication of the new $450,000 structure Dr. Hibben will receive the keys to the building from D. K. Este Fisher of Baltimore, the architect, and will accept it on behalf of the university. The theatre has been made possible through a gift of $250,000 by Thomas N. McCarter of Newark, which supplemented funds accumulated over a period of years by the Triangle Club.

The theatre will be used also as a laboratory for the courses in dramatic art given by Professor Donald Clive Stuart.

"The American theatre needs intelligent audiences," Dr. Stuart said

Continued on Page Four.

EUROPA REFITTED, OPEN TO PUBLIC

German Liner, Repaired After Fire, Has Room Dedicated to Schurman, Ex-Envoy.

STARTS SERVICE MARCH 19

Sister Ship of Record-Holding Bremen Expected to Cross the Atlantic in Six Days.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAMBURG, Feb. 15.—The North German Lloyd Line's Europa, sister ship of the record-holding Bremen and herself expected a become new wearer of the blue ribbon, was opened to inspection today, following her refitting necessitated by a fire in March of last year. She will sail from Bremen on her maiden voyage March 19, arriving at New York six days later.

Although at first sight the Europa appears a twin of the Bremen, there are many points of difference. For example, the principle of a bulbous bow is more marked on the Europa. It is hoped she will ride the waves still more smoothly than the Bremen. Her funnels are elliptical instead of streamlined, and her interior decoration, the work of a modern artist, is noticeably different and predominantly modern in conception and in the use of straight plain lines and angles. Her various saloons, lounges, social rooms and smoking rooms are nevertheless restrained. Modernism is not carried to a point where it might irritate the travelers. The Europa is not yet fitted with a catapult for mail planes. It is pointed out that catapulting airplanes in the Winter months is still uncertain.

An especially charming room on the Europa is the so-called Schurman room, the semi-private dining room adjoining the restaurant. It

Continued on Page Two.

Public Notices

Daily $1.00 an agate line. Sunday $1.20

The New York Times maintains a complete record of all missing persons sought through this column. Address inquiries Public Notice Department, The New York Times.

EUROPEAN AUTOMOBILE TRIP SUMMER 1930, couple accommodate ladies, gentlemen. C 202 Times.

YOUNG MAN WILL DRIVE CAR FOR GENtleman, couple going West for transportation. P 304 Times.

EUROPEAN ESCORT—YOUNG MAN, CULtured, educated, experienced traveler, accompany gentleman, couple, extended trip; credentials. G 834 Times Downtown.

LOS ANGELES—REAL ESTATE BROKER (leaving Wednesday, returning in Fall) will execute commissions; business woman. 24 West 87th.

FEBRUARY, 1911—CONGRESS REJECTED court decree awarding wages Navy Yarders. Labor Department please note. Hiram Mann 79 Wall St.

MARGERY GREY HORNBLOWER—INFORmation wanted of whereabouts in settlement of estate. Marshall Van Winkle, attorney, 1 Exchange Place, Jersey City, N. J.

PERSONS WITNESSING TRUCK STRIKING elderly woman, 3d Av.-54th St., 3:30 afternoon Dec. 5, 1928, kindly communicate Guggenheimer, Attorney, 55 Liberty St., New York

WANTED — INFORMATION REGARDING Joe and Wickey Murphy and a 1926 Packard limousine, engine No. 54209, license No. 244285—Mich., 1930; $200 reward. Frank Trudell, Grosse Ile, Mich.

S. FRANCE—HILL COUNTRY, IDEAL CLImate; principal, English, has two vacancies for girls seeking thorough English education, perfect conversational French. Villa Gladys, Draguignan Var.

FOR SALE—ALBUM CONTAINING LARGE unique collection of pre-war and inflation period German currency, with many specimens interesting to curiosity hunters. Kurt Boehm, Eichenau 255, near Munich, P. O. Pucheim, Bavaria.

CUBA DINNER, HOTEL BILTMORE, FRIday evening, March 28, sponsored by prominent Americans and Cubans. If you are interested in Cuba, call or write for information. Cuban Society, Corn Exchange Bank Building, 1 East 42d St.

HARVARD GRADUATE, VAST MERCHANdising, executive experience, leaving on extensive European tour Feb. 22; Leipzig and other fairs; handle important commissions, negotiations, confidential missions; references from America's leaders. Y 2089 Times Annex.

JAMES JERVIS BAGNALL THE YOUNGER —Information is required as to the present whereabouts or death of James Jervis Bagnall, son of James Jervis Bagnall, late of Wellington, New Zealand, who is believed to have formerly resided at Palmerston North, New Zealand, and to have gone from there to the east coast of the United States of America. Any person having any information is requested to communicate with Mathews, James & Crosskey, Solicitors, 29 Waterloo St., Birmingham, England.

LADY WILL ASSIST LADY WITH CHILD exchange fare West. M 119 Times.

MIAMI—GENTLEMAN, LARGE NEW SEdan, take gentleman or couple. Phone Flatbush 1608.

WANTED—INFORMATION AS TO PRESent whereabouts of George W. Curren. Address Mr. R. Y 2131 Times Annex.

ESTABLISHED JEWISH FRATERNITY DEsires new members, age 20 to 24, to enlarge present group. H 284 Times.

CALIFORNIA—YOUNG MAN WILL DRIVE for expenses with gentleman; private; speak English and German; references. S 491 Times.

ENGLISH BUSINESS WOMAN, RETURNing England permanently March 8, will execute commissions or represent American company. C 190 Times.

ARGENTINE—LADY (BRITISH) RETURNing in Spring offers services to family exchange for part of passage; experienced children; practical; highest references. Y 2363 Times Annex.

MY WIFE, LILLIAN L. LUCKENBACH, having left my home, I will not be responsible for any debts incurred by her.
LEWIS LUCKENBACH,
44 Whitehall St., New York City, N. Y.

ADOLF SCHULER, WHO WORKED LAST at Community Hospital, or any one knowing his whereabouts, please communicate with his wife, Martha, 1,731 Wallace Av., Bronx.

HENRY RICHMOND SAYCE, LAST HEARD of in New York City; brother C. T. Sayce and nephew enquire. Write A. B. S. Kitchen, Rockwood Hospital, Kingston, Ont., Canada.

ADDRESS OR HEIRS WANTED OF:
DONNELLY—Sarah, resided St. Michael's Parish, West 34th St., New York, 1880; sister in New York, brother California.
IVES—Stephen, coachman, resided Richmond, Surrey, England, 1845.
KUBELI—Ernest, born Switzerland, 1865; kept restaurant 148 West 17th St., 1912.
McCARTHY—BURKE—James McCarthy married Hanora Burke, County Waterford, 1832; children, James and Norah, resided New York, 1878.
MARTIN—William, born Bellefonte, Pennsylvania, 1863.
MORSE-ROSSER—James, Annie, Eliza, brother and sisters, born Llansamet, Swansea, Wales, 1830-1840.
RICARDE-SEAVER—Francis Ricarde-Seaver, born Ireland, about 1837; married first Princess Christina de Loos et Corswaren; second Marie Marquise de Charras; third Mary Anne Rickard; fourth Catherine Rickard.
SAXTON—HARPER—John Saxton married Susan Harper in England, prior to 1860; children Frederick, Mary. Went to Canada.
RIGAULT—GIRAUD—Henry Rigault married Jeane Giraud; resided Migron, France; son, John, born 1795, settled in New York.
Apply John J. Dwyer, 27 Pine St., New York. Telephone John [illegible].

WAGNER WILL PUSH PROHIBITION DEBATE

Senator in Interview Says the People Must Solve Problem by Free Discussion.

AGAINST BOTH EXTREMES

He Declares It Is No Longer a Liquor Question, but One Concerning Nation's Self-Respect.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, in an interview at Washington today with a staff correspondent of The Chicago Tribune, replied to those who since his recent anti-prohibition speech in the Senate confront him with the question, 'Now, what is the next step?'"

"Discuss, discuss and continue to discuss," is the Senator's answer quoted in the interview which The Tribune will print tomorrow.

"Prohibition, with its attendant abuses, is not a liquor question any longer," the Senator continues. "It is a problem of government. We cannot correct the abuses by abuse and we cannot solve the problem by bending to the clamor of those who say, 'You're not trying to solve a complex social problem at all. You're trying to get whisky for somebody.'

"Solution of this problem will be found only in the formulation and fostering of a new liberalism, and the development of a new liberalism is a cause more momentous than a cause which can be expressed by a slogan so trivial as 'The workingman wants his beer.'"

Referendum as "Another Forum."

Inclined to favor a national referendum on prohibition, not because it would be either favorable or unfavorable to modification, but because it and the preliminaries leading to it would "open another forum for discussion," Senator Wagner says:

"Long before that discussion was finished the people would be talking of this problem of government in its constitutional aspects, instead of in the terms of a vulgar booze problem.

"One thing is certain: The problem is not to be solved by bigots on the one hand nor by consumers of bootleg liquor on the other.

"It will be solved by thoughtful, self-respecting men and women who recognize the evils of the old saloon system and refuse to go back to saloons, but who, because they also recognize the evils of the present system, are determined to get away from them. By such people will a new liberalism be formulated.

"Ten years of the noble experiment have created intense dissatisfaction with the Eighteenth Amendment. That is so much gain.

Sees Swing in Public Opinion.

"Far less than another ten-year period of experiment and discussion ought to crystalize the fact that the people are dissatisfied with the situation and ought to prove that not in impossible prohibitions, but in rational liberalism, lies the remedy for present conditions.

"Those conditions must be faced and corrected if the self-respect of the American people is to be preserved—and the self-respect of the people is a fundamental of success in self-government.

"We know what we have on our hands now, and they are incompatible with self-respect.

"We have got these bloodsheds and corruptions and this intemperate drinking. We have got the fact that juries won't convict, and that fact shows that the Eighteenth Amendment has not reached the public conscience. It provides drastic proof that no law is a law simply because you put it on the statute books.

"And we have appalling statistics showing the increase of deaths from intemperate drinking. When I quote these statistics I am not quoting partisan statistics. I am quoting from the compilations of the New York Life Insurance Company. These figures show a sixfold multiplication since 1920 of the number of persons dying from alcoholism.

Full, Free Search for Remedy.

"Even discussion is considered inexpedient in certain quarters," Senator Wagner continues. "That is why it seems to me that full, free, serious, searching discussion is the first step toward amelioration.

"And I believe that, notwithstanding the timidity of pragmatic fellows, the people are more ready to listen to and participate in serious discussion than ever before. Upon returned to New York, the day after my speech of Feb. 6, I was impressed by the number of people who commented on that speech—men and women, some of them whom I didn't know ever read speeches.

"As to true remedies which will correct the abysmal confusion and the abuses which grow out of attempts to enforce such a law, no thoughtful man can as yet speak with certainty.

"Can Congress impose upon the States a referendum as to whether they want the Eighteenth Amendment repealed? That is a legal problem which I want to examine thoroughly. I was too many years on the bench to wish to give an off-hand answer to my own question.

Modification Instead of Repeal.

"As to actual repeal, that is a pretty remote thing, when you remember that thirteen States can prevent it.

"Perhaps the most practical solution of this huge social problem would be an amendment to the Volstead act containing a reasonable definition of alcoholic content that would permit beer and light wines, thus eliminating the bootlegger.

"That would give us a law in conformity with the public conscience, and the other restrictive features of the act could then be enforced. We have had ten years of experiment with the original act. Now I am willing to experiment with such a modified act."

Of the report of President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission, the Senator says:

"A few clerks could have found out for us in a few days all the facts relative to congested courts, too few judges and a little lost motion between the Departments of Treasury and Justice. Those are not the real and scandalous abuses of prohibition, as everybody knows."

Pupils in Manners Campaign At Princeton High School

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 15.—A "good manners campaign" is to open at Princeton High School on Monday, according to an announcement today from the Student Council. The campaign will be entirely directed by the students, and will have as its aim the development of a spirit of courtesy in the school.

More than 100 posters with appropriate slogans are to be hung about the school. Assembly talks, home-room discussions and other features have been planned.

SIX MORE SCHOOLS IN ORATORY CONTEST

New Entries Bring Total for This Region to Record Figure of 315.

DISTRICT DATES ARE SET

Keen Interest Shown in Competition on Constitution, With Entire Classes Taking Part.

With six new entries during the week, a record total of 315 high schools have now enrolled in the National Oratorical Contest on the Constitution, sponsored in this region by THE NEW YORK TIMES. In addition to the borough and district cash prizes offered, a grand prize of $1,000, a trip to Europe, and the privilege of entering the national finals at Washington on May 24, will go to the winning orator in this area, which comprises Greater New York, Westchester, Long Island and Northern New Jersey.

The six schools entered during the past week, with their principals, follow:

Manhattan.

School of the Blessed Sacrament—Sister Agnita Concepta.
Hamilton Institute for Girls—Mrs. Charlotte Goodale.

Suffolk County, L. I.

Greenport High School—Joseph A. Walker.

Monmouth County, N. J.

Long Branch High School—William E. Cate.
Red Bank Catholic High School—Sister Wilfred.

Morris County, N. J.

Butler High School—R. J. Ellenberger.

Preparations for the contest, which promises to be of intense interest this year, has shown increasing progress in all schools which have reported, and a lively enthusiasm has been remarked among the competitors. With the oratorical representative of each school to be selected by March 21, dates already been set by several district chairmen for the borough and district elimination rounds, all of which must be completed among the junior schools by April 4, and among the senior schools by April 16.

Contest Dates Announced.

In the five boroughs of New York City, in which all of the 115 senior, evening and junior public high schools have been enrolled by Dr. William J. O'Shea, Superintendent of Schools, arrangements have been completed for interscholastic competitions in the Bronx, Brooklyn, Richmond and Queens, and also in the private schools of all five boroughs. Two borough elimination contests will be held in the Bronx, according to Elmer E. Bogart, principal of Morris High School, chairman. Following a conference with representatives of all public schools entered in his borough, Mr. Bogart announced that the three evening high schools will compete at Evander Childs High School on the evening of April 15, and the six high schools in the borough will meet at the same school on Wednesday, April 16.

Extempore speaking will be part of the district finals, with Henry I. Norr, principal of Evander Childs, in charge of the selection of topics for the evening schools, and Mr. Bogart making the choice for the day schools. Four pupils will be selected from the latter group and two from the former to take part in the regional semi-finals.

The three Brooklyn senior high school district finals will be held in Brooklyn on April 11 at 8 P. M., the places to be selected later, according to Eugene A. Colligan of Boys High School, chairman; while the four high schools of Richmond County will meet to select a borough public school representative in Port Richmond High auditorium on April 10 at 8 P. M. William J. Halloran, principal at Port Richmond, is borough chairman.

District finals for private schools in Manhattan and the Bronx will be held on April 4 at 8 P. M. in the auditorium of Horace Mann School for Girls, at 525 West 120th Street, following arrangements made by Charles C. Tillinghast, principal of the Horace Mann School for Boys, who is chairman. The Rev. Brother Samuel, C. F. X., of St. Michael's Diocesan High School, Brooklyn, chairman of the contest among the private schools of Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond, has announced that the representatives of the nineteen schools in that district will meet in two preliminary elimination contests, with the district finals being held in the Bishop McDonnell Memorial High School on the evening of April 7, at which time four speakers selected from the preliminaries will compete.

Bishop Commends Contests.

In a letter recently addressed to the principals of all Catholic private schools in his district, Brother Samuel said: "Mgr. Joseph V. McClancy has authorized me to inform the principals of all Catholic high schools in the diocese that it was his wish and the wish of the Right Reverend Bishop that all these high schools participate in the contest. If you have not already done so, may I ask that the name of your school be entered? Certainly the work is in harmony with the aim we hope to accomplish and carries with it excellent educational advantages. In my opinion, no extracurricula mental activity is quite so important."

Monsignor McClancy, who is superintendent of Catholic schools in the Brooklyn diocese, announced in a previous statement:

"It is a pleasure to promise in the

Continued on Page Four.

50,000 IN HAVANA HONOR MAINE DEAD

Cuban, American and Canadian Seamen and Soldiers March in Anniversary Parade.

CITY'S BUSINESS SUSPENDS

Citizens Throng Plaza to Commemorate Sinking of the Battleship in 1898.

GUGGENHEIM IS SPEAKER

Ambassador and Secretary Martinez Ortiz Stress Friendship—Machado Talks Extemporaneously.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Feb. 15.—In the presence of a crowd of 50,000 in Maine Plaza this morning President Machado delivered a speech, partly extemporaneous, following addresses by Ambassador Guggenheim and Secretary of State Martinez Ortiz, in which the Chief Executive paid eloquent tribute to the American people, voicing the sentiments of Cuba in her appreciation of the powerful aid of her great neighbor and friend in the dark days of the struggle for independence. It had not been announced that President Machado was to speak, but the inspiration of the occasion brought him to his feet, and in his customary forceful style he expressed a determination to carry on the work to which he had dedicated himself and labor to maintain the Cuban ideals of freedom and independence as a sovereign nation.

Before the arrival of the President thousands of residents and visiting tourists gathered about the Maine monument on the thirty-second anniversary of the destruction of the battleship Maine in Havana Harbor, the cause of which has never been satisfactorily ascertained. Soldiers, sailors and marines of Cuba and the United States' ships Wright and Falcon, sent here to participate in the ceremonies, with Spanish-American War veterans, American Legionnaires, Cuban veterans of the wars of liberation and patriotic organizations were in line waiting to pass in review before President Machado and his Cabinet and the diplomatic corps.

As the parade passed, the President frequently applauded, standing at salute as the flags of the United States and Cuba passed the reviewing stand.

Following the review, Secretary of State Martinez Ortiz delivered the opening address, briefly sketching the events leading up to the arrival of the Maine here and its destruction and, speaking of the results of that catastrophe, leading to the independence of Cuba. Ambassador Guggenheim then delivered an address in reply, followed by President Machado.

50,000 Attend Ceremony.

HAVANA, Feb. 15 (AP).—Cuban and American residents of Havana turned aside from business today to join in paying their respects to the memory of the Maine victims. The soldiers and sailors of the two republics marched side by side in one of the largest and most resplendent parades ever seen in this city of parades and fiestas.

Sailors from the Canadian cruisers Vancouver and Champlain, here on a Caribbean cruise, likewise took part in the exercises.

50,000 persons at the Maine monument stood uncovered as the strains of Cuba's national anthem rang out across the harbor to the spot where the Maine sank. The "Star-Spangled Banner" brought forth cheering from the crowds, who a few moments later stood with bowed heads as "Nearer, By God, to Thee" was played, followed by taps and a rifle salute.

Text of Ambassador's Speech.

In his address yesterday in Havana on the anniversary of the sinking of the battleship Maine Ambassador Guggenheim spoke as follows:

"In the history of nations there are certain events which, by this chance or that, become outstanding factors in shaping a national destiny. With the passage of the years the conditions out of which these happenings arose are obscured and the events remain in men's minds largely as a symbol of a cause or the spirit behind a cause.

Americans and Cubans alike, for example, will regard your great poet-patriot, José Marti, as the symbol of a courage and a sacrifice which, for all time to come, must add to the nobility of the human race; the wars, the sufferings, the hatreds in the midst of which he lived are largely forgotten; we recall and cherish only the extraordinary virture of the man himself.

"In the same fashion, the event that we are commemorating today has long ago ceased to stir up the bitterness to which it once gave rise. We remember the disaster of the Maine as the symbol of our mutual participation in Cuba's glorious struggle for independence and of the friendship that has steadily strengthened between our two republics since that time. Your country's gracious act in erecting so lovely a monument has expressed this friendship more effectively in marble than it can be expressed in words.

Sees Friendship Predestined.

"Coincidences so curious as to seem almost predestined lie behind this friendship. The experiences which our two countries share in common are recorded from the very begining. We date the discovery of my country in 1492, but, of course, it was our land which Columbus really found.

"The United States wrested its independence from its mother country in a brave and bitter war, and Cuba won its freedom in the same way. In the Cuban war of independence the American nation rallied to the Cuban cause, and a few years later in that world-shaking conflict that began in 1914, Cuba became an ally of the United States, one day after the latter made its declaration of war.

"Our governments are modeled on very similar plans; we are mutually interested in each other's economic prosperity; we are geographically only one hour apart.

"There is then a 'divine conspiracy' linking our two republics. The years ahead, I believe, will even surpass the years behind in the development of this friendship and this understanding. The United States and Cuba both belong among the young nations of the world; if the progress of the two countries in the past has been extraordinary, the coming generations will see an even more remarkable advance.

"Our two countries, each working out its own future, will make this advance side by side.

"My friends, we have a debt of honor to those martyrs of the Maine, whose destiny it was to die so that Cuba might be free and so that a new and noble principle might be established in the political relations existing between a large and a small country. Our debt to these dead of the Maine can only be repaid if you of Cuba and we of the United States in all of our acts, in each of our expressions, in our every thought, shall be worthy of the friendship for which these men died."

VICTIMS OF MAINE HONORED.

Two Survivors Lay Wreaths Before Columbus Circle Memorial.

Memorial services for the 266 officers and men who were killed in the explosion of the battleship Maine in Havana Harbor on Feb. 15, 1898, were held last night at the Maine Memorial at the Columbus Circle entrance to Central Park.

While about 200 persons stood bareheaded in the snow, Arthur Rau and Gustav Dressler, two survivors of the crew, placed wreaths before the memorial. Another wreath was placed by members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans of New York County. Addresses were made by the Right Rev. Mgr. John P. Chidwick, who was chaplain of the Maine; Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew, and Charles G. Lawrence, Past State Commander of the veterans' organization. Maurice Simmons, Past Commander-in-Chief, presided.

The veterans had previously assembled at the 102d Armory, 56 West Sixty-sixth Street, and marched to the site of the memorial behind a band. Arriving at 9:45 they found a small crowd, including friends and relatives of victims, waiting for them.

Others in the crowd were Attorney General Hamilton Ward, Anthony J. Griffin, Representative in Congress; State Commander Patrick F. Harney and Mary A. McGauley, State Chaplain of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

CHILD HOSPITAL ELECTION.

Mrs. W. Thorn Kissel Is Again Chosen President of Board.

The board of directors of the New York Nursery and Child's Hospital, at the annual meeting held at the home of Mrs. W. Thorn Kissel, 33 East Sixty-seventh Street, elected officers and directors for the hospital, which is one of the United Hospital Fund group of institutions.

Mrs. Kissel was re-elected president, William Rodman Fay vice president, Mrs. Algernon S. Sullivan and Mrs. Frank S. Witherbee honorary vice presidents, Linzee Blagden treasurer, Roderick Terry Jr. secretary, and Joseph Walker Jr. general counsel. Mrs. William Armour, Mrs. Kissel, Mrs. Stephen C. Clark, Mrs. Ernest G. Stillman, Mrs. Harold C. Richard, Mrs. James W. Gerard, Moses Ely, Duncan G. Harris, George H. Howard, Grayson M-P. Murphy, Vernon Munroe and Henry Munroe were re-elected directors.

Dr. Oscar M. Schloss was again elected to preside over the medical board, on which are also Dr. Henry Clay Cowles, Dr. James A. Harrar, Dr. Ralph Waldo Lobenstine, Dr. Jesse F. Sammis, Dr. Louis C. Schroeder and Dr. Royal C. Van Etten.

EUROPA REFITTED, OPEN TO PUBLIC

Continued from Page 1, Column 5.

contains a portrait of the former American Ambassador, Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, and a painting of Heidelberg, where he studied.

Geheimrat Stimming, chairman of the board of directors of the North German Lloyd, speaking at the Europa's inauguration dinner, declared: "The Europa is Europe's latest step toward joining herself in closer relationship with the new centre of the world."

3,000 PASSENGERS OFF AS 16 LINERS SAIL

Calgaric Takes 400 on Mediterranean Cruise—American Banker Carries Bulk of Mail.

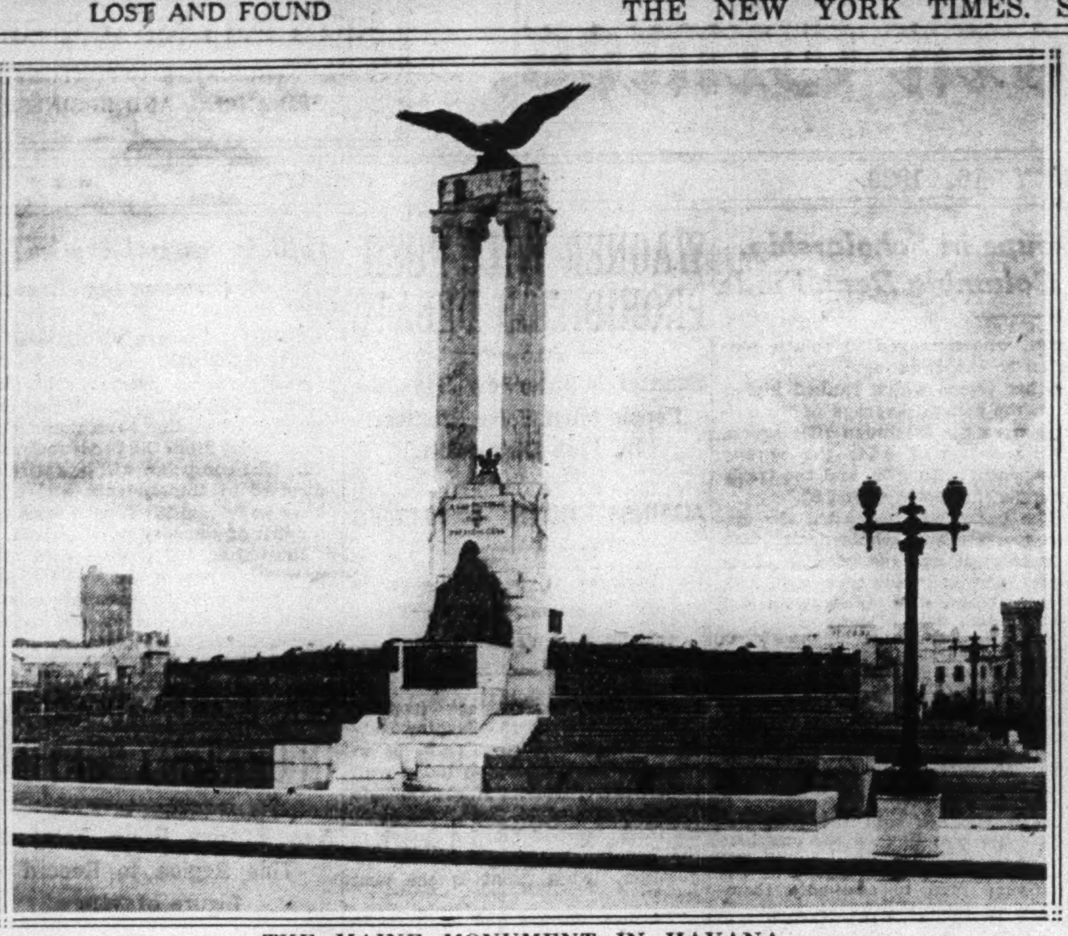
Sixteen steamships sailed from this port yesterday carrying nearly 3,000 passengers, the majority bound south in search of warm weather. The largest crowds of American tourists were on board the White Star liner Calgaric on a cruise to Mediterranean ports and the Anchor liner Caledonia going for a cruise to the West Indies and Central America.

The Calgaric, which left pier 59 at noon under charter to James Boring's, Inc., had 1,500 visitors to see the 400 tourists off.

On the Caledonia the tourists departing and their friends on the pier were cheered up by Scotch pipers who marched round playing Caledonian airs.

The Atlantic Transport liner Minnewaska was the first to go down the Hudson River at 11 o'clock, followed by the Cunarder Scythia, the White Star liner Cedric, and the Frederick VIII of the Scandinavian American Line.

The last passenger steamer to leave was the American Banker of the American Merchant Lines, bound for London, which had very few passengers, but carried the bulk of the outgoing mail, which pays much better.



THE MAINE MONUMENT IN HAVANA.
Erected by the People of Cuba to the Victims of the Sinking of the Battleship Maine on Feb. 15, 1898.

REQUEST JOINT USE OF JAMESTOWN ROAD

Merchants Ask I. C. C. to Let the P. R. R. and New York Central Share Belt Line With Erie.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP).—Designation of the Jamestown, Westfield & Northwestern Electric Railroad as a terminal carrier not assigned to any one consolidated trunk line system was asked today by the Manufacturers' Association of Jamestown, N. Y., in a petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The association said the road is a belt line susceptible of important development and that if used as an independent or joint facility property would bring into the city the New York Central, the Pennsylvania and the Nickel Plate Railroads, with all of which it connects directly.

At present Jamestown is served only by the Erie Railroad, and the association asserted that it is one of the largest cities east of the Mississippi River served by only one trunk line.

Some years ago, the association continued, the electric line had much more adequate terminals in the city than at present, but made an "improvident" lease with the Erie, giving the latter road almost a monopoly on the terminal facilities.

Jamestown is a rapidly growing city, the petition said, and the association asked that if the commission felt that the Jamestown, Westfield & Northwestern must be allocated to some system, it should be so allocated as to create a maximum of competition and to throw open the terminals of Jamestown on a competitive basis.

CHOSEN LIFE MEMBER OF THE CORNELL BOARD

E. N. Sanderson, Alumni Trustee, Is Named to Succeed Colonel Henry W. Sackett.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 15.—At the February meeting of the Board of Trustees of Cornell University, President Farrand announced today, several changes were made in that body, several faculty appointments were ratified, and more than $200,000 in gifts and bequests were reported.

Edwin N. Sanderson, '87, of New York City, alumni trustee, was elected a life member of the board to fill the vacancy created by the death of Colonel Henry W. Sackett, '84, of New York. Mr. Sanderson was recently elected by the alumni to serve a second five-year term.

Professor Ernest G. Merritt was chosen by the university faculty as its representative on the board for a term of three years.

Former Governor Horace White, '87, of Syracuse, recently reappointed as a trustee of the university by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, began his new term of five years.

Charles H. Baldwin of Albany, recently elected president of the New York State Agricultural Society for 1930, also became a member of the board. In the charter of the university this officer automatically becomes a member of the governing body of the university.

Bert Houghton, '92, by reason of being elected president of the Cornell Society of Engineers, became an ex-officio member of the Engineering College Council of the Board.

Professor Robert S. Stevens of the Cornell Law School was appointed actiing dean for the second term and Summer of 1930, during the absence on leave of Dean Charles K. Burdick.

Assistant Professor William H. Farnum, '18, now on leave from the university as a graduate fellow at Harvard, was promoted to a professorship of law, and will assume his new duties at the beginning of the academic year 1930-31. Professor Farnum has been an Assistant Professor of Law since 1926 and for the last three years has been secretary of the Law School.

Assistant Professor J. W. Hebel was promoted to a full Professorship of English, beginning with the next academic year. Professor Hebel began his teaching career at Cornell in 1914 as an instructor and has been an assistant professor since 1921.

John W. MacDonald, Clerk of the Court of Claims at Albany, was appointed Assistant Professor of Law. Mr. MacDonald received his A. B. degree from Cornell and graduated from the Cornell Law School in 1926. He also received an M. A. degree from this university.

DIRECTIONS ISSUED ON INCOME TAXES

Bureau of Internal Revenue Points Out Rate Is 1 Per Cent Less Than Previous Year.

RETURNS DUE BY MARCH 15

Must Be Filed in All Cases Where Gross Income Is in Excess of $5,000.

Federal income taxes for 1929, for which returns must be filed by March 15, are lower by 1 per cent of the taxable income than they were for the preceding year, it is pointed out in instructions and explanations which have been made public by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. This reduction, which was passed by Congress, is the only change since last year.

Taxes on individual incomes for 1929 are to be computed at the rate of one-half of 1 per cent for the first $4,000 of taxable net income, 2 per cent on the next $4,000 and 4 per cent on all above that amount. These figures are in places of the rates of 1½ per cent, 3 per cent and 5 per cent, respectively, which were assessed on 1928 income. Surtax rates are unchanged. The tax rate for corporations and insurance companies is 11 per cent, instead of 12 per cent, which was the figure for 1928.

Requirements for the filing of returns, the bureau points out, are the same as those of last year. Returns must be filed in all cases where the gross income is more than $5,000, or the net income more than $1,500 for single persons, or $3,500 for married persons who are living together. A return is unnecessary for such persons whose net income is less than the single or married exemption, as the case may be, and whose gross income is less than $5,000.

Many Items on Exempt List.

On the other hand there is a long list of items of income which are by law exempted from inclusion as gross income. These items are not only exempt from taxation, but are not to be included in computing the total amount of income from which deductions and the personal exemption is to be subtracted. The items in this list include the following:

Proceeds from life insurance policies, interest from municipal bonds, etc., gifts, bequests, devises, damages recovered from personal injuries, World War compensation payments, pensions for services, interest or dividends of not more than $300 from a building and loan association, rental value of a residence supplied to a minister, alimony, notary fees and city jury fees.

In the case of heads of families who are not married, returns must be filed on net incomes over $1,500 despite the fact that the $3,500 exemption is allowed. Similarly, the $400 exemption for each dependent, for heads of families and married persons as well, cannot be computed as a deduction in determining whether a return is required, although it may be added to the exemption in computing whether or not any tax is due.

Head of Family Defined.

The personal exemption allowed is $1,500 for single persons and $3,500 for married persons living together and for heads of families, plus $400 for each dependent. The head of a family is defined as "an individual who actually supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals who are closely connected with him by blood relationship, relationship by marriage, or by adoption, and whose right to exercise family control and provide for these dependent individuals is based upon some moral or legal obligation." A dependant must be "dependent upon him for chief support, and under eighteen years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective."

The latter definition, it is explained, should be interpreted broadly, and may include persons who are ill or aged as well as those specifically mentioned. The dependent need be neither a relative nor a member of the household. The status of "head of family," on the other hand, is more narrowly fixed. In the first place, "the element of either legal or financial dependency must exist." Then there must be established the right to exercise family control." While a common home is not absolutely essential the status cannot be claimed on the existence of a dependant who "continuously makes his home elsewhere without necessity."

Divorcees and persons separated by mutual consent are classified as single persons for income tax purposes.

The shorter form of return, 1040-A, may be used by persons whose net income was derived chiefly from salary or wages, and did not exceed $5,000. All others must use the longer form 1040. They may be obtained from the offices of collectors and deputy collectors, and they should be filed with the collector for the taxpayer's district. Payment of the tax due can be made in full with the filing of the return, or may be made in quarterly instalments on or before the 15th of March, June, September and December.

Couples May Divide Exemption.

The bureau explains that in cases where separate returns are filed by husband and wife the exemption allowed the pair may be divided in any proportion, or applied wholly to either one. Whether or not separate returns should be filed for children depends on whether or not they are "emancipated," which "emancipation" may be "either expressed or implied, general or limited." If the child is "emancipated," a separate return should be filed, in which case the single personal exemption of $1,500 may be deducted. If not "emancipated," the child's income should be included in the parent's return, in which case only the $400 exemption for a dependent may be applied against it. On the other hand, income from a bona fide trust fund or from owned property in the case of an "unemancipated" minor should be subject of a separate return.

Explanation is also made of the proper method of computing exemptions when the status has changed during the course of the taxable year. The proportionate amount of the $1,500 exemption should be claimed for the amount of the year when that status prevailed, and the $3,500 proportionate amount for the balance, when that status prevailed. In the case of dependents, the status on the last day of the taxable year prevails for the entire year.

OLD TAX FORMS IN USE FOR FEDERAL RETURNS

Income Taxpayers Are Required to Change Rates on the 1928 Blanks.

By GODFREY N. NELSON.

On account of the lateness of the date of passage of the joint resolution of Congress (approved Dec. 16, 1929), by which the income tax rates are reduced for the year 1929, the Bureau of Internal Revenue was obliged to use the income tax blanks which were then in process of printing. Inasmuch as these returns contain the rates prescribed in the 1928 revenue act, the taxpayer, in computing the tax thereon, is required to change the rates according to the reductions made effective for 1929. The reductions apply only to the normal taxes of individuals, estates in the course of administration and to corporations. The reductions do not apply to the surtax rates or to the capital gain tax. In each case, where applicable, the reduction in rate is 1 per cent.

In the case of individuals the following table shows the income to which the reduction applies, the rates stated in the return and the reduced rates:

The first $4,000 subject to normal tax	1½%	½ of 1%
The next $4,000 subject to normal tax	3%	2%
Amount subject to normal tax over $8,000..........	5%	4%

The foregoing reduced rates apply to non-resident aliens as well as to citizens and resident aliens.

In the case of corporations, the effective rate is 11 per cent instead of 12 per cent.

Persons or corporations who have made returns for fiscal years ended in 1929 should make claims for credit or refund for the amount of the reduction in tax resulting from the application of the reduced rates.

It should be noted that the joint resolution did not repeal the tax rates fixed by the revenue act of 1928; it merely substituted new rates for the calendar year 1929 in lieu of the rates specified in the revenue act of 1928. Accordingly, on Jan. 1, 1930, the rates of taxes prescribed in the revenue act of 1928 automatically again become effective. Therefore, corporations which keep their books of account on a monthly accrual basis should compute the tax reserve liability at the rate of 12 per cent for the year 1930, and not at the 11 per cent rate.

HEADS JERSEY HEALTH MEN.

F. P. Lake of Paterson Elected as State Conference Ends.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 15.—F. P. Lake of Paterson was elected president of the State Association of Health Officers at the closing session of the organization's annual conference here today. He succeeds William C. Blake of Princeton. Dr. S. L. Salasin of Atlantic City was elected vice president, while M. J. R. Chandler of Plainfield and Eugene H. Sullivan of Nutley were re-elected treasurer and secretary.

Division of the State into regions for health work was proposed by Mr. Blake. Only by some such means, he asserted, would a health program be carried into many of the rural districts of the State where there is now no supervision.

Another suggestion was that the State Department of Health be vested with power to regulate milk supplies and classify grades. At present supervision is exercised by the State Department of Agriculture. The change is proposed by William B. Palmer of Orange, chairman of the milk committee of the Health Officers' Association.

LOST and FOUND

Advertisements received until midnight
TELEPHONE LACKAWANNA 1000
New Jersey, Mulberry 3900 between 8:30 A. M. and 6 P. M. daily; White Plains 5300 between 9 A. M. and 5 P. M. daily; Garden City 3605 between 9 A. M. and 5:30 P. M. daily.
75 cents an agate line daily. 80 cents Sunday.

LOST.

BAG, brown suede, marquisite top, containing vanity, money, Thursday; keep money, return contents. Trafalgar 7645.

BANK BOOK No. 7834, Corn Exchange Bank Trust Co., Washington Heights Branch; payment stopped.

BOOK 17365, Corn Exchange Bank Trust Co., 311 Lenox Av.; return to bank.

CERTIFICATE bond No. 8, Domestic Foreign Investors Corp., Saturday, 7th Av. subway; reward. Haddingway 0776. S 503 Times.

GLASSES—Oxfords, chain, Thursday evening, 41 Madison Av. vicinity; reward. Wisconsin 4715.

PAPERS, valuable, affidavits, marriage license, citizen papers, en route Newark, East 9th St., N. Y.; reward. Mitchell 3566.

POCKETBOOK, checks and money, lost in Checker cab Saturday morning; reward. Mrs. L. Wilmot, 72 Barrow St., City.

PURSE, black envelope style, containing hospital pin, pen and pencil set and keys; valuable to owner only; finder may keep money but kindly return other articles to 601 West 110th. Miss S. Kubica.

PURSE, brown watersnake, lost Peerless cab from Madison Square Garden to 55th St., Wednesday night; liberal reward. L. Whisnant. Bryant 9556.

SHORTHAND MANUAL, PITMANS, LOST FRIDAY; REWARD. ENDICOTT 8388.

SUITCASE, Sunday night, 5:30 o'clock, at Grand Central Station, in Paramount taxi, a small lady's suitcase with dark blue cloth cover. 25 East 26th, Room 902. Ashland 9067.

SUITCASE lady's, Feb. 8; contents sentimental value; reward. Eldorado 8040. Uhl-Thoren.

$500 REWARD
for return in good condition or information leading to and resulting in its return in good condition of a Nicolo Gagliano violin, lost Feb. 3 or 4 in this city. Toplis & Harding. 150 William St. Beekman 2911.

$100 REWARD.
Leather handbag containing trinkets, money and personal effects; lost night of Feb. 14, on Pullman between Washington and New York. No questions asked. Reward on return. Cartier, 653 Fifth Av.

Jewelry.

BAR PIN, diamonds, rubies, sapphires, Metropolitan Opera House or en route East 57th St., Wednesday; reward. Y 2146 Times Annex.

BARPIN, white gold, diamonds, Prospect Park vicinity; reward. Shore Road 3603.

BRACELET, diamond and sapphire, in Hotel Plaza or at 59th St. entrance, or at Playhouse Theatre, evening Feb. 11. Call Wickersham 2093 during office hours; reward.

BROOCH, diamond arrow; reward to finder. Sutton, 536 West 113th. Cathedral 9249.

CAMEO, diamond in centre, Friday, East 77th to 86th St.; reward. Dayton 6475.

CIGARETTE CASE, gold and enamel; reward. Return to Glenby, 12 East 22d St.

EARRING, gold, one, in taxicab between 54th and 11th Sts.; reward. I. Hopkinson, 41 West 114th St., or call Algonquin 8531.

NECKLACE, carved, Chinese amber, Times Square vicinity, Wednesday afternoon; reward. Cleveland 0154.

PIN, diamond, Wednesday, Feb. 12, between 2 and 4 P. M., in vicinity of 5th Av. between 34th and 57th Sts.; reward. Fred H. Samuels, 15 Goldsmith Av. Terrace 7081.

PIN, jade, gold, dragon setting, between Mount Vernon and New York, Lexington Av. car or New Haven R. R.; liberal reward. Phone Oakwood 9083.

PIN, gold, square topaz, Feb. 7, sentimental value; reward. Cashier, Cambridge Hotel.

RING, yellow gold, 4 diamonds, pear-shaped sapphire, Saturday; reward. Bronxville 4540.

RING, gentleman's, diamond, vicinity Times Square or on 5th Av. bus. Liberal reward will be paid finder upon return to clerk, Hotel Hermitage.

RING, platinum, set with 3 diamonds and diamond chips; reward. Yonkers 3151.

WATCH CHAIN, gold knife, and diamond ring; $1,000 reward, if returned. No questions asked. Kindly communicate Sciarretti, 100 Carnegie Hall.

WEDDING RING, gold, small, plain, in taxi or on street, Friday; small value except as keepsake; reward. Phone Butterfield 2998.

WRIST WATCH, man's, lost Friday at 125th St. station of the N. Y., N. H. & Hartford Railroad or vicinity; liberal reward. Longacre 1542.

WRIST WATCH, man's, El Patio Restaurant, Friday; reward. Kelly, 2,415 Newkirk Av., Brooklyn.

WRIST WATCH, white gold, black cord bracelet, lost in taxi Feb. 13; reward. Butterfield 4965.

WRIST WATCH, lady's, diamond platinum, Monday morning, Montclair to New York; reward. Phone Montclair 4413.

WRIST WATCH between 10th-12th Sts., on 4th St., white gold Elgin, mesh bracelet; reward. Fay, Watkins 5220.

WRIST WATCH, white gold, Hafis make, bracelet, Friday evening, 46th St., between 5th and 6th Avs. P 318 Times.

WRIST WATCH, Thursday, vicinity Nevins St.; A. W. A.; reward. Atlantic 7818.

$3,500 REWARD
for return of or $2,000 reward for information resulting in the recovery of small silk purse containing 2 diamond rings, diamond bar pin, diamond and emerald bracelet, diamond pendant and chain, diamond bracelet watch and sapphire ring, lost Feb. 10, 5th Av. shopping district. W. H. Soper, 82 Beaver St. Beekman 1323.

$100 REWARD
for return of platinum and diamond pin containing 1 marquise diamond, approximately 1 karat, and 88 small diamonds; lost Feb. 11, between 94th St. near Central Park West and 81st and Broadway on Amsterdam Av. trolley or on 81st St. A. J. Schiapp, 110 William St. Beekman 6261.

$200 REWARD.
Part of platinum ring mounting, containing one emerald, two half-carat and 44 small diamonds, lost Feb. 12 between the Wagstaff residence and the Tuxedo Park New York Skating Rink or vicinity. H. L. Smith, 15 William St. Hanover 0630.

$50 REWARD
for return of three-leaf clover part of bracelet, containing rubies and diamonds, lost Feb. 14 in or near Astor Hotel, Broadway and 44th St., to West 86th St., or 23 East 74th St. A. J. Schiapp, 110 William St. Beekman 6261.

$100 REWARD..
Lady's engagement ring, one diamond, marked R. H. C.-H. F. July 19, 1928; lost Feb. 1, Fifth Av. shopping district or theatre. Return to Herbert J. Payne, 15 William St. Hanover 0630.

$100 REWARD.
Bracelet, platinum, 20 diamonds and 20 sapphires, lost Feb. 8 between West 48th St., Elmhurst, and Jackson Heights, L. I. Return to A. R. Lee & Co., 15 William St. Hanover 0630.

$300 REWARD.
Bracelet, diamonds and onyx, lost Feb. 12 between Park Av., Playhouse, West 48th St., and 57th St. and 5th Av., or in taxi. Return to Herbert J. Payne, 15 William St. Hanover 0630.

$50 REWARD
return of plantinum ring containing 1 turquois, 16 diamonds, lost afternoon Feb. 12, neighborhood 6th Av., 38th St. F. H. Zindle, 15 William St. Hanover 3060.

$200 REWARD for return of Tiffany rigid platinum bracelet containing 27 diamonds, lost Feb. 13 between West 87th St. and East 53d St. W. H. Soper, 82 Beaver St. Beekman 1323.

$150 REWARD
return of platinum ring containing 6 emeralds, 20 diamonds, lost evening Feb. 13 neighborhood Broadway, 181st St. F. H. Zindle, 15 William St. Hanover 3060.

Cats, Dogs and Birds.

BOSTON TERRIER, good markings, brindle and white, answers name "Pal"; license 3065; liberal reward. Riverside 9400.

DOBERMAN PINSCHER, male, black, brown points, cropped ears, Tuesday; reward. Orange 4743.

DOG, airedale, male, 1 year old, good color, black back, good head; reward. Phone Scarsdale 590.

$25 REWARD for return of wire hair fox terrier; last seen around Greensburg. Tag 395041. Phone Elmsford 4699.

FOUND.

ROSARY found, downtown section, Monday. Owner communicate with Y 2249 Times Annex.

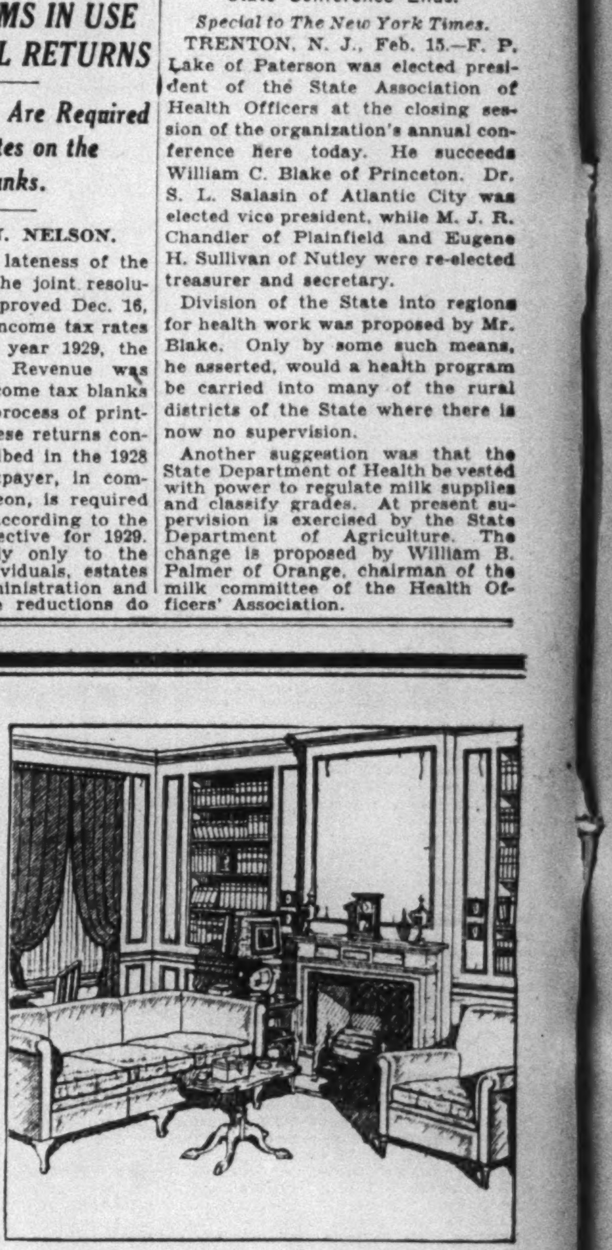
BIRD, small pet, unusual; Saturday morning. Circle 0290.

FOUND—JADE BRACELET.
Phone Richmond Hill 1632.

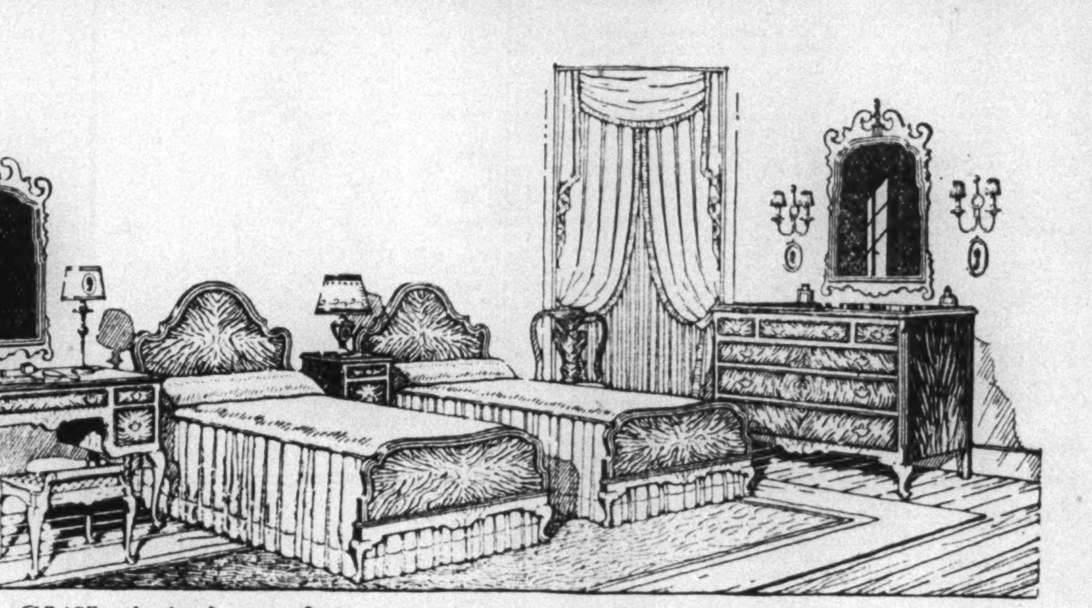
HATHAWAY'S

Variety, values, good taste . . all merit equal emphasis during

HATHAWAY'S FEBRUARY SALE

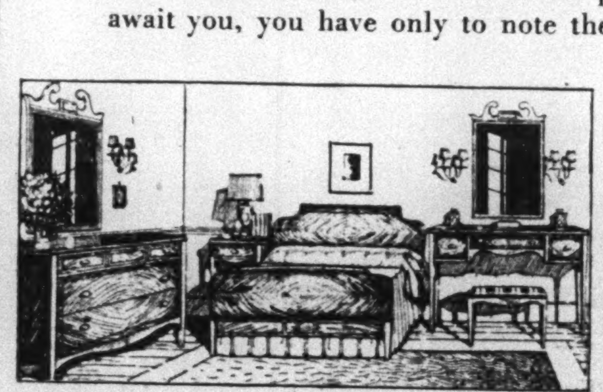


A COMFORTABLE and delightful living room grouping is this one with its custom made sofa and arm chair and its mahogany coffee table. In denim or your own material the sofa was $215. Now $145. Chair was $95. Now $64.50. Coffee table special at $39.50



GRACE and quiet charm are finely expressed in the lines of this Queen Anne bedroom grouping in walnut veneers and solid gumwood. Eight pieces with twin beds, including chest not shown, are special at $398. Seven pieces with full sized bed special at $345.

THE very things you so wisely seek in buying furniture, are the standards of Hathaway's February Sale. Variety: that your choice be wide, whether for living room, dining room or bedroom. Values: that no matter how little you spend, your selection be truly fine—in design, in workmanship, in woods. Good taste: that the furniture be unquestionably correct. To know how completely Hathaway's has fulfilled these standards, you have only to see the Collection assembled on our nine spacious floors. To realize what savings await you, you have only to note the greatly lowered prices which prevail.



THE enduring beauty of Sheraton's designs is reflected in this lovely bedroom grouping of solid mahogany with finely inlaid crotch mahogany veneers. The complete grouping of eight pieces with twin beds, special at $395. Seven pieces with full size bed, special at $340.

A REMARKABLE value indeed is this lovely dining room grouping by Hathaway, fashioned in fine walnut veneer and solid gumwood. Ten pieces including side table and chairs not shown were $440. Now $295.

Endless values like these await you on all nine floors

Handsome Duncan Phyfe dining room grouping in solid mahogany and fine mahogany veneer. Pedestal base table. Ten pieces, which may be purchased separately. Special at $395

Fine custom made upholstered arm chair—all hair and down. Covered in denim or your own material, it was $68 .... Now $49

Ten piece dining room grouping in the distinguished Hepplewhite manner. Walnut and curly maple veneer, beautifully inlaid with satinwood and ebony. Was $735 .... Now $445

Exquisite Queen Anne dining room grouping in fine walnut veneer and solid walnut, inlaid with satinwood and ebony. Ten pieces were $880 .... Now $575

Large scroll top Colonial highboy in fine mahogany veneer and solid mahogany or maple veneer and solid maple. Was $135 ..... Now $118

Early English bedroom grouping in antique oak. Seven pieces with full size bed. Were $430 .... Now $295

Occasional arm chair with graceful solid walnut frame. Covered in an assortment of fine fabrics. Was $75 .... Now $43

Genuine mahogany Duncan Phyfe drop leaf library table of rare beauty. Pedestal base with brass tipped feet. Two drawers. Was $95 .... Now $78

Elegantly simple Louis XVI bedroom grouping in walnut veneer and solid walnut. Commode type dresser with choice of hanging or attached mirror. Seven pieces with twin beds (no chair). Were $770 .... Now $460

Convenient and useful tea wagon in fine walnut veneer and solid gumwood with removable glass tray. Drawer and shelf. Was $34 .... Now $27.50

Bedroom grouping of quiet simplicity and charm in two-tone walnut veneer and solid gumwood. Eight pieces with twin beds. Were $540 .... Now $325

Delightful four post beds with solid maple posts—laminated maple headboard. Twin size special at $26
Full size special at $29. Also in mahogany.

Store will be closed all day Washington's Birthday, February 22nd.

HATHAWAY'S
51 WEST 45TH STREET

·FURNITURE · RUGS · DECORATION·

MUSEUM TO EXHIBIT LINCOLN SCULPTURE

Marble Head, One of Two Made by Barnard From Clay Study, to Be Shown Tomorrow.

HAVEMEYER ART IS HUNG

Metropolitan Preparing to Open 4 Galleries Containing Collection of Paintings on March 11.

A sculptured head of Abraham Lincoln by George Gray Barnard has been acquired by the Metropolitan Museum of Art and will be placed on exhibition tomorrow morning in the room of recent accessions. This is a white marble version of the head of Mr. Barnard's widely known standing figure of Lincoln, examples of which are in Cincinnati, Louisville and Manchester, England.

The marble head at the museum is one of two made by the sculptor from his original study in clay. The second is in Paris. "It sets forth most ably the results of Mr. Barnard's profound study of the Lincoln physiognomy and is beyond question one of the finest portraits of Lincoln yet produced," according to Preston Remington, associate curator of decorative arts at the museum.

"While emphasizing the vivid physical aspects of the face, the sculptor has also suggested that unselfconsciousness of facial expression which is the inevitable outward reflection of an absence of personal vanity," Mr. Remington says. "Despite its undeniable realism, Barnard's head of Lincoln is an idealistic portrait of the first order."

The Metropolitan is now preparing its long awaited exhibition of the great art collection bequeathed it by the late Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer. The public will have its first view of this important group of paintings on March 11, when the four galleries now being hung with these works will be opened. The public showing of the collection will be preceded by a private view for members of the museum and their friends on March 10. A little more than a year ago, when Mrs. Havemeyer's will was filed and her bequest to the museum became known, Director Edward Robinson of the museum characterized the gift of these paintings as one of the greatest gifts of works of art ever made to a museum by a single individual.

An acquisition which the museum will place on exhibition tomorrow in its room of recent accessions is a rare double virginal, dated 1581, the earliest work by Hans Ruckers, who was the first and most important of the famous family of Antwerp instrument makers. Philip II of Spain is said to have given this musical antique to a Marquise of Oropesa of Cuzco, Peru, in the sixteenth century. It has been presented to the museum by B. H. Homan.

The instrument is also known as a double spinet, and the interior of the case is elaborately decorated.

A Hellenistic bronze statuette, eighteen inches high, also on exhibition tomorrow in the room of recent accessions, constitutes an important addition to the Metropolitan's collections, according to Miss Gisela M. A. Richter, curator of classical art, because of the excellence of its modeling and its unusual size. It represents a satyr leaning slightly forward, his weight mostly on his right leg, the left flexed with only the toes touching the ground—a momentary pose, probably an attitude of dancing. This bronze, formerly in the Canessa collection, is thought to date from the third century B. C. and to have come originally from Carthage.

In the room of recent accessions will also be exhibited tomorrow a recently acquired large altarpiece by Luca Signorelli, showing the assumption of the Virgin, with St. Michael and a sainted Bernardine-Benedictine monk.

Japanese armor presented to the museum by Mrs. Louis B. McCagg in memory of her husband will also be shown in the room of recent accessions. Two newly acquired modern bronzes to be exhibited are an "Indian Hunter with a Dog," by Paul Manship, given by Thomas Cochran, and a dancing girl by Prince Paul Troubetzkoy.

The museum anounced the resignation of Charles W. Gould and Francis C. Jones as trustees. Staff changes announced include the promotion of Dr. Maurice S. Dimand from assistant curator in the department of decorative arts to associate curator in the same department. Robert Treat Paine Jr. has been appointed adviser in Japan to the department of Far Eastern art. Marjorie J. Milne has been appointed an assistant in the department of classical art, and Leslie Richardson has been made an assistant in the department of Far Eastern art.

BARNARD'S HEAD OF LINCOLN. Marble Made From Clay Study for Statue to Be Exhibited by Metropolitan Museum.

5 CHILDREN DIE IN 2 FIRES.

Mother Perishes With 2 in Ontario—3 Sisters Killed in Wisconsin.

RACINE, Wis., Feb. 15 (AP).—Three children were burned to death and their parents and one other child were burned seriously in a fire caused by an overheated stove that destroyed the home early today.

The dead are three sisters, Phyllis Christensen, 4; Bonnie, 2, and Edna, 10 months.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Christensen, and a daughter, Irene, 6, were saved by firemen but were burned so severely they were not expected to live.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Feb. 15 (AP).—Trapped in their blazing farm home, Mrs. Roy Lonsway and her two children were burned to death today. Mr. Lonsway had arisen early and built a fire in the kitchen stove before going to the barn. While there at his chores the family dog ran howling to him, his fur singed. Lonsway returned to the house and attempted to rescue his family, in vain.

Gas and Electric Inquiry Postponed

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Opening of the inquiry by the Federal Trade Commission into the financial affairs of the American Gas and Electric Company, involving an investigation of all interstate electrical and gas companies and electric holding companies, has been postponed from Tuesday to Feb. 24 at the request of the company. The annual meeting of its stockholders is fixed for Tuesday. This and the large volume of figures and compilations required led to the request.

LITTLE DATA FOUND ON FORTS OF 1776

Interstate Park Heads, Seeking to Restore Montgomery and Clinton, Are Balked.

AID OF PUBLIC IS ASKED

Letters and Diaries of Revolutionary Times May Shed Light on Interior Construction.

Search for information by the commissioners of the Palisades Interstate Park concerning the construction of the barracks and other buildings in Forts Clinton and Montgomery at Bear Mountain, which they plan to restore as they were in the American revolution, has so far failed to yield data on which exact reproductions can be made, it was announced yesterday. The commissioners received a preliminary grant of $5,000 two years ago from the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial to study the plans of the forts and have been assured of further funds for the restoration when it can be undertaken.

Less difficulty, it was said, has been encountered in learning about the ramparts of the main works and auxiliary redoubts. From records still at hand it has been found that the ramparts were of stone and earth at the bottom, the stone comprising glacial boulders found scattered over the area, and of fascines and earth at the top, with cheveaux-de-frise of pointed logs. The cannon embrasures were faced with mortar on the inside to keep the flashes from the muzzles from setting fire to the logs.

Major W. A. Welch, chief engineer and general manager of the park, who will supervise the restoration, is faced with a difficult problem in the reconstruction of the interior barracks, headquarters building, cookhouse and other structures. The chief difficulty lies in the disappearance of elevation plans or sketches showing how the interior structure looked.

The work on Fort Montgomery is believed by the commissioners to have been begun on plans made by Colonel Bernard Romans. General William Alexander approved the situation of Fort Montgomery, but urged that another fort be built on the south side of Popolopen Creek. This was done. It was called Fort Clinton, after Governor George Clinton, then commanding the Highlands garrisons.

From General Alexander's report to Congress, June 1, 1776, the commissioners announced, the best word picture of the construction of the two forts has been gleaned. Speaking of Fort Montgomery, he wrote:

"These works built are all faced with fascines and filled in with strong, good loam; but as they are liable to take fire, the commissioners who have the care and direction of the works propose to right cast the faces of the embrasures with a strong mortar made of quicklime and sharp sand, of which there is plenty at hand."

Plans believed to have been made by Colonel Romans and others are thought to have been destroyed at the burning of the Capitol at Washington in 1814 by the British, when many of the Revolutionary archives were consumed. Through the courtesy of the British Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, permission was granted to an agent of the commission to search British military archives for sketches of the forts in the British War Office in London, but only maps showing the route of the British forces to the attack and the lines of ramparts and redoubts were discovered. When the British took the fort in 1877 it was by a land attack in the rear, so that the upper works were never under fire.

Other efforts to learn more of the fort's construction having proved unavailing, the commissioners announced that they would be glad to hear of any record of the Revolutionary events in the Hudson Valley, such as diaries of soldiers, letters, or anything that would indicate the nature and appearance of the structures within the forts, so that an accurate reproduction can be made of barracks as well as ramparts.

Home Centre to Hear Art Critic.

Alon Bement, art critic and director of the Art Center, will address the third forum on styles to be held by the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs at its Home Making Centre, Grand Central Palace, on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Bement, who will be the first man to talk on the subject before the centre, said yesterday that revolt by American women against the styles dictated by Paris has started the United States on its way toward becoming the style and art centre of the world.

ROUSS COLLECTION WILL BE SOLD HERE

Thursday's Auction to Include Paintings by Many Famous Artists.

A collection of paintings from the residence of Peter W. Rouss at Bayville, L. I., with additions, is to go on sale Thursday evening at the American Art Association Anderson Galleries, Inc., where they are now exhibited.

A portrait by Gilbert Stuart of William Seton is included. It portrays a seated middle-aged man in striped gray waistcoat and black coat.

A Gainsborough portrait of "Captain Bragge," painted with one of Mrs. Bragge about the time they were married in 1762, shows the head in three-quarter profile. The hair is powdered and the sitter wears a green waistcoat and jacket.

Other paintings are by Ozias Humphrey, Edouard Manet, Wyant, Blakelock, Remington, Courbet and Troyon. The Humphrey is a portrait, "Miss Ravenscroft," the head and shoulders of a young woman with high-dressed dark hair encircled by a blue cord. She is gowned in fawn color. The Blakelocks are a "Sunset," "Indian Tepee" and "Indian Camp."

Regarding Remington's "Pony Tracks in the Buffalo Trail," painted in 1895 in Arizona, a letter from Melville Miller to A. W. Tillinghast, owner of this picture, reads: "My own troop figures in the sketch and the young shavetail Lieutenant heading the troop is supposed to be myself. One of the old scouts depicted is Ben Clark, an old Indian fighter, at that time attached to my outfit. Subsequently he was sent to Fort Reno, I. T., where he lived a number of years—now 'gone to the happy hunting grounds.' I think the Indian is supposed to be Red Feather of the Cheyenne tribe."

Other paintings are Courbet's "Deer by a Waterfall"; Troyon's "Rentree du Troupeau a la Ferme"; Gainsborough Dupont's "Portrait of a Lady," Dupont's "John Trumbull," Pasinini's "Before the Mosque," J. Alden Weir's "The Green Bodice," Bruce Crane's "October Clouds," Daubigny's "Sunset Landscape," Manet's "Un Paysan," Alfred Stevenson's "Le Miroir," George Inness's "Autumn Evenings," "Forest of Fontainebleau," by Diaz, and Courbet's "La Baigneuse."

Twachtman, von Lenbach, W. J. Glackens, Ernest Lawson and Ranger also are represented.

London Lecturer at Barnard.

Miss Eileen Power, lecturer in economic history in the School of Economics of the University of London, has arrived in New York to be visiting lecturer at Barnard College in the Spring term, it was announced yesterday. Miss Power, the author of several books on medieval economic history, will give two courses on this subject, one on medieval history, twelfth to fourteenth centuries, and one on "Life in the Middle Ages."

WINS INSULL MEDAL.

H. F. Christie of Lawrence, Mass., Saved a Fellow Workman.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 15 (AP).—To Harry F. Christie, former Lawrence High School and Andover Phillips Academy athlete, has been awarded the Samuel Insull medal for conspicious bravery, Fred H. Sargent, president of the Lawrence Gas and Electric Company, announced today. The award was made by the National Electric Light Association.

The medal will be presented to Christie Feb. 22, with appropriate exercises.

On June 12, 1929, Christie saved the life of Robert Hanlon, a fellow-employe of the Lawrence Gas and Electric Company, who had grasped a live wire while working at the top of a pole. Christie went up the pole, shut off the power, removed Hanlon's life belt from which he was hanging and then assisted the line crew in lowering him to the street. There Christie applied first aid and resuscitated Hanlon.

NEW SOVIET DECREE ON RELIGION DRASTIC

Continued from Page 1, Column 1.

as nationalized and is charged on the accounts of corresponding city Soviets, of the regional executive committee or the executive committee of the volost as in use by the believers."

While church property is nationalized in the decree, it is turned over "by contract" for "the use of believers." Under the contract those who use the property obligate themselves to care for it as they would for government property entrusted to them and to pay all expenses, including heating, insurance, taxes and local assessments. The cults must possess inventories of the property, together with all other property acquired by gift, purchase or otherwise. The sects are also required to admit without hindrance at all times, except when religious services are going on, authorized government agents for the examination of the property.

Liquidation Clauses Elaborate.

Elaborate rules are contained in the decree regarding "liquidation" of churches and church property. In cases where no persons are to be found who will take over church property, notice to that effect is to be affixed to the doors, and if nobody desires to take over the property within a week of such notice the central executive committee may dispose of it. Within two weeks of the posting of notice that the prayer house is to be liquidated, the believers may appeal to the Presidium of the All-Russias Central Executive Committee.

"Contracts having as their object the renting of premises by nationalized, municipalized or private houses for the needs of religious associations may be dissolved even before the expiration of the term of the contract, by ordinary judicial processes," the decree continues.

"In the liquidation of a prayer building the property of the cult is disposed of in the following manner: (a) all objects made of gold, platinum, silver and of brocade, as well as of precious stones, are taken up on the roster of the governmental funds and are turned over in the disposition of the local fiscal organs or in the disposition of the organs of the People's Commissariat for Public Education, if these objects were on their roster; (b) all objects of a historical, artistic or museum value are turned over to the organs of the People's Commissariat for Education; (c) the other objects, such as ikons, vestments, banners, &c., which possess a special significance in the performance of the cult, are turned over to believers for installation into other prayer buildings of the same cult; these objects are entered upon the register of the property of the cult in the usual manner; (d) articles of common use, bells, furniture, rugs, candelabra, &c., are to be entered on the roster of the governmental funds and are turned over in the disposition of the local fiscal organs or in the disposition of the organs of People's Education, if they are listed on its roster; (e) so-called transitional property, money, incense, candles, wax, wine, wood and coal, which fulfill a definite purpose either for the carrying out of the conditions of the contract or for the performance of the religious rites of the cult, are not subject to seizure, should the society continue its existence after the liquidation of the prayer building."

Contracts May Be Voided.

In case of default of the religious associations as to the terms of the contract or upon failure to carry out any orders issued by the governmental bodies the contract may be voided. In case of appeal to the Presidium of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee the building cannot be replevined until after a final decision by the executive committee.

Under the decree new prayer buildings may be constructed upon petition of the religious societies under rules laid down for the erection of buildings and also of "special regulations promulgated by the People's Commissariat for Internal Affairs."

Procedure under which a technical commission may order a church to be demolished is given in some detail. The decree provides that the funds for the demolition of church property are to be obtained "from the sale of the building materials recovered in the course of the demolition of the buildings," and "any surplus moneys, after paying expenses, are to be turned over to the government and classed as government income."

Only Members May Contribute.

Church members may effect collections and accept voluntary contributions in or outside of the church, but solely among members of the particular religion and solely for purposes connected with the religion.

"Any and all compulsory collections for the use of religious associations are subject to criminal prosecutions in accordance with the criminal statutes of the U. S. S. R.," the documnet says. "Free-will donations in money by the believers are to be accounted for by the treasurer of the religious association in a book showing income and expenditures."

Prayer meetings are allowed in buildings not adapted for that purpose only after notice of the village, city or governmental authorities, and the performance of any kind of religious ceremony is not permitted in any governmental, social, cooperative "and private establishment and undertaking." This prohibition, however, does not extend to religious rites performed at the request of the dying or seriously ill confined in hospitals and in places of detention, "in special isolated rooms, as well as the performance of religious rites in cemeteries and crematoriums."

Two weeks' notice is required before permits can be issued for religious processions. All religious associations, under the decree, are required to register within a year, and those not complying will be closed.

The order is signed by M. Kalinin, chairman of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee; A. Smirnoff, chairman of the Soviet of People's Commissaries of the U. S. S. R., and A. Dossow, for the secretary of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee. The document is dated Moscow, Kremlin, April 8, 1929.

ATHENS BARES RED PLOT.

Police Arrest Five in Plan to Call General Strike on Moscow Orders.

ATHENS, Feb. 15 (AP).—Police today revealed an alleged plot in this city by which Communists, acting, it was charged, under orders from Moscow and Vienna, intended to organize disturbances Feb. 28 and March 12 with a general strike accompanying them.

The police have seized documents which they said proved sums were received from Russia, including a subsidy for a Communist paper here and plans for propaganda in the army and navy. Five persons arrested included three Greek Communist leaders and two foreign agents, one of them a Yugoslav who recently had written several articles against King Alexander of his country. Large sums of money were found on all of those arrested.

They will be tried for high treason.

BABY'S SUNSHINE SPOON

Baby needs a Sunshine Spoon. Any teaspoon will do. But for Sunshine use pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil in its pleasant, easily digested form—Scott's Emulsion. Instructions on every bottle.

SCOTTS EMULSION

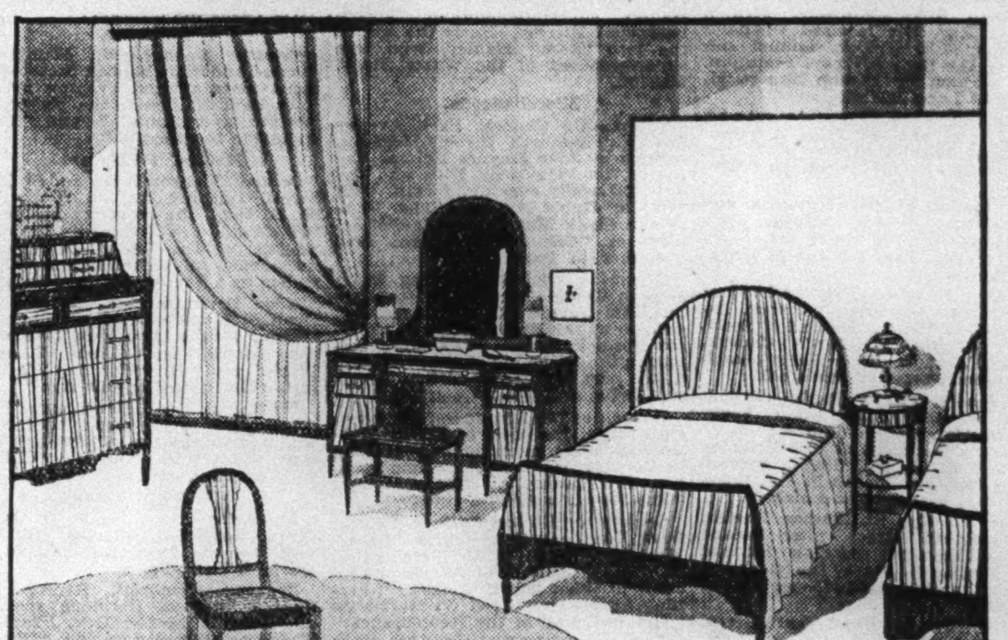
Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 29-22

SUMMER SUNSHINE for BABIES

Half-Price Reductions in the Winter Sale of Flint's Fine Furniture

Bedroom, dining and upholstered groups and thousands of individual pieces at HALF PRICE!

Coffee table, top 14 x 21 inches, solid walnut. $20 reduced to $10.



Bedroom group of modern lines. Oriental walnut and rosewood veneers with solid gumwood. Twin beds, dresser, chest, dressing table, bench, night stand and chair, 8 pieces. $275 reduced from $550.

Solid walnut butterfly table, top 36 x 25 ins. 25 ins. high. $30 reduced to $15.

Bedroom Furniture

113B39—Modern group of satinwood, mahogany, burl maple and rosewood veneers, 7 pieces with full width bed $1675 reduced to $837.50. 8 pieces with twin beds $1990 reduced to $995.

139B17—Bedroom group of 8 pieces with twin beds, butt walnut veneer and solid gumwood. $920 reduced to $460.

213B12—18th Century group, twin beds, bureau, chiffonier, nightstand, chair. Solid mahogany with selected veneers and hand decoration. 6 pieces $735 reduced to $367.50.

376B1—Draped dressing table with glass top. $56 reduced to $28.

186B59—Twin bed of maple veneer and gumwood. $50.50 reduced to $25.25.

105B118A—Bureau, walnut veneer and gumwood. $115 reduced to $57.50.

281U8—Chaise lounge, silk brocade cover. $165 reduced to $82.50.

162H5—Colonial chiffonier mirror, solid mahogany. $22 reduced to $11.

105B112—Full width bed, walnut veneer and gumwood. $64 reduced to $32.

Chairs

140U17—Ital. Ren. high back arm chair, solid carved mahogany, dark red velvet covered seat and back. $275 reduced to $137.50.

192-62—Ladder back arm chair, solid mahogany, rush seat. $40 reduced to $20.

8-83—Windsor arm rocker. $35 reduced to $17.50.

153U94—Boudoir side chair. $25 reduced to $12.50.

344B3—Slipper chair, mahogany inlaid. $26 reduced to $13.

153U90—Boudoir side chair, silk moire cover. $55 reduced to $27.50.

289U9—Imported high back carved arm chair, upholstered seat. $195 reduced to $85.

Lamps

196-3—Glazed jug lamp with parchment paper shade. $60 reduced to $30.

87A28—Lamp, morocco pottery base with parchment paper shade. $20 reduced to $10.

53A36—Double chair lamp, pewter and brass. $150 reduced to $75.

13A1—Chinese pottery lamp with silk shade. $85 reduced to $42.50.

34A7—Chair lamp with antiqued mica shade. $39.50 reduced to $19.75.

41-193—Torcheres, onyx base, per pair, $300 reduced to $125.

Mirrors

76H34—Mirror, 14 x 44 ins. moulded gilt frame, engraved glass. $50 reduced to $25.

343H10—Console mirror, 15 x 33 ins. solid mahogany frame. $33 reduced to $16.50.

204H2—Console mirror, 21 x 46 ins. with gold glass frame, engraved glass (slightly imperfect). $225 reduced to $75.

12H21—Oval mirror, 13x15 ins. antique silvered frame. $18 reduced to $9.

68B51—Mirror, 20 x 28 ins. solid mahogany frame. $35 reduced to $17.50.

280H1—Mirror, 18 x 43 ins. maple frame, Colonial reproduction. $80 reduced to $40.

137H2—Panel mirror 13 x 42 ins. gilt frame. $75 reduced to $37.50.

PRICES have been unmercifully slashed for the last weeks of this great clearance. For every item listed we have hundreds of others, but frequently only one of a kind. So to fully enjoy these tremendous opportunities in values and beautiful furniture we suggest an early selection.

Tables

79T11—Duncan Phyfe table, 35 inches square, solid mahogany and veneer, $95 reduced to $47.50.

202T20—Early American drop leaf table 30 x 40 inches, cherry, $45 reduced to $22.50.

23NT39—Nest of 4 tables, solid mahogany and veneer, $36 reduced to $18.

23T77—American Empire living room table, 38 inches diameter, solid mahogany and veneer, $90 reduced to $45.

343T33—Octagonal living room table, 32 inches across, solid walnut with butt walnut veneer, $100 reduced to $50.

140T31—Italian Renaissance library table, 27 x 52 inches, solid carved walnut and veneer, $320 reduced to $120.

289T4—Imported Louis XVI carved table, 28 x 47 inches with black and gold marble top, $245 reduced to $122.50.

Desks and Secretaries

13-15—Sheraton table desk, 27 x 54 inches, solid mahogany with veneer and inlaid line, $250 reduced to $125.

349-2—Colonial secretary, solid maple and veneer, $110 reduced to $55.

113-7—Queen Anne desk, maple burl veneer, a reproduction $225 reduced to $95.

192C24—Cabinet desk, walnut with old gold ornamentation and gold and red Chinese silk covered top, $335 reduced to $125.

Miscellaneous Furniture

255-1—Lacquer "Bulle" electric mantel clock $70 reduced to $35.

233N1—Colonial Candlesticks, solid maple, per pair $13.50 reduced to $6.75.

216H5—Moderne pier chest, lacewood, walnut and maple, $100 reduced to $50.

316T23—Moderne magazine rack, solid walnut, $50 reduced to $25.

125A14—Moderne smokers table, iron with glass top, $32 reduced to $16.

343H6—Oak hall chest, $60 reduced to $30.

Screens

113N1—Three fold screen, floral oil painting, $135 reduced to $67.50.

263N6—Three fold leather screen, $140 reduced to $70.

128N4—Three fold screen, enamel frame, Japanese motif, $65 reduced to $32.50.

280N2—Walnut 3 panel fire screen, $180 reduced to $75.

Dining Room Furniture

113D49—Modern French dining group in which especially distinctive cabinet woods are used, magnificently marked Carpathian elm and satinwood with bandings of East India rosewood and tulipwood and solid mahogany for the frame, 10 pieces. $1525 reduced to $762.50.

137D164—English 16th Century group of walnut veneers with solid walnut and gumwood, chairs, tapestry covered seat and back. $575 reduced to $287.50.

35D8—Sheraton dining table, 42 x 64 ins. extending to 8 feet, solid mahogany and veneer. $120 reduced to $60.

249D69—American Empire sideboard 78 ins. long, Italian marble top, solid carved mahogany with crotch veneer. $675 reduced to $225.

172D44—English 16th Century dining group with draw top table, solid oak, 10 pieces. $795 reduced to $397.50.

Console Tables

163T8—Console table, 18 x 36 ins. exquisitely carved solid walnut, Italian marble top. $195 reduced to $85.

140H7—Console table, 19 x 48 ins., imported marble top, beautifully carved solid walnut. $395 reduced to $197.50.

172H40—Queen Anne console table 20 x 42 ins. walnut veneer and inlay. $110 reduced to $35.

Cabinets

183C17—Solid walnut cabinet, 72 ins. high. $125 reduced to $50.

112C46—Early English cellarette and mixing cabinet, solid chestnut. $115 reduced to $57.50.

185C1—Imported tulip wood cabinet, genuine ormulu mountings, marble top. $2500 reduced to $950.

Bookcases

136-31—Queen Anne cabinet bookcase, solid walnut. $140 reduced to $70.

112-2—Moderne bookcase, maple. $65 reduced to $32.50.

Upholstered Furniture

153U218—Love seat, damask cover, down filled cushion. $165 reduced to $82.50.

40U3288—Louis XVI love seat, solid mahogany frame, brocade cover. $243 reduced to $121.50.

40U3201—Sofa and arm chair, down cushions, solid mahogany base, damask cover, custom made. $745 reduced to $372.50.

40U3318—Biedermeier sofa, solid walnut frame, tapestry cover. $297 reduced to $148.50.

40U3203—Sofa and arm chair, frieze cover, down cushion. $850 reduced to $425.

40U941—Arm chair, imported frame, custom upholstered. $200 reduced to $100.

40U3203—Modernistic sofa and arm chair, custom made, hair filled and white down seat cushions. $850 reduced to $425.

40U3290—Custom made love seat and arm chair, covered in antique damask. $450 reduced to $225.

140U58—Walnut odd chair, damask cover. $75 reduced to $37.50.

40U3284—Custom made modern chair covered in Rodier print. $173 reduced to $86.50.

FLINT & HORNER

66 West 47th Street

Between 5th and 6th Avenues Telephone: Bryant 6660

Open Wednesday Evenings till 9 P.M.

TODAY'S PROGRAMS IN CITY'S CHURCHES

Many Clergymen Will Preach on the Lives of Lincoln and Washington.

TALKS ON RECENT BOOKS

Prayers Will Be Offered for the Naval Conference Being Held in London.

Many pastors will preach today on the lives of Washington and Lincoln, in recognition of the birthdays of the two men. In the afternoon and evening a number of memorial services will be held with patriotic organizations attending. Prayers will be offered for a blessing on the naval conference in London. Numerous clergymen will discuss recent books, especially those dealing with morals. Others will preach on law enforcement, especially in regard to prohibition. Today in the calendar of ritualistic churches is Septuagesima Sunday.

Baptist.

Calvary, worshiping in Pythian Temple, 135 West Seventieth Street—Sermons, morning and evening, by the Rev. Will C. Houghton, acting pastor, on "The Believer in Sin" and "Giving Your Home to the Devil." The 3 o'clock service will be led by the Crusaders' Union of the church. All three services will be broadcast by WQAO.

First, Broadway and Seventy-ninth Street—Sermons, morning and evening, by the Rev. Dr. I. M. Haldeman, the 85-year-old pastor.

Christian Science.

Seventh, 516 West 112th Street—Tomorrow evening, John Randall Dunn of Boston on "Christian Science: The Promised Comforter."

Disciples.

Central, 142 West Eighty-first Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Finis S. Idleman, the pastor, on "The Uses of Freedom."

Jewish.

Temple Emanu-El, Fifth Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street—Morning, sermon by Rabbi Nathan Krass on "'Death Takes a Holiday.'"

Congregation B'nai Jeshurun, Eighty-eighth Street, west of Broadway—Morning, sermon by Rabbi Israel Goldstein on "The Jewish Menorah in a Christian Church."

American Synagogue, worshiping in Pythian Temple, 135 West Seventieth Street—Morning, addresses by Dr. Alfred Adler, Viennese psychiatrist, and Rabbi Marius Ranson, on "What Is Wrong With Our Modern Educational Methods?"

Free Synagogue, worshiping in Carnegie Hall—Morning, sermon by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise on "Who Are Israel's Friends and Foes?"

Congregation Kehilath Yeshurun, Eighty-fifth Street, near Park Avenue—Afternoon, address before the Young Israel Forum by Rabbi Joseph H. Lookstein on "Religion and Nationalism—Observations on the Birthdays of Lincoln and Washington."

Lutheran.

Advent, Broadway and Ninety-third Street—Sermons, morning and evening, by the Rev. Dr. Augustus Steimle, the pastor, on "God's Rewards" and "On the Way to the Throne."

St. James, Madison Avenue and Seventy-third Street—Morning, formal installation of the Rev. Charles Daniel Trexler as the pastor by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Trexler, his brother, who is president of the United Lutheran Synod of New York. The first part of the services will be read by the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Dapp, president of Wagner Memorial Lutheran College, Staten Island.

Immanuel, Lexington Avenue and Eighty-eighth Street—English service at 9:30 o'clock and German service at 10:45 o'clock, with a sermon at each by Professor E. W. Luecke of Concordia Lutheran Institute, Bronxville, N. Y., on "Our Church"; evening, sermon by the Rev. W. F. Bruening on "Work and Wages."

Emmanuel, Brown Place and East 137th Street, the Bronx—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Felix G. Robinson, the pastor, on "Cheap Religion"; evening, talk by Miss Ethel Jensen, a student at Union Theological Seminary, on "What I Discovered in Palestine."

Methodist Episcopal.

Madison Avenue, at Sixtieth Street—Sermon by Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon of Charlotte, N. C.; evening, sermon by the Rev. Walter J. Benedict, the assistant pastor, on "Mastery." The quartet from the Tuskegee Industrial School, Alabama, will sing at the latter service.

St. Andrew's, 122 West Seventy-sixth Street—Sermons, morning and evening, by the Rev. Dr. James Hardy Bennett, the pastor, on "The Language of Pentecost" and "The Youth of Washington and Lincoln."

St. James, Madison Avenue and 126th Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Dr. George Chalmers Richmond, the pastor, on "The Religion of Abraham Lincoln"; evening, talk by "Charlie" Brown on "Natural Law in the Spiritual Universe, or Bring the Debunkers."

Broadway Temple, at 174th Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner, the pastor, on "What Do I Think of Christian Science?" Evening, address by Miss Olive Jones, president of the Protestant Teachers' Association and formerly president of the National Educational Association.

Union, Forty-eighth Street, just west of Broadway—Morning, sermon by the Rev. C. Everett Wagner, the pastor, on "Real Respect for Personality Is Revolutionary"; evening, musical program by Jesse Phillips Robertson, who will wear the costume of a Palestinian shepherd, play on a long-necked lute and sing pastoral songs.

All Nations, 9 Second Avenue—Evening, forum, with a talk by Alister Coleman on "Sidelights on Gene Debs."

Kingsley Memorial, Stapleton, S. I.—Morning, divine worship; evening, annual service of Masonic orders on Staten Island in commemoration of George Washington, with a sermon by the Rev. Dr. William Judson Hampton, the pastor, on "Church and Lodge: Rivals or Allies?"

Presbyterian.

Park Avenue, at Eighty-fifth Street—Sermon by Norman Thomas on "Ethical Theories and Social Realities."

Central, Park Avenue and Sixty-fourth Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Dr. William O. Thompson, for thirty years president of Ohio State University, Columbus, and a former moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church; evening, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Dwight Witherspoon Wylie, the pastor, on "Difficulties to Probe Loyalty."

West End, Amsterdam Avenue and 105th Street—Celebration of the silver anniversary of the pastorate of the Rev. Dr. A. Edwin Keigwin, with a sermon in the morning by himself on "Envoy to a City," and in the evening by the Rev. Dr. William O. Thompson of Columbus, Ohio. Participating also at the latter service will be the Rev. Dr. Harlan G. Mendenhall, stated clerk of the Presbytery of New York.

Fifth Avenue, at Fifty-fifth Street—Sermons, morning and evening, by the Rev. Dr. Henry Howard, the senior co-pastor; 4:30 o'clock, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Minot C. Morgan, the junior co-pastor, and negro spirituals by the Tuskegee Institute Quartet.

Second, Central Park West and Ninety-sixth Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Paul M. Reid, the assistant; evening, sermon by the Rev. Dr. George J. Russell, the pastor, on "Confucianism." In the morning Dr. Russell will preach in the chapel of Princeton Theological Seminary.

Brick, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street—Sermons, morning and at 4:30 o'clock, by the Rev. Dr. William P. Merrill, the pastor. His topic at the latter will be "Modern Substitutes for Christianity."

Harlem-New York, Mount Morris Park West and 122d Street—Sermons, morning and evening, by the Rev. Andrew Richards, the pastor, on "A Foregleam of the Golden Age" and "The Essence of Meanness."

Williamsbridge, 734 East 225th Street, the Bronx—Morning, address by Clinton N. Howard, chairman of the National Committee on law enforcement. At 3:30 o'clock Mr. Howard will speak at a mass meeting for men only in the new Y. M. C. A. building, White Plains, N. Y.

Greenwich, 139 West Thirteenth Street—Sermons, morning and evening, by the Rev. Walter Carl Subke, the minister in charge, on "Who Are God's Stewards?" and "What Christ Gives to Us."

Protestant Episcopal.

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, Amsterdam Avenue and 110th Street—Sermons, morning and at 4 o'clock by the Very Rev. Milo Hudson Gates, the new dean.

Heavenly Rest, Fifth Avenue and Ninetieth Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Howard Chandler Robbins; 4:30 o'clock, annual service of the Sons of the Revolution, with sermon by Bishop Ernest M. Stires of Long Island.

Transfiguration, Twenty-ninth Street, just east of Fifth Avenue—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Randolph Ray, the rector, on "Evasions of Today."

St. James, Madison Avenue and Seventy-first Street—Morning, sermon especially for young people by the Rev. Dr. Frank Warfield Crowder, the rector.

Trinity, Broadway, at the head of Wall Street—Morning, sermon by Archdeacon George Frederick Scott, rector of St. Matthew's Church, Quebec, Canada. He will also preach at the noon services this week.

St. Paul's, Trinity Parish, Broadway, between Fulton and Vesey Streets—Holy Communion, 8 o'clock; children's Eucharist at 10, "Missa de Sanctis" at 11, including a sermon by the Rev. Dr. Joseph P. McComas, the vicar; evensong at 4 o'clock.

Holy Trinity, St. James Parish, Eighty-eighth Street, near Second Avenue—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Dudley S. Stark, the vicar, on "The Church's Attitude on Unemployment."

Grace, Broadway and Tenth Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Dr. W. Russell Bowie, the rector, on "Personal Responsibility in Religion"; evening, musical service under the direction of Ernest Mitchell, organist and choirmaster, and sermon by Dr. Bowie on "The Approach of the Soul to God."

St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia University—At 4 o'clock, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Paul Scherer, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church.

Ascension, Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street—Sermons, morning and evening, by the Rev. Donald B. Aldrich, the rector.

St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, Tenth Street, west of Second Avenue—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Dr. William Norman Guthrie, the rector, on "Why Did God Plant Two Trees in Eden?"; 4 o'clock, a rhythmic sculptural oratorio, "The Birth and Progress of the Human Soul"; evening service conducted by the Rev. Dudley D. Zuver and Bryce Fogle.

St. John's, 218 West Eleventh Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. John A. Wade, rector; evening, address by Dr. Amos O. Squire, for years physician at Sing Sing, on "Crime."

Chapel of the Intercession, Trinity Parish, Broadway and 155th Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Hughell E. W. Fosbroke, president of the General Episcopal Theological Seminary; 4 o'clock, musical vespers, followed by a conference on "The Distinctive Beliefs of the Episcopal Church."

French Church du Saint Esprit—Morning, service in the French Institute, 22 East Sixtieth Street, with a sermon by the Rev. Dr. John A. Maynard, the rector, on "The Mystery of Good"; 4 o'clock, service in St. Thomas's Chapel, 226 East Sixtieth Street, with a sermon by Dr. Maynard on "The Mystery of Evil."

St. Agnes's Chapel, Trinity Parish, Ninety-second Street just west of Columbus Avenue—Sermons morning and at 4 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. W. W. Bellinger, the vicar.

Holy Rood, Fort Washington Avenue and 179th Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Arthur P. S. Hyde, the rector; evening, sermon by the Rev. Thomas J. Williams, the curate.

St. Andrew's, Fifth Avenue and 127th Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Ribourg, the rector; evening, musical service with a choir of thirty voices under the direction of Theodore Beach, organist and choirmaster.

Roman Catholic.

St. Patrick's Cathedral, Fifth Avenue and Fiftieth Street—Low masses at 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 o'clock, with a sermon at each; high mass at 11 o'clock, at which there will be a celebration of the beatification of Don Bosco, founder of the Salesian Fathers, under the auspices of the Eastern Province of the Salesian Fathers. Cardinal Hayes will preside in the sanctuary. The Right Rev. William Turner, Bishop of Buffalo, will be in the sanctuary, and the Very Rev. Richard Pettini, Provincial of the Province, will be the celebrant of the mass.

St. Ignatius Loyola, Park Avenue and Eighty-fourth Street—Sermon at high mass by the Rev. William A. Wilson, S. J.; vespers at 4 o'clock by the Rev. Thomas J. Delihant.

Reformed.

Marble Collegiate, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street—Sermons morning and evening by the Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, until recently the pastor, on "An Imperative Need" and "Life's Supreme Business." Wednesday evening, prayer meeting led by Dr. Edgar Tilton Jr., secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

Fordew, Eighty-ninth Street, between Park and Madison Avenues—Morning, sermon by the Rev. J. Denton Simms, missionary among the Indians at Dulce, N. M., supported by the local church; evening, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Edgar Tilton Jr., the pastor.

St. Nicholas Collegiate, Fifth Avenue and Forty-eighth Street—Sermons morning and evening by the Rev. Howard Brinckerhoff, assistant pastor.

Bethany, First Avenue and Sixty-second Street—Sermons morning and evening by the Rev. Paul C. Dickie, the pastor, on "Fighting the Blues" and "Put Out the Fire."

West End, Seventy-seventh Street and West End Avenue—Sermons morning and at 4:30 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Henry Evertson Cobb, the pastor.

Swedenborgian.

New, 144 East Thirty-fifth Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Arthur Wilde, the pastor, on "The Philosophy of Emanuel Swedenborg—Swedenborg's Idea of Man." After the sermon Mr. Wilde will answer questions.

Unitarian.

All Souls', worshiping in the MacDowell Club, 166 East Seventy-third Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Minot Simons, the pastor, on "The Theism of a Modern Theist; a Modern Theist Comments on Humanism."

Universalist.

Divine Paternity, Central Park West and Seventy-sixth Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Frank Oliver Hall, pastor-emeritus, on "Lincoln—that Captain With a Thinking Heart."

Radio.

WJZ—At 3 o'clock, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the World's Christian Endeavor Society, on "The Great Quest"; 5 o'clock, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick on "Handicapped Lives."

WEAF—At 4 o'clock, sermon by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman on "The Bible's Metaphors."

WPCH—At 1 o'clock, sermon by the Rev. Dr. John W. Bradbury, pastor of the Wadsworth Avenue Baptist Church. He will also preach Friday at noon over WGBS.

WABC—At 8 o'clock in the morning, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Ralph Welles Keeler, pastor of the Goodsell Memorial Methodist Church, Brooklyn, on "Heroes of the Church."

WMCA, WDRC, WCAM, WDEL and WOKO—At 3:30 o'clock, weekly radio service of the Rescue Society, 5 Doyers Street, with a talk by Harry Hadley, superintendent of Calvary Episcopal Mission. He is the son of the late "Sam" Hadley, who was superintendent of the Water Street Mission.

Miscellaneous.

Community Church, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street—Morning, sermon by John Haynes Holmes, the pastor, on "Havelock Ellis and the Art of Love"; evening, forum, with talks by Rabbi Mitchell, Salen Fisher and Sheik Mohammed Fadhai Jamali, on "Can Jew and Arab Live Together in Palestine?"

Riverside Church—Morning, worship in Temple Beth-El, Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street, with sermon by the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, the pastor; evening service in the Assembly Hall of the completed part of the new edifice, Riverside Drive and 122d Street.

Church of the Strangers, Fifty-seventh Street just west of Eighth Avenue—Sermons morning and evening by the Rev. Dr. Paul Mansfield Spencer, the pastor, on "Prayer" and "The New Feast."

Society for Ethical Culture, Central Park West and Sixty-fourth Street—Morning, address by Dr. Felix Adler, on "The Greatness of Abraham Lincoln: In What Did It Consist?"; evening, address by Alfred W. Martin on "The Jeremiah of the Renaissance."

National Bible Institute, 340 West Fifty-fifth Street—At 4 o'clock, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Edward Bates Turner on "Mysteries of the Kingdom of Heaven."

New York Unity Society, 33 West Thirty-ninth Street—Morning, lecture by Dr. Richard Lynch, the leader, on "Overcoming Fear."

Church of the Truth, worshiping at 11 West Forty-second Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Albert C. Grier, the pastor, on "The Place of Religion in the Life of Today"; evening service led by Miss Gladys C. Grier.

Bronx Free Fellowship, worshiping in Azure Masonic Temple, Boston Road near 172d Street—At 8 P. M., address by the Rev. Leon Rosser Land, the leader, on "Harry Elmer Barnes Looks at Religion"; 9 o'clock, address by James Waterman Wise on "Race and Religious Conflicts."

OPEN CAMPAIGN TO AID STUDENTS WHO WORK

Women at New Jersey College Seek to Increase Fund Used for Loans.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 15.—Contending that the hardships attached to working one's way through college often outweigh its benefits, the students of the New Jersey State College for Women here have opened a drive to increase the present student aid fund, which they believe to be inadequate. The campaign has been organized by the Student Government Association and Miss Ouida Wallace of New York is chairman of the committee.

Commenting editorially today on the drive, The Campus News, undergraduate publication, said:

"The opinion is frequently expressed that the student who 'works her way' gets more out of college. Perhaps, but no one except the student herself knows the burden that financial and labor worries add to inevitable scholastic strain. Jokes have been inspired by the subject, but it is a very grim, inescapable problem to the sincere working-student."

Miss Fredericka Belknap, college personnel director, said that the attempt to work one's way through college frequently severely taxed a student's health.

"Men as well as women students have found this to be true," she said. "A loan from a well-organized fund, on which interest is paid and on which repayments must begin at a certain date, helps to develop a definite business sense in the student and makes her a more responsible individual."

AIM TO END USELESS LAWS.

Group of Lawyers Organize to Attack Legal "Excess Baggage."

A group of lawyers to be known as the Committee for the Elimination of Useless Laws, which will work for elimination of statutes on the New York books that are obsolete and unnecessary, is being formed, it was announced yesterday by Dudley Oliver Osterheld, attorney, of 233 Broadway.

He and three other lawyers with offices in the Woolworth Building, who are interested in the idea, according to Mr. Osterheld, are seeking to enlist the aid of other attorneys in the movement to unburden New York law of "so much excess baggage." The other organizers of the group were named as William P. Niebrugge, Berton L. Maxfield and Robert Elder, who is a former Assistant District Attorney in Kings County. A fifth lawyer, said by Mr. Osterheld to be interested in the project, in so far as its activities could be extended to take in New Jersey, was Raymond Sloat of Newark.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES IN BROOKLYN TODAY

Clinton Howard Will Speak at Central Congregational on "The Rum Revolution."

WILL DEDICATE BUILDINGS

The Rev. Henry J. Wahl and Six Other Clergymen Will Take Part in Second Reformed Ceremonies.

Lessons from the lives of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln will be drawn today in sermons by pastors in Brooklyn churches. Many will make special pleas for world peace and offer special prayers for the naval conference in London. There will be pageants in a number of the churches tonight. Some of today's services will be:

Congregational.

Central, Hancock Street, near Franklin Avenue—Morning, sermon by the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, the pastor; evening, address by Clinton N. Howard, chairman of the National United Committee for Law Enforcement, on "The Rum Revolution."

Clinton Avenue, at Lafayette Avenue—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Frederick K. Stamm, the pastor, on "The Modern Saint."

Ocean Avenue, at Avenue I—Morning, sermon by the Rev. George Mahlon Miller, the pastor, on "The House We Live In."

Jewish.

Congregation Beth Elohim, Eighth Avenue and Garfield Place—Morning, sermon by Rabbi Alexander Lyons on "Was Jesus the Messiah?"

Lutheran.

Trinity Evangelical, Eighteenth Avenue and East Eighth Street—Sermons morning and evening by the Rev. Paul H. Scaer, the pastor, on "Saints and Sinners" and "Commendable Pertinacity."

Methodist Episcopal.

Central, Hanson Place and St. Felix Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. W. C. Judd, the associate pastor, on "He Would Go Forward"; evening, address by Dr. George P. Howard, missionary in Argentina, on "Evangelism as a South American Sees It."

New York Avenue, Bergen and Dean Streets—Sermons morning and evening by the Rev. Arch Tremayne, the pastor, on "This Changing World" and "How Far Are We Willing to Go in Saving Our Age?"

Immanuel, Dean Street, near Fifth Avenue—At noon, men's conference which a delegation of Swedish Masons will attend. The Rev. Clifford A. Westerdahl will make an address.

Presbyterian.

Lafayette Avenue, at South Oxford Street—Sermons morning and evening by the Rev. Ralph Marshall Davis of Erie, Pa.

Spencer Memorial, Remsen and Clinton Streets—Sermons morning and evening by the Rev. Frank E. Simmons, the pastor, on "Christ's Good Cheer" and "An Ancient Patriot."

Protestant Episcopal.

St. John's, St. John's Place, near Seventh Avenue—Morning, confirmation and sermon by Bishop Ernest M. Stires.

Grace, 46 Grace Court—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Dr. George P. Atwater, the rector, on "The Virgin Birth"; Paul Kintgen will sing Mendelssohn's "Hear My Prayer."

St. Luke's, Clinton Avenue, near Fulton Street—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Rush R. Sloane, the rector, on "Mine, Yours, Ours"; evening, presentation of the Epiphany pageant, "Treasures for the King."

Messiah, Greene and Clermont Avenues—Sermons morning and at 4:30 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. St. Clair Hester, the rector, on "Following Truth and Finding Freedom" and "How to Gain and Secure Friendship."

Holy Trinity, Clinton and Montague Streets—Morning, sermon by the Rev. John Howard Melish, the rector, on "A Soul in the Making"; evening, address by Miss Joyce Baldridge, district secretary of the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, on "The Fringes of the Heights."

St. Ann's, Clinton and Livingston Streets—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Samuel M. Dorrance, the rector; 4 o'clock, sermon by the Rev. Howard Frederick Dunn, the curate.

Christ Church, Bedford Avenue, near Division Avenue—Morning, sermon by Canon William Sheafe Chase on "What One Should Believe to Enter the Episcopal Church"; evening, address by Charles Paton, a theological student.

Reformed.

Second, Bedford Avenue and Martense Street—At 3 o'clock, dedication of new buildings; the dedication ceremony will be conducted by the Rev. Henry J. Wahl, the pastor. The Rev. Frederick M. Gordon, secretary of the Brooklyn Federation of Churches, will deliver an address. Other participating clergymen will be the Rev. J. J. Hoffman, the Rev. Charles Nietzer, the Rev. Herbert Peters, the Rev. J. Frederic Berg and the Rev. Charles Roeder.

Swedenborgian.

Church of the Neighbor, Clark Street and Monroe Place—Morning, sermon by the Rev. E. M. Lawrence Gould, the pastor, on "Should We Fear Death?"

Unitarian.

Church of the Saviour, Pierrepont Street and Monroe Place—Sermon by the Rev. Dr. John H. Lathrop, the pastor, on "Kindergarten."

Miscellaneous.

Bedford Y. M. C. A., Bedford Avenue—3 o'clock, address by the Rev. Ira David on "Three Types of Christians—the Believer, the Moral Man and the Outcast."

Brooklyn Society for Ethical Culture, meeting in the Brooklyn Academy of Music—Morning, address by Dr. Henry Neumann on "The Mussolini Cult in America."

SERVICES IN QUEENS.

Church Arrangements in Borough, Including North Shore.

The lives of Washington and Lincoln in relation to present problems of Church and State will be discussed by many pastors at services in Queens today. Topics for these and other sermons include "Washington and God," "What Washington and Lincoln Gave to the World," "Giants and Grasshoppers," "Why God?" "Cold Calculations," "Every Man for Himself," "Danger Zones" and "The Second Coming of Christ."

Baptist.

Elmhurst, Judge Street and Warner Avenue—Morning sermon, "Washington and God"; evening, "A Great Scout," both by the Rev. Alva C. Bowers.

First, Flushing—Morning sermon, "The Glory of the Gospel"; evening, "The Second Coming of Christ."

Reformed.

Remsen Street, Astoria—Morning, sermon by the Rev. George Bolsterle, "What Washington and Lincoln Gave to the World." Evening service in memory of those who lost their lives in the explosion on the battleship Maine.

First, Flushing, Bowne Street and Roosevelt Avenue—Morning, sermon by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Thomas Hanna MacKenzie, on "Every Man for Himself." Vespers at 4:30, with sermon by the pastor on "Washington and Lincoln."

Methodist Episcopal.

First, Elmhurst, Ninety-first Place and Fiftieth Avenue—Morning, the Rev. Norman W. Twiddy will preach the second of a series of sermons on the "Great Whys of Religion." Topic today, "Why God?" In the evening there will be a patriotic religious hymn service with a brief address by the pastor.

Community.

Church-on-the-Hill, 168th Street and Thirty-fifth Avenue, Broadway-Flushing—Morning, sermon by the pastor, the Rev. Bradley J. Folensbee, on "Loyalty." Edwin P. Beebe will speak at a meeting of the Epsilon Chi Phi in the evening on "What the Church of the Future Is to Be."

Presbyterian.

Glenmore Avenue—Sermons by the Rev. Frederic N. Lindsay on "Christian Liberty" in the morning and "The Father of Our Country" in the evening.

Springfield, Kew Gardens—Morning, sermon by the Rev. Dr. Elliot Field on "Two by Two." At 6:45 P. M. the Christian Endeavor Society will hold a rally and hear reports on the recent conference.

First, Elmhurst, Queens Boulevard and Grand Avenue—Morning, sermon by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Howard A. Northacker, on "Danger Zones." A community service will be held in the evening, at which Rabbi Max Meyer of the Free Synagogue of Flushing will preach on "Some Causes for the Decline of Religion." A round table will be held.

Protestant Episcopal.

Zion, Northern Boulevard and Douglaston Parkway, Douglaston—Morning, 8 o'clock, holy communion and an address by the rector, the Rev. Lester Leake Riley, on "Cold Calculations." Morning prayer and sermon at 11 by the rector on "Unto This Last."

St. James's, Elmhurst, Broadway and Corona Avenue—Morning, a father and son service will be held, at which the rector, the Rev. C. Lawson Willard, will preach on the topic, "Father and Son"; vespers at 4 P. M., with sermon by the rector on "Faith."

St. George's, Main Street, Flushing—Morning, sermon by the rector, the Rev. Dr. George Farrand Taylor, on "The Parable of the Laborers in the Vineyard." In the evening Hurd Pinkham will be crowned king of the Order of Sir Galahad by the Rev. Sidney T. Cooke of St. James's Protestant Episcopal Church, Manhattan. The Rev. Mr. Cooke is commissioner of the order in the metropolitan area.

St. Gabriel's, Jamaica Avenue and 196th Street, Hollis—Sermon at the morning service, "Giants and Grasshoppers," by the Rev. C. Ronald Garmey. Vespers at 4:30.

YALE ALUMNI TO GATHER.

Forestry School Graduates Will Also Have Reunion Next Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 15.—Yale's Alumni University Day, which has been observed annually for seventeen years on Feb. 22, has been approaching in similarity and importance the commencement program in June, and a reunion of an alumni association, announced today as a part of the exercises next Saturday, will give additional resemblance to the ceremonies. The third decennial reunion of the Yale Forest School Alumni Association will be held in conjunction with the Alumni Day. Local reunions are also being planned in sections of the West in which graduates of the Yale School of Forestry are concentrated.

The reunion will open officially at noon on Feb. 21 with group luncheons of the individual classes. Following these a meeting of the Alumni Association will be held in Sage Hall, when Dean Henry S. Graves and other members of the faculty will tell of the recent activities and future plans of the school. The annual alumni banquet will be presided over by Samuel N. Spring, '98, Forestry School 1903, Professor of Silviculture at Cornell University. Gifford Pinchot, '89, former National Forester, and President Angell of Yale will speak.

PRINCETON ALUMNI PLAN 4-DAY REUNION

Continued from Page 1, Column 4.

today in commenting upon the future policy of the McCarter Theatre. "We are trying to do our part to fill that need. We will use the new theatre as a laboratory in dramatic courses just as the chemistry student uses his retorts and his Bunsen burners to test the combinations of the earth's elements.

"Our undergraduates will learn what are the problems of the stage by experimenting with writing, producing and acting. A sound appreciation comes only with a thorough understanding of the problems which are solved. Our undergraduates will have that appreciation and will become sympathetic and intelligent auditors ever after."

An exhibition of Oriental manuscripts, illuminated medieval manuscripts and rare, early printed books will be held in the treasure room of the university library Friday and Saturday. Friday afternoon the Princeton and Yale freshman basketball teams will play.

At 10 A. M. Saturday the annual undergraduate Washington's Birthday exercises will be held, followed at 11 o'clock by a meeting of the Alumni Association in Nassau Hall. Walter L. Johnson of New York, president of the association, will preside. The alumni luncheon will be held at 1 P. M. in Madison Hall and at the same time Mrs. Hibben will be hostess at a luncheon at "Prospect" for women guests. Afternoon athletic events will include hockey with the Yale freshmen, fencing with Columbia, wrestling with Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute Jayvees, wrestling with Navy and indoor polo with Squadron A. Yale and Princeton will meet in a hockey engagement that night.

On Sunday Dean Robert Russell Wicks will preach at the chapel exercises. Ralph Downes will give an organ recital in the afternoon.

EDUCATORS AT N. Y. U. TO HEAR CRIME DEBATE

National Conference Delegates Will Attend Dedication of New Building Feb. 28.

A discussion on crime as related to the press, school, law and church led by prominent authorities, each representing his particular field, will be one of the features of the National Educational Conference to be held in connection with the dedication of New York University's new School of Education building. This event will take place Feb. 28 at 2:30 o'clock.

William L. Chenery, editor of Collier's Magazine; Waldo Frank, widely known writer and lecturer; Dean Frank H. Sommer of New York University's School of Law and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise are the men who will treat the subject before an expected assemblage of the country's leading educators. Dean John W. Withers of the School of Education will be the presiding officer.

Presidents of universities and colleges, heads of normal schools, and teachers' colleges, superintendents of schools from the large cities of the country and police commissioners from their respective cities of the East as well as others interested in the control and cure of the criminally inclined are among those expected to take part in the discussion which will follow the presentation of the four papers.

As a follow-up to the meeting on crime, the Department of Elementary Education of New York University will conduct a character-education discussion conference. This conference will be a closed meeting and a series of theses on controversial issues in character education will form the basis of discussion.

Professor Edwin D. Starbuck, director of the Institute of Character Research at the University of Iowa will be the general chairman of the conference. The speakers will include Dr. H. B. Wilson, national director of the American Junior Red Cross; Roy O. Wyland, acting director of the department of education of the Boy Scouts of America; A. J. Gregg of the National Council of the Y. M. C. A. and Dr. Lawson G. Lowrey, director of the Institute of Child Guidance.

Also Frank J. Arnold, district superintendent of schools, and chairman of the Board of Superintendents Committee on Syllabus and Character Education; Charles W. Taylor, State Superintendent of Schools of Nebraska; Dr. Frank Astor of the National Child Welfare Association and chairman of the American Education Society; Dean Grover H. Alderman of the University of Pittsburgh and more than sixty other nationally known figures in the educational field.

Among the topics for discussion are "Elements of Character," "Curriculum Aspects of Character Education," "Problems of Method in Character Education," "Scientific and Testing Approach of Character Education Problems," "Character Education and Teacher Training," and "Contributions of Mental Hygiene to Character Education."

The following day, March 1, Harry Shulman, research director of the New York State Crime Commission will present a paper on "Educational Implications of the Crime Commission Studies." Professor Frederick M. Thrasher in charge of Boys' Club Study now being conducted by New York University will explain the set-up and purposes of this work Dr. George E. Vincent of the Rockefeller Foundation will be the presiding officer at the meeting.

SIX MORE SCHOOLS IN ORATORY CONTEST

Continued from Page 1, Column 7.

name of Bishop Molloy the entrance of the Catholic high schools in all four counties of Long Island into the National Oratorical Contest. This measure brings forth good, healthy thinking along American lines and endears the country to our growing boys and girls. This truly civic good is the purpose in quest of which we are delighted to have our schools take place in the contest."

District finals among the high schools in Queens will be held on the evening of April 8, in Jamaica High School building, according to Charles H. Vosburgh, Principal of that school, chairman. At this time three speakers from the six day and two evening high schools will be chosen to compete in the regional semi-finals later.

Dates for district finals in a large number of the suburban districts have already been set. In Westchester County, finals in the White Plains, New Rochelle, Yonkers, and Tarrytown districts will all be held on the evening of April 4, at the White Plains, New Rochelle, Hawthorne, and Tarrytown high schools, respectively.

District finals in Nassau and Suffolk Counties will be held on April 9 at 8 P. M., at Mineola and Northport high schools, preceded by semi-final contests in both districts. In charge of the Suffolk semi-finals, which will be held at Huntington and Sayville high schools on April 4 will be Robert K. Toaz and Seward S. Travis, with Mervin D. Losey, district chairman, presiding at the later county finals. Harlan B. Allen, district chairman, will preside at the Nassau County finals, and Frank E. DeGelleke of Sea Cliff, and Arthur E. Newton of Baldwin, will serve as chairmen of the semi-finals in that district.

New Jersey Dates Fixed.

In New Jersey, finals will be held in Hunterdon, Union, Middlesex-Somerset and Morris-Warren-Sussex County districts on April 4 in Flemington, Roselle, Bound Brook and Morristown high schools, respectively. On the evening of April 7 the Hudson County district finals will be held in Bayonne High School, with Francis A. Brick as chairman; while the Bergen and Essex County finals, the latter for schools outside Newark, will be conducted at Englewood and Montclair high schools on April 8 at 8 P. M.

Finals in Newark district itself will be held on the evening of April 10 in the West Side High School auditorium, Newark; the Monmouth County finals in Asbury Park High School on April 11 at 8:15 P. M., and the Passaic County finals on April 14 at 8 P. M., in the Central High School at Paterson.

A keen interest in the preparation of orations has been noted during the past week. A report from La Salle Academy, at 44 East Second Street, of which the Rev. Brother Andrew is principal, donotes that all seniors in the school are hard at work on contest essays, with extemporaneous speaking, a feature of the contest this year, being practiced in oral English classes. The Hamilton Institute for Girls, on West Eighty-sixth Street, also reports exceptional interest among the members of its junior and senior classes.

Many Students Entered.

At the Girls High School in Brooklyn the entire senior class is entering the contest under the direction of Miss Irma Cooper of the history department and Miss Helen Roth of the English department. At the Girls Commercial High School 800 members of the third and fourth year English and history classes are joining, while the members of the senior history class at Bay Ridge High School, the regional winner last year, will submit essays on the Constitution for consideration of their teachers, who will select those for try-out as school orator.

At Asbury Park High School Charles S. Huff, principal, reports much enthusiasm, with 300 juniors and thirty sophomores working on orations. The school's weekly composition is being replaced by writing on constitutional topics, and a plan has been devised by Mr. Huff and his assistants by which the competitors will submit essays for judgment on style, will read their essays for consideration of presentation and then, after selection of final candidates in this way, will memorize and declaim their speeches in the contest to determine the school's orator.

For all information address: Oratorial Contest, THE NEW YORK TIMES, 229 West Forty-third Street, New York City.

DEGREE IN BUSINESS OFFERED BY HUNTER

Dr. Kieran Announces That College Is Broadening Curriculum in Response to Demands of Students

The establishment of commercial majors and a business degree on the same basis as academic majors at Hunter College was announced by President James M. Kieran in a speech broadcast yesterday over Station WOR between 11 A. M. and 12 M. as part of the celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the college, which will continue throughout the week.

The broadening of the college curriculum was attributed, President Kieran stated, to an increasing demand by the students themselves for preparation for the higher business positions and to a direct effort on the part of the college to meet the situation created by the overcrowded conditions in the teaching field.

The standards for admission and achievement in the business course will be as strict as that now required in the academic work. Moreover, the ideal of a liberal and cultural education initiated by Thomas Hunter, the founder of the college, will be retained in the training of leaders for the business world.

Dr. Kieran further announced that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment had appropriated $3,000,000 for the maintenance of the college during the current year.

Other features of the program were three selections by the Hunter College orchestra, Mozart's Serenade "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," Haydn's Minuet "Military Symphony" and Strelezki's "Dreams." Dr. Blanche Colton Williams, head of the department of English, gave a talk on "The Appreciation of the Poetry of Helen Gray Cone." The Choral Club of the college sang Cuthbert Harris's "Ring Out Wild Bells."

The celebration week will be further featured by a formal birthday chapel next Wednesday and by a tea to be given by the Student Council to the faculty on the same day.

185 HIGH SCHOOLS PICK 400 PUPILS FOR CHORUS

Training Now in Progress for Music Supervisors' Congress in Chicago March 28.

A chorus of more than 400 students, representing 185 high schools, has been elected for the second national high school chorus which is being formed for the Music Supervisors' National Conference to be held in Chicago on March 28. Dr. Hollis E. Dann, head of the music education department of New York University, will conduct the chorus in its concert at the Auditorium, former home of the Chicago Civic Opera Company.

The students have been selected after several weeks of competition and are being trained by their local music supervisors under the direction of Dr. Dann, who each week sends a letter outlining the work.

The chorus will rehearse as a group twice a day for one week before the concert, according to present plans.

The program for the concert announced yesterday, will consist of twelve groups, sung mostly without accompaniment.

An unusual feature of the concert will be the singing of three difficult choral numbers by the audience from memory. These will be sung in parts without rehearsal. Leaders of the conference believe that this feature of the program will be an ideal beginning of a campaign toward encouraging memorization among all children in the upper grades and high schools of a limited number of songs everybody ought to know.

Carroll O'Brien, director of music at Addison High School, Addison, Pa., will be the soloist.

Finds Hunter Honor Code a Success

Compulsory reporting for juniors and seniors, the newly-introduced provision of the honor system at Hunter College, has been pronounced a success by Miss Alva Critchley, student chairman of the judicial board. The judicial board announcement emphasized the ban on interlinear translations, which are held by the heads of the language departments to be a breach of the honor code.

Holy Cross Benefit Arranged.

A benefit performance for Holy Cross Church will be given Tuesday evening at Hunts Point Palace, East 163d Street and Southern Boulevard. Among those who will take part are Helen Kane, Marie Gambarelli, James Hall, Stuart Irwin, Ruth Shields, Eileen Dougall, Jack Good, Chick Chandler, the Wallace Sisters, Jean Geddes, Tony Migliaccio, Buddy Kennedy and Joe Kedden. Peter Pflum is chairman of the arrangements committee under the direction of the Rev. Fidelis Reynolds and the Rev. Paul Seibert.

COLLEGE PROBLEMS UP AT Y. M. C. A. PARLEY

Dr. Niebuhr at Buckhill Falls Says Challenge Is to Cultivate Social Intelligence.

Special to The New York Times.

BUCKHILL FALLS, Pa., Feb. 15.—The second day's session of the midwinter conference of the Middle Atlantic District of the National College Young Men's Christian Association opened here this morning with an address by the Rev. Dr. Reinhold Neibuhr of Union Theological Seminary of New York City, who spoke on "Discipline of Life."

"The challenge which faces the college generation of today is to cultivate the kind of social intelligence which alone can make possible a moral life in the intricacies of our industrial civilization and at the same time maintain a high degree of moral passion," he said. "Both intelligence and passion are necessary, but they are not altogether compatible. That is our problem."

The faculty seminar, which is being attended by about fifty members of the faculties of the various colleges represented, was held this morning.

ON EXHIBITION
TUESDAY, FEB. 18TH

SILO'S
45th St. and Vanderbilt Ave.
ESTABLISHED 1879
WILL SELL AT
UNRESTRICTED PUBLIC AUCTION
Old English, Spanish & Italian Furniture
Modern Pieces of Utility, Fabrics, Objects of Art, Rugs, Etc.
From Various Estates
AND REMOVED FROM Red Gables, Phillipse Manor
—ALSO—
Jewelry, Silver, Etc.
THE ESTATE OF
A. Campbell Smidt
BY ORDER OF THE Fifth Ave. Bank of N. Y. And Others
—ALSO—
Fishing Tackle, Guns & other Sporting Goods
THE ESTATE OF
W. C. Carlin
& THE PRIVATE PROPERTY OF
Mr. M. Baxter
Sale Days: Thursday, Friday and Saturday
February 20, 21 & 22,
At 2 P. M. Each Day
JAMES P. SILO, Auctioneer
40 East 45th Street

AMERICAN ART ASSOCIATION
ANDERSON GALLERIES, INC.
30 EAST 57TH STREET
NOW ON EXHIBITION
FIRST EDITIONS
OF AMERICAN AND ENGLISH AUTHORS AND AUTOGRAPH PRESENTATION COPIES
From the Library of
A CHICAGO COLLECTOR
Sale February 19 at 2:15
OIL PAINTINGS
By Weir, Troyon, Diaz, Blakelock, Constant, Courbet, Gainsborough, Humphrey, Gilbert Stuart, Lely & others
From the PETER ROUSS AND LEONARD STEIN COLLECTIONS WITH ADDITIONS
Sale February 20 at 8:15
CATALOGS SENT ON REQUEST
Sales Conducted by Messrs.
BERNET, PARKE, BADE & RUSSELL

Art Students' League Gallery
215 West 57th Street
Exhibition of Graphic Arts
Etchings, Lithographs, Woodblocks
Open daily from 10 to 10
FEBRUARY 17 TO 22.

PUBLIC AUCTION
Superb Furnishings, Works of Art, Paintings, Bronzes, Tapestries, Two Complete Libraries of Books from the Paris home of Mrs. BENJAMIN THAW
Also by order of CAPTAIN JOHN H. STANFORD
Well Known Collector, and other Consignors
Magnificent Antique and Modern Furniture
Important Collection of Original Bronzes, Including Examples by Barye, Mene, etc.
Valuable Collection of Paintings by Larolle, Chaplin, Corot, Daubigny, Delaroche, Blakelock, Knight, etc.
INTERESTING COLLECTION OF CARVED IVORIES
Two Comprehensive Libraries
Autographed Letters Ampico Baby Grand
Exquisite Persian Rugs and Carpets
Fine Crystal and Encrusted China
On View: Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 18 & 19, from 9 A. M.
Sale Days: Thursday, Friday & Saturday, Feb. 20, 21 & 22, at 2 P. M. each day.
Eugene Freund Galleries, Inc.
42-46 West 48th Street
Sale Conducted by Mr. Eugene Freund

NEW JERSEY EVENTS KEEP SOCIETY BUSY

Junior Conference of State Federation of Women's Clubs Held at Montclair.

FUTURE BRIDES HONORED

Miss Mary Cairns of Newark and Miss Adelaide Murken of Glen Ridge Are Party Guests.

Special to The New York Times.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Feb. 15.—Several of the members of the Hackensack Junior Women's Club were guests of the Junior Auxiliary of Montclair at the conference of the junior departments of the State Federation of Women's Clubs held in Montclair today. Miss Priscella Porter, president of the Montclair Women's Club; Mrs. C. D. Dunaway, junior district adviser, and Mrs. Robert Cooke, vice president in the seventh district, were receiving.

The annual reception and dance, given by the members of the Holy Rosary Society, assisted by young women of St. Theresa's Sodality of Hackensack, was held this evening at St. Joseph's auditorium.

In Women's Club Play.

Among those chosen to be in the cast of the Hackensack Junior Women's Club show, which is to be the musical comedy "Pottie" by John B. Rogers, are the Misses Vera Rodgers, Marion Hasbrouck, Betty Courtney and Virginia Fleming. The cast will include about 100 people.

Mr. and Mrs. John Thomson of Hackensack are spending several weeks at the Prince George Hotel in New York before going to Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Crelan Jr. of Hackensack are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son on Feb. 13.

George Perelstrus of Hackensack, who returns from Havana this week, will leave next Saturday for Russia where he will spend several years.

Mrs. John Moore Coward of Glen Ridge has issued invitations for a tea on March 2 in honor of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Audrey Loder Coward, whose engagement to Lee Wingate Carroll of New York has been announced.

Riding Contests at Montclair.

The second in a series of horsemanship competitions for juniors took place today at the Montclair Riding Club. Mrs. E. Y. Babcock, Mrs. J. Kergen O'Malley Knott and R. C. Heather were judges.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hofmann Jr. of Montclair entertained a small party tonight at the Essex County Country Club dinner dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Lane of Montclair were hosts at dinner and bridge at Grill Leon tonight.

Miss Esther Burgi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Burgi of Montclair, whose wedding to Ernest Nicholas Lush of Verona will take place on Friday, was guest of honor today at a shower and bridge given by Miss Dorothy Williams.

The Carrolton Club of Montclair gave a dinner dance at the Monclair Golf Club tonight. There was also a dinner dance at the Montclair Athletic Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Borland of Newark were hosts at a Valentine bridge tonight.

Entertain for Future Brides.

The Misses Jean and Joyce Judson, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Judson of Newark, entertained with a shower and bridge today in honor of Miss Mary Cairns, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Cairns, whose engagement to Raymond Burr Bauchelle of Montclair has been announced.

Miss Mary Gay Brooke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace L. Brooke of Newark, was hostess at a bridge at Marlboro Inn, Monclair, in honor of Miss Adelaide Murken, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav N. Murken of Glen Ridge, who will be married on Friday to Daniel Reynolds Merrill.

Charles R. Rogers, curator of Princeton University, is giving a house party over the week-end at his home.

Junior League Dance.

A dance was given tonight in Thomson Hall under the auspices of the Junior League. Mrs. Arthur Maurice Greene Jr. received and was assisted by other members of the committee. A number of dinners were given before the dance. Among those who entertained were Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Wertenbaker, Major and Mrs. Roger S. Parrot, Mr. and Mrs. George Forsyth, Dr. and Mrs. Paul McClintock and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wancler.

The third Whiting recital will be given on Tuesday in McCosh Hall.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Second Presbyterian Church of Princeton presented tonight and will present again tomorrow evening a comedy, "The Automatic Butler."

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Leroy Hutson will give a bridge party on Tuesday evening at their home in Princeton.

Federation Luncheon.

The annual legislative luncheon of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs will be held on March 3 in Trenton.

Mrs. Warren W. Oley gave a bridge party this afternoon at her home in Pennington.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Eldridge gave a bridge party and house warming at their home in Trenton.

Mrs. Stanley Hoard will give a tea at her home in Princeton.

President and Mrs. Hibben will entertain at luncheon on Saturday.

Mrs. Luther Pfahler Eisenhart will give a tea for the members and their families of the Mathematics Department on Wednesday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John De Neumann.

Mrs. James Waddell Alexander of Princeton will be the guest of honor at a luncheon given at the Cosmopolitan Club in New York by her mother-in-law, Mrs. John Alexander, on Feb. 26.

Mrs. Henry Lane Eno, who has been staying at her home in Princeton, has returned to Washington.

Miss Barrett Honor Guest.

Miss Stephanie Barrett, débutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen F. Barrett of South Orange, will be guest of honor tomorrow at a tea in Philadelphia to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Donaghue, brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. Barrett.

Mrs. Alfred B. Jenkins of Llewelyn Park will give a tea and reception on Friday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Elizabeth A. Harris of Glen Ridge.

Miss Margaret Doris Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Hamilton of Maplewood, whose marriage to Benjamin Porter Frye, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frye of East Orange, will take place March 29, was guest of honor at a surprise shower and bridge given by Miss Helen Frye, sister of her fiancé. Mr. and Mrs. Frye entertained last night at dinner in honor of Miss Hamilton and their son.

Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Barus of South Orange will entertain at dinner for twenty-eight guests at the Rock Spring Country Club on Feb. 28 before the regular club dance.

St. Valentine's Benefit Dance Held.

Under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary to the 165th Infantry, Inc., a St. Valentine's dance was given last night in the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory, Lexington Avenue. The proceeds will go to the hospital fund. The auxiliary aids men injured in the war or ill because of old wounds. The committee, headed by Mrs. Mary C. Kenny, included Mrs. William J. Grady, Mrs. John J. Lavin, Mrs. William J. Scarlett, Miss Elizabeth M. Hughes, president; the Misses Mary Brown, Mae Cross, Kathryn A. Devlin and Nora A. Thynne.

Mrs. F. H. Knubel Entertains.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Feb. 15.—Mrs. Frederick H. Knubel, wife of the president of the United Lutheran Church in America, gave a luncheon yesterday at her home, 201 Hamilton Avenue, in honor of Mrs. Charles D. Trexler, whose husband will be installed tomorrow as pastor of St. James Lutheran Church, Madison Avenue and Seventy-third Street. The guests were the wives of Lutheran clergymen in Manhattan and vicinity. Mrs. Trexler's husband was previously pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, Brooklyn.

Thuel Burnham Gives a Reception.

Thuel Burnham of 10 Fifth Avenue gave a small reception and musicale last night for Mr. and Mrs. Rae Robertson of London. Among those who attended were Mr. and Mrs. John Chambers Hughes, Prince and Princess Serge Gagarin, Mrs. William Archer Purrington, Mrs. Charles Robinson Smith, Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, Mrs. John Ames Mitchell, Mrs. Camillus Kidder, Mrs. John R. MacArthur, Miss Mary Drisler, Miss Miriam Oliver and Count Ignatieff.

FLEET STARTS CRUISE FROM SAN PEDRO BASE

Ten Units Leave for Four-Month Technical Exercises to End With Arrival Here.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Feb. 15 (AP).—Ten units of the United States fleet and base force slipped anchor at midnight and sailed from their home port here today toward the open sea, bound on a four-month cruise and tactical exercises.

The Panama Canal, Cuba and New York Harbor were the objectives of the naval force. En route to the canal and off Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, the ships will engage in tactical exercises. After joint manoeuvres with the Atlantic Scouting Fleet, the larger fleet will cruise northward along the Atlantic Coast, pausing at Hampton Roads, Va., and New York City.

The fleet, commanded by Admiral Louis M. Nulton in the absence of Admiral William V. Pratt, commander-in-chief, who is at the London naval conference, comprises on this coast twenty-nine surface craft and base force and approximately 200 aircraft. All will participate in the manoeuvres.

Admiral Nulton was aboard the flagship Texas. Other ranking officers following him were Vice Admiral Lucius A. Bostwick, commander of the battleship divisions, aboard the West Virginia, and Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder, commanding the United States fleet base force, aboard the Procyon.

$40,000 FLOWER PRIZES.

Will Be Offered at Show Which Opens Here on March 17.

A total of $40,000 will be offered in cash prizes at the flower show that opens on March 17 at the Grand Central Palace. The previous top mark in prizes has been $30,000. As usual the show will be under the control of the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club, with other organizations cooperating.

Some elaborate individual entries will cost thousands of dollars, and to encourage the utmost in beauty the flower show committee in certain cases will make a substantial cash appropriation to groups of entrants to help to defray expenses. In Class 100 for private growers $6,000 has been appropriated and apportioned to eight entrants and is expected to result in the finest array of eight gardens ever seen at the show. Each will cover 600 square feet and may include lawns, flower beds, shrubbery borders and other designs arranged to the best of the entrants' artistic ability. A similar appropriation of $6,000 will be apportioned for commercial growers in Class 174 for three exhibits of 1,000 square feet. Valuable prizes will also be offered by both American and foreign horticultural societies.

SHOW BY ILLUSTRATORS.

Annual Exhibition Here Feb. 24—Then to Tour Country.

On Monday evening, Feb. 24, the annual exhibition of the Society of Illustrators will open with a private showing in the Louis Philippe ballroom of the Hotel Delmonico. It will continue through March. The patronesses include:

Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, the Princess Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurst, Mrs. Rembrandt Peale Jr., Mrs. George Draper, Mrs. Harry Payne Bingham, Mrs. Cornelius Bliss, Mrs. Arthur Train, Mrs. Frederick Lewisohn, Mrs. Allan Ryan Jr., Mrs. Julian Ripley, Mrs. Vincent Astor, the Princess Anita de Braganza, Mrs. George Clark 3d and Mrs. Murray Crane.

The officers of the society are:

WALLACE MORGAN, president.
HERB C. ROTH, first vice president.
EDWARD A. WILSON, second vice president.
NORMAN PRICE, corresponding secretary.
EDWIN DE COSSY, recording secretary.
FRANK DE SALES CASEY, treasurer.
WILLARD FAIRCHILD, executive chairman.
RUBE GOLDBERG, head of the entertainment committee.
CLAYTON KNIGHT, head of the membership committee.

The exhibition, which is to be shown for the first time here, will afterward travel throughout the country for one year under the auspices of the American Federation of Arts.

SEEKS WORK FOR JOBLESS.

Bay State Governor Urges Immediate Start on Public Works.

BOSTON, Feb. 15 (AP).—Governor Frank G. Allen, in a letter sent today to all Mayors and chairmen of Selectmen in the State, reiterated his plea of several weeks ago for immediate action on public work programs to reduce unemployment.

The Governor outlined the State's plans, which call for an expenditure of $25,000,000, and urged that in granting employment, local residents be utilized in so far as possible and that wherever feasible, preference be given to those with dependents.

GALA NIGHT DRAWS PALM BEACH HOSTS

The Cottage Colony Dines and Dances at Season's Event at Whitehall.

LAMMOT DU PONT IS HOST

Entertains House Party Guests at Embassy Club—Oasis Boxing Bouts Start Thursday.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 15.—Gala night at Whitehall tonight drew a large number of the hotel guests and members of the cottage colony, who dined and danced on the west terrace overlooking Lake Worth. Mrs. George A. Eddy entertained more than twenty guests, J. E. Kunkel was host to sixteen, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Burns, who have recently arrived at Whitehall, had a party of ten.

The evening's hosts included also Senator J. J. McClure, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Moody, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Levis, H. Glenn, James Maloney, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Snyder, William J. McInerny, W. E. Corey, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Willard S. Burrows, J. R. Taylor, John Corey, Ernest Mitchell, L. C. Bloomfield and others.

Count and Countess Carlo Filipponi gave a tea for twenty-four guests this afternoon at Whitehall.

George H. Keim gave a dinner at the Patio Marguery last evening, his guests including Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Banker, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Sheldon, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Corsden, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Truesdale, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sherlock, Mrs. A. J. Broseau, Mrs. Bingham Plunket, Miss Grace Clark, Frederick Page, Robert C. Beal, A. J. Adrian, Smith A. Keim and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Clarke of the New Palm Beach Hotel gave a luncheon today at the Patio Marguery for Mr. and Mrs. Harold Taylor, Mrs. Mather Borden, Chauncey Dirks and Claude Shields.

Strassburgers Due Tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Beaver Strassburger will arrive from New York on Monday to spend the rest of the season at the Everglades Club.

Mrs. Albert T. Evans of the Breakers Hotel entertained twenty guests at luncheon and bridge today at the Everglades Club.

Alfred P. W. Seaman and G. V. Haggert of New York have arrived at the Oasis Club.

The first of the afternoon boxing bouts at the Oasis Club will be staged on Thursday afternoon, under the direction of Charles M. Hall of Detroit, who joined the Palm Beach cottage colony this year; Mr. and Mrs Hall have a new house in El Bravo Way.

The second of the gala nights in the Muleteer Grill of the Ambassador Hotel took place tonight. Among hosts at the dinner dance were Lawrence Wetherill, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy H. Long, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hodgins, Lawrence and Beresford Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Russell G. Tompkins, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Waterman and Miss Florence Smith.

W. T. P. Hollingsworth and Miss Jacqueline Hollingsworth of Paris, Mr. and Mrs. A. Francis Walter Warner of London and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Windler of Berne are among arrivals at the Ambassador Hotel.

New York Arrivals.

New York arrivals include Mr. and Mrs. L. Britt, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Donovan, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Fanelli, Cecile E. Schultz, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Atkin, Mr. and Mrs. Luther L. Blake, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Louis La Zare, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dreyfuss, Charles B. Coady, Mr. and Mrs. N. Wilson, Arthur Kruger, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller. Among others at the Ambassador are Henry L. Chrisholm of Tuxedo Park, Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Lewis of Brooklyn, Senator J. J. McClure of Chester, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Southgate of Washington, D. C.

At the Olympia Beach Inn, north of Palm Beach, is a large Western colony, including Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago, who has been occupying one of the inn cottages for several seasons, and many St. Louis families. New York guests at the inn include Mr. and Mrs. Horace K. Corbin, Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Dyer, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cissel, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Whitlock, Mr. and Mrs. George Zimmerman, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Park, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Haskin, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Burgher; among others are Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Johnson of Bronxville.

Mrs. Henry J. Alexander, who has been a guest of Charles A. Munn and Miss Pauline at Casa Amado, left tonight for New York; remaining at Casa Amado are Lady Cranbourne, Mrs. Evan Wallace, Misses Alice Moats and Beatrice Patterson and Lord Adare.

Stehlis Dinner Hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil J. Stehli gave a dinner for sixteen young people this evening at their home in Via Bellaria. Their son, Henry E. Stehli, and Lionel T. Bonner, who have been with them for a fortnight, left tonight to return to New York; Mr. and Mrs. Luke C. Doyle, who are also guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stehli, are remaining for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Amory gave a dinner this evening at their lake-front home for twenty-two guests. Mrs. John E. Dana entertained at tea this afternoon at her home in Royal Palm Way.

Lammot du Pont Dinner Host.

Lammot du Pont, who is entertaining a house party at the Everglades Club, gave a dinner for his guests at the Florida Embassy Club and a supper party at the Colony Club. In the party were Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester D. Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. MacMillan Hoopes, Miss Natalie du Pont, George Edwards and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Smith gave a large dinner this evening at the Colony Club for Mr. Smith's daughter, Mrs. Russell Luckow, and Edward S. Beck, managing editor of The Chicago Tribune.

Benjamin and Jack Hopkins, young sons of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Hopkins, entertained a group of their friends today with a luncheon at home, after which they went to Gulf Stream to see the polo matches at the Phipps Fields.

Philip Corbin, 6-and-a-half-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Corbin, gave his annual party this afternoon at the ocean front home of his parents. Thirty children were present. The feature of the party was the showing of movies of the children made at last year's party.

Other society news is printed on the next page.

DRAFT REORGANIZATION OF STATE COMMISSION

Syracuse University Experts Will Report This Week on Public Service Board.

SYRACUSE, Feb. 15.—During the controversy over the functions and organization of the State Public Service Commission, a small group of political scientists at Syracuse University have been drafting a report which may become the basis for a complete reorganization of the commission and which is expected to be ready on Monday.

The report is based upon information received during the series of hearings by the special legislative commission, headed by Senator John Knight, which was appointed to investigate the activities of the Public Service Commission.

Dr. William E. Mosher, director of the School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University, acted as director of research for the legislative commission and has prepared the preliminary report. This will be presented to Colonel William J. Donovan, special counsel for the Knight commission. Colonel Donovan will make recommendations to the investigating group, who will attempt to bring about the enactment of new laws at this session of the Legislature.

Senator Knight is said to have assured Dr. Mosher that his commission will offer to the Legislature any bills upon which the members agree.

MRS. KUSER FILES SUIT; GETS CUSTODY OF SON

Wife of New Jersey Senator in Reno Court Relinquishes Her Dower Rights.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., Feb. 15.—Mrs. Brooke Russell Kuser, daughter of former Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, filed suit for divorce today from Dryden Kuser, New Jersey State Senator and member of the Dryden family of insurance officials.

An agreement effected out of court between the couple provides that custody of a young son shall go to Mrs. Kuser, the father having the right to visit the boy at reasonable times. Mrs. Kuser releases dower rights to her husband's property. The case will be tried Monday.

The pair were married at Washington on April 26, 1919. Mrs. Kuser complained that a year later her husband began to embarrass her in social activities, that he told her he no longer loved her and that their marriage was a failure. Since 1922, Mrs. Kuser asserts, her husband has told her he would not tolerate being married to her, and in June of 1929 demanded that she leave him.

Mrs. Kuser deferred coming here for divorce proceedings, it was stated, until after her husband's campaign for election to the New Jersey Senate was over.

NAMED PHILIPPINE ADVISER.

Major Gen. J. A. Hull Is Appointed Legal Aide by Dwight Davis.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Dwight F. Davis, Governor General of the Philippines, has appointed as his legal adviser Maj. Gen. John A. Hull, retired, former Judge Advocate General of the army. General Hull has made his home here since his retirement in 1928 and will sail for the Philippines next month.

General Hull has had a long and varied experience with legal affairs relating to the insular possessions of the United States. He was three times Judge Advocate of the Philippine department of the army, and as Judge Advocate General was in charge of all insular litigation in the Circuit Court of Appeals and in the Supreme Court of the United States. He was the official legal advisor of Mr. Davis during the latter's service as Secretary of War.

The son of the late Representative John A. T. Hull of Iowa, General Hull was born at Bloomfield, Iowa, in 1874. At the outbreak of the Spanish War he was appointed a Lieutenant Colonel and Judge Advocate of volunteers and served as such throughout that war and the Philippine insurrection.

In 1901 he was appointed a Major in the Judge Advocate General's department of the regular army and served in various military departments in the United States. During the World War, by which time he had reached the grade of Colonel, he served in France as Judge Advocate of the Service of Supplies and afterward had charge of the Renting, Requisition and Claims Service of the American Expeditionary Forces.

FIND 'DE,' NOT 'VON,' ON STEUBEN'S WILL

Investigators Say Washington Employed Former Prefix in Letters to Drill Master.

BOTH FORMS WERE USED

Society Head Points Out French Was Diplomatic Language at Time of Revolution.

A rare collection of the private papers of Major. Gen. Baron von Steuben, including his will and the original grant of land to him by the State of New York, in the archives of the New York Historical Society, 170 Central Park West, give many interesting sidelights on the life of the former aide-de-camp to Frederick the Great, King of Prussia, who became instructor general of the Continental Army.

Although these papers have been in the possession of the society for more than sixty years, their existence in the library has not been generally known except among students. Interest in them now chiefly centres in connection with the question, recently raised following Governor Roosevelt's proposal to convert the grave of the Baron into a State memorial, whether correct usage should preserve the "von" as a part of the General's name.

Investigation of these letters and documents yesterday disclosed the almost exclusive use of "de Steuben," both in the will of the distinguished Prussian and in the many letters to him from Washington, Jefferson and others of Revolutionary War note, as well as in the General's own signature.

In the interest of historical accuracy and since New York law has long held that a man's name is spelled the way he chooses to spell it, considerable discussion, it is believed, will be raised regarding the use of the General's name, either with the "von" or the "de," before plans for the memorial are completed. Some believe that the "von" should be preserved, others that his name should be carved with the "de" and still others that only the name Steuben be used.

Both Forms Used, Says Society Head.

T. H. Hoffman, acting chairman of the Steuben Society of America, national council, of 369 Lexington Avenue, said he was heartily in favor of Governor Roosevelt's proposed bill to convert the lonely grave of the General, located on a farm near the city of Utica, N. Y., into a State memorial.

"The grave ought to be a national shrine," he said.

As to the use of "von" or "de" as a part of the General's name, Mr. Hoffman said that French was a diplomatic language of those days, and as the General spoke and wrote French it was quite natural that he should use the "de." He signed his papers both ways, Mr. Hoffman said.

The General's will, yellowed with age though perfect in form, is dated New York, Feb. 12, 1794. It begins, "I, Frederick William Baron de Steuben of the city and State of New York, do make this my last will and testament."

On the back of the will William H. Robinson of New York, merchant, declares before Peter Ogilvie, Judge of the court of probates of the State of New York, that he "did see Frederick William Baron de Steuben sign and seal the will and that at the time the said Frederick William Baron de Steuben was of sound mind."

A letter from Frederick Augustus Muhlenberg, Speaker of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania, dated March 21, 1783, is addressed to "Major General the Baron de Steuben."

Washington's Signature Ripped Off.

The use of "de" as a part of the General's name stands out conspicuously in the entire collection of the Historical Society, which includes fourteen folio volumes of letters and papers and two boxes of miscellaneous manuscripts. One volume is entitled "Thoughts on a National Militia," and written in French and English, together with answers to questions as to formation of militia of Switzerland.

The signature of General Washington has been clipped from one of the commander's letters, sent from his headquarters at Newburgh, N. Y., in which he addresses the German Major General as "Dear Baron."

According to Alexander J. Wall, librarian, this mutilation was done before the paper came into the possession of the society, which was organized five years after General Washington's death.

In his will Major Gen. von Steuben expressly excluded his relatives in Europe from participation in his estate, which was mainly divided between his friends and former aide-de-camps, Benjamin Walker and William North, whom he considered his adopted sons.

To his servants' legacies, a year's wages to each of them, in addition to his wearing apparel to his valet de chambre, were attached the following conditions:

"That on my decease they do not permit any person to touch my body, not even to change the shirt in which I shall die, but that they wrap me up in my old military cloak and in twenty-four hours after my decease bury me in such spot as I shall before my decease point out to them and that they never acquaint any person with the place where I shall be buried."

Baron Lived in Log Cabin.

There is no indication, according to a recent biographer of the Major General, that this clause of his will was carried out, as he had not, at the time of his death, on Nov. 28, 1794, definitely selected his place of burial. However, he seems to have intimated that he wished to be buried under a certain hemlock in a retired spot on his estate.

Governor Roosevelt, in instituting the move for a State memorial, expressed the hope that the Legislature would take action to purchase the entire Steuben farm, in which Baron von Steuben is buried, the site of the grave being marked by a massive monument erected sixty years ago.

The original grant, owned by the Historical Society, for 16,000 acres, is dated June 27, 1786, and bears the signature of the then Governor of New York, George Clinton, and attached thereto is the huge State seal. The original plan of the farm, with farmland, nursery, garden, dwellings and stables, is also among the society's collection.

The Baron is said to have taken great pride in his estate, where he lived in a log cabin. Day-by-day entries are shown in his farm journal, written in French, during 1790. One entry shows he raised five acres of potatoes, with a profit accruing of $125. In another entry, his farm products brought $1,300, from which he subtracted expenses of $846, realizing a profit of $454.

Old Mural Memorial Mutilated.

On March 3, 1857, Benson J. Lossing, the historian, wrote to the Historical Society, and his letter is on file in the archives, that he had found the mural monument erected in the old German Church in Nassau Street, this city, to the memory of "Major General the Baron de Steuben," by his aide-de-camp, the late General William North, in a small lumber room in the German Church in Forsythe Street in "separate pieces, mutilated and disfigured." He had gone to the church, he wrote, for the purpose of making a sketch of the monument for use in his "Field Book of the Revolution."

"I was surprised and mortified to find this memento of one so much the friend and real benefactor of America not only denied a place upon the walls of the church but suffered to be neglected and ruined among the rubbish of a lumber room," he wrote.

He then suggested that the mural monument be placed in custody of the Historical Society.

This mural monument to the memory of Major Gen. von Steuben has occupied a prominent place on the wall of the vestibule at the German Evangelical Reformed Church, in East Sixty-eighth Street, between First and Second Avenues, since 1897. Apparently it was placed upon the wall of the old church in Forsythe Street after the historian wrote to the Historical Society of its alleged neglect.

Both "Von" and "De" Missing.

It is decorated every year on May 30 by the Steuben Society of America. On this the General's name appears without the "von." He was chairman of the finance committee of the church when it was located in Nassau Street, and, according to the present pastor, the Rev. Julius Jaeger, his name appears in the minutes of the church at that time without "von" or "de."

This church, known to the public as the Steuben Church, will celebrate its 172d anniversary next Thursday. It was incorporated in Nassau Street in 1758, where it remained for sixty-six years. It was located in Forsythe Street for thirty-six years and afterward in Norfolk Street, also for thirty-six years.

NEW FOSSILS FOUND IN DINOSAUR CANYON

Continued from Page 1, Column 3.

History. The remnants of the rabbit-sized reptile are also in Mr. Brown's laboratory, where they are now being assembled. According to Mr. Brown, the little reptile lived eras before the dinosaurs.

A number of skeletons of prehistoric creatures were found in what Mr. Brown described as "haystacks," or soft-surface rocks of the Triassic Age, which form the base of the Painted Desert cliffs. In the base of one of these "haystacks" was found the vertebrae, the limb bones and various sections of a large phytosaurus, an alligator-like reptile about thirty feet long, judging from the size of the limb bones.

Fragments, including a skull of a labyrinthodont, were also found in this prehistorically fertile area. Remains of these beasts have been found previously in Texas, in Karroo, South Africa, and in Siberia. They were from four to ten feet long with flat heads.

The dinosaur tracks, however, were regarded as the greatest of the finds. From the footprints, scientists have established that four different types of the ungainly long-necked reptile roamed the region when it was the clay shore of a long-vanished lake.

Other Finds Made in Utah.

After covering the ground in the Painted Desert, Mr. Brown and other members of his party proceeded to Utah for further exploration. In December their efforts were rewarded by the discovery of two skeletons. Sixteen miles from Green River, near the Colorado border, they came across the remains of a big brontosaurus. It was petrified and surrounded by hard rock, and it would take a month, Mr. Brown told me, to extract the skeleton from the rock. Consequently, it was decided to leave it there for the present.

The second discovery in Utah was even more important. It turned out to be a hitherto unknown and unnamed beast, some twenty-five to thirty feet long. It is a new type of allosaurus, a flesh eater, judging from the hollow bones. This huge beast was from eight to nine feet tall and presented a most formidable and awe-inspiring appearance.

Last June another expedition, of which Mr. Brown was also a member, found two other fossil skeletons in Utah, not far from where the brontosaurus and allosaurus were found in December.

Of the research work in Arizona Mr. Brown wrote:

"The day after we discovered the young reptile friend who is as yet unnamed we came upon a skull of a rare labyrinthodont. The skull is about 10 by 12 inches and its owner is undoubtedly of the triassic age, living long before the dinosaur and eking out his existence in this locality at least 120,000,000 years ago. We have found tracks of this fellow at various places in the world, but I believe only one other skeleton was ever discovered and that one by Dr. Case of Michigan University when he excavated a mound of this same nature in Texas.

"Findings of this kind have always been removed with the approval and cooperation of the governments or jurisdictions involved for two reasons that seem to me self-evident: First, when they are uncovered they would rapidly disintegrate in the weather or be carried away by curiosity hunters or touist vandals; and, secondly, their careful study in scientific laboratories by men skilled in this research has already built up all we know of the true history of that dim past and has helped to make clear the ages of our earth's story. Such study has helped all branches of science to fit together the jigsaw puzzle of the earth's development and formed the reasonably clear picture we have today.

"I am also very much pleased with the discoveries in lower Utah where two complete, or nearly complete, dinosaur skeletons have been discovered. Those who have seen the great brontosaurus skeleton sixty feet long in Dinosaur Hall of the American Museum will understand my interest in these new finds. It is too early as yet to measure their full length accurately, but they will be among the big fellows and the largest creatures that ever lived. It will take some time to fully excavate them, but I hope to have them ready for erection in the new Hall of Reptiles now under construction in New York."

WARNS CITIES OF PERIL IN BUSINESS RIVALRY

Editor in Radio Talk Says Strife to Attract Factories May Have Serious Results.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Estimating that American cities are spending annually $10,000,000 to attract new industries, Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business, in a radio address here tonight, sounded a warning that if the strife between cities was permitted to run wild it might lead to serious difficulties.

Mr. Thorpe urged that an industrial survey of each city be made before a campaign for new industries is undertaken. He pointed out that in some cities such emphasis is now being put up on the acquisition of new industries as "to become almost an obsession."

"The strife between our cities that leads to the demand for more and more factories is a fact of which we must take account," he said. "If wisely directed, if guided into safe channels, it should make us a stronger nation. If permitted to run wild it may lead us into serious difficulty."

PREFER GIRLS FOR ADOPTION

More Foster Parents Ask for Them, but There Are More Boys.

Girls are preferred to boys by couples seeking foster children but more boys are adopted because more of them are available, it is indicated in the annual report, made public yesterday, of the Child Placing Agency of the State Charities Aid Association. During the thirty years that the agency has been operating, the report said, it has received 8,000 requests for girls out of 13,000 applications, those for boys numbering a little more than half as many. Only 700 applications stated no preference.

Of the children finally placed, however, 2,260 were boys and 2,141 were girls. Girls were fewer, it was explained, because in the cases of family break-ups investigated by the agency it was found that they more often found shelter in the homes of relatives.

Young children lead in adoption statistics, only 813 of the 4,401 children placed by the agency having been over 10 years old. Seventeen hundred and eighty-four were between 2 and 10 years of age and 1,804 were infants.

FRATERNITIES AID CORNELL HOUSING

Psi Upsilon and Sigma Phi Offer to Build Units in Dormitory System.

COST IS PUT AT $400,000

Organizations Recently Gave Up Houses to Make Way for New Law School.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 15.—Psi Upsilon and Sigma Phi Fraternities, which recently surrendered leaseholds to Cornell University, have offered to build two integral units in the men's dormitory system to replace the houses which they gave up in order to permit the construction on the land of a new school for the college of law.

This proposal was made with the understanding that the buildings, when constructed at a cost of not less than $400,000, will be presented clear of debt, and they will match the architectural plan of the university dormitories.

The offer was made through Charles H. Blair of Psi Upsilon and Floyd W. Mundy of Sigma Phi, both of New York City.

According to the 1929 Cornell class book, there are sixty-four national and local men's fraternities at Cornell. At the beginning of the university in 1868 President Andrew D. White encouraged the growth of fraternities, with the hope that they would develop into social and cultural centres comparable to the residential units of Oxford and Cambridge.

Old Leases Are Recaptured.

A number of them received sites on the expansive campus of the university under nominal leases. The rapid expansion and physical growth of Cornell in the last decade has made it necessary to recapture some of the early leases and as a result several of the older fraternities have been compensated for their properties and have turned over their grounds to the university. Among them were Psi Upsilon and Sigma Phi, whose houses make way for Myron Taylor Hall, the new law school building, which will soon be erected as a result of the $1,500,000 gift of Myron Taylor, '94, chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation.

This and other building projects have opened up the whole question of the housing of the men students of the university. The original homestead of Ezra Cornell was bought from his heirs some years ago for development of a men's dormitory group. The late George C. Boldt of New York City, was the prime mover in developing this dormitory project, which now houses 331 men. The gifts for the first three buildings were made by George F. Baker.

The necessity for displaced fraternities to build houses far removed from the campus has tended toward a decentralization of student activities to the point where alumni of the various fraternities have been giving serious consideration to some plan which will bring about greater unity among all the men students.

To Bring Students Together.

The proposal to build two fraternity units in the regular dormitory group, moreover, is regarded by the proponents of the idea as a logical step in bringing about closer relations between fraternity men and non-fraternity men, as well as bringing the fraternity men back into the university picture.

The letter containing the proposal of the two fraternities says the fraternities were influenced, among others, by the following factors:

"A belief that organized housing of all men students at Cornell—fraternity and non-fraternity—is an ideal toward which all elements comprising the university body should strive.

"The firm conviction that the above proposal holds possibilities of manifold benefits to the undergraduate members of those fraternities which now, or eventually may, participate in this plan, by eliminating objections and disadvantages which are inevitable in the present system of detached and widely scattered fraternity units.

"Recognition of the belief widely held among Cornell alumni that it would be contrary to the best future interests of the university to spend the considerable sum mentioned for new buildings designed to endure through the present century, if such buildings must perforce be located at points remote from the university centre, adding nothing whatever to the university plant, lending nothing to its future upbuilding and operating in some respects to the disadvantage of the students by whom they will be occupied, involving for generations of Cornell students yet unborn a daily loss of time, inconvenience and enforced detachment from the student body at large."

CALLS RAIL BRIDGES UNSAFE

Bay State Official Reports on Structures of Defunct Road.

BOSTON, Feb. 15 (AP).—Attorney General Warner reported to the Legislature today that bridges of the defunct New England and Hampden railroad corporations in twelve towns in Central Massachusetts were unsafe and should be demolished. The report was on an investigation ordered by the Legislature.

Because the railroads were defunct, Mr. Warner said he believed the Legislature should determine whether the cost of demolishing the bridges should rest with the communities or the Commonwealth.

Steps toward completion of the New England Railroad, construction on which ceased when the World War broke out, have been made recently by Providence, R. I., and Southbridge industrial and financial leaders. The road would run from Providence to Palmer, connecting there with the Central Vermont Railroad.

M. I. T. GETS WEATHER FROM ITS OWN BUREAU

Professor in Charge Studies Effects of Different Air Currents on Human Life.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 15.—Students at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology now have their own weather bureau which brings them the real news on weather changes every day. No more guesswork for the students when making plans for a week-end—just ask the weather man.

The official forecasts of the office for the use of the school are made up each morning about 11 o'clock and posted on the bulletin board. They apply only to the territory directly around Boston.

The weather bureau at the institute is something entirely new for schools. All of the standard equipment to be found in the large government stations is in use by the students, and in addition Professor C. G. Rossby, in charge of the work, is interested in meteorological research as yet untouched by the large stations.

Each day a weather map is plotted showing the wind currents and storm centres. By computing the change in these air currents the weather for thirty-six hours is forecast. Readings come in twice a day from every station in this country and Canada as well as from points as far away as Greenland.

The Tech station has two radios in its equipment, one short-wave length for getting the reports from Arlington, and another for picking up weather conditions at sea.

A new plan is being worked out at the school for determining where the air around Boston comes from, that is, whether it started around Mexico, in the Gulf of Mexico, from the Pacific or possibly from the North Pole. Professor Rossby says that the air is distinctly different from each region and is now studying the changes and their effect upon the daily lives of the American people.

AUCTION AT WAREHOUSE OF Day & Meyer-Murray & Young, Inc.
SECOND AVE. AT 61st ST.
TUESDAY the 18th
WEDNESDAY the 19th
AT 2 P. M. EACH DAY
A COLLECTION OF PROVINCIAL FURNITURE TAPESTRIES, PAINTINGS and BRIC-A-BRAC
Assembled chiefly in the south of France with some pieces from Paris and environs. This collection was sent to New York for private sale. In consequence of changed market conditions it will be sold at Auction.
By order of
ELMER T. EUSTIS, Esq.
Attorney at Law
Representing those at interest in France
ON VIEW MONDAY, Feb. 17th
10 A. M. to 5 P. M.
Sales Conducted by Mr. E. H. L. Thompson

THE BOOK you need to help you study 5 languages—English, French, Spanish, German, Italian (five-in-one), containing 5,000 words attractively arranged. Price only $1.50. Limited supply; order yours today. Universal Institute (D.4), 1265 Lexington Ave.

EDUCATIONAL BUSINESS.
Eastman-Gaines School
Day and Evening Courses in Secretarial Training, Stenography, Typewriting, Bookkeeping, Accounting and Salesmanship.
Eastman Graduates are Always in Demand
Enroll now. Call, write or phone Harlem 0518.
123rd Street & Lenox Ave. New York City

RESORTS
CHARLESTON, S. C.
FORT SUMTER HOTEL
Overlooking "Battery"—now open W. A. Senna, Mgr.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.
Central Synagogue
55th Street & Lexington Ave.
RABBI JONAH B. WISE
Brotherhood Service
Next Friday Evening, Feb. 21st, at 8:30
GUEST SPEAKER:
RABBI MORRIS LAZARON of Baltimore, will speak on:
"The Religious Attitude Toward Life"
ALL MEN AND WOMEN ARE INVITED!

Ethical Culture.
SOCIETY FOR ETHICAL CULTURE
Central Park West and 64th Street.
11 A. M.—DR. FELIX ADLER
"The GREATNESS of ABRAHAM LINCOLN: IN WHAT DID IT CONSIST?"
8 P. M.—MR. ALFRED W. MARTIN
"SAVONAROLA—THE JEREMIAH OF THE RENAISSANCE."

GENERAL MANAGER for Chain Tea Room-Candy Stores
• This advertisement is addressed to an outstanding chain tea room manager in New York.
• A man who knows this business in every department and can operate the leading chain of tea room-candy-baked goods stores in Chicago along sound established principles.
• You will also have complete charge of opening two large new restaurants in two of the most important locations in the Loop.
• All applications will be treated in strictest confidence. Please state experience and expected salary.
DeMET'S . 312 West Madison St., Chicago

MISS BACON WEDS ANTHONY F. BISGOOD

Ceremony at Home of Her Parents Is Performed by the Rev. John L. Elliott.

RECEPTION AT COLONY CLUB

Bride Wears Her Grandmother's Bridal Gown—Their Wedding Trip to South America.

An international marriage yesterday was that of Miss Elizabeth Mitchell Bacon, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wood Bacon, to Anthony Francis Bisgood, son of Wilfred P. Bisgood of London and of Mrs. E. B. De Rendon of Mexico City, which took place at the home of the bride's parents, 23 West Sixty-seventh Street. Only a small group of near relatives and intimate friends was present at the ceremony, performed by the Rev. John L. Elliott, a classmate of the bride's father.

The bride, who was escorted by her father, wore her grandmother's wedding gown of satin brocaded in a pattern of lilacs and moss roses, mellowed with age to a deep ivory color. It was made of the period of 1870 with bustle and short train and a bertha of antique point lace. Instead of a veil she wore a cap fashioned from her grandmother's point lace handkerchief. Her bouquet was of yellow and white freesia, daisies, lilacs and hyacinths. She wore a pearl pendant, the gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Edith Sedgwick, who was the bride's only attendant, also wore an 1870 period gown of turquoise green faille, with a ruffled train of maize colored chiffon. She carried a bouquet of red African daisies, yellow orchids, iris, freesia and purple anemones.

Dana Lamb of New York was best man for Mr. Bisgood, whose ushers were John Kelly, Philip Davis, John Easton, Thomas Campbell and Herbert Noble Jr., all of this city.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the Colony Club.

Mr. Bisgood and his bride will go to South America on their wedding trip, visiting British Honduras and the Mayan ruins in Guatemala. They will return to New York in April for a short stay before going to London where they will live. The bride comes of distinguished ancestry, numbering Sir Nicholas Bacon and Lord Francis Bacon of England and Samuel Bacon, who settled in Barnstable, Mass., in the middle of the seventeenth century, among her ancestors.

Photo by Boughton.

MRS. ANTHONY FRANCIS BISGOOD,
the Former Miss Elizabeth Mitchell Bacon, a Bride of Yesterday.

Other Weddings

Faesy—Greene.

Miss Margaret Dorothy Greene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Greene of 53 East Sixty-sixth Street and New Canaan, Conn., was married to Robert A. Faesy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Faesy of this city and Zurich, Switzerland, yesterday afternoon at the New York home of her parents. Only members of the two families and a few intimate friends were present at the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. George A. Buttrick, pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a princess gown of ivory-colored satin with a court train and a veil of tulle combined with old Brussels lace which had been worn by her mother on her wedding day. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Lawrence S. Greene, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a costume of primrose yellow silk made with short puffed sleeves and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses. There also were two flower girls, nieces of the bride, Helen M. and D. Lothian Greene, young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Greene Jr.

Ernest Greene Jr. was best man. There were no ushers.

The ceremony was followed by a small reception.

Mr. Faesy and his bride, when they return from their wedding trip, will live in New York. Mr. Faesy's father, until he retired from active business a few years ago, was managing director of the National Bank of Switzerland.

Shaver—Redfield.

The marriage of Miss Florence Adele Redfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Redfield of 619 Avenue C, Brooklyn, to the Rev. Elmer Clifton Shaver of Manhattan took place yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the chapel of the Central Congregational Church, Brooklyn. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, and a reception for the immediate families and a few intimate friends followed in the church parlors.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white moire and a veil of point d'esprit lace held in place with a garland of orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The bridegroom, who is secretary of the Symes Foundation in Manhattan, had Professor Harold Walsh as his best man, and the ushers were Harry B. Redfield, brother of the bride, and Price Shaver, son of the bridegroom.

The Rev. and Mrs. Shaver will make their home in the Bronx on their return from a wedding trip.

Wardell—Wilkins.

Special to The New York Times.

BLOOMFIELD, N. J., Feb. 15.—Miss Margaret Stagg Wilkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Wilkins of 59 Maple Street, was married to J. Russell Wardell of 210 North Sixteenth Street, East Orange, in the First Baptist Church here tonight by the Rev. James A. Monk, the pastor.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was of bridal satin, princess style. The veil was of tulle with a close-fitting cap of interlaced pearls. Her bouquet was of calla lilies.

Miss Helen Balasch of Nutley was maid of honor. She wore yellow satin with slippers to match and a transparent velvet turban. Her bouquet was of tea roses.

The Misses Marguerite Wardell of East Orange, Dorothy Cheshire of Irvington and Daisy Shea of New York and Mrs. Kenneth Wardell of Bloomfield were the bride's other attendants. They were gowned in orchid and chartreuse flat crêpe, and had slippers to match and transparent velvet turbans. Their bouquets were of daffodils and mimosa.

Kenneth Wardell of Bloomfield was his brother's best man. Clarence Stephens, James Baxter, Louis Cook and Roy Dobbs, all of Newark, were ushers.

Bradley—Mead.

GREENWICH, Conn., Feb. 15.—Miss Katherine Lyon Mead, daughter of Elkanah Mead and the late Esther W. Mead, was married to Charlton Thomas Bradley of Greenwich at the home of the bride, 178 Milbank Avenue, this afternoon by the Rev. Dr. Oliver Huckel, pastor of the Second Congregational Church. The Episcopal mariage service was used.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in white satin. Her veil, of tulle, was held in place with real orange blossoms sent by a friend in California. Her bouquet was of calla lilies. There were no attendants.

The house was decorated with palms and forsythia. About fifty guests attended the ceremony and the reception, all being relatives or intimate friends.

Ancestors of the bride settled in Greenwich in 1640. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Bradley of New Bedford, Mass. On his mother's side he is descended from some of the earliest settlers of Cape Cod.

After the wedding trip Mr. Bradley and his bride will reside here.

Campbell—Lees.

Special to The New York Times.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Feb. 15.—At a simple ceremony attended by only their immediate relatives and a few friends, Miss Virginia Lees of Brookline and George Kendall Campbell of New York were married here today in the First Parish Church of Brookline, with the Rev. Abbot Peterson officiating. The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gilbert Lees of Fisher Hill, Brookline, is a graduate of the May School and a member of the Junior League and the Vincent Club. She made her début in the season of 1924-25. Miss Mary Louise Butterfield was her only attendant.

Mr. Campbell, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. French Campbell of New York City, was graduated from Williams College in 1925. He is a member of the Williams Club of New York, the St. Anthony Club and the University Club of Boston. French Campbell Jr. of Chattanooga, Tenn., was his brother's best man.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will reside temporarily in Pittsburgh, Pa.

A Daughter to Mrs. Douglas Gibbs.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Gibbs of 829 Park Avenue yesterday in the Le Roy Sanitarium. Mrs. Gibbs is the former Miss Lillian Hartigan of London.

ROSE SHEEHAN WED TO KENNETH F. SHEA

City Officials Guests at Bridal of Daughter of Corporation Counsel's Aid.

LARGE RECEPTION FOLLOWS

J. W. Hilly Represents the Mayor at Ceremony and the Subsequent Festivities.

Prominent city officials and their wives were present at the marriage of Miss Rose Cecelia Sheehan, daughter of Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph J. Sheehan and Mrs. Sheehan, to Kenneth F. Shea, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Shea of New London, Conn., yesterday morning in the Church of St. Alphonsus, 312 West Broadway. The Rev. Andrew B. Kuhn, the rector, performed the ceremony, and also was the celebrant of the nuptial mass that followed. The Rev. Francis Funk was deacon and the Rev. Lawrence Meighan subdeacon.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of ivory colored satin, made with a long court train, over which her tull veil fell from a cap of old-point lace. Similar lace edged the veil. The bridal bouquet was a sheaf of calla lillies.

Miss Helen Dorothy Sheehan was maid of honor for her sister. She wore a gown of pink chiffon, with a felt hat of the same shade, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Miss Charlotte Nugent and Miss Grace Cusack, a cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids. Their frocks were of lace in a lighter shade of pink, with which they wore old-fashioned bonnets. They carried Colonial bouquets of moss rosebuds and forget-me-nots.

Joseph F. Sheehan was best man. Though of the same name as the bride's family, he is not related. The ushers were William A. J. Sheehan, brother of the bride; Arthur Grimes and Henry McCabe of Providence, R. I., and Ralph Bingham of New London.

The ceremony was followed by a large reception and a breakfast at the Knights of Columbus Hotel, Fifty-first Street and Eighth Avenue. Among the guests were Corporation Counsel Arthur J. W. Hilly and Mrs. Hilly, the former representing Mayor Walker, who is in Florida; City Clerk Daniel E. Finn and Mrs. Finn, Deputy Fire Chief Joseph Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Bailey of Hartford, Conn., brother-in-law and sister of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Reilly of New London. Others were:

Miss Eleanor Farley, Edward Halligan, Charles Horowitz, William V. Larkin, Edward Martin, Miss Frances B. Martin, the Rev. John J. Hickey, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. Finn Jr., Mrs. Edward Foley, Miss Virginia Foley, Edward Foley, James Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. McCoy, Elmer F. Quinn, Miss Mary Shea, Miss Anna Whelan, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Sheehan, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy F. Sheehan, Miss Mary Sullivan, Mrs. Ralph Bingham, Mr. and Mrs. James J. F. Collins, Mrs. Daniel Curran, Miss Helen Curran, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Cusack, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Daly, Mrs. Arthur Grimes, J. Fairfax McLaughlin, Edward F. Joyce, Joseph T. Flynn and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jacobs.

Mr. Shea and his bride started South on their wedding trip. They will live in Jackson Heights.

RUTGERS AWAITS 'PROM.'

Many Social Events Are Being Planned for Week End.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 15.—Rutgers University's chief social function, the Junior Promenade, will take place next Friday night. For the first time in twenty-five years the dance will be held off campus because the Ballantine gymnasium was destroyed by fire last month. The Masonic Hall in Highland Park will be used.

The guests will be entertained at a basketball game on Saturday afternoon and at house parties of the twenty-one fraternities on the campus Saturday night. Rutgers will meet the Franklin and Marshall basketball team. A swimming meet with Fordham has been canceled because Rutgers lost her swimming pool in the gymnasium fire.

Edward H. Heyd of Plainfield is chairman of the promenade. The subchairmen are E. Hampton Decker of Rutherford, Max Krafchik of New Brunswick, C. Russell Kramer of Newark, George H. Guiler of Roslyn Heights, L. I., and William D. Siddons of Atlantic City.

AIDS DESTITUTE IN FRANCE.

New York Auxiliary of McAll Association Plans Benefit.

The New York Auxiliary of the American McAll Association will benefit from the Feb. 24 performance of "The First Mrs. Fraser" at the Playhouse. This organization cares for destitute families in France, with the assistance of auxiliaries in several countries.

Among those who have taken seats are Mrs. John Henry Hammond, Mrs. Henry F. Boardman, Mrs. Thatcher M. Brown, Mrs. James C. Colgate, Mrs. Henry R. Elliot, Mrs. William Jay Schieffelin, Mrs. Antoine P. Voislawsky, Mrs. Anderson Fowler, Mrs. Charles Lowrie, Mrs. William T. Ritch, Mrs. William J. Thompson, Mrs. John T. Terry Jr., Mrs. Lucius H. Bigelow, Mrs. William M. Crane, Mrs. Seth Bingham, Mrs. John S. Kennedy, Mrs. John L. Davis, Mrs. Charles Douglass, Mrs. O. F. Zollikoffer, Mrs. Theron Rockwell, Miss Grace Scoville, Miss Elizabeth Gregory, Miss Alice M. Davison, Miss Emily Fowler and Gilbert Colgate.

G. E. CORCORANS ENTERTAIN

Give a Dinner and Musicale at Their Park Avenue Home.

Mr. and Mrs. George Eustis Corcoran gave a dinner last night at their home at 1,001 Park Avenue. Additional guests came in after dinner for a musicale given by amateurs. The program included numbers by the hostess and Avery Claflin for two pianos and songs by Mrs. Gustave J. S. White.

The dinner guests included Mr. and Mrs. Francis Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. John De Witt Peltz, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hadley, Mr. and Mrs. Allyn Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Hewitt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Guggenheimer, Mrs. Herbert Townsend, Miss Pauline Robinson, Miss Susan Street, Miss Ethel Cave-Cole, Lawrence Smith Butler, George Morris Eustis, Felix Rosen and Henry Godfrey.

A Son to Mrs. William F. S. Hart.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. William F. S. Hart of 277 Park Avenue and Belle Haven, L. I., yesterday at the Sloane Hospital. Mrs. Hart is the former Miss Kathleen O'Donnell Blackwell of Detroit, Mich.

Notes of Social Activities in New York and Elsewhere

NEW YORK.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. De Witt Clinton Falls will give a dinner tonight at Mayfair House.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar T. Appleby gave a small reception and dance yesterday afternoon at their home at 13 East Seventy-fifth Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Melville Hall, with their daughter, Miss Eleanor May Hall, have gone to Miami Beach to join their son, H. Lawrence Hall, at the Flamingo Hotel. Later they will go to Palm Beach before returning to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Seth E. Thomas of the Berkshire sailed on the Caledonia for the West Indies cruise.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Wendell Woodward of Chestnut Hill, Pa., are at the Ambassador.

Giuseppe Catalani, Second Counselor of the Italian Embassy, is at the Ritz-Carlton.

Richard Stevens, who had been at the St. Regis with his mother, Mrs. Richard Stevens, sailed yesterday for Bermuda, to remain for several weeks.

Mrs. W. Roscoe Bonsal Jr., has come from Charlotte, N. C., to the Vanderbilt.

Mr. and Mrs. William Leon Graves have left the Madison for Palm Beach to join Colonel and Mrs. William Hayward.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Anderson Goman have returned to 636 Fifth Avenue after passing several weeks in Florida and Havana.

Mrs. Marion Eppley, who was at the Ambassador for a brief stay, has returned to Newport.

Daniel Cohalan gave a luncheon yesterday at the Park Lane for Miss Margaret Dittmar and his son, Conn Cohalan, whose engagement has been announced.

WESTCHESTER.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Dill and Mr. and Mrs. Francis C. Hawkins of Bronxville jointly entertained last night with a large dinner dance at the Bronxville Field Club. Among those who entertained before the event were Mrs. Edward Bartlett, Mrs. Russell McCandless, Mrs. Merle Sebring and Mrs. Richard E. Burdett.

The annual children's party was held yesterday at the Bronxville Field Club. It was a St. Valentine's party and the children were in costumes. A marionette show and special entertainment were given. Mrs. Howard M. Erskine was chairman.

Mrs. George Schumann of Bronxville entertained with a large St. Valentine's luncheon and bridge party at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Knoepke of Mount Vernon gave a dance last night at their home.

Among those who entertained at luncheon at the ladies' day of the Pelham Country Club were Mrs. Edward T. Williams, Mrs. H. D. Wright and Mrs. Herbert T. Elliott.

The Luther League of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church of New Rochelle presented "The Gossipy Sex," a farce, at the Woman's Club.

The second of the subscription dances to be given this year in Pelham under the chairmanship of Mrs. Albert B. Baker will be held on March 7 at the Pelham Country Club. Many dinners will precede the event.

The annual Valentine bridge party for the benefit of the Colburn Memorial Home was sponsored by the woman's auxiliary of the home at the New Rochelle Woman's Club.

The Castle Guild of the College of New Rochelle will give a musicale tomorrow afternoon in Brescia Hall.

Mrs. Charles Reisig of Larchmont gave a bridge party at her home for the benefit of the relief committee of the Larchmont-Mamaroneck Humane Society.

The junior section of the Larchmont Woman's Club held a bridge party yesterday at the Bonnie Briar Club, Larchmont.

The annual card party of the Catholic Big Sisters of Yonkers was held last night at the Community Club.

The Beechwood Players of Scarborough will present as their next offering a mystery play, "The After Cabin" by Raymond Briggs, at the Beechwood Theatre on the Frank A. Vanderlip estate, Scarborough, on Feb. 26, 27 and 28 and March 1.

A Valentine dance was held last night at the Scarsdale Woman's Club. Among those who entertained at dinner before the dance were Mrs. Charles Harris, Mrs. Lester Stewart, Mrs. Laird Archer, Mrs. E. L. Strickland, Mrs. Paul Illman, Mrs. Donald Underhill and Mrs. Henry Eckhardt.

The Scarsdale Golf Club will hold a Washington's Birthday dance Saturday at the clubhouse.

A St. Valentine's dinner dance was held last night at the Westchester Country Club, Rye.

LONG ISLAND.

Mr. and Mrs. Lenox Decker of Locust Valley will entertain on Tuesday evening with a theatre party at the Fox-Cove, at Glencove, at a benefit performance of the Martha Lane dancers.

Mrs. H. E. Smith of Port Washington is in charge of arrangements for a large benefit bridge to be given on Wednesday afternoon, under the auspices of the Woman's Guild of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Lange of Seacliff will give a dinner this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Maidment of Seacliff entertained last night with a dinner and bridge to mark their wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon J. Deming of Oyster Bay entertained with a dinner.

Mrs. Alexander Brown of Garden City will be hostess tomorrow to the philanthropic committee of the Woman's Club.

Mrs. Richard Warren of Amityville will entertain tomorrow with a tea the Eastern Star Circle of the village.

Mrs. William Lockwood of Valley Stream will give a bridge and supper on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Frederick Hiterich, president of the Guild of All Saints Mission in Baldwin Harbor, is in charge of plans for a large charity bridge and tea in the parish house on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. William Taft of Baldwin was hostess at a tea following a meeting of the Woman's Advance Club. Mrs. Stuart Close of New York was the guest of honor and speaker.

The choir of St. Thomas Church gave a charity dance last night in the Bellerose Club.

Mrs. George Struck, Mrs. Earl Graham and Mrs. Charles Hoops will entertain with a supper tomorrow evening following a meeting of the Woman's Gymnasium Club of Seacliff.

CONNECTICUT.

Mrs. George Quackenbush of Greenwich and New York and her débutante daughter, Miss Ruth, gave a dinner dance last evening at the Embassy Club, New York, in honor of Miss Mary Louise Hatch of Southport.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley M. Morris of Bridgeport entertained at a dinner and keno party last night at the Brooklawn Country Club.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Dolan of Stamford entertained last evening at a supper and card party.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus P. Thorne of Bridgeport were dinner hosts at their home last evening.

The Connecticut College for Women alumnae week-end to be held next Friday to Sunday will include a Washington birthday party, a performance of "Pinafore" by the glee club and tea with President Katharine Blunt.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lafond entertained at bridge at their home in Stamford last evening.

WASHINGTON.

Mrs. Grosvenor H. Backus of New York, who is spending the Winter in Washington, entertained a company at luncheon yesterday at the National Woman's Country Club, on Bradley Boulevard.

Ground is being measured off for the club's golf course and the swimming pools—one for grown-ups and one for the children of the members—are being laid out.

Among new members of the club are Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss Sr., Mrs. Harry Hamlin, Mrs. John Strongman and Mrs. Elon St. Clair Hebbs of New York and Mrs. Carroll Dunham 3d of Cedarhurst, L. I.

Saturday night dinner dances will be inaugurated next week.

NEWPORT.

More than 200 guests attended last night the annual sixth form or senior class midwinter dance in the gymnasium of St. George's School. It was the second dance of the day, for late in the afternoon, following a swimming meet between the school team and that of Moses Brown of Providence, there was a tea and dance in the school library.

Several additional guests arrived yesterday, including Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Dean of Brookline, Mrs. Roger Conant of Boston, Archibald G. Thomson and Miss Frederica Gallatin of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Jones, Miss Elinor Jones, Miss Anne Petterson, Miss Priscilla Bennett, Mrs. H. B. Duane, Miss Anna Decormis, Mrs. John F. Ducey, Miss Nathalie Appleton, Mrs. John F. Lawrence and Miss Caroline Hunnewell of Boston; Misses Mary Waller, Gladys Graham and Edith Sterling of New York; Mr. and Mrs. A. Ware of Briar Cliff Manor, Misses Polly Taylor and Elinor Carson of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Richardson, Miss Anne Richardson, Miss A. Collins and Mrs. W. T. Aldrich of Brookline, Mass., at the La Forge.

At the Viking are Mrs. F. Allerton Read Jr. of Albany, Miss Carol King and Miss Anne Agee of New York, Mrs. Andrew J. Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hunt of Boston, Mrs. George W. Ewing, Miss Peggy Ewing, Miss Helen Orrick of Baltimore and W. F. Thornton of Haverford, Pa.

PINEHURST.

Arrivals at the Carolina Hotel include George N. Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Forbes, Fred J. Ryan, Harry G. Bragg, George H. Betts, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Truesdell, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Moore, Mrs. Oliver Cromwell, Mrs. W. W. Benjamin, Mrs. John W. Hubert and Mrs. Ralph Walker of New York; N. O. Rockwood of Poughkeepsie, Fred J. Potter and Fred R. Amherst of New Brunswick, N. J.; Joseph M. Perrine and A. E. Jellene of New York, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bossong of Douglaston, L. I., and Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Harvison of Plainfield, N. J.

On the bridle trains were seen Mrs C. H. Smith, Miss Betsy Betts and Miss Bertie L. Alden of New York, Mrs. Richard S. Tufts of Pinehurst, formerly of Glen Cove, L. I.

Mrs. O. Max Gardner and Mrs. E. L. Bland of Raleigh, N. C., arrived by motor today to join Governor Gardner and Mr. Bland at the Carolina Hotel.

Mrs. Martha MacCrane of New York has leased the Markey House at Knollwood.

AIKEN.

A valentine party was given for the guests at the Highland Park Hotel Friday evening by the management. Following the dinner, at which all of the guests were at one large table, bridge was played. Prizes were won at cards by Mrs. John H. McCormick of Albany and Mrs. Edward Thompson of Freeport, N. Y.

F. J. Wetmore of Freeport, N. Y., has joined Mrs. Wetmore at the Highland Park.

Arrivals at the Willcox Inn yesterday included Mr. and Mrs. Alan Corey, Miss Carolyn Corey and Alan Corey Jr. of New York.

Miss Jean Olcott of New York was luncheon hostess at the Willcox yesterday.

Mrs. M. Huhn of New York is a guest of Dr. and Mrs. Ludwig Kast.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Magee of Roslyn, L. I., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Linsley at their home.

BERMUDA.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Riker of New York are occupying their house, Fair Ways, in the Mid Ocean Club colony. Mrs. Amory L. Haskell is their guest.

Mrs. Gould Shaw of New York and her daughter, Miss Penelope Shaw, have gone to the St. George Hotel for the remainder of the Winter.

Mrs. Charles Melville Bull of New York has returned home after a visit at Inglewood.

Gilbert Browne of New York, who has taken Harbor View for the season, and L. A. Williams have sailed for a short trip.

ELIZABETH DUBLIN ENGAGED TO MARRY

Research Worker at Columbia to Wed George Marshall, Son of Late Famous Lawyer.

HE IS COLUMBIA GRADUATE

An Editor of Encyclopedia of Social Sciences—His Fiancee Is Doctor's Daughter.

Dr. and Mrs. Louis I. Dublin of 418 Central Park West have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Dublin, to George Marshall of 47 East Seventy-second Street, a son of the late Louis Marshall, famous American lawyer, statesman and philanthropist, and the late Mrs. Marshall.

Miss Dublin was graduated from Barnard College in 1929 and is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa. She is now doing research work in social science at Columbia University.

Mr. Marshall's father was pre-eminent as a leader and champion of the Jewish race and as a lawyer was famous particularly with cases involving constitutional questions. He was president of the American Jewish Committee, chairman of the New York State Immigration Commission of 1908, president of Temple Emanu-El, chairman of the board of directors of the Executive Committee of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, founder of the Jewish Protectory and Aid Society, director of the Educational Alliance, Dropsie College, Philadelphia, and a member of the Council of Jewish Communal Institutions. He was a Doctor of Hebrew Laws in the Hebrew Union College of Cincinnati and a trustee of Syracuse University. For more than twenty years he was president of the New York State College of Forestry. He belonged also to many famous law institutions and societies of the country. His death last September brought tributes from the President and from many persons prominent in politics, diplomacy, law and letters throughout the country.

George Marshall's mother, who died in 1916, was the former Miss Frances Lowenstein of New York. Mr. Marshall has one sister, Mrs. Jacob Billikopf of Philadelphia, and two brothers, James and Robert.

Mr. Marshall was graduated from Columbia University in 1926 and later from the Brookings Institute of Economics in Washington, D. C. He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa and is doing editorial work on the Enclyopedia of Social Sciences.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Other Engagements

Borden—McCabe.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francis Scott of this city and Lakeville, Conn., have announced the engagement of Mrs. Scott's daughter, Miss Mary Lee Borden, to Frank Wells McCabe of Albany, N. Y. Miss Borden is the daughter of the late Louis Lambert Borden. She attended the Convent of the Sacred Heart, Kenwood, Albany; the Cours Superior du Sacre Coeur in Brussels, and was graduated from Manhattanville College last June. She is a sister of Lambert Lee Borden, who on February 28 will marry Miss Florence Richardson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Harper Richardson of Pittsfield, Mass. Miss Borden will be maid of honor and Mr. McCabe will be an usher.

Mr. McCabe is the son of Ambrose F. McCabe of this city and White Plains and the late Mrs. McCabe, who was Miss Pauline Crosby Wells of Brewster, N. Y. Mr. McCabe prepared at Taft School for Yale, from which he was graduated with the class of '25. Later he took a post-graduate course at Oxford. He is now with the National Commercial Bank and Trust Company in Albany.

Bache—Hoffman.

Mr. and Mrs. John Samuel Cranston of 653 Chestnut Street, Waban, Mass., have announced to their friends here the engagement of Mrs. Cranston's daughter, Miss Priscilla Bache, to Charles Gouverneur Hoffman, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. V. Hoffman of this city and Tuxedo Park, N. Y.

Mr. Hoffman is a grandson of the late Rev. Dr. Charles Hoffman who for many years was rector of All Angels' Church, and of the late Rev. Dr. Charles A. Stoddard, a prominent Presbyterian clergyman of this city. He was graduated from Harvard with the Class of '13 and later took a special course in philosophy at Oxford University. During the World War he served in the United States Flying Corps. Mr. Hoffman's marriage to the former Miss Lydia Vosburgh ended in divorce.

Hitch—Sanford.

At a bridge and tea given yesterday afternoon at Rivermere, Bronxville, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Hitch announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sarah Elizabeth Hitch, to Floyd S. Sanford Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd S. Sanford, also of Bronxville.

Miss Hitch was graduated from Miss Madeira's School in Washington last year and is now a student at Sarah Lawrence College. Mr. Sanford went to Columbia University. He is now with the real estate firm of John F. Bottomley of this city.

Fay—Allwork.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Joseph Fay of Forest Hills Gardens, L. I., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Fay, to Ronald Allwork, also of Forest Hills. Miss Fay was graduated from the Kew-Forest School and from Skidmore College, where she received the degree of Bachelor of Science last June.

Mr. Allwork was graduated two years ago from Columbia, where he is now studying architecture. He is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

The wedding will take place in the Spring.

Raymond—Halligan.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Raymond of 31 The Crescent, Montclair, N. J., have announced to their relatives and friends in this city the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Raymond, to Howard Kimball Halligan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Halligan, also of Montclair.

Miss Halligan was graduated from the Kimberley School and from Smith College last year. She was president of the senior class at college and a member of Phi Beta Kappa. Mr. Raymond was graduated from Hotchkiss School and is now a senior at Amherst. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity.

Perkins—MacMaster.

The engagement of Miss Grace Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Warren Perkins of East Orange, to Winthrop A. MacMaster of Amherst, Mass., was announced this afternoon at a bridge tea at the Perkins home.

Miss Perkins was graduated from the Montclair State Normal College and the East Orange High School. Mr. MacMaster was graduated from Union College, Schenectady, with the degree of Bachelor of Science in physics and is a member of Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity.

Huntoon—Coursen.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel White Huntoon of East Orange have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mildred Huntoon, to Herbert Randolph Coursen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Frank Coursen of Newark. The announcement was made this afternoon at a valentine bridge given by Miss Huntoon at her home. The wedding will take place in June.

Sherman—Lester.

Mrs. Herbert A. Sherman of Tintern Hall, Rye, N. Y., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Sherman, to Herbert S. Lester of San Miguel Island, Cal., formerly of New York.

Doerfler—Miles.

Special to The New York Times.

HASTINGS-ON-HUDSON, Feb. 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Doerfler of 18 Elm Place, Minturn Park, announced the engagement of their daughter, Edna Doerfler, to DeWitt C. Miles of Yonkers at a bridge and tea held at their home here this afternoon. No date was announced for the wedding.

Miss Doerfler attended Yonkers High School and later was graduated from Miss Fuller's Ossining School for Girls.

Mr. Miles, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Miles of 223 Roberts Avenue, Yonkers, was graduated from Cornell University in 1923 and the New York University Law School in 1928. He was a member of Phi Kappa Epsilon at Cornell. He is practicing law in Yonkers.

Gauss—Jackson.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 15.—Dean and Mrs. Christian Gauss announced here today the engagement of their eldest daughter, Miss Katherine Gauss, to Andrew Jackson of New York City.

Mr. Jackson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Jackson of Pittsburgh. His father is general attorney for the Westinghouse Electric Company.

Miss Gauss graduated from Smith College in 1924 and is now assistant editor of Charm Magazine. Mr. Jackson graduated from Exeter Academy in 1921, from Princeton University in 1925 and from Harvard Law School in 1928. He is a member of the law firm of Murray, Aldrich & Webb of New York City.

Bolles—Ramus.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Feb. 15.—The engagement of Miss Martha L. Bolles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bolles of 100 Westervelt Avenue, Plainfield, to Charles F. Ramus of Cleveland and Denver was announced last evening at a dinner given in the Cleveland Museum of Art.

Miss Bolles is a graduate of the Connecticut College for Women, class of 1924. Since then she has been associated with the Metropolitan Museum of Art and Newark Museum. She is now teaching in Laurel School in Cleveland, and is an assistant at the Cleveland Museum of Art.

Mr. Ramus is an artist and writer and a member of the educational staff of the museum and curator of primitive art.

Wright—Sharpe.

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Roy V. Wright of East Orange have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy E. Wright, to Henry E. Sharpe of Claremont Avenue, New York. The marriage will take place in the Summer.

Miss Wright was graduated from East Orange High School and Teachers College, Columbia University, and studied a year in Cordon Bleu, in Paris. For two years she was a Professor of Home Economics at Teachers College, Fredericksburg, Va. Mr. Sharpe was graduated from Columbia Law School.

Other Wedding Plans

Nash—Cochran.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Feb. 15.—Plans for the marriage of Miss Elisabeth Nash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bryan Nash of 622 West Eighth Street, to Homer Pierce Cochran, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Cochran of 1,341 Prospect Avenue, were announced today. It will take place on Friday afternoon, March 14, in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church. The Rev. John J. Moment will officiate.

Miss Nash has chosen Miss Katherine Patterson for her maid of honor. Her other attendants will be Miss Katherine Cochran, Miss Helen Fraker, Miss Virginia Rowland and Mrs. Philip W. Nash of Plainfield, Miss Katherine Cast and Miss Theodate Johnson of Cleveland, Mrs. Herbert H. Harwood of New York and Mrs. Richard Churchman of Chestnut Hill, Philadhipia.

Henry J. Cochran Jr. will be his brother's best man and the ushers will be William F. Cochran of Baltimore, William W. Cochran of New York, Edwin S. Reynolds of Boston, S. Roland Morgan of Chestnut Hill, Joseph V. Quarles Jr. of Milwaukee and James F. Laurence, James H. Case Jr. and Philip W. Nash of Plainfield.

A large reception at the Nash residence will follow the ceremony. After the wedding trip the couple will reside here.

Miss Nash graduated from the Hartridge School in 1925 and from Wellesley College last year. She is a member of the Plainfield Junior League.

Mr. Cochran graduated from Hotchkiss School in 1925 and was a member of Princeton, '29. He belongs to the Cap and Gown Club. His father is president of the Bankers Trust Company of New York.

Rochester Man, 23, Ordained in Rome.

ROME, Feb. 15 (AP).—Archbishop Hanna of San Francisco today ordained as a priest his nephew, Clark Hanna, 23 years old, of Rochester, N. Y. The ordination took place at the American College during a mass beginning at 8:30 A. M. Father Hanna's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hanna of Rochester, were present. A special dispensation had to be obtained for the ordination, since Father Hanna had not yet reached the required age for ordination, 24.

Other Society News is printed on preceding page.

ASSEMBLY HELD AT RITZ-CARLTON

Debutantes of Recent Years and Young Couples at Knickerbocker Series Dance.

MANY DINNERS ARE GIVEN

One of the Largest That of Mrs. Horace Green and Her Niece, Miss Martha R. Humphrey.

The second Knickerbocker Assembly for this season, one in a series of dances for débutantes of recent years and young married couples, was held last night in the main ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton. The young women who are subscribers have the privilege of each inviting three young men as guests. The ballroom was decorated with palms and greens. The guests were greeted by members of the committee, on which are Mrs. Thatcher Magoun Brown, Mrs. I. N. Phelps Stokes, Mrs. William Warner Hoppin, Mrs. F. Kingsbury Curtis, Mrs. William Jay Schieffelin, Mrs. Frederick W. Longfellow and Mrs. Adrian V. S. Lambert.

Many dinners were given before the dance, one of the largest being that of Mrs. Horace Green and Miss Martha Rosalie Humphrey, her niece, at the Colony Club. In their party were:

General and Mrs. De Witt Clinton Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. William Curtis Pierce, Mrs. Theodore F. Humphrey, Frederick Stone, the Misses Beartice Chard, Cordelia Gurnee, Lysbet Lefferts, Margaret Johnston, Carola Winter, Janet Williams, Jane Schley, Naomi Douglas, Evelyn Brooks, Louise Laidlaw, Virginia Fain, Frances Chisolm, Joy Dickerman, Virginia Cowperthwaite, Cornelia Curtis and Natalie Peters; Robert Pitney, Roger Coolidge, Hamilton Southworth, Robert Pinkerton, Richard Roeloff Jr., William C. Dickerman Jr., Franz von Arnin, Clifford McAvoy, John Fennelley, Thomas P. Cravin Jr., John C. Jubring 3d, Stockton Colt, Edgar Dunlaevy, Brainerd Whitbeck Jr., John Butler, William Cochran Jr., Charles Frank, George Clothier, Howard Lipson, Brinton Thompson and Clement Henry Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Eliot Curtis gave a dinner for the Misses Gillian Bailey, Mary Minor, Hope Foote and Elizabeth Rounds, Lieutenant John A. Nichols, U. S. A.; Edmund Boynton, David Keiser, Renwick Hurry, John M. French of Boston, Eustace Chapman and André Maximov.

Mrs. Roberts Walker entertained Mr. and Mrs. Edward Richards, the Misses Margaret Kies, Margaret Sparrow and Eunice Smith, Thomas Armstrong, Philippe Hottinguer, J. McCullough Turner, Dr. William T. Gibb Jr., Bennett Lewis, John Cooper, Livingston Longfellow and Irving Jones.

The third and last dance in the series will be held on April 26, at the Ritz-Carlton.

DE MARTINOS ARE HOSTS.

Italian Ambassador and Wife Give Dinner at the Embassy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The Italian Ambassador and Mme. de Martino gave a dinner tonight in the embassy, the following guests being present: The British Ambassador and Lady Isabella Howard, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley, Senator and Mrs. Goff, the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter, the Minister of South Africa and Mme. Louw, Representative and Mrs. Bacon, Representative and Mrs. Beck, Victor Podoski, Chargé d'Affaires for the Polish Government, the Counselor of the Austrian Legation and Mme. Havenschield, Lady Lister Kaye, General Casanavo, attaché at the French Embassy, the Counselor of Swiss Legation and Mme. Lardy, the Counselor of the Spanish Embassy, Don Marino de Amoldo y Galarmendi, Jules Henry, First Secretary of the French Embassy; Michael Wright, Secretary of the British Embassy; William Corcoran Eustis, Princess Margaret Boncompagni-Draper, Miss Helen Patten, Mlle. Rosa Padilla, Mme. Reine Claudel, Mlle. Satrustegni, Conte Marchetti di Muriaglio, Counselor Italian Embassy; Leonardo Vitetti, first secretary Italian Embassy; Nobile Carlo Soardi, secretary Italian Embassy.

An apartment hotel catering to a high class clientele and offering to transient guests an unsurpassed quality of service.

Single room and bath ... or suites for a day or longer.

Mayfair House
610 Park Ave. 65th St. New York
Edward H. Crandall
President

A Dignified Quiet Place of Residence
When in Town Enjoy the Home-Like Surroundings of the Hotel La Salle
30 East 60th St., New York
Charles La Prelle, Manager

2 ROOM APARTMENTS
—that include large living room, large bedroom and foyer, 2 large closets, serving pantry and generous closets. Furnished or unfurnished. Efficient maid service. Restaurant. Be cozy and comfortable. Henry F. Ritchey, Managing Director.
Hotel
Windermere
666 West End Ave.
Corner 92nd Street

C. A. WEYERHAEUSER DIES ON WORLD TOUR

Wealthy Lumberman Stricken on Ship in Indian Ocean on Way East.

HIS ENTERPRISES FAMOUS

Family at One Time Controlled Millions of Acres of Pine Lands in the Northwest.

Special to The New York Times.

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 15.—Charles A. Weyerhaeuser of St. Paul, Minn., widely known in the Pacific Northwest because of his holdings in the various Weyerhaeuser lumbering interests, died on board a ship in the Indian Ocean last night, according to radio dispatches received by relatives here today from Bombay.

Mr. and Mrs. Weyerhaeuser left New York in the middle of January on a world cruise. While in Egypt, Mr. Weyerhaeuser suffered from a sinus infection. Death was due to this.

Relatives here had been informed of his condition daily during the last week by radio.

Mr. Weyerhaeuser was president of the Potlatch Lumber Company of Idaho and of the Pine Tree Lumber Company of Little Falls, Minn., and a director in all of the other Weyerhaeuser concerns.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 15.—Mr. Weyerhaeuser's father, the late Frederick Weyerhaeuser, founded one of the greatest lumber enterprises in the world. The son was in his sixty-fourth year, having been born on April 2, 1866, in Coal Valley, Ill., to which town his father had gone nine years earlier from Rock Island to start his lumber operations.

While the son was a small boy the family returned to Rock Island, where the elder Weyerhaeuser had bought a sawmill in partnership with the late F. C. A. Denkmann. Charles attended school in Rock Island, and later was graduated from Phillips Academy at Andover, Mass.

After leaving the academy Mr. Weyerhaeuser was sent by his father to Little Falls, Minn., where he was made general manager of the Pine Tree Manufacturing Company. He remained there until that concern completed its operations ten years ago, when he moved to St. Paul.

Frederick Weyerhaeuser, who died in 1914, leaving a fortune estimated at $300,000,000, came to this country from Germany in 1852. He was often called the "lumber king," as president of the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company and head of the Weyerhaeuser Syndicate, which controlled millions of acres of timber lands.

CAPTAIN C. H. REYNOLDS.

Member of Army Air Corps Dies After an Auto Accident.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The War Department has been notified from Mount Clemens, Mich., of the death there today of Clearton H. Reynolds of Garden City, L. I., Captain in the Army Air Corps, as the result of an automobile accident. He had been stationed at Selfridge Field, Mich. His age was 42.

Captain Reynolds was born in Provincetown, Mass., on Jan. 29, 1888, and enlisted as a private in the New York National Guard in 1916. He was commissioned a First Lieutenant in the aviation section of the regular army's signal corps on Jan. 25, 1917, and won the Distinguished Service Cross for an act of bravery near Romagne, France, on Oct. 9, 1918, when he "encountered and defeated three enemy air patrols and gathered and delivered to division headquarters very valuable information."

He was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1912 and from the Air Service Field Officers' School in 1921. A widow survives.

ROYAL LANGUIRAND DEAD.

Former Noted Fencer, Who Fought 5 Duels, Was News Merchant.

Funeral services for Royal Languirand of 345 Sixth Avenue, Astoria, were held today. There was a high mass of requiem at the Church of the Precious Blood, Astoria. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery. Mr. Languirand, who was 52 years old, was at one time one of the foremost fencers of the country. Many years ago he won the diamond belt, emblematic of the fencing championship, which was given by Richard K. Fox. For years he toured the country giving fencing exhibitions. His last years were passed as proprietor of a news stand in Astoria.

Mr. Languirand was born in France and studied with the masters at the Barriers Fencing School at Joinville Le Pont, just outside of Paris. He fought five duels. He migrated to Montreal, where he was noted as an amateur fencer. Later he became a professional.

JAMES H. QUINN DIES AT 72.

Was Minnesota Supreme Court Justice for 30 Years.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 15 (AP).—James H. Quinn, former Minnesota Supreme Court Justice and a member of the judiciary for more than thirty years, died here today. He was 72 years old.

Justice Quinn served on the Minnesota Supreme Court from 1917 to 1928, having been re-elected in 1922. Since his admission to the bar in 1885 he had been District Attorney for Martin County, Minn., for five terms and a judge of the Seventeenth Judicial District of the State for twenty years.

John Moloney.

John Moloney, for twenty-four years an engineer of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, Brooklyn, died yesterday at his home, 95-30 Whittier Avenue, Jamaica, of a cerebral hemorrhage. Burial will be in Huntington Cemetery tomorrow after a mass of requiem, at 10 A. M., in St. Pius's Church, 145th Street and Humboldt Boulevard, Jamaica. Mr. Moloney was a Knight of Columbus and a member of the Engineers' Club of New York.

Frank C. Reagan.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 15.—Frank C. Reagan, assistant counsel for the Northern Pacific Railway, former Assistant United States Attorney, past commander of Rannier Noble Post of the American Legian and active in the Democratic party, died today. He was 48 years old.

Other Obituary Notices are printed on Page 26, Section One.

HENRIETTE STRAUSS, CLUBWOMAN, DIES

Ex-Official of City Federation—Pioneer in the Suffrage Movement.

Miss Henriette Strauss, former recording secretary of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, who was associated with Harriot Stanton Blatch and th elate Mary Garret Hay in the fight for woman suffrage, died yesterday at her residence, 19 West Sixty-ninth Street, after an illness of six months. Funeral services will be held in the Riverside Memorial Chapel, Amsterdam Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street, at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

A daughter of the late Captain James Strauss, Civil War veteran, Miss Strauss founded in memory of her father the New York Chapter of the Daughters of the Union. She was also a founder, and the president, of the Women's Thirteen Club, an organization designed to combat ignorant racial teachings and superstitions.

With the late Mrs. A. M. Palmer and Bertha Welby, she was a founder of the Rainy Day Club. She was also an active member of the Woman's City Club, Relief for the Aged, Emanu-El Sisterhood, National Opera Club and the Round Table. Her work for charity was widespread and varied.

Births

BEGEN—To Mr. and Mrs. James P., a son, at the Hunts Point Hospital on Feb. 11.

BENOWITZ—Mrs. and Mrs. Saul (nee Rabinowitz), a son, at Hunts Point Hospital.

BRODY—Mr. and Mrs. A. Brody (nee Ruth C. Brosow) announce the arrival of a son at St. John's Hospital, Long Island City, Feb. 10, the birthday of his uncle, Philip Brosnow.

CALLEJO—Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand, son, Wadsworth Sanitarium, 629 West 185th St.

CIPES—Dr. and Mrs. Bernard J. (nee Ida G. Solow), of Mount Vernon announce the arrival of their second son, Robert Martin, on Feb. 9, at Fitch Sanitarium.

COHEN—Mr. and Mrs. Louis E., of Brooklyn (nee Idora Schwartz), announce the arrival of Phyllis Ann, Feb. 9, at the Brooklyn Jewish Hospital.

DAVIDOFF—Dr. and Mrs. Bernard, of 45-14 48th St., Woodside, announce the birth of a son on Friday, Feb. 14.

DI PALMA—Dr. and Mrs. Salvatore Di Palma of 1,105 Park Av. announce the birth of their son, Feb. 14, 1930, at St. Ann's Maternity Hospital.

ESSIG—Mr. and Mrs. Leon, son, Wadsworth Sanitarium, 629 West 185th St.

FINKELSTEIN—Professor and Mrs. Maurice Finkelstein announce the birth of a son on Friday, Feb. 14, 1930, at the Jewish Hospital, Classon Av., Brooklyn.

GOLDEN—Mr. and Mrs. Martin I. Golden (nee Henrietta Krone), 2,724 University Av., announce the birth of a son, Feb. 12, 1930, at Fitch Sanitarium.

GOTTESMAN—Dr. and Mrs. Meyer Gottesman (nee Sid Jagoda), Valley Stream, announce the birth of a daughter, Suzanne Ruby, Feb. 9, 1930, Jamaica Hospital.

KARSEN—Mr. and Mrs. Louis (nee Lillian Sherman), birth of a daughter, Feb. 12, Mount Morris Park Sanitarium.

KORNSWEET—Mr. and Mrs. Paul, a son, at Hunts Point Hospital, Lafayette Av. and Manida St., Bronx.

LAINOFF—Mr. and Mrs. Sam, announce the birth of a daughter at Jewish Memorial Hospital.

LAVIN—Mr. and Mrs. Tom, Wadsworth Sanitarium, 629 West 185th St.

LIPSCHUTZ—Dr. and Mrs. Ben Lipschutz (Anne Lewis), Bayonne, N. J., announce the arrival of a daughter, Lola Anne, Feb. 11, at the Woman's Hospital.

MARKS—Mr. and Mrs. Jack, announce the birth of a son at Hunts Point Hospital.

PALEY—Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin, son, Jan. 31, Druskin Hospital, 1 West 123d.

RICHARDS—Mr. and Mrs. David, daughter, Feb. 1, Druskin Hospital, 1 West 123d.

ROSEN—Mr. and Mrs. Al, daughter, Feb. 18, Druskin Hospital, 1 West 123d.

ROSENBLATT—Mr. and Mrs. Charles (nee Lena Goldstein) announce daughter, Feb. 15, 1930, Druskin Hospital, 1 West 123d St.

ROTHMAN—Mr. and Mrs. Harold, daughter, Wadsworth Sanitarium, 629 West 185th St.

SCHIFF—Mr. and Mrs. Fred V. (nee Bert Hermelee), 304 West 89th, daughter, Feb. 12, Druskin Hospital.

SCHIFF—Mr. and Mrs. (nee Frida Harkavy), daughter, Feb. 7, Druskin Hospital.

SIMANS—Mr. and Mrs. Harry (nee Lillie Jacobson), 640 71st St., Brooklyn, a son, Feb. 12, Shore Road Hospital.

THORNQUIST—Mr. and Mrs. Nels, announce the birth of a son at Jewish Memorial Hospital.

TRAUNER—Mr. and Mrs. Edward (nee Marion Fatt), announce the birth of a son at Flushing Hospital, Feb. 11.

WAX—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wax (nee Kutler) announce the birth of a daughter, Enid Arline, Sunday, Feb. 9, Woman's Hospital.

WE[illegible]—Mr. and Mrs. Oscar, daughter, Wadsworth Sanitarium, 629 West 185th St.

WIDELITZ—Mr and Mrs. David (nee Edith Hoffman), daughter, Feb. 10, Druskin Hospital.

Confirmations

COHEN—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cohen of Chatsworth Gardens, Larchmont, N. Y., announce the bar mitzvah of their son, George, Saturday, Feb. 22, at Temple Israel, Webster Av., New Rochelle. No cards.

MANN—Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Mann announce the bar mitzvah of their son, Morton Roy, on Saturday, Feb. 22, in the Temple of the Daughters of Israel, 107th St. and 5th Av.

LEDERER—Mr. and Mrs. J., 286 Fort Washington Av., announce the bar mitzvah of their son, Morris Bimberg, Saturday, Feb. 22, at Mount Neboh Temple, Broadway and 150th St., 10 A. M.

LIPMAN—Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lipman, 295 Fort Washington Av., announce the confirmation of their son, Norman, Saturday, Feb. 22, at 10 A. M., at Temple Mount Sinai Anshe-Emeth, 178th St. and Wadsworth Av., New York City.

LIPSCHUTZ—Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lipschutz of 211 Central Park West wish to announce the bar mitzvah of their son, Daniel, on Saturday, the 1st of March, at the Jewish Centre, 131 West 86th St. at 9 o'clock A. M. At home Saturday after 2 o'clock. No cards.

MICHAELS—Mr. and Mrs. A. Hugo Michaels of 951 82d St., Brooklyn, announce the bar mitzvah of their son, Robert Mitchel, to take place on Saturday, Feb. 22, at the Bay Ridge Jewish Centre, 81st St. and 4th Av., Brooklyn, N. Y. At home Sunday, Feb. 23, 3 to 6 P. M.

NORWALK—Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Norwalk announce the bar mitzvah of their son, Lawrence M., Saturday, Feb. 22, 9 A. M., Temple Anshe Chesed, West End Av. at 100th St.

Engagements

ALBERT—GREENFIELD—Mrs. Yetta Greenfield, 644 Riverside Drive, announces the engagement of her daughter, Rose, to Mr. L. A. Albert of Long Island City.

BANK—RATTNER—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rattner, 326 Fort Washington Av., announce betrothal of their daughter, Gertrude, to Dr. Joseph Bank of Philadelphia.

BLAU—GROSS—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gross of 665 West 160th St. announce the engagement of their daughter, Helen Ruth, to Mr. Joseph Blau, son of Mr. Nathan Blau of New York and Stamford, Conn.

BOAS—GREENBERG—Mr. and Mrs. Max Greenberg of Brooklyn will announce the engagement of their daughter, Minerva, to Edwin C. Boas, Sunday, Feb. 23.

BRANDEIS — BLECHEISEN — Mrs. Morris Minkowitz of 1,060 Sherman Av., New York, announces the engagement of her daughter, Naomi Blecheisen, to Leo Brandeis, son of Mrs. Abraham Goodman of New York, on Feb. 12, 1930.

BROADWIN—MARGULIES—Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Margulies of 1,827 67th St., Brooklyn, announce the engagement of their daughter, Rose, to Sampson Broadwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Selig Broadwin of 295 Highland Boulevard, Brooklyn.

COHEN—ROSENHEIM—Mr. and Mrs. David J. Rosenheim of 302 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, announce the engagement of their daughter, Fanchon, to Mr. Joseph A. Cohen, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Cohen of New York.

COWAN—LICHTENBERG—Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Lichtenberg of Washington, D. C., announce the engagement of their daughter, Sylvia, to Mr. Sanford R. Cowan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Cohen of Brooklyn.

FLATO—LEVIN—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Levin of 640 West 153d St. announce the engagement of their daughter, Selma, to Mr. Louis Flato, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel G. Flato of Flushing, L. I.

HAIKEN—LIFSCHITZ—Mr. and Mrs. David Lifschitz, 801 West 110th St., announce the engagement of their daughter, Anne, to Dr. Irwin B. Haiken of Brooklyn.

JACOBS—HELLER—Mrs. Anna Heller of 1,801 7th Av., announce the engagement of her daughter, Lillian A., to Mr. Charles B. Jacobs, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Jacobs of 609 West 175th St. San Francisco papers please copy.

Engagements

KAPPALMAN—STEIGMAN—Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Steigman announce the engagement of their daughter, Miriam, to Mr. Bernard L. Kappalman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kappalman of New York and Baltimore.

KOENIGSBERG—SILK—Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Silk of 10 West 86th St., New York, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lillian, to Mr. I. Koenigsberg of New York.

KRULEWITCH—ROSEN—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rosen of 33 Birch St., Mount Vernon, N. Y., announce the betrothal of their daughter, Mary Lucile, to Mr. Seymour Krulewitch, son of Mr. Isaac Krulewitch of Woodmere, L. I.

LITTENBERG—SEELIG—Mrs. Anna Seelig of 55 West 180th St., Bronx, announces the engagement of her daughter, Sylvia L. Seelig, to A. Harold Littenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Littenberg of 671 West 162d St., Feb. 16, 1930. Philadelphia papers please copy.

LONDONER—BERNSTEIN — Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin G. Bernstein of 535 West 111th St. announce the engagement of their daughter, Amy, to Mr. David Londoner, son of Mrs. Carrie Londoner and the late Dr. Jacob Londoner of Brooklyn.

LOWENSTEIN—SMITH—Mr. and Mrs. Abe Smith of Main St., Spring Valley, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Henrietta, to Dr. Philip C. Lowenstein, son of Mrs. S. Lowenstein of 801 Jersey Av., Elizabeth, N. J.

PHILLIPS—KLEIN—Mr. and Mrs. I. Klein of 365 New York Av., Brooklyn, announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth, to Mr. Joseph J. Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Phillips of Brooklyn.

PRENS—MANN—Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Mann of 620 West 170th St. announce the engagement of their daughter, Toby, to Mr. Theodore Prens of 253 West 73d St.

QUITMAN—FURMAN—Mr. and Mrs. S. Furman of 1,532 50th St., Brooklyn, announce the engagement of their daughter, Belle, to Mr. Sidney L. Quitman, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Quitman of 4,600 14th Av., Brooklyn.

ROSENBERG — SCHACHT — Mr. James S. Schacht of Flushing announces the engagement of his daughter, Louise Frances, to Edward M. Rosenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adof Rosenberg, also of Flushing.

SALTSER—LANGEL—Mr. and Mrs. John A. Langel of Belle Harbor, announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathleen, to Bertram Saltser, son of Mrs. Michael Saltser of Brooklyn.

SIEGEL—FINKELSTEIN—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Finkelstein announce the engagement of their daughter, Anna, to Mr. Jerome Siegel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Siegel.

SUGARMAN—WALDMAN — Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Waldman announce engagement of their daughter, Muriel Doris, to Mr. Louis Sugarman of Lima, Ohio, son of Mrs. Goldie Sugarman of Kingston, Ont.

WASSER—OLENICK—Alfred Olenick, 200 West 79th St., announces engagement of his daughter Sylvia Vivian, to Morton Wasser of Brooklyn.

WEILL—STEINER—Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Steiner of 18 Vernon Av., Newark, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Grace, to Mr. Irwin Weill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weill of 1,240 Park Av.

Marriages

DANZIG—BERMAN—Mr. and Mrs. Philip Berman announce the marriage of their daughter, Hilda, to Mr. Abraham Danzig, New York, to take place Feb. 16, 1930.

GODT—STORCH—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Storch, 715 Riverside Drive, announce the marriage of their daughter, Kate, to Jack Godt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Osias Godt, on Feb. 9 at the Hotel Astor. Left for Havana on the Mauretania for their honeymoon.

GOLDSTEIN — ROSENBAUM — Miss Ida Rosenbaum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Rosenbaum of West Orange, became the bride of Irving I. Goldstein of New York at Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, Sunday, Feb. 2. Dr. David De Sola Pool performed ceremony. The bride was attended by Miss Helen M. Goldstein, maid of honor; Mrs. Fred J. Rosenbaum, matron of honor; Frederick E. Goldstein was best man.

KOSTING—BRYARS—Miss Mildred Bryars of St. Louis, Mo., to Mr. Frederick W. Kosting of Forest Hills, L. I., on Friday, Feb. 14, 1930.

LESCANDER—SOBEL—Mr. and Mrs. David Sobel of 2,361 Coney Island Av., Brooklyn, announce the marriage of their daughter, Beatrice, to Mr. Edward Lescander, son of Mrs. S. Lescander, and the celebration of their thirtieth wedding anniversary on Feb. 16, 1930.

LORD—CURRAN—Mr. and Mrs. John McCollum Curran of Santa Barbara, Cal., announce the marriage of their daughter, Frances, to Mr. Charles Veazie Lord of Bangor, Me., on Friday, Jan. 31, St. Paul's Chapel, New York.

ORTENAU—MADISON—David J. Ortenau and Helen Madison, at Hotel Whitehall, by Rev. I. M. Bloom.

PHALER—SCHOENHOLZ—Mrs. Ray Schoenholz announces the marriage of her daughter, Pearl, to Mr. Edward Phaler on Feb. 4.

ROSENTHAL—DWARSKY—Mrs. A. Dwarsky of Schenectady, N. Y., announces the marriage of her daughter, Sylvia, to Dr. Theodore Rosenthal, son of Dr. and Mrs. Michael Rosenthal, on Jan. 29.

SEBIRI—LIFFLANDER—Mrs. Becky Lifflander (nee Brown) announces her marriage to Mr. Charles Sebiri on Feb. 15, 1930. At home after March 2, 100 Lefferts Av., Brooklyn, N. Y.

STARK—FRIEDMAN—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Friedman announce the marriage of their daughter, Harriet, to Mr. Milton Stark on Feb. 11, 1930.

TEMIN—LEHMAN—Mrs. Bessie Lehman, Hotel Olcott, announces the marriage of her daughter, Annette, on Sunday, Feb. 9, 1930, to Henry Temin of Philadelphia. Philadelphia and Washington (D. C.) papers please copy.

TURITS—EIGEN—Mr. and Mrs. William Eigen announce marriage of their daughter, Rose, to Leonard E., Feb. 12.

VEIT—LIPPMAN—Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Lippman of Flushing, formerly of 1,938 Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn, announce the marriage of their daughter, Sylvia Helene, to Mr. Juan B. Veit, Feb. 11, in New York.

Anniversaries

GROD—Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Grod announce the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage on Saturday, Feb. 22. Reception after 8:30, Hotel Brewster, 21 West 86th St.

WEIL—Mr. and Mrs. E. Alfred Weil, 1,664 Weeks Av., announce their fifteenth wedding anniversary, on Feb. 14.

Deaths

ARANY—Helen. Services at Riverside Memorial Chapel, 76th St. and Amsterdam Av., Monday, Feb. 17, at 2 P. M.

ARONOF—Ronya, beloved mother of Fannie Korones. Funeral from Flatbush Memorial Chapel, 1,283 Coney Island Av., Brooklyn, at 2 P. M. Sunday. Interment Mount Carmel Cemetery.

AUBERTEL—On Feb. 14, 1930, Maximilian C. Aubertel, beloved husband of Menetta and father of Theodore, age 61 years, formerly of Plainview, L. I.; superintendent of Mrs. Robert Schwartzenback's estate. Funeral services at B. J. Thuring's Funeral Parlors, 1,178 Bushwick Av., Brooklyn, on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 16, at 3 o'clock. Aurora Grata and Jerusalem Temple Lodge, F. and A. M. are invited to attend. Kindly omit flowers. Cremation at Fresh Pond, L. I.

BARDIN—Rose, Feb. 12, beloved wife of Iser and devoted mother of Bessie Salwen, Fannie Weltman, Esta Moskowitz, Belle Herman, Harry and Sayde.

BARSCHI—Albert, in his sixteenth year, dearly beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barschi of 100 Fort Washington Av., on Feb. 11, at the Bronx Hospital.

BELKNAP—On Thursday evening, Feb. 13, 1930, Eugenie J. Hobby, widow of James and mother of E. Joseph Belknap. Services at her late residence, 567 West 170th St., Sunday afternoon, 1 o'clock.

BIBBER—Feb. 14, 1930, Augusta Bibber, beloved mother of Mrs. David Brown, of 45 Gramercy Park North, New York, and Mrs. H. W. Boulter of Deer Lodge, Mont. Service and interment at Bozeman, Mont.

BODENHEIMER—Herman, of Brightwaters, L. I., beloved husband of Emily and devoted father of Bessie F. S. Cohen and Herbert. Funeral service at Beth David Cemetery, Elmont, L. I., on Sunday, Feb. 16, at 3 P. M.

BORGOS—Sadie, passed away Feb. 14, 1930, beloved daughter of Samuel Borgos, 353 Fort Washington Av.

BRADLEY—Suddenly, at Gravenhurst, Ontario, Canada, on Saturday, Feb. 15, 1930, Herbert Chapman, beloved husband of Gertrude Armitage Bradley, of Montclair, N. J. Announcement of funeral later.

BRODSKY—Albert M. (lawyer), age 34, on Wednesday, Feb. 12, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sol Brodsky, 816 Avenue C, Bayonne, N. J.; survived by his parents and widow, Hilda; a sister, Mrs. Albert Sacks; three brothers, Jerome, Wesley and Jackson.

BUMFELD—Anna, beloved mother of Hermine, Rose, Celia B. Aaronson, Leo and Ida B. Crohn, suddenly, Saturday morning, Feb. 15, 1930. Funeral services at residence, 210 West 101st St., on Monday at 2 P. M. Interment Washington Cemetery.

CASPARY—Robert, of 215 East 19th St., Brooklyn, beloved father of Max and Frances. Services at Meyers's Funeral Chapel, 187 South Oxford St., Brooklyn, Monday, Feb. 17, at 10 A. M.

CLARKSON—Gertrude Evelyn, wife of William B. Clarkson of East Orange, N. J., Feb. 15, 1930. Notice of funeral later.

COGGESHALL — Elizabeth, daughter of Elwood W. and Anna B. Coggeshall and beloved sister of Mary and Allan, on Feb. 15, of pneumonia, at Northern Westchester Hospital. Funeral at St. John's Church, Pleasantville, N. Y., at 2 P. M. Monday.

Deaths

Arany, Helen	Karpf, Hannah
Aronoff, Ronya	Kuck, Albert B.
Aubertel, M. C.	Lagergren, Claes
Bardin, Rose	Lagorio, Sixtus
Barschi, Albert	Laird, Mary C.
Belknap, Eugenie J.	Lashinsky, David
Bibber, Augusta	Lilienthal, Albert M.
Bodenheimer, Herman	Lurie, Mabel
Borgos, Sadie	Masch, Celia
Bradley, Herbert C.	Meader, Herman L.
Brodsky, Albert M.	Mercer, William
Bumfeld, Anna	Meserole, Lucy M.
Caspary, Robert	Moskowitz, Joseph
Coggeshall, Elizabeth	Mulks, Dora
Cole (Cohen), J. G.	Nauheim, Max
Cooke, Ella Hall	Newbold, Charles L.
Cosgrove, Margaret	Nuoffer, Maria
Cramer, Emma A.	Page, John J.
Davis, William S.	Palmer, Edward J.
Deems, William H.	Parsons, Alice K.
Donovan, Wm. J.	Pinkham, Georgiana I
Doran, Frank	Ramsey, Clarence J.
Dupont, John T., Sr.	Raynor, Egon M.
Eitenbenz, William	Romanoff, Meyer
Ernst, Max	Ross, Karl
Errico, Irene McG.	Rudin, Dora
Ettinger, Babette	Sass, Minnie
Faiella, Joseph A.	Schermerhorn, Leon
Fair, William A.	Scurco, Filomena A.
Franklin, Julius	Shanley, Catherine T
French, John H.	Simon, Fannie
Gausser, Herman	Simons, Ernest B.
Geduldig, David	Smiley, Daniel
Clarkson, Gertrude E.	Smith, Emily B.
Goldsmith, Rebecca	Smith, Sarah C.
Goodman, Ruth	Starkey, Llewellyn H.
Gordon, Rachel	Starr, Nathan
Greenwald, Isaac	Storm, George E.
Guthrie, Herbert	Strassfield, Samuel
Hagen, Annie	Strauss, Henriette
Hamburger, Alan R.	Strout, Michael
Hamilton, John	Sullivan, Mary C.
Hayman, Robert A.	Taaffe, Thomas J.
Healy, Sarah A.	Wackerhagen, Mary
Hedden, Jesse W.	Walter, Rose
Heller, James E.	Weil, Moritz
Hoefer, Stephanie K.	Weiss, Ludwig
Jenkins, Elliott	Wilmarth, James C.
Johl, Herman	Wolcott, Julia H
Kaplan, Charles	Zimmerman, Morris
Kahn, Amalie

COLE—(Cohen) Jacob G., on Feb. 13, 1930, beloved husband of Ida Siegel, father of Aimee Wronker and Gary Cole. Funeral from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lester Wronker, 26 Beechwood Terrace, Yonkers, on Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Please omit flowers. Baltimore and Washington papers please copy.

COOKE—Ella Hall, on Feb. 14, beloved wife of the late William Sylvester Cooke. Services private at the Campbell Funeral Church, Broadway-66th St.

COSGROVE—At East Orange, N. J., Margaret Cosgrove. Funeral from the home of her sister, Mrs. William J. Cole, Millerton, N. Y., on Tuesday, Feb. 18, at 10 A. M. Interment Millerton, N. Y.

CRAMER—On Friday, Feb. 14, at her residence, 1,031 Bloomfield St., Hoboken, N. J., Emma A. (nee Diercks), wife of the late William Cramer. The service will be held at the residence on Monday, Feb. 17, at 8 P. M. Interment Lutheran Cemetery, private. Kindly omit flowers.

DAVIS—William Stearns, son of William V. W. Davis and Rebecca Frances (Stearns) Davis, late of Pittsfield, Mass., at Exeter, N. H., Feb. 15, 1930, in his fifty-third year. Funeral services at Congregational Church, Exeter, at 11 A. M., Monday, Feb. 17, and at Pittsfield Cemetery Chapel at 3:30 P. M. Tuesday, Feb. 18.

DEEMS—William Henry, son of the late Rev. Edward M. Deems and Virginia Price Deems, suddenly on Friday, Feb. 14, at Aliquippa, Pa. Funeral service at the home of his mother, 139 Cassidy Place, New Brighton, S. I., on Monday, Feb. 17, at 3:30 P. M.

DONOVAN—On Saturday, Feb. 15, William J. Donovan, devoted husband of Clara Nahon Donovan, father of Robert F. and beloved brother of Mrs. Benjamin F. Grennan, Mrs. F. S. McNally and Mrs. Harry C. Scott, at McGowan's Funeral Parlors, 153d St. and Amsterdam Av. Funeral services at St. Catherine's, Tuesday, 10 A. M.

DORAN—Frank, beloved husband of the late Ellen (nee Purcell), devoted father of Maurice, Mary, Ellen, Richard and Frank Jr., at his late residence, 159 Jamaica Av., Astoria, on Saturday, Feb. 15, 1930. Funeral from his late residence on Tuesday, Feb. 18, at 9:30 A. M.; thence to the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, where a solemn requiem mass will be offered for his happy repose.

DUPONT—On Feb. 14, 1930, at his home, 530 Summer Av., Newark, N. J., John Tyler, Sr., husband of the late Mary Cook Dupont and father of Mrs. Maud Cowlin, Mrs. Grace Wood and J. T. Dupont Jr. Funeral services at Brierley's Funeral Parlors, 269 Mount Prospect Av., Newark, N. J., Monday morning, Feb. 17, at 11 o'clock. Interment in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, N. Y., at the convenience of the family.

EITENBENZ—William, on Feb. 14, 1930, beloved husband of Stella and devoted father of Pauline, Lillian and Estelle. Funeral from his residence, 84-06 124th St., Richmond Hill, on Tuesday, 10 A. M. Requiem mass at Church of the Holy Child Jesus. Interment Calvary Cemetery.

ERNST—Max, on Feb. 13, at 2 West 86th, beloved husband of Alice L. Ernst, devoted father of Mrs. G. Milius and Howard Ernst. Services Sunday, Feb. 16, at 10:30 A. M., at the Riverside Memorial Chapel, 76th St. and Amsterdam Av. Please omit flowers.

ERRICO—On Feb. 15 at her residence, 420 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, N. Y., Irene McGrath Errico, beloved wife of Joseph and devoted mother of Rose and Anna. Funeral from Dunigan & Son Chapel, Rogers Av. and Montgomery St., on Tuesday, Feb. 18, at 9:30 A. M., thence to St. Ignatius Roman Catholic Church. Interment at Calvary Cemetery.

ETTLINGER—Babette (nee Turkheimer), widow of Jacob, beloved mother of Carrie Stern, Samuel and Mrs. Jennie Ettlinger; grandmother of Dolce and Joseph Stern and Adrienne and Paul Ettlinger. Funeral from West End Chapel, Amsterdam Av., corner 91st St., Sunday, Feb. 16, at 2 P. M. Interment New Mount Carmel.

FAIELLA—Joseph A., age 78, beloved husband of Concetta Faiella, on Feb. 13, 1930, at 86 Leighton Av., Yonkers. Funeral services Sunday, 2 P. M., at his late residence; to Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, corner of East 187th St. and Belmont Av., Bronx. Interment at St. Raymond's Cemetery.

FAIR—On Saturday, Feb. 15, William Allen, beloved husband of Hope Fair, in his fifty-sixth year. Funeral services at his late residence, 36 Scribner Av., Tompkinsville, S. I., on Tuesday, Feb. 18, at 2 P. M. Masonic services on Monday at 8 P. M.

FRANKLIN — Julius, suddenly, at Miami, Fla., beloved husband of Kate, devoted father of Leo, Victor, William, Herbert, Fanny Levin, Caroline Elgart and May Dube, brother of Abraham Lewis and Harold, Gussie Engelbadt, Emma Block, Lilly Bunk. Funeral services at Universal Chapel, 52d St. and Lexington Av., Monday, Feb. 17, at 10:30 A. M.

FRENCH—Holland Lodge, 8, F. and A. M., with regret announces the death of Brother John Herndon French on Thursday, Feb. 13.
THEODOSIUS STEVENS, Master.
J. GERALD BENKARD, Secretary.

GAUSSER—Of 34-31 92d St., Jackson Heights, N. Y., on Feb. 14, 1930, Herman, aged 37 years, beloved brother of Kathryn Booker and Elsie Gausser. Funeral service at the home on Monday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. Interment Lutheran Cemetery. Jersey City papers please copy.

GEDULDIG—David Geduldig, darling husband of Mabel Lederer, devoted son of Rose and Louis, brother of Stella Levine, Erma and Ruth Gross, Abe, Irving and Harold. Services at the Universal Chapel, Lexington Av., corner 52d St., Sunday, Feb. 16, at 12 noon.

GEDULDIG—David. The American Synagog and Rabbi Ranson deeply mourn the loss of their beloved member, who was a faithful officer of their executive council; heartfelt sympathy is extended to the widow and other dear ones. Funeral today, 12, from Universal Chapel, 52d St. and Lexington Av. Members are requested to attend.
TOBIAS A. KEPPLER, Chairman.

GOLDSMITH—Rebecca, wife of the late Abraham Goldsmith and beloved sister of Reuben Gross. Body reposing at Chapel, 187 South Oxford St., Brooklyn. Funeral on Monday, Feb. 17, at 2 P. M.

GOODMAN—On Friday, Feb. 14, Ruth, beloved wife of Joseph and mother of Eugene and Doris, sister of Pauline Starn and Helen Schwager. Funeral Sunday, Feb. 16, 2 P. M. from the Ruoff Funeral Parlors, 97-12 101st Av., Ozone Park. Interment Beth-El grounds, Old Union Field, Cypress Hills.

GOODMAN—Ruth. Whereas God in His infinite wisdom has taken from us our dearly beloved past president and trustee, Worthy Sister Ruth Goodman; and

Whereas, by the untimely death of this sister, whose gentle spirit was truly loved by all who knew her, a link in our chain has been severed;

Therefore, be it Resolved, That Queens Lodge, No. 24, U. O. T. S., extend its deepest sympathy to the members of her family.
AMELIA MOELLER, President.
HORTENSE BROWN, Secretary.

Members of the Worthy Grand Lodge and members of Queens, No. 24, U. O. T. S., are requested to attend the funeral of Worthy Sister Ruth Goodman, Sunday, Feb. 16, 1930, 2 P. M., Ruoff's Funeral Home 97-12 101st Av., Ozone Park, L. I. Interment Old Union Field Cemetery.

GOODMAN—Ruth. Sorrowful announcement is made of the sudden death of Worthy Sister Ruth Goodman, who for ten years was the president of the Philanthropic League of Queens, No. 24, U. O. T. S., in aid of crippled children.

Her sweet influence and gentle guidance will live forever as an inspiration in our hearts.

Members are requested to attend funeral services Sunday, Feb. 16, 1930, 2 P. M., Ruoff Funeral Home, 97-12 101st Av., Ozone Park, L. I.
FANNY BENDIG, Vice President.
ESTHER HERSON, Secretary.

Deaths

GORDON—Rachel (nee Larsey), beloved wife of Abraham and cherished mother of Herman, Julius and Milton Gordon, Fannie Eisenberg and Edith Rosen. Funeral from her late residence, 144 Clinton Place, Newark, N. J., Sunday, Feb. 16, at 2 o'clock. Please omit flowers.

GREENWALD—The Board of Directors and Medical Board of Peoples Hospital record with profound sorrow the death of Isaac Greenwald, beloved father of our friend and associate, Dr. Samuel Greenwald. Members of the Medical Staff and the Board of Directors are requested to attend the funeral services, to be held today, Feb. 16, 1:30 P. M., at 528 East 5th St., Manhattan. IVENS SHERR, President Board of Directors.
ISIDORE GROSSMAN,
Secretary Board of Directors.
SOL ROTTENBERG, M. D.,
President Medical Board.
SAMUEL SPIEGEL, M. D.,
Secretary Medical Board.
WILLIAM I. SIROVICH, M. D.,
Superintendent.

GREENWALD—Isaac. Nurses Alumnae of the Peoples Hospital regretfully announce the death of Mr. Isaac Greenwald, at 528 East 5th St., the father of our honorary member, Dr. Samuel Greenwald. We extend our sympathy to the family and relatives.
SHARA SHAPIRO BART, R.N., President.

GUTHRIE—On Feb. 15, 1930, Herbert, beloved husband of Lora Lorens Guthrie of New Rochelle. Notice of funeral later. Louisville, Ky., papers please copy.

HAGEN—On Saturday, Feb. 15, 1930, Annie, beloved wife of Claude L. Hagen. Services at her residence, 625 Sanford Av., Flushing, L. I., on Tuesday morning, Feb. 18, at 11 o'clock.

HAMBURGER—Alan Robert, 3 years, dearly beloved son of Murray and Mina Hamburger. Services at the Riverside Memorial Chapel, 76th St. and Amsterdam Av., Sunday, Feb. 16, at 2 P. M.

HAMILTON—On Friday, Feb. 14, 1930, John Hamilton, beloved husband of Leah Hamilton. Funeral services at his late residence, 85-31 89th St., Woodhaven, on Monday at 2 P. M.

HAYMAN—Suddenly, on Thursday, Feb. 13, 1930, Robert A., beloved husband of Elizabeth E. Hayman and son of the late Arthur Hayman. Funeral services at his residence, 62-62 99th St., Forest Hills, L. I., on Sunday, Feb. 16, at 2 P. M. Member of Crescent Masonic Lodge, 402, F. and A. M., New York City.

HEALY—Sarah A., beloved wife of Edward H. Healy, on Feb. 15. Services Monday, Feb. 17, at 8 P. M., Graham Funeral Chapel, 4,221 Park Av., Bronx. Jamestown (N. Y.) papers please copy.

HEDDEN—Jesse Williams, M. D., on Feb. 14, 1930, at his residence, 55 West 87th St., New York City, husband of Katherine Hart Hedden and father of Harold R. and Howard L. Hedden. Funeral service at the Campbell Funeral Church, Broadway at 66th St., Monday, Feb. 17, at 2 P. M. Interment Rosedale Cemetery, Orange, N. J.

HELLER—On Friday, Feb. 14, James E., beloved husband of the late Bertha, devoted father of Bernard S., Florence Willstadter and Elsa Ernst, and the late Joseph S. Funeral services at the West End Funeral Chapel, 200 West 91st St., Sunday, Feb. 16 at 11 A. M.

HOEFER — On Feb. 13, Stephanie K. (nee Weichs), beloved wife of Charles W. Hoefer. Funeral Monday, 10 A. M., from 1,091 Stasia St., Teaneck, N. J.

JENKINS—Society of the Ninth Company, Veterans Seventh Regiment, N. G. N. Y.: Announcement is made with deep regret of the death of Elliott Jenkins on Feb. 13.
FRANCIS G. LANDON, President.
VAN F. PRUITT, Secretary.

JOHL—Herman, at Groton, Conn., beloved father of Max G. Johl, William W. Johl and the late Sadie Stern. Funeral services Monday, 2 P. M., at Park Avenue Temple, 50 East 89th St.

JOHL—Herman. The children of the Religious School of the Park Avenue Synagogue announce with deep regret the passing of their loyal friend and supporter.

He was a lover of religion and a benefactor of children. His good name will always be an inspiration to young and old.
RELIGIOUS SCHOOL OF THE PARK AVENUE SYNAGOGUE.

JOHL—Herman. Board of Trustees of the Park Avenue Synagogue announce with profound sorrow the untimely passing of our beloved vice president and colleague of the Board of Trustees. Funeral service at our synagogue, 50 East 87th St., on Monday, Feb. 17, 1930, at 2 P. M. Members and seatholders are earnestly requested to attend.
JACOB FRIEDMAN Jr., President.
PHILIP HAMBURGER, Secretary.

JOHL—Herman. Sisterhood of the Park Avenue Synagogue: Sisters, it is my sad duty to inform you of the passing away of the beloved vice president of our Temple, Herman Johl. Funeral from the Park Avenue Synagogue, Monday, Feb. 17, at 2 P. M. Sisters will kindly attend.
HATTIE WEINBERGER, President.
ETTA CARO, Secretary.

JOHL—Herman. Brethren of Issachar Widows and Orphans Benevolent Society are respectfully requested to attend the funeral of our late brother, Herman Johl, on Monday, Feb. 17, at 2 P. M., from Park Avenue Synagogue, 50 East 87th St., New York.
ADOLPH BRUCK, President.
NATHAN FULD, Secretary.

JOHL—Herman. We mourn the loss of our dear president and sincere friend, Herman Johl. His many kind deeds will be remembered forever by the New York employes of Max Pollack & Co.

KAHN—Amalie (nee Grabenheimer), on Feb. 14, beloved wife of the late Eugene, devoted mother of Mrs. B. Teutch, Samuel, Jennie and the late Helen, beloved sister of Mrs. E. Kraus. Funeral from Universal Funeral Chapel, 52d St. and Lexington Av., Monday, Feb. 17, at 2 P. M.

KAPLAN—On Saturday, Feb. 15, Charles Kaplan. Funeral services at 58 77th St., Brooklyn, 2 o'clock Sunday. Interment Mount Zion Cemetery.

KARPF — Hannah, wife of late Lippmann Karpf, in her ninety-first year. Mother of Leo, Jacob, Celia, Martin and the late Samuel. The funeral strictly private.

KUCK—Thursday, Feb. 13, 1930, Albert Bailey Kuck, son of William A. and Linda I. Kuck of 650 East 21st St., Flatbush. Services at the Harry T. Pyle Mortuary, 1,925 Church Av., Brooklyn, Sunday at 2 P. M.

LAGERGREN—At Palazzo Brancaccio, Rome, on Feb. 13, 1930, the Marquis Claes Lagergren of Tyreso, Stockholm, Sweden, aged 76 years.

LAGORIO—Very Rev. Sixtus, O. F. M., on Saturday, Feb. 15, former pastor of St. Anthony's Church, Sullivan St., New York. A solemn requiem mass will be celebrated in St. Anthony's Church on Monday, Feb. 17, at 10 A. M. Interment Calvary Cemetery.

LAIRD—Mrs. Mary C., widow of James H. Laird, mother of Jennie R. Davis, at her home, 74 St. Andrew's Place, Yonkers, Feb. 15. Funeral services Monday, Feb. 17, at 8 P. M.

LASHINSKY—David. Services Sunday, 10 A. M., chapel of Alpert Bros., 216 Lenox Av.

LILIENTHAL—Albert Max, on Feb. 13, 1930, in Pasadena, Cal., after a lingering illness, in his forty-fifth year, son of Alice Meyer and the late Albert Lilienthal, beloved husband of Marguerite W. Funeral services San Francisco, Cal., Sunday, Feb. 16, 1930.

LURIE—Mabel, suddenly, at Miami, Fla., on Feb. 11, beloved wife of William Lurie, loving mother of infants Vivian and Eleanor, daughter of Fannie and the late Kopel Cohen, formerly of New Bedford, Mass.; sister of Sadye Murzin, Anne and Gertrude Cohen. Funeral from Central Funeral Chapel, 109 West 87th St., Sunday, Feb. 16, 2 P. M.

LURIE—Mabel. With deep sorrow we announce the death of Mabel Lurie, wife of our past Grand Exalted Solon, Brother William Lurie. Brethren of the Sigma Lambda Pi Fraternity are requested to attend funeral services at Central Funeral Chapel, 109 West 87th St, on Sunday, Feb. 16, at 2 P. M.
WALTER LEVY, Grand Exalted Solon.
HERBERT J. ROEDER, Clarissimus.

MASCH—Celia, beloved wife of the late Wolfe Masch and mother of Mrs. Mamie Weingard, Mrs. I. H. Cohen, Joseph, Harry, Flora, Annie and David. Funeral from her late residence, 894 East 163d St., Bronx, Sunday morning at 10 o'clock sharp. Interment Mount Zion Cemetery. Members Congregation Beth Jehuda of Brooklyn, Congregation B'nai Sholem of the Bronx, East Bronx Chapter of Hadassah Channa Frauen Verein please attend. Kindly omit flowers. Chicago papers please copy.

MEADER—Herman Lee, on Feb. 14, aged 55, a native of New Orleans and a resident of New York for the past thirty years. Funeral services at Campbell's Funeral Church, 3 P. M., Sunday, Feb. 16. Interment private. New Orleans papers please copy.

MEADER—The Strollers announce with profound sorrow the death of their esteemed life member and faithful co-worker for more than twenty years, Herman Lee Meader, on Feb. 14, 1930. Members are invited to attend the funeral services on Sunday, Feb. 16, at 3 P. M.
ROBERT C. SANDS, President.
LOUIS LIVINGSTON, Secretary.
R. B. VAN HORNE.

MERCER—At Scarsdale, N. Y., Feb. 14, 1930, William Mercer, in his eighty-sixth year. Funeral services at his late residence, 28 Drake Road, Scarsdale, N. Y., Sunday, Feb. 16, at 2 P. M. Interment Kensico Cemetery.

MESEROLE—At Mount Vernon, N. Y., on Feb. 15, 1930, Lucy M., beloved mother of Mrs. Jefferson McWilliams of 20 East 4th St. Funeral private. Interment Middletown, Ohio.

MOSKOWITZ—Joseph, of Atlantic City, N. J., beloved husband of Bertha, devoted father of Eugene, Edward, Harry, David, Adele and Mrs. Frieda Wasser. Funeral from David Reich's Chapel, 247 Lenox Av., Sunday, Feb. 16, 2 P. M. Interment Mount Hebron Cemetery.

MOSKOWITZ—Joseph. Members of Petofi Society of New York are requested to attend funeral of their late brother. Funeral from David Reich's Chapel, 247 Lenox Av., Feb. 16, 2 P. M.
HERMAN STARK, President.
SAM MARMORSTEIN, Secretary.

Deaths

MULKS—Dora (nee Hasselbach), beloved wife of Harold O. Mulks and mother of Emerson H., sister of Louise G. Hirth, Elsie and William Hasselbach. Funeral services Sunday, Feb. 16, at 1 P. M., at Nicholas T. Brown Funeral Chapel, 1,375 1st Av., near 69th St., New York City. Formerly from Chicago. Chicago papers please copy. Interment Kensico Cemetery.

NAUHEIM—Max. Riverside Memorial Chapel, 76th St. and Amsterdam Av., today, 11 A. M.

NAUHEIM—Max. Robert Fulton Lodge, 1014, F. and A. M., announces with profound sorrow the death of Brother Max Nauheim at Flower Hospital. Members are urgently requested to attend Masonic funeral services at the Riverside Memorial Chapel, 76th St. and Amsterdam Av., Sunday, Feb. 16, at 10:30 A. M.
JOSEPH S. COHEN, Master.
THEODORE SCHMERL, Secretary.

NEWBOLD—Rev. Charles Laurie, on Thursday, Feb. 13, at the home of his daughter, at Belleville, Canada. Funeral services at Christ Church, Manhasset, L. I., his late parish, Sunday, Feb. 16, at 2:30 o'clock.

NUOFFER—Maria, in her eighty-second year, dearly beloved mother of Mrs. Jacob Herb and Otto Nuoffer. Services at her late residence, 192 Drake Av., New Rochelle, Sunday, 8 P. M. Funeral Monday, 2:30 P. M. Interment Kensico Cemetery.

PAGE—John J., on Feb. 13, beloved husband of Dora (nee Leonard), and father of Eugene, Leonard, Mrs. Dorothy Hookey, Marjorie, Elizabeth and Geraldine. Funeral from his late residence, Hotel White, Lexington Av. and 37th St., Monday, 9:30 A. M.; thence to St. Gabriel's Church, where a solemn mass of requiem will be offered at 10 A. M. Interment Gate of Heaven Cemetery. Masses appreciated.

PAGE—With profound sorrow we announce the death of our fellow member, John J. Page, on Thursday, Feb. 13, 1930.
NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC CLUB,
THOMAS J. McMAHON, President.
EUGENE J. SULLIVAN, Secretary.

PALMER—At Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y., Feb. 15, 1930, Edward J. Palmer, in his sixty-third year. Funeral Tuesday, the 18th instant, 9 A. M., at his residence, 15 South E Street, and mass at the Immaculate Conception Church, 9:30 A. M. Interment Sleepy Hollow Cemetery.

PARSONS—At Los Angeles, Cal., on Feb. 14, 1930, Alice K. Parsons, daughter of the late Samuel M. Parsons and sister of George W. Parsons and Emeline H. Parsons. Funeral services at Los Angeles Monday, Feb. 17, at 12 o'clock noon.

PINKHAM—At Rhinebeck, N. Y., Feb. 8, 1930, Georgiana H., wife of Herbert Pinkham. Funeral Feb. 12. Interment in Rhinebeck Cemetery.

RAMSEY—At his residence, 132 West 12th St., New York City, Clarence J., husband of Mary Walsh Ramsey, father of Marie J., Sigmund and Evelyn Loretto Ramsey. The funeral will be held from his Summer home, 796 Springfield Av., Summit, N. J., on Monday, Feb. 17, at 9:30 A. M. and at St. Teresa's Church at 10 A. M. Interment in St. Teresa's Cemetery.

RAMSEY—At a meeting of the board of managers of the New York Catholic Protectory, held on Feb. 13, 1930, the following minute was unanimously adopted:

The board of managers of the New York Catholic Protectory has learned with deepest sorrow of the death of Mr. Clarence J. Ramsey. Mr. Ramsey was elected a member of the board in April, 1925. He was appointed a member of the executive committee in 1926, and served in that capacity until the time of his death. He was also a member of the special committee on real estate from the time he became a member of the board, and a member of the committee on Lincoln Agricultural School for the years 1928, 1929 and 1930. Mr. Ramsey brought to the board the experience of long years in real estate, and his advice in such matters and on all business questions was of great service to it. He was always diligent in his attendance at meetings, and his death leaves a gap in our membership which it will be hard to fill. We extend our sincerest sympathy to his bereaved family.
ROBERT LOUIS HOUGET, President.
LOUIS J. DE MILHAU, Secretary.

RAMSEY—Clarence J. It is with the deepest regret that the trustees of the Catholic Institute for the Blind have learned of the death of Clarence J. Ramsey, who for many years has been a most devoted trustee of this worthy institute, which cares for the little blind children. His loss will be greatly felt by all who knew him.
JOHN G. NEESER, President.
BENJAMIN R. LUMMIS, Secretary.

RAMSEY—Officers and members of New York Lodge, No. 1, B. P. O. Elks: You are hereby summoned to attend funeral services of our order for Brother Clarence J. Ramsey at 796 Springfield Av., Summit, N. J., Sunday, Feb. 16, at 3 P. M.
ABRAHAM I. MENIN, Exalted Ruler.
WM. T. PHILLIPS, P. E. R., Secretary.

RAMSEY—Clarence J. The Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in the city of New York records with profound regret the death of Clarence J. Ramsey, a member of the society. Members are requested to attend the mass of requiem on Monday, Feb. 17, at 10 A. M., at St. Teresa's Church, Summit, N. J.
FRANCIS MARTIN, President.
JOSEPH F. HIGGINS, Secretary.

RAYNOR—On Friday, Feb. 14, 1930, Egon M. Raynor, aged 58 years. Funeral services will be held at the funeral chapel of A. Chester Smith, 146 Milton St., Greenpoint, Brooklyn, on Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

ROMANOFF—Meyer, on Feb. 13, 1930, beloved husband of the late Jennie and devoted father of Mrs. Ida Rifkin, Mrs. Fannie Newman, Isidore L. and Louis. Remains reposing [illegible] Summer [illegible], until Sunday, Feb. 16, [illegible] will be [illegible] Home, [illegible] (I. R. [illegible]tion), [illegible]

ROSS—Karl, devoted husband of Sylvia Lichtblau Ross, [illegible] Harry [illegible] residence [illegible] Sunday [illegible]

RUDIN—Dora, [illegible] Hospital, [illegible] will be [illegible] Parlor [illegible] 12 o'clock [illegible]

SASS—Minnie. [illegible] 65, I. O. [illegible] death [illegible] Feb. 16, [illegible] Bronx.

SCHERMERHORN—At Montclair, N. J., on Friday, Feb. 14, 1930, Leon, beloved husband of [illegible] F. Schermerhorn [illegible] Funeral [illegible] 211 Orange Road [illegible] afternoon [illegible] D., L. & W. trains leaving Hoboken at 1:39 P. M.

Deaths

SCURCO—Filomena Aquilino, age 50, wife of Luigi Scurco, 31 Hyatt Av., Yonkers, sister of Louis Aquilino, Mary Sabella, Anna Giofri and the late Jennie Monti Murro. Funeral 10 A. M. Monday, high mass St. Barnabas Church.

SHANLEY—At Newark, N. J., on Saturday, Feb. 15, 1930, Catherine T., beloved widow of John F. Shanley and beloved mother of Mrs. William R. Delehanty, Mrs. John J. Phelan, Mrs. B. J. Quinn Jr., Mrs. William J. Morris Jr. and John F. Shanley Jr., in her seventy-fourth year. Funeral from her home, 249 Ballantine Parkway, Newark, on Tuesday, Feb. 18, at 10 A. M., to St. Patrick's Cathedral, Newark, where at 10:30 A. M. a solemn high mass will be offered. Interment in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery, East Orange.

SIMON—Fannie, beloved wife of Milton, devoted daughter of Isaac and Annie Kass, dear sister of Eva, Rose, Sadie and Millie Simels. Funeral from 2,356 Grand Concourse, Sunday, Feb. 16, at 2 P. M.

SIMONS—On Jan. 27 at Gorgas Hospital, Ancon, C. Z., Staff Sergeant Ernest Berry Simons, 11th U. S. Engineers. Interment at Cypress Hills National Cemetery on Monday, Feb. 17, at 2:00 P. M. Texas papers please copy.

SMILEY—Daniel, at his home, Mohonk Lake resort, Friday, Feb. 14, after a prolonged illness. Funeral services will be held at The Friends Meeting House, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Monday, Feb. 17, at 2:30 P. M. Interment private. Philadelphia and Boston papers please copy.

SMITH—At Ormond Beach, Fla., on Saturday, Feb. 15, Emily B., widow of Thomas B. Smith. Funeral service at the residence of her son, Thomas B. Smith, 475 Argyle Road, Brooklyn, on Tuesday, Feb. 18, at 2:30 P. M. Interment private.

SMITH—Saturday, Feb. 15, at her home, 26 Tennis Place, Nutley, N. J., Sarah Caroline, widow of Clarence Horton Smith and daughter of the late James Lawrence and Lucretia Bostwick Baldwin. Funeral services private.

STARKEY—Llewellyn H., on Thursday, Feb. 13, 1930, at Miami, Fla., in his seventy-eighth year.

STARR—Nathan, of Far Rockaway, L. I., in his sixty-fourth year, father of Ada Yohalem, Charles and Sadye M. Shapiro, brother of Sam. Funeral services Sunday, 3 P. M., at West End Chapel, 200 West 91st St. Burial at Mount Zion Cemetery. Please omit flowers.

STORM—At Tarrytown, N. Y., Feb. 14, 1930, George E., beloved husband of Louise Becker Storm, in his eighty-third year. Funeral services will be held at his late residence, 23 Sunnyside Av., Sunday, the 16th inst., 2:30 P. M. Interment Sleepy Hollow Cemetery.

STRASSFIELD—Samuel, Friday, Feb. 14, suddenly, at his home, 1,024 Fox St., beloved husband of Rose. Mourned by his wife, sons and daughters.

STRAUSS—On Feb. 15, after a long illness, Henriette Strauss, beloved daughter of the late James and Amelia Strauss, at her residence, 19 West 69th St. Funeral services at Riverside Memorial Chapel, 76th St. and Amsterdam Av., Tuesday, Feb. 18, at 10 o'clock. Interment at Salem Fields Cemetery.

STRAUSS—The Woman's Thirteen Club announce with deep sorrow the death of their founder and beloved president, Henriette Strauss. Funeral services will be held at Riverside Memorial Chapel, Amsterdam Av. and 76th St., Tuesday morning, Feb. 18, 1930, at 10 o'clock.
Mrs. OWEN KILDARE, Acting Secty.

STRAUSS—New York Chapter, Daughters of the Union, announce with deep sorrow the death of their founder and beloved regent, Henriette Strauss. Funeral services will be held at Riverside Memorial Chapel, Amsterdam Av. and 76th St., Tuesday morning, Feb. 18, 1930, at 10 o'clock.
Mrs. OWEN KILDARE, Acting Secty.

STROUT—Michael, beloved father of Lydia, Michael, Emily, Elizabeth Taylor and John. Services Monday, 9:30 P. M., at his late residence, 112 East 236th St., Bronx. Interment Tuesday, 3 P. M., Woodlawn Cemetery.

SULLIVAN—On Feb. 13, May Celestine McQuade, beloved wife of Daniel F. and mother of William Gill Sullivan, daughter of Sarah Gill and the late John McQuade. Funeral from her residence, 60 Locust St., Garden City, on Monday at 10 A. M. Solemn requiem mass at St. Joseph's Church, Garden City, at 10:30 o'clock. Interment Calvary. Kindly omit flowers. Masses appreciated.

TAAFFE—Thomas J. The Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in the City of New York records with profound regret the death of Thomas J. Taaffe, a member of the society. Members are requested to attend the mass of requiem on Monday, Feb. 17, at 10 A. M., at St. Jerome's Church, Newkirk and Nostrand Avs., Brooklyn, N. Y. FRANCIS MARTIN, President.
JOSEPH F. HIGGINS, Secretary.

WACKERHAGEN—Mary, Saturday, Feb. 15, 1930, in her eighty-sixth year. Services Monday at 2 P. M., at 546 Park Place, Brooklyn.

WALTER—On Feb. 14, Rose, widow of Marcus Walter of 201 Sherman Av. Service at St. Michael's Church, Amsterdam Av. and 99th St., Monday, 2 P. M. Body reposing at Funeral Chapel, 851 Amsterdam Av., near 102d St.

WEIL—Moritz, on Feb. 14, 1930, husband of the late Adele Weil, father of the late Benjamin M. Weil and of Mrs. Joseph L. Buttenwieser, Berthold, Alfred and Jesse Weil. Services at Riverside Memorial Chapel, 180 West 76th St., Sunday, Feb. 16, at 12 M. Please omit flowers.

WEISS—[illegible] Feb. 14, beloved husband of [illegible] Weiss [illegible]rnauer, [illegible] Reposing [illegible] Services [illegible] West 91st [illegible] at 9:30 [illegible]

WEISS—[illegible] Medical [illegible] sorrowfully [illegible] Hospital [illegible]
[illegible] Directors.
[illegible] Directors.
[illegible] Board.
[illegible] Board.
[illegible] D.,
[illegible]ndent.

WEISS—Dr. Ludwig. The Ladies' Auxiliary [illegible] announce [illegible] Dr. Ludwig [illegible] honorary [illegible] extend [illegible] sympathy to [illegible] bereavement. [illegible] requested to [illegible]
Mrs. JOSEPH A. PIKE, President.
Mrs. S. R. SCHWARTZ, Corres. Secty.

Franklin Simon & Co.

A STORE OF INDIVIDUAL SHOPS
FIFTH AVENUE . . . NEW YORK

MONDAY
for Madame and Mademoiselle

THE BLACK LACE DINNER DRESS THAT WEARS A JACKET FOR TEA

39.50

This smart fashion has so many uses that it may well be the basis of one's formal wardrobe. Soft, full and long, this particular dress has the new little cut-away jacket for afternoon wear.

THE INDIVIDUAL SHOP OF BLACK AND WHITE—FOURTH FLOOR

Deaths

WEISS—Mount Neboh Lodge, No. 257, F. and A. M.: With sincere regret we inform our members of the death of our esteemed Life Member, Dr. Ludwig Weiss. Brethren are invited to attend the funeral services at West End Funeral Chapel, 200 West 91st St., today, 9:30 o'clock.
MILTON SCHATTMAN, Master.
LOUIS JEROME, Secretary.

WEISS—The Junior League of the German Polyclinic extend their sincere and heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family of Dr. Ludwig Weiss, who was dearly honored and beloved by all for his beneficence to mankind.
Mrs. RALPH STEARNS, President.
Miss ETHEL BELMONT, Corr. Sec'y.

WILMARTH—At El Paso, Texas, on Feb. 14, 1930, James C. Wilmarth, husband of Louise Roosevelt Hopper. Interment at Janesville, Wis.

WOLCOTT—Suddenly, at her home, Grange Av., Fair Haven, N. J., on Feb. 15, 1930, Julia Hutchins, widow of Henry Goodrich Wolcott, in her seventy-fifth year. Funeral services at her home, Monday, Feb. 17, upon arrival of train leaving Pennsylvania Station, New York, for Red Bank, N. J., at 2:30 P. M.

ZIMMERMAN—Morris H., of 311 West 23d St., suddenly, devoted brother of Joseph, Isaac and Harry, member of Perfect Ashlar Lodge, No. 604, F. and A. M. Services at the Riverside Memorial Chapel, 76th St. and Amsterdam Av., Monday, Feb. 17, at 1 P. M.

Cards of Thanks

MANDELBAUM—DANIELS. The family of the late Regina Mandelbaum and Adelheit Klingenstein gratefully acknowledge expressions of sympathy offered.

Memorials

COFFEE—Jacob. We cherish the blessed memory of our dearly beloved father, who departed this life Feb. 18, 1923.
MAY, SOL AND HARRY.

HARRIS—Joseph J., beloved husband, died Feb. 17, 1928.
Love's fire within my heart,
Keeps thy memory burning,
And always my thoughts are returning,
To the spot out West
Where I've laid you to rest,
To sleep 'neath the tree so tall,
My Josie, dearest of all!

HOGSETT—In loving memory of our sister Sallie and father.
HESTER AND BELLA.

JACOBS—Charles. In everlasting memory of my beloved husband and our devoted father and grandfather, who departed this life Feb. 19, 1929.
WIFE, DAUGHTER AND GRANDCHILDREN.

KLOTZ—Dolores P. In memory of my beloved wife and our darling mother, who passed away on Feb. 16, 1927.
OTTO, DOLORES AND VIRGINIA.

KRUGER—Loving memory of Deputy Fire Chief Charles W. Kruger, Feb. 14, 1908.

MAGRATH—In memory of the late Katharine Magrath (nee Mulcahey), died Feb. 16, 1929. Anniversary mass Feb. 17, 1930, at St. Rose of Lima, Parkville Av., Brooklyn, at 730 A. M. Gone but not forgotten.
MULCAHEY FAMILY.

MANGAN—In loving memory of Edward J. Mangan. The first anniversary mass at St. Patrick's Old Cathedral, Mott and Prince Sts., Feb. 22 at 9 A. M.

MORRIS—Samuel R. On Feb. 4, 1923. Nineteen days Schwat in memory of a beloved husband and devoted father.
Seven years tonight you left me
With tears and a broken heart.
But your memory will always linger
Until we never need part.
ANNIE R. MORRIS.

PLATT—Hannah. In loving memory, beloved mother, Feb. 14, 1917.
MARTHA.

REICH—Fannie. Entered eternal life Feb. 17, 1924.
There is a link death cannot sever,
Love and remembrance last forever.
ESTELLE VERESCH SIDON.

SEMPLE—In fond and loving memory of Alexander Semple, who passed on Feb. 16, 1923. Rest in peace.
JULIA SCOTT SEMPLE.

SIEGEL—Jonah M. In fond and ever loving memory of our dearly beloved father, who departed this earth Feb. 18, 1924.
His sons, ARTHUR and CARL.

SIEGEL—Jonah M. In loving memory of Joe.
SISTERS AND BROTHERS.

SNEUDAIRA—Harry J. In cherished remembrance of a beloved brother, who passed away on Feb. 16, 1919.

SPIRA—Rosa, dear, devoted mother and grandmother, who crossed the bar Feb. 5, 1929. Forever in our hearts.

SUNDELL—Bessie. Time cannot erase our most cherished memory. HER CHILDREN.

TOVIM—Henry A. In loving memory of a devoted husband and father, who passed away Feb. 17, 1929.
CLARA AND MARJORIE.

TRAINER—Anniversary mass for the repose of the souls of John B. and Alicia F. Trainer at St. Thomas's Church, 118th St., St. Nicholas Av., at 9 o'clock Feb. 19.

WINKLER—Jerry. In loving memory of our son, on his sixth birthday; departed six months ago. DAD, MOTHER.

Unveilings

COHEN—Unveiling of monument in memory of Jerome Jerry, Mount Neboh Cemetery, Feb. 16, 11 A. M. sharp.
PARENTS, MILTON.

DANTO—The unveiling of the stone in memory of my beloved husband, Joseph Danto, will take place on Sunday, Feb. 23, at 2 P. M., at Washington Cemetery. In case of rain the following Sunday. Relatives and friends are invited.

FATT—Roxana Spellman. The unveiling of memory of Roxana Spellman Fatt will be postponed to next Sunday, Feb. 23, due to inclemency of weather.

SILVERSTEIN—Isaac. Unveiling of monument in memory of our beloved father, Sunday, Feb. 23, 11 A. M., New Mount Carmel Cemetery. If rain following Sunday.

Announcements of deaths may be telephoned to Lackawanna 1000 until midnight. New Jersey residents may telephone Mulberry 3900 between 8:30 A. M. and 8 P. M. daily; Westchester residents White Plains 5300 between 9 A. M. and 5 P. M. daily; Long Island residents Garden City 3605 between 9 A. M. and 5:30 P. M. daily. Rate: $1.00 an agate line; $1.20 Sunday.

UNDERTAKERS.

CAMPBELL SERVICE
Women Embalmers for Women
Call—TRAfalgar 8200
FRANK·E·CAMPBELL
"The Funeral Church" Inc. (NON SECTARIAN)
Broadway at 66th Street, N.Y.

MEMORIAL CHAPEL
ENDICOTT 6600
RIVERSIDE
76th St. Amsterdam Avenue
DIGNIFIED SERVICE

CEMETERIES.

MOUNT HOPE
Non-Sectarian CEMETERY
Westchester County, New York
Accessible by train, trolley or bus
Photographic Booklet Upon Request
New York Office
522 Fifth Ave. at 44th St.
Phone Murray Hill 1930

MOUNT PLEASANT CEMETERY
A modern Park Cemetery on the Bronx River Parkway, Westchester County, where prices are reasonable. Booklet. 2 West 44th. Susquehanna 1730.

THE WOODLAWN CEMETERY.
Lexington Av. Subway to Woodlawn (233d St.) Office, 20 East 23d St., N. Y. Telephone Olinville 4300 or Algonquin 4470.

WOODLAWN CEMETERY—Half lot and monument for sale. Charles Potter, 160 Broadway.

FOR FAMILY RECORDS.

By purchasing a rag paper copy of The New York Times, of which a limited edition is printed each day, family records of births, deaths, engagements and marriages announced in the regular city edition may be preserved indefinitely. Weekly edition, per copy, 75 cents; Sundays, $1.25. —Advt.

FLIGHT TO PANAMA MADE WITH STOP

Lieutenants W. W. White and Clements McMullen Complete Hop From Miami.

FLY AT 120 MILES AN HOUR

They Leave Today for Lima on Trip From This City to Buenos Aires to Establish Records.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
COLON, Feb. 15.—The first non-stop flight by a heavier-than-air machine between the United States and the Panama Canal was completed here at 6:13 P. M. today with the arrival at France Field of Lieutenants Will W. White and Clements McMullen, who left Miami at 6:47 o'clock this morning.

The flight of 1,390 miles was made without difficulty in 11 hours and 26 minutes at an average speed of 120 miles an hour. Thirty gallons of gasoline remained of the 220 which were in the tanks when the plane left Miami. Strong head winds from Port Limon, Costa Rica, cut down the flying time, as the hourly average up to then had been 130 miles.

Lieutenant White said:

"I'm not tired, but I want to get to sleep right away, as we leave early tomorrow for Lima, Peru. We have to be in Santiago Monday."

The route today was over the Isle of Pines, Grand Cayman, Cape Gracias, Adios and Port Limon. The plane is equipped with a radio set and kept in constant touch with the radio system of the Pan-American Airways, reporting its position every half hour. The craft was first sighted here at 6:10 P. M. when it flashed white out of a dark cloud bank over Limon Bay.

It circled the field in a business-like manner and then made a perfect landing. Only a newspaper correspondent, a few Army officers of France Field, employes of the Pan-American Airways and fifteen or twenty other persons greeted the plane which made the first non-stop flight across the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea from Continental United States to the Panama Canal.

The route was practically the same as that over when the Pan-American Airways plans to establish a twelve-hour service between Colon and Miami next year. Lieutenants White and McMullen are flying a Lockheed-Vega monoplane, with a Pratt & Whitney Wasp motor. They started from New York and will fly to Buenos Aires, 6,900 miles, and expect to complete the trip Tuesday, thus establishing a new record between the principal cities of North and South America. They are leaving here early tomorrow. They will stop at Talara and Lima, Peru, and Antofagasta and Santiago, Chile.

WANT LEGAL EXPERTS FOR SUBMARINE PACT

Americans Believe Them Better Qualified Than Diplomats or Naval Men.

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP).—The American delegation to the naval conference will insist that the approach made to shaping a treaty to limit the activities of submarines in warfare be mainly along legal lines.

Secretary Stimson is known to feel that legal experts are best qualified to draw up an agreement for the solution of this problem, rather than diplomats or naval experts.

In the corridors of the delegation headquarters at the Ritz Hotel tonight two names were being prominently mentioned for the American members of the subcommittee. They were those of George Rublee, special adviser to Ambassador Morrow, who is noted for his legal ability, and of Keith Merrill, an expert in treaty drafting and in the legal work connected with it.

Mr. Stimson feels that a treaty dealing with checks on submarine warfare should not be drafted from the routine naval viewpoint, nor be obscured by diplomatic phraseology. In accord with the rest of the delegation, he desires to have the treaty proposed by the French drafted in the strongest and most binding manner possible.

The American delegation generally looks upon the prospective treaty on submarines as a matter second in importance only to the general limitation pact for which the conference was called into being.

Since this view became definite, the Americans have done their utmost to make the treaty as specific as possible, so that it can be considered as an immediate and outstanding accomplishment of the conference.

PLETCHKAITIS SENTENCED.

Lithuanian Revolutionist and Five Others Get German Prison Terms.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
INSTERBURG, Germany, Feb. 15.—Jeronim Pletchkaitis, Lithuanian revolutionist, who with five confederates was arrested last September near the German-Polish border, was sentenced to three years in prison today for various offenses, including violation of passport regulations and carrying arms and bombs without permission. Each of his companions was sentenced to two years in prison.

When arrested, the Lithuanians carried with them two rifles, six pistols, 622 cartridges, seven bombs, four hand grenades and several charts and sketches of important buildings in Lithuania.

M. Pletchkaitis had been living in Vilna since he organized an unsuccessful Lithuanian uprising in September, 1927.

During the trial he demanded that Lithuanian police be excluded from the courtroom because he was unable to answer questions in their presence without endangering his wife and political friends in Lithuania. Witnesses testified the Lithuanian Government forced M. Pletchkaitis's wife to divorce him last May and that police confiscated money he sent to her from Poland. The Lithuanian police spread a rumor that his wife had been mistreated in an attempt to lure him into Lithuania.

Brothers Lashed for Chicken Theft.

WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 15 (AP).—Frank Dickerson, aged 24, and his brother James, 27, received five lashes each at the whipping post in the Newcastle County workhouse today. The lashes were applied by Elmer J. Leach, the warden. The men had pleaded guilty at Georgetown to stealing chickens and other fowl. Frank Dickerson, who had recently completed a prison term, was sentenced to 2½ years, and James Dickerson to six months, in addition to the whipping.

Deer Saved From Valhalla Ice; Rewards Rescuers With Kicks

Special to The New York Times.
WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 15.—A young and ungrateful deer was saved today 1,060 yards out on the treacherous ice of the Kensico Reservoir at Valhalla. The young buck had fallen on the ice and was unable to get up.

Arthur J. Brown Jr., son of a watershed inspector, saw the animal from the shore. With George Campbell, a garage proprietor, and George Petry, Valhalla Postmaster, he set out to effect a rescue. They pulled a rowboat with them to save themselves if the ice broke.

But their troubles started only when they reached the deer. The frightened animal kicked violently as they came up and resisted all their efforts. After a struggle, however, the men succeeded in trussing it up and loading it into the boat.

Set free on the shore the deer offered its rescuers one kick apiece and disappeared into the woods.

UP-STATE COURT ACTS IN WORTH SANITY CASE

Amsterdam Justice Orders Dannemora Hospital Head to Produce Prisoner on April 21.

Sidney I. Prager, attorney, of 150 William Street, announced yesterday that he had received by mail a writ of habeas corpus signed by Supreme Court Justice Christopher J. Heffernan of Amsterdam, N. Y., on Friday, directing Dr. Charles M. Burdick, medical superintendent of Dannemora State Hospital, to produce George S. Worth, now held in the hospital as insane, before the Supreme Court in Plattsburg, N. Y., on April 21, so that the court might inquire into his detention.

The signing of the writ follows efforts by Mr. Prager to have Worth transferred back to prison by other judges, so that he might be pardoned. Worth, a war veteran and a drug clerk, formerly of 289 East Ninety-eighth Street, was sentenced by Judge Allen in General Sessions on Dec. 19, 1927, to from one and a half to three years in Sing Sing for throwing muriatic acid in the face of his wife, Mrs. Norma Worth, from whom he had been separated.

The jury that convicted Worth of second degree assault recommended mercy and on the strength of that Mr. Prager, a former Assistant United States Attorney, will ask Governor Roosevelt to pardon Worth, who has served his minimum term. Worth was sent from Sing Sing to Great Meadow prison and later to the Dannemora State Hospital.

Worth, according to law, must serve his maximum term unless found sane, which his lawyer contends he is.

While awaiting the hearing on his writ, Mr. Prager said yesterday, he will seek remedial legislation at Albany to change the law so that prisoners committed to State sanatoria might have a court test of sanity more easily. He will have a psychiatrist in court on April 21, he said.

ACOSTA IS SENTENCED TO SIX MONTHS IN JAIL

Flier Was Ordered by Court a Month Ago to Take Steps to Provide for His Family.

Special to The New York Times.
MINEOLA, L. I., Feb. 15.—Appearing in the Nassau County court for the third time in a month, Bert Acosta, who flew across the Atlantic three years ago, was sentenced today by County Judge Lewis J. Smith to six months in the county jail for failure to provide for his wife, Helen, and their two sons, Bertrand Jr. and Allyn.

The charge of abandonment was brought by Mrs. Acosta on Jan. 7. He was arrested at her home in Freeport. She said he had failed to provide for the children for some time and she had been working to support them. She also charged that Acosta had been attentive to other women, against one of whom Mrs. Acosta had brought an action for alienation of her husband's affection.

When arraigned Acosta said that he had experienced business reverses in the past year, but hoped to find employment if relieved by the court. He was again summoned before Judge Smith last week and reprimanded for his failure to improve his status during the month. The court then informed him that he would be sentenced today unless he had done something for his family in the meantime.

1913 IOWA EXPOSE BY BROOKHART SHOWN

Files Disclose His Paper's Attack on National Guard Party, Similar to Revelations at Capital.

Special to The New York Times.
WASHINGTON, Iowa, Feb. 15.—Newspaper files consulted today disclose that when Senator Smith W. Brookhart told of liquor drinking at a recent national capital dinner he was duplicating similar revelations he made about indulgence in intoxicants at an encampment of the Fifty-fourth Iowa Infantry Regiment of the National Guard in a pasture east of this town in 1913.

Some of the officers of the regiment belonged to a club which they called the "Merrimac." At the night meeting of this club beer was drunk and poetry recited.

Colonel Brookhart and his late brother, James L. Brookhart, were conducting The Washington County Press, a weekly newspaper, at the time. Two months after the camp had been closed this paper published a leading editorial recounting the doings of the "Merrimac," but did not name the drinkers.

This is the incident to which Senator Brookhart referred in his recent debate at Cleveland with Representative La Guardia of New York, in which the Senator said:

"As a National Guard officer, I drove liquor out of our camp."

DENIES UNIT BANKS WILL BE DISPLACED

W. J. Evans, Head of Institute of Banking, Asserts Branch System Will Not Oust Them.

HOLDS THEY FILL A NEED

William B. Stout Contrasts the Safety of Aerial Travel to That of Motoring.

"The old unit bank will always fill a definite need in its community, despite claims that branch banking will make the unit banks obsolete," W. J. Evans, president of the American Institute of Banking, said at the twenty-ninth annual dinner of the New York Chapter in the Hotel Astor last night. Mr. Evans, of Dallas, Texas, was the guest of honor at the dinner, at which Alan G. Warner, president of the New York Chapter, presided.

William B. Stout of Detroit, head of Stout Air Services and the Stout Metal Airplane Company, was the speaker of the evening. He extolled the safety of air travel contrasted with the automobile. Describing the aircraft industry as "the only business in the world which makes an asset out of overhead," Mr. Stout said that aviation is going to have a tremendous financial importance in the future, and that great advances would come from small inventors working in shacks as much as from great engineering organizations.

Bankers at the speakers' table included Philip A. Benson, president of the New York Savings Bank Associaiton; George McLaughlin, president of the Brooklyn Trust Company; J. Stewart Baker, president of the Bank of Manhattan Trust Company; Henry A. Patten, president of the Corn Exchange Bank and Trust Company; Charles S. McCain, president of the Chase National Bank; Winthrop Aldrich, president of the Equitable Trust Company; Harry E. Ward, president of the Irving Trust Company; John McHugh, chairman of the executive committee of the Chase National Bank; J. Herbert Case, deputy governor of the Federal Reserve Bank; William K. Payne, president of the New York State Bankers' Association, and Joseph A. Broderick, superintendent of banking of New York.

Dr. Milo H. Gates, dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, rendered the invocation.

URGE WILBUR TO LET BOULDER DAM POWER

Irrigation Committees of Both Houses Say Nothing Is to Be Gained by Delaying Contracts.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP).—Secretary Wilbur was urged by members of the Senate and House irrigation committees today to "go ahead" with the letting of power contracts at Boulder Dam.

The two committees met at the Department of Interior with the Secretary, who had invited them to present their views.

Asserting there was nothing to be gained by delay and that further conferences between representatives of interested States would only intensify the differences of opinion, Senator Johnson of California said administration of the project should go forward immediately. Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, also urged that the negotiations be completed and the work expedited.

Senators Pittman, Democrat, and Oddie, Republican, of Nevada, voiced the only objection to the tentative allocation of power made by Secretary Wilbur last October. They asserted that Nevada should be granted a greater allotment of power than 18 per cent, as has been suggested.

"Nevada applied for one-third of the power, and she bases her claims on the seven-State compact, which is the foundation of the Boulder Canyon project act," Pittman said. "The compact attempted to equally divide the uses of the water."

At the conclusion of the conference Secretary Wilbur said that he was pleased at the progress. He added that power contracts probably would be let as soon as the legal staff of the department had completed details of their preparation.

RAILROAD GUARD KILLS BOY

Gang Stoned Him and He Fired Into Air, Special Policeman Says.

Special to The New York Times.
CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 15.—Jerome Singleton, 9 years old, a negro accused of being a member of a gang of boys stealing waste from the Pennsylvania Railroad freight yards here, was shot and killed this afternoon by Stacey Dooling, a railroad policeman. Dooling, who is 60, declares he fired into the air. He was arrested on a manslaughter charge and released in $1,500 bail for a hearing Monday before Police Judge Garfield Pancoast.

Captain J. M. Amos, in charge of the railroad police at Camden, said the dead boy was one of at least twenty who stoned a train crew that had attempted to chase them. The trainmen called upon Dooling for aid.

The policeman, Captain Amos continued, then became the target of bricks and bottles, and he fired six times in the air to scare the gang.

"Dooling had no idea that any of the bullets had struck any one," Captain Amos declared. Maurice Devone, a motorist, started for Cooper Hospital with the boy. His car collided wth another machine a few blocks away and both the dead boy and Devone were taken to the hospital in a police ambulance.

FLIERS SEEK NEW RECORDS.

Frenchmen Plan to Fly 3,100 Miles With 2,200 Pounds of Freight.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
PARIS, Feb. 15.—In their famous red biplane, the Interrogation Point, which broke both distance and endurance records last year, the French fliers Coste and Codos today began a circuit in an attempt to capture more world records.

Carrying a freight load of 1,000 kilograms (2,200 pounds), they expect to fly 5,000 kilometers (3,100 miles), setting speed, distance and endurance records for a flight with that cargo. Their circuit course is from Istres to Nimes and Narbonne and back to Istres. They started at 4:07 o'clock this afternoon.

25-Mile Record Made in Utah Dog Derby; Earl Kimball Makes It in First Day of Contest

OGDEN, Utah, Feb. 15 (AP).—Driving for a part of the distance over bare pavement, Earl Kimball of Reno, Nev., today made what was announced as a new world's record for twenty-five miles when he won the first day's heat of the Wasatch Dog Derby in 1 hour, 33 minutes and 8 seconds.

The world's record was said to have been set by Bill Trude in the American Derby at Ashton, Idaho, in 1926, when he covered the distance in 1 hour, 55 minutes and 35 seconds. The course today was measured as 25.2 miles.

Delbert Groce of Sacramento, Cal., was second today in 1:57:02 and Thula Geelan, representing San Francisco, the only woman driver, came in third in 1:59:41.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 15 (AP).—Driving seven Siberian huskies, Dr. F. J. D'Avignon of Lake Placid today won the annual two-day sled dog derby of the Lake Placid Athletic Club.

The winning team ran the twelve miles in today's lap in 1 hour and 7 minutes, making its time for the two days 2 hours 16 minutes 24 seconds. Dr. Beverly Sproul of New York City, driving seven Labrador huskies, was placed second with a total time of 2 hours 23 minutes 39 seconds.

Other Lake Placid racers finished in the following order:

Jacques Huzanne, Clark Hayes and Wesley Moody. Ezra Richards, aged 14, won the junior half-mile race, with Howard Crossett, second.

RICE, IN PRISON, SUED FOR A SEPARATION

Woman He Wed on Way to Sing Sing in 1895 Charges Promoter Abandoned Her.

SAYS SHE WORKED FOR HIM

Declares Swindler Told Her That He Married Her to Receive Luxuries in Jail.

An order signed yesterday by Federal Judge Knox permits the service on George Graham Rice, who was born Jacob Simon Herzig, of papers in an action for separation and maintenance instituted by his wife, Mrs. Theramutis Ivey Herzig, in the State courts. Rice, who was convicted of mail fraud in the sale of Idaho copper stock and sentenced to four years in the Atlanta Penitentiary, is in the Federal detention prison awaiting the result of an application to the United States Supreme Court for a review of his trial.

The application for the service order was made by Avel B. Silverman, counsel for Mrs. Herzig, who says in her complaint that she was married to Herzig about April 19, 1895, and that for a long period her husband had failed to provide for her. She described herself as the daughter of a minister in Ontario, Canada. In an affidavit accompanying the complaint she says she was married to Herzig by a minister on a train on which he was being taken to Sing Sing prison to serve a term of not more than six years for forgery.

Mrs. Herzig describes her efforts to earn a living and of the dissatisfaction allegedly expressed by her husband because she could not earn enough to supply him with things which he wanted while in prison. He later told her, she alleges, that their marriage was not legal because he was a convict when it occurred, and that the reason he married her was because he wanted some one to look after him while he was in prison and provide him with luxuries. He told her, according to the affidavit, that unless she could give him what he wanted she need not call on him.

Mrs. Herzig says that she was only 17 years old at the time. She says she believed Herzig's statement that their marriage was not legal. Under the impression that she was free she married a Max Gilmore in 1896 after she had made a full confession to him. But Gilmore, she says, brought an action for annulment, which she permitted to go by default.

In 1911, according to the affidavit, she received a subpoena to appear before a referee in a proceeding for divorce brought by Frances Drake Rice against the defendant. This was the first she knew anything about this marriage to Miss Drake, which, she says, occurred on June 13, 1900.

SHIP GOES AGROUND AT COLUMBIA'S MOUTH

Coast Vessel, the Admiral Benson, Ask Coast Guard Aid in Pulling Off Sandbar.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 15 (AP).—The steamship Admiral Benson was reported ashore near the mouth of the Columbia River in a message picked up here tonight by the Seattle Harbor radio station. No details were given.

The ship was bound to Portland, Ore., from San Francisco.

The Admiral Benson is owned by the Admiral Line and is operated in the coastwise trade. The ship is 2,308 tons net and was built by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation at Wilmington, Del., in 1918. The vessel is 299.6 feet long, 45 feet wide and 22.6 feet deep. San Francisco is the ship's home port.

ASTORIA, Ore., Feb. 15 (AP).—The Coast Guard cutter Redwing, stationed here, received a message from the steamship Admiral Benson, ashore in the mouth of the Columbia River, asking the cutter's assistance in pulling off a sandbar.

AMERICAN FETE IN FRANCE.

Mt. Vernon Reception to Lafayette in 1782 to Be Re-Enacted March 12.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
PARIS, Feb. 15.—Plans have been completed for the largest Franco-American charity fête since the war, in which Sacha Guitry, the distinguished French actor, will present a notable episode of American history. The reception given at Mount Vernon in 1782 by General Washington to thank General Lafayette and the French army for their services rendered to the American colonies in the War of Independence will be reproduced with great historical accuracy on the night of March 12 at the Théâtre des Champs Elysées.

Yvonne Printemps, René Maupré and a large group of other French artists will participate. M. Guitry will play the rôle of Washington.

The fête is under the patronage of President Gaston Doumergue of the French Republic, Premier André Tardieu, Foreign Minister Aristide Briand and the United States Ambassador, Walter Evans Edge, all of whom have promised to be present. A notable list of well-known American and French women are directing the organization of the fête. Its proceeds will aid in the social service work of the Franco-American colony, which looks after hundreds of poor Parisian children.

CALLS A LOCK-OUT OF HOUSEWRECKERS

Employers' Association Acts on Strike of 100 Men on Jobs of Volk Company.

NINE WORKERS IN COURT

Pickets Accused of Criminal Libel in Protesting "Break Through" Method of Wrecking.

A lock-out against 300 members of the Housewreckers' Union was declared at a metting of the Housewreckers' Association, the organization of the employers, at 1,819 Broadway, it was announced last night. The lock-out, effective tomorrow morning, will be joined in by the thirty members of the association as a protest against a strike of about 100 men called by the union on the jobs of the Albert A. Volk Company.

Association members said that the strike was a breach of their agreement with the union, which stipulates that arbitration must be resorted to in case of dispute.

Union officials, however, charged that the provision that employers are to put up bonds has been disregarded and that the agreement has therefore not really been in effect. The strike was called by the union in order to end the "breaking through" demolition methods, which workers say endanger their lives.

Nine house wreckers appeared in Jefferson Market Court yesterday to answer summonses served on them at the request of Albert A. Volk, head of the Albert A. Volk Company, charging them with criminal libel because while picketing three jobs of Mr. Volk's company they wore placards that they were on strike for safe working conditions and that "five men were killed in 1929 on this company's jobs."

The pickets were in court with a group of people whom Edward C. Maguire, counsel for the union, described as the widows, children and relatives of the five men killed on Mr. Volk's jobs. Mr. Volk said on Friday that four men had been killed on two of his jobs, but that the deaths could not be ascribed to the "break through" method of wrecking buildings against which the union is protesting.

The case was adjourned until Wednesday at the request of Mr. Volk, as he wished to serve other pickets and have all in court at the same time.

Mr. Volk said: "This hue and cry of 'unsafe' is a smoke screen to cover up a conspiracy between the Second-hand Brick Dealers' Association, a Teamsters' Union and Housewreckers' Union Local 95, the two latter represented by Edward C. Maguire, a paid attorney. They wish to prevent the use of steam shovels for loading bricks and rubbish and prolong the jobs by the use of man labor pushing wheelbarrows."

MISS PENDLETON HONORED.

Wellesley Head Will Represent Women's Colleges at Havana.

WELLESLEY, Mass., Feb. 15 (AP).—President Ellen Fitz Pendleton of Wellesley College has been appointed by the State Department to represent the women's colleges of the United States at the Inter-American Congress of Rectors, Deans and Educators which will open at Havana on Feb. 20, it was announced today.

The conference will have as its object the betterment of cultural and educational relations between the United States and Latin America. Steps will be taken to promote studies tending to develop mutual understanding in languages, literature, history and geography and to create special chairs in those subjects.

It is also hoped to stimulate cooperation among scientists, professional and cultural bodies and the formation of specialized inter-American associations for the purpose of working out international projects.

President Pendleton has long been a leader in education and has been actively interested in the Institute of Politics at Williamstown, Mass.

18 SEEK ANNAPOLIS PLACES

Gavagan Arranges Tests to Fill Four Vacancies at Academy.

Eighteen young men, residents of the Twenty-first Congressional District, took written examinations yesterday morning at Townsend Harris Hall, 138th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, arranged by Representative Joseph A. Gavagan to determine his four nominations for vacancies in the United States Naval Academy. The papers, prepared by Philip J. Sinnott, secretary of the Board of Higher Education; Professor Paul J. McCauley of St. John's College Law School, and Dr. Joseph Kahn, former lecturer at New York University, included a general intelligence test as well as mathematics and English.

The winners in the written test will receive an oral test from the examiners within ten days. The winners in this competition will be designated by Mr. Gavagan. The candidates are:

John H. Andrews	William Kneller
William Chisholm	Constantine Mathas
Francis Connolly	T. J. Mulcahy Jr.
Leonard Flynn	Daniel R. Piper
Harold Franklin	Stephen Reidy
Hugh Greene	Daniel A. Slack
Gerald Hans	Stanley Smellie
Arthur E. House	William Smith
Edward H. King	Albert R. Weldon

Dies in Carolina of Auto Injuries.

WALTERBORO, S. C., Feb. 15 (AP).—Mrs. M. Granitz of Atlantic City, N. J., died last night of injuries received yesterday when her automobile sideswiped another near here. Her husband was slightly injured.

URGES AUTONOMY FOR PHILIPPINES

Senator Hawes, in Radio Talk, Declares Independence Is Only a Question of Time.

ASSAILS 'TORIES' IN ISLANDS

The Same Fate Awaits Them That Americans Met Who Opposed the Struggle of the Colonies, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Declaring that national promise and national honor call for the ultimate independence of the Philippines, Senator Harry B. Hawes, Democrat, of Missouri, in a radio address today, held that "the subject resolves itself into a question of time, method and agreement."

Denying the probability of disorders in the islands, Mr. Hawes said that during the World War all American troops were withdrawn and no disorder occurred.

"There are more killing and affairs of violence in Chicago than in all the Philippines," he added. "In the event independence is granted, there will come, of course, a period of depression, a period of struggle, a period of readjustment. There will be some conflicts of opinion, but there have been such conflicts in America.

"They understand this, they are willing to make the sacrifice, and I am sure that they do not put their cocoanut oil, their sugar, their rice or their hemp fields in higher importance than their liberty and the right to govern themselves."

Referring to the Philippines' independence as it might affect naval strategy in the event of war, Mr. Hawes said:

"No naval or army authority will claim that if war trouble comes from the Orient we could expect to hold these islands, which are within thirty hours of Japan. They could not be held, they would be lost. It is true that they could be recovered, but an attempt to hold them would be futile."

Mr. Hawes said that the thought of changing the characteristics of the Filipinos was "a dream, iridescent, incapable of realization."

"They will always be Malays, they will always think with a Malay mind," he said. "They will undoubtedly adopt our form of government if given their independence. They may not interpret it exactly as we do. They will have their own political philosophy which will not be the same as ours, but I believe they now understand the theory of liberty and self-government and should be permitted to interpret it in their own way."

Regarding the exclusion of Chinese and Japanese and the admission of Filipinos as citizens coming from American territory, Mr. Hawes said that 68,000 Filipinos in the United States are competing with American labor and that farm and labor organizations were complaining of this competition.

"There is a subtle propaganda by word of mouth that the Philippines do not want independence," Mr. Hawes continued, "that they are making an idle motion merely to secure home applause and approval in their own country. But, so far, all that we have heard is the united voice of all the Philippine people expressed in their national congress, by old Aquinaldo, their national hero, in communications by their leading business men and by every group in the islands.

"Of course, we will find Tories in the Philippines, as we found them in America. We know what happened to the Tories in America when the Colonists struggled for their liberty. The same fate awaits the Philippine Tories, condemnation, execration and removal."

TILDSLEY'S CRITICISM SILENCED BY O'SHEA

Superintendent Orders Him to Make No More Statements on Efficiency of School System.

Dr. John L. Tildsley, district superintendent in charge of secondary schools, has been instructed to make no more public statements on the controversy concerning the efficiency of the system, Superintendent William J. O'Shea declared yesterday.

"I want this controversy stopped, and so told Dr. Tildsley," Dr. O'Shea said. "We are not here to engage in controversies. I told Dr. Tildsley to attend to his business."

Dr. Tildsley said that he would conform to the wishes of the superintendent. Last Saturday the district superintendent charged publicly that the elementary school instruction was poor and called for the elimination of political influences as a first step in improving instruction and reforming the system. Dr. Tildsley had declared that there was no hope for educational betterment until the present membership of the Board of Education was replaced by men "genuinely interested in education."

Dr. O'Shea thereupon announced that he would appoint a committee to study a report made by Dr. Tildsley. Dr. Tildsley was questioned by the Board of Superintendents at a special session, and afterward Dr. O'Shea reported to George J. Ryan, president of the Board of Education, leaving it to him to reply to the charges. But Mr. Ryan has made no statement yet.

REJECTS WACO LINE'S PLEA.

I. C. C. Bars It From Missouri Pacific Merger Proposals.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP).—The petition of the Waco, Beaumont, Trinity & Sabine Railway for reopening hearings on the unification proposals of the Missouri Pacific Railroad to include the Waco was denied today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Missouri Pacific has applied to the commission for authorization to lease a number of short lines, the stock of which it already owns, and the Waco desires to be included.

In the consolidation plan of the commission, the Waco was assigned to the Southern Pacific System, but this latter road has rejected proposals to buy the short line. As a result, the Waco also has a petition pending before the commission to reopen the consolidation plan for the purpose of assigning the road to the Missouri Pacific System.

Nassau and Hempstead Sued For Crash of Private Plane

Special to The New York Times.
MINEOLA, L. I., Feb. 15.—The complaint in a joint action for damages for personal injuries and loss of property against the county of Nassau and the town of Hempstead was filed here today with the Board of Supervisors, the County Attorney and the County Controller, on behalf of Daniel Saysak and his wife, Emily. Their house in East Meadow was damaged by a privately owned airplane, which struck it on Feb. 6. Personal damages resulting from injuries to Mrs. Saysak are put at $112,500.

An additional $3,200 for damage to the house and property is asked.

The plane was piloted by Elliott de Lisser of New York, who was killed in the crash. The suit is based on the right of the owner of property to the air above it and the alleged negligence of the authorities to protect that right.

WOMEN'S PRESS CLUB OBSERVES 41ST YEAR

600 Members and Guests Hear Prof. Lamont, Who Declares Fiction Aids Fight on War.

The forty-first anniversary of the founding of the Women's Press Club of New York was observed yesterday at the annual luncheon, attended by more than 600 members and guests in the Hotel Pennsylvania.

In an address entitled "Fiction's Attack on War," William H. F. Lamont, professor, of Rutgers University, saw the condemnation of modern warfare in the fiction in the wake of the World War.

Successful wars were always followed by romantic, heroic and patriotic literature, he said, while lost wars were reflected in sordid, realistic fiction. That the best fiction products in all participating countries of the World War are equally sad and realistic proves that the war was not won by any nation, Mr. Lamont asserted. "Only war profiteers and death have won," he added, "while the rest of humanity suffered and lost."

District Attorney Crain commented on the great responsibility attached to the power of the press. James W. Barrett, city editor of The New York World, invited women writers to join the crusading forces of the city rooms. Other speakers included J. Fogarty, Mayor of Yonkers; Mrs. Frank Shuler, president of the New York Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. William McCarroll, president of the Sorosis; Judge Charles W. Boote, Judge Clarice M. Bayright, Mrs. May G. Schaefer, president of the Soroptimist Club of the Bronx, and Miss Marjorie Shuler of the Christian Science Monitor.

Mrs. Louis Reed Welzmiller, president of the club, was chairman of the luncheon and was introduced by Mrs. Mary Ellen Wilson, first vice president.

CUTTING HERE URGES FIGHT ON CENSORSHIP

Asks Support for His Tariff Bill Amendment—Vestal Explains Copyright Measure.

The book censorship provisions of the tariff bill and the proposed revision of the copyright law were discussed by Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico and Representative Albert H. Vestal of Indiana at a meeting last night of the P. E. N. Club at 130 West Fifty-sixth Street. Nearly 100 authors, editors, playwrights, poets and publishers attended.

Senator Cutting, whose amendment eliminating the ban on the importation of obscene literature from the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill was carried by two votes, warned the club that an even stiffer fight will be made when the bill comes up for final passage by the Senate. He urged the members to communicate with their Senators in order to help forestall a switching of votes.

"On a question of this sort when really very few thinking men and women believe in the suppression of free speech and thought, the opposition of authors and editors could make things very unpleasant for men in public life," said Senator Cutting. He added that he had received no opposition from any religious organization.

Mr. Vestal, who has introduced in the House a bill which would revise the copyright law, said that there were four principal changes embodied in the proposed revision. The first, he said, would legalize the present trade practice of permitting the division of rights of authors, the second seeks to extend the copyright laws to embrace the new developments of science, the third looks toward a rapprochement with the copyright union, and the fourth to a change in the copyright term from the present period of twenty-eight years with a privilege of a renewal of twenty-eight years to a period of the author's life-time plus fifty years.

Will Irwin, president of the American Centre of the club, presided.

PLANS GREENLAND POSTS.

German Professor Will Establish Three Observation Stations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
COPENHAGEN, Feb. 15.—A German professor, Alfred Wegener, who has once before visited Greenland, now is planning to establish three observation stations—one on the east coast on Scoresby Sound, one on the west coast on Disco Bay and the third in the centre on inland ice at a height of 10,000 feet.

His expedition will include seventeen members, who will spend the Winter of 1930-31 at the observation stations. Professor Wegener will employ sleighs driven by airplane propellers for the journey across Greenland.

Choir of Jewish Workers' Alliance.

The choir of the Jewish National Workers' Alliance gave its eighth annual concert last night in Mecca Temple before a large audience. Handel's oratorio, "Judas Maccabaeus," was sung in Yiddish under the direction of Leo Low, the first time, it was said, that the work had been given in that language. The soloists included Lazarow Schaver, soprano; Rose Starkman, contralto; Dmitri Dobkin, tenor and Jacob Sivovits, bass.

MUSEUM TO HONOR DAVIES BY DISPLAY

Oil and Water Paintings, Rugs and Bronzes to Be Shown at Memorial Exhibition Here.

EARLIEST WORK ON VIEW

Pictures to Range From "Little Lamb" of Early Days to Works in Cubist Technique.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art will open to the public on Tuesday a memorial exhibition of the works of Arthur B. Davies, noted American artist who died in Italy in 1928. Tomorrow the exhibition will be shown to members of the museum and their friends.

Few artists have been honored by the Metropolitan with memorial exhibitions. The most recent displays of this type were devoted to the work of John Singer Sargent and George Bellows. None of the artists thus honored by the museum sought artistic expression in such a wide variety of media as did Mr. Davies.

The present exhibition at the Metropolitan testifies amply to the wide range of his talents. His creative instinct found play in oils, water colors, lithographs, drawings, etchings, bronzes, tapestries, rugs, enamels and glass.

Tapestries on Display.

In the last few years of his life Mr. Davies devoted much of his time to designing tapestries, which were woven in Paris by workers of the Gobelin plant and which are being shown publicly for the first time in this exhibition.

The entire career of Mr. Davies is illustrated in the current show, from the spontaneous, unstudied painting "Little Lamb," the first canvas by Mr. Davies to be sold from an exhibition, to tapestries and rugs completed since his death. An early decorative work is the sketch for a court room decoration submitted in a competition in 1897.

After Mr. Davies's very early period his technical skill developed rapidly. Among the works which rank as among the most beautiful in the exhibition are "Illimitable Dawn," lent by H. H. Benedict, and the well-known "Unicorns," lent anonymously.

Developed Cubist Technique.

Mr. Davies's trip to California about 1905 resulted in the introduction of a new note of grandeur into his paintings, and portrayal of country around the Hudson River gave way to larger landscapes and portrayals of great groves of redwood trees. His paintings of 1910 show a tendency toward the post-impressionistic style which he later practiced. After the armory show here in 1913 his work became cubistic in design, though retaining his marked personality. The paintings of a still later period show a trace of Chinese influence.

The final phase of Mr. Davies's painting is illustrated by water color landscapes done in France, Spain and Italy. The tapestries and rugs show marked variety of design and technique.

Art museums and private collectors have lent works for the exhibition, which includes some 200 pieces. The Brooklyn Museum, the Art Institute of Chicago, the Montclair Art Museum, the New Haven Colony Historical Society, Phillips Academy in Andover, Mass., and the Phillips Memorial Gallery in Washington all sent works for the exhibition. Private collectors who made loans include Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Wendell T. Bush, Frank L. Babbott, Miss Alice Boughton, Stephen C. Clark, Philip S. Collins, Mrs. Rainey Rogers, Martin A. Ryerson and Mrs. Charles C. Rumsey. The exhibition will continue through March 30.

TARDIEU KEPT IN BY A COLD.

French Premier Nevertheless Has Long Talk With Finance Minister.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
PARIS, Feb. 15.—Premier Tardieu caught cold while crossing the Channel from London yesterday and was confined to his apartment all day today. His indisposition did not prevent numerous conferences with Cabinet members and political leaders, and notably a long interview with Finance Minister Chéron.

Premier Tardieu, it is understood, approved M. Chéron's firm defense of the Poincaré program, with the exception of a desire to compromise on the veterans' pensions question. It is believed the Premier next week will ask a vote of confidence in the financial disputes.

It is M. Tardieu's intention to return to London Wednesday, to remain until Friday, when he will return to Paris.

TO TEACH HISTORY OF EVIL.

Corra Harris Will Conduct Course at Rollins College.

Special to The New York Times.
WINTER PARK, Fla., Feb. 15.—What might be called a "course in evil" has been established at Rollins College, President Hamilton Holt announced today. Corra Harris, the novelist, has consented to conduct such a course during the Winter school term. Her students will be selected from the more advanced groups.

President Holt was careful to point out that Mrs. Harris's course, actually, will be a course in virtue.

"Of course, it will not take up the practice of evil," he emphasized, "but rather the history and philosophy of it as contrasted to virtue, and it is likely that the effects of evil upon history and life will be discussed by the class."

PREDICTS ANOTHER WAR.

Hungarian Chief Justice Declares Armaments Are Increasing.

Special to The New York Times.
HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 15.—Alexis Deboer, chief justice of the Supreme Court of Hungary, said in an address here today that instead of marching toward a general disarmament the world is moving toward another great war. He asserted that the League of Nations had failed in its attempts at general European disarmament and that, on the contrary, there had been an increase of 63 per cent in the armaments of Europe since the League was formed.

BUSINESS CONTINUES GRADUALLY UPWARD

Conditions, However, Are Spotty, Some Sections Improving Faster Than Others.

STEEL OUTPUT STILL GAINS

Plants Run at 79% Capacity, Against 40% to 50% at End of Last Year.

COMMODITY PRICES HIGHER

Reports From Federal Reserve Districts Stress the Better Sentiment Prevailing.

Continued improvement in the iron and steel industry, a recovery in commodity prices, a rising stock market, increased activity in the light car division of the automobile industry and scattered betterment in retail trade pointed last week to the further gradual improvement of business. Conditions throughout the country remain extremely spotty, however, making it difficult to get a picture of the whole.

Some sections show appreciably better results than others. The revival among industries is unevenly distributed, and even within the industries themselves there exists great disparity. Reports by telegraph to THE NEW YORK TIMES from the various Federal Reserve districts lay stress more upon the improvement of sentiment and the anticipation of better business than upon actual gains during the week.

In the Cleveland and Chicago districts the better tone in the steel industry has improved the general trade, but aside from this line conditions are spotty. Philadelphia, Richmond and Boston report signs of improved trade, but the Northwest still suffers from unemployment. St. Louis is dull but not depressed, while the Pacific Coast has been cheered by better stock markets and prospects for normal agricultural production as a result of rains.

Conditions in Steel Industry.

The improvement in the steel industry which has been the outstanding industrial development of the year thus far continued last week. Operations in the Chicago district are now up to 90 per cent of capacity, while the average for the industry has advanced to 79 per cent, compared with less than 77 per cent a week ago and 40 to 50 per cent at the close of last year. The pick-up in steel operations has been extremely encouraging, and while the recent rate of expansion is not expected to hold up, prospects in the industry are considered favorable. An additional indication of improvement was offered by the increase in unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation at the close of January. Total unfinished business on Jan. 31 was the largest recorded since Feb. 28, 1926. The development of hand-to-mouth buying in recent years has somewhat vitiated the importance of unfilled tonnage figures, however.

Among the non-ferrous metals weakness has prevailed during the week, for the most part, although copper prices have remained firm in the face of slackened demand.

The automobile industry shows signs of further expansion in the light-car field, but the policy of extreme caution is continuing in the higher-priced lines. Buying of steel by automobile makers has accounted for some of the improvement in that industry, but it remains cautious.

Cotton Prices Improve.

Cotton recovered from its recent slump during the week, although the best prices were not maintained. The slump in raw cotton prices has had an adverse influence upon the textile trades and has caused some disagreement between wholesalers and retail buyers, the latter contending that the lower quotations for raw cotton should bring reductions in the price of manufactured goods.

Grain prices followed much the same course as cotton, recovering sharply in the mid-week, only to lose ground later on. The subsequent decline in grain prices, however, wiped out most of the week's improvement.

Despite the increasing ease in money rates, building shows little stimulation. Reports to Bradstreet's on the value of new buildings for which permits were issued last week in 192 cities during January showed a drop of 9.2 from the preceding month and of 48.7 per cent from the like month of a year ago.

Failures for the week as reported by R. G. Dun & Co. showed a marked gain over the corresponding week of 1929, with 566 business defaults last week, against 467 in the same week a year ago. Comparison with the previous week is invalidated by the holiday which occurred last week. The corresponding week for last year also contained a holiday.

SENTIMENT HERE IMPROVED.

Retail Buyers Cautious, However—Building Less Than Year Ago.

Business sentiment in the New York district improved last week with the settlement of the garment workers' strike and a recovery of prices in the cotton market. Department stores reported the largest attendance since Christmas at the midweek holiday and seasonal sales, particularly in furniture.

Retail buyers are said to be exercising extreme caution in making their commitments and a tendency to trade down in many lines. Dress buying was fairly active during the week, with interest chiefly centred in the popular-priced lines, but here also it was noted that even in the low-priced merchandise orders were cut down frequently to one or two pieces.

Continued buoyancy in the stock market and easy credit conditions combined to produce a more cheerful point of view. Stocks gained ground all week and closed with advances well maintained. Reports to

Continued on Page Seventeen.

Making of Small Loans Ends As New Jersey Cuts Interest

Special to The New York Times.
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 15.—The organized makers of small loans will not attempt to conform to the New Jersey law reducing the rate from 3 to 1½ per cent a month. The law became effective today and lending ceased.

Four companies here discontinued making loans, but they will continue to collect payments on loans made at the old rate.

Special to The New York Times.
TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 15.—Pending action by the Legislature on the bill to repeal the 1929 law, effective today, reducing the monthly interest rate on loans up to $300, it was said many companies would suspend operations. A hearing on the repealer is to be held in the State House on Monday.

RISING STOCKS LIFT CONVERTIBLE BONDS

Issues With Warrants Regaining Leadership They Held Before Slump in October.

INVESTORS BECOME ACTIVE

Dealers Expect Continuation of Increase in Buying of Fixed Income Securities.

In line with the upward trend of the stock market last week, convertible bonds are once more beginning to assume the position of leadership in the listed bond market that they enjoyed for some time prior to the stock market crash last October. Records show that most of the important net changes in bond prices last week were in the convertible group, issues with stock purchase warrants running in close conjunction.

Almost without exception the daily transactions in the convertible 4½s of 1939 of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company exceeded dealings in any other issue. Only a small percentage of the new offerings of bonds, however, has been of issues with convertible or stock purchase features, which is taken to indicate that bankers are not counting on a rising stock market to help in the distribution of new bond issues. On the contrary, it is felt in some quarters that too much stress laid on stock appreciation tends to draw the attention of investors from securities which yield fixed returns.

In most instances, convertible bonds now outstanding have many years to run before maturity, so that the conversion privileges will remain as a market factor for some time to come. This is because most of the convertible issues now actively traded were brought out only a short time ago.

The improvement in the bond market this year has enabled corporations, railroad, public utility and industrial to borrow on much more satisfactory terms than a year ago when scarcely a day passed without the offering of one or more bond issues with convertible features. Instead, the tendency in recent offerings has been toward the placing of callable features on the new loans, with the premiums averaging slightly smaller than formerly, and with more issues callable in part as well as a whole.

Some bankers are inclined to predict that only a comparatively small percentage of convertible issues will be placed on the market in the next few months, particularly in view of the present investment demand for bonds. On this score, however, it is pointed out that flotations of convertible bonds were by no means infrequent in the days when public interest in the stock market was considerably less than it is today.

Although the holiday interrupted the distribution of bonds last week the sales are said to have compared favorably with those of any other week since mid-January, when buying of bonds was at a peak. On Thursday transactions in the listed bond market were the second largest for the year to date, with dealings in convertible issues accounting for a large percentage of the turnover.

From time to time infrequently traded convertible issues that appear on the tape, resulting in considerable net changes from the previous closing prices, draw attention for the moment, but the amount of the changes is usually determined by the length of time elapsed since the previous sales. Some issues, such as Public Service Corporation of New Jersey convertible 4½s, are not traded for days at a time notwithstanding that the market for the stocks of the respective companies issuing these bonds are fairly active.

REICHSBANK CHANGES ITS DIVIDEND SYSTEM

Shareholders Adopt New Plan by Vote of 15,000 to 700—Record Profits in 1929.

FINANCING FOR EXPORTS

Schacht Outlines Operations of Gold Discount Bank to Aid Country's Industries.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
BERLIN, Feb. 15.—The new Reichsbank law, which changes the plan for distribution of profits and compensation of shareholders and for limitation of their profit sharing, was accepted today by an overwhelming majority, 15,000 against 700 votes, at the Reichsbank's shareholders' general meeting. According to the new plan, the shareholders will receive a fixed dividend of 12 per cent annually, which will be determined after the following system:

An 8 per cent dividend is guaranteed as before, for which the necessary amount will be deducted from the total net profit. Of the remaining profit the Reich will receive 75 per cent and the shareholders 25 per cent. The next 20,000,000 marks will be divided between the Reich and the shareholders in the ratios of 90 and 10 per cent, while the respective figures for the remaining profit are 95 and 5 per cent.

Stock for Shareholders.

As compensation for their reduced chances of profit share the shareholders are to receive gratis one new Reichsbank share plus one share in the Gold Discount Bank of a nominal value of £10 for every four shares of 100 marks nominal value of the Reichsbank held.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, in introducing the new plan and last year's report, succeeded with his usual calm and energy in mastering the situation and soon offset the opposition's attacks. Touching the subject of gold movements last year, which greatly irritated the financial world, Dr. Schacht said that "banks of emission should strive in future to subdue uneasiness and unthriftiness caused by great gold movement," and he added: "I hope the Bank for International Payments will lend a helpful hand in this direction."

Apropos of the new law, Dr. Schacht said the arrangements would become valid only if the Young plan and the bills connected with it were ratified by the various interested parliaments. He informed the meeting that the new shares of the Gold Discount Bank and the Reichsbank shares would be free from the special capital tax and income tax, according to information conveyed to him by the Finance Minister.

With regard to the Gold Discount Bank, Dr. Schacht said the reparation burdens necessitated increased exports. The export industry needed large capital to compete with foreign countries. The Gold Discount Bank would attempt to furnish the necessary credits, for which purpose it would contract new loans in addition to its own capital. The bank would mainly finance shipments of industrial goods manufactured in Germany, which in turn would relieve the unemployment situation.

The Reichsbank's Report.

The Reichsbank's annual report shows that its profits never were so high as during the past year. The gross profit increased from 158,000,000 to 170,000,000 marks, while the net profit amounted to 70,000,000 marks. Of this sum, 15,000,000 marks was set aside for the surety fund and 31,000,000 for the gratis shares for shareholders, which left a net profit of 25,588,893 marks. This amount was divided as follows: 14,734,572 marks paid shareholders in the form of a 12 per cent dividend, the Reich received 5,324,033 marks, and the balance was set aside for legal reserve. The dividend will be distributed among 11,304 shareholders, who possess 1,227,881 shares of 100 marks nominal value.

At the end of December, 1929, the Reichsbank's total cover amounted to 3,109,000,000 marks, including 2,300,000,000 in gold, 400,000,000 in foreign currency and a hidden reserve of 409,000,000 marks in foreign currency.

BERLIN, Feb. 15 (AP).—Today's general meeting of shareholders of the Reichsbank was the scene of lively debate when a small group of dissatisfied shareholders and owners of large sums in pre-war bank notes demanded certain compensation. The leader of this group, Herr Winter, tried to deliver a speech touching on the political angle, but all of his motions were voted down by an overwhelming majority.

Statistical Summary

WEEK ENDED FEBRUARY 15, 1930.

	Last Week.	Previous Week.	Same Week Last Year.
Federal Reserve System:
Ratio	77.9%	78%	69.8%
Gold	$2,974,978,000	$2,976,563,000	$2,686,221,000
United States securities	478,560,000	477,844,000	177,170,000
Rediscounts	381,914,000	381,422,000	903,949,000
Brokers' loans:
Federal Reserve report	3,450,000,000	3,402,000,000	5,568,000,000
Bank exchanges:
New York Clearing House	6,025,736,171	6,850,466,285	8,365,851,313
Money rates:
Call—range	4-4½	4-4½	6-10
Time (60-90 days)	4½-4¾	4½-4¾	7¾
Commercial paper	4½-4¾	4½-5	5¼-5¾
Sales of securities:
Stocks (N. Y. Stock Exch.)	15,366,800	20,143,250	18,537,810
Stocks (N. Y. Curb)	4,483,045	5,611,900	6,591,600
Bonds (N. Y. Stock Exch.)	$42,731,100	$57,388,000	$47,012,000
Bonds (N. Y. Curb)	12,467,000	14,440,000	14,245,000
Market averages:
Stocks:
High	228.00	225.06	243.96
Low	221.75	217.72	232.49
Domestic bonds:
High	87.24	87.47	89.56
Low	86.97	86.95	89.39
Foreign bonds:
High	107.04	107.07	105.26
Low	106.91	106.86	105.07
Foreign banks:
England (gold)	£151,499,168	£151,212,341	£150,154,375
France circulation (francs)	69,429,000,000	70,339,000,000	63,101,000,000
Germany circulation (marks)	4,380,954,000	4,653,242,000	4,236,122,000
Sterling exchange:
High	$4.86	$4.86¼	$4.85 3/16
Low	4.85¾	4.85 11/16	4.84⅞
Gold movement (New York):
Exports	....	$158,000	$313,000
Imports	$5,202,000	1,656,000	16,576,000
New financing:
Domestic	$99,265,000	$37,748,000	$29,449,000
Foreign	52,900,000	32,655,000	4,000,000
Miscellaneous:
Carloadings (cars)	898,894	862,621	862,621
Crude oil output (barrels)	2,613,800	2,595,000	2,693,550

MONTHLY COMPARISONS.

	Last Month.	Previous Month.	Same Month Last Year.
Iron and steel (tons):
Ingot production	3,786,319	2,896,269	4,490,354
U. S. steel unfilled orders	4,468,710	4,417,193	4,109,000
Railroad earnings:
66 Class 1 roads	*$55,961,000	$62,794,000	$71,463,000
Building permits:
99 cities	$202,886,210	$186,434,659	$240,758,211
Cotton:
Consumption (bales)	577,235	453,896	668,286

*Net operating income for December.

TRUST GROUP PLANS QUARTERLY REPORTS

National Investors, With Assets of $50,000,000, Pushes Move for Greater Publicity.

WILL ACCOUNT IN DETAIL

Bankers Have Urged Uniformity by Which Various Companies Can Be Compared.

After consultation with officials of the New York Stock Exchange the investment companies of the National Investors group, which have assets of $50,000,000, have adopted a plan of quarterly reporting to their stockholders, it was announced yesterday by Fred Y. Presley, president of National Investors Corporation and its affiliated companies.

In publishing quarterly reports the National Investors company will be taking a relatively new step, although the move is in line with the trend toward increased publicity, which has gained considerable momentum in the investment trust field during the last two months, according to bankers identified with large investment trusts. Leadership in the movement toward publicity was taken last June by the Stock Exchange when it announced that it would receive applications for the listing of general management trusts provided that these companies made public the complete lists of their investments as well as balance sheets, income accounts and other data.

Need for Uniformity Stressed.

At that time the Stock Exchange announced that investment trusts would be required to issue these statements within thirty days after the close of each annual fiscal period. The Stock Exchange's rules regarding investment trust reports differed sharply from the rules governing industrial, utility and railroad companies, which are requested by the Exchange to issue quarterly earnings reports, and are required to issue annual statements.

In recent months, according to bankers, there has arisen a feeling that a uniform method of accounting is needed in the investment trust field so that investors may have a fair basis upon which to compare the performances of the various companies. Investment trust reports should be essentially different from industrial reports, the bankers assert. In industrial reports the most important item is the net earnings, it is held, while in the trust reports the basic statement is the net asset value applicable to the outstanding stock, compared with the figure for the previous corresponding fiscal period. Net earnings alone are meaningless, since unrealized losses on investments may more than offset profits, the bankers hold.

Scope of the Reports.

The quarterly report of each company in the National Investors group will contain a comparison of net assets, showing the assets value of each share of stock, together with a balance sheet and an income account. The companies will also give a list of their security holdings in the annual reports, but this information will not be included in the quarterly reports, which will give the total market value of the securities held. The initial quarterly reports of the Second National Investors, Third National Investors and Fourth National Investors Companies for the three months ended on March 31 will be published soon after April 1.

Since investment trusts expect regular quarterly reports from companies in which they invest their funds, they ought to accord the same service to their own investors, some bankers believe. They hold that an investment trust's assets may be readily measured, since its funds are not tied up in fixed assets. Publication of the net asset value of a trust's shares at regular intervals ought not to be prejudicial to a trust's success, the bankers declare.

READING R. R. SEEN AS PRIZE FOR B. & O.

Plan to Get Full Control of Road From New York Central Follows I. C. C.'s Ruling.

VALUABLE GATEWAY HERE

Willard at One Time Refused to Buy Line When Sale Was Urged by Vanderbilt.

The desire of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad to take full control of the Reading Company from the New York Central is one of a long series of events that have marked the history of the Reading. Control of that railway has been shifted twice within the last two decades, and the segregation of its coal properties involved one of the most famous suits in American corporate history. Controlling the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the Reading affords a gateway to New York which would be a prize in any contest in the consolidation of carriers in the East.

One of the older railroads of the country, the Reading Company was incorporated in Pennsylvania in 1871 as the Excelsior Enterprise Company. Three years later it changed its name to the National Company. It was not until 1896 that it adopted its present name. In that year a reorganization committee acquired the property of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company and the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Company at a receiver's sale.

In 1913 the government instituted proceedings to dissolve the intercorporate relations between the Reading Company and its subsidiaries on the ground that they violated the Sherman anti-trust act and the commodities clause of the Hepburn act. In 1920 the Supreme Court decided that the arrangements centring on the Reading Company were unlawful and ordered the segregation of the railroad and coal properties owned and controlled by the Reading Company.

Decree of Dissolution.

In 1921 the District Court for Eastern Pennsylvania entered a decree in accordance with the opinion of the Supreme Court. Subsequently, Reading common stockholders sought to have the Supreme Court modify certain provisions of the decree. In 1922 the Supreme Court approved the decree subject to certain changes which completely severed the Reading Company from the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Company.

The final decree in the segregation proceedings was issued by the district court in 1923. Under the decree the coal and iron company assumed liability for one-third the general mortgage bonds jointly covered by the two companies.

The Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Corporation was formed in 1923 to acquire all capital stock of the old company. It and the Glen Alden Coal Company, in which the Lackawanna Railroad coal properties were vested, are the two largest anthracite producers.

In 1923 the Reading stockholders approved a plan for placing the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company and twelve other subsidiary railways into the Reading Company, which surrendered all power inappropriate to a railroad.

The interest of the New York Central in the Reading dates from 1901. In that year the Baltimore & Ohio, then controlled by the Pennsylvania Railroad, bought 43 per cent of the Reading stock, but, because the Pennsylvania and the New York Central had an agreement whereby each should share equally in acquisitions such as the Reading, one half of this 43 per cent interest was sold to the New York Central.

The subsequent policies of the New York Central and the B. & O. in respect to the Reading were outlined in recent hearings on the B. & O.'s application for control of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh and the Buffalo & Susquehanna. Then, under cross-examination by H. T. Newcomb, counsel for the Delaware & Hudson Company, Daniel Willard, president of the B. & O., told how in 1912 or 1913 the New York Central considered selling its entire Reading interest to the B. & O. At the time

Continued on Page Fifteen.

Home Insurance Co. Gives Policy Holders List of Its Investments in Securities

The Home Insurance Company of New York, organized in 1853 and having resources of approximately $120,000,000, has inaugurated the policy of providing policyholders with a complete list of all securities held by the company. Although fire and other insurance companies are obliged under State laws to file a list of their investments with the insurance departments in the States where they do business, it has not been the practice to make these portfolios available for public scrutiny.

More than 500 different securities are shown in the company's investment list, including government bonds of the United States and other countries; State and provincial bonds of the United States and Canada and county and municipal bonds of both countries. American railroad bonds of all leading carriers, public utility bonds, and railroad, bank and trust, public utility and miscellaneous industrial stocks are also detailed.

Of the bond investments based on the Dec. 31 market value, the aggregate totals $52,938,376. State, provincial, county and municipal bonds head the list with $19,087,986, while railroad bonds are second with $16,372,945. Government bonds total $9,666,420; public utility bonds, $4,340,950 and miscellaneous bonds $3,470,075.

"Stock investments based on Jan. 1 market value, amounted to $47,377,340. Railroad preferred and common stocks lead with a total of $20,951,900, miscellaneous industrial stocks are second with $15,761,040, while public utility preferred and common stocks follow with $9,265,300. Bank and trust company issues total $1,399,100.

Of the total investments, 70 per cent represent bonds and preferred stocks.

The latest financial statement of the company, of which Wilfred Kurth is president, showed on Dec. 31, cash capital of $24,000,000, net surplus of $48,325,635, surplus to policyholders of $72,325,633, additional funds of $41,393,575, reserves of $15,194,872 and total assets of $128,914,080.

FISHER ANALYZES SECURITIES SLUMP

Yale Economist, in New Book, Says Unsound Credit Was the Chief Cause.

JUSTIFIES MARKET'S RISE

Declares Crash Might Have Been Avoided by Advance in Discount Rate.

An unsound credit situation, due to "general oxerextension of margin accounts," was chiefly responsible for the collapse in security values last Autumn, according to Irving Fisher, Professor of Economics at Yale University. His views are set forth at length in his new book, "The Stock Market Crash—and After," published by the Macmillan Company.

"My own impression," says Professor Fisher, "has been and still is that the market went up principally because of sound, justified expectations of earnings, and only partly because of unreasoning and unintelligent mania for buying."

Citing the unsound credit situation as the "chief cause" of the break, the book states that "bear raiders cleverly took advantage of this situation, selling 'short' in large blocks many of these stocks which had been unloaded upon the market and thrown into weak hands, thus precipitating distress selling and panic."

Professor Fisher in a preface to the book says that "readers will doubtless find some inconsistencies between my previous writings and the present book, as I have modified my opinions from time to time with the march of events and with the unfolding of evidence," and he adds: "I may, and probably shall, further modify them with subsequent developments." The book, he says, is in no sense "an attempt to justify opinions hitherto expressed," and was written "without reference to any previous expressions."

"I had stated my opinion in September, preceding the panic, that the market had reached its peak, as proved to be the case," he continues. "I also expressed the view that the recession would not be in the nature of a serious crash, in which I was mistaken. I also predicted that the new plateau of stock prices would survive any recession. This has proved true."

Recalls the Panic of 1837.

In the introduction to the book there is enumerated the many reasons assigned for the stock break. "In this catalogue of wholesale and particular blamings," Professor Fisher says, "one is reminded of that old panic of 1837, in Van Buren's Administration, when the Associated Merchants of New York City published a resolution asking, 'On what constitutional or moral grounds can Martin Van Buren defend himself for having caused all the disasters under which the American people are suffering?'"

Professor Fisher cites the following four reasons "that may justify a rise in the price level of stocks: Because the earnings are continually plowed back into business instead of being declared in dividends, this plowing-back resulting in an accumulation at compound interest, so to speak; because the expected earnings will increase on account of technical progress within the industry; because less risk is believed to attach to those earnings than formerly, and because the 'basic' by which the discounting is made has been lowered." "When the situation is calmly examined," he goes on, "it is found that all four of these causes were at work, tending to raise the prices on the stock market during the years preceding the panic of 1929."

The history of the crash, from the time it started on Sept. 6 until Nov. 14, when the market had steadied itself, is discussed in detail. The "outpouring of stocks, thrown on the market regardless of price," he says, "came in the whirl of blind panic. Many holders later found that they had incurred needless losses, while the buyers of the best of these stocks, at the depth of the market demoralization, were fortunate indeed. It was manifest that many and capacious strong boxes had been emptied of their contents in the midst of the hysteria of selling."

Mental Picture of the Market.

Describing the state of mind at the time Professor Fisher continues:

"Favorable news made no impression on such a débâcle. In vain the United States Steel Corporation reported quarterly earnings with net receipts in August, except for the preceding May, the largest of any month since the war, and with its total for the quarter exceeded only in the preceding quarter. The market had no ear for such news because it was deafened by the stentorian voices of banks calling upon brokers and individuals to repay their loans, while a Babel of brokers' yells and customers' bellows made the financial welkin resound like a supernatural jazz band. Deaf, blind and dizzy, the market fell, and then fell some more!

"The groups of men and women who watched the ticker tape unwind

Continued on Page Fourteen.

New Haven Adds Extra Trains For Expected Holiday Rush

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad will add extra cars and trains from Feb. 21 to Feb. 23. A total of 468 extra coaches, 114 parlor cars, 101 sleeping cars and 30 smoking cars will be added to trains moving out of Grand Central Terminal on the three days.

A special extra-fare train will leave Grand Central for Boston at 4 P. M. on Friday.

KOPPERS EXPANSION IN COKE GAS LIKELY

Wall Street Looks for Increase in Production in Territory Using Natural Gas.

OTHER MOVES FORECAST

Re-entry of Mellon Interests Into Electric Field Studied in Financial District.

Re-entry of the Mellon interests in the electric power and light industry last week, through the acquisition of a share in the United States Electric Power Corporation by the Koppers Company of Delaware, was viewed in Wall Street as an indirect consequence of the position taken by the United States Electric group in the Standard Power and Light Company.

Some of the latter system's principal properties are owned by the subsidiary Philadelphia Company, which provides electric, gas and traction service to Pittsburgh and adjacent territory. Pittsburgh is a sort of county seat for the varied Mellon interests, and the new relationship established may conceivably be followed by an extension of the gas industry in the territory through cooperation of the Standard and Koppers groups.

New York City's Interest.

Prospects that New York City in turn may be affected by the new relationship are also seen. The Koppers interests recently increased the capitalization of a group of affiliated holding companies to place a definite price on their respective blocks of Brooklyn Union Gas and Brooklyn Borough Gas stocks, which utilities are controlled about 30 per cent and 99 per cent, respectively, by the Koppers affiliates.

With regard to other sections of the United States served by the Standard or Koppers group, the financial district is inclined to expect an increase in the prospects of coke oven gas production either against or in cooperation with natural gas, which is used extensively in several parts of Standard territory, including Pittsburgh and Louisville. In competition between artificial and natural gas, the decision often turns on the relative costs of the two products, that of coke gas devolving on prices of coal less the proceeds from the sale of the by-products from gas production.

Coke Oven Gas Increasing.

While consumption of natural gas is increasing faster than that of manufactured gas in many sections of the country, coke oven gas production is gaining briskly in contrast to the decline in other forms of manufactured gas. The Koppers Company has been actively building up a chain of by-products coke gas properties along the Eastern seaboard, supplied by affiliated barge companies with coal from affiliated mines, with other affiliated companies selling the chemical and coke by-products of gas production.

Boston, New Haven, Brooklyn, Jersey City and Philadelphia are the principal centres of this development. The Koppers and Standard groups have a common meeting ground at St. Paul, Minn., and further contacts are expected to result.

Exchange of Stocks.

It is believed that the Koppers Company turned in blocks of United Light and Power Class A and Middle West Utilities stock principally in acquiring an interest in United States Electric Power, increasing that company's investments in the electric power industry, in which the Mellon interest is only secondary to its gas connections. The United Light Class A shares are non-voting, the voting stock being held tightly by several important interests, to the point where there is practically no stock available on the market except at rare intervals in small lots.

The Koppers interest in United States Electric Power is understood to constitute a small minority of the total shares outstanding. The latter company has operated so far as a partnership, however, so that influence in its development cannot be measured wholly from the standpoint of stock holdings. The principal significance in the development is said in Wall Street to be the linking of the Mellon utility interests with the American Founders-Harris Forbes group.

Second Non-Interest Bearing Treasury Bills Awarded on a Basis of About 3.30 Per Cent

The Marine Trust Company of Buffalo, the largest bank in the chain controlled by the Marine Midland Corporation, announced yesterday that it had purchased $50,000,000 of the $56,108,000 non-interest bearing United States Treasury bills awarded by Secretary Mellon. Of the remaining $6,108,000, a block of $1,000,000 went to C. F. Childs & Co., Inc., and the balance to various banks and dealers.

The price paid by the Marine Trust Company for its block was 99.178. Reoffering of the issue will be made at 99.209, to yield the investor approximately 3.164 per cent. The average price paid for the $56,108,000 was 99.174, or about a 3.30 per cent basis. The bills are dated Feb. 18 and will mature on May 18.

Although the original announcement of the sale made by Secretary Mellon called for the sale of only $50,000,000 of bills, the right was reserved to award bills in excess of this amount. Thus, the reoffering prices on such of the $6,108,000 bills as are placed on the market will differ from the price quoted on the principal block owing to the fact that various prices were paid.

The new issue represents the second offering of non-interest bearing treasury bills, the first, in the amount of $100,000,000, having been made in mid December. Of this amount, $69,395,000 went to the International Manhattan Company, Inc., and Salomon Brothers & Hutzler, bidding jointly. The bankers reoffered their portion of the issue on a 3.125 per cent basis. This issue will mature on March 17.

In view of the comparatively limited amount of short-term tax-exempt issues available in the open market, it was said yesterday by the bankers that the fact that bids were received by the treasury in excess of three times the amount awarded was not surprising.

BANK SAVINGS DOWN $195,000,000 IN YEAR

Total at End of June Contrasted With $2,300,000,000 Gain in Previous 12 Months.

STOCK MARKET LURE SEEN

Bankers' Association Reports First Upset of the Kind in Twenty Years.

DEPOSITORS ALSO FEWER

Decrease of More Than 500,000 in Year Announced—Future Trend Uncertain.

For the first time in twenty years the amount of savings held by the American people in savings banks showed a decline for the year ended June 29 last, instead of the usual sharp increase, according to a compilation recently prepared by the Savings Bank Division of the American Bankers Association. The shrinkage in savings deposits for the period exceeded $195,000,000, contrasted with a gain of more than $2,300,000,000 for the previous twelve months, the largest increase on record.

Not only was there a decline in the amount of savings, the report shows, but the number of savings depositors also decreased during the year by more than 500,000. The total savings deposits in banks and trust companies of continental United States as of June 29, 1929, stood at $28,217,656,000, the report shows.

In large part this decline in savings deposits is ascribed to the lure of the stock market and affiliated activities. The tremendous public participation in stock market speculation was financed, very largely, through the withdrawal of savings bank accounts, while instalment purchases of securities took the place in many instances of regular savings bank deposits.

Whether or not the decline in savings constitutes the first indication of a permanent trend or a temporary development, it shows a radical change in previously existing conditions. For many years the consistent increase in savings banks deposits has been upheld as an important index of American prosperity.

Gains in Recent Years.

The annual growth in savings deposits prior to last year was of impressive proportions. In 1926 they advanced $1,562,000,000, in 1927 almost $1,400,000,000 and in 1928 more than $2,300,000,000.

Commenting on the reversal of this trend, the statement of the Bankers Association says:

"It appears now that some influences in one year have taken the gain that might reasonably have been expected in savings deposits for 1929 and lowered them from the high mark of the preceding year. This recession is not one coming as a result of drouth, famine, unemployment or conditions outside of the United States.

"A year ago it was stated: 'The year closed June 30, 1928, registered the largest gain in savings deposits in banks and trust companies of continental United States ever recorded in the history of this country.' What a difference one year makes! From a gain of more than $2,250,000,000 in savings deposits to a loss of almost $200,000,000!

"The loss in savings deposits is reflected also in the loss of savings depositors. The year 1929 showed a total of 52,664,127 depositors, against 53,188,348 for 1928, a loss of 524,221.

Ascribed to Several Causes.

"Industrial production was much higher last year than the preceding year. Factory payrolls were considerably greater. In production, employment and trade advances were made over the preceding year. In the farm areas the improvement noted for 1928 did not recede in 1929, and the live stock industry in all its branches was prosperous.

"The causes of the recession are possibly multiple. There is scarcely any reason to doubt that one of the important factors draining away savings and decreasing depositors has been the lure of profits to be made in stocks. For a number of years the people have been regaled with stories of profits made in stocks in all types of companies. During the last few years there has been a specious philosophy preached that panics such as formerly occurred were no longer possible.

"If it was the lure of profits in stocks which caused the recession in savings, then a factor in future savings will be the success attendant upon this venture of savings depositors in stocks. If the experiment did not prove generally successful, then another year will doubtless witness an increase in savings deposits as well as in savings depositors."

Large Withdrawals Last Fall.

While the compilation of the bankers association includes statistics only up to the middle of last year and does not take in the period of the stock market decline last Fall, radical changes in savings bank deposits have occurred since then, bankers say.

The sharp decline in the share market and the consequent wholesale demand for more margin on the part of brokers is understood to have resulted in heavy withdrawals from savings banks during last October and November. Exact figures are not available, but the leading savings banks of New York admitted at that time that they had lost large amounts of deposits.

The trend was reversed after the stock market break, however, and in the opinion of a number of bankers the event has served to arrest the declining movement of savings bank deposits permanently.

Small investors and speculators in the stock market who experienced losses at the time of the collapse of the 1929 bull market in many cases withdrew entirely from their ventures in common stock investment and placed their remaining funds in savings banks.

Recent Upswing Noted.

Several savings institutions reported a notable recovery in deposits following the first heavy withdrawals which were brought on by the mar-

Continued on Page Twelve.

TRANSACTIONS ON THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1930.

Day's Sales.	Friday.	Thursday.	A Year Ago.	Two Years Ago.
1,696,920	3,513,850	3,668,730	2,492,000	1,802,710

Year to Date.	1929.	1928.	1927.	1926.
99,743,860	159,210,800	90,243,212	66,324,471	66,190,307

1930 High.	1930 Low.	Stock and Dividend Rate.	First.	High.	Low.	Last.	Net Ch'ge.	Closing Bid.	Closing Ask.	Sales.
77	64⅞	Abitibi P. & P. pf. (6)	76	76	76	76	−1	76	76¾	100
110	104	Abraham & S. pf. (7)*	108½	108½	108	108	−2	108	110	20
33¼	23⅛	Adams Express (1.60)	32⅞	33	32⅞	33	..	32⅞	33	10,600
26½	23	Adams Millis (2)	26	26	26	26	−½	25¾	26¼	300
23¼	11½	Advance Rumely	17	17	16⅝	16⅝	−⅝	16½	16⅝	500
61½	22	Advance Rumely pf.	31	31	31	31	−2	31	33	200
⅞	½	Ahumada Lead	⅝	⅝	⅝	⅝	..	⅝	⅞	100
133⅞	118	Air Reduction (3)	131⅛	131⅛	128⅝	130	−1⅞	130	130½	4,100
32	21	Air Way El. Appl. (2½)	31	31	30¼	30¼	−1⅛	30¼	31	300
2½	1⅝	Ajax Rubber	2	2⅛	2	2⅛	..	2	2¼	300
9⅛	7½	Alaska Juneau	7⅞	7⅞	7⅞	7⅞	−⅛	7⅞	8	200
13½	8¾	Albany Perf. W. Paper	12½	13½	12½	13½	+1	13½	14	600
34⅞	23	Alleghany Corp.	34⅞	34⅞	33½	33¾	−⅞	33¾	33½	28,100
107½	95½	Alleghany Cp. pf. (5½)	106	106	106	106	−½	105½	106	100
282	255⅝	Allied Ch. & Dye (n6)	276½	276½	276½	276½	+½	272½	275	300
62¾	49¼	Allis-Chalmers Mfg. (3)	60½	60¼	59⅝	59¼	−½	59⅝	59½	3,400
21⅞	18	Amerada Corp. (2)	18½	18½	18½	18½	−½	18½	19½	300
32¾	27¼	Am. Agricul. Chem. pf.	28½	28½	28½	28½	−1½	28	28½	800
54⅞	40½	Am. Bosch Magneto	53½	53¼	51⅛	53½	−⅝	52⅞	53¼	2,400
50½	46⅝	Am. Br. S. & F. (2.40)	49⅝	49⅝	49⅝	49⅝	..	49⅝	50	200
17⅞	8½	Am. Br. Bov. Elec.	16⅝	17	16⅝	16⅞	+¼	16⅝	17	1,800
146⅞	117½	Am. Can (4)	143½	143¾	141½	142½	−1⅛	142	142¼	14,700
144	140½	Am. Can pf. (7)	141¼	141¼	141¼	141¼	..	140⅝	142¾	700
82½	78½	Am. Car & Fdry. (6)	79⅝	81	79⅝	80⅝	+¾	80	81½	1,100
33	26¾	Am. Com. Alco. (n1.60)	27⅞	28	27⅞	27⅞	−⅛	27¾	28	600
49⅝	35	Am. European Sec.	48	48	48	48	..	47½	48	200
99½	88⅝	Am. & For. Power	95⅝	95⅞	94⅛	94¼	−1¾	94¼	94½	13,600
109	107	Am. & For. Pwr. pf. (7)	109	109	108	108	−1	107⅝	108	600
28½	19⅞	Am. Hawaiian S. S. (2)	28¼	28½	27⅝	28	+1	27½	28	2,000
5⅝	4⅝	Am. Hide & Leather	4⅝	5⅝	4⅝	5¾	+1⅛	5¼	5¾	900
32½	27½	Am. Hide & Leath. pf.	31	32½	31	31½	+2½	32	35	500
39½	35¼	Am. Ice (†4)	37	37	37	37	+½	36¼	37	1,000
43⅞	35⅝	Am. Intl. (2)	42⅝	42¾	42¼	42⅝	−⅝	42½	42½	1,700
9¼	5⅝	Gabriel Snubber, A	8½	8¼	8	8	..	8	8⅞	200
76	69¾	Gamewell Co. (5)	74	74	74	74	−2	73½	76½	100
6⅛	3½	Gardner Motor	4⅝	6⅛	4⅝	6	+1½	5½	6	3,700
14¾	12	Gen. Amer. Inv.	14½	14¾	14½	14¾	+½	14½	14¾	2,700
108⅜	99⅜	Gen. Am. Tk. Car (‡4)	105⅞	105⅞	104¾	105¾	+⅝	105½	105⅞	3,100
59¾	49½	Gen. Asphalt (4)	57	57	55	55	−1⅝	54¾	55	1,100
38¾	25½	Gen. Bronze (2)	36⅝	38½	36⅝	38	+1½	38	38¼	2,600
32⅛	26	Gen. Cable	29¾	29¾	29¾	29¾	−⅛	29¾	30	100
74¾	65⅝	Gen. Cable, A (4)	70	70	70	70	−1	70	71	100
53¼	51	Gen. Cigar (4)	57⅞	58½	57⅞	58¼	..	57½	58½	700
10⅜	7½	Willys-Overland (1.20)	10¼	10¼	9⅝	9¾	−⅜	9¾	10	1,600
72¾	62⅜	Woolworth Co. (2.40)	63⅛	63¾	62¾	63	−½	62⅞	63	3,400
70¼	68⅛	Wrigley (W. Jr.) (4)	69	69	69	69	..	68¾	69⅞	100
22¼	12¾	Yellow Truck & Coach	22⅛	22	21½	22	..	21⅞	22	11,200
44¾	36½	Young. Sp. & Wire (3)	43	43⅝	43	43½	+⅝	43	43½	1,400
134⅞	108	Young. Sheet & T. (5)	134⅞	134⅞	134⅞	134⅞	+⅞	128	132	100
11⅜	5⅝	Zenith Radio	9¾	9¾	9¾	9¾	−¼	9½	10	200
		RIGHTS. Expire.
1⅝	½	Am. R. Mills... June 15	1	1⅜	1	1⅜	+¼	1¼	1⅜	30,900
1⅝	1	Balt. & Ohio... Mar. 11	1⅛	1⅛	1	1	−¼	1	1⅛	7,500
3½	1	Col. Carbon... Mar. 11	1⅝	1⅝	1	1	−⅝	1⅛	1¼	4,900
¾	½	Erie R. R.... Feb. 28	½	½	½	½	..	..	..	600
13⅝	13⅛	Liggett & My... Mar. 12	13¾	13¾	13⅝	13¾	..	13⅝	13⅞	4,200

Dividend rates as given in the above table are the annual cash payments based on the latest quarterly or half yearly declarations.

*Unit of trading less than 100 shares. †Partly extra. ‡Plus 4% in stock. §Payable in scrip. ¶Plus 9% in stock. a Paid last year—no regular rate. b Payable in stock. d Payable when earned. e Payable in cash or stock. f Plus 10% in stock. g Plus 6% in stock. h Plus 2% in stock. i Plus 8% in stock. k Plus 3% in stock. m Plus 6 2/3% in stock. n Plus 5% in stock. p Subject to approval of stockholders.

GUARANTEED STOCKS

	Rate.	Bid.	Asked.
Alabama & Vicksburg	6	116	120
Albany & Susq R R	11	216	218
Atl Birmingham Coast	5	95	100
Atl & Coast Air Line	9	190	195
Canada Southern Ry	3	57	60
Caro. Clinchfield & Ohio	4	87	90
Do stamped	5	97	100
Clev & Pitts R R (50)	7	74½	78
Erie & Kalamazoo (50)	8½	75	82
Fort Wayne & [illegible] pf	5½	100	105
Georgia R R & Bank	11	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lackawanna R R of N J	4	84	87
M. St P & S S M	4	55	58
Morris & Essex R R (50)	7.75	81½	84
N. Y. Lack & West	5	108	111
Northern R R of N J	4	60	65
Oswego & Syracuse (50)	9	84	88
Peoria Bureau	7	125	135
Pitts, Ft Wayne & Chicago	7	140	..
Do pf	7	151	154
Rensselaer & Saratoga	7.12	135	140
United N J R R-Canal	10	213	217
Vicksburg, Shreveport & Pac	5	98	101
Do pf	5	98	101

INVESTMENT SECURITIES

COGGESHALL AND HICKS
MEMBERS New York Stock Exchange
111 BROADWAY NEW YORK

In a period of Rapidly Changing Business Conditions changes in investment holdings may be advisable—even necessary. The facilities of this organization are extended to private and institutional investors desiring investment information or advice.
McCLAVE & CO
MEMBERS New York Stock Exchange, New York Cotton Exchange, New York Curb Exchange (Associate)
67 Exchange Place New York
Telephone Hanover 3842

Balanced Holdings
Almost without exception all corporations have their periods of depression and their periods of prosperity.
By purchasing Odd Lots diversified seasoned securities you increase the margin of safety in your investments.
Our interesting booklet, which explains the many advantages offered by Odd Lot Trading, will be mailed on request.
Ask for Booklet T. 419
John Muir & Co.
Members New York Stock Exchange, National Raw Silk Exchange, Inc.; Associate Members New York Curb Exchange
39 Broadway New York
11 W. 42d St. 41 E. 42d St.

This Week's Market Letter contains a résumé of the economic situation, and also discusses the current status of Continental Can
A copy will be sent upon request
Josephthal & Co.
Members New York Stock Exchange, Members New York Curb Exchange
120 Broadway RECtor 5000
634 Madison Av. REGent 5630

For Convenient Personal Banking Relationships
THE Equitable Trust Company's organization in Greater New York includes ten complete offices, each conveniently located in a prominent business or residential center of the City.
115 Broadway, 40 Worth, Mad. Ave. at 28th, 41 West 34th, 7th Ave. at 41st, Mad. Ave. at 45th, Mad. Ave. at 79th, 368 East 149th, 301 East Fordham Road.
We invite you to visit the office in your neighborhood.
THE EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK
Head Office: 11 Broad Street

Start now to build a college fund with Cities Service Common Stock
Your children deserve a college education—and you can give it to them.
If you will make a small investment monthly in Cities Service Common stock—and reinvest under the Doherty Reinvestment Plan—you can start now to build up the necessary fund.
Later, the income alone may be enough to provide for the entire expense of four years at a university.
Mail the Coupon
HENRY L. DOHERTY & CO., 60 Wall Street, New York City
Please send me full information about Cities Service Common stock.
Name / Address (2080-10)

Diversification reduces the possibility of loss to a minimum.
Diversified Trustee Shares Series C represent broad diversification as to types of business and geographical location. The portfolio of this conservative investment trust comprises common stocks in fifty leading American corporations.
Write for complete information
THROCKMORTON & CO.
Members New York Stock Exchange
165 BROADWAY NEW YORK
Telephone Cortlandt 6600

National Lead Company Common Stock
We have prepared an analysis of this company with reference to the common stock.
LISTED ON THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE
Copy Available upon Request
Peter P. McDermott & Co.
Members New York Stock Exchange, Members New York Curb Exchange
42 BROADWAY, N.Y.
TELEPHONE DIGBY 7140

Our Odd Lot department affords the same efficient facilities for executing orders as for 100 Share Lots
Write for convenient handbook on Trading Methods and Market Letter E-14
CHISHOLM & CHAPMAN
Members New York Stock Exchange, Members New York Curb Exchange
52 Broadway New York
Telephone Digby 5300

Weekly Market Letter
Westinghouse Elec. & Mfg.
F. G. Shattuck
U. S. Realty & Imp.
Great Northern Pfd.
Copy T-90 on request
Morrison & Townsend
Established 1902
Members New York Stock Exchange, Members Chicago Stock Exchange, Members Chicago Board of Trade, Members N. Y. Curb Exchange (Assoc.), Members N. Y. Produce Exchange
37 Wall Street, New York
Uptown Office 509 Madison Avenue
Chicago Detroit Newport, R. I. Torrington, Conn.

Spencer Trask & Co.
Members New York Stock Exchange

INVESTMENT SECURITIES

CORPORATE FINANCING

25 Broad Street, New York
ALBANY BOSTON CHICAGO PROVIDENCE PHILADELPHIA NEWARK LONDON

INVEST IN America's Prosperity
Investors Trustee Shares
SERIES A

Continuous prosperity of America should reflect continuous stability in the 54 companies whose common stocks are represented in this sound, readily marketable and generous dividend paying security.

U. S. Steel, duPont, New York Central, American Can and fifty other common stocks are represented in this security.

Price at market
Write for Circular T-216

JOHN McGUIRE
INCORPORATED
INVESTMENT SECURITIES
120 BROADWAY—NEW YORK
RECTOR 2514

Statistical Information And Every Facility For the Investor Available at Our

MIDTOWN OFFICE
485 MADISON AVENUE
AT 52nd STREET
Telephone Wickersham 6560

HALLE & STIEGLITZ
ESTABLISHED 1889
Members New York Stock Exchange
25 BROAD STREET
Telephone Hanover 9050
Branches in Atlantic City, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Newark

Our Market Letter Service

Includes, as occasion seems to warrant, comment on general market and business conditions and studies of specific issues. This service is one of courtesy and we shall be glad to have you avail yourself of it.

Ask for letter T

Odd Lot Department

WOODWORTH, LOUNSBERY & CO.
MEMBERS
New York Stock Exchange
New York Curb (Associate)
52 Broadway New York
Telephone DIGby 4466
UPTOWN BRANCH OFFICES
16 E. 53rd St. 60 E. 42nd St.
WICkersham 8400 VANderbilt 1792

General Theatres Equipment, Inc.

Common Stock
Voting Trust Certificates

Listed on New York Stock Exchange

Information on request

PYNCHON & CO.
Members New York Stock Exchange
111 Broadway New York
Telephone RECtor 0970
Madison Ave. & 43d St. Tel. VANderbilt 6671 — Savoy-Plaza Hotel Tel. VOLunteer 6500

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Generally Lower at Week-End—Sterling Goes to Year's Lowest Price.

Nearly all markets were mildly reactionary yesterday, no doubt reflecting speculative readjustment from the week's rather general upward trend. Stocks rather uniformly sold off 1 to 4 points, with no great evidence of resistance to the movement. Wheat lost 1⅜ cents, touching $1.15¼ for the March delivery, as against $1.20⅛ at Thursday's high point of last week's recovery and the year's low point of $1.12, reached on Feb. 6. Silver bullion at London, having declined ⅝ penny per ounce in two days, sold yesterday at 20 pence, or almost at the low price of 19 15-16 touched on Feb. 4. Sterling exchange, at $4.85¾ for sight bills, went below any previous rate of the present year.

The issue of three-month treasury bills, announced last Monday for competitive discount, was awarded yesterday at prices making the average annual interest rate 3.304 per cent. This is a slightly higher rate than that of the accepted tenders for last December's $100,000,000 offering. The accepted prices bid for that discounted three-month loan worked out 3.276 per cent. Some of the $56,108,000 bills awarded yesterday were taken on a basis equivalent to 3 per cent. On the whole, the response showed no great change in underlying conditions since the middle of December. As a matter of fact, Wall Street's open-market rates are virtually the same as they were then, except for an easier merchants'-paper market since the last reduction of the Reserve Bank rate.

Last week was marked on the whole merely by continuance of the uncertain and conflicting movements which have prevailed since the beginning of the year. There has been no trend of money rates toward greater ease, either at New York or at London. The weakness of foreign exchange seemed to be checked only temporarily. In the matter of production, the pace of steel mill output was marked up again, leaving it 19 per cent greater than at the opening of January, although still 9 per cent less than a year ago, but the week's report on January cotton consumption by home spinners showed the smallest purchases for the month since 1925, and loadings of railway freight continued far below other recent years.

Only in the reversal of movement by prices for agricultural products was there any definite change from recent tendencies. That reversal was partly the result of artificial influences, but it was partly also a perfectly natural upward reaction from a prolonged and severe decline. Yet it was not caused or accompanied by a marked increase of agricultural exports. Wheat shipments were still estimated less in quantity by 50 per cent than a year ago.

Perhaps the most that can yet be said of the more or less confused industrial panorama is that the spirit of hopefulness has apparently grown more general. This is doubtless largely a consequence on the one hand of recovery on the Stock Exchange, which, though gradual, has been on the whole continuous; on the other of the unexpectedly prompt recovery in steel production. The old tradition certainly was that a rise in stocks foreshadowed improvement in general business, and that increasing steel trade activity indicated subsequent revival in other industries. At present, Wall Street is accepting the tradition with entire faith. Under existing circumstances, old-fashioned precedent of just that nature is not willingly discarded because we are living in a New Financial Era.

PLANS 5-FOR-1 STOCK SPLIT

Central Public Service Proposes Expansion to 1,069,230 Shares.

The directors of the Central Public Service Company yesterday adopted a resolution calling for a split-up of the common stock on a five-for-one basis and an increase in the authorized capitalization from 500,000 to 1,069,230 shares of no par value. There are 209,993 shares outstanding and some additional shares reserved against exercise of stock purchase warrants.

The directors also adopted a resolution whereby no sale or other disposition shall be made of all or any part of the common stock of the Central Public Service Corporation, which is controlled by the company. The corporation has arranged to acquire from the Public Utility Holding Corporation a controlling interest in the Portland Electric Power Company.

A special meeting of stockholders has been called for Feb. 19 to vote on the above proposals. A. E. Peirce & Co. of Chicago are the principal stockholders in Central Public Service Company, while Public Utility Holding will own 25 per cent control after the Portland deal is consummated. The two groups together will control the Central Public Service Company by a substantial majority after the arrangements are completed.

UTILITY UNIT IS TEMPORARY.

Commonwealth Southeastern Formed to Perfect Larger Merger.

The Commonwealth Southeastern Corporation, formed on Friday to take over the Commonwealth Power Corporation and the Southeastern Power and Light Corporation, is a temporary vehicle to permit the merger of the latter two companies, which are Maine corporations, into the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, a Delaware company. The Commonwealth Southeastern Corporation is to be dissolved after the legal and practical details of the merger have been carried out.

As a result of the actions of the stockholders of the various companies, the Allied Power and Light, Commonwealth Power and Southeastern Power and Light corporations are to be merged into the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation by exchanges of preferred and common stocks.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

With the advance in United States Steel common halted, the general list on the Stock Exchange moved irregularly yesterday. Steel fell back a few points on what Wall Street described as profit-taking, and other active issues were influenced by its action. Not more than a handful of stocks ended the day with worth-while gains, the final quotations revealing a preponderance of minus signs. The net losses, however, were generally small. The sharp breaks were confined to eight or ten stocks, among them Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak, United States Steel and United States Industrial Alcohol. Total transactions were close to 1,700,000 shares.

***

Reviving Activity.

Wall Street diagnosticians who a week or so ago were stressing the "tired" condition of the market were commenting yesterday on the remarkable energy it had begun to display. Considering that there was no rest period, the vitality of the market during the last week was widely cited. Disinterested observers insisted, however, that the market activity was due largely to stimulants applied by professional operators.

***

The Shrinkage in Bank Clearings.

More attention was paid last week to the great decrease in bank clearings, once an accepted measure of trade activity. The figures for January showed clearings for the whole country to be less than in either 1929 or 1928, the decrease from last year being 27 per cent in this city and 22 per cent for the whole country. Preliminary returns of last week's clearings indicated about the same percentage of decrease. Attention was called to the fact that even in January, 1921, with the deflation movement fairly under way and prices of everything falling violently, clearings at New York were only 20 per cent below 1920 and in the whole country only 21½ per cent. Until last December no month had shown a decrease in clearings from the preceding year since the late months of 1926 and January, 1927, but it did not then run beyond 4 or 5 per cent. The present heavy shrinkage from 1929 caused more comment from the fact that the number of shares sold on the Stock Exchange was only 4½ per cent less than in the same week last year, while sales of bonds were considerably larger.

***

Buying for the "Short-Pull."

It has been a time-honored custom for writers of stock market letters, when in a state of indicision, to advise "purchase of standard dividend-paying stocks for a long pull." With the return last week of an instalment of the army of out-and-out speculators, however, a few writers of this literature had the temerity yesterday to suggest "buying stocks for a quick turn" in advices sent out to clients for perusal over the week-end. In the parlance of the financial community, the present market is a "sharpshooter's affair," and it is quite as important to know the hour to sell as it is the time to buy. Thus far, however, professional advisers have refrained from indicating any elaborate system of timing transactions in given stocks.

***

Wall Street and the Senate.

Financial markets did not appear to be in the least perturbed last week over the excited Senatorial discussions of the nomination of Mr. Hughes for chief justice and the Senatorial strictures on the Supreme Court. It was a matter of common knowledge that outbursts of just this character, on precisely that subject, recur at reasonably frequent intervals in Washington. It was also suggested that the time when conservative finance might reasonably have been more upset by a controversy of the kind was when Mr. Roosevelt, in his "Bull Moose campaign" of 1912, came out for revision of court decisions by the Legislatures. The selection of Mr. Hughes for chief justice was generally approved in financial circles, though not because of belief that his decisions would be uniformly favorable to corporations coming before the court. His attitude in regard to life insurance abuses in the period 1905 was recalled, also the extremely careful legal construction applied by him, when previously on the Supreme bench, to railway cases.

***

The New Treasury Financing.

For the first time in recent years the bulk of a single offering of United States Treasury obligations has gone to a single purchaser. The announcement yesterday by the Marine Trust Company of Buffalo that it had purchased $50,000,000 of the $56,108,000 of non-interest-bearing treasury bills means this type of government financing is getting close to the basis of awarding municipal bonds, where a single purchaser is apt to get the entire amount offered. The reoffering of the issue by the purchaser to the public also follows along the lines of municipal financing. Due to present conditions in the money market, it is obviously more profitable for the bankers to reoffer the issue than to hold it until maturity, three months hence, as an investment.

***

Railroad Financing.

With railroad stocks moving obstinately upward, talk of financing by the carriers increased last week. New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and Chesapeake & Ohio have entered or will enter the market with new offerings. Yesterday there was rumor that the Rock Island planned offering of $25,000,000 of debentures; but official confirmation was lacking.

***

Money Rates Not Abnormally Low.

Attention was again frequently called last week to the fact that, notwithstanding the fall in money rates during and after the October panic and the accompanying reduction of the Reserve Bank rate, Wall Street money rates are still quoted at or above the rates prevailing at this time in 1928. Call money last week commanded about the same rates as then, collateral time loans a fractionally higher rate and commercial paper nearly ¾ of 1 per cent more. The Reserve Bank rate at that time was the same as the present rate. Comparison was made last week with the records of this month in 1908, when the markets were almost exactly as far away from the Wall Street crash of the previous Autumn as they are today. It was found that call money in the middle of February, 1908, commanded only 1¾ to 2 per cent, that time money was about ¾ of 1 per cent below the present ruling rate, but that merchants' paper was quoted ½ of 1 per cent higher than last week's ruling figures.

***

Last Week's Movements of Gold.

Movements of gold at the port of New York last week were extremely light. There were no exports for the week, and imports totaled $5,202,000, of which $5,110,000 came from Brazil and the remaining $92,000 chiefly from other Latin American countries. There were no changes in the amount of gold held under earmark for foreign account during the week. At San Francisco the receipt of two parcels of gold from Japan aggregating $5,750,000 was reported.

MONEY.

Saturday, Feb. 15, 1930.

Range of call money loans in this week for a series of years:

	High.	Low.	Rul'g.		High.	Low.	Rul'g.
1930	4½	4	4	1926	5	4½	4¾
1929	10	6	7	1925	4	3	3½
1928	4¼	4¼	4½	1924	4¼	4	4¼
1927	4½	3¾	4	1923	6	4½	5

Time Loans.

	Saturday.	Friday.	Year Ago.
60-90 days	4½@4¾	4½@4¾	7¾
4-5-6 months	4¾@5	4¾@5	7½@7¾

Range in this week for a series of years, 60-90 days' mixed collateral:

1930	1929.	1928.	1927.	1926	1925.
4½@4¾	7¾	4½@4⅝	4⅜@4½	4⅝@4¾	3½@3¾

Commercial Paper.

	Saturday.	Friday.	Year Ago.
Best names, 4 to 6 mos.	4½@4¾	4½@4¾	5½@5¾
Other names, 4 to 6 mos.	4½@4¾	4½@4¾	5¾

Range in this week for a series of years, 4-6 months' commercial paper:

1930	1929.	1928.	1927.	1926	1925.
4¼@4¾	5½@5¾	4	4	4¼	3½

Rediscount Rate, N. Y. Reserve Bank.

Rate on all classes of rediscountable paper, 4 per cent. Rate effective Feb. 7, when it was reduced from 4½ per cent, which had been in effect since Nov. 15, 1929.

Rediscount rate at this date in a series of years:

1930.	1929.	1928.	1927.	1926.	1925.	1924.
4	5	4	4	4	3	4½

Bankers' Acceptances.

Prime bankers' acceptances eligible for purchase or rediscount by Federal Reserve banks. Rates quoted are for discount at purchase:

	—Saturday— Bid.	Asked.	—Year Ago— Bid.	Asked.
30 days	3⅞	3¾	5¼	5⅛
60 days	3⅞	3¾	5⅜	5¼
90 days	3⅞	3¾	5⅜	5¼
Four months	3⅞	3¾	5½	5¼
Five months	4	3⅞	5⅝	5⅜
Six months	4	3⅞	5⅝	5⅜

London Market.

Money off ¼ per cent at 3⅛ per cent; short bills unchanged at 4 per cent; three months' bills off 1-16 on lid at 3⅞ and 3 15-16 per cent. The Bank of England today sold £8,600 in bar gold and exported £2,000 in sovereign.

Clearing House Exchanges.

Exchanges at the New York Clearing House, $1,440,000,000; balance, $184,000,000; Federal Reserve credit balance, $157,000,000; exchange this day a year ago, $1,969,000,000.

Total exchange of checks for the week in New York City, as reported by the Clearing House, was $6,025,736,171, compared with $6,850,466,285 the previous week.

Comparison with the corresponding week in previous years:

1930	*$6,025,736,171	1926	$5,875,938,750
1929	8,365,851,313	1925	5,733,331,943
1928	5,980,558,163	1924	3,746,522,017
1927	6,571,284,837	1923	3,819,278,648

*Five days.

Total exchange of checks for the week for the country as a whole, as reported by The Financial Chronicle, was $9,596,751,543, compared with $10,950,406,549 the previous week.

Comparison with the corresponding week in previous years:

1930	$9,596,751,543	1926	$10,563,550,997
1929	12,023,222,340	1925	9,544,732,993
1928	10,000,307,789	1924	6,800,555,060
1927	11,513,946,853	1923	6,626,216,885

MARKET AVERAGES.

Saturday, Feb. 15, 1930.

STOCKS.

	High.	Low.	Last.	Net Chge.
25 railroads	132.94	132.40	132.49	— .72
25 industrials	319.14	313.85	315.49	—2.81
50 stocks	226.04	223.12	223.99	—1.76

DAILY RANGE OF 50 STOCKS.

	High.	Low.	Last.	Net Chge.
Feb. 14	227.99	223.41	225.75	— .28
Feb. 13	228.00	224.41	226.03	+ .96
Feb. 11	226.34	222.53	225.07	+1.48
Feb. 10	226.16	221.75	223.59	— .04
Feb. 8	223.98	220.49	223.63	+2.37

MONTHLY RANGE OF 50 STOCKS.

	High.	Date.	Low.	Date.	Last.
1930	228.00	Feb. 13	217.54	Feb. 1	223.99
1929	251.54	Feb. 1	231.60	Feb. 18	247.90
1928	180.81	Feb. 2	173.13	Feb. 20	177.26
1927	148.00	Feb. 28	138.25	Feb. 1	147.32
1926	139.16	Feb. 13	129.67	Feb. 27	130.22

YEARLY RANGE OF 25 RAILROADS.

	High.	Date.	Low.	Date.	Last.
*1930	134.14	Feb. 10	123.94	Jan. 7	132.49
1929	158.71	Sep. 3	107.92	Nov. 13	124.64

YEARLY RANGE OF 25 INDUSTRIALS.

	High.	Date.	Low.	Date.	Last.
*1930	322.63	Feb. 13	281.47	Jan. 18	315.49
1929	469.49	Sep. 19	220.95	Nov. 13	288.17

YEARLY RANGE OF 50 STOCKS.

	High.	Date.	Low.	Date.	Last.
*1930	228.00	Feb. 13	202.95	Jan. 2	223.99
†1929	251.54	Feb. 1	228.38	Jan. 8	233.42

FULL YEARS.

	High.	Date.	Low.	Date.	Last.
1929	311.90	Sep. 19	164.43	Nov. 13	206.40
1928	231.45	Dec. 31	173.13	Feb. 20	230.52
1927	185.47	Oct. 4	135.82	Jan. 27	181.96
1926	142.35	Dec. 20	109.63	Mar. 30	139.53
1925	138.21	Dec. 28	101.16	Mar. 30	137.46

DOMESTIC BONDS.

		Net Change Day.	Month.	Year.
40 issues	87.13	—.11	+.39	—2.38

DAILY RANGE OF 40 DOMESTIC BONDS.

Feb. 14	87.24	+ .04	Feb. 10	86.97	— .50
Feb. 13	87.20	— .03	Feb. 8	87.47	+ .01
Feb. 11	87.23	+ .26	Feb. 7	87.46	+ .30

YEARLY RANGE OF 40 DOMESTIC BONDS.

	High.	Date.	Low.	Date.	Chge.
*1930	87.47	Feb. 8	86.32	Jan. 3	87.13
†1929	90.35	Jan. 5	89.39	Feb. 13	89.51

FULL YEARS.

	High.	Date.	Low.	Date.	Last.
1929	90.35	Jan. 5	83.83	Nov. 14	86.51
1928	93.60	May 3	89.24	Aug. 14	89.91
1927	92.98	Dec. 1	89.47	Jan. 3	92.90
1926	89.75	Dec. 30	85.52	Jan. 4	89.49
1925	85.44	Dec. 31	81.99	Jan. 5	85.44

FOREIGN BONDS.

		Net Change Day.	Month.	Year.
10 govt. issues	106.91	—.13	+.51	+1.81

DAILY RANGE OF FOREIGN BONDS.

Feb. 14	107.04	+ .13	Feb. 10	106.97	— .10
Feb. 13	106.91	— .05	Feb. 8	107.07	+ .18
Feb. 11	106.96	— .01	Feb. 7	106.89	— .05

YEARLY RANGE OF FOREIGN BONDS.

	High.	Date.	Low.	Date.	Last.
*1930	107.07	Feb. 8	105.85	Jan. 2	106.91
†1929	105.96	Feb. 4	105.07	Feb. 11	105.10

FULL YEARS.

	High.	Date.	Low.	Date.	Last.
1929	105.96	Feb. 4	103.57	Oct. 30	105.87
1928	107.42	Apr. 5	105.10	Dec. 21	105.49
1927	106.72	Oct. 3	104.92	Jan. 5	106.50
1926	105.07	Dec. 13	102.60	Mar. 31	105.02
1925	103.80	Nov. 16	101.04	Jan. 2	103.26

*To date. †To corresponding day last year.

SILVER BULLION.

Bar silver in London 3-16d off at 20d per ounce; New York price ⅝c off at 43⅝c.

Range for 1930:

	Highest.	Lowest.
London	21⅝d. Jan. 2	19 15-16d. Feb. 4
New York	46⅞c. Jan. 2	43⅛c. Feb. 4

Range for 1929:

London	26 1-16d. Jan. 7	21 1-16d. Dec. 30
New York	57⅛c. Jan. 10	46⅛c. Dec. 30

Every Investment Counsellor brightens up over an investment that is SELF-LIQUIDATING

A self-liquidating investment is one that pays itself off out of its own proceeds—is strong enough to stand on its own feet—returns the investor's money without outside help. Self-liquidating obligations are ranked as "prime" by investment counselors.

The preferred stock which the FRENCH PLAN offers you is a self-liquidating investment—and a great deal more. Every dollar is repaid to you out of the earnings of a specific building. As long as you have a dollar invested you receive cumulative 6%. But when the preferred stock has paid itself back in full—the common stock of that building, now carrying all the asset value and earnings which formerly belonged to the preferred, is owned—half by the investors who formerly owned the preferred stock, half by the French organization, which thereby becomes the stockholder's permanent partner!

Do you know a better way to invest?

If you would like to compare the FRENCH PLAN with the best investment proposition you know, write today for a 74-page book containing complete details of the FRENCH PLAN—study it—then act on your own conclusions!

FRED F. FRENCH
INVESTING COMPANY, INC.
551 Fifth Avenue, New York City

T-257

FRED F. FRENCH INVESTING COMPANY, INC.
551 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.
Please send me the 74-page book, "THE FRENCH PLAN," without cost or obligation
Name............ Business Address............
Home Address............ Telephone............
City............ State............

The Bank of United States

Over 400,000 depositors.
More than 18,500 stockholders.
Resources in excess of $276,000,000.
The third largest branch banking system in New York State.
Only 27 of the 27,000 banks in the country have larger deposits.

A. B. Leach & Co., Inc.
57 William Street, New York, N. Y.
Please send me details regarding Bank of United States Units
Name............
Address............

A Message to holders of INSURANCE STOCKS

AMONG all the unusual investment opportunities, Insurance Stocks stand out with unique basic advantages and unusual profit possibilities.

This is a time when the strongly fortified position of Insurance Investments should be thoroughly understood.

For this reason we have compiled a 24-page booklet of facts on these investments and we have issued a pamphlet in which "hidden gems" in the insurance field are brought to the attention of our clients and friends.

Let us send you this information. Just ask for PA-8 or use the coupon.

WIDMANN & COMPANY
INCORPORATED
INVESTMENTS
26 BROADWAY NEW YORK
{ Insurance Booklet and Insurance Stocks }
WIDMANN & COMPANY, Incorporated
26 Broadway, New York
Please send me, without obligation, your booklet of facts on Insurance Stocks and the list of stocks you recommend.
Name............
Street............
City............
PA-8

We recommend for investment

American Utilities & General Corp.

$3 Cumulative Preferred Stock
(With Warrants)

Price $40 per share to yield 7.50%

F. W. VOGELL, JR. & CO.
Members Unlisted Securities Dealers Association
Members Association of Bank Stock Dealers
150 Broadway New York
Telephone Hitchcock 2161

Unusual Opportunity to Obtain Partnership in successful high-grade bond house, participating in all important bond offerings and whose business is growing. They desire additional partner with $50,000 who can take active part in the organization. This firm has an excellent sales force and splendid connections. This should prove a profitable opportunity for a man of enterprise.

References required. All communications will be treated confidentially.

Address J. A. S.
Rudolph Guenther-Russell Law, Inc.
Financial Advertising in All Its Branches
131 Cedar Street New York

JEWETT, NEWMAN & CO.
Members New York Stock Exchange
60 Wall Street
Uptown Branches
57 West 57th St.
Plaza 2047
Mayflower-Plymouth Hotel
15 Central Park West
Between 61st and 62nd Sts.
Columbus 7985

ACCOUNTS CARRIED on Conservative Margin
FINCH, WILSON & CO.
Members New York Stock Exchange
120 BROADWAY NEW YORK

BUYING A SUBURBAN HOME? The New York Times Real Estate columns give you first and best aid in the selection of a desirable place to build or buy.—Advt.

An Analytical Review

Automobile Outlook

Will be mailed upon request

EDWIN WEISL & Co.
Members New York Stock Exchange
25 Broad St. New York
Telephone HANover 8272
604 Fifth Ave. Bet. 48th & 49th Sts. Tel. BRYant 7941
1457 Broadway Near 42nd St. Tel. WISconsin 5300

Odd Lots and Full Lots

Carried on Conservative Margin

DEGENER & Co.
Members New York Stock Exchange
20 Broad St. New York
Branch Office
10 Park Sq., Morristown, N. J.

Corporate Financing

Dealers in Bank Stocks
Insurance Stocks
and Unlisted Bonds

MacDowell & Sabin
20 Pine St. New York
Telephone JOHn 4507

HOW British Type Investors Dollars Are Growing

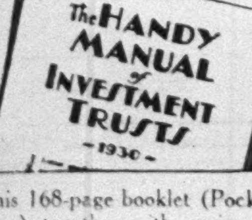
$1,000 (July 1925) — $4,292 (TODAY)
Total average annual return 73%

$1,050 (March 1928) — $2,914 (TODAY)
Total average annual return 90%

$1,060 (Jan. 1929) — $1,906 (TODAY)
Total average annual return 80%

Circular B21 on Request, also Information regarding mergers.

Hunter, Platt & Pletcher, Inc.
551 Fifth Ave. New York
MURray Hill 8091-6672
— — — — Mail for Circular B21 — — — —
NAME..............................
ADDRESS..............................



This 168-page booklet (Pocket Size) together with copies of the three most recent issues of

THE INVESTMENT TRUST REVIEW will give you the past history and all the latest available data on practically all the important investment trust issues now active in the market.

Write Dept. T-16 for copies

Steelman & Birkins
60 BROAD ST., NEW YORK
Hanover 7500—5973
Hartford Meriden Bridgeport
Uptown New York Waterbury
Syracuse New Haven Providence

$50 SET FOR STOCK OF MARSHALL FIELD

540,000 Shares of New Issue Being Offered Admitted to Chicago Exchange.

BIG BLOCK FOR EMPLOYES

Balance Sheet Shows $37 a Share Applicable to Company's Common Stock.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—The governors of the Chicago Stock Exchange, who approved the listing of new common stock of Marshall Field & Co., at its regular session late yesterday, made formal announcement today of the listing and its terms. The new issue will be admitted to trading on the Stock Exchange on Tuesday. It already is listed and in active trading on the Chicago Curb. Approximately 1,400,000 shares of the authorized issue of 2,000,000 shares of no-par value will be outstanding. About 1,070,585 shares are to be exchanged for the outstanding Class A and Class B common shares of the company, and 329,415 shares are to be sold to bankers for distribution to the public along with some additional shares purchased from individuals. Of the 600,000 unissued shares, 200,000 shares are to be reserved for sale to employes at a later date.

Field, Glore & Co. and Lee, Higginson & Co. are offering 540,000 shares of the new stock at $50 a share.

Net profits of Marshall Field & Co. for 1929 amounted to $9,388,000. After deducting preferred stock dividend requirements of $2,187,000, there remained $7,201,000 available for the common stock, equal to $5.14 a share. Average earnings for the last five years have amounted to $5.21 a share for the common stock. Directors have declared their intention of inaugurating a yearly dividend of $2.50 a share on the stock, which at $50 a share would put the common stock on a 5 per cent yield basis.

According to the balance sheet of the company, total assets amount to $134,595,922, without giving any effect to depreciation of real estate, buildings and leaseholds and including good-will at the nominal amount of $1. Deducting liabilities and reserves of $51,406,164 and preferred stock of $31,240,400, there remain net assets applicable to the common stock of $51,949,358, equal to $37 a share. Current assets of $87,199,491 are equal to nearly six times current liabilities of $13,267,078.

Upon completion of the present financing the outstanding capitalization of Marshall Field & Co. will be:

Security.	Outstanding.
5% first mortgage bonds	$18,000,000
4½% debenture bonds	14,875,000
7% preferred stock	31,267,000
Common stock	1,400,000

CHICAGO, Feb. 15 (AP).—In addition to the Marshall Field wholesale and retail stores in Chicago, Marshall Field & Co. own the Davis store in Chicago, the Frederick N. Nelson store in Seattle, branch stores in Chicago suburbs, a wholesale house in New York, twenty-five mills and numerous factories in North Carolina, Pennsylvania and Virginia, and the Merchandise Mart, a huge building nearing completion in Chicago.

J. A. Chew in New Office.

Theodore Swann, president of the Swann Corporation, announced yesterday the affiliation of John A. Chew with the Swann enterprises as vice president of the Federal Phosphorus Company. New York offices for the Phosphorus Company have been taken in the Graybar Building.

BANK SAVINGS DOWN $195,000,000 IN YEAR

Continued from Page Nine.

ket decline, and the opportunity was taken to drive home, by advertising and other means, the advantages of savings deposits.

During the last few weeks, it is understood, there has been but little change in the business being done by the savings banks, and in the opinion of most bankers it is as yet too early to decide whether the general public has permanently forsaken its interest in stock speculation and will return to its old thrift habits.

A number of bankers are of the opinion that while the events of last year illustrated an abnormal swing toward speculative activities on the part of the general public, a definite change in savings habits has set in. It is thought likely by this group that future years will witness something of a compromise between the trend of last year and that of earlier periods. Increased public investment in stock market securities is believed by this group to be a permanent factor, but it is thought that this new investment habit will not detract from the steady expansion of savings deposits over future years.

BOND PRICES LOWER, WITH TRADING DULL

Convertible Issues Fall Back in Sympathy With Decline in Stock Quotations.

SOME FOREIGN LOANS RISE

Volume of Business Recedes Almost to Low Marks Made Since Jan. 1.

Prices of foreign and domestic bonds moved slightly lower yesterday on the Stock Exchange in dull trading throughout the two-hour session. Sales amounted to only $4,477,000, compared with the previous lows in 1930 of $3,809,000 on Jan. 18 and $4,271,000 on Jan. 4.

Convertible bonds were inclined to be depressed in sympathy with stocks, most active issues closing lower. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe 4½s dropped ¾ point, Commercial Investment Trust 1⅞, New Haven 6s 1¼, and American Telephone and Telegraph 4½s of 1939, ½ point. Smaller losses were sustained by Texas Corporation convertible 5s, Alleghany Corporation 5s of 1944 and Richfield Oil convertible 6s. International Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s gained a point.

Trading in United States Government bonds was at an unusually low ebb, with all operations in the first and fourth Liberty loan 4¼s, both of which issues closed off 1-32d.

French Government bonds were the most active in the foreign list, the 7½s finishing a half point lower and the 7s down ⅜. Several foreign issues moved up fractionally to new highs for the year on light trading.

U. S. BOND QUOTATIONS.

Closing quotations for issues not traded in on the Stock Exchange yesterday:

	Bid.	Ask.		Bid.	Ask.
2s, r, 1930	102¼	103¼	3s, r, 1947	91	95
2s, c, 1930	102¼	103¼	3s, c, 1947	91	95
3s, r, 1916	91	95	Pan 2s, '38	102¼	103¼
3s, c, 1916	91	95	Pan 3s, c, '61	90	94

LIBERTY AND TREASURY BONDS.

	Bid.	Asked.
Liberty 3½s, 1932-47	99.3	99.6
Treasury 4¼s, 1947-52	110.22	110.28
Treasury 4s, 1944-54	106.20	107.00
Treasury 3¾s, 1946-56	103.30	104.8
Treasury 3⅜s, 1943-47	99.16	99.22
Treasury 3⅜s, 1940-43	99.14	99.20

VOTES ON STOCK INCREASES

Holders of Middle West and North West Utilities to Pass on Plans.

Stockholders of the Middle West Utilities Company will vote on March 26 on increasing the authorized common stock from 18,200,000 to 25,000,000 shares, to provide for stock dividends. Proposals to change the $100 prior lien and preferred stocks to no par value stocks will be voted on also.

Stockholders of the North West Utilities Company on March 25 will decide on an increase in capital stock from 300,000 to 500,000 shares in the plan for stock dividends.

N. Y. PORT AUTHORITY BONDS.

4s—	Bid.	Ask.	4½s—	Bid.	Ask.
Dec., '36-40	5.10	4.70	Mar., '40-46	5.15	4.75
Dec., '41-59	5.10	4.70	Mar., '32-39	5.15	4.75
Jan., '38-52	5.10	4.70

PRODUCE EXCHANGE STOCKS

SATURDAY, FEB. 15, 1930.

A high record for a Saturday was reached in the volume of trading in the securities market of the New York Produce Exchange yesterday. The price trend was upward.

SALES 395,353.

Sales.		High.	Low.	Last.	Net Ch'ge.
600	Aero Klemm	1⅝	1¼	1½	+ ¼
100	Am Util&Gen A	15¾	15¾	15¾	+ ⅛
2,600	Assd G & E	42¾	42⅝	42¾	+ ⅝
1,200	Do 1930 rts	13½	13	13	— ½
254,500	Do Mod ACrts	⅟₁₆	⅟₁₆	⅟₁₆	..
100	Do 35 pf wi	91	91	91	— 4
700	DoMd deb rtswi	4⅝	4⅛	4⅛	— ⅝
300	Bagdad	2.35	2.30	2.30	— .10
800	Chat Phen Alld	18¾	18½	18¾	+ ¼
2,500	Chen Asso	22⅛	21⅞	21⅞	— ¼
600	Claude Neon	17	16⅝	16⅝	— 1¾
200	Con Gs Ut B vts	9½	9½	9½	— 1½
100	Cont Shrs Pr	83½	83½	83½	+ 1½
100	Dixton	11	11	11	..
200	East Util Conv	14½	13¾	13¾	— ¼
1,800	Elgin El rts wi	⅜	¼	⅜	..
600	H Rubstn Pr	20⅜	19½	20	+ 1
700	Int Carriers	17⅝	17⅝	17⅝	..
5,900	Int Rust Iron	2⅞	2⅝	2¾	— ⅛
200	Ironrite	6	5½	6	+ ⅜
100	Jenkins	3¼	3¼	3¼	..
600	Kinner	1¼	1¼	1¼	..
2,800	Mars Fd new wi	53⅛	52¼	53	+ ½
200	Merlin	⅟₁₆	⅟₁₆	⅟₁₆	— ⅟₁₆
400	Mon Rlty pf A	18⅝	18	⅝	+ ⅜
100	Pac Fin	39¼	39¼	39¼	+ 1¼
100	Pet Conv	12¾	12¾	12¾	..
100	Railroad Shrs	8⅝	8⅝	8⅝	— ⅛
300	Seabd Util Shrs	7⅞	7⅞	7⅞	+ ⅜
100	Split Beth	3	3	3	— ⅛
12,200	Trent	1⅜	1⅜	1⅜	..
100	Union Cigar	½	½	½	+ ⅛
100	US El Pwr A	39⅝	39⅝	39⅝	+ ¼
100	Zenda Gold	1.55	1.55	1.55	— .05

Banks.

Sales.		High.	Low.	Last.	Net Ch'ge.
125	Bk of US Units	86¼	84¾	84¾	+ ¼
100	Continental Bk.	38	38	38	+ ⅜
100	Irving	58½	58½	58½	— 1¼

Insurance.

Sales.		High.	Low.	Last.	Net Ch'ge.
200	Nat Lib	16⅝	16⅛	16⅛	— ½

Scrip.

Sales.		High.	Low.	Last.	Net Ch'ge.
$1,000	Fox Scrip ($100 lots)	78	78	78	..

INACTIVE BID AND ASKED.

Closing bid and asked quotations of stocks not traded in were:

	Bid.	Asked.		Bid.	Asked.
Andes	.25	.38	Lessings	13¼	14
Appal'ch'n	4	6	L I Lt Pr.	100	103
Auto Stand	1¼	1⅝	Macfadden	25	30
BG Sand	3¾	5	Do pf	43	50
Big Mo.	.50	.70	Magnavox	3	3¾
Butte Mad.	1¾	2½	Mar Radio	¼	1
Campe	12	15	Metal Tex.	6	7
Can Bkstks	18	21	MSO B vtc w i	3½	4¾
Claremont	7	9	Nor Butte	3½	4½
Color Pict.	12	13⅛	Oilsh Uts	40	44
Como	1.65	1.70	P Bridge A	1	3
Cornstalk P	16	18	Pub Ut H'd war	7	7¾
Emp Am S.	4½	7	Radio Sec.	2⅛	2⅜
Gen B Shrs	1⅝	3	Rhodesian	.12¾	13½
Gen Cap.	48	52	Roovers Pr.	3¼	4⅛
Gold Cycle	15	16½	Sheldon Min	.50	.55
Gt Nor I. A	22½	25	Shep Strs	⅛	2
Horni Sig.	3	9	Sher Gor	2⅜	3¼
Int C P. A	19½	24	S K F	60¾	61
Int Ut Bkrs war	5	6	U S El war	7½	8¼
Kane	4	5¼	West Va.	2⅜	3½
Laut Nit'te	6⅛	7

THE TREASURY STATEMENT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Revenue receipts and expenditures as at close of business Feb. 13:

Receipts.	This Month.	Corr. Period Last Year.	Fiscal Year 1930.	Corr. Period Fiscal Year 1929.
Customs	$14,959,601.39	$20,365,008.20	$358,451,375.47	$367,692,695.56
Internal rev. income and profits tax	8,638,852.62	11,745,071.43	1,223,090,385.29	1,059,679,875.65
Misc internal revenue	18,829,218.15	17,309,196.69	390,898,452.26	372,375,847.39
Misc. rcts. proceeds govt.-owned foreign obl'ns:
Principal	....	....	40,883,179.63	28,562,640.00
Interest	....	10,000,000.00	80,520,597.15	90,252,451.22
Railroad securities	919,558.26	25,151.51	4,202,114.60	5,718,089.94
All others	242,937.24	....	2,387,023.81	1,727,820.24
Trust fund rcts. reappropriated for investments	2,300,757.64	1,191,346.00	26,399,312.51	34,845,512.25
Proceeds sale of surplus property	344,352.84	1,060,310.91	5,211,241.47	6,309,115.59
Panama Canal tolls, &c.	1,060,555.78	1,235,845.00	18,196,320.50	17,681,915.58
Other miscellaneous	6,218,196.49	6,035,055.54	132,008,844.28	115,649,242.82
Total ordinary	$53,514,030.41	$68,966,985.28	$2,282,248,846.97	$2,100,495,206.24
Excess of total expenditures chargeable against ord. receipts	66,436,376.36	44,288,372.12	170,947,674.94	420,470,287.43
Total expr's chargeable against ord. receipts	$119,950,406.77	$113,255,357.40	$2,453,196,521.91	$2,520,965,493.67

Balance today, $31,278,557.03.

Soundness of a Security depends largely upon the income-producing capacity of the business which it represents.

For those seeking security of principal and income, we have prepared a carefully selected list of attractive securities.

Write for our February Investment Circular

G. E. Barrett & Co.
Incorporated
120 Broadway, New York
Boston Philadelphia Chicago San Francisco

Utilities With Merger Possibilities:

Brooklyn Union Gas Co.
Public Service Corp. of N. J.
Louisville Gas & Electric Co.
Consolidated Gas, El. Light & Power Co. of Baltimore

Circular T 100 upon request

Bear, Stearns & Co.
Members New York Stock Exchange
100 Broadway
1440 Broadway 1501 Broadway

BOND SALES ON THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1930.

Day's Sales.	U. S. Govt.	Domestic.	Foreign.	Total All.
Yesterday	$79,000	$3,275,000	$1,123,000	$4,477,000
Friday	254,000	6,818,600	2,328,000	9,400,600
Year ago	158,500	3,444,000	1,242,500	4,845,000
Two years ago	219,000	4,587,000	2,083,000	6,889,000

Year to Date.	U. S. Govt.	Domestic.	Foreign.	Total All.
1930	$12,383,700	$213,928,100	$88,148,000	$314,459,800
1929	20,479,000	243,542,700	96,842,000	360,863,700
1928	31,475,500	284,123,800	139,261,500	454,860,800
1927	35,919,950	378,664,200	176,508,700	591,092,850

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT LOANS

Range Since Date of Issue High.	Date.	Low.	Date.	Range 1930 High.	Low.	Sales in 1,000s.	Issue.	Open.	High.	Low.	Last.	Net Change.	Closing Bid.	Asked.	Yield.
103.30	Mar. 9, 1927	84.00	May 21, 1920	101.6	100.10	15	Liberty 1st conv. 4¼s, 1932-47	100.31	100.31	100.27	100.27	—.1	100.24	101.00	3.80
104.12	Mar. 9, 1927	82.00	May 20, 1920	101.13	100.28	64	Liberty 4th 4¼s, 1933-38	101.2	101.4	101.1	101.1	—.1	101.1	101.4	3.92

Quotations after the decimal point in the above table represent one or more 32ds of a point.

U. S. TREASURY NOTES.

	Rate.	Bid.	Asked.	Yield.
Mar., 1930	5⅛	100.2	100.4	3.25
June, 1930	4⅞	100.12	100.14	3.48
Sept., 1930	3⅛	99.22	99.24	3.57
Mar., 1932	3½	99.6	99.10	3.84
Sept., 1932	3½	99.6	99.10	3.78
Dec., 1932	3½	99.6	99.10	3.75

Figures after decimals are 32ds.

U. S. INSULAR BONDS.

			Bid.	Asked.
Philippine Govt.	4½	July, 1957	98	101⅝
Do	4½	July, 1952	98	101½
Do	5	Apr., 1955	99	103
Do	5	Feb., 1952	105	108½
Do	5½	Aug., 1941	105	109⅞
U. S. Govt.	2	Apr., 1930	102	105
U. S. Panama	3	June, 1961	87	93
Govt of P Rico	4½	July, 1958	99	103⅛
Terr. of Hawaii	4½	Dec., 1940	99	102¼

SANSHAW
Participation Ownership
Pays all Profits
until your capital plus 6% dividends is returned and, thereafter
50% of all Profits in perpetuity

How and Why? Read our book "SANSHAW"

SANSHAW SECURITY CORPORATION
122 E. 42nd St., N. Y. CALedonia 7749
Please send me your book "SANSHAW" without obligation.
Name ....
Address ....
.... T-44

American Telephone and Telegraph

Convertible 4½s of 1930

Special Analysis
TF 15 on request

J. R. SCHMELTZER & CO
Members New York Stock Exchange
26 Broadway 1 East 46th Street
DIGby 9440 WICkersham 4884

FOREIGN BONDS

[illegible]

DOMESTIC BONDS

[illegible]

Branches New York Stock Exchange Firms

New York City

Firm	Address	Firm	Address
Auerbach, Pollak & Richardson	321 Broadway; 475 5th Ave.	M. J. Meehan & Co.	Hotel Biltmore; Sherry-Netherland; 230 Park Ave.; 29 E. Fordham Rd (Fordham Road & Morris Ave.)
Bamberger Bros.	511 5th Ave.; 250 Park Ave.	Morrison & Townsend	509 Madison Ave.
Bear, Stearns & Co.	1440 Broadway; 1501 Broadway	John Muir & Co.	11 West 42d St.; 41 East 42d St.
Benjamin Block & Co.	550 7th Ave.; 2 Park Ave.; 1775 Broadway	Muir & Loomis	341 Madison Ave.; ★11 East 57th St.
S. B. Chapin & Co.	383 Madison Ave.	G.M.-P. Murphy & Co.	247 Park Ave.
Clark, Childs & Co.	341 Madison Ave.; Murray Hill Hotel	Newman Bros. & Worms	341 Madison Ave.; 16 East 53d St.; ★2112 B'way (72d)
Clark Williams & Co.	1 East 42d St.; 7th Ave. at 32d St.	Jas. H. Oliphant & Co.	230 Park Ave.
Curtis & Sanger	45 East 17th St.	Palmer & Co.	1441 Broadway; 1 Park Place; 730 5th Ave. (57th); 349 East 149th St.; N. Y. Central Bldg.
Engel & Co.	461 7th Ave.	Parrish & Co.	N. Y. Central Bldg.
Walter J. Fahy & Co.	522 5th Ave.	Post & Flagg	385 Madison Ave.
Farnum, Winter & Co.	6 East 53d St.	Potter & Co.	8 East 53d St.
Gilchrist, Bliss & Co.	5th Ave. at 54th St.	Pouch & Co.	342 Madison Ave.
Goodbody & Co.	230 Park Ave.	Richards & Co.	18 East 53d St.
Hardy & Co.	500 7th Ave.	J.R.Schmeltzer & Co.	1 East 46th St.
Harriman & Co.	Biltmore Hotel; 100 East 42d St.; 341 Madison Ave.	Sulzbacher, Granger Co.	2 East 57th St.
Harris, Upham & Co.	578 Mad. Ave. (57th)	Sutro & Co.	16 East 44th St.; 225 Broadway
H. Hentz & Co.	6 East 53d St.; 132 West 31st St.	Taylor, Bates & Co.	41 East 42d St.
Hirsch, Lilienthal & Co.	535 5th Ave.; 724 5th Ave.; Ritz-Carlton Hotel; Breslin Hotel; Pennsylvania Hotel; 2285 Broadway; 3 East 44th St.	J.F. Trounstine & Co.	655 5th Ave. (53d)
Hornblower & Weeks	731 5th Ave.	Samuel Ungerleider & Co.	1372 Broadway; 551 5th Ave.; 400 Madison Ave.
W. E. Hutton & Co.	★57 West 57th St.	Watson & White	Barclay Hotel; N. Y. Life Bldg. (26)
Hyman & Co.	512 5th Ave.; 209 Broadway; ★163 West 72d St.	Edwin Weisl & Co.	604 5th Ave.
Jackson Bros., Boesel & Co.	N. Y. Cent. Bldg. (230 Park Ave.)	C. E. Welles & Co.	508 Park Ave.
Frazier Jelke & Co.	★2 East 57th St.	Whitehouse & Co.	522 5th Ave. (44th)
Josephthal & Co.	654 Madison Ave.	BROOKLYN.
Livingston & Co.	Paramount Bldg.; 12 East 46th St.	Baar, Cohen & Co.	44 Court St.
McDonnell & Co.	29 East 53d St.; Produce Exchange	M. J. Meehan & Co.	16 Court St.
		Tailer & Robinson	★6 7th Av. (at F'bush)
		Whitehouse & Co.	186 Remsen St.; 885 Flatbush Ave.

Suburbs and Other Cities

Firm	Address	Firm	Address
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.		MONTREAL.
Benjamin Block Co.	Ritz-Carlton Hotel	Billings, Olcott & Co.	215 St. James St., W.
M. J. Meehan & Co.	Hotel Traymore	NEWARK, N. J.
Samuel Ungerleider & Co.	1727 Boardwalk	Engel & Co.	48 Commerce St.
BLOOMFIELD, N. J.		Hirsch, Lilienthal & Co.	777 Broad St.
Billings, Olcott & Co.	600 Bloomfield Ave.	NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.
BRIDGEPORT, CONN.		Hyman & Co.	578 Main St.
Hirsch, Lilienthal & Co.	209 State St.	PALM BEACH, FLA.
EAST ORANGE, N. J.		M. J. Meehan & Co.	Murray Bldg. County Rd.
Dane & Co.	24 Prospect St.	Samuel Ungerleider & Co.	210 Sunset Ave.
LAKE PLACID, N. Y.		PHILADELPHIA
Lober Bros. & Plaut	122 Main St.	Orton Kent Co.	1518 Walnut St.
M. J. Meehan & Co.	57 Main St.	Samuel Ungerleider & Co.	1424 Walnut St.
LONG ISLAND		PITTSBURGH, PA.
Newman Bros. & Worms	85 Middle Neck Rd. Great Neck	Wellington & Co.	Union Trust Bldg.
MIAMI BEACH, FLA.		WASHINGTON, D. C.
M. J. Meehan Co.	The Breakers	M. J. Meehan & Co.	Hotel Washington
Samuel Ungerleider & Co.	Roman Pools Casino	WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.
		M. J. Meehan & Co.	14 Mamaroneck Av.

Foreign Cities

Firm	Address	Firm	Address
BERLIN, GERMANY.		PARIS, FRANCE.
H. Hentz & Co.	60 Unter den Linden	H. Hentz & Co.	39 Rue Cambon
		Hirsch, Lilienthal & Co.	44 Avenue des Champs Elysees

★BOARD ROOM FOR WOMEN CUSTOMERS

70% IN 7 YEARS

The 6% Profit Sharing Bonds of CREDIT SERVICE, INC., a leading industrial banking institution, have returned 70% to investors in interest and profit sharing in 7 years. This unusually liberal return includes one-third of the net profits of CREDIT SERVICE, Inc.

The 6% Bonds, with corresponding Certificates of Profit Sharing are offered at $100.

Mail coupon now for full information.

CREDIT SERVICE ASSOCIATES, Inc.
Grayber Bldg., N. Y. Lexington 2596

NAME
ADDRESS
T-2-16-30

We have prepared a SPECIAL ANALYSIS of Columbia Gas & Electric with reference to its Natural Gas Properties

Ask for copy GT

Orton, Kent & Co.
Members
New York Stock Exchange
New York Curb (Associate)
39 Broadway, New York
Digby 5100
Salmon Tower, 11 W. 42nd Street
Chickering 2760
NEWARK PHILADELPHIA

A Yield of 8%

At present prices investors in Associated Gas and Electric Company Class A Stock receive a yield over 8% in stock dividends

Public Utility Investing Corp.
61 Broadway, New York City
Please send me Class A circular B-52.
Name
Address

Oil Producing Royalties

"THE GOLD BONDS OF THE OIL INDUSTRY"

Our field forces maintain constant intimate contact with the great Kansas and Oklahoma fields. Only income earning properties being operated under responsible managements, and with ample reserve acreage, are behind the Oil Royalties we recommend.

J. EDWARD JONES
342 Madison Ave., N. Y.
MID-CONTINENT OFFICES
Tulsa, Oklahoma
Independence, Kansas

We Recommend for Investment—
PHILLIPS PETROLEUM COMPANY
(Common Stock)

Yields, at present market, about 10% in stock and cash.

Unbroken record of dividend payments.

Listed on N. Y. Stock Exchange

An analysis furnished on request.

P. H. Whiting & Co., Inc.
72 Wall Street New York.
Cleveland Dallas Detroit
Houston Manchester Portland, Me.
San Antonio Toledo Youngstown

ORIGINATIONS
Mergers & Refinancing
Inquiries invited

SOWERS & TOBIAS
25 Broadway, New York

BONDS TO BE PAID BEFORE MATURITY

Issues Called for Redemption This Month Now Amount to $83,179,600.

LOANS CHIEFLY INDUSTRIAL

Announcement Made of Foreign and Domestic Securities to Be Retired Later.

Bonds called last week for redemption before maturity consisted of various municipal issues for retirement this month and several foreign and industrial issues for payment in future months. The aggregate for February is now $83,179,600, compared with $29,934,500 in January, and $57,597,200 in February, 1929, at the corresponding date.

Included in the new notices for February were $45,000 Antonito (Col.) water works extension 6s, called at par for Feb. 15, and various bonds of Minidoka County, Idaho; Rio Grande County and Florence, Col.; Roundup, Mont., and Tempe, Ariz., for dates extending from Feb. 8 to Feb. 24.

Among the loans called for future months were the entire issues of the Boston Publishing Company first 7s, due in 1965, called at 100 for March 1; $87,000 J. I. Case Plow Works first 5s, due in 1940, at par for the same date; $26,000 Christiana (Norway) municipal sinking fund 6s, due in 1954, also for March at par; $25,000 Independent Oil and Gas Company convertible debenture 6s, due in 1939, at 102½ for March 15; Peruvian National Loan external sinking fund 6s, due in 1961, amounting to $132,000, for April 1, at 100, and the outstanding Tennessee Water Company first 5s, due in 1946, at 105 for March 1.

Bonds called for redemption in February are classified as follows:

Industrial	$77,056,000
Public utility	602,000
State and municipal	153,600
Foreign	4,670,000
Miscellaneous	698,000
Total	$83,179,600

In accompanying tables, compiled by THE NEW YORK TIMES, are listed bonds and stocks called for redemption.

CHILE REFUSES TERMS OF BOND AND SHARE CO.

President Gives Pocket Veto to Contract and Dismisses Man Who Drafted Measure.

President Ibanez of Chile, as a result of the controversy arising over a proposed contract between the Electric Bond and Share Company of New York and the Chilian Government involving gas and electric concessions in that country, has given the agreement a pocket veto and dismissed Francisco Lobos, Commissioner of Gas and Electric Services, for the part that he played in drafting the contract, according to a dispatch received last night by Luis E. Feliu-H., Chilian Consulate General here, from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs at Santiago.

It was charged that the contract was monopolistic. The dispatch states that Mr. Lobos was dismissed "on consideration that he overstepped his authority on the committee in charge of drafting the new agreement between the Compania de Electricidad Limitada (Electric Bond and Share Company) and the government."

The dispatch says the government considered the contract "unacceptable" and that the President, "agreeing with the criticism of the press, gave it an open and public pocket veto." It concludes:

"The company, though it was very insistent in having the contract passed, is now lowering down its pretensions and states that it is ready to discuss a new contract in accord with public interests and opinion."

UTILITY EARNINGS.

Mackay Companies.

The annual report of the Mackay Companies for 1929 shows a net income of $4,762,563 after expenses, Federal taxes and charges equal after preferred dividends to $6.77 a share earned on 413,804 shares of stock, comparing with $4,726,213, or $6.68 a share, earned in 1928.

Earned surplus on Dec. 31, 1929, was $2,439,295, against $2,289,415 at the beginning of the year and after dividends of $4,612,684 paid during the year. Total assets on Dec. 31, 1929, were $95,342,818, including investments of $91,339,639.

New England Power.

The New England Power Association and subsidiaries report a consolidated net income of $8,002,453 for 1929 after depreciation, charges, taxes and subsidiary preferred dividends, equal after the company's preferred dividends to $5.25 a share earned on 859,731 average no par common shares outstanding during the year, and to $4.95 a share on 910,481 common shares outstanding on Dec. 31. This compares with a net income of $5,441,576 in 1928, equal to $4.04 a share on 836,388 average common shares outstanding during 1928 and to $3.98 a share on 849,773 common shares outstanding at the end of the year. Gross revenues were $40,408,008, against $31,835,604 in 1928.

Seaboard Utilities Share Exchange.

Stockholders of the Seaboard Utilities Shares Corporation are being notified that they may exchange their Massachusetts shares for those of the new Delaware corporation at the Old Colony Trust Company in Boston or the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company in Chicago. Shares of the Delaware company, formed to take over the assets of the Massachusetts company, were admitted to trading on the Chicago Stock Exchange on a when-issued basis on Friday.

Utilities to Spen $18,594,676.

The Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light Company and other subsidiaries of the North American Company in Wisconsin and upper Michigan have provided for expenditures of $18,594,676 in 1930 for expansion and improvement, exceeding the 1929 budget by $1,255,455 and a new high record, it was announced yesterday.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

SATURDAY, FEB. 15, 1930.

Range of Rates, Sight Exchange.

	High.	Low.	Final.	Friday's Final.
LONDON	$4.85 11/16	$4.85⅝	$4.85 11/16	$4.85 11/16
PARIS	3.91¼	3.91 3/16	3.91 3/16	3.91¼
ROME	5.23¼	5.23 3/16	5.23¼	5.23 3/16
BERLIN	23.87	23.86	23.86	23.86½
COPENH'G'N	26.77	26.76½	26.76½	26.76½
OSLO	26.74	26.72½	26.72½	26.71½
STOCKHOLM	26.81	26.80	26.80½	26.80½

CLOSING RATES.

Quotations on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

Europe.

	Saturday.	Friday.	Week Ago.	Year Ago.
STERLING—Par $4.86⅝ per sovereign.
Demand	$4.85 11/16	$4.85 11/16	$4.86 1/16	$4.84 11/16
Cables	4.86 1/16	4.86 1/16	4.86 3/16	4.85 3/16
Com., 60 days	4.82 1/16	4.82¼	4.82 7/16	4.80¼
Com., 90 days	4.80⅝	4.80⅝	4.80⅞	4.78¼
FRANCE—Revalued at 3.91¾ cents per franc.
Demand	3.91 3/16	3.91¼	3.91 1/16	3.90¼
Cables	3.91 5/16	3.91½	3.91 1/16	3.90½
ITALY—Par 5.2631 cents per lira.
Demand	5.23¼	5.23 3/16	5.23¼	5.23⅜
Cables	5.23⅜	5.23 5/16	5.23⅜	5.23⅝
BELGIUM—Par 13.904 cents per belga.
Demand	13.92	13.92½	13.92½	13.89
Cables	13.93	13.93½	13.93½	13.89¾
GERMANY—Par 23.8 cents per mark.
Demand	23.86	23.86¼	23.88½	23.71½
Cables	23.87	23.87¼	23.89½	23.72½
AUSTRIA—Par 14.07 cents per schilling.
Demand	14.25	14.25	14.25	14.07
Cables	14.25	14.25	14.25	14.07
CZECHOSLOVAKIA—Par 2.964 cents per crown (stabilized 33.75 crowns).
Demand	2.96	2.96	2.96	2.9612
Cables	2.9625	2.9625	2.9625	2.9650
DENMARK—Par 26.8 cents per krone.
Demand	26.76½	26.76½	26.75	26.66½
Cables	26.78	26.78	26.76½	26.68
FINLAND—Par 2.5185 cents per finmark.
Demand	2.52	2.52	2.52	2.52
Cables	2.52¼	2.52¼	2.52¼	2.52½
GREECE—Par 1.30 cents per drachma.
Demand	1.29¼	1.29¼	1.29¼	1.29¼
Cables	1.29⅜	1.29⅜	1.29⅜	1.29½
HOLLAND—Par 40.2 cents per florin.
Demand	40.06¼	40.06¾	40.11¼	40.02
Cables	40.08¼	40.08¾	40.13¼	40.04
HUNGARY—Par 17.49 cents per pengo.
Demand	17.50	17.50	17.50	17.45
Cables	17.50	17.50	17.50	17.45
NORWAY—Par 26.8 cents per krone.
Demand	26.72½	26.71½	26.70	26.65½
Cables	26.74	26.73	26.71½	26.67
POLAND—Par 11.22 cents per zloty.
Demand	11.25	11.25	11.25	11.25
Cables	11.25	11.25	11.25	11.25
PORTUGAL—Par $1.0805 per escudo.
Demand	4.52	4.52	4.52	4.44
Cables	4.53	4.53	4.53	4.45
RUMANIA—Par .00598 per leu.
Demand	.60½	.60½	.60½	.60⅜
Cables	.60½	.60½	.60½	.60⅝

	Saturday.	Friday.	Week Ago.	Year Ago.
SPAIN—Par 19.3 cents per peseta.
Demand	12.50	12.49	13.09	15.62
Cables	12.51	12.50	13.10	15.63
SWEDEN—Par 26.8 cents per krona.
Demand	26.80½	26.80½	26.83	26.71
Cables	26.82	26.82	26.84½	26.72½
SWITZERLAND—Par 19.3 cents per franc.
Demand	19.28½	19.28¾	19.30	19.22¼
Cables	19.29½	19.29¾	19.31	19.23¼
YUGOSLAVIA—Par 19.3 cents per dinar.
Demand	1.77	1.77	1.77	1.76
Cables	1.77	1.77	1.77	1.76
Far East.
CHINA—Cents per silver dollar for Hongkong, per tael for Shanghai and Peking.
Hongkong—
Demand	38.44	38.56	38.08	48.56
Cables	38.50	38.62	38.12	48.62
Peking—
Demand	49.875	50.12	50.00	62.50
Shanghai—
Demand	48.44	48.81	48.69	61.87
Cables	48.50	48.87	48.75	61.93
INDIA—Calcutta: 36.50 cents per rupee.
Demand	36.31	36.31	36.31	36.37
Cables	36.37	36.37	36.37	36.43
PHILIPPINE ISLANDS—Manila: Par 50 cents per silver peso.
Demand	49.69	49.69	49.69	50.00
Cables	49.75	49.75	49.75	50.25
JAVA—Par 40.2 cents per florin.
Demand	40.12	40.12	40.12	40.00
JAPAN—Par 49.8 cents per yen.
Demand	49.12	49.12	49.12	45.25
Cables	49.18	49.18	49.18	45.31
STRAITS SETTLEMENTS—Par 56.78 cents per dollar.
Demand	56.18	56.18	56.18	56.25
Cables	56.25	56.31	56.31	56.31
South America.
ARGENTINA—Par 42.44 cents per Argentine paper dollar.
Demand	37.68	37.68	37.68	42.15
Cables	37.75	37.75	37.75	42.20
BRAZIL—Par 11.96 cents per paper milreis.
Demand	10.93	10.93	11.18	11.91
Cables	11.00	11.00	11.25	11.94
COLOMBIA—Par 97.33 cents per gold peso.
Demand	96.75	96.75	96.75	98.04
CHILE—Par 12.165 cents per gold peso.
Demand	12.06	12.06	12.06	12.06
Cables	12.12	12.12	12.12	12.12
PERU—Par $4.8665 per pound.
Demand	3.99	3.99	3.99	3.99½
Cables	4.00	4.00	4.00	4.00½
URUGUAY—Par $1.0342 per gold peso.
Demand	88.25	89.25	88.75	102.75
Cables	88.50	88.50	89.00	103.00
Central America.
GUATEMALA—Par $1.00 per quetzal.
Cables	1.00	1.00	1.00	1.00
Canada.
MONTREAL—Par 100 cents per Canadian dollar.
Demand	99.20	99.156	99.18	99.58
Mexico.
MEXICO CITY—Par 49.85 cents per gold peso
Demand	47.64	47.65	47.44	48.47

EAU DE COLOGNE DECISION.

Court's Order in Case of Mulhens & Kropff, Inc., vs. Ferd. Muehlens.

The report of a decision by Federal Judge Mack in the litigation begun by Mulhens & Kropff, Inc., against Ferd. Muehlens to restrain the latter from marketing its products including Eau de Cologne under the trademark 4711, printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES Oct. 12, stated that the court found that the defendants were entitled to the trade-mark because of its purchase from the Alien Property Custodian.

Ferd. Muehlens, Inc., pointed out yesterday that Judge Mack's finding on this point was coupled with a condition which was not stated in the article in THE TIMES. This condition, as stated in the decision, was:

"Relief should be conditioned upon the plaintiff stating on its labels in substance that the product is not manufactured in accordance with the original recipe owned by the House of Muehlens. This statement is to be clearly printed in a size and style to be approved by this court and embodied in the decree."

Deny Youngstown-Bethlehem Deal.

Special to The New York Times.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Feb. 15—Officials of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company denied today reports from New York that the company may join in a consolidation with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

VIENNA STOCK EXCHANGE.

Closing quotations of Feb. 14, 1930:

	Par Value.	Schillings Per Sh.	Net Chge. Agst. Feb. 7, 1930.
Austr Cred Anst	40 Sch.	51.00	...
A E G Union	25 Sch.	28.15	−1.00
Galicia Oil	75 Zloty	36.00	−2.00
Rima Steel	50 Pengoe	104.60	−2.70
Hung Gen Cr Bk	50 Pengoe	94.05	−.55

ITALIAN STOCK PRICES.

Quoted in dollars on basis of prices on Milan Stock Exchange:

	Bid.	Asked
BANKS.
Banca d'Italia	107	109
Banca Commerciale Italiana	76	77
Banca d'America d'Italiana and Ameritalia	10¼	11¼
Banca Nationale di Credito	31	31½
Credito Italiano	42¾	43¾
PUBLIC UTILITIES.
Adamelio	16½	17¼
Adriatic Elec	13	13½
Italgas	12¼	12¾
Italian Edison	43	43½
Lombard Electric	46	47
Seso Electric	6¼	7
Sip. Electric	7¾	8
Terni Electric	21¼	21¾
Unes	5¾	6¼
INDUSTRIALS.
Cosulich	4½	5¼
Ernesto-Breda	6½	7
Fiat Motors	19¾	20½
Fiat Motors	20¼	20¾
Isotta Fraschini	10¼	10¾
Montecatini	12¼	13¼
Navigazione Generale Italiana	26¼	26¾
Pirelli Rubber	48	49

GENEVA QUOTATIONS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Feb. 15.—Stocks showed an irregular tendency today. Closing quotations included:

	Closing Price.
Union Financiere de Geneva	713
Societe de Banque Suisse	843
American European Securities, com	247
Hispano Americana de Electricidad	2,060
Nestle & Anglo-Swiss Cond. Milk Co.	765
Kreuger et Toll	763
Cie Suedoise d'Allumettes B	439

BUDAPEST STOCK EXCHANGE.

Closing quotations of Feb. 14, 1930:

	Par Value Pengoe.	Pengoes Per Sh.	Net Chge. Agst. Feb. 7, 1930.
Hung Com Bk of P	50	109	−8
Salgo-Tarjan Mining	30	48¼	−1
Rima-Murany Iron	50	84⅞	−1⅜
Uni Incand Lamp	40	109½	−3
1st Bud Steam Millg	50	28	..
Felten Guill Co	70	201½	−½
Hung Asphalt Co	10	28	−1
Electro Trust	25	28¾	−1⅛

NEWS OF MARKETS IN PARIS AND BERLIN

French Trading Is Quiet, but Some of the Leading Issues Register Gains.

CREDIT CONDITIONS EASY

German Boerse Depressed, Although Price Range Is Narrow—Call Money Tighter.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—Money was abundant for the midmonth settlements today at the exceptional rate of 1⅞ per cent. This monetary ease, however, was not reflected in Bourse trading, which remained dull. With the financial debate in the Chamber of Deputies acute, the stage of activity naturally is reduced. Leading stocks, including banks, were somewhat firmer.

Rentes weakened at the opening but recovered the losses partially before the closing, which was as follows: The 3 per cents, 88; 1918 4s, 99.90; 1920 amortizable 5s, 136.35; 1928 5s, 104.25; 1920 6s, 103.35; 1927 amortizable 6s, 107.50.

Paris Closing Prices.

	Closing Price (Francs)	Net Chge.
BONDS.
French rentes 3% perpetual	87.90	−.50
French rentes 4% 1917	100.30	−.20
French rentes 5% 1915-16	101.01	−.39
BANKS.
Banque de France	25,250	+635
Banque de Paris et des P's Bas	2,945	+35
Credit Lyonnais	3,100	+5
CANAL.
Canal Maritime de Suez	19,825	+115
RAILROADS.
Chemins de fer du Nord	2,505	−25
Paris-Lyons-Mediterranee	1,560	+10
MINES.
Mines de Courrieres	1,671	..
Mines de Lens	1,402	..
Rio Tinto Co., Ltd	5,535	+20
Soc. Miniere-Met. de Penarroya	1,047	+1
PUBLIC UTILITIES.
Cie. Generale d'Electricite	3,640	+40
Soc. Lyonnaise des Eaux	3,650	+55
Cie. Francaise des Procedes Thomson-Houston	1,173	−2
INDUSTRIALS.
Trefileries & Lam. du Havre	2,150	+10
Schneider & Cie	2,000	−15
Societe Andre Citroen	1,100	..
Ste. Francaise Ford	185	..
Pechiney	3,470	+20
l'Air Liquide	2,005	+5
Etablissements Kuhlmann	1,119	..
Coty, S. A.	1,015	−10
OIL.
Royal Dutch	4,040	−5

Prices Lower in Berlin.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 15.—The Boerse closed the week with a depressed tendency, although with the exception of Siemens of the electricals, which declined four points, no great changes in prices took place. The firmness of the New York Stock Exchange and favorable reports reaching the Boerse from the general shareholders meeting of the Reichsbank were unable to stimulate the market.

The volume of trading was greatly restricted and most stocks declined slightly. Reichsbank was steady. At the close Julius Berger of the building group was alone able to overcome the general depression and improved four points. Call money was tighter at 5 to 7 per cent.

Berlin Closing Prices.

	Pct. of Par.	Net Chge.
Allg Deutsche Credit (ADCA)(10)	121	−1
Berlin Handels Ges (12)	189	−1
Commerz-und Privat Bank (11)	158	−1
Darmstaedter & Nationalb'k (12)	236	−1
Deutsche Bk & Disconto Ges (10)	150	..
Dresdner Bank (10)	151	−1
Reichsbank (12)	308	+1
Allg Elektr Ges (A. E. G.) (8)	175	−1
Algemeene Kunstzijde Unie (AKU) (18)	115	−2
Ford Motor Co. Berlin	191½	−⅜
Gelsenkirchen Bergwerk (8)	137	−1
Gesfuerel (10)	170	−1
Hamburg-Amer Line (HAPAG)(7)	100	+1
Hamburg Electric Co (10)	135	..
Heyden Chemical (5)	62	..
Harpener Bergbau (0)	137	+2
I G Farben Indus (Die Trust)(12)	165	−2
Kali Chemize (7)	163	+3
Karstadt (12)	129	..
Mannesmann Tubes (7)	106	−2
North German Lloyd (8)	104	+1
Phoenix Bergbau (6½)	105	+1
Rhein Westf Elektr (R.W.E.)(10)	182	..
Siemens & Halske (14)	261	−5
Stoehr & Co Kammgarn Spinnerei (10)	106	+1
Leonhard Tietz (10)	161	..
Ver Stahlwerke (Uni Stl Wks)(6)	102	..

BONDS CALLED FOR REDEMPTION

CURRENT MONTH.	Amount Called (000 Omitted).	Price.	Redemption Date.
Albuquerque, N. M., pav. bds	V. B.	100	Feb. 27
Albuquerque, N. M., pav. bds	V. B.	100	Feb. 28
Durango, Col., impr. bds	$5	100	Feb. 19
Florence (City of), Col., sidewalk bds	V. B.	100	Feb. 24
Fort Collins, Col., impr. dist. bds	V. B.	100	Feb. 17
La Plata Co., Col., sch. dist. bds	V. B.	100	Feb. 20
Rio Grande Co., Col., warrants	V. B.	100	Feb. 17
Routt Co., Col., road & bridge warrants	V. W.	100	Feb. 21
Roundup, Mont., genl. water pur. bds., '14	V. B.	100	Feb. 23
Westvaco Chlorine Products deb. 5½s, '37	$40	103½	Feb. 27

FUTURE MONTHS.	Amount Called (000 Omitted).	Price.	Redemption Date.
ADDRESSOGRAPH CO deb. 5½s, 1930-37	$2,825	V. P.	Mar. 1
Albany Southern R. R. (now Eastern N. Y. Utilities Corp.) 1st mtge. s. f. 5s, 1939	E. I.	106	Mar. 1
Alpine Montan Steel s. f. 7s, 1955	$11	100	Mar. 1
American Sales Book, Ltd., 1st 6s, 1939	$19	104¼	Apr. 1
Arapahoe Co., Col., Sch. Dist. 22, 6s, 1920	1 bd.	100	Mar. 1
Argentine Govt 4½% cv. loan, 1888-89	$587	100	Apr. 1
Argentine (Rep. of) 4½% int., 1933	$461	100	Mar. 1
Associated Oil 6% nts., 1935	$1,230	102½	Mar. 1
BELOIT WATER, G. & E. 1st s. f. 5s, '37	$33	103	Mar. 1
Bergen (City of) 4% loan, 1901	$42	100	June 30
Bernalillo Co., N. M., sch. dist. bds	$2	100	June 1
Bolivar Square 1st 6s, 1939	V. B.	100	Mar. 1
Boston Publishing 1st 7s, 1965	E. I.	100	Mar. 1
Buenos Aires (Prov. of) (Argentine Rep.) ref. ext. 6s, 1961	$224	100	Mar. 1
Buffalo & Ft. Erie pub. bdge. deb. 8s, '45	$105	105	Apr. 1
Buffalo Bd. of Tr. 2d 5s, due 1926, extd. to Sept. 1, 1936	$30	100	Mar. 1
CALDWELL CO., Texas, road bds	V. B.	100	Apr. 10
Canyon Co., Idaho, 5s, 1919	V. B.	100	Mar. 1
Case (J. I.) Plow Works 1st 5s, 1940	$87	100	Mar. 1
Central Gas & Elec. 5½s, 1930	E. I.	100¼	July 1
Cespedes Sugar 1st 7½s, 1939	$77	105	Mar. 1
Chicago & West. Ind. R. R. genl. mtg. 6s	V. B.	105	Mar. 1
Chicoutimi Water & Electric 1st 5s, 1932	E. I.	110	Mar. 31
Chilean Consol. Mun. loan ext. A 7s of 1960, int. ctfs	$75	100	Mar. 1
Chile (Rep. of) ext. 6s, 1962	$52	100	Mar. 1
Chile (Rep. of) ext. 6s, 1961	$84	100	Mar. 1
Chinese Imp. Govt. 5s, Hu Kwang Rys., 1911	$667	100	June 15
Christiania (Norway) mun. ext. s. f. 6s, '54	$26	100	Mar. 1
Cleveland Un. Term. 1st A 5½s, 1972	$39	105	Apr. 1
Coastwise Transportation 1st mtge. 7s, Ser. F, G, H, I & J, 1934	E. I.	100	May 15
Colfax Co., N. M., Sch. Dist. 24, 6s, '50	$55	100	Mar. 1
Colorado (State of) 4½% Natl. Defense bds., 1917	E. I.	100	Mar. 1
Compagnie Rouennaise de Linoleum S. A. 5% deb	$6	100	Apr. 1
Cornell Wood Products 1st & ref. 7½s, '37	$860	104	Mar. 1
Credit Consortium for Public Works of Italy ext. A 7s, 1937, & B 7s, 1947	A. $190, B. $106	100	Mar. 1
Credit Foncier Egyptian 3½% bds	V. B.	N. S.	Oct. 1
DENVER GAS & ELEC. gen. 5s, 1949	$56	105	May 1
Dery (D. G.) 1st 7s, 1942	$6	110	Mar. 1
Downers Grove (Village of), Ill., special assessment bonds	$52	100	Mar 1
EUCLID ARCADE BLDG. (Cleve.) 1st lshld. 6s, 1931-32	V. B.	102½	Mar. 1
FARMERS MFG. 1st mtg. s. f. 7s, 1943	$37	105	Mar. 1
Filice & Perrelli Canning 1st cv. 7s, 1937	E. I.	105	Apr. 1
Fort Dearborn Safe Deposit 1st ref. 5s, '41	E. I.	102½	July 1
GERMAN-ATLANTIC CABLE 1st 7s, 1945	$129	110	Apr. 1
Goodyear Fabric 10-yr. 6s, 1935	$56	100	Apr. 1
Goodyear (C. A.) Lumber Co. of Del. 1st 8s, 1931	$35	103	Mar. 15
Grant Co., N. M., ref. bds	$12	100	Mar. 1
Great West. Electro-Chem. 1st 6s, 1939	$69	102	Apr. 1
Great Western Utilities 1st lien & coll. tr. A 6s, 1943	$600	102	Apr. 1
Guaranty Development gen. 6½s, 1935	E. I.	103	May 1
HARRAH (Chas. W.) 1st 6½s, 1934	$14	103	Mar. 1
Heineman Corp. 1st serial 6s, 1931-35	$54	101	Mar. 1
Hoffman (Casper) 1st 6½s, 1934	$11	103	Mar. 1
Holland America Line s. f. 6s, 1947	V. B.	100	May 1
Homer Furnace deb. 6s, 1932	$35	102	Apr. 1
IMPERIAL CHINESE GOVT. TIENTSIN-PUKOW RWY. 5s, 1938	V. B.	100	Apr. 1
Independent Oil & Gas cv. deb. 6s, 1939	$25	102½	Mar. 15
JONES (E. T.) & JONES (M. A.) bds., '23	E. I.	102	May 15
Jutland Land Credit Assn. 4s & 4½s, bds	V. B.	N. S.	July 1
Jutland Telephone, Ltd., bds. 1922 & 1925	$50	N. S.	Mar. 15
KLOTS THROWING 1st & ref. 6s, 1939	$12	100	Mar. 1
LA COMPAGNIE DES EAUX ET DE L'ELECTRICITE DE CHICOUTIMI 1st mtge. 5s, 1907	E. I.	110	Mar. 31
Ladore Co. (The) 1st 6½s, 1939	$9	102	Mar. 1
Land Escrow Dept., Inc., 7s, 1947	$6	102½	Mar. 1
Lima (City of) (Peru) s. f. 6½s, 1958	$18	100	Mar. 1
Lincoln Co., Col., 6s, 1913	V. B.	100	Mar. 1
Lincoln, Neb., ref. 4½s, 1931-1935	E. I.	100	*Mar. 1
MERKEL BROS. 1st 6s, 1934	$10	102	Mar. 1
Merrill & Bing. Lumber 1st 6s, 1936	$100	100½	Mar. 1
Metallgesellschaft Aktiengesellschaft 6½% bds	$172	100	Apr. 1
Minas Geraes (State of) sec. ext. A 6½s, 1959, int. ctfs	$45	100	Mar. 1
Minas Geraes (State of) sec. s. f. 6½s, '58	$52	100	Mar. 1
NATL. HUNGARIAN IND. MTG. INST., LTD., 1st mtg. s. f. 7s, A, 1948	$59	100	May 1
Northw'n Elevator, Ltd., 1st mtg. 6½s, '32	E. I.	103	Mar. 1
822 Gravier, Inc., 6s, 1940	V. B.	101	Mar. 15
OAKMAN (Robt.) 1st 7s, 1932	$63	101.86	Mar. 1
Omaha (City of), Neb., st. imp. & grading dis. bds	V. B.	100	June 1
Oregon City (Ore.) imp. bds., 1926	V. B.	100	Mar. 1
PERU (REP. OF) sec. s. f. 7s, 1959	$84	105	Mar. 1
Peruvian Natl. Loan ext. s. f. 6s, 1961	$132	100	Apr. 1
Piute Co., Utah, court house & road 6s, '40	E. I.	100	Apr. 1
Prettyman (J. F.) & Sons 1st 6s, 1930-37	$527	101	Mar. 15
Protestant Cent. Credit Un. of Hungary sec. 7s, 1963	$5	100	Mar. 1
RANDFONTEIN EST. GOLD. M. 1st mtg. 6% deb	$740	100	Mar. 1
Raton, N. M., special impr. bds	V. B.	100	Mar. 1
Rocky Ford (Col.) pav. bds., 1934	V. B.	100	Mar. 7
Royal Siamese Govt. 4½s, 1905	$142	100	Mar. 1
Royal Siamese Govt. 4½s, 1907	$389	100	Mar. 1
Royal Siamese Govt. 7s, 1922	$83	100	Mar. 1
SAAR BASIN CONS. COS. ext. s. f. 7s, '35	$194	102	Apr. 1
Saarbruecken (City of) ext. s. f. 7s	V. B.	105	Apr. 1
St. Louis Conf. of the Meth. Epis. Ch. (The) 1st 6s, 1931-34	E. I.	V. P.	Mar. 1
St. Louis Conference of the Meth. Episc. Ch. (The) 1st 6s, 1931-35	E. I.	V. P.	Mar. 1
Santa Cruz Port. Cem. 1st 6s, 1945	$617	110	Mar. 1
Saxon State Mtge. Inst. s. f. gtd. 6s, '47	$15	100	Mar. 15
Sheriff St. Market & Storage 1st 6s, 1938	$910	102½	Apr. 1
Silver City (Town of), N. M., gen. ref. bds	$50	100	Mar. 1
Spring Valley Water 1st 5s, 1943	$22,000	100	Nov. 1
Standard Transit, Ser. C 6s, 1929-32	V. B.	101	Mar. 15
Sterling, Col., pav. bds	V. B.	100	June 1
Swetland 1st 6s, 1931	E. I.	102	Apr. 1
TENN. WATER 1st 5s, 1946	$219	105	Mar. 1
Thermopolis, Wyo., pav. & drge. dist. bds	V. B.	100	Mar. 1
Toronto Conservatory of Music deb. 5s, '48	$5	103	Mar. 1
Trinidad (City of), Col., pav. bds	V. B.	100	Mar. 3
VALLEY CO., Mont., 5¼s, 1935	E. I.	100	July 1
WABASSO COTTON, LTD., 1st 6s, 1947	$10	105	June 1
Washington Co., Col., sch. dist. bds	V. B.	N. S.	Mar. 1
Westwood Lumber 1st 6s, 1931	E. I.	101¼	May 1
Willow Brook Dairy s. f. 6% deb., 1943	$1,000	105	Apr. 1
Wolf (Wm.) Bakery bds., 1932-34	V. B.	101	Mar. 15
Woodward Land Co. of Oakland Co. 1st 6s, 1938	$15	101½	Mar. 1

Note—(E. I.) Entire issue. (E. S.) Entire series. (V. B.) Various bonds. (N. S.) Not stated. (V. P.) Various prices. (Imd.) Immediately. (*) On or before. (V. N.) Various notes. (V. W.) Various warrants.

STOCK REDEMPTIONS

	Amount	Redemption Price	Redemption Date
Connecticut Elec. Serv. cv. pf	E. I.	68	Apr. 1
Connecticut Power Co pf	E. I.	115	Feb. 28
Federated Publications, Inc., $2 conv. pf	E. I.	110	Feb. 15
Federal Knitting Mills 7% cum. pf	E. I.	102	Apr. 1
Firestone Tire & Rubber Co 6% cum. pf	E. I.	110	Feb. 15
Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. 7% cum. pf	E. I.	110	Feb. 15
Interstate Iron & Steel pf	E. I.	115	Mar. 1
Secord (Laura) Candy Shops, Ltd., 7% cum. cv. pf	P.	110	Apr. 15
Willow Brook Dairy 7% pf	E. I.	110	Apr. 1

Note—(E. I.) Entire issue. (P.) Part of issue.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

This Business Is Always Good

Has increased every year for 16 years without a setback. No matter what course general conditions take, 1930 should show further gains for this $40,000,000 Company. Operates in a remarkably safe and stable field in many cities and is constantly expanding.

Can you see the possibilities of the Preferred and Common Stocks of this Company—the largest of its kind in America? Details will be found well worth reading.

Simply sign your name and address below (no obligation) and mail.

Name
Address

W. E. Willard & Co.
Incorporated
25 West 43d St., New York

Technicolor
Capital Stock

The attendance at motion picture theatres has rapidly increased since the advent of sound and color. In the latter field, the only company processing large feature pictures in color is Technicolor, Inc. Recent releases include:

Sally
The Rogue Song
General Crack
Son of the Gods

We believe this company's current high earning power and important developments pending justifies substantially higher market levels for this stock.

Circular T-5 on Request

HANSON & HANSON
Members Ass'n of Bank Stock Dealers
Unlisted Securities Dealers Ass'n
25 Broadway, N. Y. DIGby 8700

NATIONAL WATER WORKS CORPORATION
Convertible Gold Debentures
Yielding 6.34%

meet the requirements of profitable and intelligent investment

These convertible bonds of a large water works consolidation now yield 6.34% at todays prices. They represent an investment in an industry selling the world's most necessary commodity—water—to growing populous centers in five states.

Those who would invest shrewdly at this time should ask for further data concerning this company.

Ask for Booklet A-7

Name
Address

DETWILER & Co.
INCORPORATED
Financing-Engineering-Management of Public Utilities
11 BROADWAY, NEW YORK
Offices in principal Eastern cities

Daily Market Letter

touching on technical conditions of individual stocks, gladly sent upon request.

C. H. Van Buren & Co.
Members New York Stock Exchange
Members New York Curb Exch. (Assoc.)
55 Broadway New York
Telephone Digby 9130

British Type Investors

We recommend this management type trust

Circular on request

Lee & Company
11 Broadway New York City
Telephone Digby 2370

DO YOU KNOW
The ninety-six banks of Metropolitan New York covered in our 1929 statistical survey?
Write for BTI
Guttag Bros.
Bank and Insurance Stocks
95 Broad St., New York

INVESTMENT SECURITIES
ELI GROMBECKER & CO.
165 Broadway, N. Y. Tel. Cortlandt 6583

A Guaranteed Gold Debenture BOND paying 6% and extras in its Profit Sharing Feature

$1,000,000
American Cash Credit Corp.

Guaranteed 6% and Profit Sharing Series "A" Gold Debenture Coupon Bonds

Due February 1, 1935

Issued in the Denominations of $500. and $1,000.
Price $110. and Accrued Interest

The bonds of this issue may be redeemed at the option of the company, in whole or in part, on any interest date after February 1, 1935 at 110% of the principal amount thereof, together with accrued interest on said principal amount, upon at least thirty days notice in writing.

Coupons for the interest at the rate of 6% per annum, payable on the first days of February, May, August and November, are annexed to the bond. The profit sharing bonus is paid annually on February 1st to the registered owner of the bond, by check.

This issue is a direct obligation of the American Cash Credit Corporation, and has priority over the equity and interest of the holders of the Common Stock of the Corporation. (There is no preferred stock.)

Principal and interest is guaranteed by the National Cash Credit Association, a Corporation with resources of over $17,000,000. which controls a chain of 13 companies operating 100 small loan offices in 13 states east of the Mississippi.

Both the principal and interest are payable without deduction for that portion of any Federal income tax, not exceeding 2% per annum, which the Company may be required or permitted to pay thereon, and hereby covenants to pay Federal Income Tax, not exceeding 2% as aforesaid.

Unusually attractive because it ranks first—having all the bond security safeguards—in addition the 6% interest is guaranteed—with the extra feature that it participates in at least 25% of the current net earnings on the bond money.

Detailed Information Upon Request

USE COUPON
N. Y. T.
National Cash Credit Corp.
40 Journal Square Jersey City, N. J.
NCCA ORGANIZATION
Name
Address

INSURANSHARES CORPORATION

The Next Decade

ALWAYS the advent of a new year brings with it a large crop of predictions. Some are right and some are wrong, some optimistic and some pessimistic. All are guesses.

Every decade in the history of American business has resulted in progress. So it is not a guess to say that in January, 1940, it will be possible for the American people to look back upon the work of another decade in the knowledge that history has repeated itself.

Sterling Securities Corporation is an investment company built to withstand those temporary setbacks which are, after all, but sign posts to progress. It has a widely diversified portfolio of securities representing sound and growing American business institutions.

We will be glad to send a copy of the Annual Report of the company upon request.

INSURANSHARES CORPORATION of NEW YORK
Underwriters and Distributors
Chicago 49 Wall Street, New York San Francisco

We announce the association with us of Mr. J. Marechal Brown, Jr.
as manager of our Bond Department.

Parrish & Co.
Members
New York Stock Exchange
New York Curb Exchange
New York Produce Exchange
Philadelphia Stock Exchange
New York Cotton Exchange
25 Broadway New York
212 South 15th St. Philadelphia
February 15, 1930

Credit Service, Inc.

ESTABLISHED 1923

Industrial Bankers

Profit Sharing No. 9

The Board of Directors of Credit Service, Inc. has declared bondholders' profit sharing of

2% for the

Semi-Annual Period

ending February 28, 1930 payable to bondholders of record of same date. This is in addition to the regular 6% interest.

Checks will be mailed about March 15, 1930.

W. H. BISHOP, Jr., Treas.

February, 1930
Baltimore, Md.

INDUSTRIAL BANKING
Its Contribution to Modern Business

Every investor should read this important analysis of a branch of the Banking Industry in which safe and profitable investments may be made.

Mail coupon below for this thirty page booklet; also detailed information on the BOND & SHARE UNITS of INDUSTRIAL CREDIT CORP. which are offered TO YIELD NINE PER CENT.

Felix Auerbach Co.
Sole Distributors
280 Broadway New York

NAME..........
ADDRESS..........
Advt. No. 392

We specialize in . . . .

Corporate Capital Financing—
Capital Expansion Financing—

Expert counsel on capital structure—mergers—refinancing.

We invite proposals from corporations desiring capital through the offering of their securities.

First Capital Corporation
INVESTMENT SECURITIES
11 Broadway New York City, N.Y.

SPECIALIZED Investment Information
ROBSON & WALLACE
Members
Unlisted Securities Dealers Ass'n.
15 William Street New York

CORPORATE FINANCING
Reports. Assistance in placing stock and bond issues.
EDWIN G. HATCH
Consulting Engineer
120 Broadway New York City

Corporate Financing
Mergers & Refinancing
RIEDERS & RIEDERS
INCORPORATED
25 West 43rd St., New York
Tel. Bryant 9268

Corporate Financing
In All Its Branches
FOOTE and FOOTE
Est. 1901
117 Liberty Street, New York

Live Well in your Old Age!

With even a moderate income, you can provide for a comfortable old age by following certain well defined investment rules during your earning years. These principles are scientifically explained in "How to Build a Fortune With Little Risk"—a handy pamphlet recently issued by the leading publication in the financial field. Mailed anywhere upon receipt of 10c. Address

THE MAGAZINE OF WALL STREET
Dept. D-31, 42 Broadway, N. Y. C.

ONTARIO SHOWS GAIN IN GOLD FOR MONTH

$2,742,488 Total Output Is Increase of $79,214 Over January, 1929.

RISE IN NICKEL EXPORTS

$2,592,588 Reported for Dominion, $112,000 Above Figure Year Ago —Falconbridge in Operation.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 14.—Returns received by the Ontario Department of Mines from the gold mines of the Province for January show a decline of $298,787 from the previous month, but an increase of $79,214 over January, 1929, in values recovered from a smaller tonnage of ore milled. The total value of output in January, 1930, was $2,742,488.

Compared with the monthly average for 1929, the total value of the January output was slightly lower. Due in part to the loss of the Dome mill, there was small recovery from clean-up at this property.

Output from the Kirkland Lake area last month was considerably in excess of the monthly average from that field in 1929.

Statistics of the output of Ontario's gold mines follow. Gold and silver values were:

Porcupine.

Period.	Ore Milled, Tons.	Value, Crude Bullion.
Calendar year 1929 (revised)	2,865,261	$19,324,763
Average per month	238,772	1,610,397
January, 1929	247,765	1,604,861
January, 1930	210,554	1,460,600

Kirkland Lake.

Period.	Ore Milled, Tons.	Value, Crude Bullion.
Calendar year 1929 (revised)	1,106,499	$14,067,349
Average per month, 1929	92,208	1,172,296
January, 1929	89,227	1,058,413
January, 1930	101,443	1,281,888

For the two districts combined, the figures are as follow:

Period.	Ore Milled, Tons.	Value.
Calendar year 1929	3,971,760	$33,392,112
Average per month	330,980	2,782,676
January, 1929	336,932	2,663,274
January, 1930	311,997	2,742,488

In January producing mines in order of output in the two districts were as follows:

Porcupine — Hollinger, McIntyre, Dome, Vipond, Coniaurum, March, West Dome and Porcupine United.

Kirkland Lake—Lake Shore, Teck-Hughes, Wright-Hargreaves, Sylvanite, Kirkland Lake Gold and Barry-Hollinger.

January Gold Receipts.

Receipts of crude gold bullion at the Royal Mint, Ottawa, for January totaled 8,294.84 crude ounces, containing 6,496.69 fine ounces of gold worth $134,298, and 723.01 fine ounces of silver valued at $330, or a total value of $134,629. The total value of receipts in January, 1929, was $2,784,293. The decline may be explained by larger shipments to branches of the United States Mine, due to favorable rates of exchange.

According to figures issued by the Dominion Government, exports of all grades of nickel from Canada in January were $112,000 more than in the same month last year. Exports last month totaled 11,638,300 pounds, having a value of $2,592,588. This figure represents one of the best monthly outputs on record for the International Nickel Company, which exports the bulk of the nickel of the Dominion. It exceeds in value that of the export in December, 1929, by $620,658, while the increase in poundage last year is 2,696,200.

Following are the figures of exports of the different grades of ore and the value for January:

	Pounds.	Value.
Ore	5,459,700	$984,015
Oxide	245,800	72,795
Refined	5,933,200	1,535,778
Total	11,638,300	$2,592,588

Total poundage and value of nickel exports for January, 1929, were 11,508,200 pounds, with a value of $2,480,424.

First Quarter the Best.

International Nickel's best quarter in 1929 was the January-March period. In that period exports amounted to $7,319,339. January started the company's year on a higher scale than the average monthly export for 1929. Total exports for last year were $25,535,684, or a monthly average of $2,127,872, compared with the $2,592,588 reported for last month.

The Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada estimates gross profits for 1929 at $12,835,000, compared with $12,757,910 in 1928.

After deducting $2,675,000 for depletion and depreciation, $1,281,000 for taxes and $1,000,000 for contingent reserve, estimated net profits for 1929 are $7,879,000.

In 1929, $4,005,000 was spent on plant account and $1,878,000 on property account, compared with $1,307,601.53 on plant account and $2,388,012.67 on property account in 1928.

Production of the Wright-Hargreaves Mines, Ltd., for the twelve months of 1929 amounted to $1,741,873. Operating costs were $1,326,031, leaving a profit from operations of $415,842, to which has been added another income of $56,094 for a total of $471,935.

Tons milled in 1929 aggregated 188,238 with an average value of $9.25, compared with 256,331 in 1928, valued at $7.20 a ton. Total costs a ton milled was $7.044.

Oliver Caban Jr., president, said new ore encountered in the year greatly exceeded expectations.

Falconbridge Nickel Operating.

An important mining event, which in the unusual excitement aroused over the brokerage situation passed off almost unnoticed, was the bringing into production of the Falconbridge Nickel Mines, Ltd., whose new 250-ton smelter was blown in and commenced operating for the first time last week. Although operating satisfactorily, it will be several weeks before the whole plant is running with the maximum efficiency, although officials are of the opinion that production should be well up to normal capacity by March 1.

To some degree at least the hope of prospectors for another "golden age" is finding support in expressions of opinion by prominent authorities who agree that a decline in the world's supply of gold would have serious economic consequences. Last year, according to figures recently released, in spite of increased production of gold from the Rand and from Canada, the total world production of the yellow metal showed an actual decrease. The only countries in which increases were shown were the Transvaal, Canada, West Africa and New Zealand, while Rhodesia, Australia, India, Queensland and New South Wales showed declines, and a further marked decline was registered in the United States.

Porphyry at Depth.

Definite reassurance that the Kirkland Lake Gold Mining Company had reached the much desired porphyry conditions at depth, which were predicted by J. B. Tyrrell, managing director, some years ago, was made at the annual meeting. D. B. Hanna, president, occupied the chair and, briefly outlining the situation and the finding of new ore on upper levels and the new depth conditions, he expressed himself as interested in finding what the returns from the mill would be. On the 3,875-foot level west of the shaft seventy feet of high grade had been opened up, and on the 4,000-foot level eighty feet of high grade, he said.

Mr. Tyrrell outlined the new conditions coming in with the Kirkland porphyry dipping to depth from the east to some extent. He described it as an elongated mass, perhaps the richest gold bearing rock found anywhere in the world, a mile long and a quarter mile wide on the surface, which had now definitely been reached on Kirkland Lake's lower levels.

With the return to Toronto of Fred J. Crawford, president of the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange, the board of directors met and advanced Gordon W. Nicholson to the position of first vice president and made J. H. Chipment second vice president, succeeding Mr. Nicholson in that post. R. Clarkson was added to the board of directors. Two weeks ago Fred MacDonald was named a new director.

RISES ON THE COUNTER HELD AFTER DECLINES

Most Bank Shares Fall Back—Gilt-Edge Insurance Issues Go Up—Industrials Better.

After opening slightly lower yesterday the over-the-counter market rallied after the first hour and held firm until the close. Bank shares were generally weak, with Bank of United States virtually the only issue to make a gain. Losses were registered by Guaranty, Central Hanover, Corn Exchange, City, Chase, Bankers, Irving, Bank of America and many others.

The higher priced insurance issues moved upward in quiet trading. Travelers, Globe & Rutgers and Transportation were among those that closed higher. Most changes in the industrial group were for the better. Dry Ice, American Meter, American Manufacturing and Albert Pick preferred were higher, while American Hardware was off.

Communication and public utility stocks found little outside demand. Chain stores were also quiet, though they maintained their prices.

FISHER ANALYZES SECURITIES SLUMP

Continued from Page Nine.

as their fortunes dwindled, or sat dumbfounded in customers' rooms before the board as their riches took wings, were the visible symbols of silent thousands among the masses of the American people who had dumped their holdings into the lap of the stock market Moloch. One touch of nature had made the stock market trading world kin, and the butcher or baker who had lost a few stocks on margin drew the sympathy of millionaires who had helped swell the enormous totals of brokers' loans and whose margin defenses had likewise been shattered."

Professor Fisher says that "business was more scared than hurt" by the stock crash. After telling of the steps taken by President Hoover to stabilize business and restore confidence, the author says that the effect of this action "cannot, in the nature of things, be soon observable, except as a measure of reassurance."

Traces Causes of Decline.

The economist devotes twenty-five pages of his book to the "causes of the panic." Referring to opinions to the effect that the break was precipitated by foreign liquidation, he says that "few realize today that the greatest fall of stocks in British history, comparable only with the Baring panic of 1890, preceded and was an actuating cause of the American panic, and that a coincident fall in Paris and Berlin accompanied the British liquidation. It began with the failure of the banking house of Clarence Hatry in August, followed by his arrest in September and subsequent conviction for a gigantic forgery of stock certificates. This started the British liquidation in London and in New York."

He quotes Carl Snyder of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York as authority for the statement, referring to the war inflation of commodity prices, that the "long sustained rise in the level of such prices necessarily brought a huge increase in the earnings of common shares, and this naturally forced a valorization of these shares in terms of something like a 57-cent dollar."

Professor Fisher mentions, among the causes of the break, the refusal of the Public Service Commission of Massachusetts to permit the Edison Company of Boston to split its stock and the Federal law imposing a law on capital gains.

Discusses Credit Situation.

The book says that "doubtless it is true that the increase of credit allowances was too great," referring to the statement of Craig B. Hazlewood, president of the American Bankers Association, that security loans represented "too large a portion of the available credit of the country." "This is because," Professor Fisher adds, "the enlarged credit structure was altogether too susceptible to 'bear raids' not so much because it boosted prices too high or that it materially diminished the availability of credit in commercial and industrial business, as that investors were overextending themselves on margin. True, overextension of credit raised prices somewhat. Without any overextension, however, such prices might still have risen nearly though not quite so high.

"It should be added that up to the time of the panic there had been no great complaint from business circles on account of lack of credits, except in the case of the building industry. It has seemed to me an open question how far such building recession as we have had in 1929 was caused by curtailment of credits and how far by overbuilding. But funds had been withdrawn from building and loan associations and from banks and other sources of mortgage loans, attracted by the higher rates of call and time loans for financing stock exchange transactions. Even so, it would seem that means might have been devised, from the ample credit resources of the Federal Reserve system, to accommodate the building industry as well as the stock market without curtailing the upward course of stock prices. The efforts of the Federal Reserve System to make money dear in the stock market tended to make it dear in the real estate market as well, despite their desire to avoid such effects."

It is asserted that "many will take seriously the contention of Fred I. Kent, director of the Bankers' Trust Company of New York, that the market fell because of fear engendered in the public mind by the action of the coalition bloc in Congress in connection with the tariff bill." Professor Fisher adds, however, that "big business had no reason to fear any fall in the tariff and little fear of harm if it were not raised."

The Yale economist considers the chief danger to business as a result of the market break the "panicky fear that might be communicated from the stock market." He adds that the measures taken by President Hoover were "well calculated to allay fear."

Reviews Merger Movement.

In a chapter devoted to the merger movement in business and industry, Professor Fisher says that nearly all of such consolidations resulted in increased profits to shareholders without any increase in the price of the product to the consumer, and then adds: "The more the industries themselves work in these directions, for the good of the consumer, the less the need of legislative interference and the greater the chance of their free development without hampering restrictions and according to the requirements of large-scale economy."

Professor Fisher holds in referring to the "flight from bonds to stocks" that "a potent reason for the long bull market rising to the plateau of stock prices of 1923-1930 is that there has been a material change during that period in the estimate of the public as to the risk of investing in common stocks."

It is contended by Professor Fisher that the disaster to American security holders "might have been avoided by a sharp increase in the discount rate during the Fall of 1928 or at any time up to the Spring of 1929, with comparatively little consequent hardship to business."

Considerable space is given to "the dividends of prohibition." After expressing the opinion that the alcoholic consumption of the country is but 10 or 15 per cent of what it was, Professor Fisher says:

"Thus, prohibition, with all of its shortcomings, has probably had a part in raising the national income during the last few years, and so raising the earnings and prices of stocks."

In the concluding chapter of the book, discussing the "hopeful outlook," Professor Fisher says that "because of the solid achievements of the last seven years, their present continuance and the assurance that they will be prolonged into the immediate future, I feel that the threat to business due to the dislocation of purchasing power by reason of transfers of stock holdings will be temporary."

CORPORATION REPORTS.

Results of Operations Announced by Industrial and Other Organizations.

Westinghouse Air Brake.

For the quarter ended on Dec. 31 last, the Westinghouse Air Brake Company reports net profits of $2,658,083, after depreciation and Federal taxes, equivalent to 84 cents a share on 3,172,111 no par shares, against $2,115,596, or 66 cents a share, in the preceding quarter. Net profits for 1929, as compiled from the quarterly reports, were $8,822,111 after the same charges, equivalent to $2.78 a share, as compared with $6,490,557, or $2.04 a share, in 1928.

Royal Typewriter Company.

For 1929 the Royal Typewriter Company, Inc., and domestic subsidiaries report a net income of $1,766,031 after interest, depreciation, Federal taxes and other charges, equivalent after preferred dividend requirements to $5.59 a share on 268,618 no par common shares, against $1,360,744, or $8.16 a share on 134,309 shares in 1928.

Calumet and Hecla Copper.

For the quarter ended on Dec. 31, 1929, the Calumet and Hecla Consolidated Copper Company reports net profits of $1,456,789 after taxes, depreciation and other charges but before depletion, equivalent to 72 cents a share on 2,005,502 shares of $25 par stock, against $1,912,905 or 95 cents a share, in the fourth quarter of 1928. Net profits for the year, as compiled from the quarterly reports, were $7,365,001, equivalent to $3.67 a share, compared with $5,560,830, or $2.77 a share, in the preceding fiscal year. Net profits after depletion for the last quarter, carried to surplus, were $1,161,847, or 58 cents a share, against $1,206,213, or 60 cents a share, in the December quarter of 1928. Net after depletion, carried to surplus, for the year was $5,326,931, or $2.65 a share, against $3,110,573, or $1.55 a share, in 1928.

Stewart-Warner Corporation.

For 1929 the Stewart-Warner Corporation reports a net profit of $6,838,938 after depreciation and Federal taxes, equivalent to $5.37 a share on 1,273,450 shares of $10 par stock, against a net profit of $7,793,531, or $6.09 a share, on the same number of shares in the preceding fiscal year. The profit and loss surplus at the end of 1929 was $17,933,248, against $10,264,575 at the end of 1928. Inventories at the end of 1929 were carried at $7,770,595, against $5,566,874 at the end of 1928.

Indiana Pipe Line.

The Indiana Pipe Line Company reports for 1929 a net income of $837,489 after taxes and depreciation, equivalent to $2.79 a share on 300,000 shares of $10 par stock, against $849,112 or $8.49 a share on 100,000 shares of $50 par stock, in the preceding fiscal year. After dividend requirements for the last year there was a deficit of $212,511, compared with $350,888 for the preceding year. The balance sheet shows government bonds valued at $779,500 among the current assets.

Eastern Rolling Mill.

The Eastern Rolling Mill Company reports for 1929 a net income of $593,625 after depreciation, Federal taxes and other charges, equivalent to $2.48 a share on 239,200 no par shares of stock, against $753,488, or $3.15 a share, in the preceding fiscal year.

American Can Company.

The American Can Company reports for 1929 net earnings of $22,724,802, after depreciation, interest and Federal taxes. This is equivalent to $8.02 a share on 2,473,998 shares of $25 par common stock outstanding at the end of the year after requirements for preferred stock. In the preceding fiscal year the company reported earnings of $19,863,326, which were equivalent to $6.86 a share on 2,473,982 common shares then outstanding after preferred dividend requirements.

During 1929 the company's profit and loss surplus was increased from $52,787,870 to $62,111,851. Net earnings before charges were $27,599,802 in 1929, compared with $24,863,326 in 1928.

Henry Holt & Co.

Henry Holt & Co., Inc., report for 1929 net profits of $235,241 after depreciation and Federal taxes, equivalent to $3.87 a share on 60,800 shares of Class A stock and to 69 cents a share on 182,400 shares of Class B stock after allowing only for Class A dividend requirements. This compares with $231,454, equivalent after requirements on the Class A stock to 67 cents a share on the Class B stock in 1928.

OVER-THE-COUNTER QUOTATIONS FOR UNLISTED SECURITIES

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1930.

Quotations for Over-the-Counter Securities are unofficial. Those included in these tables are obtained from many brokers and dealers. The source which supplied any quotations in this list will be given upon request.

PUBLIC UTILITY SECURITIES.

	Bid.	Asked.
Alabama Pwr pf (7)	112¾	113½
Arkansas P & L 7% pf	107½	108½
Assoc Tel Ut $6 pf	84	88
Do 7% pf	94	100
Atlantic City El pf (6)	102	105
Augusta-Aiken R R & E	30	35
Do pf	80	85
Bangor Hydroelec pf (7)	116½	..
Bingham L, H&P pf(6)	101	103
Broad River Pwr Pf(7)	96½	98½
Carolina P & L pf (7)	109½	110½
Cent Ark Ry&Lt pf(7)	97	..
Cent Maine Pwr 6% pf	91	94
Do 7% pf	103	105
Cent Pwr & Lt pf (7)	102	104
Cent Pub Serv 7% pf	92½	93½
Cleve Elec Illum (1.60)	60	70
Do 6% pf	110	112
Columbus Ry, Pwr & L 1st pf (6)	105	..
Do pf, B (6½)	103	..
Con Trac (4)	48	51
Consumers Pwr 6% pf	104¾	105½
Do 6.60% pf	104¾	105¼
Dallas Pwr & Lt 7%	109	111
Dayton Pwr & Lt 6%	106	108
Eastern Tex Elec pf(7)	102	104
Erie Railway	5	..
Do 7% pf	57	..
Essex & Hud Gas (8)	145	150
Foreign Lt & Pwr pf(6)	..	95
Ft Worth P & L 7% pf	114	116
Gas & Elec Bergen (5)	92	..
Hudson Co Gas (8)	145	150
Idaho Power pf (7)	108	109½
Illinois Pwr & Lt 6% pf	90½	91¼
Inland Pwr & Lt 7% pf	85	90
Interstate Power 7% pf	88	91
Jamaica W S pf (3.75)	50	52
Jersey Cen P&L 7% pf	104½	105½
Kan Gas & Elec 7% pf	108¼	109
Kentucky Sec (5)	150	..
Do pf (6)	83	87
Kings Co Light 7% pf	107	..
Lake Sup Dis P 7% pf	99	..
Los Angeles Gas & Elec 6% pf	101	103
Met Edison pf (6)	102½	103½
Do 7% pf	107	109
Miss River Pwr (6)	101	103
Missouri Pub Serv pf(7)	92	..
Mountain States Power	16	22
Do 7% pf	98½	101½
Nassau & Suf Lt 7%	102½	..
Nat Pub Serv pf (7)	92½	94
Nat Wtks units (4.50)	..	72½
Nebraska Power 7% pf	109	111
New Orleans P S 7% pf	94	97
Newark Consol Gas (5)	96	100
N J Pwr & Lt 6% pf	97	99
N Y Steam Corp	430	470
North N Y Util 7% pf	104	107
North Texas Elec	..	5
Do pf	..	12
Ohio Pub Serv pf (7)	103	106
Ohio River Edison pf(7)	106	108
Oklahoma G & E 7% pf	107½	..
Pa-Ohio P & L pf (6)	96	98
Do 7% pf	105	107
Penn Pwr & Lt pf (7)	109¾	110½
Portld El & Pwr 6% pf	85	90
Do 7% pf	98	100
Puget Sd P&L pr pf (5)	84	88
Pub Svc of Col 7% pf	93	..
Roch G & E 7% pf B	104	106
Shaffer O & R 7% pf	85	90
Sioux City G&E pf (7)	100	103
Somerset U Mid L (4)	72	..
So Jersey G E & T(8)	148	153
South Col Pwr, A (2)	22	24
Do pf (7)	100	..
S'western L & P pf (6)	84	88
Do A pf (6)	80	..
Do B	80	..
Standard G & E 7% pf	108	..
Tenn Elec Pwr 7% pf	108	109½
Do 6% pf	95	98
Texas Pwr & Lt 7%	110	113
Toledo Edison 7%	108	110
U G & E (N J) 5% pf	50	..
U G & E (Conn) pf (6)	85	92
Un Public Svc units	90	95
Utah Pwr & Lt pf (7)	108	109½
Utica G & E pf (7)	104¼	..
Util Pwr & Lt 7% pf	96	97
Virginian Ry (7)	150	152
Wash Ry Elec (7)	600	..
Do pf (5)	96	97
Western States G & E	39	..
Do pf (7)	95	102
Winnipeg Elec (2)	46¼	47
Do pf (7)	100	101

Bonds.

	Bid	Asked
Appalach P 1st 5s, '41	100	100½
Asso Tel Util 5s, 1942	85	92
Do 6s, 1941	95	101
Broad River Pwr 5s, '54	94	95
California Pwr 6s, '31	99½	..
Central G & E 5½s, '46	88	91
Col Pwr 1st 5s, 1953	102¼	..
Col Elec Power 6s, '47	100½	..
Col (S C) G & E 5s, '36	93½	96
Con G of N J 5s, '36	96	..
Do 5s, 1965	94	..
Con Trac 5s, 1933	83	86
Dallas Gas 6s, 1941	99	..
El Paso 5s, 1950	96½	..
Gas & El Bergen 5s, '49	101	..
Houston Elec 1st 6s, '35	88	93
Hudson Co Gas 5s, '49	101½	103½
Intercounty T & T 1st & ref 5s, 1948	97	99
Indiana Serv 5s, 1950	86	..
Jer Cent P&L 5½s, '45	100	101
Jersey City H P 4s, '49	42	45
Los A G & E 1st 5s, '39	100	102
Do 6s, 1942	106	..
Louis G & E 5½s, '54	101¾	..
Do 5s, 1952	101	101½
Do 6s, 1937	99	..
Minn Gen El 5s, 1934	99	..
Mo P & L 1st 5½s, '55	97¼	98½
Mountain States 5s, '38	97½	..
Do 1st 6s, 1938	100	102
Munic Gas (Tex) 6s, '35	97	101½
Nat Wtks 6s, '39	..	97½
Newark C Gas 5s, 1948	102	..
Newark P Ry 5s, 1930	98	..
No Con Util 5½s, 1948	..	94¼
No Jersey Ry 4s, 1948	99	..
North Shore Coke 6s, '47	..	100
Northern States Power notes 5½s, 1940	98¼	..
North Texas El 5s, 1940	..	70
North Utilities 6s, 1943	..	96
Do 6½s, 1943	..	96
Okla G & E 5s, 1950	97	99
Do 6s, 1940	99	..
Pac G & E ref 6s, 1941	110	110¾
Do 5½s, 1952	104	104¾
Paterson Ry 5s, 1944	60	..
Puget Sd P&L 5½s, '49	100	101
St Paul Gas 1st 5s, 1944	99	..
Do gen 6s, 1952	105	108
San Diego G & E 5s, '47	98	..
Do 6s, 1947	102½	..
Do 5s, 1939	99½	..
So Jer G & E 5s, 1953	100	..
Stand G & E 6s, 1935	99	100½
Do 6% gold ctfs, 1951	99	100½
Do 6s, 1966	99	100½
Texas Pw & Lt 6s, '56	91	96½
Un Elec of N J 4s, '49	91½	..
Virginia P S 5½s, '46	92	94
Do con 6s, 1946	89	91
Wis-Min L & P 5s, '44	98	..
Wis Pub Svc 1st 5s, '42	97½	100
Do 1st ref 5½s, 1958	100	..
Do 1st ref 6s, 1952	103	..

Tel. and Tel. Stocks.

	Yesterday. Bid.	Asked.	Friday. Bid.
Am D Tel N J (4)	79	83	79
Do pf (7)	110	112½	110
Bell Tel Can (8)	155	159	155
Bell Tel Pa (6.50)	114	117	114
Cin S Bell (4½)	116	120	116
Com-U-T NY (1.50)	24½	..	24½
Com-U-T of Me (6)	99	..	99
Cuban Tel (8)	125	..	125
Do pf (7)	102	108	102
E & Bay Tel (4)	62	67	62
F'klyn Tel (2.50)	38	41	38
Int Ocean Tel (6)	99	104	99
Lincoln T & T (8)	115	..	115
Mtn Sts T & T (8)	135	140	135
N Eng T & T (8)	143	145	143
N Y Mut T (1.50)	20	24	20
N W B T pf (6.50)	106	..	106
Ohio B T U S (7)	110	113	110
Pa & A T U S (1)	14	17	14
Penn Tel	21	25	21
Do pf, A (7)	103½	..	103½
Porto Rico T	85	..	85
Do pf (8)	100	..	100
Roch 1st pf (6.50)	107	..	107
So A & Tel (1.25)	18	20	18
So W B T pf (7)	117	119	117
So N Eng T&T (8)	174	181	174
Tri-State T&T (6)		195
Do pf (60c)	9¼	10	9¼

ONE HUNDRED DOLLAR BONDS.

	Bid.	Ask.
B & O T 4s, 1959	83	87
B M T 6s, 1968	94	98
Chi & East Ill 5s, 1951	74	76
Fla-East Coast 5s, 1974	45	55
Hudson-Man ref 5s, '57	91	96
M K & T pf ln 5s, '62	100	102
Do adjust 5s, 1967	102	104
N Y Central ref 5s 2013	104	106
N Y, N H & H 6s, 1940	104	106
North Pac ref 5s, 2047	102	105
Phila & Reading 5s, 1973	82	86
Reading 4½s, 1997	96	98
St L-San Fran 4s, 1950	88	90
Seab Air Line 6s, '45	64	68
So Pac-S F Ter 4s, 1950	80	85
Virginia Ry 5s, 1962	102	104
Western Pac 5s, 1946	95	98
INDUSTRIAL AND PUBLIC UTILITIES.
Am Pow & Lt 6s, 2016	104	106
Am Smelting 5s, 1947	100	102
Am T & T deb 5s, 1960	102	104
Do 5½s, 1943	106	108
Armour & Co 5½s, 1943	80	85
Brklyn Edison 5s, 1949	102	105
Denver Gas 5s, 1951	96	100
Kan City P & L 5s, '52	102	104
Lackawanna Stl 5s, '50	100	102
Montana Power 5s, '43	100	103
New Eng Tel 4½s, 1961	97	99
N Y Tel 6s, 1941	105	107
Nor States Pwr 6½s, '33	101	102
Pac Tel 5s, 1952	102	104
Portland Ry & Lt 5s, '42	94	98
Do 6s, 1947	95	98
Postal Tel & C Co 5s, '53	93	95
Sinclair 6½s, 1938	99	101
Do 7s, 1937	100	102
Southwest Bell 5s, 1954	102	104
FOREIGN BONDS.
Austrian Govt 7s, 1943	100	104
Czechoslovakia S 8s, '52	107	110
Dept of Caldas 7½s, '46	80	85
French Cities 6s, 1934	100	104
French Govt 7s, 1949	112	114
Do 7½s, 1941	119	120
German Republic 7s, '49	100	106
Gt Brit & Ire 5½s, 1937	101	103
King of Belgium 6s 1955	99	101
King of Italy 7s, 1951	94	96

NEW YORK CITY BONDS.

	Bid.	Asked.
4½s, Dec. 15, 1971	102¾	103¼
4½s, July, 1967	102¾	103¾
4½s, June, 1965	102¾	103¼
4½s, March, 1963	102¾	103¼
4½s, May and Nov., '57	102¾	103¼
4¼s, Nov., 1978	98½	99½
4¼s, Jan., 1977	98½	99½
4¼s, Feb. 15, 1976	98½	99½
4¼s, June, 1974	98½	99½
4¼s, April 15, 1972	98½	99½
4¼s, Jan., 1967	98½	99½
4¼s, April, 1966	98½	99½
4¼s, March, 1964	98½	99½
4¼s, March, 1962	98½	99½
4¼s, Sept., 1960	98½	99½
4¼s, March, 1930-60	98½	99½
4s, May, 1977	94½	95¼
4s, May, 1959	95¼	96¼
4s, Nov., 1958	95¼	96¼
4s, May, 1957	95¼	96¼
4s, Nov., 1956	94¾	95¾
4s, Nov., 1955	94¾	95¾
4s, Nov., 1936	96¼	..
4s, Dec., 1931	99¼	99¾
3½s, Nov., 1955	87	..
3½s, Nov., 1954	87¼	88¼
3½s, May, 1954	87¼	88½
3½s, 1930-54	86¼	..

The following are quoted on a percentage basis:

	Bid.	Asked.
4½s, 1960-37	4.40	4.25
4½s, 1938-66	4.35	4.25
3s, 1940-53	4.45	..

INDUSTRIAL ISSUES.

	Yesterday. Bid.	Asked.	Friday. Bid.
Adams Millis pf w w (7)	88	96	88
Aeolian Co pf (7)	25	...	25
Aeolian-Weber	4	8	4
Do pf	..	20	..
Amal Laundries	3½	6½	3
Am Book Co (7)	89	94	89
Am Can Prop	1	4	1
Am Chattilon Corp	23	27	23
Do pf (7)	75	79	75
Am Hard Rub (6)	58	..	58
Am Hardware (4)	62	65	63
Am Meter Co (5)	110	115	107
Am Mfg (3)	52	55	50
Do pf (5)	68	73	68
Babcock & W (7)	130	135	130
Baker (JT) Ch (1.20)	18½	20½	18½
Bancroft (J) (2.50)	28	33	28
Do pf (7)	92	97	92
Bliss (EW) 1st pf (4)	50	..	50
Do 2d pf, B (60c)	9½	..	9½
Bohn Refrig pf (8)	88	96	88
Bon Ami, B (2)	38	41	38
Bowman Biltmore	2	3	2
Do 1st pf	35	39	35
Do 2d pf	11	13	11
Brun-Balke-Collender pf (7)	80	85	80
Bunker Hill & S & Co (3)	78	85	78
Burden Iron pf	80	85	80
Canadian Celanese	13	15	13
Do pf	58	65	58
Carnation pf (7)	98	102	98
Cen Distrib	3	5	3
Do pf	50	..	50
Chestnut Smith	3	7	3
Do pf	..	45	..
Clinchfield Coal	9	14	9
Do pf (7)	..	92	..
Columbia Baking	1½	3½	1½
Do 1st pf	13	23	13
Do 2d pf	1½	6	1½
Con Nairn pf (7)	97	..	97
Crosse-Blackwell	2	7	2
Crowell Pub (6)	69	72	69
Do pf (8)	103	107	103
De Forest Phone	1	3	1
Dictaphone (2)	42	..	42
Do pf (8)	103	107	103
Dixon (J) Cruc (8)	165	172	165
Doehler Dic C pf (3.50)	35	..	35
Do pf (7)	81	..	81
Doug Shoe pf (7)	71	75	71
Draper Corp (4)	62	66	62
Dry Ice Holding	58	62	53
Durham Duplex, A	..	25
Eisemann Magneto	22	..	22
Do pf (7)	87	..	87
F'klin Ry Sup (4)	60	65	60
Gen Firepfg pf (7)	108	112	108
Gt Nor Paper (3)	50	53	50
Graton & Knight	10	12	10
Do pf (7)	64	69	64
Hale & Kilburn pf	3	8	3
Herring-Hall Safe Co (5)	150	200	150
Howe Scales	7	10	7
Do pf	30	40	30
Hudson River Nav	..	20	..
Do pf (8)	..	90	..
Ind Acc 1st pf (7)	72	75	72
Intl Textbook (75c)	21	..	21
Jesup & M Paper	4	8	4
Do pf	15	18	15
Keyes Fib, A	35	40	35
Lanston Mono (7)	115¾	119	115¾
Lawr P Cem (4)	55	60	55
Liberty Baking	4¾	5¼	4¾
Do pf (7)	48	52	48
Merck Co pf (4)	70	74	70
Nat Casket pf (4)	170	185	170
Do pf (7)	107	110	107
Nat Licorice	20	..	20
N J Worsted pf	..	55	..
North Secur (9)	128	..	128
Ohio Leather	5	7	5
Do 1st pf (7)	83	88	83
Do 2d pf (7)	69	76	69
Okonite pf (7)	75	85	75
Petroleum Deriv	8	11	8
Photomaton, B	⅛	1¼	½
Pick (A) & Co pf with war	37	43	35
Publica Corp (1.60)	59	62	59
Do 1st pf (7)	107	110	107
Remington Arms	..	30	..
Do pf (7)	85	90	85
Riverside S M (2)	21	22	21
Robinson (DP) 1st pf (7)	86	93	86
Rockwood C	37	..	37
Do pf (8)	61	67	61
Rolls-Royce of Am	..	13	..
Do pf	15	19	15
Roxy Theatre	2¼	3¼	2¼
Do A (3.50)	22	24	22
Do units	22¾	24¾	22¾
Rubel Coal & Ice	5½	7	5½
Do pf	25	..	25
Safegd Ch Writer	2	3	2
Schnebbe F P E units (3¼)	46	48¼	46
Scovil Mfg (4)	61½	63½	61½
Ship Car L, A (2)	18	23	18
Singer Mfg (10)	485	515	480
Smith (A O) (2)	163	170	160
Smith Corona T (3)	38	40	38
Southern States Oil	¾	1¼	¾
Splitdorf-Beth Elec	2½	3½	2½
Stand Screw (8)	110	130	110
Stand Textile pf	2¾	4	2¾
Do A (7)	54	..	54
Do B (5)	30	35	30
Superheater	38	41	38
Taggart Co pf (7)	87	92	87
Taylor-War	14	16	14
Do pf	60	65	60
Technicolor	74½	76	74½
Tenn Prod pf (4)	42	47	42
Tubize Silk pf (6)	86	..	86
Uni Bus Pu pf (7)	90	95	90
U S Finish pf (7)	91	95	91
United Pub pf (7)	92	..	92
Walker Dishw Co	..	27	..
Welch G Juice (1)	57	62	57
Do pf (7)	101	..	101
W Va P & P (2)	42	45	42
Do pf (6)	97	..	97
Westland Oil	13	17	13
Wheatsworth pf (8)	90	98	90
Wheeling Steel (4)	88	92	88
Do pf (8)	124	128	124
Do pf, B (10)	131	136	131
White R Min Spg pf (7)	98	103	98
Do 2d pf (15)	175	200	175
Wilcox & G (5)	70	80	70
Winch Rptg Arms	..	25	..
Do pf	..	75	..
Woodward Iron (4)	40	..	38
Do pf	88	..	88
Worcester Salt (5)	88	95	88

Bonds.

	Bid.	Asked.
Abbott's Dairies 6s, '42	98	100
Adams Express 4s, 1947	78	80
Am Meter 6s, 1946	99	..
Am Tobacco 4s, 1951	85	..
Am Type Fdrs 6s, 1937	101	..
Do 6s, 1939	101	..
Am Wire Fabric 7s, '42	92	98
Bear Mtn-Hudson River Bridge 7s, 1953	102½	104
Bilt-Com'dore 1st 7s, '34	98	102
Bos & Alb R R 5s, '63	100	..
Bos & Me R R 6s, 1933	100	101½
Chapin Sacks 7s, 1934	78	..
Chicago Stk Yds 5s, '61	82½	86
Clyde S B 5s, 1931	99	..
Con Coal 4½s, 1934	82	85
Con Tobacco 4s, 1951	84	..
Cont Sugar 7s, 1938	50	60
Equit O Bldg deb 5s, '52	90	92
Fisk T F 6½s, 1935	88	91
Gobel (Adolf) 6s, 1936	85	95
Gold Bear Corp 6s, '34	80	105
Grand (F W) Prop 6s, '48	83	87
Haytian Corp 8s, 1938	58	62
Hoboken Ferry 5s, 1946	92	94½
Intl Salt 5s, 1951	73	76
Jour of Com 6½s, 1937	80	85
Kan Pwr 5s, 1947	95	..
Kern (Geo) 6½s, 1937	95	100
Little (A E) 7s, 1942	68	..
Loew's New Broad Prop 1st 6s, 1945	91	94
Mallory Steam 5s, 1932	99	..
Met Chain Prop 6s, '48	90	95
Merch Natl Prop 6s, '58	92	99½
Merch Refrig 6s, 1937	96	98
Mid States Oil 7% notes	21	28
Mid States Pet 6½s, '45	56	66
N Orl Gt N R R 5s, '55	71	74
N Y Shipping 5s, 1946	89	..
N Y & Hoboken 5s, '46	90½	93
Piedmont N Ry 5s, '54	92	94
Pierce, But & P 6½s, '42	55	65
Pompeiian Corp 6½s, '40	80	90
Securities of N Y 4s	45	..
Sixty-one Bway 1st 5½s, 1950	93	96
South Ind Ry 4s, 1951	80	82½
Stand Tex pf 1st 6½s, '42	75	85
Toledo Ter R R 4½s, '57	91	94
Tulip Cup 6s, 1932	95	100
U S Steel 5s, 1951	114	115
Utah Fuel 5s, 1931	96	99½
Ward Bak 1st 6s, 1937	99½	100
Woodward Iron 5s, '52	89	91

Tobacco Stocks.

	Yesterday. Bid.	Asked.	Friday. Bid
Am Cigar pf (5)	95	105	95
Geo W Helme (5)	88½	90	88
Do pf (7)	126¼	135¼	126¼
Union Cigar	⅛	½	⅛
J S Young (10)	100	..	100
Do pf (7)	102	..	102

Sugar Stocks.

	Yesterday. Bid.	Asked.	Friday. Bid
Fajardo Sugar	50	56	50
Haytian Co of Am	5	10	5
New Niquero	12	16	12
Savannah (6)	84	88	87
Do pf (7)	94	99	94
Sug Est of Or pf	11	15	12
Un Porto Rican	39	39¼	37
Do pf (3.50)	39	44	39
Vertientes Sugar pf	35	45	35

CHAIN STORES.

	Yesterday. Bid.	Asked.	Friday. Bid.
Berland Strs pf (7)	95	100	95
H C Bohack (2½)	61	66	61
Do pf (7)	99	103	99
James Butler	3	7	3
Do pf	10	..	10
Diamond Shoe (1¼)	30	35	30
Do pf (6½)	91	96	91
Fed Bak Shops	3½	4½	3½
Felt C Sh 1st pf (7)	..	50	..
Fishman (M H)	14	18	14
Do 7% pf	95	103	95
Gt A&P tea pf (7)	116	119	116
Horw Syn Co, A	..	13	..
Kobacher (1)	28	34	28
Do pf, w w (7)	85	90	85
Kress (SH) (60c) pf	9	10	9
Lane Bryant, Inc, pf, w w (7)	90	100	90
Lerner Strs pf (6½)	93	98	93
Lord & Tay (10)	325	400	325
Do 1st pf (6)	95	..	95
Do 2d pf (8)	100	..	100
MacMarr Strs pf w w (7)	99	104	99
Meville Shoe 1st pf (6), w w	84	92	84
Met Chain Stores, pf (7)	85	90	85
Miller (I) & S (2)	30	32	30
Do pf (6½)	80	87	80
Murphy (GC) (1.20)	65	75	65
Do pf (3)	100	..	100
Nat Fam Strs war	2	6	2
Nat Shirt Shops	12	14	12
Do pf (8)	80	85	80
N Y Mdse (3)	22	25	22
Do pf (7)	90	..	90
Nedick's, Inc, (75c)	8	11	8
Neisner Br pf (7)	115	130	115
J J Newb'ry pf (7)	95	101	95
People's D S cv pf (6½)	102	104	102
Reeves (D) pf (6½)	92	97	92
Rogers Peet (10)	120	135	120
Schiff Co (2)	27½	30	27½
Do pf (7)	..	94	..
Shaffer Stores	23	23½	23
Silver (Isaac) (1)	35	45	35
So Strs units	..	45	..
U S Stores	7	9	7
Do pf	55	60	55
Young (EH) Drug units (7)	100	102	100

NEW YORK STATE BONDS.

	Bid.	Asked.
4½s, Jan., 1964	109	111
4½s, Sept., 1963	109	111
4½s, Mar., 1965	104	106½
4½s, Jan., 1965	104	106½
4½s, Jan., 1945	102¼	103½
4s, 1960-67	99½	101
4s, 1953-67	99½	101
4s, Jan., 1942-56	..	..

Quoted on a percentage basis:

	Bid.	Asked.
5s, Jan. & Mar., '30-34	4.20	4.00
5s, Jan. & Mar., '35-40	4.10	4.00
5s, Jan. & Mar., '41-70	4.19	3.95
4½s, April, 1930-39	4.10	4.00
4½s, April, 1940-49	4.05	3.00

LAND BANK BONDS.

Joint Land Bank Bonds.

Bk. of Issue Rate&Mat.	Bid.	Asked.
Atlanta 5s, 1932-52	75½	77
Atlantic 5s, 1933-53	84	86
Do 5s, 1934-54	84	86
Bankers 5s, 1933-53	20	25
Burlington 5s, 1933-53	79	82
Do 4½s, 1937-57	74	77
Do 5s, 1934-54	79	82
Do 4½s, 1937-57	71	74
California 5s, 1936-56	91	93
Do 5s, 1932-52	91	93
Do 5½s, 1931-51	93	96
Central Ill 5s, 1933-53	74¼	76
Chicago 5½s, 1931-51	72	74
Do 5s, 1932-52	70	72
Do 4½s, 1934-64	62	64
Do 4¾s, 1932-52	68	70
Dallas 5½s, 1931-51	91	93
Do 5s, 1936-66	89	91
Denver 5½s, 1931-51	85¼	87
Do 5s, 1935-55	82¼	84
Des Moines 5½s, '31-51	62	64
Do 5s, 1932-52	58	60
Do 4½s, 1935-65	56	58
First Carolina 5s, '32-52	62¼	64
First Ft Wayne 5s, '33-53	94	98
Do 4½s, 1937-57	88	92
Do 5s, 1934-54	94	98
First Mtgmery 5s, '32-52	84	86
First N Orl 5s, 1934-44	85	87
First Texas 5s, 1932-42	85	87
First Tr Chicago 4¾s, 1934-54	96¼	100
Do 4½s, 1935-55	93½	96
Do 4½s, 1938-58	88½	92
First Tr Dallas 5s, '34-54	97¼	100¼
Do 5s, 1937-57	97¼	100½
Fletcher 5s, 1933	95	98
Do 4½s, 1937-67	90	93
Do 5s, 1934-54	95	98
Fremont 5s, 1933-53	89	91½
Do 5½s, 1931-51	91	93
Do 5s, 1933-53	89	91½
Do 4¾s, 1936-66	84	86
Greenbrier 5s, 1938-68	84	86
Greensboro 5s, 1935-55	89½	92¼
Illinois 5s, 1932-52	95¼	100
Do 4½s, 1935-55	90½	94½
Ill Midwest 5s, 1933-53	83	87
Iowa 5s, 1933-53	93	97
Do 4½s, 1935-55	88	92
Kansas City 5s, 1933-53	45	47
Do 5s, 1934-64	45	47
Kentucky 5s, 1932-52	90	93
Lafayette 5s, 1933-53	95	98
Do 4½s, 1937-57	88	92
Lincoln 5s, 1931-51	90	92
Do 5½s, 1931-51	92	95
Do 4½s, 1937-67	83½	86
Louisville 5s, 1933-53	90	93
Md Va 5s, 1935-55	90	93
Minneapolis Tr 5s, '32-52	97	100
Do 5s, 1934-54	97	100
Mississippi 5½s, 1931-51	93	96
Do 5s, 1935-55	90	93
New York 5s, 1932-52	79	82
Do 5s, 1936-56	79	82
North Carolina 5s, '35-55	79½	82
Ohio 5s, 1933-53	13	20
Ohio-Penn 5s, 1934-54	92	94
Oregon-Wash 5s, '33-53	58	61
Pac Coast of Los Angeles 5s, 1933-53	85	87
Pac Coast Salt Lake Cy 5s, 1933-53	85	87
Pac Coast S F 5s, '33-53	85	87
Pac Coast Ptd 5s, '33-53	94¾	96½
Pennsylvania 5s, 1933-43	86	88
Do 5s, 1937-67	86	88
Potomac 5s, 1934-54	90	93
St Louis 4½s, 1936-56	66½	69½
Do 5s, 1934-54	74½	76
San Antonio 5s, 1935-55	88¾	92
Do 5s, 1934-54	88¾	92
Do 5½s, 1931-51	90	94
S Minnesota 5½s, '31-51	43	45
Do 5s, 1932-52	42½	44
S W Arkansas 5s, '37-57	85	87
Tennessee 5½s, 1931-51	93	96
Union Detroit 5s, '34-54	92½	95
Do 5s, 1937-57	92½	95
Do 4½s, 1937-57	87	90
Un of Louisv 5s, '32-52	89½	92
Va-Car 5s, 1937-57	80	84
Virginian 5s, 1932-53	79	82

Federal Land Bank Bonds.

Rate.	Maturity.	Bid.	Ask.
4½	May, 1942-32	96½	97½
4½	Jan., 1943-33	95½	97½
4½	Jan.-July, 1953-33	96½	97¼
4½	Jan.-July, 1955-35	96½	97½
4½	Jan., 1956-36	96½	97¼
4¾	July, 1953-33	98½	99¾
4¾	Jan.-July, 1954-34	98½	99¾
4¼	July, 1956-36	92½	93¾
4¼	Jan., 1957-37	92½	93¾
4¼	May, 1957-37	92½	93¾
4¼	Nov., 1958-38	92½	93¾
4	Nov., 1957-37	89	90½
4	May, 1958-38	89	90½
5	May-Nov., 1941-31	99¾	100¼

FOREIGN STOCKS AND BONDS.

Foreign Internal Securities.

Securities in subjoined tables payable in currency of issuing countries:

	Bid.	Asked.
Belgian Nat Ry 6% pf	15¼	16¼
Belgium Restora 5s, '34	24½	26
Belgium Premium 5s, '95	26½	28
Benigno Crespi 7s, 1946	45	47½
Brit Consols 2½s, '29-47	50	52
Brit Fund 4s, Mar, '19	80	82
Brit Nat W L 5s, '29-47	96	98
Brit Vict 4s, Sept, 1919	83	85
Denmark 5s, 1919	245	255
Denmark 5s, 1948	255	265
†French Govt 4s, 1917	38½	39½
†French G V 5s, 1931	39	40
French Loan 5s, 1928	39¼	41
French Loan 4s, P, '20	52	53½
French Loan 6s, P, '20	39¼	40¾
Italian War Loan 5s, '20	40	41½
†Midi R R Co 6s, 1960	39	40½
Norway 6s, 1970	260	270
Norway 6½s, 1944	270	280
†Paris-Orleans 6s, 1956	39	40½
Polish 5s, conv loan	5	5½
Prague 4s, 1919	21	22½
Russia 5½s, 1915-16	2¾	3¾

Payable in currency other than that of issuing countries:

	Bid.	Asked.
Argentine (resc), 1934	78	80
Bolivia 6s, 1940	70	76
Brazil 4s, 1889	46	48
Brazil 4½s, 1883	59	61
Brazil 4½s, 1888	54	56
Brazil 5s, 1913	58½	61½
Brazil 5s, 1895	58	60
Brazil rcts 4s, 1960	50	52
Brazil 4s, 1910	47	49
Buenos Aires 5s, 1915, £10 pieces	71	75
Buenos Aires 5s, 1915, £100 pieces	[illegible]	[illegible]

[illegible]

Austrian and Hungarian.

	Bid.	Asked.
Austrian Disc Bank	22½	24¾
Austrian Credit Anstalt	6¾	7½
Austrian A E G	3¾	4¼
Mercurbank, Vienna	2½	3
Rima Murany	14	15½
Wiener Bank Verein	2¾	3½

German Securities.

	Bid.	Asked.
German Gov Redemption Loan with drawing cert, per 100 R M	59	62
German Gov Redemption Loan without drawing cert, per 1,000 R M	19	21
German Kommunal Liquidation Loan with drawing rights, per 100 R M	56	59

Bonds quoted in dollars per 1,000 pre-war marks revalued to R M 150:

	Bid.	Asked.
Gen Electric 4½s, pre-war issue	23½	25
Hamburg-Am Line	31½	33¼

Stocks quoted in dollars per share having a par value of 100 reichsmarks or a multiple of 100 reichsmarks:

	Bid.	Asked.
A E G (Ger G E) (100)	41½	43
Hamburg-Am Line (300)	70½	75½
I G Farben (200)	77½	82½
No German Lloyd (100)	24¼	25½
Rud Karst A G (100)	30	32
BANKS.
Deutsche Disconto (100)	35	36
Dresdner (100)	35¼	36¾
Reichsbank (100)	70½	75½

Canadian Securities.

[illegible]

AERONAUTICAL STOCKS.

[illegible]

INSURANCE COMPANIES.

[illegible]

INVESTMENT TRUSTS.

	Bid.	Asked.
Am Capital Corp, B	7	9
Am & Gen Sec 6% pf	40	44
Do A	31	34
Do B	12	16
Am Insuranstocks units	14½	17
Amer & Cont Corp	19½	21
Am London & Emp	19	23
Do pf	26	30
Am Railway Trust	16	17½
Assoc Std Oil Stocks, A	11¼	12¼
Atlantic Sec pf	43½	46
Do warrants	1½	..
Basic Industrial Shares	8¾	9½
British Type Inv	14¼	15¾
Capital Management	33	38
Century Shares	51¾	53¾
Chain Store Inv Corp	4	8
Do pf	90	110
Chain & Gen Equip, Inc	10¼	13
Do 6½% pf	76	86
Chartered Investors	29	31
Do pf	76	..
Chem Nat Associates	22¼	22½
Colonial Invest Corp	25¼	26¼
Combined Trust Shares	10¾	12
Community Shares, A	9	..
Do B	9	..
Continental Securities	50	54
Cont Metropolitan	8	14
Corporate Capital units	18¾	20¾
Corporate Trust	9	9¾
Crum & Foster, B	70	75
Do 7% pf	97	99
Crum & Foster, B	70	74
Do 8% pf	102	105
Depos Ry Shares, B	11	12¼
Diversified Trust Shares	24	..
Do B	21	21¾
Do C	8¾	9¼
Dom & Overseas Inc	3	5
Equitable Invest units	20½	25½
Equity Investors	29	31
Fixed Trust Shares, A	20¾	..
Do B	18¼	..
Gen Equity Corp, A	10	..
Greenway Corp	28	30
Do pf ex war	54	..
Do warrants	6	..
Guardian Inv (Conn)	19	24
Do conv pf	24	..
Do pf, w w	24	28
Grdn Pub Util Inv, w w	24	28
Guardian Rail Shares pf	24	28
Gude Winmill Trad C	45	55
Hudson-Har Val units	60	66
Insuranshares Ctf, Inc	14	16
Incorporated Equities	30¼	33¼
Incorporated Investors	56	58¾
Invest Trust of N Y	11½	12
Invest Fund of N J	7¾	8
Int Sec C Am 6½% pf	85	91
Do 6% cum pf	80	88
Do A	60	65
Do B	29	32
Invest Trustee Shares	17½	19¾
Invest Trust, A	19¼	19¾
Do B	17¾	18¾
Jackson&Curtis Sec 6% pf	100	..
Do Assoc	52	54
Joint Investors, A	35	..
Do conv pf	100	..
Leaders of Industry, A	11¼	12
Massachusetts Invest	46¾	49¾
Mohawk Invest	67	70
Mutual Invest, A	10	11¼
Nat Bond & Share	46	49
North Am Tr Sh	9½	10
Power & Light Secur	61	64
Research Invest	33	36
Second Int Sec, A	41	45
Do 6% pf	40	44
Do B	19	21
Secur Corp Gen	445	465
Do 7% pf	97	..
Shares-in-South	35	37
Southern Bankers Secur	25	35
Spencer Trask Fund	38½	40¼
Stand Collat Trust	14	15
Std Inv 5½% pf, w w	79	84
Std Oil Trust Shares	10¾	11¾
S W Straus Inv units	52	58
Trustee Std Oil Shares	11	11¾
United Capital, A, un	30	..
Do B	40	..
U S Brit Int, B	13	16
Do A	31	34
Do pf	40	44
U S Elec Lt & Pwr, A	29½	42¼
U S Shares, A	14	..
Do A 1	13¾	13¼
Do C 1	28¾	..
Do C 2	29¾	..
Do C 3	21¾	24¼
Do Canadian Banks	16¾	..
Do F	16¾	18¾
Do H	11¾	13¾
Virginia Investors	16¼	17¾
BONDS.
Std Inv 5s, '37, ex war	80	..

Holding and Finance Companies.

	Bid.	Asked.
American Founders	27	31
Do 6% pf	43½	47½
Do 7% pf	49	53
Do conv pf	89	..
Do warrants	14	..
Argent Fin units	11	21
Bankers Nat Inv, A	28¼	31
Central-Nat Corp, A	48	52
Do B	20	24
Chelsea Exch Corp, A	10	13
Do B	10	13
Cont Am Bankshares, A	7	13
Credit Alliance, A	16	17
Dom & For Sec of Penn	12½	15
Do 2d pf units	32½	35
Finance Corp of Amer	10	13
Franklin Bankshares	5	10
Invest Trust Assoc	37	42
Metropolitan Bank Shrs	8	12
Nassau Management	40	45
Petroleum & Trad Corp	20	25
Tri Nat Trading	..	20
Do units	..	120
Union Fin, A	10	14
United Founders Corp	43¾	46

EQUIPMENT BONDS.

The subjoined quotations, calculated on a percentage basis, are the average of the price for all maturities.

Name. Maturity. Rate.	Bid.	Ask.
Atl C L '31-35 6	5.40	5.10
Do '31-41 4½, 6½	4.90	4.65
B & O '30-44 4½, 5	4.75	4.60
Do '31-35 6	5.40	5.10
B & Me '30-38 6	5.50	5.20
B, R & P '30-38 4½, 5, 6	5.00	4.65
Can Nat '30-44 4½, 5	5.15	4.90
Can Pac '30-38 4½, 6	4.90	4.70
C RR NJ '30-41 4½, 5	4.70	4.60
Do '31-35 6	5.40	5.10
C of Ga '30-40 4½, 5, 5½, 6	5.50	5.10
M St P&SSM '30-38 4, 4½, 5	5.40	5.00
Do '30-35 6, 6½, 7	5.50	5.10
Mo, K&T '31-35 6	5.50	5.10
Mo Pac '31-35 6	5.50	5.10
Do '30-44 4½, 5	4.90	4.70
Do '30-38 5½, 6½	5.50	5.20
N St C L '30-37 5, 5½, 6	6.00	5.50
N Y Cen '30-44 4½, 5	4.70	4.60
Do '31-35 6	5.40	5.10
Do '30-35 7	5.00	4.75

[illegible]

SHORT TERM NOTES.

[illegible]

INVESTMENT TRUSTS RECOUPING LOSSES

Recovery of the Stronger Ones Since Jan. 1 a Surprise to Wall Street.

WIDER PUBLICITY A FACTOR

Small Companies Which Lack Aggressive Sponsorship Still Sell at Sharp Discounts.

A revival of the demand for shares in leading investment trusts has appeared in the last month among investors and speculators, according to bankers identified with the trusts. While some bankers had predicted a revival of the investment trust movement in 1930, few authorities had believed that the trusts would recuperate so quickly from the losses that they suffered in the financial storm of 1929. Many had predicted that it would be several years before most of them canceled their losses.

Bankers ascribe the swift recovery of the trusts to the improvement shown in general business conditions and to the policy of complete publicity which the majority of trusts adopted in issuing their annual reports for 1929. In the first six weeks of this year more than three-quarters of the hundreds of investment trusts in the United States announced the full contents of their portfolios and other vital figures, such as the net asset value or "liquidating value" of their outstanding stock. These reports revealed that most investment trust stocks were selling at a large discount, in comparison with the liquidating value of the shares; in many cases the discount ranged from 20 to 40 per cent of the net asset value of the stock.

While the publication of these reports resulted in a great increase in the demand for certain issues, other stocks which lacked the active support of strong banking groups have been lagging during the last month, according to executives of the trusts. As a result, there has been considerable irregularity in the market for investment trust stocks. While the discount at which the stocks of well-sponsored investment trusts were selling on Jan. 1 has been reduced or eliminated entirely, the discount has been increased in the case of other trust issues. The strongest tone of the entire group, according to brokers, has been displayed by the thirteen trusts listed on the New York Stock Exchange, most of which are now selling at a premium in comparison with their liquidating value.

Trusts lacking aggressive sponsorship are still selling at discounts running as high as 35 per cent, judging by the annual reports issued by these companies since Jan. 1. Many of these trusts have benefited greatly by the rise in the security markets since the beginning of the year, and the portfolios of some showed an appreciation of 10 per cent during January. The issues of small trusts which lack strong banking sponsorship have failed to reflect this increase in the value of their portfolios, brokers declare, and as a result the disparity between the market value and the liquidating value of these issues has been widened rather than diminished.

Leaders in the investment trust field believe there is no reason why investment trust issues should sell at a discount for any length of time, provided that the trusts have invested their funds in diversified lists of marketable securities. If the securities of the trusts should continue for a long period to sell at a large discount from their break-up value however, the best solution of their problem would be to liquidate their holdings and wind up their affairs, according to bankers.

Stockholders in a few investment trusts whose issues are selling at a large discount have shown a little impatience with this state of affairs according to reports received by the financial community. In other cases the sponsors of trusts have become discouraged over the outlook and are seeking ways of ridding themselves of the white elephants which they find on their hands. The liquidation of many small trusts and the reduction in the capital stocks of some of the larger companies will therefore continue, according to bankers and brokers.

Among trusts sponsored by strong banking groups there have been since Jan. 1 several instances of aggressive pool activities started by the sponsors. In other cases a steady appreciation in value has resulted from a widespread public demand for the stocks. The banking sponsors of one trust have bought thousands of shares in the open market with a view to distributing them among investors in the South and West. Buying of this type has resulted in sharp advances and has eliminated most of the disparity between market prices and liquidating values of stocks.

The incentive to sponsors of a trust for driving the price of its stock higher has arisen from a desire to exercise options on unissued stock, according to investment trust authorities. Most of these options were issued to the sponsors in connection with the financing or formation of new trusts. When the bear market arrived last Fall, however, the sponsors were unable to exercise the options. Other investment trust stocks have soared as the result of the large appreciation on their holdings of common stocks since the beginning of the year.

RAILWAY EARNINGS.

Delaware, Lackawanna & Western.

The preliminary report of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad for 1929 shows a net income of $13,340,000, equal to $7.89 a share, against $13,129,000 or $7.77 a share in 1928. The earnings follow:

	1929.	1928.	1927.
Gross	$81,743,222	$81,135,181	$84,685,831
Expenses	57,719,910	57,975,287	60,183,062
Taxes, etc.	6,646,552	6,403,186	7,469,333
Oper inc	$17,376,760	16,756,708	$17,033,436
Eq rts, etc	131,827	362,517	364,663
Net op inc	$17,508,587	$17,119,225	$17,398,099
Other inc	3,039,341	3,013,701	5,294,953
Total inc	$20,567,928	$20,132,926	$22,693,052
Int, rts, etc	7,227,798	7,003,384	6,985,280
Net inc	$13,340,130	$13,129,542	$15,707,772
Dividends	11,821,759	11,821,754	11,821,754
Surplus	$1,518,371	$1,307,788	$3,886,018

BOSTON BANK STOCKS.

	Bid.	Asked
American Trust Co.	375	..
Atlantic National Bank	99	101
Bank of Commerce & Trust, new	35	..
Beacon Trust Co.	48	50
Boston National Bank	170	..
Boston Safe Deposit & Trust	275	..
Central Trust (Cambridge)	65	72
Exchange Trust Co.	220	..
Federal National Bank	104	107
First National Bank	121	124
Merchants' National Bank	480	500
National Rockland Bank	105	108
National Shawmut Bank	71½	73½
New England Trust Co.	520	..
Second National Bank	130	..
State Street Trust	400	..
United States Trust Co.	106	108
Webster & Atlas National Bank	220	..

DECISIONS ANNOUNCED ON STATE BANK PLEAS

Many Are Granted, Some Are Held Over for Investigation and One Is Refused.

The Banking Department of the State of New York took action last week on several petitions from banks in the metropolitan district and filed several others for examination.

The Citizens Savings and Loan Association received permission to change its place of business from 215 West 125th Street to 4,203 Third Avenue, the Bronx.

The Bank of the Manhattan Trust Company got permission to open a branch at 369 East 149th Street, the Bronx, upon discontinuance of the branch at 359 East 149th Street. The company filed application to open a branch also at Merrick Road and 234th Street, Laurelton, Queens.

The Banca Commerciale Italiana Trust Company filed application to open a branch at 2,256 Second Avenue upon discontinuance of the branch at 129 Mulberry Street.

The Irving Trust Company received permission to open a branch at Park Avenue and Forty-sixth Street upon discontinuance of the branch at Park Avenue and Forty-eighth Street. It filed also applications to open branches at Vandam and Varick Streets, Manhattan, and at 28 Newkirk Plaza, Brooklyn.

The organization certificate of the Typo Industrial Banking Corporation, 175 East Broadway, was filed for examination.

The organization certificate of the Lawyers' Mortgage Safe Deposit Company, with capital of $100,000, was approved.

The Brooklyn Trust Company filed application to open branches on Farmers Boulevard near Keeseville Avenue, Queens, and 1,509 Newkirk Plaza, Brooklyn.

The application of the Sheepshead Bay Credit Union to transact the business of a credit union was refused.

The application of the Clinchfield Securities Company to change its name to the Watauga Securities Company, Inc., was filed.

The Modern Investment and Loan Corporation got permission to open a branch at 116 Fifth Avenue.

The Royal Credit Union received permission to move from 816 Broadway, Brooklyn, to 896 Park Avenue, Brooklyn.

The Underwriters Trust Company received permission to increase its capital stock from $1,000,000 to $1,675,000, and the sworn copies of the agreement of merger with the Sixth Avenue Bank of New York were filed. Underwriters Trust was authorized to open a branch at 1,349 Sixth Avenue.

PENSION PLAN FOR BANK.

Mercantile of St. Louis Adopts Retirement Program for Workers.

The Mercantile Commerce Bank and Trust Company of St. Louis has adopted an old-age retirement program providing pension provisions for approximately 550 employes, underwritten by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. The program includes also $2,000,000 of group life insurance, $1,000,000 accidental death and dismemberment protection and weekly sick and non-occupational accident benefits.

The bank will pay the entire cost of pensions based on service before the plan became effective, while the cost of pensions based on service after the plan was adopted, as well as the various group insurance features, will be met by deposits on the part of both the bank and the employes.

Leaves Brooklyn Trust Company.

Charles A. Cole has resigned as vice president of the Brooklyn Trust Company, effective yesterday, and will become associated with Dewey, Bacon & Co. of 50 Broadway on March 10, it was learned yesterday. Mr. Cole was connected with the Brooklyn Trust Company ten years and was in charge of its trust funds.

Lists Investment Data Sources.

The Investment Bankers' Association of American has issued a brochure titled "Sources of Investment Infromation," listing all publications specializing in investment data and information. It is planned to revise the publication annually.

Canadian Pacific Orders Cars.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has ordered from the Canadian Car and Foundry Company 250 75-ton coal cars, 50 sleeping cars, 3 mail cars, 5 compartment car frames, 2 ovenight sleeping car frames and 14 parlor car frames for slightly more than $2,000,000. It also has ordered from the National Steel Car Company 250 refrigerator cars, 10 baggage cars, 8 dining car frames, 13 first-class passenger car frames and 7 smoking car frames for slightly less than $2,500,000.

READING R. R. SEEN AS PRIZE FOR B. & O.

Continued from Page Nine.

the New York Central was meeting financial difficulties.

Mr. Willard testified that W. K. Vanderbilt told him in 1912 or 1913 that the New York Central considered selling its Reading stock and that under their agreement the B. & O. had first option on the securities. At the time, Mr. Willard related, the B. & O. did not want the stock and it released the New York Central from its agreement. Later, the B. & O. management suggested that the agreement be renewed, but the late A. H. Smith, then president of the New York Central, did not acquiesce.

In 1927, when the B. & O. had begun its plans for an Eastern merger, its holdings of Reading Company stock became more valuable than ever before. In that year, by mutual agreement, the New York Central and the B. & O. increased their Reading holdings from 43 to 51 per cent of stock outstanding, so that on Dec. 31, 1928, each road owned $6,840,000 first preferred, $15,015,000 second preferred and $13,145,000 common stock.

Mr. Willard testified that in 1929 the B. & O., directly or indirectly, increased its holdings of Reading stock from slightly more than 25 per cent to 34 per cent. These purchases accounted for the rise in Reading stock before the October break. Had the purchases been deferred until after the break, the B. & O. would have obtained its Reading stock at cheaper prices.

Mr. Willard testified also that in 1927 it was agreed that if to the New York Central was allocated some other road into New York in a general consolidation, it would release its Reading stock to the B. & O.

Now that the Interstate Commerce Commission has allocated the Reading to the B. & O., the B. & O. seeks to insure itself control of that road. What the New York Central would expect for the sale of its interest in the Reading has not been disclosed.

Autos Paid Railroads $542,170,000.

Out of a total railroad freight revenue of $4,317,698,024 in 1928, shipments of manufactures paid $1,640,485,102, the Interstate Commerce Commission reports. In the manufactures item, one of the largest groups was of automobiles, automobile parts and materials used in making them, the payment to the railroads from this source being $542,170,000 for the year, or 12½ per cent of the total.

Decrease in Individual Account Debits Shown in Federal Board's Weekly Report

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Debits to individual accounts, as reported to the Federal Reserve Board by banks in leading cities for the week ended Feb. 12, which included but five business days for many of the reporting centres, aggregated $11,677,000,000, or 26 per cent below the total reported for the preceding week and 31 per cent below the total reported for the corresponding week of last year, which also included but five business days in many of the reporting centres.

Aggregate debits for 141 centres for which figures have been published weekly since January, 1919, amounted to $10,995,000,000, as compared with $14,917,000,000 for the preceding week and $16,076,000,000 for the week ended Feb. 13 of last year.

DEBITS TO INDIVIDUAL ACCOUNTS.

	Feb. 12, 1930.	Feb. 13, 1929.
New York	$6,755,972,000	$11,063,747,000
Boston	588,689,000	652,695,000
Philadelphia	514,800,000	601,168,000
Cleveland	578,367,000	762,834,000
Richmond	278,308,000	296,783,000
Atlanta	270,940,000	286,581,000
Chicago	1,147,371,000	1,488,166,000
St. Louis	273,878,000	314,836,000
Minneapolis	150,978,000	171,408,000
Kansas City	299,194,000	321,330,000
Dallas	162,824,000	186,003,000
San Francisco	655,609,000	790,468,000
Total	$11,677,030,000	$16,878,039,000

NEW YORK WEEKLY BANK STATEMENTS

FOR THE WEEK ENDED SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1930.

Clearing House Return

CLEARING HOUSE MEMBERS	Capital.	Surplus and Undivided Profits.	Net Demand Deposits Average.	Time Deposits Average.
Bank of N. Y. & Trust Co.	$6,000,000	$14,297,300	$61,669,000	$10,343,000
Bank of Manhattan Trust Co.	22,250,000	43,209,600	180,689,000	40,906,000
Bank of America Natl. Assoc.	35,775,300	38,653,000	154,636,000	50,018,000
National City Bank	110,000,000	129,650,200	(a)965,459,000	222,671,000
Chemical Bank & Trust Co.	15,000,000	22,017,700	200,970,000	20,827,000
Guaranty Trust Co.	90,000,000	202,636,000	(b)817,874,000	82,607,000
Chat. Phx. Nat. Bk. & Tr. Co.	16,200,000	19,466,100	154,865,000	36,348,000
Cent. Hanover Bk. & Tr. Co.	21,000,000	84,117,700	346,375,000	39,852,000
Corn Exchange Bk. Tr. Co.	12,100,000	22,604,000	176,373,000	33,295,000
First National Bank	10,000,000	103,359,800	224,419,000	13,056,000
Irving Trust Co.	50,000,000	83,741,000	358,579,000	54,319,000
Continental Bank & Trust Co.	6,000,000	11,280,300	9,678,000	786,000
Chase National Bank	105,000,000	136,365,100	(c)726,623,000	85,199,000
Fifth Avenue Bank	500,000	3,627,700	24,975,000	1,367,000
Equitable Trust Co.	50,000,000	63,611,000	(d)440,072,000	61,694,000
Bankers Trust Co.	25,000,000	82,631,400	(e)389,988,000	51,733,000
Title Guarantee & Trust Co.	10,000,000	24,321,600	34,242,000	1,435,000
Fidelity Trust Co.	6,000,000	5,659,200	39,438,000	5,151,000
Lawyers Trust Co.	3,000,000	4,615,100	20,400,000	1,993,000
New York Trust Co.	12,500,000	34,276,600	151,703,000	24,607,000
Commercial Ntl. Bk. & Tr. Co.	7,000,000	8,790,500	43,254,000	6,635,000
Harriman Nat. Bk. & Tr. Co.	2,000,000	2,509,700	34,903,000	5,599,000
CLEARING NON-MEMBERS.
City Bank Farmers Trust Co.	10,000,000	12,167,700	4,602,000	1,706,000
Mechanics Trust Co., Bayonne	500,000	888,300	2,809,000	5,435,000
Totals	$625,825,300	$1,154,496,600	$5,564,595,000	$857,582,000

Includes deposits in foreign branches: (a) $292,800,000; (b) $150,632,000; (c) $13,219,000; (d) $112,452,000; (e) $63,120,000.

AGGREGATE TRUST COMPANY DEPOSITS.

The gross figures of Clearing House trust companies include items not included in the net deposits as reported to the Clearing House.

Trust Companies.	Deposits.	Trust Companies.	Deposits.
Bank of New York & Tr.	$98,797,000	Guaranty	$1,069,347,000
Bankers	501,004,000	Irving	479,444,800
Cent. Han. Bank & Tr.	477,670,000	Lawyers Trust	23,225,200
Chemical Bank & Trust	269,451,000	New York	221,776,000
City Bank Farmers	39,363,754	Title Guarantee	40,246,100
Corn Exchange	238,490,000
Equitable	595,842,000	Total	$4,102,809,854
Fidelity	48,153,000	Change	—57,942,060

INSTITUTIONS NOT IN CLEARING HOUSE

NATIONAL STATE BANKS—Average Figures.

	Loans	Gold.	Other Cash, Including Bk. Notes.	Res. Dep., N. Y. and Elsewhere	Dep. Other Banks and Trust Cos.	Gross Deposits.
MANHATTAN—
Bk. of Unit. States	$213,821,000	$20,000	$4,212,000	$33,616,000	$2,064,000	$211,654,000
Bryant Park Bank	2,706,900	....	151,300	356,100	......	2,189,800
Grace National	21,538,696	6,000	92,908	1,876,344	1,505,311	18,786,746
Port Morris	3,360,800	30,500	91,700	153,700	......	2,856,200
Public National	144,664,000	31,000	1,923,000	7,747,000	25,542,000	158,971,000
BROOKLYN—
Brooklyn National	8,600,400	11,000	58,500	510,900	556,300	5,476,400
Peoples National	7,200,000	5,000	126,000	519,000	118,000	7,100,000

TRUST COMPANIES—Average Figures.

	Loans	Cash.	Res. Dep. N. Y. and Elsewhere.	Dep. Other Banks and Trust Cos.	Gross Deposits.
MANHATTAN—
American	$50,864,900	$9,754,200	$943,100	$19,800	$49,422,700
Bank of Europe and Trust	15,492,626	861,321	203,693	......	15,004,000
Bronx County	25,803,384	714,623	1,760,069	......	25,701,818
Chelsea Bank and Trust	22,407,000	1,301,000	1,697,000	......	19,742,000
Empire	84,702,700	*5,060,400	6,675,500	3,371,100	84,565,300
Federation	17,623,620	126,510	1,370,552	121,156	17,427,199
Fulton	19,645,000	*2,279,000	351,100	......	16,908,800
Manufacturers	357,631,000	3,139,000	47,846,000	3,320,000	335,020,000
United States	74,372,238	3,920,000	7,304,549	......	57,787,438
BROOKLYN—
Brooklyn	118,122,700	2,086,000	20,318,900	......	116,785,000
Kings County	28,803,623	2,133,099	2,235,094	......	26,582,207
BAYONNE, N. J.—
Mechanics	8,737,650	247,080	655,822	318,127	8,647,050

*Includes amount with Federal Reserve Bank as follows: Empire $3,383,000, Fulton $2,167,200.

BANKS AND TRUST COMPANIES

NEW YORK BANKS.

Manhattan and Bronx.

	Bid	Ask		Bid	Ask
America	132	135	Lefcourt	143	163
Amer Union	95	105	Liberty	125	149
Bk of U S un.	86	88	Manhat Co.	132	134
Bk Yorktown	..	200	Melrose	220	230
B'way Nat.	115	120	Merchants	115	135
Bryant Park	47	55	Midtown	44	50
Central Nat.	158	165	Penn Exch.	77	87
Chase	168	170	Port Morris	50	55
Chat Phenix	124	127	Prisco State	300	475
City	251	253	Public	134	137
Columbus	170	185	Seward	118	122
Commercial	555	560	Sixth Av.	160	170
Fifth Av.	3150	3350	Sterling	54	60
First Nat.	5725	5825	Straus Nat.	290	310
Grace	600	..	Textile	55	65
Harbor State	65	75	Trade	..	295
Harriman	1400	1500	Union, Bronx	100	112
Industrial	200	225	Wash Sq N.	135	150
Lebanon	..	150	World Exch.	..	205
			Yorkville	..	220

Brooklyn.

	Bid	Ask		Bid	Ask
Bay P'kway	180	210	Globe B & T.	240	260
Bensonhurst	105	130	Kingsboro N.	150	170
B'klyn Nat.	112	116	Lafayette	53	58
Citizens	210	..	People's	450	625
Flatbush	..	200	Ridgewood	170	200
Ft Greene Na.	110	116	Rugby	..	325

Queens.

	Bid	Ask		Bid	Ask.
Col Point N.	115	140	N Bk of Far Rockaway	260	280
Douglast'n N.	300	350	Do rights	90	120
Elmhurst	..	200	Ozone Pk Nt.	225	300
Jamaica N.	375	..	Queensboro N.	..	375
L I Nat, Ast	175	225	Richmond	150	225
N Bk of Bayside	90	110	Rock Bch N.	215	265
			Woodside N.	200	260

Richmond.

	Bid	Ask		Bid	Ask
Mariners Har.	90	115	Tottenville N.	130	160
South Shore	170	190	W N Bright.	300	..
S I Bk & T.	170	190

Westchester. [illegible]

NEW YORK TRUST COMPANIES.

Manhattan and Bronx.

	Bid	Ask		Bid	Ask
Bankers	150	154	Hibernia	175	185
Banca C I.	337	..	Interstate	35	35½
Bk of Sicily	59½	63½	International	47	52
Bk Europe T.	115	135	Int Ger, Ltd.	17	19
Bk N Y & T.	675	690	Inter-Madison	40	48
Bronx	75	80	Irving	57	59
Chelsea	51	53	Law Tie & G.	280	286
Chem B T.	80	82	M'fact'rers	136	137
Cen Hanover	353	358	New York	272	276
Clinton	108	115	Pacific	207	220
Continental	37	40	Plaza	105	125
Corn Exch.	213	217	State T & M.	..	135
County	240	250	Times Square	65	72
Empire	81	83	Title Guar.	151	153
Fidelity	48½	49½	Tr Co, N A.	200	300
Fulton	590	630	Underwriters	35	40
Equitable	117	119	Unit States	3300	3500
Guaranty	748	752

Brooklyn.

	Bid	Ask		Bid	Ask
Brooklyn	810	820	Midwood	195	215
Kings Co.	2900	3050

Westchester.

	Bid	Ask		Bid	Ask
Law W Mtg.	225	255	West Trust	1050	1100
Mutual	400	425	West T & T.	150	160
New Roch.	285	310

NEW JERSEY.

Newark.

	Bid	Asked
Nat Newark & Essex	380	390
New Jersey National ($25)	47	50
TRUST COMPANIES.
Federal ($25)	118	123
Fidelity Union ($25)	224	228
Merchants and Newark ($25)	85	90
United States	125	135
West Side ($25)	120	125

Jersey City. [illegible]

PHILADELPHIA. [illegible]

CONNECTICUT. [illegible]

PITTSBURGH. [illegible]

CHICAGO. [illegible]

DETROIT. [illegible]

CANADA. [illegible]

REALTY SURETY COMPANIES. [illegible]

STOCK EXCHANGE BID AND ASKED QUOTATIONS

Closing quotations for issues not traded in on the Stock Exchange yesterday:

FOREIGN BONDS.

	Bid.	Asked.		Bid.	Asked.
Adriat El 7s, '52	98¼	99	Italian Crd P W 7s, B, 1947	96	96¾
Alpine Mont Stl 7s, 1955	93¾	95	Leipzig 7s, 1947	87	87⅞

[illegible]

STOCKS.

	Bid.	Asked.		Bid.	Asked.		Bid.	Asked.
Chi R I & Pac 7% pf	107½	108	Illinois Cent pf	128	140	Pere Marquette	157	167
Do 6% pf	102¾	103½	Do leased line	73	75	Do pr pf	96	97¼
Chile Copper	56⅛	65	Ingersoll-Rand	169	172	Do pf	95¾	96
Christie-Brown	100	126	Do pf	118	120	Phillips-Jones	20	26
Cin Sand & C pf	64	..	Inland Steel	81	85	Do pf	70¼	75
City Ice & F.	43⅞	46	Inspiration Cop.	28¾	29½	Phoenix Hos	13	15½
Do pf	96	98	Int Rubber	5¼	5¾	Do pf	..	83
City Investing	147½	..	Int Agric pr pf	55	57	P-Arrow pf	69¼	71½
			Int Nickel pf	120	122	Pierce Oil pf	21	25½

[illegible]

Are You Holding Stocks OF THESE COMPANIES?

Close analysis of companies is called for. What do analyses show of these companies?

Willys-Overland
Armour B
Com. & Southern
Amer. Agr. Chem.
American Piano
Remington Rand
Radio
Schulte Retail
Ward Baking B
Norwalk Tire
Martin Parry
Radio-Keith-O.
Pressed St. Car
Nat'l Pwr. & Lt.
United Cigar St.
United Gas Imp.
Fisk Rubber
Reo Motors
Pierce Petroleum
Continental Oil
Chrysler

These corporations are thoroughly analyzed in our latest bulletin. Thirty companies are covered. A few extra copies of this valuable report reserved for distribution, free.

Simply ask for "Low-Priced Stocks Report"

American Securities Service
172 Norton-Lilly Building New York, N. Y.

HOW MONEY IS MADE in the STOCK MARKET

HOW TO MAKE YOUR MONEY MAKE MORE MONEY

Making money in the stock market is not a question of following tips, rumors or interested information. Money is made only by following sound, fundamental, yet simple METHODS—methods gleaned from the experience of those who have succeeded—methods available to every investor.

WHAT THESE METHODS ARE AND HOW THE CONSERVATIVE INVESTOR SHOULD AND MAY USE THEM is explained clearly in our 24-page booklet, pictured herewith. A few copies are available without obligation.

Simply ask for Booklet NTF-16

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF FINANCE
260 Tremont Street Boston, Mass.

Public Utility SECURITIES?

PUBLIC utilities are still selling very substantially below the prices of last summer. Their business seems practically certain to continue to increase. Plans for consolidations and expansion temporarily in abeyance should in the near future be brought forward.

In a fifteen-year period while the population of the country has increased 24%, the generation of electricity has increased 626%.

The latest issue of our bulletins contains an important analysis of public utility companies which should prove of genuine value to investors.

Copies will be sent free upon request.

McNEEL'S FINANCIAL SERVICE
R. W. McNEEL, DIRECTOR
"An Aristocracy of Successful Investors"
126 NEWBURY ST. BOSTON, MASS.

Please send free bulletin TM-3-6

NAME—PLEASE PRINT

ADDRESS—PLEASE PRINT

MOST FINANCIAL WORLD SUBSCRIBERS APPRECIATE

not only the accuracy of our authoritative analyses of securities but also the fact that our recommendations are absolutely unbiased. The following recent letter from Mr. Samuel Greenbaum, 1270 Gerard Avenue, New York City, is typical:—

"My reason for renewing is: A belief in the unquestioned honesty and fairness and squareness of Mr. Guenther. It is worth $10 a year to read a clean, honest and always aboveboard magazine like yours."

If you realize the importance of a truly impartial investment guide, return this "ad" with your address for a FREE copy of "Sound Investment Rules" and also of the February 19th Financial World. The latter will contain besides other valuable information, several complete analyses of under-valued stocks with good long-term profit possibilities. Among features in the next issue are the following:—

On Their Record
Outlook For Rail Equipments
Which Office Equipment Companies Are Attractive?
Economic Developments in Mexico
Two Beneficiaries of Low Crude Oil Prices
Two Progressive Electrical Equipments On N. Y. Curb

The FINANCIAL WORLD
America's Investment Weekly
Louis Guenther, Publisher
Established 1902
53 Park Place New York

IRB

DO YOU HOLD STOCKS OF THESE COMPANIES?

THE outlook for companies listed below is discussed in our current Stock Market Bulletins, copies of which will be sent to you free of charge.

If you hold or are interested in the securities of any of the following companies, our current Bulletins should prove of great value in the present uncertain period when the average investor sees many stocks making new highs while others do nothing.

The companies discussed are:

Paramount
American Can
St. Louis, San Francisco
Electric Bond & Share
R. J. Reynolds
American Woolen
Mallinson Silk
Caterpillar Tractor
Allis Chalmers
General Foods
Nat'l Cash Register
Woolworth
American Tobacco
Consolidated Textile
Collins & Aikman
Servel, Inc.
Public Service Corp. of N. J.
S. S. Kresge

Simply send your name and address and the above mentioned Bulletins will be sent to you without cost or obligation. Also an interesting book called "MAKING MONEY IN STOCKS"

Just address Division 393,
INVESTORS RESEARCH BUREAU, INC.
Chimes Building, Syracuse, N. Y.

Investment Counselors for over a Quarter Century
BROOKMIRE
ECONOMIC SERVICE
551 Fifth Ave., New York

High Class Customers' Man with credentials as to character and business qualifications may address

M. C. Bouvier & Co.
Members New York Stock Exchange
20 Broad St. New York

If letter is satisfactory an interview may be arranged.

$5,000 Policy Costs $69.70
PENN MUTUAL LIFE
Age 40, dividends reduce this cost after first year; organized 1847, assets 400 millions. Send date of your birth for specimen policy. Joseph A. Eckenrode, Gen. Agt., 26 Court St., Brooklyn. Phone Triangle 0178.

Right Decisions On Investments

Perhaps you are considering an investment that looks attractive now. Or you may own stock selling at less than you paid—you wonder whether to take loss or hold for long pull. You may have a fair paper profit and want to know whether to hold for future or take profit now. Your whole financial future may depend upon reaching the right decision. Hence the advantage of having clear, unbiased analyses (not mere copies) of company EARNINGS reports and prospects in THE WALL STREET NEWS daily; and monthly summary and comparison of "CORPORATION EARNINGS" showing earning trends. Perhaps you want information on some of the following companies:

Remington Rand
Bush Terminal
Transcontl. Oil
Seabd. A. L. Bonds
Detroit Edison
[illegible]
Nat'l City Bank
Standard Brands
Ark. Nat. Gas
Cities Service
[illegible]
Stand. Oil of N. Y.
Insuranshares
Mathieson Alkali
Erie Rts. (Pittston)
Aviation Corp.
United Aircraft
General Motors
[illegible]
Stand. Oil of N. J.

Check any four reports on above you want FREE with trial subscription offer below to NEW subscribers only:

½ PRICE TRIAL—Next 50 Issues $1

(Includes 4 reports checked above, also 15 new Copper Analyses and Table of 351 Earnings Reports in latest issue of "Corporation Earnings")

THE (Samples Free on Request)

WALL STREET NEWS
Published DAILY by the New York News Bureau Association
32 Broadway Dept. B-7 New York City

MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

Consolidated Gas Company of New York
4 Irving Place

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York for the election of Trustees and the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the meeting will be held at the office of the Company on MONDAY February 24, 1930 at 12 o'clock noon. Stockholders of record as of 3 p. m. on Friday, February 7, 1930 will be entitled to vote at this meeting. The transfer books will not be closed.

H. C. DAVIDSON, Secretary

February 7, 1930

FIRE UNDERWRITERS CHANGE PORTFOLIOS

Investments of 72 Leading Companies Composed of 37.94% of Profit-Sharing Issues.

MORTGAGES OWNED BY 50

All but One Concern Carry Common Stocks, Which Generally Have Yielded Well.

The tendency of fire insurance companies to invest in common stocks is revealed by the combined investments of seventy-two companies listed in the over-the-counter section of THE NEW YORK TIMES on Jan. 27, showing that the holdings averaged 62.06 per cent of fixed income investments and 37.94 per cent of profit-sharing investments.

According to the compilation made by Eugene A. Widmann of Widmann & Co., thirty-four companies had investments in real estate and seventy owned preferred stocks. Mortgages were owned by fifty companies, while nineteen reported collateral loans. All owned bonds. The bond holdings of thirty-two companies were below an average of 41.12 per cent, while twenty-four had 41 to 60 per cent of their investments in bonds.

"All but one company owned common stocks," Mr. Widmann said. "The holdings of forty-five companies were below the average of 26.13 per cent, while twenty-six reported a percentage higher than the average. Twenty companies had 10 to 20 per cent of their investments in common stocks; fourteen had 26 to 40 per cent, and ten had 40 to 70 per cent. Bank stocks were owned by fifty-two companies, while thirty-seven companies owned other insurance stocks.

"Common stock investments by fire insurance companies as an entire group had not, up to 1929, reached the point at which 50 per cent of their assets were placed in equities. However, those individual fire companies that had invested more than 50 per cent of their assets in common stocks, over a period, have been exceedingly well rewarded, because they had stocks of leading industries with consistent earnings, fortified by large profits and large surpluses."

FIBRE CONCERNS MERGED.

Delaware Company Is Sold to Continental Diamond.

WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 15 (AP).—Charles G. Rupert announced today that he and his family have sold the Delaware Hard Fibre Company to the Continental Diamond Fibre Corporation, with main office in Newark, N. J., and plants in various cities of the United States, France and England.

Mr. Rupert, who founded Delaware Hard Fibre in 1890, placed recently a valuation of $1,500,000 on the company. The consideration was paid partly in cash and partly in stock, it was said.

Continental Diamond was created about a year ago through a merger of the Continental Fibre Company and the Diamond State Fibre Company.

FLUCTUATIONS SMALL ON THE CURB MARKET

Profit-Taking Depresses Prices of Leading Stocks—Various Groups Irregular.

Price movements were narrow on the New York Curb Exchange yesterday despite profit-taking in several market leaders, which brought losses of one to two points in the more active stocks. Gains were made by Davenport Hosiery, Aviation of America, Marine Midland, Niles-Bement-Pond, Otis Elevator and Republic Steel.

In the utility group there were declines in American Gas and Electric, American Superpower, Electric Bond and Share, Standard Power and Light, United Light and Power A and and Eastern States Power B. Utilities Power and Light advanced.

Among the oils, Humble, Gulf and Vacuum declined. Canadian Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohio eased in the rail group. Lehman Corporation declined and National Investors rose in the investment trust section. St. Regis Paper and Taggart Corporation were weaker in the industrial group.

STOCK EXCHANGE NEWS.

Memberships Ex Rights Transferred—Feb. 13, 1930, Millard A. Waldheim to Theodore Yankauer Jr., Waldheim, Platt & Co., 120 Broadway; Arthur Herzog to Richard B. Ayer, at Du Bosque, De Witt & Co., 44 Wall Street; J. Horton Ijams to Alexander J. Burns, Carl H. Pforzheimer & Co., 25 Broad Street; Clarence F. Avery to Mabon Kingsley, Gould, Avery & Co., 39 Broadway.

Proposed Transfer of Membership—Feb. 6, 1930 (balloting Feb. 20, 1930), Samuel Weiss to James K. Trimble, sponsors J. Clark Moore Jr. and Vincent W. Amy.

Proposed Transfer of Memberships Ex Rights—Feb. 6, 1930 (balloting Feb. 20, 1930), Frederic L. Yeager to James H. McGean, sponsors Frederic L. Yeager and George A. H. Churchill; Sheldon R. Noble to William J. McNamara, sponsors Robert W. Green and Jones E. Henry; William A. Belden (deceased) to M. Hubert Hilder, sponsors Arthur K. Harris and William J. Ehrich. Feb. 13, 1930 (balloting Feb. 27, 1930), Lloyd Richards (deceased) to Maurice L. Farrell, sponsors Austin L. Smithers and W. Eugene Kimball; Worthington Davis to Remsen T. Williams, sponsors Herbert G. Wellington and Chalmers Wood; Lars S. Potter to Curtis B. Dall, sponsors Alfred E. Thurber and Otto B. Reimer; Lee-Adam Gimble to Fergus Reid Jr., sponsors E. Coe Kerr and Samuel W. Atkins.

Applicants for Membership by Transfer of Rights—Feb. 6, 1930 (balloting Feb. 20, 1930), William Schatzkin, sponsors John Horace Block and Stephen M. Ames; Albert Ehrenfreund, sponsors Edward Klauber and Charles Sievers.

Dissolution of Partnership—On Feb. 17, 1930, Charles A. Frank & Co.

Proposed Dissolution of Partnership—On Feb. 28, 1930, Du Bosque, De Witt & Co.

New Partnership—Carl H. Pforzheimer & Co., Feb. 13, 1930, 25 Broad Street, Carl H. Pforzheimer, J. William Smallwood and Alexander J. Burns.

Proposed New Partnerships—Brand, Grumet & Co., 30 Broad Street, Sylvester S. Brand, Louis S. Grumet, Albert Ehrenfreund, and special, Charles Milgrim; De Witt, Fleitmann & Co., March 1, 1930, 43 Exchange Place, John De Witt, Henry Fleitmann and Richard B. Ayer; Du Bosque, George & Co., March 1, 1930, 44 Wall Street, David L. George, Dallas W. Haines, Harold C. George, W. G. Halsey, B. Winthrop Pizzini, David D. Chandler Jr., Carl L. Cleaver, Steele Du Bosque and Clayton Du Bosque.

Changes in Partnerships—Lamborn, Hutchings & Co., Robert H. Adams retired, effective Jan. 31, 1930; E. E. MacCrone & Co., J. B. Lovelace and Orva C. Timewell retired, effective Feb. 6, 1930; Orr, Van Dyne & Krech, Robert O. Cameron admitted, effective Feb. 11, 1930; Prince & Whitely, Gerald W. Hoyt admitted, effective Feb. 13, 1930; Simons, Blauner & Co., Albert E. Marsh retired, effective Feb. 15, 1930; Van Wyck & Sterling, Charles A. Frank admitted, effective Feb. 17, 1930; Waldheim, Platt & Co., Theodore Yankauer Jr. admitted, effective Feb. 13, 1930.

Proposed Changes in Partnerships—Hano, Wasserman & Co., Robert J. Levy to be admitted March 1, 1930; Herrick, Berg & Co., Charles F. Guild to be admitted March 1, 1930; Kean, Taylor & Co., Charles J. Waldmann to be admitted; Marks & Graham, special, Henry F. Westheimer to retire Feb. 28, 1930; J. G. Marshall & Co., Charles F. Nichols and C. A. Greeff to be admitted March 1, 1930, and Louis B. Wade, general partner, willl become a special partner March 1, 1930.

New Addresses—A. G. Edwards & Sons, 409 North Eighth Street, St. Louis, Mo.; F. S. Moseley & Co., 39 Broadway; Waldheim, Platt & Co., 120 Broadway (at Sutro Brothers & Co.).

Other Offices of Members—Fenner & Beane, Baton Rouge, La., discontinued; R. H. Gibson & Co. (new), Indianapolis, Ind., A. Ferd Imfeld, manager; Goodbody & Co., Springfield, Mass., discontinued; Ira Haupt & Co. (new), New York (512 Seventh Avenue), Samuel Sweedler and Jack Goldston, managers, and New York (500 Seventh Avenue), discontinued; Hirsch, Lilienthal & Co., Bridgeport, Conn., discontinued; W. K. Johnson & Co. (new), Bridgeport, Conn., Otto G. Hupfel, manager; F. J. Lisman & Co. (new), Lakewood, N. J., Max Glaser, manager; Nicol, Ford & Co. (new), Lansing, Mich., Fred Perry, manager; Edmund Seymour & Co. (new), Bridgeport, Conn., Harold L. Smith, manager; Spencer Trask & Co. (new), London, England, Reginald C. Foster, manager; Waldheim, Platt & Co., St. Louis, Mo., resident partners; Woodworth, Lounsbery & Co. (new), New York (60 East Forty-second Street), Arthur Stokes, manager.

CHAIN STORE SALES.

Atlas Stores Corporation.

For the seven months ended on Dec. 31, 1929, the Atlas Stores Corporation of America reports net sales of $11,415,698 and a net income of $979,757, equivalent to $3.34 a share on the 292,525 shares outstanding on Jan. 31, 1929.

MINING STOCK QUOTATIONS

SAN FRANCISCO.

NEVADA.

Best and Belcher	.03
Black Bear	.05
Black Mammoth	.02
Booth	.02
Champion	.02
Concordia	.03
Divide	.03
Goldfield Cons	.52
Amalgamated	.03
Belmont Metals	.50
Belmont Osborn	.08
Central Eureka	.20
Do pf	.24
Double O	.04
First National	.05
Idaho Maryland	.23
Lucky Strike	.10

TORONTO (Continued)

Sales.		High.	Low.	Last.
2,150	Calmont Oil	1.63	1.52	1.63
200	Canam Metals	.55	.55	.55
1,000	Columario	.45	.45	.45
2,600	Commonw'th Pete	.45	.45	.45
500	Coniagas	1.00	1.00	1.00
125	Dome Mines	6.50	7.50	7.50
625	Falconbridge	5.00	5.00	5.00

TRANSACTIONS ON THE NEW YORK CURB EXCHANGE

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1930.

	Total Stocks.	Domestic Bonds.	Foreign Bonds.	Total Bonds.
Day's sales..	471,100	$962,000	$233,000	$1,195,000
Friday	1,000,100	1,887,000	453,000	2,340,000
Thursday ...	1,111,200	3,030,000	305,000	3,335,000
A year ago..	929,200	1,453,000	336,000	1,789,000
Year to date.	26,874,845	60,522,000	10,291,000	70,813,000
1929 to date.	61,023,400	94,845,000	12,375,000	107,220,000

High.	Low.	Stock	First.	High.	Low.	Last.	Net Chge.	Bid.	Ask.	Sales.
17½	11⅝	Niag. H. Pow. (40c)	16¾	16⅞	16⅝	16¾	– ⅜	16⅝	16⅞	9,000
5⅞	3	Niag. H. Pow. A war.	5¼	5½	5⅛	5½	+ ⅜	5⅛	5¾	2,000
10⅞	6¼	Niag. H. Pow. B war.	10⅛	10¼	10	10	– ½	9⅝	10⅛	1,000
40⅞	27½	Niles Bement Pond	39⅝	40⅞	38¾	40⅞	+ 2⅝	..	..	1,400
14	12⅞	Noma El. Corp. (1.60)	13½	13½	13½	13½	..	13⅜	13⅝	200
44½	34⅝	Noranda Mines (3)	41⅛	41⅛	41⅝	41⅝	– ⅛	40¾	41½	400
7⅞	5⅛	North Am. Aviation	7⅝	7⅞	7½	7⅝	+ ⅛	..	..	6,700
70⅝	67	N. Am. L. & P. (b8%)	70¼	70⅝	70¼	70⅝	..	68	74	200
9⅝	5⅛	North Am. Util. Sec.	8	8	8	8	– ⅛	7	8	100
183½	170	North Stat. P. A (8)	181	181	180½	180½	– ½	180	182	200
1¼	1	Ohio Copper	1	1	1	1	..	1	1⅛	4,700
71¼	68¼	Ohio Oil (†2)	68½	68½	68¼	68½	– ⅛	67⅞	68½	100
110	108¾	Okla. G. & El. pf. (7)	109½	109½	109½	109½	+ ½	109	109½	100

CURB BID AND ASKED QUOTATIONS

Closing quotations for issues not traded in on the Curb Exchange yesterday:

Security Salesman With Clientele

A VERY unusual opening for one or two strictly high calibre salesmen with substantial clientele, to specialize on a security which, measured by past record, present position and thoroughly justified expectancy, marks it in no uncertain way "An Outstanding Issue" in the conservative investment field. It is a marketable and collateral security yielding above average dividends and its record of appreciation averages 15% yearly. The issue is unlimited and repeat orders frequent. Many investors consistently increase their holdings on a pre-arranged schedule. To a forceful yet conservative salesman with established clientele, this offers an exceptional connection, liberal commissions and fullest co-operation. References and proof of ability absolutely essential.

LEE & COMPANY
11 Broadway Digby 2370

SALESMEN

We are seeking a few experienced security salesmen with a clientele to offer a security especially adapted to the present market. Low priced, readily marketable issue with many outstanding sales features. Liberal commission arrangement and drawing account upon demonstrated sales ability.

For interview see
Mr. Devine
Second Floor
61 Broadway New York City

SECURITIES SALESMEN

Investment house dealing in high grade issues has room for two securities salesmen of executive caliber. The record of the men selected will be strictly investigated.
Attractive commission plus generous bonus arrangement. Drawing account upon proven ability only. Our organization has been informed of this advertisement.

Write, giving full details of past experience to PCH
Rudolph Guenther-Russell Law, Inc.
Financial Advertising in all its Branches
131 Cedar Street New York

SALESMEN for BankStockTradingDepartment

The Securities Affiliate of a prominent Trust Company offers alert, capable and exeprienced Bank Stock Salesmen, with clientele, an opportunity to make a permanent and profitable connection. Full cooperation of Trading and Statistical Departments. Commission basis.

For appointment write or telephone
MIDWOOD Financial Corporation
45 Willoughby St., Brooklyn, N.Y.
Cumberland 2600

Salesmen Wanted

Local representatives in New Jersey and Long Island wanted by established Wall Street investment banking house. This opportunity should be of interest to high class, ambitious business men who desire to establish themselves in the securities field permanently. Experience not necessary, but energy, straightforwardness and intelligence essential. This investment banking house originates new issues, participates in syndicate offerings of sound investment character and does not handle promotional securities. Commission basis. Address V. J. C., Post Office Box 47, Trinity Station, New York City.

2 Salesmen Wanted

to sell the securities of A Billion Dollar Organization —with 600,000 investors
—paid $117,000,000 in dividends
—actively traded on N. Y. Curb and other leading exchanges.

Large direct mail campaign and fullest cooperation extended to the right men. Liberal commission and bonus arrangement.

Leroy A. Strasburger & Co.
Established 1916
50 Broad St. Room 1737
Telephone Hanover 3822

AVAILABLE

Former partner New York Stock Exchange firm, at present office manager for main office N. Y. S. E. firm, wishes to make change. Has clientele and excellent connections. Interviews arranged by addressing J. H. H., Albert Frank & Co., 165 Broadway, N. Y. C.

IMMEDIATELY AVAILABLE

High grade security sales executive (not a broker) with staff of competent assistants offers services to a going concern to help assist in selling a block of treasury stock for additional working capital, or expansion on strictly commission basis; willing to travel. P 162 Times.

ATTENTION!
Brokerage Firms

SEAT-HOLDER ON N.Y. PRODUCE EXCH., serving a few select clients, seeks connection with reputable brokerage house. Address Box P 299 Times.

BUSINESS CONTINUES GRADUALLY UPWARD

Continued from Page Nine.

Bradstreet's on the value of new building in New York City during January showed a gain of 29.5 per cent over December, but a loss of 63.7 per cent from January, 1929.

Of ninety-four lines of business in New York City reporting to Bradstreet's last week, four were better than, fifty-three equal to and thirty-seven below a year ago. One line reported collections better than a year ago, thirty-eight equal to and fifty-five below those of February, 1929.

Following is a summary of the lines reporting sales:

Sales Better Than a Year Ago.

Coal, anthracite, retail.
Coal, anthracte, wholesale and jobbing.
Laundries.
Patent medicines, manufacturing.

Sales Equal to a Year Ago.

Boxes, paper, manufacturing.
Bread baking, manufacturing.
Carpets, wholesale and jobbing.
Cement, wholesale.
Chemicals, manufacturing.
Chinaware, wholesale and jobbing.
Chocolate, wholesale and manufacturing.
Cigars, manufacturing.
Coal, bituminous, retail.
Coal, bituminous, wholesale and jobbing.
Coffee, roasting, manufacturing.
Coffee, wholesale.
Confectionery, manufacturing.
Cotton goods, wholesale and jobbing.
Dairy products, wholesale and jobbing.
Department stores.
Drugs, wholesale and jobbing.
Electrical goods, manufacturing.
Electrical goods, retail.
Electrical goods, wholesale.
Fish, wholesale.
Fruits and vegetables, commission.
Furniture, retail.
Fur goods, manufacturing.
Fur goods, wholesale.
Furs, wholesale.
Glassware, wholesale and jobbing.
Glass, window, wholesale.
Groceries, wholesale and jobbing.
Hardware, retail.
Hardware, wholesale and jobbing.
Hats, men's, manufacturing.
Hosiery, jobbing.
Hosiery, women's, manufacturing.
Hotels.
Jewelry, manufacturing.
Jewelry, retail.
Jewelry, wholesale and jobbing.
Knit goods, manufacturing.
Knit goods, wholesale and jobbing.
Meats, wholesale.
Paints, manufacturing.
Paper, fine, wholesale.
Paper, newsprint, wholesale.
Plumbers' supplies, wholesale and jobbing.
Publishing.
Rayons, wholesale and jobbing.
Shirts and collars, men's, manufacturing.
Silk goods, manufacturing.
Slaughtering and meat packing.
Tea, wholesale.
Tobacco, leaf.
Twine, wholesale and jobbing.

Sales Below a Year Ago.

Automobiles, retail.
Boxes, wooden, manufacturers.
Brick, manufacturing.
Brick, wholesale.
Cloaks and suits, women's, manufacturing.
Clothing, men's, manufacturing.
Crude rubber, wholesale.
Dresses, women's, manufacturing.
Foundries, manufacturing.
Furniture and refrigerators, manufacturing
Furniture, wholesale and jobbing.
Hosiery, men's manufacturing.
Iron and steel, wholesale, jobbing.
Leather, fancy upper.
Leather goods, manufacturing.
Lumber, wholesale.
Machine tools, manufacturing.
Millinery, wholesale.
Millinery, women's, manufacturing.
Paper, wrapping, wholesale.
Pianos, manufacturing.
Printing.
Radio, wholesale and jobbing.
Shoes, men's, manufacturing.
Shoes, men's, retail.
Shoes, women's, manufacturing.
Shoes' women's, retail.
Silks, wholesale and jobbing.
Sole leather.
Stationery, retail.
Tires, retail.
Underwear, men's, manufacturing.
Underwear, women's, manufacturing.
Women's clothing, retail.
Women's specialty shops, retail.
Woolen goods, wholesale and jobbing.
Worsteds, wholesale and jobbing.

NEW ENGLAND GAINS GROUND.

Gradual Improvement Is Noted in Several Lines.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—The trend seems to be toward gradual improvement in business conditions in New England Building contracts awarded for the week ended Feb. 11 were nearly double the average recent weeks, and were not much below the average corresponding week of previous years.

Operations at the cotton mills have improved materially since the turn of the year, and a more confident feeling is expressed among manufacturers of woolen and worsted goods. Although production of boots and shoes is below this period of last year, orders have been increasing of late.

Tariff uncertainties and the lateness of Easter have been factors affecting the shoe trade.

Department store sales for January in the New England district made a particularly good showing, running 7 per cent ahead of January of last year. This increase was due mainly to drastic mark-down sales.

Reports from retail sales in February to date are less satisfactory. Dry goods jobbers report business quiet, as do leaders in men's furnishings, and suit and cloak manufacturers.

INDUSTRIES GAIN SLOWLY.

Philadelphia Reports Some Advances, but Textiles Are Dull.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14.—Most lines of industry and distribution are improving. Fabricating industries show renewed activity. Shoe factories and makers of other leather products are doing well and the outlook is good.

A recession in upholstery and drapery fabrics has been halted, and with few exceptions the entire upholstery industry has been improved. Clothing manufacturers are working plants to capacity.

Silk stocking mills are not operating on full schedules and millinery is dull. As a whole, the textile industry is not up to the usual standard at this period and many workers are still unemployed.

Wholesale and jobbing business is picking up. In a week check payments in the Third District increased more than $100,000,000. Shipments of goods by freight, while under a year ago, are increasing week by week.

Steel having made a quick recovery, there is less expectation of increasing the product, but prices are firm.

RETAIL SALES IMPROVE.

But Business in Richmond District Is Reported "Only Fair."

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 14.—Retail sales in the fifth reserve district for January were 1.1 per cent above January, 1929, a preliminary compilation by the bank shows. Thirteen of the forty-eight reporting stores had increases, which offset losses in thirty-five. The gains were chiefly in Washington, Baltimore and Richmond.

Business in the district is only "fair." Governor Seay stated today. This is due to conditions in Eastern North Carolina and South Carolina. The northern tier of States are more than holding their own.

Railroads have good reports for January. Norfolk & Western earnings particularly show a substantial gain.

Open weather is stimulating construction, with a consequent improvement in employment in the building trades.

Fertilizer sales in the district are reported above the average for this time of year, indicating that farmers are preparing for an early start.

TRADE SLOW IN CHICAGO AREA

But Steel Mills Are Operating 90 Per Cent—Building Falls Off.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 14.—Aside from the steel industry, in which the local output averages around 90 per cent and backlogs are fairly good, conditions in the Chicago area were decidedly spotty during the past week. Wholesale dry goods distribution was good, particularly as to road orders, but retail and department store sales were slower.

Recent earnings reports of some of the small companies showed a greater tendency toward losses. One large radio manufacturer, however, reported a small gain in January sales over last year.

Farm equipment makers are busy and one manufacturer has acquired a local rolling mill to aid expansion. Railroad rolling stock plants have greater backlogs of orders as a result of recent car awards.

Building shows no sign of rallying from recent low levels. New construction contracts let in Chicago during the first five weeks of 1930 totaled $6,727,300, against $41,367,600 a year ago.

MORE AT WORK IN CLEVELAND

Glass and Steel Demand Expands Industry in Fourth District.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 13.—Spotty conditions in trade and industry in the Fourth District are reflected in reports of the preceding week. Indications of gradual improvement are noted in some lines, but irregularities are still evident in others.

Preliminary figures on January department store sales show a decline of 8 per cent, the largest reported for many months. Building contracts awarded in the first week of February on a daily average basis were about 42 per cent below the average for January and 56 per cent below February, 1929.

Mortgage money seems to be in good supply at low rates, but the demand is much below average. Cleveland's employment index advanced 2.7 per cent in January over December.

Greater demand for glass has resulted in an increase in the number of furnaces in operation at Pittsburgh during the past week. Iron and steel requirements have continued to expand, but at a slower rate than in January.

Youngstown and Pittsburgh mills are operating at 75 per cent, with the entire industry at 78, compared with 87 per cent a year ago. In Cleveland thirty out of thirty-four open hearth furnaces are active.

DULLNESS IN SOUTHWEST.

Retail Sales Improve Slightly and St. Louis Industry Keeps Level.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 14.—Dullness, but not depression, seems to exist in most lines in the Eighth Reserve District. Extreme conservatism in buying is reported in wholesale and retail lines, due principally to bad weather, but a slight improvement in retail sales has been noted in the past few days. Collections continue slow.

Shoe manufacturers continue to report good business, especially in novelty lines.

Steel and iron operation are holding at a satisfactory level and most of them expect large orders this Spring.

Building operations continue practically at a standstill, building permits in St. Louis decreased 85 per cent for January, as compared with a year ago. Bank clearings and balances on individual accounts decreased 10 to 15 per cent.

The employment situation has improved. Crops are in good condition, with a decrease in acreage.

BUSINESS SLOW IN MID-WEST.

Farming and Building Showed Greatest Drop in January.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 14.—Preliminary reports to the Kansas City Federal Reserve Bank indicate business indices for the tenth district for January are generally below a year ago. Farm production and building construction show the largest declines, falling 10 per cent short of January last year.

Retail sales total 7 per cent less than a year ago: Bank debits were 3 per cent less. Zinc and lead ore production and oil output were also slightly under a year ago, although the decline in oil production is generally taken as a favorable trade factor.

The weekly statement of the bank showed unimportant changes. Gold reserves increased about $250,000, bills discounted decreased $500,000, member banks' reserve account increased $750,000, and note circulation decreased $1,000,000. The reserve ratio, however, dropped 2.4 points to 81.6, compared with 69.9 a year ago.

Total clearings through the bank for the week were $184,000,000, a decrease of $2,000,000 from the preceding week, and $10,000,000 less than a year ago.

UNEMPLOYMENT CONTINUES.

Weather Is Blamed for Condition in the Northwest.

Special to The New York Times.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 14.—Farm machinery manufacturers of the Ninth District will increase their payrolls within the next thirty to sixty days, although the usual seasonal dullness in employment is evident in most lines, with no material change expected for two months.

The weather has exerted a marked influence on employment throughout the district during the last few weeks. Highway projects have been practically at a standstill, and other outdoor work has been suspended.

Car loadings in the Northwest have started an upswing after a period during which they were considerably under the 1929 figures. Postal receipts, department store sales volume and wholesale drug and grocery sales are showing a slight gain over a year ago.

Flour production, however, is below the same period a year ago, and the production of linseed products during the last ten days is slightly below 1929. Farm land values, which slumped after the post-war deflation period, are showing signs of improvement.

Construction in the Ninth District is about normal for midwinter, although permits in cities have been slightly below totals for year ago.

COAST OUTLOOK BRIGHTENS.

Improvement in Stock Market Has Helped Conditions in Far West.

Special to The New York Times.

OAKLAND, Cal., Feb. 15.—The improvement in stock market conditions has helped business on the Pacific Coast. The majority rather expects a fairly sharp decline in the security markets but apparently are not unduly alarmed.

Little change has occurred in industry or business on the west coast, major industrials showing satisfactory returns for 1929. Retail stores find conditions less encouraging, although sales compare very favorably with other sections of the country.

The agricultural districts, which after all are extremely important to Pacific Slope prospects for the coming year, have passed the danger point and indications are that this season will be entirely normal in every respect. It will be remembered that the rainfall was very light until late December, but heavy precipitation has entirely removed anxiety on that score and with favorable weather no slump in output is expected.

At the annual convention of the National Builders Association here it was decided to fall into accord with President Hoover's building program. Bids are to be submitted based on the market value of labor and materials, plus a fair return for services. It is evident that, coupled with numerous indications of increased activity in the building trades, the West will have strong figures to return for the current year.

Oil Seeds in Russia.

The cultivation of oil seeds in Russia in 1928-29 continued the rapid growth shown in recent years, the total area sown amounting to 7,672,800 hectares last year as compared with 6,443,000 hectares in the preceding year and 4,825,000 hectares in 1913, according to the Economic Review of the Soviet Union. The area under cultivation last year represented a gain of 59 per cent over 1913. The production of all vegetable oils last year totaled 650,000 tons—a gain of 8 per cent over the preceding years and of 37 per cent over the last pre-war year. Sunflower seed oil made up 61 per cent of the total last year.

DIVIDENDS ANNOUNCED.

Initial and Other Payments to Stockholders Are Declared by Directors.

Equity Investors Corporation.

The Equity Investors Corporation declared yesterday an initial dividend of 50 cents a share on its common stock.

Federated Cap Corporation.

The Federated Cap Corporation declared an initial quarterly dividend of 20 cents on its new $5 common stock.

Prairie Pipe Line.

The Prairie Pipe Line Company declared the usual extra dividend of 50 cents and the regular quarterly of 75 cents a share.

Research Investment Corporation.

The Research Investment Corporation declared an initial dividend of 75 cents a share on its common stock.

New York Transit.

The New York Transit Company declared the usual extra dividend of 10 cents and the regular quarterly of 40 cents a share.

Thew Shovel Company.

The Thew Shovel Company increased the quarterly rate on its common stock from 40 to 45 cents a share.

Dividend on Common Stock Passed.

The United Shirt Distributors have passed the dividend of 12½ cents a share due on common stock at this time.

Soviet-Danzig Trade.

The value of the Soviet trade turnover with Danzig during the fiscal year 1928-29 amounted to $2,135,000, as against $1,139,398 in the previous year, according to the Economic Review of the Soviet Union. Among the largest items in last year's trade were sales of lumber, $1,700,000; fish, $135,000, and oil seeds and seed cakes, $222,000.

ELECTRICAL LINES IMPROVE.

Better Demand for Spring Delivery in Equipment Market.

Accelerated demand for Spring delivery was felt for the first time in the markets for electrical equipment last week, according to Electrical World. Central stations are reported to be buying on a better scale and inquiries in the East and in the electric railway business in general were improved.

Chicago is feeling the lack of building activity and consequent lower employment rates, though business in the Middle West is generally reported favorable. On the West Coast most orders have been for miscellaneous equipment, which have been in good volume. New England reports an improved call for motors, control apparatus and heavy machinery.

DIVIDENDS DECLARED.

Company.	Rate.	Period.	Payable.	Hldrs. of Record.
Regular.
Am International	2%	SA	Oct. 1	......
Artloom Corp pf	$1.75	Q	Mar. 1	Feb. 21
Boston Elev Ry	$1.50	Q	Apr. 6	Mar. 10
Do 2d pf	$3.50	SA	Apr. 1	Mar. 10
Can G Elec Ltd pf	87½c	Q	Apr. 1	Mar. 15
Chestnut Hill R R	1½%	Q	Mar. 4	Feb. 20
Colgate Palm Peet	62½c	Q	Apr. 15	Mar. 20
Do pf	$1.50	Q	Apr. 1	Mar. 10
Columbia Pict cv pf	75c	Q	Mar. 1	Feb. 20
Equity Investors pf	75c	Q	Apr. 1	Mar. 15
Laclede Gas Light	$2.50	Q	Mar. 15	Mar. 1
Nat Container pf	50c	Q	Mar. 1	Feb. 15
N Y Transit	40c	Q	Apr. 15	Mar. 21
Pac Cottonseed Pd	37½c	Q	Mar. 1	Feb. 18
Prairie Pipe Line	75c	Q	Mar. 31	Feb. 28
Reichsbank	12%	..	......	......
Research Invest pf	75c	Q	Apr. 1	Mar. 15
Second Nat Invest $5 pf	$1.25	Q	Apr. 1	Mar. 10
Union Carbon & Carbide	65c	Q	Apr. 1	Feb. 28
Wheeler Metal Prod	50c	Q	Mar. 15	Mar. 5
Westinghse Air Br	50c	Q	Apr. 30	Mar. 31
Extra
N Y Transit	10c	..	Apr. 15	Mar. 21
Prairie Pipe Line	50c	..	Mar. 31	Feb. 28
Initial.
Equity Investors	50c	..	Mar. 1	Feb. 20
Federated Capital	20c	Q	Feb. 28	Feb. 15
Research Invest	75c	..	Mar. 1	Feb. 20
Increased.
Thew Shovel	45c	Q	Feb. 20	Jan. 28
Stock.
Insull Util Invest	1½%	Q	Apr. 15	Mar. 31
Omitted.
United Shirt Distrib	12½c	Q	Due	Feb. 15

TRANSACTIONS ON OUT-OF-TOWN EXCHANGES

BOSTON.

Sales.		High.	Low.	Last.
20	Am B Con pf	67	67	67
25	Am Contl	19½	19½	19½
341	Am T & T	231⅞	230⅞	231⅛
2,328	Am Founders	27½	26¾	26¾
20	Am Woolen	16	16	16
25	Do pf	37⅜	36⅞	37⅜
40	Amoskeag	16½	16½	16½
51	Anaconda	75¼	74¾	74¾
50	Andes Pet	40c	40c	40c
50	Bigelow-San	75	73½	73½
5	Bos E 1st pf	107½	107½	107½
50	Do 2d pf	92½	92½	92½
20	B & M, A st	79	79	79
15	Brown Co pf	84	84	84
10	Brown Dur	12	12	12
65	Cities Serv	32⅛	32⅛	32⅛
160	Cop Range	16¼	16	16¼
310	Crd Alliance	16½	15⅝	15⅝
10	CrownC&S Intl	11¼	11¼	11¼
50	East G & F	33¾	33¾	33¾
65	Do pf	94	93¼	94
21	Do pr pf	76½	76½	76½
550	East Mass Ry	8	8	8
102	Do adj	25½	25⅛	25½
1,080	Eastern S S	30	30	30
81	Edis El Ill	243	243	243
60	Empl Group	25	25	25
442	Eng P Serv	57⅜	56⅝	56⅞
35	European El	19	19	19
100	Gen Capital	51	51	51
736	Gen Elec	76½	74⅞	75½
469	Gillette Raz	93⅛	90⅞	91¾
50	Globe Under	16½	16½	16½
100	Hancock	2½	2	2
1,415	Int Carriers	17½	17¼	17⅜
20	Island Creek	40	40	40
276	Kreuger & T	30⅝	30⅛	30⅛
2,180	Mass Ut Aso	9¼	8¾	8¾
50	May-Old Co	30c	30c	30c
10	Mergenthlr	198½	108½	108½
30	Nash Mots	51⅝	51⅝	51⅝
40	Nat Service	5	5	5
65	N Eng Tel	145	144½	144¾
2,286	Do rts	8¼	8	8
15	NY NH & H	122	121½	122
42	No Butte	4⅛	4	4
563	Pac Mills	29½	29	29½
67	Penn RR	84	83⅝	83⅝
430	P Util Hlds	22¼	22	22
130	Quincy Min	25	24¾	24¾
62	ShawmtAsn	19½	19⅛	19½
5	St Mary's L	25½	25½	25½
60	So Surety	29½	29½	29½
10	Stone&Web	98⅝	98⅝	98⅝
20	Swift, new	33¼	33¼	33¼
135	Traveler Sh	10½	10	10½
40	Un Twist Dr	34	33	33
3,212	Unit Fndrs	43½	43¼	43½
178	Unit Fruit	96⅝	96⅛	96½
540	UnitShMach	65½	65	65⅝
1,115	US Elec Pwr	22	21	21
1,140	US&Ov'seas	17¾	17¼	17¾
20	US Smltg pf	52⅝	52⅝	52⅝
136	U S Steel	189	186¼	186¼
10	Utah Apex	2⅝	2⅝	2⅝
2,800	Utah Met&T	65c	55c	65c
60	UtEquits pf	80	78½	80
60	Venezuela-M	10	10	10
25	WalthmW pf	85	85	85
50	Westfd Mfg	23	22½	23
50	WhittseleyMf	1½	1½	1½

Total sales, 31,956 shares.

Bonds (Sales in $1,000 Units).

Sales.		High.	Low.	Last.
5	Amoskeag M 6s	82	82	82
2	Hood Rubber 7s	94	94	94
14	Int Hyd El 6s	100½	100	100½
1	Me Central 4½s	94¾	94½	94½
1	N E Tel 5s	100¼	100¼	100¼
1	West T & T 5s	100	100	100

Total bond sales, $24,000.

PHILADELPHIA.

Sales.		High.	Low.	Last.
710	Almar Strs	4½	4⅜	4½
200	Amer Stores	47	47	47
300	Am Sup C	31⅞	31	31¼
1,200	B & O rts, w i	1⅛	1	1
200	Brill Crp A	14	14	14
700	Budd	11⅞	11½	11½
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
200	Mitten B S	18	18	18
2,400	Nat P & L	41	40¼	40¼
1,400	Niag H Pw	16⅞	16⅜	16⅜
2,900	Penn	84¼	83⅝	84
6,300	Pennroad	16⅛	15¾	16
14	Ph Dal Prod	92	92	92
300	Phil El pf	99⅞	99⅞	99⅞
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

BALTIMORE

[illegible]

CINCINNATI.

[illegible]

SAN FRANCISCO.

[illegible]

PITTSBURGH.

[illegible]

MONTREAL.

[illegible]

CHICAGO.

Sales.		High.	Low.	Last.
750	Acme Steel	80½	80½	80½
300	Address Intl	32	31	32
50	Ainsw'th Mf	27	27	27
5,200	All Mtr Ind	19	17½	19
100	Am Col'type	28¼	28¼	28¼
100	Am C Pw, A	25¼	25⅛	25¼
790	Amer Svc	10	10	10
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
75	Marks Bros conv pf	12½	12½	12½
450	McGraw El	26	25	25
400	Mer&Mfg, A	21¾	21¾	21¾
27,100	Midwest Ut	34½	33⅝	33⅝
100	Do 6% pf	102	102	102
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

ST. LOUIS.

[illegible]

DETROIT.

[illegible]

CLEVELAND.

[illegible]

LOS ANGELES.

[illegible]

TORONTO.

[illegible]

Golden Center Mines, Inc.

Traded on New York Curb Exchange
Information on request

ABRAHAMS, HOFFER & CO.
Members New York Curb Exchange
122 Greenwich Street New York
HITchcock 6050

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY for SUCCESSFUL SECURITY SALESMEN
Connecticut Territory

A nationally known high grade investment house has an opening on its sales staff for several producing salesmen of proven ability for Connecticut territory. This connection is more than ordinarily attractive both from the standpoint of liberal commissions and future possibilities.

This firm underwrites and distributes millions of dollars of securities each year and advertises nationally. Its originations of bonds and preferred and common stocks are participated in by many of the outstanding investment houses both of this country and abroad.

If you have a successful sales record and are interested in making a permanent, profitable and congenial connection it will be to your advantage to arrange an interview through us. The salesmen of this organization have been advised of this advertisement.

Address "S. T."
RUDOLPH GUENTHER-RUSSELL LAW, INC.
Financial Advertising in All Its Branches
131 Cedar Street New York

Desires to affiliate with Prominent New York Stock Exchange Firm to organize and manage an "Over-the-Counter" Department Specializing in Bank Stocks

An experienced executive with many years' Wall Street experience, now a member of a New York Stock Exchange firm, will consider a new connection.

Besides his Over-the-Counter business, he controls Stock Exchange business and has unusually favorable connections with several of the outstanding financial institutions.

For appointment address
S. D. M.

FRANK KIERNAN & CO.
ADVERTISING :: 41 Maiden Lane, New York
THREE GENERATIONS OF ADVERTISING EXPERIENCE

Three Statisticians Wanted

Three men, preferably with college training and some experience in statistical work, will find an excellent berth in the organization of one of our clients. The company is located in Syracuse, New York. It is truly one of the best Investment Services in the country. Starting salary will be satisfactory and the opportunity for rapid advancement is unusual. Address by letter only, giving experience and salary required.

WALES ADVERTISING CO., INC.
The New York Central Building
New York City

CUSTOMERS' MEN

Our facilities will permit the addition of two experienced Customers' Men; one as Assistant Manager of our Uptown Office, and one for our Main Office.

Telephone Mr. Woods for appointment.

McDONNELL & CO.
Members New York Stock Exchange
120 Broadway New York

Five Salesmen

required by a new financial organization associated with companies doing an annual business in excess of $60,000,000.

Only men who have earned $6,000 a year and upward on commission basis will be considered.

Our plan provides every opportunity for building up a valuable clientele and a regularly repeating income for future years.

Telephone or write for an appointment.

H. V. NYE, 21st Floor, 2 LAFAYETTE ST.
Phone Worth 5320 Extension 59

Experienced Statistician and Bond Analyst

One of our clients, members of the New York Stock Exchange, desires the services of an experienced Statistician and Bond Analyst. It is essential that the applicant be thoroughly capable of handling all details such a position involves.

Replies, giving full details as to education, experience, salary, etc., should be addressed to
"S-10"
RUDOLPH GUENTHER – RUSSELL LAW, Inc.
Financial Advertising in All Its Branches
131 CEDAR STREET NEW YORK

GASOLINE TAXES UP 47 PER CENT IN 1929

Collections in Nation Are Put at $449,731,000 by the Petroleum Institute.

96-FOLD GAIN IN 8 YEARS

New York Sixth in List, but States Ahead of It Impose Larger Levies.

Gasoline taxes in the United States were 96 times greater in 1929 than in 1921, and for the year just ended they showed an increase of 47 per cent over 1928, according to estimates announced yesterday by the American Petroleum Institute, based upon reports from 35 States and estimates from 13 States. Total collections by States for 1929 amounted to $449,731,000, an increase of $144,537,000 over the total of $305,233,824 collected in 1928. In 1921 the gasoline taxes amounted to $4,700,000.

New York State, with a total of $20,000,000 from the 2-cent tax on each gallon of gasoline, is sixth in the list of States in the total amounts collected, but the five States ahead of New York all impose larger taxes. California, with 3 cents a gallon, leads the list with total collections of $37,599,713, which is an increase of more than $5,000,000 above the total collected in 1928. Ohio, with a 4-cent tax, ranks second with $36,000,000, a gain of approximately $10,000,000, and Pennsylvania, with a 4-cent levy, collected $35,038,619 and occupies third place in point of total tax collected. Pennsylvania also shows the largest increase over 1928, the 1929 tax being $13,140,555 above the previous year. Large increases, some nearly 100 per cent, are shown by Kansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Montana, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Texas and Washington. No State in 1929 showed a decrease from the collections in 1928.

"All States now impose a gasoline tax," says the institute, "the rate ranging from 2 to 6 cents a gallon, or 18 to 33 per cent of the retail price of the commodity. This is believed to be the largest direct sales tax imposed on any commodity.

"In most States the funds are used for highway construction and maintenance, although in several they are diverted to schools, State expenses and departments and other purposes. In each State the tax is collected by the oil companies and represents a guaranteed source of income to the State, the companies being held responsible, either under bond, liability of fine or imprisonment or both."

Figures for Two Years.

Following is a table of taxes collected by States in 1929 and 1928, except in the cases of New York and Massachusetts, which had no tax in 1928. Asterisks indicate estimates instead of actual reports.

State.	Tax rate per Gal.	Total tax 1929 (Institute).	Ttl. tax 1928 (U.S. Bur. of Pub. Rds.).
Alabama	4	$7,104,215	$6,497,551
Arizona	4	2,559,831	2,263,215
Arkansas	5	6,730,347	5,684,415
California	3	37,599,713	32,276,918
Colorado	4	5,795,410	4,260,393
Connecticut	2	*4,068,000	3,468,752
Delaware	3	977,231	834,784
Dist. of Columbia	2	1,437,760	1,271,586
Florida	6	12,207,375	11,225,245
Georgia	6	10,263,711	8,245,486
Idaho	4	2,205,485	2,005,908
Illinois	3	*15,000,000	885,351
Indiana	4	16,431,543	11,653,962
Iowa	3	10,068,831	9,199,546
Kansas	3	10,177,541	5,939,510
Kentucky	5	7,733,736	6,741,781
Louisiana	4	6,925,305	3,380,931
Maine	4	3,834,331	3,288,178
Maryland	4	*6,550,000	5,607,566
Massachusetts	2	*5,566,000	......
Michigan	3	23,558,374	20,200,021
Minnesota	3	8,898,048	6,211,788
Mississippi	5	6,805,754	5,564,711
Missouri	2	*7,865,000	7,100,013
Montana	5	*4,225,000	2,144,794
Nebraska	4	7,861,243	3,968,921
Nevada	4	712,507	575,069
New Hampshire	4	*2,414,000	1,928,602
New Jersey	2	9,996,104	8,446,930
New Mexico	5	2,421,882	1,836,900
New York	2	*20,000,000	......
North Carolina	5	11,983,262	10,177,614
North Dakota	3	3,150,284	2,202,679
Ohio	4	*36,000,000	25,818,985
Oklahoma	4	10,929,287	8,170,719
Oregon	4	*4,870,000	4,308,417
Pennsylvania	4	35,038,619	21,998,064
Rhode Island	2	1,571,811	1,182,328
South Carolina	6	6,978,419	5,539,243
South Dakota	4	4,930,590	4,008,031
Tennessee	5	*9,250,000	5,134,600
Texas	4	22,180,083	17,945,037
Utah	3½	1,979,212	1,664,247
Vermont	4	*1,730,000	1,118,882
Virginia	5	10,500,946	9,039,604
Washington	3	6,442,430	4,542,010
West Virginia	4	*5,000,000	4,456,274
Wisconsin	2	7,867,900	7,142,928
Wyoming	4	1,325,435	955,851
Totals		$449,731,159	$305,233,824

The rapid growth of the gasoline tax is shown in the following table prepared by the institute from official records:

1921	$4,700,000
1922	12,100,000
1923	36,800,000
1924	79,700,000
1925	146,100,000
1926	187,600,000
1927	251,800,000
1928	305,234,000
1929	449,731,000

MANY FREIGHT CAR ORDERS.

Numerous Inquiries Are Also Reported by Manufacturers.

The Northern Alberta Railways are inquiring for two locomotives, according to Railway Age. The Michigan Limestone and Chemical Company is inquiring for two switching locomotives, the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company for eighty gondola bodies, the Inland Lime and Stone Company for twenty-five to thirty gondolas, the Union Carbide Company for four gondolas and the Rock Island Refining Company for 200 tank cars.

The Rock Island has ordered fifty cabooses from its own shops, the General Chemical Company fifteen cars from the American Car and Foundry Company, the Calumet and Hecla Consolidated Copper Company twenty air-dump cars from the Koppel Industrial Car and Equipment Company, the Wagner Quarries Company thirty of the same cars from the same concern, the Pere Marquette twenty-five cabooses from the Magor Car Corporation, the International Railways of Central America twenty-five stock cars from the Gregg Company, the Great Northern one gasoline-electric car from the J. G. Brill Company and the Bangor & Aroostook twelve steel underframes from the Osgood-Bradley Car Company.

Manufacturing Stock Sales.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Feb. 15.—Sales of industrial stocks in Boston this week included:

73	Pepperell Mfg. Co.	102½
2	Ludlow Associates	152
6	Nashua Mfg. Co. pf	80
41	West Point Mfg. Co.	109@110
50	Amoskeag Co. pf	70
5	Plymouth Cordage Co.	93
60	United Elastic Corp.	33⅛@35
2	Towle Mfg. Co.	85
3	American Glue Co.	56
28	Bausch Machine Tool	6½
50	Do pf	18⅝
100	Griswoldville Mfg. Co. pf	12
20	West Point Mfg Co	110
94	Naumkeag Steam Cotton Co.	88
3	Lawton Mills	60
25	Exeter Mfg. Co.	60
89	Associated Textile Co.	35½@36½
30	Draper Corp.	63⅝
15	Greenfield Tap & Die Corp pf	101¼
33	Tyer Rubber Co.	15½

HAND-TO-MOUTH BUYING MARKS CHEMICAL LINES

Competition Is Active Among Producers of Solvents—Chromic Acid in Supply.

So far this year the spot market for chemicals has been quiet, with consumers restricting operations to actual needs, according to Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering. A lively competition among producers of solvents is reported, however.

Since the middle of January there has been a freer movement against contract holdings, after having been deferred during the first two weeks of the year. Contract shipments have since been running in a high volume.

No definite price trend is noticeable in the majority of chemicals. Contract figures were announced at the end of 1929 and will probably not be changed, it is said. The stability of prices, however, may depend largely on the state of business.

Industrial alcohol has been unsettled during the month. Chromic acid, on the other hand, was in good demand, but the expansion of this industry is said to have brought supply to a point at which it now exceeds demand. A recession occurred in the consumption of linseed oil. The index number for February for chemicals was 98.32, against 98.57 in January and 100.1 in February, 1929.

TARIFF CHANGES.

The following is a résumé of the developments in foreign tariff and trade regulations during the past week, prepared especially for THE TIMES by the local office of the Department of Commerce:

The German tariff revision bill now in effect provides higher import duties on grains, flour and live stock, as a result of the ratification of the new German-Swedish supplementary trade agreement. The new general duties on grains became applicable to all countries except Poland, whose products pay higher duties. Expressed in reichmarks per 100 kilos, the new duties are as follows: Wheat, 9.50; rye and barley, 9; oats, 8; malt, 18, and flour of all grains, except barley and oats, 18.50. The duty on flour of barley and oats continues at 18.75 reichmarks per 100 kilos.

Peru Creates Oil Monopoly.

The Peruvian Senate has passed a bill creating a monopoly on petroleum and its derivatives, according to a cablegram from Acting Commercial Attaché Smith, Lima. Another bill recently passed the Chamber of Deputies and provides for an increase of 1 per cent ad valorem in consular invoice fees. The present Peruvian consular invoice fee is 4 per cent ad valorem. The purpose of the increase is to create a fund for payment of interest on a new bond issue for public works, proposed by the bill.

In the Union of South Africa the regulations framed under the food, drugs and disinfectants act of 1929, which were published for criticism on July 5, last, have now been revised, and unless further alterations are made will come into force on April 1. Among other changes, the proposed regulations prohibit the importation or manufacture of flour subjected to any artificial bleaching process other than peroxide of nitrogen generated by electricity, and they require that imported flour be accompanied by a certificate emanating from the head of the Department of Agriculture or other responsible officers of the government of the exporting country.

In Belgium the importation and transit of wheat and wheat flour are made subject to a special authorization obtainable from the Belgian Minister of Agriculture and the Minister of Industry and Labor.

Increase Austrian Candy Tax.

An Austrian decree increases the general duty on sugar candy from 46 to 52 gold crowns per 100 kilos, on other beet and cane sugar from 28 to 34 gold crowns per 100 kilos, and on raw sugar imported under control for refining purposes from 22 to 25 gold crowns per 100 kilos.

The Cuban Secretary of Agriculture, Commerce and Labor has authorized the importation of sour lemons after careful examination by an inspector of the Cuban sanitary vegetation division, and provided that such shipments are accompanied, in addition to the usual consular and commercial invoices, by a certificate issued by an authorized agricultural official in the country of origin, stating that the lemons are free from the Mediterranean fruit fly and other plagues that might cause damage to agriculture.

Firms in New York and vicinity desiring detailed information regarding these changes in foreign tariffs may obtain them from the local office of the Department of Commerce, 734 Coustomhouse, New York.

PRICE WAR RELIEF SOUGHT.

Tobacco Group to Take Up Matter With Trade Commission.

In order to obtain relief from what its members hold to be unfair competition resulting from price-cutting on tobacco products by concerns which use them as sidelines or leaders, the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association of America, Inc., is preparing to take the matter up with the Federal Trade Commission, President Ben Gorlitzer of the association said yesterday. Attorneys for the association, he added, are now working on the complaint.

Mr. Gorlitzer also said that a bill, to be sponsored by Senator A. Spencer Feld, is now being drafted for presentation in the New York State Legislature which, as a law, would require all retailers of tobacco and tobacco products to take out licenses. Under this bill, which also is aimed at selling tobacco products as leaders or sidelines, retailers would be required to pay a license fee. The money raised in this way, Mr. Gorlitzer explained, would be used to pay the expenses of a commission charged with regulating unfair competition and seeing that the products sold are kept in a sanitary manner.

Fall River Cotton Stocks Quoted.

Special to The New York Times.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Feb. 15.—Local mill stocks are quoted as follows:

	Bid.	Asked.
Algonquin Printing	325	..
Barnard Mills	7	..
Border City	2½	3¼
Bourne Mills	10	12½
Charlton Mills	82	85
Cornell Mills	8	..
Davis Mills	12	..
Davol Mills	3¼	4½
Flint Mills	18	21
*King Philip Mills	108	111
Laurel Lake Mills pf	3	..
Lincoln Mills	11	12½
Luther Mfg. Co	97½	100
Merchants	32	33
Narragansett Mills	5	10
Parker common, par 100	5	..
Do pf	27	..
Pilgrim Mills	90	92
Shove Mills	3	5
Stevens Mills	82½	..
Sagamore Mills	83½	86½
Union Cotton	33	35

*Ex dividend.

WHEAT GOES LOWER WHILE EXPORTS LAG

Liquidation Is World-Wide, With Chicago, Liverpool and Winnipeg Prices Down.

CORN NEAR 1930 BOTTOMS

Trading in Oats Is Light, Cash Holders Letting Go—Rye Shows a Little Firmness.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—Wheat values continue to move downward, with Winnipeg and Liverpool selling at new lows on the crop. Scattered liquidation marked all markets today and the finish was well toward the bottom, with net losses of 1 to 1¼ cents here, while Winnipeg was 1¼ to 1⅝ cents lower. Liverpool lost 1⅛ to 1¾d, while Buenos Aires was off ½ to 1 cent.

Sentiment generally has become extremely bearish and the local element paid little attention to reports of buying of country run cash grain by the cooperatives, with the effect of the organization of the stabilization corporation wearing off. The persistent lack of demand for North American wheat is the main influence, and so far the takings by importing companies are below the smallest estimates of requirements. Sales of 700,000 bushels of wheat were reported in all positions today, largely Manitobas.

Fear of damage to the Winter wheat crop is not being followed with buying orders, and most support comes from holders of bids and from shorts. The trade is looking for a fair decrease in the visible supply in Monday's report, with possibly a reduction in stocks on ocean passage, due to small world's shipments. Letters from Argentine indicate a poorer yield than expected, but bullish news is attracting little attention anywhere.

Primary receipts were 776,000; a week ago 760,000; and a year ago 1,013,000. Shipments were 554,000 bushels; a week ago 642,000, and a year ago 626,000.

Corn sold within a fraction of the lowest price of the season, with the weakness in wheat, favorable weather and expectations of larger consignments the main influences. New losses were ½ to ¾ cent. A government report suggested a decrease of 3.6 per cent in farm reserves on Jan. 1, which indicated a reduction of 50,000,000 bushels or more in total holdings.

Primary receipts were 1,677,000 bushels, a week ago 1,136,000, and a year ago 1,170,000. Shipments were 498,000 bushels, a week ago 588,000, a year ago 508,000.

Cash holders sold oats and the close was ¼ to ½ cent lower, with trade light.

Rye was lower early but rallied later, with March leading. The finish was ⅝ cent higher to ⅜ cent lower.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

Chicago.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.	Last Year.
WHEAT.
March	1.15⅝	1.16¼	1.15¼	1.15⅝	1.16⅝	1.26¾
May	1.20	1.21	1.19⅝	1.20¼	1.21⅛	1.30⅞
July	1.21½	1.22	1.20⅞	1.21⅛	1.22⅛	1.33⅛
Sept.	1.23½	1.23⅞	1.22⅞	1.23⅛	1.24⅛	...
CORN.
March	.87¼	.87¼	.86⅝	.86⅞	.87⅜	.94⅜
May	.90⅝	.90⅞	.90⅛	.90⅝	.91⅛	.98⅝
July	.93⅛	.93⅛	.92⅛	.92½	.93⅛	1.01
Sept.	.93	.93	.92½	.92⅝	.93⅛	...
OATS.
March	.44½	.44¼	.43⅞	.44⅛	.44⅝	.50¼
May	.45⅞	.45⅞	.45⅜	.45⅝	.45⅞	.51⅞
July	.45⅛	.45⅛	.44⅝	.44⅞	.45⅛	.49⅝
Sept.	.43½	.43⅝	.43⅛	.43⅛	.43⅝	...
RYE.
March	.81⅞	.82⅜	.81¼	.82⅜	.82¼	1.11½
May	.82⅜	.82⅞	.82¼	.82⅝	.83¼	1.12¼
July	.82½	.83⅞	.82⅛	.83⅛	.83⅛	1.10⅜
Sept.	.84½	.85¼	.84½	.85⅛	.85⅜	...
PROVISIONS. Lard—
Mar.	11.02	11.05	11.02	11.02	11.05	11.92
May	11.22	11.25	11.20	11.20	11.25	12.25
July	11.45	11.47	11.42	11.42	11.47	12.55
Sept.	11.62	11.65	11.62	11.65	11.67	12.75
Dry Salted Bellies—
May	13.80	13.85	13.80	13.85	13.80	....

Minneapolis.

WHEAT.	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.	Last Year.
May	1.21	1.21⅜	1.20¼	1.20⅝	1.21⅜	1.24¼
July	1.22¼	1.22⅜	1.21⅞	1.22⅛	1.23⅛	1.26¼

Winnipeg.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.	Last Year.
WHEAT.
May	1.24	1.25½	1.23⅛	1.23⅞	1.24⅝	1.32⅜
July	1.26	1.27½	1.25⅜	1.25½	1.26¾	1.34¼
Oct.	1.25	1.26⅝	1.25	1.25¼	1.26	1.32¾
OATS.
May	.57	.58	.56⅝	.58	.58	.61¼
July	.55	.55⅝	.54½	.55½	.55⅝	.60¼
Oct.	.51½	.51½	.51	.51½	.52	.55⅝

Cash prices follow:

Chicago—Wheat, No. 2 hard, $1.18; No. 3 hard, $1.15. Corn, No. 3 yellow, 82@82½c; No. 4 mixed, 79@80c. Oats, No. 2 white, 44½@46c; No. 3 white, 44@44¾c.

Minneapolis—Wheat, No. 1 Northern, $1.22@1.25; Friday, $1.22@1.25.

Kansas City—Wheat, No. 2 hard, $1.11@1.20; Friday, $1.12@1.22.

SUGAR, COFFEE, COCOA.

Sugar.

Sugar futures on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange continued unsettled yesterday. Houses with trade connections were rather heavy sellers, and it was rumored that there was considerable liquidation for a tired long account. Prices closed at net losses of 1 to 3 points, with near positions showing the greater decline.

Price ranges were:

	High.	Low.	*Close.	Prev. Close.	Last Year.
March	1.70	1.66	1.66	1.68	1.95
May	1.79	1.76	1.76	1.78	2.05
July	1.89	1.85	1.85	1.88	2.12
September	1.97	1.94	1.94	1.96	2.15
October	2.00	2.00	*1.98	1.99	...
December	2.05	2.03	2.03	2.04	2.20
January	2.06	2.06	*2.05	2.06	2.18

*Nominal.

Coffee.

Price ranges were:

NO 7—CONTRACT "A."

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.	Last Year.
March	8.33	8.33	8.33	8.32	17.15
May	7.85	7.80	7.80	7.82	16.50
July	7.53	7.53	7.53	7.58	15.65
Sept.	7.40	7.38	7.38	7.40	14.90
Dec.	7.25	7.25	*7.22	7.25	14.40
Jan.	...	...	*7.23	7.25	14.38

SANTOS NO. 4—CONTRACT "D."

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.	Last Year.
March	..	..	*12.52	12.50	23.55
May	11.66	11.60	*11.60	11.58	22.64
July	11.07	11.03	11.03	11.05	21.83
Sept.	10.73	10.68	10.68	10.71	21.00
Dec.	10.45	10.42	10.42	10.45	20.35

MILD—CONTRACT "F."

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.
March	...	...	*16.05	15.08
May	...	...	*15.50	15.50
July	...	...	*15.00	15.00
September	...	...	*14.65	14.65
December	...	...	*14.35	14.40

*Nominal.

Cocoa.

Price ranges yesterday were:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.	Last Year.
February	...	...	*9.10	8.95	10.59
March	9.17	9.05	9.17	9.05	10.67
April	...	...	*9.35	9.23	10.81
May	9.53	9.47	9.52	9.41	10.98
June	...	...	*9.66	9.51	11.18
July	9.65	9.65	*9.78	9.65	11.28
September	10.02	9.90	10.02	9.98	11.56
October	9.90	9.90	*9.98	9.85	11.65
December	9.72	9.65	*9.78	9.65	11.45

*Nominal.

SEES COFFEE PROBLEM ADJUSTED IN BRAZIL

Schroder Banking Corporation Predicts Wide Benefit to the Nation at Large.

A thorough adjustment of the coffee situation in Brazil should have a lasting and beneficial effect on that country's economic progress, according to the J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation. The banking firm expresses confidence in the ability of Brazil to escape from her present difficulties arising out of the crash in coffee prices.

Discussing the subject of financial aid to coffee producers, the Schroder firm says in its monthly finance and trade commentary:

"With the help of the Banco do Brazil and of a short-term credit recently extended to the Sao Paulo Government by a combined London and New York banking group, Sao Paulo is in a position to move its entire 1929-30 crop by making advances to farmers at approximately $5 per bag. It is obvious that the facilities extended by the Banco do Brazil and by foreign bankers alone have not provided all the funds needed for financing this large crop, but it must be remembered that a large portion of the crop had already been financed by the Banco do Estado do Sao Paulo and by private banks prior to the outbreak of the crisis in October of last year, and that as coffee is exported, and thereby previous advances made on a higher price basis are repaid, the Banco do Estado and other banks will be in a position to make new advances which should enable the farmers to move their entire 1929-30 crop.

"As of July 1, 1930, the total coffee stocks stored in the interior of Brazil, exclusive of stocks in the ports, are estimated at around 18,000,000 bags, provided shipments during the next five months continue at the same rate as in the past. Of this unsold stock, practically all will be held in Sao Paulo. Brazil's immediate coffee problem is, therefore, almost exclusively Sao Paulo's problem."

RUBBER MARKET QUIET.

Crude rubber futures closed yesterday quiet, with a lower price tendency, on the Rubber Exchange of New York. Spot was unchanged at 15.90. Sales totaled 647½ long tons. Price ranges were:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.
Feb.	...	...	15.70b	15.70@15.80
March	15.90	15.80	15.90t	15.90t
April	...	...	16.00n	16.10n
May	16.30	16.20	16.20@16.30	16.30t
June	...	...	16.40n	16.50n
July	16.70	16.60	16.70t	16.70t
Aug.	...	...	16.90n	16.90n
Sept.	17.10	17.00	17.10t	17.10t
Oct.	...	...	17.30n	17.30n
Nov.	...	...	17.40n	17.40n
Dec.	17.50	17.50	17.50n	17.50@17.60
Jan.	...	...	17.70n	17.70n

b Bid. t Trading. n Nominal.

RAW SILK FUTURES LOWER.

Raw silk futures closed yesterday firm and lower on the National Raw Silk Exchange. Sales were 270 bales. Price ranges were:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.
February	4.57	4.57	4.55@57	4.55
March	4.52	4.51	4.51@53	4.53
April	...	...	4.48@51	4.48
May	4.49	4.49	4.49t	4.48
June	...	...	4.46@48	4.46
July	...	...	4.41@42	4.41
August	4.42	4.41	4.41@42	4.42
September	...	...	4.41@42	4.41

t Trading.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Yesterday's closing wholesale cash prices for commodities in the New York market, unless otherwise noted, were:

	Feb. 15, 1930.	Feb. 8, 1930.	Feb. 16, 1929.
FOODSTUFFS—
Wheat, No. 2 red	$1.35⅝	$1.37	$1.65⅞
Corn (new), No. 2 yel.	1.03¼	1.04⅜	1.14⅛
Rye, No. 2 white	.90⅞	.92½	1.23
Oats, No. 2 white	.56½	.56½	.63
Flour, std. Spg. pat.	6.45	6.40	6.60
Coffee, No. 7 Rio	.10¼	.10¼	.18½
Sugar, granulated	.0495	.05	.0490
Butter, cr. 92 score	.37	.38¼	.49¾
Eggs, fr. gath. 1sts.	.45@.45½	.41¾	.42
Lard, Mid. W.	11.35@11.45	11.40	12.30
Pork, mess	28.50	28.50	29.50
Beef, family	27.00@29.00	29.00	31.00
METALS—
Iron, 2X Phila	22.26	22.26	20.25
Steel billets, Pitts.	34.00	34.00	33.00
Lead	6.25	6.25	6.85
Copper	18.00	18.00	18.00
Zinc, E. St. L. dely	5.20	5.25	3.35
Tin	38.60	39.00	49.75
TEXTILES—
Cotton mid. upland	15.90	15.40	20.25
Printcloths (64-60)	.06½	.06½	.07½
Silk, crack doub. ext.	4.70	4.85	5.05
MISCELLANEOUS—
Rubber, spot	15.90	15.80	25.00
Hides, hvy. nat. steers	.14¼	.15	.14½
Gasoline	.133	.14	.17
Crude oil, Mid-Con., 33 to 33.9 grav.	1.30	1.30	1.11

Range of Prices, 1930.

	Highest		Lowest
Wheat	$1.46¼	Jan. 2	$1.33	Feb. 3
Corn	1.08¼	Jan. 13	1.00¼	Feb. 14
Rye	1.11⅜	Jan. 3	.90⅞	Feb. 15
Oats	.58	Jan. 2	.55½	Feb. 3
Flour	6.90	Jan. 2	6.10	Feb. 3
Coffee	.10¾	Jan. 17	.09¼	Jan. 2
Sugar	.0520	Jan. 8	.0495	Feb. 10
Butter	.38	Jan. 2	.34½	Jan. 8
Eggs	.46½	Jan. 4	.35½	Jan. 30
Lard	11.50	Feb. 14	10.45	Jan. 6
Pork	28.50	Jan. 20	26.50	Jan. 2
Beef	29.00	Jan. 2	27.00	Jan. 2
Steel billets	35.00	Jan. 2	34.00	Jan. 7
Iron	22.26	Jan. 2	22.26	Jan. 2
Lead	6.25	Jan. 2	6.25	Jan. 2
Copper	18.00	Jan. 2	18.00	Jan. 2
Zinc	5.45	Jan. 2	5.15	Jan. 21
Tin	39.75	Jan. 29	38.25	Jan. 22
Cotton	17.55	Jan. 13	15.20	Feb. 7
Printcloths	.07	Jan. 2	.06⅝	Feb. 10
Silk	4.85	Jan. 27	4.62½	Jan. 8
Rubber	15.70	Jan. 2	14.40	Jan. 10
Gasoline	.14	Jan. 2	.13.3	Feb. 11
Crude oil	1.30	Jan. 2	1.30	Jan. 2
Hides	.16½	Jan. 8	.14½	Feb. 14

COTTONSEED OIL.

	Sales.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.
Spot	...	...	...	8.90	8.75
Feb.	...	...	...	8.60	8.65
March	1,700	9.00	8.95	8.95	8.93
April	...	...	...	9.00	9.05
May	800	9.30	9.29	9.28	9.26
June	...	...	...	9.30	9.30
July	2,500	9.52	9.50	9.50	9.48
Aug.	...	...	...	9.57	9.55
Sept.	1,400	9.65	9.65	9.65	9.65

Total, 6,400 (includes switches, 3,200).

FLAXSEED.

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.	Last Year.
Minneapolis.
May	3.05⅝	3.05	3.05¼	3.06½	2.49½
July	3.05	[illegible]	3.04	3.05½	2.49⅛
Duluth.
May	3.05¼	3.03½	3.04	3.05¼	2.47⅝
July	3.05	3.04½	3.04½	3.05⅝	2.46½
Winnipeg.
May	2.55	2.54	2.55	2.56	2.07¼
July	...	...	2.53½	2.55	2.05½

LIVE STOCK AND MEATS.

These prices were reported yesterday in the New York and New Jersey markets by the United States Department of Agriculture. Weekly review for week ending Feb. 15:

CATTLE.

Steers scarce, strong to 25c higher. Good 1,273-lb. to 1,340-lb. Virginias, $12.85 to $13.10; medium steers, $11.50 to $12.50; cows slow, steady to 25c lower; few good, $8.50; bulk common to medium, $6.00 to $8.00; low cutters and cutters, $4.00 to $5.50; bulls steady to 25c lower; common and medium, $6.75 to $9.25.

VEALERS AND CALVES.

Vealers largely 50c lower; good to choice, $15.00 to $17.00; mediums, $11.00 to $14.50; medium Southerns, $12.00; cull and common, $9.00 to $10.50; calves, 25c to 50c lower; load common and medium Southerns, $7.75.

HOGS.

Hogs, 15c to 25c higher; 140-lb. to 200-lb. averages, $11.50; 468-lb. weights, $10.00; few packing sows, $8.25.

SHEEP.

Lambs slow, 50c to 75c lower; good to choice, $12.00 to $12.50; mediums, $10.25 to $11.50; common, $9.00 to $10.00; ewes steady, medium to good, $4.50 to $6.00.

COTTON ENDS IN GAIN DESPITE A SETBACK

Liverpool's Improvement Offset in Its Effect by Easier Grain and Stock Markets.

DRY GOODS BUYERS ACTIVE

Georgia Mills Report Rise in Operations, While Curtailment Is Less General.

Prices on the Cotton Exchange recovered to near the best figures of the week at one time yesterday, but the market quieted and ended 3 to 7 points higher than on Friday. Easier stock and grain markets tended to offset effects of a further improvement in Liverpool, and the low quotations were made in the final dealings. In the rise of almost a cent last week, outstanding interest, both long and short, was readjusted, with operators watching consuming quarters here and abroad.

Though cables from Egypt reported a proposal to increase duties on imported goods 8 to 15 per cent, which would affect Lancashire business, the Liverpool market gained ground for the third successive day. With foreign stocks of American cotton more than 400,000 bales under those at this time last year, and port and interior stocks in this country 500,000 bales larger, the recent narrow difference between New York and Liverpool tended to widen.

Compared with fewer than 100 points earlier in the week, March here closed 116 points under foreign quotations, a change of about $1 a bale.

While week-end dry goods reviews reflected a general indisposition of buyers to anticipate requirements far ahead, sufficient activity has developed to stiffen prices and take stocks from the market.

Reports from Georgia indicate increased mill activity and 10 to 15 per cent less curtailment in most centres. Census figures for the half year showed domestic mills used 133,000 bales less American cotton than last season, inclusive of linters.

Yesterday's quotations here follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous day.
March	15.85	15.89	[illegible]	15.81-82	15.76-77
May	16.12	16.16	16.07	16.08-09	16.03
July	16.30	16.32	16.25	16.25-28	16.20-21
October	16.40	16.51	16.42	16.42-44	16.39-40
December	16.62	16.67	16.60	16.61	15.54-56
January	16.65	16.65	16.61	16.61	16.57-58

The local market for spot cotton was steady at 5 points advance to 15.90c for middling upland; sales 50 bales.

Southern spot markets were: Galveston 16.10c, 10 points advance, sales 500 bales; New Orleans 15.48c, unchanged, sales 800 bales; Savannah 15.51c, 4 points advance, sales 300 bales; Augusta 15.88c, 7 points advance, sales 3 bales; Memphis 15.05c, 5 points advance, sales 2,502 bales; Houston 15.95c, 5 points advance, sales 4,072 bales; Little Rock 14.80c, 5 points advance, sales 485 bales; Dallas 15.30c, 5 points advance, sales 1,315 bales.

Liverpool cables: Spot cotton business fair at 9 points advance to 8.78d for middling. Sales 4,000 bales, American 2,000. Imports 22,000, American 16,000. Futures opened quiet and unchanged to 2 points advance. Closed steady at 4 points higher. Prices: March 8.49d, May 8.57d, July 8.65d, October 8.71d, December 8.76d, January 8.77d.

COTTON GOODS PRICES.

Below are given comparative quotations on standard constructions of gray printcloths, sheetings and pajama checks in this market, as supplied by the Textile Brokers' Association, Inc.:

	Feb. 8. Cents.	Feb. 15. Cents.
PRINTCLOTHS.
38½-in., 60-48s	5⅛	5⅛
38½-in., 64-60s	6⅛	6⅛
39-in., 68-72s	7⅛	7⅛
39-in., 80-80s	9	9 @ 9⅛
SHEETINGS.
36-in., 5-50s	5⅛@ 5⅜	5⅛@ 5⅜
37-in., 48-48s (4-yard)	7	7
40-in., 2-85s	9⅛@ 9⅜	9⅛@ 9⅜
PAJAMA CHECKS.
36-in., 64-60s	6⅞@ 7	6⅞
36½-in., 72-80s	7⅞@ 8	7⅞@ 7⅞

Comparisons of several other constructions actively traded in here in the gray follow:

	Feb. 8. Cents.	Feb. 15. Cents.
Drills, 37-in., 3.95-yard	7⅞	7½@ 7⅞
Filling sateen, 37½-in., 4.37s (East)	10⅝@10⅞	10½
Warp sateens, 38-in., 5-yard	10½@11	10½@11
Carded lawns, 36-in., 72-60s, 10-yard	7¼	7¼
Combed lawns, 40-in., 88-80s, 8.50-yard	10⅞@11⅛	10⅞@11⅛
Combed broadcloth, 37-in., 128-68s	14¼@15¼	14¼@15¼
Carded broadcloth, 37½-in., 80-60s	7⅝@ 7⅞	7⅝

PRICES FOR HIDES DECLINE.

Hide futures closed with generally lower prices on the New York Hide Exchange yesterday. Price ranges were:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.
February	...	...	13.75n	14.00n
March	...	...	13.85n	14.10n
April	...	...	14.00n	14.25n
May	14.26	14.26	14.15@14.30	14.40t
June	...	...	14.30n	14.60n
July	...	...	14.60n	14.80n
August	...	...	14.90n	15.00n
September	15.16	15.16	15.15@15.20	15.16b
October	...	...	15.30n	15.30n
November	...	...	15.45n	15.45n
December	15.60	15.60	15.55@15.65	15.65b
January	...	...	15.70n	15.80n

b Bid. t Trading. n Nominal.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Butter.

Receipts, 6,595 packages. A better feeling began to develop during the afternoon on Friday and the market opened firmer Saturday morning under which an advance of ½c was finally established.

Creamery, lb.,
Higher than extras 37½-.38
Ex., 92 sc. 37
Firsts, 88 to 91 score 33½-.36½
Seconds, 84 to 87 score 32-.33
Lower grd. 31½
Centralized:
90 score 36
89 score 35-.35½
88 score 33½-.34
84 to 87 score 31½-.33
Lower grd. 30-.31
Unsalted:
Higher than extras 40-.40½
Extras, 92 sc. 39½
Firsts, 88 to 91 score 36-.39
Seconds 34-.35
Lower grd. 32-.33
Held, 1sts. 32½-.35
Held, high score, .36-.36½
Held, ext. 35½
Held, 2ds. 29½-.32
Renovated 32-.32½
Ladles, cur. make:
Extras 30-.31
Firsts 27-.28
Packing stock:
No. 1 26
No. 2 25
Lower grd. 19-.24

Cheese.

Receipts, 185,851 pounds. Market firmer on fresh State flats. Cured cheese steady and unchanged.

State, flats:
Fresh 18-.18½
Held 23-.26
Wis., Young Amer.:
Held 22½-.24½
Fresh 21½-.22
Single daisies:
Fresh 21-.21¼
Held 21½-.24
Flats:
Held 24

Eggs.

Receipts, 14,944 cases. Continued firm market on fresh eggs through some relief from the shortage expected next week. Refrigerators steady.

FUTURES—On New York Mercantile Exchange Clearing House, 200 cases. February fresh firsts, 31½c; open 1,000 cases. April storage packed firsts, 28¾c; open 22 cars. May, 28¾c; open 9 cars. November refrigerator firsts, 31¾c; open 7 cars.

Mixed colors:
Closely sel. 48
Extras 47-.47½
Firsts 45-.45½
Extra 1sts. 46-.46½
Dirties No. 1 42
Checks 33½-.35
Whites:
*Nrby., hen., closely sel.; ex. 50-.51
Nrby. & West., av.; extras 49
Mediums 43-.45
Pacific Coast:
Extras 50½-.51
Do ext 1sts. 49-.50
Other Wn. & So. 45-.48
Medium 42½-.45
Browns:
Nrby. & Wn., hen., extras 49
Gath. ext. 48

*Extra fancy Jersey bought direct at 1c to 2½c over the top quotations.

REFRIGERATOR.

Mixed colors:
Firsts 33-.34
Seconds 32

Poultry.

LIVE.

There were 24 freight cars in or due Saturday and about 8 cars expected Sunday. Market cleared well Friday, with the exception of some poultry unloaded late, and the situation Saturday was entirely nominal. A little carried over express poultry worked out well at about the same prices.

EXPRESS.

Fowls:
Colored 27-.28
Leghorn 23-.25
Chickens:
Colored 24-.28
Leghorn 22-.24
Broilers:
Colored 25-.30
Leghorn 28-.33
Pullets:
Colored 32-.35
Leghorn 26-.28
Capons 35-.38
Slips 26-.28
Old roosters 19
Turkeys 25-.35
Ducks:
L. I. Spring 27
Nrby. 25-.26
Geese:
Nrby. 20-.22
Pigeons, pr. 40-.50
Squabs, pr. 55-.65
Jumbo, pr. 1.00-1.50
Guineas, pr. 60
Rabbits, lb. 21-.25

DRESSED.

Fresh killed poultry in light supply, quiet and unchanged, but tone weaker on fowls with some shading in price to clean up. Turkeys weak. Squabs in considerable accumulation. Frozen chickens dull except medium sizes. Frozen fowls neglected. Ducks and geese dull and weak.

Chickens:
Broilers:
Hothouse 20-.44
Wn., frozen 30-.40
Fryers, froz. 28-.32
Roasters:
Frozen 29-.37
Stags 18-.36
Fowls:
Wn., fresh 22-.31
Old cocks 18-.25
Capons:
Nrby. 30-.47
Wn. 30-.45
Turkeys:
Wn., toms 33-.41
Wn., hens 32-.39
Wn., mediums, .27-.32
S. Wn., toms 33-.39
S. Wn., hens 32-.37
S. Wn., mediums, .27-.30
Wn. and Sn., old toms 30-.33
Wn. and Sn., old hens 30-.35
Ducks:
L. I., frozen 23-.25
Wn., fresh 14-.20
Geese:
Wn., fresh 14-.20
Squabs:
Ungraded, lb. 40-.50
Pigeons:
Doz. 75-1.00
Guineas:
Old fresh, pr. 50-1.00
Frozen, pr. 1.00-2.00

RABBITS.

Cottontails:
Large, pr. 15-.20
Small, pr. 10-.12
Snowshoes 25-.35
Jacks 40-.55
Hares, white, pr., .50-.85
Tame lb. 22-.28

Dried Fruit.

Apples:
State, boxes, lb. 12-.15
Waste, lb. 02-.02½
Chops, lb. 03¾-.06
Waste, bag 01¾-.02
.41-.43
Wash., boxes 13-.15
Raspberries:
State, boxes, lb., .41-.43

Fresh Fruit.

Apples firm on good stock. Cranberries slow. Strawberries firm and higher. Chilean fruits quiet.

Apples:
En. and Sn., bsk., 1.00-3.00
Sn. and En., bbl., 3.00-10.50
En., box and carton 1.25-3.50
Wn., box 1.75-4.00
Sel., Gold., Del., 2.50-6.50
Avocado Pears:
Cal., flat crt., 6.00-10.00
Cranberries:
All-sect., ½ bbl., 2.00-5.00
Honeydew Melons:
Chile, crt. 2.50-3.50
Grapefruit:
P. R., box 2.38-5.38
Fla., box 2.00-6.50
Grapes:
Cal., all var., keg, 2.55
King Oranges:
Fla., ½ box 1.00-2.90
Kumquats:
Fla., qt. 10-.13
Lemons:
Cal., box 4.50-7.00
Sicily, box 3.62-5.00
Limes:
Repkd., std., small crt. 1.25-1.50
Dom., bbl., 13.00-14.00
Nectarines:
Chile, box 5.25-5.50
Oranges:
P. R., box 2.25-4.00
Cal., box 3.50-6.50
Fla., box 2.00-7.00
Pears:
Wn., box 2.00-4.35
En., bu. 1.50-3.00
En., bbl. 5.50-6.50
Pineapples:
Cu., crt. 2.10-3.00
P. R., crt. 2.25-5.00
Peaches:
Chile, box 5.50-6.00
Plums:
Chile, box 3.00-4.00
Strawberries:
Fla., qt. 50-.63
Fla., pt. 25-.30
Tangerines:
Fla., ½ box, 1.00-2.90
Temple oranges:
Fla., ½ box, 1.00-2.90

Vegetables.

Potatoes easy. Onions steady to firm. Beans firm under an active demand. State cabbage very firm. Cukes active. Lettuce worked out quickly. Peas sold well. Peppers in fairly good demand. Spinach sharply lower. Tomatoes easier, with prices tending lower.

Anise:
Cal., crt. 3.50-4.00
Artichokes:
Cal., box 4.00-5.00
Cal., ½ bx. 2.00-2.50
State and N. J., bsk. 2.50-3.00
Va., Jer., bag 3.00
Asparagus:
Cal., doz. bchs., 12.00-30.00
Beans:
Fla., bsk. 1.00-7.50
Beets:
State, bag 2.50-2.75
Texas, bsk. 2.25-2.50
N. J., bsk. 75-.85
Texas, crt. 3.75-4.00
Broccoli:
Texas, bsk. 1.50-2.50
Texas, crt. 3.00-5.00
Cal., crt. 3.00-3.50
Brussels sprouts:
L. I., qt. 12-.30
Cal., drum 6.00-9.00
Cabbage:
Flat., wht., bsk., 2.50-3.50
Fla., red bsk., 3.00-3.25
Texas, crt. 4.00-5.25
State, bulk, ton, 75.00-80.00
Holland, wht., 100 lbs. 3.50-3.75
State, wht., bag, 3.50-3.75
Cal., wht., crt., 4.00-5.25
Cardoni:
Cal., box 3.00-3.50
Carrots:
Texas, crt. 1.00-2.00
Texas, bsk. 1.25
Cal., crt. 1.50-3.25
State, bag 1.75-1.90
State, bsk. 1.00-1.40
N. J., bsk. 1.00-1.40
Cauliflower:
Cal., crt. 50-2.00
Celery:
Hearts, doz., bchs. 1.00-2.00
Nrby., doz., bchs. 50-1.25
Fla., crt. 2.00-3.25
Cal., crt. 5.00-5.50
Celery Knobs:
N. J., bsk. 1.00-1.75
Cal., crt. 3.25-3.50
Collard greens:
Va., bbl. 2.25-2.50
Cukes:
Fla., bsk. 3.50-6.00
Dandelion greens:
Texas, bsk. 2.00
Eggplants:
Cu., crt. 50-2.50
I. of P., crt. 50-2.50
Endive:
Belgian, lb. 10-.20
Escarol:
Fla., bsk. 3.25
Garlic:
Cal., 100 lbs., 8.00-9.50
Mex., 100 lbs., 10.00-11.00
Horseradish:
Mo., bbl. 6.50-7.00
Germ., csk. 2.00-3.00
Kale:
Va., bbl. 1.25-1.50
Leeks:
Nrby., 100 bchs. 3.00-4.00
Lettuce:
Fla., bsk. 4.25-4.50
Texas, bsk. 3.00-3.50
Wn., iceberg, crt. 3.00-4.00
Lima Beans:
Cu., bsk. 2.50-5.00
Okra:
Cu., bsk. or crt. 2.00-4.50
Onions:
En., yel., 100 lbs. 1.75-2.25
Wn., yel., 100 lbs. 2.00-2.50
Wn., yel., 50 lbs. 85-1.25
Wn., white, 50 lbs. 1.25-3.00
Span., crt. 1.75-2.25
Colo. Span., 50 lbs. 1.75-2.00
Spanish, ½ case 2.35-2.50
Parsley:
Tex., bsk. 75-3.00
Cal., drum 5.00-5.25
Cal., crt. 3.00-5.00
Parsnips:
Nrby., bsk. 1.50-2.00
Peas:
Mex., crt. 4.25-5.00
Fla., bsk. 2.50-2.75
Peppers:
Fla., crt. 2.25-6.50
Virgin Isle, crt. 2.00-2.25
Cal., ½ crt. 3.00
Cu., crt. 1.50-5.00
I. of P., crt., 1.00-4.00
Shallots:
N. J., dry, qt., .15-.18
La., bbl. 10.00
Texas, crt. 5.50-6.00
Sour grass:
Fla., bsk. 1.50
Spinach:
Texas, bsk. 75-1.13
Cal., crt. 1.00-1.25
Squash:
Fla., bsk. or crt. 2.50-5.00
Nrby., Hubbard, bbl. 2.50-3.00
Cu., crt. 2.50-4.00
P. R., crt. 2.50-4.00
Tomatoes:
Repkd., crt. 3.00-4.25
Repkd., cart. 2.50
Nassau, crt. 1.00-5.50
Mex., lug 2.60-5.25
Fla., ½ crt. 1.00-2.00
Cu., crt. 1.13-3.00
Fla., crt. 1.75-6.00
Turnips:
State and N. J., wht., bsk. 75-1.75
Can., rut., bag 1.50-1.75
Watercress:
100 bchs. 1.50-3.00

Potatoes.

Idaho, sack 1.00-5.00
Idaho, carton 75-.85
Bermuda, bbl., 7.00-13.00
Fla., crt. 2.00-2.50
Cu., crt. 1.75-3.25
Sweets:
Del., bsk. 75-1.63
Md., bsk. 75-1.63
Va., bsk. 1.25
N. J., bsk. 65-2.65
Me., 180 lbs. 2.35-5.35
Me., 150 lbs. 2.00-4.35
State, 150 lbs. 3.75-3.90
State, 180 lbs. 4.40-4.60
Canada, 90 lbs., 3.00-3.15
150 lbs. 5.00-5.25
L. I., 150 lbs. 1.50-5.00
L. I., 180 lbs. 5.75-6.25
L. I., 100 lbs. 2.25
Esthonia, sack 2.30
Idaho, box 3.50-4.00

Dried Peas and Beans.

Market as a whole easy under a quiet demand and prices are unchanged.

Beans, domestic:
Marrow 9.00-10.50
Pea 7.75
Red kidney, 9.50-9.75
White kidney, 10.25-10.50
Lima 11.75-12.00
Beans, imported:
Marrow 6.50-10.50
Pea:
Europe 6.75-7.00
Ostenashi 7.25-7.50
Chile 9.00-9.50
Red kidney 9.00-9.25
White kidney, 10.00-10.50
Lentils:
Chile 7.00-11.00
Europe 7.25-10.00
Fava, Holland, 6.25-6.50
Nagazura, Japan, 7.00-7.25
Aracaunos, Chile, 7.25-7.50
Mandoloni, Italy, 7.00-7.50
Peas, domestic:
Scotch 6.75-7.00
Blackeye 8.75
Yellow, split, 6.00-6.25
Green, split, 6.25-6.50
Peas, imported:
Green, Japan, 5.50-5.75
Chick., Mex., 5.50-9.00

Hothouse.

Mushrooms:
N. J., bsk. 25-1.25
Asparagus:
Wn., doz., bchs., 1.50-3.00
Beet Tops:
Mass., box 1.25-1.50
Tomatoes:
Pa., lb. 10-.50
Cukes:
Wn., doz. 1.25-2.25
Radishes:
Mass., box 3.25-3.50
N. J., 100 bchs., 3.00-7.00
Rhubarb:
Mass., bch. 75
Mich., crt. 50-1.15
State, carton 1.10

Other Products.

HOPS—State, 1929, 15@20c; Pacific Coast, 1929, choice, 17@18c; common to prime, 14@16c; common to prime, 7@11c; older growths, ...

HAY AND STRAW—No. 3 and poorer to No. 1, $13@26; rye straw, $17.

NEW INCORPORATIONS

NEW YORK CHARTERS.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 15.—Forty new corporations, with an aggregate capitalization of $561,000, were chartered today. They include:

Manhattan.

B. Moll, women's apparel—Gross & O'Brien, 11 West 42d St.
Freud Laboratory, chemical laboratories—A. A. Friedlander, 180 Broadway ... 200 shs Marbelle Corp., realty—Bailey & Bailey, 270 Madison Av.
Meriet Dress Corp., women's apparel—L. Bierfass, 551 5th Av. ... 100 shs
Jackson Electric Corp., electrical appliances—H. Sukloff, 2 Lafayette St.
Joram Realty Co.—S. J. Corrao, 261 Broadway ... 200 shs
Independent Typesetting Co., bookbinding—Openheimer, Kaufman, Hailbium & Kupfer, 60 Wall St. ... 10 shs
Pal Publishing Corp., radio publishing—Weil & Fenster, 291 Broadway
H. S. R. Dress Co., women's apparel—R. S. Levins, 320 5th Av.
Spingler Food Shoppe, restaurant—Schmer & Wechsler, 11 West 42d St.
Franklin Realty Corp.—H. L. Falk, 9 Park Place ... 200 shs
Shotland-Levine, apparel—W. Sachs, 44 West 18th St.
Wholesale Veal Centre, realty—J. E. Rose, 435 Rockaway Av., Brooklyn
Dur-Ever Manufacturing Co., paints—Adelman & Sielman, 1,775 Broadway
Goldgur Holding Corp., realty—M. C. Helfman, 174 2d Av.
Wellington Woolen Co.—D. Wolfson, 2,091 7th Av.
Spicy Delicatessen and Restaurant—J. W. Umans, 277 Broadway
Carl Fischer Musical Instrument Co.—H. Uttal, 521 5th Av. ... 100 shs
Rosalea Realty Corp.—J. Goldberg, 51 Chambers St.
Productive Assets Corp., securities—J. Natoli, 2 Stone St.
Woodside Farms, dairy products—G. Menity, 170 Broadway

A CORRECTION.

The record of the incorporation of Simon Gulack, printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES Feb. 14, gave the capital incorrectly as $5,000. The correct figure was $50,000.

Bronx.

Hartley Plumbing and Heating Corp.—N. B. Schenkman, 505 Claremont Parkway 900 Ogden Av. Realty Corp.—H. H. Malkin, 645 East Tremont Av.
Louseid Realty Corp.—Arnstein & Levine, 2,118 3d Av.

Brooklyn.

Mab Holding Corp., securities—W. A. Miller, 185 Montague St. ... 100 shs
Nanman Building Corp., realty—D. Epstein, 299 Broadway, Manhattan
Lispreier Holding Corp., realty—J. L. Paradise, 10 East 40th St., Manhattan ... 100 shs
Maxfan Realty Corp.—D. Blitzer, 225 Broadway, Manhattan
Leelind Realty Corp.—G. Abrams, 350 Stone Av. ... 150 shs
Fort Green Garage—J. Goodman, 50 Court St.
Anenberg Realty Co.—H. Anenberg, 290 Broadway, Manhattan
Masures, florist—Wingate & Cullen, 142 Pierrepont St. ... 100 shs
Gerard Plumbing and Heating Corp.—V. J. Bensi, 215 Union Av.
Harkness Brokerage Corp., insurance—M. Hochmann, 2 Lafayette St., Manhattan

Queens.

Bayside Radio Supply Co.—Hull & Eberhardt, 9 Park Place, Manhattan
Bongiovanno & Co., marble—J. B. Lamanna, 182 Central Av., Brooklyn

Other Localities.

Watertown—George H. Hyde, plumbing—G. H. Cobb, Watertown
Mount Vernon—Highbrook Realty Corp.—A. J. Henning, Mount Vernon
Binghamton—Broome County Golden Guernsey Milk Co., dairy products—J. Marcy Jr., Binghamton

NEW JERSEY CHARTERS.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 15.—These charters were filed today:

Benjamin & Johnes, Jersey City, manufacture corsets, waists, &c.—Corporation Trust Company, Jersey City ... 50,000 shs com
J. C. Holding Co., Newark, realty—A. Claps, Newark ... $50,000
The Blue Line Motor Transportation Co., Trenton—George Pellettieri, Trenton ... 100 shs com
Ward's, Inc., Newark, clothing—David B. & Moe Silver, Newark ... 125,000
Sco-Co Realty Co., Newark—Rothschild & Rothschild, Newark ... 13 shs com
Atlantic Fisheries, Inc., Newark, seafood—Stein, McGlynn & Hannock, Newark ... 2,500 shs com
Roede Real Estate and Construction Co., Seabright—Marx, Goldberg & Kahn, New York ... 2,500 shs com
Hingher Furniture Co., New Brunswick—Morris Spritzer, New Brunswick ... 100 shs com
Investors Syndicate, Newark, realty—Abraham H. Carchman, Newark ... 125,000
Cliffwood Realty and Construction Co., Inc., Cliffside Park—Florence M. North-Allard, Cliffside Park ... 100,000
Columbus Auditorium, Inc., Hackensack, realty—Winne & Banta, Hackensack ... 125,000
Majestic Tire Co., Inc., New Brunswick, tires—Herman H. Anekstein, New Brunswick ... 50,000
King Boat Works, Inc., Highlands, boat builders—George E. Jenkinson Jr., Highlands ... $50,000 pf, 5,000 shs com
Colonial Painting and Decorating Co., Newark—Nathan Erhlich, Newark ... 10,000
Gratale Brothers, Inc., Hoboken, realty—John J. Fallon Jr., Hoboken ... 50,000
Welcon Industries, Inc., North Arlington, manufacturing electrical appliances—United States Corporation Company, New York City ... 2,000 shs com
Cape May Chemical Co., Ocean City, chemists—Richards & Loveland, Ocean City ... 20,000
Aetna Collection Agency, Inc., Jersey City—Nathan Gordon, Jersey City ... 10,000
Amico Management Corp., Jersey City, management engineers—United States Corporation Company, New York City ... 100,000
Capitol Storage Corp., Newark, warehousing—David B. & Moe Silver, Newark ... 125,000
N. Y. Fruit and Vegetable Market, Newark—Ralph H. Jacobson, Newark ... 1,000 shs com

DELAWARE CHARTERS.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, Del., Feb. 15.—These charters were filed today:

Korhs Custard Stores, Inc., Wilmington, Del., manufacture ice cream, ices, soft drinks, &c.—Corporation Trust Company of America ... $1,000,000, 200,000 shs com
Superior Felt and Bedding Co., Wilmington, Del.—Corp. Service Co. ... 50,000 shs com
Jennings Associates, Inc., Wilmington, Del., general advertising—Corporation Guarantee and Trust Company ... $25,000, 3,000 shs com
The Couch Co., Wilmington, Del., own and hold property—Corp. Registry Co. ... 20,000 shs com
Longworth Royalties, Inc., New York City, minerals of all kinds—Prentice Hall, Inc., of Delaware, Dover, Del. ... $10,000, 2,000 shs com
Simplex Burner Co., Washington, D. C., oil burners—Capital Trust Company of Delaware ... $100,000
Consortium Products, Inc., Wilmington, Del., merchandise of all kinds—Franklin L. Mettler, Wilmington, Del. ... 80,000
Mayflower Hotels Management Corp., New York City—Prentice Hall, Inc., of Delaware, Dover, Del. ... 50,000
Belmont Engineering Co., Inc., Philadelphia, install heating systems, &c.—American Guaranty and Trust Company ... 25,000
Universal Sound and Television, Inc., Dover, Del., deal in sound recording devices of all kinds—United States Corporation Company ... 2,000 shs com

CORPORATE CHANGES

New York.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 15.—These notices of corporate changes were filed today:

CAPITAL INCREASES.

John-Nassau Co., Manhattan, $10,000 to $100,000.

O. K. Tool Holder Co., Manhattan, 9,000 to 10,000 shares, of which 4,000 are preferred, $100 each; 6,000 common, no par.

Milton H. Northrup Co., Syracuse, $25,000 to $50,000.

CAPITAL REDUCTION.

University Society, Yonkers, $120,000 to $60,000.

DESIGNATIONS.

Secretary of State is named representative in each instance:

Everett Waddey Co., Va., printing, $250,000.

Monsch Safety Window Sales Corp., Del., $500,000.

Minsch, Penn & Co., Del., securities, $50,000.

L-T-L Special Service Co., Ill., printing, $50,000.

Lederle Laboratories, Del., chemicals, 76,000 shares, no par.

Steel Frame House Co., Wis., non-intoxicating beverages, $24,000.

National Brands, Del., soap products, 450,000 shares, no par.

NAME CHANGES.

Lederle Antitoxin Laboratories, Manhattan, to Lyndell Corp.

Martindale's American Law Directory, Manhattan, to Martindale-Hubbell Law Directory.

Rubinstein & Goldfarb, Manhattan, to Neuscholtz Products.

Milton H. Northrup Co., Syracuse, to Northrup & Willenback, Syracuse.

Independent Aid Association, Syracuse, to Salt City Credit Corp.

DISSOLUTIONS.

Finland Steamship Co., Manhattan.
Empire State Credit Corp., Manhattan.
Goodchester Corp., Manhattan.
C. D. Reynolds Co., Alfred.
Monroe Watch Case Co., Manhattan.
Valetta Cheese Co., Monroe.
Hos Schlitz Brewing Co., Wisconsin.
Genesee Hard Candy Co., Rochester.
Milton H. Northrup Co., Syracuse.

Delaware.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, Del., Feb. 15.—These notices of corporate changes were filed today:

CAPITAL INCREASES.

The Canton Tank Car Co., Cleveland Ohio, 3,000 to 40,000 shares.

Waterways and Highways, Inc., New Castle, Del., 6,000 to 40,000 shares, no par.

CHANGE IN NAME.

Chicago, Green Bay, Duluth, Port Huron and Lake Erie Steamship Co. to Standard Steamship Co., Dover, Del.

LEGAL NOTICE.

IN THE COURT OF CHANCERY OF THE State of Delaware in and for New Castle County—ROBERT PENINGTON, Complainant, vs. COMMONWEALTH HOTEL CONSTRUCTION CORPORATION, a corporation of the State of Delaware, Defendant.—Receivership Cause.—To

(1) The holders of the preferred stock of Commonwealth Hotel Construction Corporation who have paid in full for their shares.

(2) The holders of the common stock of Commonwealth Hotel Construction Corporation who have paid in full for their shares.

(3) Persons who have subscribed for shares of preferred stock but have paid only part of their subscriptions.

(4) Persons who have subscribed for shares of common stock but have paid only part of their subscriptions.

(5) All other persons if any there be claiming the right to share in the distribution of the funds of the said Commonwealth Hotel Construction Corporation remaining after the payment of debts, expenses, etc.:

Pursuant to an order of the Chancellor of the State of Delaware made in the above entitled cause on the 31st day of January, 1930, you are hereby notified—

(a) That to enable you to share in the distribution of the funds of the said Commonwealth Hotel Construction Corporation, remaining after the payment of all its debts and the expenses of the receivership cause of said corporation, it is necessary for you to file with Robert H. Richards, Receiver of said Commonwealth Hotel Construction Corporation, at his office at No. 4,060 du Pont Building, Wilmington, Delaware, a duly verified proof of your claim for the purpose of establishing your right to share in such distribution, which proof must be so filed on or before the third day of May 1930, and if you should fail to so file your proof of claim on or before said date you will be barred and forever foreclosed from filing any proof of claim in the said receivership cause of the said Commonwealth Hotel Construction Corporation. In filing such proof of claim you may use, but are not required to use, the form of proof of claim accompanying this notice, which form was approved by the Chancellor in his said order.

(b) That on the fourteenth day of May, 1930, at the Court Room of the Court of Chancery in the County Court House at Wilmington, Delaware, the said Chancellor will hear the petition of the said Receiver and a petition of intervention heretofore filed by a Stockholders Protective Committee of Preferred and Common stock of said Commonwealth Hotel Construction Corporation praying a determination of the relative rights of all persons claiming the right to share in the distribution of the funds of the said Commonwealth Hotel Construction Corporation remaining after the payment of all debts and expenses required to be paid therefrom, at which time and place the Chancellor will hear all persons claiming the right to share in such distribution of said fund and all evidence offered or desired to be offered by them, and their respective solicitors that may appear for them, and will determine the relative rights of all such claimants to share in such distribution, and all such claimants desiring to be heard must appear or be represented at said time and place.

This notice is sent to you pursuant to the above mentioned order of Honorable Josiah O. Wolcott, Chancellor of the State of Delaware, and you are warned that your failure to act in accordance therewith will be at your peril.

ROBERT H. RICHARDS,
Receiver of Commonwealth Hotel Construction Corporation.

Dated at Wilmington Delaware, February 1, 1930.

MORE HIGH-GRADE business opportunities are published in The New York Times than in any other New York newspaper. Bank and business references required from each advertiser.—Advt.

DIVIDENDS.

83RD DIVIDEND
MONARCH ROYALTY CORP.
298 FIFTH AVENUE
NEW YORK

The regular monthly dividend of 12½ cents on its Class "A" Preferred and 1½% on its Dollar Par Preferred has been declared payable March 10th, 1930, to shareholders of record February 28th, 1930. This is the 83rd CONSECUTIVE, Cash, dividend, paid by this organization—a total of over 106½% in cash dividend disbursements to March 10, 1930.

A. K. RILEY, Secretary

NEGOCIACION MINERA, Santa Maria de la Paz y Anexas, S. A., has declared a dividend of three pesos Mexican gold, payable on and after February 15, 1930, against COUPON 235 attached to the shares of the new issue. This dividend is payable on presentation of the coupon in Mexican Gold at the office of the Company, No. 70 Avenida Uruguay, Mexico City, or through LAWRENCE TURNURE & CO., 64 WALL STREET, NEW YORK CITY, in U. S. currency at the rate of exchange prevailing on the day of presentation of the coupon.
February 15, 1930

IMPERIAL ROYALTIES COMPANY
Will pay its usual monthly dividend of 1½% on its Preferred shares on February 28th, to shareholders of record February 25th. This is dividend No. 113. The Company will also pay its usual monthly dividend of 18 cents per share on its Class A Preferred shares on February 28th, to shareholders of record February 25th.
IMPERIAL ROYALTIES COMPANY
(Established April 15, 1920)
551 Fifth Avenue
New York, N. Y.

FINANCIAL NOTICE.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS OF GUARDIAN NATIONAL BANK OF NEW YORK.

The Guardian National Bank of New York, located at 1,600 Sheepshead Bay Road, Brooklyn, in the State of New York, is closing its affairs. All note holders and other creditors of the association are therefore hereby notified to present the notes and other claims for payment.
Dated Jan. 18, 1930. W. C. BETTS, Cashier.

NOTICE TO DEPOSITORS OF GUARDIAN NATIONAL BANK OF NEW YORK.

The three former offices of Guardian National Bank at Sheepshead Bay, Brighton Beach and Canarsie are now branch offices of Brooklyn Trust Company.

There has been no interruption to the Banking and Safe Deposit services at these offices, and customers now have the advantage of transacting their business with the oldest trust company in Brooklyn, having resources of $160,000,000.

GEORGE V. McLAUGHLIN, Pres.
BROOKLYN TRUST COMPANY.
Dated January 21, 1930.

WHAT IS GOING ON THIS WEEK

Today.

Society for Ethical Culture, 2 West Sixty-fourth Street, "The Greatness of Abraham Lincoln: In What Did It Consist?" Dr. Felix Adler, 11 A. M.; "Savonarola, the Jeremiah of the Renaissance," Alfred W. Martin, 8 P. M.

Metropolitan Museum of Art, Eighty-second Street and Fifth Avenue, "Cathedral Builders of Rheims Where Joan Crowned Her King (Songs by Teresa Marie Bergamo)," Anna Curtis Chandler, 1:45 and 2:45 P. M.; Gallery Talk by Huger Elliott, 2 P. M.; "Thomas Chippendale," Elise P. Carey, Study-Hour, "Practical Workers and People of Various Interests," D. S. O'Meara, 3 P. M.; "The Charm of the French Cathedral," Clarence Ward, 4 P. M.

Dedication of the Young Israel Synagogue new building, 229 East Broadway, 2:30 P. M. Speakers: Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Dr. Herbert S. Goldstein, Dr. David S. Stern.

Annual memorial service of the Jewish Theatrical Guild of America, Temple Emanu-El, Fifth Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street, 2:30 P. M. Address by George Jessel. Rev. Dr. Nathan Krass will officiate.

Socialist Labor Party, Vasa Castle Hall, 149th Street and Walton Avenue, 3 P. M. "Children of the Working Class," Irving Lipsey.

Fortieth annual church service of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution in the State of New York in commemoration of the birth of George Washington, at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth Avenue and Ninetieth Street, 4:30 P. M.

Labor Temple, 242 East Fourteenth Street, "Lewis Mumford," G. F. Beck, 5 P. M.; "White Supremacy—Blessing or Curse," Dr. Charles Webber, 8 P. M.; "The Religion of Prosperity," Dr. Harry F. Ward, 8:30 P. M.

Meeting of Italian-American Artists' Club, 147 West Seventy-second Street, 5 P. M.

Fifteenth anniversary dinner of the American Jewish Congress, Hotel Roosevelt, 7 P. M. Speakers: Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Rev. John Haynes Holmes, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Bernard S. Deutsch.

Bronx Free Fellowship, 1,591 Boston Road, "Contemporary Thinkers: Harry Elmer Barnes Looks at Religion," Rev. Leon Rosser Land, 8 P. M.; "Race and Religious Conflicts: Are They Inevitable?" James Waterman Wise, 9 P. M.

Ingersoll Forum, Pythian Temple, 135 West Seventieth Street, 8 P. M. "Basic Falsehoods of Religion," Thomas Wright.

People's Institute, Cooper Union, Eighth Street and Astor Place, 8 P. M. "Cassirer: Substance and Function," Dr. Scott Buchanan.

Community Forum, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, 8 P. M. "Can Jew and Arab Live Together in Palestine?" Rabbi Mitchell Salem Fisher and Shiek Mohammed Fadhal Jamali.

Debate, "Resolved, That reading great fiction and drama throws a better light on experience than reading great history and biography," Hugh Walpole vs. Thornton Wilder, Selwyn Theatre, West Forty-second Street, 8:30 P. M.

Educational Forum, True Sisters Club House, 150 West Eighty-fifth Street, 8:30 P. M.; "Justice and the Courts," Jacob Panken.

Lecture, "The Ego and His Own," F. M. Wilkesbarr, Studio of Celia Stone, 28 East Fourteenth Street, 8:30 P. M.

Tomorrow.

Annual meeting of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers in New York begins at the Engineering Societies Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, and continues Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Women's National Republican Club, 8 East Thirty-seventh Street, 11 A. M. "Inland Waterways," Major Gen. Thomas Q. Ashburn.

League for Political Education, the Town Hall, 123 West Forty-third Street, 11 A. M. ...

... the Benefit of Humanity," Dr. S. Adolphus Knopf.

Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, Academy of Music, "The Cradle of the U. S. A." and "Evangeline," motion pictures, 2:15 P. M.; "The Deepest Mines in the World," Professor Louis C. Graton; "Methods and Equipments of Mediaeval Astronomers, Fifteenth to Eighteenth Century," Mrs. H. D. Brundage; "Applesauce," the Institute Players, 8:15 P. M.

Annual dinner of the Sons of the Revolution in the State of New York to celebrate the 198th anniversary of the birth of George Washington, Hotel Plaza, 7 P. M. Speakers: Major John V. Bouvier Jr., Charles S. Whitman, the Rev. Dr. H. Percy Silver, Emory R. Buckner, Andrew Jackson Montague.

People's Institute, Tompkins Square Branch Library, 331 East Tenth Street, 7:30 P. M., "Polish History," Dr. Albert Morawski.

Third annual convention of the Jewish Academy of Arts and Sciences at the Jewish Club, 23 West Seventy-third Street, 8:30 P. M. Speakers: Max J. Kohler and Mrs. Rebecca Kohut.

Columbia University Institute of Arts and Sciences, McMillin Academic Theatre, 8:30 P. M., violin recital by Alfredo San-Malo.

People's Institute, Muhlenberg Branch Library, 209 West Twenty-third Street, 8:30 P. M., "The Absoluteness and Relativity of Truth," Dr. Richard McKeon.

Drop in Lumber Demand Indicated.

Reports from retail lumber dealers throughout the country indicate that lumber requirements during the first six months of this year will be 5 per cent less than in the last half of 1929, according to the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association. The current mill production is about 6 per cent above orders and 7 per cent greater than shipments.

$327,300 for Bridge Plaza Lots.

Sale of $327,300 worth of New Jersey property at the plaza of the new Hudson River Bridge is reported by C. R. Parliman, president of the House of Parliman, in charge of liquidation of a large section of subdivided land in the bridge zone.

BUSINESS LEASES.

Norwood Clothes Shops, operating men's apparel chain, two stores and basement in 25 West Fourteenth Street, for long term, from 25 West Fourteenth Street, Inc., Percy Uris, president; arranged by Commonwealth Management Company.

Sutton Brothers, linen merchants, store in 1,235 Broadway; R. Goperstein, sixth floor in 152 Madison Avenue; Dickstein & Disler, in 167 Madison Avenue; Tissue Paper Manufacturers Association, in 280 Madison Avenue; Rubin Embroidery Company, in 12 East Thirty-second Street; Parisian Underwear Company, in 38 West Thirty-second Street; Durlacher Brothers and Stora Art Galleries, Inc., sixth floor in 670 Fifth Avenue (through Brown, Wheelock; Harris, Vought & Co.); Cross & Brown Company, broker.

Skinnell Silver Plating Company, loft in 248 West Twenty-third Street; William Lindner, store in 152 West Fourteenth Street; Duross Company, broker.

Bresco Laundry and A. Goldsmith, furrier, stores in new taxpayer at Jerome and Boscobel Avenues, opposite 167th Street; J. Clarence Davies, Inc., broker.

Leslie Berman, cleaning and dyeing, store in new building at 301 East Twenty-first Street; E. R. Munn & Co., broker.

Louis Rosenthal and Isidore Slotnick, trimmings, floor in 135 Bleecker Street; Style Novelty Company, hemstitching, in 148-56 West Twenty-third Street; Fine Art Pillow Corporation, floor in 26 East Twenty-second Street; M. & L. Hess, brokers.

Philip Kallman, loft in 241 West Thirty-seventh Street, from Hermelle Dress Company; Harry D. Cooper, dresses, floor in 347 West Thirty-sixth Street; Louis Ser, coats, floor in 323 West Thirty-eighth Street; Henry Krasnow, dresses, floor in 333 West Thirty-ninth Street; A. Schwartz Realty Company, broker.

Cushman's Sons, Inc., in sixteen-story building recently completed at 1,159 Third Avenue, southeast corner of Sixty-eighth Street, by J. H. Taylor Construction Company; Donald W. Brown, Inc., broker.

Isidor Katz, clothing, store in 5,413 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, for five years, at total rental of $20,100; Caesar F. Thompson, offices on second floor in 5,008 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, from Kresge Company, for three years; Tutino & Co., brokers.

Fashion Shop (M. Wasserman), store in 119 Main Street, White Plains, in building recently completed at corner of Spring Street, by A. S. Beck Shoe Corporation. The lease is for a long term at a rental totaling $100,000, according to the Rostenberg Realty Company, the broker. The lessee is now at 62 Main Street.

Bent Steel Section, Inc., offices in Crescent Plaza Building, South Jane and Crescent Streets, Long Island City; Cross & Brown Company, broker.

TRANSFERS RECORDED.

Old Slip, 23, executors and trustees of Ella C. Cammann to George F. Moody; same property, George F. Moody to J. Clarence Davies, Inc.; mortgage $19,000.

Sixteenth Street, 17 West, executor and trustee of Henry R. Grant to Edward Swann.

Broadway, west side, 107 feet north of Ninety-second Street, Admiral Realty Company to Mathilda Lehman.

120th Street, north side, 150 feet west of Eighth Avenue, devisees of Mary E. Clark to Stephen H. Jackson; mortgage $15,000.

128th Street, 222 West, Capital Funds Corporation to Clotilda Howard; mortgage $14,625.

Front Street, 174, Robert F. Janes to Maxwellton Realty Corporation; mortgages $17,500.

Water Street, 192, Fulton-Pearl Real Estate Corporation to Rickhan Realty Corporation; mortgage $25,000.

114th Street, 55 West, executor of Harris Krakower to Arya Realty Corporation.

Pearl Street, 194, Emma D. H. Behling et al. to Liberty Place Holding Corporation; mortgages $22,500.

Eighty-third Street, 232-234 East, Samuel Brody to 232 East Eighty-third Street Corporation; mortgages $64,000.

Cooper Street, north side, 100 feet east of 207th Street, Mary B. Curtis to William L. Morris; mortgages $13,500.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

Peck & Peck, hosiery and sportswear, leased stores in Minneapolis and St. Louis, through the Leonard S. Gans Company. A location in Philadelphia also has been obtained.

Mrs. Rosalie C. Slack leased to Mrs. Stephen Birch the residence at 53 East Eightieth Street from April 1 to May 31 next. Sutton, Blagden & Lynch were the brokers.

The National Lumber Manufacturers Association has issued a booklet summarizing its activities in 1929 and another booklet entitled "For Home Lovers."

Yasuo Matsui is associate architect of the new Manhattan Building in Wall Street, just designated by the Downtown League as an outstanding example of architecture.

LATEST DEALINGS IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

REVIEW OF WEEK IN REALTY MARKET

More Activity Apparent Than in Any Similar Period Since the Year Began.

SPUR ON UPPER WEST SIDE

Block Front in Dyckman Area Taken for Amusement Building—Doelger Block Future in Doubt.

Considerable more activity was shown in the realty market last week than in any preceding week since the first of the year. Notable transactions were:

Purchase of the old Doelger brewery block, bounded by First Avenue, Avenue A, Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth Streets, in the lower Sutton Place section, by a syndicate headed by Irwin S. and Henry I. Chanin; the rounding out of a plot at Pearl and Moore Streets by the Kerr Steamship Company for a new building; the sale of the former Bernard M. Baruch residence at 6 West Fifty-second Street, now altered for business, by Benjamin Winter, for about $200,000, and two or three large apartment house loans, including one of $2,400,000 by the S. W. Straus concern to the Anthony Campagna interests on the new co-operative house going up on Fifth Avenue between Sixty-fourth and Sixty-fifth Streets.

Realty Not Aided by Stock Debacle.

It is interesting to note, however, that the general quiet conditions in the realty field elicited the following comment in The Record and Guide yesterday:

"Based on the number of conveyances recorded since the first of the year, Manhattan real estate is only 57 per cent as active as during the corresponding period of a year ago.

"Despite all predictions made at the beginning of the year, the facts do not bear out the assertion that the stock market depression would aid real estate. It is true that the stock market has been on the upgrade for some time and it may be that funds which were pouring into real estate as an investment after the October crash are being returned to Wall Street."

The sale of the big Doelger plot, which has been under negotiation for more than a year, will result in the erection, in the near future, of a group of tall high-grade apartment houses, but the buyers state that for the present there are no definite construction plans. The purchase was influenced by the decision of the Board of Estimate on the day the contracts were signed to enlarge the Sutton Place residential zone on Sutton Place South, the old Avenue A, south to Fifty-fourth Street and extending in the street blocks below Fifty-seventh Street nearly to First Avenue. The property was held by the Doelger interests at $7,500,000.

A feature of interest in the Times Square centre was the start of operations in demolishing the old Continental Hotel at the southeast corner of Broadway and Forty-first Street for a forty-five-story office building to be erected by Louis Adler. With the wrecking operations going on just below, involving the old Casino and the Knickerbocker theatre, these Broadway blocks from Thirty-eighth to Forty-first Street, all on the east side, present one of the really active building areas on Manhattan Island.

Upper West Side Deals.

An important deal was closed in the Dyckman section, at the upper end of Manhattan Island, in the purchase by the Miramar Pool Corporation of the westerly block front of Ninth Avenue, between 206th and 207th Streets.

The property has a frontage of 197.10 feet on the avenue by 100 feet on each street. On 207th Street it adjoins the Miramar outdoor pool and recreation building and, with its recent purchase, the corporation controls a frontage of 400 feet on 207th Street, being all of the southerly block front except the 100-foot frontage at the Tenth Avenue corner.

The Miramar interests are planning to erect on the Ninth Avenue frontage a three-story amusement building containing an indoor pool, skating rink, a gymnasium and other features, the cost of which is estimated at about $350,000. Joseph A. Webber was the broker in the transaction.

In the upper west side area also the five-story flat at 307 West 120th Street, 25 by 100, between Eighth and Manhattan Avenues, was sold by Katherine Delaney and Irene Wittschen through Greene & Co. as brokers. The latter also sold the five-story flat at 309 West 113th Street, 25 by 100, between Eighth and Manhattan Avenues, to the Triboro Bridge Futures, Inc.

Continued interest in Lexington Avenue property north of Forty-second Street was reflected in the purchase by the operators and builders, Shroder & Koppel, of the southeast corner of the avenue and Fifty-second Street, from the Callahan Estates, Inc. The property fronts 50.5 feet on Lexington Avenue by 100 on the street and is known as 591-593 Lexington Avenue. William A. White & Sons were the brokers in the sale.

The four-story house at 392 Bleecker Street, 19.7 by 81.10, between Barrow and Grove Streets, in the Greenwich Village area, has been sold through Duross Company for Peter and John Federici.

Atlantic Beach Homes in Demand.

Sale of three homes in Atlantic Beach, L. I., at prices aggregating $43,500, was reported yesterday. The purchasers were Mrs. Anna K. Daly, Mrs. Matilda F. Ward and the T. & T. Realty Company for a client. The Atlantic Beach Company reports an upward trend in the sale of ocean-front properties. An extension is being built to the beach club. The firm has opened an exhibit in the Commodore Hotel, with Edward Campbell in charge.

Acquires Three Mt. Vernon Parcels.

E. Sharum, Manhattan realty operator, has bought from Frank J. Kusner three Mount Vernon parcels, including a one-story brick taxpayer on a plot 75 by 105 feet at 214½-18½ South Fourth Avenue; a four-story apartment house on about a half-acre at 3 Sherman Avenue, corner of Columbus Avenue, and a two-story flat on a plot 50 by 100 feet at 20 Lorraine Avenue. John Randall was the broker.

Lexington Avenue Building Sold.

Jessie Wright has sold to Estates Security Corporation, Congreve Jackson, president, the property 613 Lexington Avenue, a four-story building with store on the ground floor, adjoining the corner of Fifty-third Street.

January Construction 46% Less Than in Same Month Last Year

Building permits issued in 566 representative cities and towns during January showed a loss of 46 per cent from January, 1929, according to official reports received by S. W. Straus & Co. January showed a decline of 17 per cent from December, 1929, which in turn had declined 19 per cent from November.

The total for the first month of the current year was $127,685,004, compared with $236,200,319 in January last year and $153,717,819 in December, 1929. These figures represent building only and do not include engineering projects.

The sharp falling-off in building during January, according to the report, is in line with the opinion expressed by authorities during the latter part of 1929, that building activities would decline still further before the effects of favorable money conditions, recovery from the stock market crash and gradually increasing demand for additional buildings resulted in a definite upturn.

Harlem Body Opposes "L" Plan.

A meeting of the Upper Harlem Taxpayers' Association has been called for next Thursday night at 310 Lenox Avenue by Samuel D. Tomback, president, for the purpose of organizing opposition to the plan for an elevated structure on upper Park Avenue and to support a proposal for changing the present elevated line into a subway route. Alfred C. Behning, president of the Harlem Board of Commerce, will speak, and a report on rent law and tenement house legislation now before the State Legislature will be heard.

SECURITIES EXCHANGE.

Sales Prices and Bid and Asked Quotations on Realty Issues.

One issue was dealt in yesterday at the New York Real Estate Securities Exchange, as follows:

Sales.

BONDS.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Last.	Net Chg.
3 55 5th Av 6s, '44	96	96	95⅝	96	+½

Quotations.

BONDS.

	Bid.	Asked.
The Alden 6s, '28-41	96½	100
B'way-Bar Office Bldg 6s, '41	96½	98
Belmont Bldg 6½s, '44	..	96
42 B'way 6s, '39	99	..
50 B'way 6s, '46	97	..
61 B'way 5½s, '50	94	..
165 B'way 5½s, '51	90	..
B'way-38th St Bldg 7s, '45	95	100
B'way-41st St Bldg 6½s, '44	96½	100
Carnegie Plaza Apts 6s, '28-37	..	98
Chesebrough Bldg 6s, '48	97¼	99
Chanin Bldg 6½s, '45	..	96
43 Exchange Place 6s, '38	98½	..
Equitable Office Bldg 5s, '52	89	91¼
52d St-Madison Av Bldg 6s, '47	..	98
5th Av-28th St Realty C 6½s, '45	92	..
5th Av-29th St Bldg 6s, '48	85	87
5th Av-55th St Bldg 6½s, '45	92½	..
55 5th Av 6s, '44	95½	..
18 Gramercy Park So 6s, '29-38	..	98
Gen'l Motors Bldg 6s, '48	97	98¼
Harriman Bldg 6s, '41	99	..
Herald Square Bldg 6s, '48	..	73½
Insur Centre Bldg 6½s, '43, w s	92½	96¼
Lincoln Bldg 5½s, '53	91	..
Lincoln Hotel Prop 6¼s, '41	95	..
Liggett Bldg 5½s, '52	91½	..
Mtge Bond Corp of N Y 5s, '38	87¾	..
Do 5½s, '34	94¼	100
Do 5½s, '36	93¼	98
Millinery Centre Bldg 7s, '44	97	..
Munson Bldg 6½s, '39	97½	..
New York A C 6s, '46	97½	..
65 East 96th St 6½s, '26-36	..	90
The Olcott 5½s, '26-31	98	..
Park Royal Hotel 5½s, '27-33	98	..
1 Park Av Bldg 6s, '27-39	97½	100
2 Park Av Bldg 6s, '41	96¾	100
277 Park Av Bldg 6½s, '28-42	97½	101
655 Park Av Bldg 5½s, '34	98	..
Postum Bldg 6½s, '43	93⅜	..
Realty Asso Sec Corp 6s, '43	..	101
Real Estate Bd Bldg 7s, '46	100	..
Roxy Theatre 6¼s, '28-40	96½	98¾
Savoy Plaza Hotel 6s, '45	94	99
Do 5½s, '38	87¼	89
Sherry-Netherland Hotel 5¾s, '48	91⅜	95½
The Stratford 6s, '30-40	..	96
Straus Bldg 6s, '29-41	96½	..
Trinity Bldgs Corp 5½s, '39	100¼	101
Westinghouse Bldg 6s, '26-39	98	100
Woodbridge Bldg 5½s, '41	90	..

STOCKS.

	Bid.	Asked.
Bond & Mtge Guar Co	93	95½
City & Suburban Homes	8¼	9½
1,010 5th Av—units	75	..
1,140 5th Av—units	63	..
French Bldg—units	80	..
Lawyers Mortgage Co	51½	53½
15 Park Av—units	58	..
16 Park Av—units	58	..
17 Park Av—units	75	..
55 Park Av—units	53	..
S W Straus Inv Co—units	..	58
S W Straus Co, Inc, of Del	36	42½

MORTGAGE PARTICIPATION CERTIFICATES.

	Bid.	Asked.
$10,000 Bond & Mtge G Co 5½s, '32	98	..
10,000 Lawyers Mtge Co 5½s, '32	98	..
10,000 Lawyers Title & G 5½s, '32	98	..
10,000 Mtge Bond C of NY 5½s, '32	98	..

New Owner for Jersey Farm.

Milan D. Popovic of this city, a statistician for the Central States Electric Corporation, has bought from Eli H. Hulbert a farm of about twenty-five acres in Mendham, N. J. The eight-room frame dwelling is on the southern slope of Mendham Mountain, on a road running from the Pitney farm to the site of Morristown's new reservoir. Eighteen of the acres are tillable or planted with fruit trees. The remainder is wooded or pasture land. Mr. Popovic intends to remodel the house and build a small pond along the stream which flows through the property, G. Crawford Smith, the brokers, says.

Operator Buys Bronx Flat.

Benjamin Goldberg, operator, purchased from the Chesterfield Holding Corp. the southeast corner of 181st Street and Crescent Avenue, consisting of a six-story elevator apartment house known as Adirondack Court. The structure houses sixty-three families, who pay a rental of approximately $60,000 per annum. It was held at $475,000. Charles Shapiro negotiated the transaction.

Central Park West House Leased.

The Vinross Realty, Inc., M. H. Rothschild, president, represented by Sharp & Nassoit, agents, leased the four-story remodeled dwelling at 354 Central Park West, between Ninety-fifth and Ninety-sixth Streets, to Mrs. Augusta Montgomery, who will occupy it. The Houghton Company acted as broker.

BANK BUYS BRANCH SITE.

The National City Will Establish Offices in Jackson Heights.

The National City Bank has purchased the property at the northwest corner of Roosevelt Avenue and Eighty-first Street, Jackson Heights, as the site for a branch office, it was announced yesterday by the Queensboro Corporation. The location is only a block away from the branches of the Corn Exchange Bank Trust Company and the Bank of the Manhattan Trust Company.

The branch will be established after March 15, when title to the property is to be taken by the bank. The reported purchase price was $135,000, or about $3,400 a foot for forty feet frontage on Roosevelt Avenue, a figure which is said to set a new record for realty values there. Five years ago the sam eland brought $1,700 a front foot, the Queensboro Corporation reports, and only a year ago it was said to have been held at $2,000 a foot.

Bronx, Yonkers Realty at Auction.

Business and residential parcels in the Bronx and Yonkers will be auctioned by George W. Coughlan at 2:30 P. M. next Saturday in Audubon Hall, Broadway and 166th Street. Included in the sale are 185 business and residential lots in East and West Bronx and Yonkers. Improved properties to be offered are at 3,511 Cambridge Avenue, 520 Tulfan Terrace, 348 West 260th Street, 1 Dash Place, 263 West 260th Street, 2,681 Waterbury Avenue, 216 Forster Place, 220 Forster Place and 6,130 Fieldston Road, the Bronx, and two houses at 2 and 5 Clark Street, Yonkers.

Sells Estate in Spencertown.

The thirty-eight-acre country estate of Dr. R. C. White at Spencertown, near Chatham, N. Y., has been sold by him to Louis H. Low, treasurer of the Wynlow Realty Corporation in Manhattan. A new ten-room house and several outbuildings are on the tract, in addition to several thousand pine trees planted by Dr. White a year ago. The property is at the foot of the Berkshire Hills. George W. Levy and the Charles F. Noyes Company acted as brokers.

BUSINESS RECORDS

BANKRUPTCY PROCEEDINGS.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

Petitions Filed—Against

DRY DOCK PROVISION CO., 141 Madison Street, by P. Wohl, Inc., for $700; M. Ettlinger & Co., $689; Standard Casing Co., $800.

PH. WEINBERG & SONS, tailors, 69 Nassau Street, by John B. Ellison & Sons, for $5,177; Biddle-Bernstein Co., Inc., $513; Jacob Siegel, $11,000. The members of the firm are Philip, Israel, Edward and Harold A. Weinberg.

Petitions Filed—By

MASON S. COOPER, salesman, 100 West Fifty-fifth Street.—Liabilities, $20,966; assets, $3,000, consisting of securities. The First Bank of Lake Worth, Fla., is the principal creditor listed on a claim of $11,904.

THOMAS B. FINDLAY, gasoline station, Washingtonville, N. Y.—Liabilities $7,648, assets $1,123.

Receivers Appointed.

LILLIAN KAVANAGH, doing business as Lily Kay Shoppe, women's wear, 2,021 Broadway.—Irving Trust Co. appointed by Judge Thacher.

Schedules Filed.

LOUIS MASNICK, house furnishings, 1,815 Southern Boulevard.—Liabilities, $5,556; assets, $3,500, consisting of stock and fixtures.

EASTERN DISTRICT.

Petitions Filed—By

SAMUEL AVIDON, union delegate, 2,001 East Fourth Street, Brooklyn.—Liabilities $16,570 and no assets.

SAM FLIEGENSPAN, trading as Premier Candy Co., 285 Powell Street, Brooklyn.—Liabilities $4,953, assets $736.

BEATRICE H. SABIN, sales agent, 45-34 Forty-seventh Street, Woodside, L. I.—Liabilities $26,490 and no assets.

SAMUEL CAMHI, retail grocer, 250 New Lots Road, Brooklyn.—Liabilities $1,456 and no assets.

IN OTHER DISTRICTS.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 15.—Petitions in bankruptcy filed today included:

Charles A. Graham, a carpenter, of Buffalo, voluntary petition; liabilities listed, $25,374.66, and secured claims, $17,600.

Amelie R. Graham, Rochester, voluntary petition; liabilities, $48,290.50; assets, $536; secured claims, $47,035.

Jacob Stiles, tailor, Rochester, voluntary petition; liabilities, $32,700; secured claims, $22,390.

H. Lefkowitz, Inc., of Buffalo, involuntary petition; petitioning creditors: O. and S. Fireman Fur Corporation; Newman, Freidenman & Weisbrod, and B. Needleman, Inc., all of New York.

Lelia Read of Greece, voluntary petition; liabilities, $170,079.06; assets, $110; secured claims, $151,700.

Joseph J. Aldred, member of the dissolved partnership of Aldred & O'Reilly, contractors, of Lockport, voluntary petition; liabilities, $79,783.99; assets, $15,143.85; secured claims, $24,128.52.

Stuart S. Gates, an automobile dealer, Rochester, voluntary petition; liabilities, $23,404.34; assets, $250.

Sam Stiles, a lens inspector, voluntary petition; liabilities, $9,685.27; secured claims, $168.30.

Dorothy Stiles, Rochester, voluntary petition; liabilities, $34,561.97; secured claims $25,100.

Frank P. Taity of Buffalo, voluntary petition; liabilities, $13,814.40; assets, $7,012.05; secured claims, $4,100.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—Petitions in bankruptcy filed here today included:

D. W. Sholes, voluntary. Liabilities $15,224, assets $3,152.

Standard Scale and Supply Corporation, ancillary.

ASSIGNMENTS.

LOUIS BOSKIN, trading as High Grade Dairy, at 1,393 Boscobel Av., has assigned to Jack J. Lande, Samuel Ebenstein, 135 West 40th St., attorney for the assignee.

ISAAC RAVITZ, furrier, 1,438 Broadway, Brooklyn, has made an assignment to Elias Wagner, 16 Court St., Brooklyn.

THE PEERLESS STORE FIXTURES CO., INC., of 128 West 18th St., has assigned to Adolph Schecht.

CONRAD WEIS, groceries, of 1,564 and 1,960 Third Av., has assigned to Jacob Caplan.

ALBERT FARHIE, Gad Rousso and Elie Sabah, trading as the Paramount Luggage and Gift Shop, have assigned to Samuel Sokolow.

JUDGMENTS.

Filed yesterday, the first name being that of the debtor:

In New York County.

Amm Realty Corp.—J. Sessa, et al...$750.00
Bromley's Clothes, Inc.—B. Kuppenheimer & Co....$7,244.73
Bauer, Anna B.—City of N. Y., costs..$111.00
Berger, Nathan—J. Esposito....$109.50
Carroll, Anna L. and John M.—H. B. Smith Co....$469.93
Concord Construction Co., Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Md., Continental Casualty Co., New Amsterdam Casualty Co., Detroit Fidelity & Surety Co. and Union Indemnity Co.—Board of Education of City of N. Y....$2,273.15
Childs Co.—H. Shapiro, et al....$6,761.35
Cone, Bernard—W. I. Lehman....$1,916.65
Same—M. C. Lehman....$7,689.89
Freeman, Blanche W.—Lee Tire & Rubber Co. of N. Y., Inc....$279.18
Gerson, Hilda—Goldwyn Loan & Investment Corp....$1,827.75
Ginsberg & Gallagher, Inc.—American Enameled Brick & Tile Co....$3,332.35
Guttman, Ignatz, and Hyman Leff—Frankfort Construction Co., costs....$119.10
Highmark Homes, Inc.—Rubel Coal & Ice Corp....$1,764.83
Josephson, Louis—International Madison Bank & Trust Co....$1,040.00
Same—Same....$1,040.00
Johnston, Neil P.—S. Traeger....$318.95
Same—Atlas Enterprises, Inc....$202.45
Lutsky, Joseph W.—Stanley & Patterson, Inc....$334.77
Nassau Pub. Co., Inc.—American Type Founders Co....$264.05
Nudell, Moe, Rebecca B. Nudell and Abraham Levinton—First Natl Bank of Jersey City....$10,402.50
Oginsky, Vincent—S. Oginsky, costs...$120.45
Piasecki, Mary S.—M. G. Kantrowitz..$871.35
Petrillo Co., Inc., and Petrillo and Jesse Shulman—Empire 38th St. Corp....$218.80
Pearl, Daniel H.—S. Schaeffer....$459.95
Russell, Winter, receiver—City of New York (costs)....$105.00
Robinson, Don—Ben Abingdon Corp...$138.85
Smith, Paul—Rosedale Dairy Co., Inc....$2,927.39
Silverman, Herman and Zara B.—Manufacturers Trust Co....$820.51
Sherman Square Jewelry Co., Inc.—A. Levy....$194.90
Wilray Construction Co.—E. Malowitz....$10,180.60
Weinstein, Tyrkin, Inc.—W. Ritterman et al....$630.31
Moscow, Daniel, and Daniel Moscow, Inc.—G. Cherurg....$661.20
Miller, Ira D.—Sterling, Inc....$130.03
Morris, Harry S.—State Trust Co....$3,342.35
McNair, James T.—L. Doscher....$3,691.73
Same—A. C. Dosch....$500.00
Bergen Furniture Works, Inc.—A. Weiser, Inc....$865.75
Dayton Woodworking Co., Inc., and City of New York—D. Benson....$2,692.43
Doerr, Harry—W. S. Quinby Co. of New York, Inc....$191.73
Eiferman, Jacob—Ellenville Wood Novelty Co., Inc....$215.98
Josephson, Louis—International Madison Bank and Trust Co....$1,040.00
Lindenfeld, Bertha—Stafford Building Corp....$519.94
Richter Warehouses, Inc., Norman J. Leff and H. J. Leff Co., Inc.—S. Greenberg....$1,057.60
White, Elvira R.—Manhattan Properties, Inc....$1,276.67
Williams, Robert G.—Domestic Electric Co., Inc....$805.50

In Kings County.

El-Chat Realty Corp.—Julius Pianin...$203.62
Ullian, Mary, et al.—Lincoln Credit Union....$244.90
Benjamin Holding Corp. et al.—Brooklyn Consolidated Lumber Corp....$633.75
Sacks, Arthur—H. S. Chardavoyne, Inc....$651.35
288 Avenue P Holding Corp et al.—Jacob Wiener....$527.15
Hickert, Walli—Michael & Goldberg, plumbing and heating supplies....$161.85
Same—Same....$220.99
Rosen, George W.—Joe Roselinsky..$2,839.60
288 Avenue P Holding Corp.—Wiener Parquet Floor Co., Inc....$638.90
Riordan, John J.—Alfred B. Powell....$336.90
Atheras, Aristo M.—Lehman Coal Co., Inc....$285.40
Kupper, Fred—Walter Brachtel....$134.67
Barr, Abe A.—John E. Watson....$66.90
Kaphan, Isidor—Harry Raeder....$77.90
Deutsch, Lillian A.—Gus P. Schmidt..$241.58
Coopersmith Construction Co., Inc., et al.—Brooklyn Trust Co....$512.15
Starr, Bernard—Same....$545.36
Maiorany, James, et al.—Brooklyn Builders Supply Co....$394.18
Jackson, William—The Brooklyn Union Gas Co....$134.31
Quinn, Robert A.—Same....$125.87
Red's Patch & Reliner Co., Inc.—Industrial Commissioner....$8.16
Bar Construction Co., Inc.—Same...$3,265.61
Economy Heating Eng. Co., Inc.—Industrial Commissioner....$233.33
Lounat Construction Co., Inc.—Same..$655.84
Premier Linen Supply and Laundry Co., Inc., et al.—Isaac J. Lite....$4,646.50
Robbins, John, et al.—Belle Mead Sweetmakers, Inc....$111.61
Gassert, Fred C.—Manner Building Corp....$5,937.83

In Bronx County.

Bailey Hldg. Corp. and Jay W. Berwick—Blum & Choyke, Inc....$2,107.32
Bimonte, Vincent; Anthony Leone, Alexander Faiella and Salvatore Vena—D. Fazio et al....$1,577.50
Ciccarelli, Pasquale—American Agricultural Chemical Co....$241.66
Di Francia, Angelo and Josephine—Same....$349.43
Dancollins Contr. Corp., Louis D'Angelo, Rose Collins—Harris Flooring Corp...$956.06
Marifay Realty Corp. and William Goldman—J. Fritz & Co., Inc....$633.87
Same—Same....$683.79
McConnell, James—Wykagyl Supply Corp....$492.27
Olsen, Olaf A.—J. A. Mahlstedt Lumber and Coal Co....$572.11
R. and M. Schweibish, Inc.—F. Lang..$800.76
Tregate Hldg. Co., Inc.—H. M. and L. W. Hldg. Co., Inc....$23,658.05
Weinstein Turkin, Inc.—W. Ritterman et al....$630.31
Zagor Cafeteria, Inc.—N. Yellin....$2,265.67

In Queens County.

Arshansky, Sophie—Alexander Milk...$121.73
Brooklyn Construction Co., Inc.—American Stove Co....$327.70
Chmurzynski, Tessie—Parkinson Coke and Coal Co....$1,073.37
Dein, Philip H.—Jericho Plumbing Supply Co., Inc....$770.90
Same—Same....$389.25
Epstein, Max—American Stove Co....$327.90
Gilbert, Charles L.—Ralph T. Walker..$327.90
Huber, Caroline—Lavine S. White..$1,139.00
Hill, Grace and Gordon M.—Charles Schraff....$3,112.75
John Klashus, Inc.—Abraham S. Cohen....$1,157.56
Joebee Holding Corp.—Pietro Onorato.$542.03
Klashus, John and Adele—Abraham S. Cohen....$1,157.56
Meyer, John—Philip E. Parenteau, Inc....$243.55
Moschella, Charles—Emilnick Iron Works, Inc....$907.92
O'Brien, John—Philip E. Parenteau, Inc....$243.55
Queens Sash & Door Co., Inc—Dan Loewenthal....$6,627.97
Rose, Loretta—Black Diamond, Inc...$874.25
Robert S. Smith Corp.—Weiss, DeVeau Co., Inc....$17.55
Same—Same....$17.85
Singer, Charles I. (Plaintiff)—Gottfried Packing Co., Inc....$110.25
Simpson, Philip H. and Laura—Flushing Nurseries Co....$186.46
Tricomi, Ignazio; Tricomi Construction Co., Inc.—Emilnick Iron Works, Inc...$907.92
Tietjens, Phillipine—William Erdreich..$28.25
Van Vliet, Beatrice and Andrew—Lapis Realty Co., Inc....$15,315.94
Woodrich Engineering Co., Inc.—Jericho Plumbing Supply Co., Inc....$770.90
Same—Same....$289.25
Yosca, "Jacob"—Bronx Provision Corporation of New York....$385.92

In Richmond County.

Arena, Giuseppe and Nunzio—Francesco Vasi....$2,916.00
Avellino, Josephine—Burns Brothers..$147.22
Conners, James J.—Same....$99.14
Dalessio, John and Sarah—Bayonne Citizens Loan Co., Inc....$95.57
Garranone, Joseph—Joseph Modzelewiski....$1,913.05
Goldstein, Sarah—Burns Brothers....$199.17
Gale, George B.—Same....$60.20
Hall, Francis—Harry Cohen....$32.92
Koantz, John—Tony Piscetillo and Angelina Dente....$166.21
McAdams, John—Joseph Modzelewiski....$1,931.05
McElligott, Patrick—Summit Coal and Lumber Co....$133.00
McCarthy, Gertrude—Burns Brothers..$26.30
Miller, Leo—Same....$80.84

In Westchester County.

Koswick & Johann, Inc.—Herbert Knowles....$712.55
Mironji, Emilio—F. A. Ottamann & Son, Inc....$31.04
Johnson, John—Ind. Com. of N. Y....$176.55
Builders Brick and Supply Co., Inc.; Quinn, Thomas J.—Huguenot Trust Co...$1,070.96
Brady, Francis P.; The Yonkers Star—American Type Founders Co....$2,855.00
Post Country Apartments Inc.; Quinn, Thomas J.—Max Rothman, Inc....$650.89
Valentine, Samuel—Dunlop Tire and Rubber Corp....$162.63
United Color Pictures, Inc.—The People of the State of New York....$1,539.95
McConville, Joseph—Richard Anallen..$143.14

Yorrizzo, John—Aetna Roofing Tile Co., Inc....$259.95
Caplan, Lewis L.—E. R. Squibb & Sons....$310.68
Olphert, George; Olphert, "Mary"—Fred Trede....$549.80

In Nassau County.

Raynor, Adelaide S.—Charles R. Hughes....$1,218.93
Simpson, Florence M.—H. Clay Waldman....$447.50
Boyd, Benjamin J.—Ohio Chemical Mfg. Co....$61.21
Park National Corp. and Irving Weiss—Kentucky Hardwood Flooring Co., Inc..$1,330.09

120TH ST. 147 WEST; Maurice Milberg against Joseph N. and Sybil Padmore, owners and contractors....$560.00
ESSEX ST. 147; Herman Wolff against Estate of Egerton L. Winthrop, owner; David Saltzman, lessee and contractor....$125.00
91ST ST. 313 WEST; Nicholas Schweinfurth against West Side Improvement Corp., owner; Mrs. T. C. Sederblad, contractor..$365.00
WILLIAM ST. 27; Henry Baumgard, Inc., against William Street Exchange Place Corp., owner; J. O. Sivin & Co., lessee; Myers, Minott & Co., contractor...$6,330.74

In Kings County.

WALDORF COURT, 34; The Huck-Gerhardt ...

ANALYZE RETURNS CAUSED BY STORES

Retail Group in Manual Divides Causes Into Three Main Classifications.

POLICY OFTEN AT FAULT

Closer Relation With Customer Said to Be Needed—Merchandise and Service Cited.

What is described as the first major educational effort designed to help solve one of the outstanding problems of retailing—that of customer returns of merchandise—has just been completed by the committee on causes of customer returns of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. The committee, headed by Harold H. Levi, vice president of the Hecht Company, Washington, D. C., has prepared a manual "analyzing the causes and recommending preventive procedure on returns which are the store's responsibility."

The manual creates three classifications of returns for which the store is responsible. These comprise policy causes, merchandise causes and service causes, and proceeds to "break down" these into various components so that they are susceptible of direct application in a practical way to an individual store. Any attack on the problem, the committee points out, must provide "education of executives and employes designed to quicken their interest in its importance and for the follow-up which must be relentlessly pursued if any improvement in the returns situation may be expected to retain its effectiveness."

Policy Causes Discussed.

Discussing policy causes, the committee cites as an important source of returns the lack of personal relationship between the store and its customers. "This relationship," the committee continues, "can only be personalized through better salesmanship and by more courteous and sympathetic attention at the hands of salespeople. Only in this way is it possible to overcome the feeling of aloofness which moves a customer to treat a return in a routine spirit."

Also under policy causes the committee reviews internal store organization. It advises the survey of leased departments to see that they are not a prolific source of returns. It suggests the establishment of a uniform policy of handling returns and the use of a trained interviewer at the return desk. Wage payment methods as a cause of returns are important and the committee finds that high pressure selling induced by straight commissions, bonuses and "P. M.s" and in less measure the quota-bonus and salary-plus-commission demand a frequent checkup on individuals whose returns are too high.

Too liberal charge account privileges are commented upon. The committee notes that many stores have too widely fostered the indiscriminate use of a charge account by encouraging the customer to believe that a charge account simplifies returns as well as purchases. As an offset to this there should be proper instruction of salespeople that charge accounts are not designed to relieve them of the need of selling the customer carefully simply because the customer can charge and send merchandise home on the chance that she may keep it.

The committee further recommends restrictions on approval sales. Dealing with C. O. D.'s, the committee says that if a survey shows that the store's returns are concentrated on C. O. D. purchases, the tightening up of policy regarding such shipments without deposits is the remedy.

Some Merchandise Reasons.

Under the heading of merchandise causes, the committee lists four major sub-divisions. Poor quality merchandise comes first and the recommendation is made that the store should consider carefully the purchase of lots of merchandise which may show for one reason or another a large percentage of returns. Material, workmanship, design and fit and performance are major factors in causing returns under this head. A store bureau of standards can greatly help in meeting these phases of the problem.

A store at times, the committee comments, must offer merchandise of a fragile nature because it is in current vogue. In selling merchandise of this character the recommendation is made that the store point out to the customer that long wear or hard usage are not to be expected. This caution may find expression in the comments of salespeople or the use of a label.

Incomplete stocks as to size, color, style, &c., result in the customer being sold merchandise not meeting her requirements fully. The suggested remedy is more complete stocks. Returns due to lower prices elsewhere may be minimized by comparison shopping with competitive markdowns.

Under the service classification, the committee outlines selling errors, due to wrong color, wrong size or fit and wrong handling of the transaction such as incorrect sales slip. Damaged goods, shortages, wrong filling of order, delivery delays and alterations are the fruitful causes listed in non-selling errors.

In concluding, the committee urges follow-ups and a store-wide campaign to avoid errors which lead to returns. "Applicable to the selling force, the service records of each individual should provide for recording and reviewing of errors and returns as well as net sales. Constant checkup should be made at all critical points to head off failure of performance. A store-wide campaign, initiated and actively sponsored by the chief executive of the store makes the entire organization 'returns conscious.'"

TRADE STILL UNDER 1929.

Credit Index Rose to 111 for Week, Against 116 Year Ago.

Retail buying, as reflected by inquiries received by the Credit Clearing House, continued last week to run behind last year. With the average weekly inquiries on merchandise orders in the wholesale market during 1927 taken as 100, the Clearing House index last week stood at 111. This compared with 102 in the preceding week and 116 for the same week of 1929. The average order for the week just ended was $297, compared with $324 the week previous.

Changes in recommendation during the past week were approximately 4 per cent greater than those of the same week last year. Overbuys for the week were normal.

Many Trade Groups Entered For Executives' Service Prize

More than twenty-five trade associations filed claims for recognition in the first contest for the American Trade Association Executives' award, M. L. Heminway, managing director of the Motor and Equipment Association and head of the executives' group, said yesterday. The award is to go annually to the trade association executive judged to have done the most constructive service to American industry through the work of his organization.

The winner is to be selected by a jury headed by Secretary of Commerce Lamont, and the award is to be made at a dinner to be given by the executives' association in Washington on May 1.

STAGGER SCHEDULES GIVEN TO SALESMEN

Large Buying Offices Here Fix New Hours—Afternoons for Sample Men.

The "stagger plan" for reducing the congestion of salesmen at the local buying offices went into effect in a number of such offices here last week. The plan will be adopted by Kirby, Block & Fischer tomorrow, and it is understood that the Cavendish Trading Corporation will also complete the drafting of its new schedules tomorrow. Several other offices will also utilize the plan later, their executives said.

The general feature of the plan adopted is provision for seeing salesmen without samples in the morning from 9:30 to 10:30 o'clock, unless by special appointment. Salesmen with samples will be interviewed in the afternoon.

Following are the afternoon schedules worked out for seeing salesmen with samples by five of the leading offices here:

MONDAY.

Associated Dry Goods Corporation—2 to 4 P. M., infants', girls' and juniors' wear.

Associated Merchandising Corporation—3 to 4:30 P. M., muslin and silk underwear, corsets and house dresses.

Hahn Department Stores Purchasing Corporation—3 to 4:30 P. M., upstairs dresses, women's, misses', juniors', all prices; basement dresses, women's and misses', all prices.

TUESDAY.

Associated Dry Goods Corporation—Sportswear, blouses, sweaters, bathing suits and knickers.

Associated Merchandising Corporation—Coats, suits and sportswear.

Hahn Department Stores Purchasing Corporation—Upstairs and basement millinery, sportswear and knitwear.

Kirby, Block & Fischer (4 to 5 P. M.)—Jewelry, leather goods, notions, small wares, gloves, handkerchiefs, house furnishings, corsets, gifts, lamps, hosiery, knit underwear, men's and boys' clothing and furnishings.

WEDNESDAY.

Associated Dry Goods Corporation — Better dresses above $10.50, coats, suits and raincoats.

Associated Merchandising Corporation—Furs and infants' wear.

Hahn Department Stores Purchasing Corporation—Upstairs and basement silk and muslin underwear, corsets, girls' wear, house dresses, infants' wear and basement junior dresses.

Kirby, Block & Fischer (3:30 to 5 P. M.)—Silk and rayon underwear, negligees, infants' wear, children's wear, junior wear and knitted sportswear. Note: $3.75 to $6.75 dresses will be seen from 11 to 12 o'clock in the morning.

Felix Lilienthal & Co. (3 to 6 P. M.)—Upstairs and basement dresses, women's, misses' and upstair juniors'; silk and muslin underwear, negligees, bathrobes, corsets, house dresses and infants' wear; children's dresses, blouses and skirts; furs, raincoats, children's coats, including 2 to 6.

THURSDAY.

Associated Dry Goods Corporation—Millinery, silk and muslin underwear, negligees, house dresses and uniforms.

Associated Merchandising Corporation—Junior wear and girls' wear.

Kirby, Block & Fischer (3:30 to 5 P. M.)—$10.50 to $29.50 dresses, including tailored, dressy and sports styles; millinery.

Felix Lilienthal & Co.—Hosiery, knit and rayon underwear, men's, women's and children's sweaters; boys' and men's clothing and furnishings; millinery, gloves, handkerchiefs, laces, flowers, trimmings and ribbons; jewelry, leather goods, umbrellas, stationery; notions, toilet goods, art goods; coats, suits, riding habits.

FRIDAY.

Associated Dry Goods Corporation — $10.50 and $6.50 dresses.

Associated Merchandising Corporation—Millinery and all price ranges of dresses.

Hahn Department Stores Purchasing Corporation—Women's, misses' and junior coats and suits, all prices, for upstairs, and these lines, in addition to furs, for downstairs.

Kirby, Block & Fischer—Same lines as noted above for Tuesday; coats, suits and skirts in all prices. Note: Dresses priced from $3.75 to $6.75 will be seen from 11 to 12 o'clock in the morning.

The schedules of the Associated Merchandising Corporation as listed do not apply to basement lines. Kirby, Block & Fischer will see salesmen without samples every morning except Monday, Tuesday and Saturday. Jewelry, leather goods and small wares salesmen, however, will be seen on Tuesday morning in addition to the listing above.

CLOTHING IMPORTS NOT HIT.

New Tariff Provisions Will Have No Adverse Effect, Walters Says.

The provisions dealing with men's imported clothing in the pending tariff bill will have little effect one way or the other upon this merchandise, according to Edgar B. Walters of the import organization of the same name, representing British and Scotch clothing firms. The duty proposed, he pointed out yesterday, is practically the same as that in the Fordney-McCumber tariff.

Mr. Walters returned during the week from the British markets and commented upon the greater desire of clothing manufacturers there to cater to the American trade. "They are devoting close attention to styles suitable for this country, with emphasis on a greater variety of models," he said. "Conditions in the woolen and cotton trades are very dull. The Lancashire country is feeling the competition of Japanese exports of these cloths to China and India. This production, incidentally, is turned out on British machinery exported from the same Lancashire section."

Elect Sales Promotion Directors.

Announcement was made yesterday that the following have been elected to the board of directors of the sales promotion division of the National Retail Dry Goods Association: C. Gordon Anderson, Burdine's, Miami, Fla.; Harry Buffum, Buffum's, Inc., Long Beach, Cal.; W. M. McLeod, William Filene's Sons Company, Boston, Mass., and Alonzo L. Reinhard, Hess Brothers, Allentown, Pa. Walter H. Fathauer, Halle Brothers, Cleveland, Ohio, and Walter S. Hamburger, Hochschild, Kohn & Co., Baltimore, Md., have been elected members of the executive committee.

ANTI-TRUST ISSUE FACING CONGRESS

Amendment to Permit Advance Opinion Commented Upon by C. W. Dunn.

VARIOUS MEASURES PEND

Kelly Price Bill and License Scheme Await Decision — Brookhart Proposal "Astonishing."

That Congress soon will be called upon to decide whether new anti-trust legislation should be enacted is indicated by several developments. Among these is the approval by the American Bar Association of the report of its commerce committee recommending an amendment to the Clayton act that would confer upon existing administrative agencies "jurisdiction to determine in advance at the request of industry whether or not a given agreement should be permitted to take effect without incurring the penalties of the Sherman law." The committee has called a hearing for April 9 in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York here on the proposal to amend the law.

Other developments include the bills introduced in the House of Representatives by Congressmen Kelly and Tinkham and in the Senate by Senator Brookhart. The Kelly bill deals with fixing resale prices and the Tinkham and Brookhart bills cover licensing of concerns engaged in interstate commerce.

Commenting yesterday on the amendment proposed by the bar association, Charles Wesley Dunn, an attorney of this city, said that its inclusion in the Clayton act is advocated by many prominent lawyers. Among them, he added, is Colonel W. J. Donovan, former Assistant Attorney General. Mr. Dunn is general counsel for the Associated Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc., and also for the American Pharmaceutical Manufacturers' Association.

Would Be Constructive.

"The supporting argument," Mr. Dunn continued, "is essentially this—such a law will create a constructive relationship between the government and business. It will set up a new administrative policy of violation prevention. It will eliminate the deterrent influence of an uncertain law with which business cannot afford to take a chance. It will enable business to act with assurance and to avoid unwitting offense.

"Any interpretative advice by the Department of Justice and Federal Trade Commission is now unauthorized, limited and independently given. A business acting upon the advice of the Department of Justice later may be proceeded against by the Federal Trade Commission, as reported in the case of the McKesson & Robbins merger. A business acting upon the advice of the commission may be prosecuted by the Department of Justice, which is reported to be the position facing the petroleum industry.

"Viewing the question broadly, it would seem that business is fairly entitled to know, if it desires to know, the government's construction of such a general and important law in its application to stated doubtful action, and would benefit by the knowledge. Such an optional advisory service cannot prejudice the public interest, because the government is required to construe the law in any event, and its construction is subject to judicial review.

"The value of such a service is strikingly illustrated by the Federal Trade Commission's trade practice conference plan, which is directed to permit business to eliminate unfair practices by trade agreement. The plan offers an effective trade remedy against such practices if the application of the anti-trust law is authoritatively defined in the circumstances."

Discussing the Kelly bill, which empowers a manufacturer of a trade-marked article sold in a competitive market to fix the resale price by contract with his vendee, Mr. Dunn said that it is principally supported by small retailers, who seek to do away with uneconomic and predatory price cutting resulting from unrestrained price competition.

"The Federal Trade Commission has twice recommended such legislation to Congress, if it empowers a government agency to review the contracts," he continued. "The present bill, which has been favorably reported by the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, contains no provision of this kind, to which the bill's proponents are opposed. They contend that competition suffices to prevent the fixing of excessive prices.

Trade Licenses Suggested.

"The Tinkham bill, now in committee, empowers the Federal Trade Commission to grant a license, on application, to transact interstate commerce, provided the commission finds that it does not constitute an unlawful monopoly, an unreasonable restraint of trade, unfair competition or a detriment to the public. It provides that an unrevoked license is a complete defense to a proceeding under the anti-trust laws.

"Since the license is optional, the merit of the bill is determined by the gain to business from its enactment. It is difficult to see what the gain is. To the extent it is effective such a law would place the licensed business under government inquisition and regulation and subject to a new rule of anti-trust law application. The business need is not for government regulation or for such an indefinite extension of the anti-trust law."

The Brookhart bill, now before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, places all corporations engaged in interstate commerce under a license granted by the Federal Trade Commission, which is given broad inquisitorial powers. Among other things, Mr. Dunn said, it provides that a licensed corporation shall not pay an annual dividend exceeding 5 per cent of its capital investment, and that it shall only pay salaries approved by the commission.

The bill further provides, he added, that the balance of the earnings shall be paid to the government unless retained for business expansion. In that case an equivalent stock dividend shall be paid to the government. It also makes provision for the establishment of a guaranty fund in the Treasury for each licensed corporation. From this fund the corporation, with the approval of the commission, shall be proportionately reimbursed to permit payment if its net earnings for any year are insufficient to pay the authorized 5 per cent dividend. "It is unnecessary to comment on this astonishing legislative proposal," Mr. Dunn concluded.

The Merchant's Point of View

WEATHER conditions more favorable to business had the usual stimulating effect on retail trade during the week in many sections of the country and sales totals were improved. Local stores reported some of the best results since the last spell of activity after the holidays and the orders received in the wholesale markets reflected greater trade activity in districts outside of this city. Special sales in home furnishings attracted fair response and the business done on dress accessories has been quite satisfactory.

The February volume of retail sales so far, however, is probably lagging well under the level of a year ago in most territories. The combination of widespread unemployment, farm product depression and unfavorable weather is responsible. The January report on department store sales disclosed the toll taken by these adverse influences, particularly the part played by the weather. The declines in farming districts and in those regions that suffered from severe storms were marked and brought the average for the country 2 per cent under sales in January, 1929.

The early February peak of buyers visiting this market fell a good deal short of the number recorded last year, but the comparison last week brought the totals quite close together. Settlement of the dress strike is expected to find a large number of buyers in the market this week. Wholesalers report that cautious buying is the rule, with more stores seeking "specification" merchandise. Purchasing for sales is on the ebb, though the lack of favorable weather is holding up real action on regular Spring lines.

* * *

Situation Still "Mixed." Little but "mixed" can yet be used to describe the general situation in business and industry. There are conflicting conditions and trends which in the aggregate probably testify that the low point in the depression has been passed but still make it uncertain whether recovery is fully under way. The employment report for this State fully backs up the earlier forecast of severe losses last month, and the statement from Washington that conditions are perhaps aggravated here by reason of the flow of the unemployed to this section is quite flimsy. The report is based on factory employment and not on account of the unemployed. That the situation is serious cannot be questioned, and attempts to minimize it are met with abundant proofs to the contrary.

The evidences of increasing activity in industry lend the hope, however, that the peak of unemployment has been passed. Steel operations have gained still further. The automobile sales outlook is reported as improving. But in building the course of contract awards so far this month has been 40 per cent under a year ago. Building material prices in the last week disclosed marked weakness.

Further losses in bank clearings outside of this city are still recorded. The trend of car loadings, however, has been upward, though the figures still run well under a year ago. Commodity prices continue to move lower, and it is doubtful whether much business recovery will be seen until this decline is checked.

* * *

Chain Sales Per Store Declined. In the figures that have been prepared on chain-store operations during 1929 there is a salient feature presented in the data on sales per store. Month after month over the year the chain systems reported sizable increases and probably convinced most people that they were continually advancing their sales at a high rate despite the only modest progress of other types of distribution, where gains and not losses were recorded.

The fact is that many chains actually have been making excellent strides in their trade totals, but not quite so happily as one would imagine. Their growth in sales has come almost entirely from their expansion in units. The sales per unit have been declining. A tabulation by the New York Reserve Bank, for instance, shows that only the grocery chains expanded their sales per store last year. Five other types did less business per unit, the decline for variety chains running to 6.8 per cent.

The expansion in units of the various chain types was highest, strangely enough, in the variety groups, where the increase was almost 35 per cent despite receding unit results. The grocery group opened only 1.6 per cent more stores, while the candy class dropped 2.9 per cent in number.

The question of further chain expansion is answered in a way by these statistics. The movement no doubt will continue, but probably at a less accelerated pace. The closing down of several chain units by a large mail-order organization may prove to be the forerunner of a general tendency to push chain expansion less feverishly.

* * *

January Exports Down. For the fourth month in succession the value of exports in January failed to reach the mark set by the same month in the preceding year. The total of $417,000,000 last month was 16½ per cent under the January, 1929, figures. The decline in outward shipments commenced last October and has been traced to a combination of reasons, including the marked drop in our foreign loans, agitation against our proposed tariff increases, the decline in purchasing power in certain foreign markets where prices on leading commodities have collapsed, and to exchange complications.

Whatever developments in our export trade may prove to be, it is more than likely that various international problems now to the fore have at present a quieting effect on operations. The financial arrangements on the reparations settlement, the naval conference, tariff action and other matters probably cause some natural hesitation. Once these questions are out of the way and certain crises on commodities passed, the prospects are for a boom in foreign trade, though with little escape from keen competition.

Imports last month also declined. The total of $312,000,000 was some 15 per cent under that of January, 1929. Earlier advances and dragging tariff legislation, combined with reduced purchasing power in this country, no doubt explain the drop.

The trade balance of $105,000,000 in our favor last month was $14,000,000 under the credit obtained a year ago. As indicated previously, there was a gain in gold receipts over shipments for the month, reversing the movement of December.

* * *

Volume Without Profit. "Volume at the cost of profit" sums up many of the statements covering business results in 1929 which are now being issued or privately perused. The rush of sales and manufacturing in the early part of the year which was enjoyed in numerous lines acted to keep down costs, and profits gained on that account. When the drive for volume was maintained in the last half of the year against higher sales resistance and under the higher manufacturing costs brought about by reduced manufacturing schedules, the charge against profits was heavy. The drain is heavy now for the same reasons, where it is sought to equal or beat last year's results despite less favorable conditions.

The decision to lose business, even where it is quite clearly known to be unprofitable, is not an easy one for either manufacturer or distributer to make. He may be absolutely sure of his facts through careful analysis of costs and prices and yet hesitate to cut off the unprofitable transactions because of some indirect factor. No one, for instance, would criticize the action of a producer who operated partly at little or no profit in order to maintain his organization at good working efficiency, an efficiency which might not be possible on a smaller scale of output. Nor can a distributer be blamed for taking some business near cost in order to hold down selling expense or to gain additional discounts.

However, as many producers and distributers will admit, their stubborn unwillingness at times to give up unprofitable business is more often than not based on excuses and fictions rather than on real factors. These require honest examination, and, if they do not pass the proper tests of value to the business, then they should be ignored and volume reduced to the transactions which mean real and not imaginary profit.

CLOAK TRADE STABILIZED.

Council Head Describes Steps Taken to Strengthen Market.

The stability of the coat and suit trade has been greatly strengthened through improved relations with outlets and sources of supply, according to I. Grossman, who completes tomorrow his third and final year as president of the Industrial Council of Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers, Inc. For some time, he added, the council has been in close touch with spokesmen bodies for retailers, resident buyers, textile interests and others with whom its members come into daily contact.

"Several instances of the tangible results of our plan may be cited," Mr. Grossman said yesterday. "For example, by working with the Garment Retailers of America we encouraged the production of certain types of coats and suits to enliven the traditional between-seasons dullness. Our arbitration arrangement with the two fur-trimming manufacturers' associations ended the costly litigation that had been so common between coat makers and furriers. We have collaborated with the Wool Institute in devising a uniform order blank that amply protects all concerned. Several suggestions have lately been placed before the recently formed association of salaried resident buyers to insure harmonious relations."

EARLIER FURNITURE SHOW.

Showing Here to Open June 23, Just Before Chicago Display.

The Fall furniture opening sponsored by the New York Furniture Exchange, Inc., will be held a month earlier this year, it was announced yesterday by Paul Ricker, manager of the exchange. The new dates call for the market to open on June 23 and continue until July 5. The opening date had been set originally as July 21.

Advantages claimed for the earlier opening include the fact that buyers will be able to shop for their August furniture sales as well as for Fall merchandise; that late deliveries which hampered Fall trade of retailers in the past will be avoided, and the chance of oppressively warm weather interfering with business during the market will be lessened. As a result of the change the local market will be held immediately before instead of after the Chicago trade display.

Wallpaper Gain Sets Record.

A new record for January orders was established last month by mills reporting to the Wallpaper Association of the United States, Inc., according to figures made public by that organization yesterday. A jump from 12,629,000 rolls ordered in January, 1929, to 20,396,000 rolls ordered last month was reported.

MARKETS NOT RIGHT TO START EXPORTING

Banker Explains That Foreign Fields Are Suffering From Price Drops.

STUDY URGED FOR PRESENT

To Prepare for Future Activity; Tactful Attitude Needed Now on "Slow" Accounts.

A warning that the agitation of export possibilities may stampede many manufacturers into the trade at a time when export fields are suffering from about the same depression in commodity prices that has affected this country was sounded yesterday by a prominent banking official who specializes in foreign trade matters. For business reasons he asked not to be quoted by name. While praising the increased interest being shown by business men who never before sought foreign markets for their goods, he cautioned against launching into such commerce at this time without a thorough knowledge of its pitfalls.

"Even for the seasoned exporter," he continued, "the present is more of a time for the 'mending of fences' than for the seeking of new accounts in export fields. Old established customers in many cases are hard pressed for cash and are asking extensions on their drafts. This is particularly true in Brazil, Colombia, Uruguay and several other South American countries, where falling prices on the main agricultural products, such as coffee, cocoa, wool and hides, have brought about serious depression.

Exchange Problem Also Met.

"Added to these difficulties is the fact that even though the foreign customer is able and willing to pay, the exporter has further trouble in collecting promptly the full amount of his bill because of unfavorable exchange conditions. Such conditions obtain in many foreign markets, including Australia, New Zealand, Brazil and Peru. The drop in exchanges in these and other countries ranges from 10 to 15 per cent below normal.

"For those whose interest in foreign trade has just been awakened, I would suggest that they devote the next few months to a careful study of potential markets for their goods, thereby building the groundwork for a profitable participation in the field when conditions are more favorable. They can use the intervening months to the best advantage by studying the tariff laws, customs regulations, credit conditions and national buying habits of the countries where they believe their products will find good markets.

"The Department of Commerce, export departments of banks and other foreign trade specialists will be the best sources for acquiring such information. In pursuing such studies it is possible that a manufacturer may discover that his own product is especially adapted to some current demand in a foreign market and be able to start selling there at once. If he has a small or medium-sized plant it would be better for him to deal through an export agent than to attempt to swing the burden of direct selling himself."

See End of Depression.

The general opinion among export authorities, he stated, is that the depression in foreign markets will disappear in six or eight months, but a speedier improvement is looked for if the bond market in this country recovers to the point where foreign loans can be floated here again. In the meantime, he pointed out, there is no reason for being unduly pessimistic, as such "off" seasons occur every so often in foreign trade just as they do in domestic business.

In concluding his remarks this banker expressed the hope that experienced exporters would adopt a tactful attitude toward their foreign customers who have been temporarily embarrassed by the turn of events in their countries.

"This is a time of vital importance to the future of our export trade," he added, "because American firms have the opportunity to disprove the oft-repeated claim that they are 'fair-weather' friends who lose patience with customers who through no fault of their own cannot meet payments on time. Tact and patience must be used in dealing with reliable foreign customers who ask extensions. A high-handed attitude now will lose a valuable account and place a tool in the hands of those who are striving to gain ground in export markets at the expense of this country."

To Study Industrial Marketing.

The first conference of the new Industrial Marketing Division of the American Management Association will be held at the Blackstone Hotel, Chicago, on March 5 and 6, it was announced yesterday. The division is headed by C. R. Cary, vice president in charge of sales of the Leeds & Northrup Company.

Buyers' Wants.

Rate: 90 cents an agate line.

Contracts Offered.

CONTRACTORS Wanted—Experienced in making evening wraps. Crillon Evening Wraps, 1,384 Broadway.

Offerings to Buyers.

Rate: 90 cents an agate line.

General Merchandise.

TYPEWRITER ribbon manufacturers take notice. Owner of foreign spool factory is at present in New York for a few days. Firms interested in any kind of spool for any type machine will urgently state requirements. E 905 Times Downtown.

MIDDY TRIANGLES, guaranteed, all pure silk, mostly standard red, some tan, cerise, brown, navy; $4 dozen; 2-10; regular value $9. Mason & Co., 2 Park Av., New York.

NEW YORK ENGINEERING COMPANY
Manufacturing Engineers. Established 1905
75 West Street, N. Y. C.
Development, Manufacture, and Repair of special machinery, also welded and riveted steel plate construction.
2 plants in Yonkers, N. Y.

WORMSER & CO.
Commercial Financing
Advances on Merchandise
50 Fifth Ave., N. Y. Phone Algonquin 3360

Fewer Bankruptcies Likely To Be Filed Under New Rules

Considerable decline in the number of bankruptcy cases filed in Federal courts here is presaged by the attitude which credit men for many leading business houses have taken toward the new rules governing such cases that became effective last week, it was learned yesterday.

The indications are that many future liquidations of bankrupt estates will be carried out under common law deeds of trust or so-called attorney-in-fact arrangements. These have been gaining in favor for some time, largely because of the greater returns to creditors.

TO TEST SILVERWARE PLAN.

Producers' Guild Will Begin Study in Washington on March 2.

The Sterling Silversmiths Guild of America, with the cooperation of the retail jewelers in Washington, D. C., will start on March 2 a campaign of intensive promotional activities in that city which will continue through the remainder of the year. The campaign, in effect, will be a scientific test of a balanced, coordinated promotion plan based on careful and thorough research. It is being undertaken with the idea that if it proves sufficiently helpful in solving the special problems of merchandising silverware in one city it will be extended to others.

Alexander Vincent, secretary of the guild, will supervise the work as regional director. Mr. Vincent said yesterday that his organization will carry on the campaign to determine for individual sterling silver manufacturers the relative and collective value of their advertising, promotion ideas, sales helps, &c. With the assistance of the Washington jewelers, he added, the effectiveness of each separate promotional activity will be checked thoroughly.

Washington was selected for the test, Mr. Vincent explained, because it has a population as nearly representative of all kinds and classes of people as any in the United States. It also has an active local jewelers' association, through which the plan can function, and is a good market for sterling silver.

To Establish Trade Name Bureau.

Work on the establishment of a trade name registration bureau by the Textile Converters' Association will begin here early next month, following a meeting of the board of directors for final ratification of the project. Initial ratification of the bureau was made by the board soon after its new set-up was completed, and the wash goods group of the association has also sanctioned it.

END OF STRIKE MEANS BUYING INCREASE HERE

Orders Reflect Improvement in Weather—Dress Coat Lines Offered.

With the ending of the strike in the dress trade, a much larger number of buyers is expected here this week, according to the résumé of the market report of Felix Lilienthal & Co., especially prepared for THE TIMES. Orders last week reflected improved weather conditions in a number of sections of the country. Interest in Spring merchandise is now predominant, although sales goods are still being sought in some instances.

"Coat manufacturers," the report continues, "are now showing an extensive line of dressy coats, which up to a week ago had not been completed. The fur-trimmed coat is shown mostly in soft, dull finished materials, whereas the untrimmed coat is most popular in the coverts. The outstanding furs used are black or white galyak, ermine, fitch, broadtail and galapan. In colors, black and pirate blue are outstanding, with green and tan following.

"In dresses, the short-sleeve frock continues to be good in both plain and printed crepe. It is also being shown in jacket styles. In silk suits the peplum effect jackets are outstanding. We expect the silk suit to be in greater demand later in the season, when milder weather will permit doffing the coat. The trend in sports wear favors the knitted suit in pastel colors, which, along with the regulation three-piece outfits, feature Eton jackets. Boucles continue to be popular.

"Fur houses are preparing for a good scarf business this season. Foxes of all descriptions are being featured, as are stone and baum martens. We find that most all neckpieces are cheaper this season than they were last year, with the exception of white foxes, which are just as high.

"Millinery manufacturers are working on straw hats of all descriptions, including the braid hat, as well as the body type. The baku and pedaline braid are being shown, but in the popular price hat only. Ribbon hats are selling well in some localities, as they are taking the place of the felt hat for immediate wear. The dressy hat features the lace effect hair braid, which is being shown in either the small off-the-face or turban style.

"Blouses have become very important items because of the vogue for suits. One of the new models is the collegiate or short-length blouse, about twenty-three inches long, with polo sleeves or elbow lengths. Particular treatment is being given the neckline of blouses, draped effects, cowl neck and the new Vionnet style being outstanding. The predominating colors are eggshell, vanilla, souffle haze, pink and peach. The tailored blouse is also receiving attention."

English Tailoring from England

THE authentic character of the raglan style is only achieved by real English Tailoring and finest Scotch Tweed—both at their best in the latest Maenson Coats from England—now at exclusive establishments in America.

MAENSON CLOTHES

Made by JOSEPH MAY & SONS, LTD. of Leeds, England.

Name of nearest agent on request.

American Representative:
EDGAR B. WALTERS ORGANISATION, INC.
245 Fifth Avenue, NEW YORK.

MERCHANTS are invited to inspect the 1930 Maenson Collection. A few exclusive agencies for Maenson Clothes are still available.

Wholesale Only

GIFT AND ART MERCHANDISE
HOME FURNISHING WARES
From the Markets of the World
PRESENTED BY AMERICAN CREATORS AND IMPORTERS AT THE
NEW YORK NATIONAL SHOW
HOTEL PENNSYLVANIA
February 24th to 28th

Featuring Every Known Item of Gift and Art Wares gathered from World Marts concentrated in one large Wholesale Buying Market for Buyers' and Retailers' convenience. This vast Exhibit includes Home Furnishing Wares, Costume Jewelry, Pottery, Glass, Lamps, Linens and thousands of other unique wares—all quick selling items in public demand.

HOURS—9 A. M. to 9 P. M. Not open to the public.

Wholesale Only

WHERE WILL YOU BUY YOUR BOYS' PANTS FOR SPRING?

Why not get acquainted with us? Why not look at the only advertised line? Why not look at a line of pants that offers you the new patterns, the new ideas from the largest mills at popular prices? Why not buy your boys' pants from a house that sells the largest stores? We are selling our merchandise only on one basis—VALUE. Value in variety—in size—in make—in price—in delivery. We "fill in" sizes for you as you need same. Are you going to be in New York? Then come up to see us. If you are unable to call, why not write for a copy of our new Spring price list?

O.K. Knee Pants 737 Broadway New York

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Sunday advertisements accepted until 8 P. M. Friday. Rate $1.00 an agate line daily; $1.20 Sunday. Bank and business references required.

The New York Times will pay a reward of $100 to any one causing arrest and conviction for obtaining money under false pretenses through fraudulent advertising in its columns.

Capital Wanted.

WANTED.

Group of men with $5,000 or more are invited to join a syndicate formed to take over operating plants and further extend the business to 100 licensees.

We control patents covering the manufacture of superior reinforced concrete units used in houses, garages, factories, &c.; during the past 8 years thousands of buildings have been constructed with this product.
T. D., 78 TIMES.

MANUFACTURING CORPORATION, LOcated in Massachusetts, established over fifty years, highest reputation, successful, practically individually owned, has opening for live, experienced man as sales manager, plus $25,000, to invest in quarter interest, for expansion; age 28 to 38; college graduate preferred; ample experience in office routine and sales promotion necessary; moderate salary to start; highest references required; no agents. Y 2197 Times Annex.

PARTNER WANTED WELL ESTABLISHED general contracting business in Hudson River Bridge zone, New Jersey, making specialty of concrete, sewer and landscape work; object, to expand business; middle-aged man preferred; one who can handle men; experience essential but not necessary; small amount of cash required. Y 2241 Times Annex.

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY — GENTLEman with executive ability, able and willing to invest $10,000 to $20,000, can secure treasureship or other executive position, active or semi-active, in a well-founded near-by New Jersey mortgage corporation; interested principals will be furnished full information upon exchange of personal and bank references. Y 2163 Times Annex.

WELL-ESTABLISHED RETAILER operating a chain of ladies' novelty stores, with annual sales of over $500,000, requires $25,000 additional capital.

Party interested will find proposition worth while. B 668 Times Downtown.

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY FOR sales executive to purchase half interest established business, manufacturing advertised staple product, national distribution; annual sales over $100,000; expanding rapidly; $10,000 cash necessary; partner's ill health necessitates immediate action. David Murray, 405 Broadway.

$200,000 BACKING REQUIRED BY SUCcessful realtor and builder of 25 years' experience; profits are tremendous by this special method; money can be turned over several times yearly; investor's capital will be secured and returned after which profits will be divided on a 50-50 basis; principals only answer. 521 5th Av., Room 825.

OPPORTUNITY. OPPORTUNITY. Established progressive factory in N. Y. C., fully equipped, needs about $3,000 working capital; manufacture staple, profitable article with steady increasing market; everything open for investigation; investment with selling services preferred; principals only. Write immediately. Y 2242 Times Annex.

AN OPENING FOR LIVE EXPERIENCED man, with selling ability, plus capital to be used in expanding beverage business nationally; the business has shown actual net returns on its first year of operation; selling [illegible]

[illegible]

Capital Wanted.

CORPORATION LOCATED NEW YORK City has $50,000 invested in plant and equipment for manufacturing essential product in universal demand, requires $25,000 operating capital; owns unlimited supply raw material; ready to begin operation; market assured; profits large; attractive investment; opportunity for party having necessary capital; thorough investigation invited. Address Mr. K., Room 605, 100 East 42d St., New York City.

CAPITAL FOR EXPANSION.
Retail dress man, thoroughly experienced, having three shops, best locations New York, wants to associate with man-woman having $10,000-$25,000 to invest in opening more popular price shops; would be interested merging with another chain dress shops; big money can be made in dress chain business combining experience with capital. B 376 Times.

ASSISTANT TO PRESIDENT AND TREASurer for subsidiary corporation about to be organized, which will serve the public at one-half the prevailing price in one of the world's greatest industries; an investment of $6,000 required; a substantial interest and salary commensurate with position given; please give telephone number in reply. P 309 Times.

NEW YORK CORPORATION, NOW SELLing high-priced equipment for firing small power plants and commercial heating plants, now having equipment made under contract, has attractive proposal for machinery manufacturer who can invest $50,000 for half interest; excellent profits; experienced management, best bank and personal references. Y 2337 Times Annex.

DEVELOPERS OF PROMINENT SUBDIVIsion (Westchester), with established profit will share with desirable party investing $5,000 to $10,000; most unusual opportunity for large earnings with adequate security. For inspection and details apply John W. Hubbard, Bar Building, White Plains, N. Y. Tel. White Plains 8024.

RELIABLE, WELL-ESTABLISHED AND advertised soft drink manufacturer enjoying good business with most modern, fully equipped plant desires right type business man to devote full time as office manager and to invest $25,000 for business expansion; equal holdings and profits; reasonable salary; investigation invited. S 399 Times.

WANTED—$50,000 TO $150,000 FOR EXPANsion in going business; exceptional opportunity to acquire an interest in legitimate enterprise which is sound and offers unusual returns; thorough investigation invited; references exchanged; principals only. 1503 N. Y. Times Newark, N. J.

MOORING DEVICE FOR AIRSHIPS; WILL reduce to only one person ground crew; safe, efficient landing and taking off; patent pending; would like to hear from concern or private party capable of commercializing. Y 2347 Times Annex.

$25,000—WANT SOME ONE WITH THAT amount to become interested in patent medicine business that is being reorganized; only those capable of quick action and able to put up that amount need apply. Y 2309 Times Annex.

ALASKA CHAIN TRADING POST IN BEST fur-producing section, organizing; needs additional capital March 1, 1930, $50,000; June 1, 1930, $100,000; active or inactive interest; principals only. Vance R. McDonald, Fairbanks, Alaska.

WANTED — SALES ORGANIZER FOR Greater New York for two articles unusual merit; deposit $1,000 on merchandise required for exclusive contract. 1502 N. Y. Times Newark, N. J.

[illegible]

Capital to Invest.

[illegible]

Capital to Invest.

$10,000 TO $25,000.
Will invest in an established concern now doing successful volume of business who could substantially increase their sales and could further expand with additional working capital; mention type of business and how long established in reply. S. G., 683 Times Downtown.

$25,000 TO INVEST IN ESTABLISHED business; no patents or schemes; prefer manufacturing proposition where additional money with services will help to increase output; give full particulars and telephone number. 30 New York Times, Brooklyn Branch.

YOUNG MAN, 30, EXCELLENT BUSINESS executive, will invest $2,000 and services in reliable mercantile business (manufacturing preferred); also 10 years' experience as accountant, credit man and salesman. B 392 Times.

WILL INVESTIGATE ENTERPRISE HAVing sound and attractive possibilities with view of personal investment and further financing if required. R 627 Times Downtown.

EXPERIENCED EXECUTIVE WILL INvest $10,000; established business preferred. Y 2240 Times Annex.

COAL BUSINESS, GOING CONCERN, wanted, preferably Long Island. B 685 Times Downtown.

BUSINESS MAN INVEST $10,000 WITH services; well established business. B 368 Times.

NEWSPAPER MAN WILL INVEST $3,000 in weekly newspaper or printing business. Y 2342 Times Annex.

WILL ACCEPT PARTNERSHIP IN OR purchase public stenographic business. H., 3,802 Broadway.

GAS STATION WANTED, LARGE OR small; city or vicinity. L. A., 173 Times.

Financing.

CORPORATION FINANCING.
We will undertake the financing of acceptable established corporations through the sale of securities.
JOHN C. FELL & CO., INC.,
25 Broadway. New York City.

Wanted—Miscellaneous.

READY-TO-WEAR STORE.
State of Georgia or surrounding territory; in 100 per cent location only; must be a live proposition; state full particulars strictly confidential. Y 2326 Times Annex.

WANT TO BUY FOR CASH, DRUGGIST sundries, pharmaceuticals, rubber goods, toilet preparations, anything sold in drug store; job lots, close-outs or discontinued numbers. Ray Sales Co., 43 East 19th St.

I WOULD BE INTERESTED IN MAIL order business large enough to be paying proposition. R. H. Thomas, 249 2d St., Lakewood, N. J.

LADY WANTS BUSY 6-DAY PLACE; sandwich shop, fine rooming house preferred; investigation; write full particulars. Y 2170 Times Annex.

WILL BUY OR LEASE BUSINESS PLOTS in active locations, Manhattan, Bronx, Westchester County; principals. B 371 Times.

WANTED TO LEASE HOTEL OR FURnished room house, 60 to 100 rooms; give price, location. M. B., 106 Times.

WANTED, EQUIPPED RESTAURANT seating about 250; Manhattan; owners only. Selwyn, Trafalgar 8414.

PATENTED, PATENTABLE ARTICLES OR devices for manufacture and sale. B 390 Times.

Business Connections.

OPPORTUNITY FOR EXPERIENCED SALES executive, official capacity, with young growing and progressive manufacturing company, expanding its national business, [illegible] with four men covering New England wishes exclusive sales arrangement with concern seeking outlet with electrical, radio or hardware jobbers, dealers and manufacturers; references exchanged. Y 2167 Times Annex.

[illegible]

CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT (IRISH descent), broad experience, good social mixer, maintaining well equipped office and successfully established business, will purchase clientele retiring accountants. B 363 Times.

FACTORY REPRESENTATIVE with Pittsburgh office and excellent trade, with industrials and large distributers, wants to represent reliable manufacturer on commission basis; Western Pennsylvania and Ohio territory. Y 2102 Times Annex.

SECURE EXCLUSIVE JOBBING RIGHTS for "Robbin Brand" 5c nuts and candies; requirements: automobile, selling ability, $500-$1,000 capital; wonderful opportunity. Call, write, Robbins Co., 28 Dodworth St., Brooklyn, near De Kalb-Broadway.

WANTED, BY REPUTABLE WOODWORKing manufacturer with large sales organization, the manufacturing or distributing or exclusive sales rights to some new article or invention; large capital available. Y 2140 Times Annex.

EMPLOYMENT AGENCY, FEMALE OFFICE help, established, would consolidate with similar agency located between 34th and 42d Sts.; offers executive supervision to capable manager. B 386 Times.

COMPOSER OF WELL-KNOWN POPULAR melodies wishes to collaborate with clever lyric writer; good opportunity. When writing please give telephone number. Y 2247 Times Annex.

INVENTORS, EXPERIMENTAL WORK, demonstration models; expert clock mechanisms, cam motions; moderate charges; exact work; secrecy. William Vogel, 96 Warren St. Established 1906.

CENTRAL NEW YORK REALTOR DESIRES to cooperate with AI large propositions, any location, homes, estates, acreage, business, exchanges, standing timber, prepared pulpwood tracts, hardwood, oil. Y 2217 Times Annex.

UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY OFFERED TO GENTLEMAN HAVING EXECUTIVE ability and good social standing to invest $60,000 to $100,000 in sound established enterprise.
Executive, S 346 Times.

METAL GOODS MANUFACTURER, WITH national reputation for excellence, desires meritorious articles to manufacture; low operating costs; world-wide selling organization. Box 549, Middletown, Conn.

DO YOU NEED SALES?
An organized sales force desires lines of merit for Eastern and metropolitan territory. Write B 317 Times.

MANUFACTURERS' ATTENTION.
Jobber will handle exclusive novelty items to be sold department stores, florists; finance if necessary. B 343 Times.

WOODWORKING CONCERN MANUFACturing hardwood and fancy boxes doing annual business $125,000 will consider merger with firm of similar nature. B 338 Times.

WANTED A DISTRIBUTER TO TAKE THE output of small plant manufacturing a new hand-cleansing cream retailing at 15 cents in large can. Y 2142 Times Annex.

REALTY OPERATOR AND BROKER DEsires to purchase interest in established brokerage concern. B 327 Times.

INVENTOR HAVING LOW COST PATENted rubber novelty of universal utility, seeks party to market. Y 2118 Times Annex.

ACCOUNTANT DESIRES TO BUY ADDItional clientele; will pay liberally. B 335 Times.

REAL ESTATE BROKER, EXTENSIVE EXperience, offers opportunity active partner. B 351 Times.

PHOTO ENGRAVING PLANT SEEKING expansion, will buy, sell, merge or consider partner with established trade. P 295 Times.

SALESMAN IMMEDIATELY AVAILABLE; 10 years' following; willing to invest. P 301 Times.

Business Connections.

GENTLEMAN, 43 YEARS OLD, AMERICAN, English-born, with good family connections, holding high positions New York past 25 years, desires an association with an individual or corporation; his personality and capabilities are such that he desires the unusually difficult task; near business failures have been his specialties; any remuneration will be based on his success in whatever venture he undertakes. B 339 Times.

MAKE SOME REAL MONEY in business of your own where the profits go into YOUR pocket.

Buy a DINING CAR on easy payment plan; returns are immediate and overhead small; experience unnecessary; we help you start right; many prosperous men have entered this field with success.

THERE IS ROOM FOR MORE.

Get in a business that is open day and night—that pays the year around.

P. J. TIERNEY SONS, INC.,

LARGEST DINING CAR MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD,

188 Main St., New Rochelle, N. Y.
Phone New Rochelle 8580.

PATENTS, COMPLETE ENGINEERING, drafting, mechanical facilities for building labor-saving machinery for manufacturers; successful development of inventions, crude ideas, models, instruments; precise workmanship; secrecy; established 1906.
BERNARD & HELLER,
31 East 17th St., N. Y. C. Algonquin 3512.

MANAGER — OLD - ESTABLISHED MIDtown real estate firm seeks partner or backer to open own office; have complete records and staff of men, control agency of Manhattan property and have many good deals pending; attorney (retired or active) or real estate operator preferred. P 305 Times.

HOUSTON, TEXAS, SALES EXECUTIVE with organization for big outlet wants exclusive rights meritorious proposition for distribution throughout Texas; must be good seller with big possibilities. B 686 Times Downtown.

PRINTING PLANT FOREMAN; $5,000 INvestment in a plant now doing $300,000 business annually will give you a financial interest and complete control of printing department. For particulars, write for appointment. B. B., 815 Times Downtown.

CARDBOARD OR PAPER ARTICLE.
Have you an article of merit with large sales opportunities? Well-established and equipped manufacturer will develop same; give full particulars in first letter. Y 2137 Times Annex.

METAL ARTICLES.
stamped parts, assembled devices, models, dies; spraying, plating, other finishes; most completely equipped for speedy, economical production. Metalcraft Co., 390 2d Av., near 23d.

MANUFACTURER OF PROVEN PATENTED device for windows seeks connection with capable men to distribute product on extremely profitable basis; exclusive territory [illegible] collegian, 37; invest capabilities, capital; reputable business; investigation. B 385 Times.

[illegible]

NEGOTIATOR, RESPONSIBLE BUSINESS man, broad international domestic experience, assist negotiating business matters, overcoming obstacles. B 673 Times Downtown.

WE WILL MATCH OUR CAPITAL AND established machine shop against your cooperation and idea on labor saving machine, novelty or tool; state particulars first letter. Blair Tool Corp., College Point, N. Y.

CORPORATION HANDLING, ASSEMBLING, operating public utilities wants active vice president; some investment necessary; rare opportunity; qualifications, references. Y 2233 Times Annex.

CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, small clientele, seeks non-certified associate, also purchase, manage clientele, percentage basis. B 378 Times.

ENGINEER DESIGNS, CONSTRUCTS SPEcial machinery, supervises plants; satisfactory terms. Call representative. Telephone Longacre 3088. Polachek, 1,234 Broadway.

FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE EXECUTIVE desires to affiliate himself with well established concern; references exchanged. Write Box M. O., 347 Times.

ACCOUNTING FIRM SEEKS CONNECtions to increase volume, or will purchase practice of retiring accountants. A. B., 231 Times Downtown.

SALESMAN LEAVING FOR CALIFORNIA wants to take along good specialty line; commission basis; best references. P 308 Times.

CAN YOUR PRODUCT BE USED BY cigar, cigarette manufacturers? I know this industry intimately. B 681 Times Downtown.

EUROPEAN MANUFACTURING RIGHTS arranged by responsible American for American items patented abroad. B 675 Times Downtown.

METAL ARTICLES OF ANY FINISH, parts or assembled; dies, models, machinery. Tudor Metal Products Corp., 127 West 25th.

MANUFACTURER NON-COMPETITIVE electrical specialty desires contact with successful retail sales organizations; no investment required. M. I., 389 Times.

ASSISTANT, EITHER SEX, CATSKILL professional Summer theatre and guild school, business, professional opportunity; small investment. L. M., 483 Times.

MANUFACTURING WATERPROOF, DUCK, leather mail bags, zipper bags, gym mats, hampers, filter cloth, airplane cloth. Stanley, 359 Broadway.

WANTED FOR GERMANY—AGENCY OF American manufacturers desiring efficient representation; highest references; state full particulars. S 500 Times.

METAL GOODS MANUFACTURER, WITH well-equipped machine and tool shop, can handle additional work on contract basis; also metal stamping. Triangle, 147 W. 26th.

SOUTH AMERICAN, TEN YEARS' EXPErience, wishes to develop export departments on commission basis. B 602 Times Downtown.

COLLEGE WOMAN, BUSINESS MINDED, secretarial experience, understand German, acquire interest established business; minimum investment $2,000. B 402 Times.

CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT WILL purchase entire clientele or individual accounts; cash or terms. 1,775 Broadway, Room 602.

WHAT ARTICLE CAN YOU SELL THAT requires our sewing, cutting, riveting, snap machines plant; we are experienced in rubberized novelties. B 382 Times.

FACTORY, FINANCE AND SALES FACILIties available for a real product. Industrial Research Bureau, 113 West 42d St.

BUSINESS EXECUTIVE IN MECHANICAL line, going to Germany, will be glad to execute commissions. Z 2476 Times Annex.

GERMAN MANUFACTURER, WITH AMAZing results, patented article, wants territory agents; principals only. B 389 Times.

Business Connections.

GO INTO A BUSINESS THAT ALWAYS PAYS.

No matter how conditions are generally, a dining car pays you consistent profits day and night the whole year 'round.

KULLMAN'S de luxe diners are sold on easy payment plan, if you desire; experience unnecessary; overhead small; has all the conveniences of the most modern restaurant.

Write for further details and catalogue of models.

KULLMAN DINING CAR CO., INC.,
390 Frelinghuysen Av., Newark, N. J.

I AM A MAN OF BROAD BUSINESS EXperience, formerly one of the owners of a large department store; as general manager, all the branches of the business were under my supervision and direction; I am open for a proposition from responsible parties who want to make connection with a live up-to-date man, capable of organizing, reorganizing or take over the management of any branch of a business. Y 2160 Times Annex.

EXCLUSIVE TERRITORIAL RIGHTS OF imported bathing preparation for Jersey City, Boston, Connecticut and Philadelphia open to business men of organizing ability and capital of $1,000; an unusual opportunity to become independent with unlimited possibilities for the future. 147 West 42d, Room 505. Open Sundays.

CREATIVE PRACTICAL IMPROVEMENT of novelties, toys, tools, products, machines, to create new markets, stimulate sales, reduce costs, insure patent protection, or avoid infringement. Joseph J. O'Brien, patent engineer-attorney, Room 1729, 15 Park Row. Barclay 2178.

WOODWORKING COMPANY IN SPECIAL line, doing $100,000 business annually, will consider association with woodworking company with manufacturing space. B 679 Times Downtown.

LIGHTING FIXTURE OLD-ESTABLISHED firm, manufacturer of woodfibre and wrought iron, will sell outright, take partner, or will consolidate; our lease expires shortly. Y 2291 Times Annex.

MANUFACTURER'S REPRESENTATIVE for nationally known company producing die castings, stampings, rustless steel, &c., chrome plating, metal goods; high quality; low costs. S 384 Times.

MANAGER WANTED, CAPABLE ASSUMing full charge new, rapidly growing service for garages; national scope; small investment to assure sincerity; exceptional profit possibilities. Y 2284 Times Annex.

MANUFACTURER'S AGENT, AMERICAN, sailing shortly for British India; familiar with that market; is open for few more agencies. Write A., Room 1003, 29 Broadway.

ESTABLISHED SALES FORCE, NEW YORK office, prepared to take line for disposition metropolitan territory; merchandise must have merit; local or out of town concerns can make good connection. Y 2141 Times Annex.

SPECIALTY SALESMAN OF EXECUTIVE ability wants line for Chicago and vicinity; have office and experience managing salesmen. A. Bregman, 549 West Washington, Chicago, Ill.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT, SENIOR, WISHES connection with small practice where competent help and financial assistance can be used to mutual advantage. B 676 Times Downtown.

BUILDER SPECIALIZING IN CONSTRUCtion of Summer camps and bungalows will build anywhere in New York State or vicinity; finance part of job. S 263 Times.

METAL STAMPING, WIRE FORMING, springs, plating, spraying, welding, assembling, tools, dies, &c; lowest prices; try us! Venus, 526 17th St., Brooklyn.

EXPORT EUROPEAN REPRESENTATIVE. Open for proposition; quantity article to sell to England, France, Germany, Spain. B 366 Times.

BASIC INVENTION WILL ELIMINATE $3,000,000 yearly labor, eventually controlling straw hat industry; principals only. B 400 Times.

MANUFACTURERS, INVENTORS, $50,000 machine shop; development and precision work at low rate. Blair Tool Machine Corporation, College Point.

VALUABLE TERRITORY OPEN TO FInancially responsible person who is capable of distributing unique educational system for babies. S 328 Times.

CREAMERY MANAGER TO TAKE CHARGE of sales and distribution; investment desirable but not essential. B 680 Times Downtown.

I WANT TO CONNECT WITH FORMER tie manufacturer or one who is fully experienced to start small tie factory; investment small. B 325 Times.

HAVE OFFICE AND SALES ORGANIZAtion; would like to handle lines of raw materials or parts for the manufacturing trades. S 287 Times.

ACCOUNTANT WILL CONDUCT PRACtice of retiring accountant, percentage basis. B 381 Times.

GIVE US A CHANCE TO ESTIMATE ON your die-castings and metal stampings. Gornine-Hakanson Co., 229 East 144th.

CAN INVEST $1,000 AND SERVICES IN good proposition. R. L., 273 Times.

VALET CONCESSION IN HOTEL WANTED. Buy or lease. B 359 Times.

Distributers Wanted.

DISTRIBUTER WANTED FOR NEW YORK State and New Jersey for nationally advertised roofing materials regarded as best of its kind and endorsed by nationally known users; excellent opportunity for an aggressive and responsible party to enter a highly profitable business with moderate investment; experience in line not necessary. Our vice president and general manager will be at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, N. J., Monday and Tuesday. Phone Mr. J. S. Greene for appointment.

EXCLUSIVE TERRITORY OPEN for new, non-competitive products perfected by well-known inventor, used by you and every one every day in the year and consumed daily by banks, business houses, railroads, insurance companies, &c., in large quantities; sells on one minute's demonstration; no investment required.
C. & B. Laboratories, 305-311 E. 46th, N.Y.

A CHANCE IN A LIFETIME.
Territories available: Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Buffalo, Boston; exclusive sales franchise; new patented automatic lubricator for elevator guide rails; every building a prospect; if you have successful record as specialty salesman and can invest $1,750 in initial supply of merchandise proposition should net you large income and chance to establish permanent business; will be given selling help to start; references exchanged. P 303 Times.

DISTRIBUTER—LIFETIME OPPORTUNITY for organization or individual to handle new exclusive building material, secret patented process, one of the finest and most practical products of its kind for new buildings and remodeling old ones; easy to stock, easy to sell; architects and builders everywhere are specifying it; exclusive territory and liberal terms with big permanent earning possibilities to energetic men who have at least $1,000 to get started in this business. Write for appointment. Y 2149 Times Annex.

VALUABLE VIRGIN TERRITORY IN THE State of New Jersey available to wide-awake, energetic man who is interested in distributing widely known, nationally advertised and recognized health appliance; capital needed, $3,000; write for appointment. Y 2289 Times Annex.

SALESMANAGER WITH CAR FOR EXCLUsive sales of Fan-O-Plane products in the State of New Jersey. Territory virgin. Man must be wide awake and able to manage salesmen. No cash investment required. Write Y 2215 Times Annex.

DISTRIBUTER, COMMISSION; KNIVES, slitters, slotters, perforators, rule sold to box, newspaper, printing, cloth, metal, paper trades; exclusive opportunity; give experience, details; New York and other cities. 1,836 Lawrence, Toledo, Ohio.

SENSATIONAL BATHING NOVELTY; buyer department, drug, novelty, sport-goods stores, stands on beaches from coast to coast; orders must be given now; sample dozens assorted $3.50. Cabiri Co., 1,200 Broadway.

EXPORT AN DDOMESTIC DISTRIBUTORS wanted, medicinal product of originality, needed almost every home; territory to men financially capable. Room 803, 43 West 16th St., New York.

SOLE DISTRIBUTER FOR FRESH FROZEN grape juice; latest scientific method; cannot turn sour; large California vineyard with New York storage; reference required. Room 316, 108 Fulton St., New York City.

DISTRIBUTER WITH CAR, MANAGER local office metal specialties, capable arranging national scope permanently; liberal commission. Y 2138 Times Annex.

NEW CLOTH—SOMETHING DIFFERENT, polishes all kinds of metal, glass, kitchen utensils, &c., without powder, paste or liquid; it is washable. B 364 Times.

Stores, Department & Concessions for Rent.

FOR SALE OR LEASE
unrestricted business plot, 99x179, North Front St., Kingston, N. Y.; build to suit tenant. Write Forman, 22-12 40th Av., L. I. City.

COAT, SUIT AND MILLINERY DEPARTments for rent in busy corner dress shop, large window display; good merchandise only considered. Estilles Shoppe, 630 Madison Av.

CONCESSIONS AVAILABLE IN EXCLUsive gown shop adjoining 5th Av. in 50s; millinery, jewelry, lingerie, &c. S 423 Times.

100 PER CENT LOCATION, LARGE STORE next 5 and 10; long lease, low rent, Stamford, Conn. S. C., 183 Times.

Business Connections.

Stores, Department & Concessions for Rent.

SPACE TO LET, DOMESTIC MILLINERY, cosmetics, shoes, notions, and large basement equipped for household, rugs, oilcloth, &c.; formerly the Surprise Store, corner 83d St. and 3d Av. T 445 Times.

LARGE ESTABLISHED 42D RETAIL store will sublet entire ladies' department in basement with window space 7x17 feet on street floor; exceptional proposition for a large operator. T 448 Times.

PART OF PARLOR FLOOR; LEXINGTON Av., near 57th St.; reasonable. Volunteer 1151.

38TH ST., 29 WEST—LARGE STORE leases, departments, dresses, shoes; commission basis.

SIGNBOARD SPACE FOR RENT AT Broadway and 42d St.; $50 monthly. Kunzinger, 516 5th Av. Vanderbilt 6411.

SPACE FOR CUSTOM SHIRTMAKER. Shotland & Shotland, tailors, 15 West 45th St.

For Sale.

Plants and Factories.

FACTORIES OR INDUSTRIAL SPACE.
Trenton, N. J., located 60 miles from New York and 30 miles from Philadelphia, offers economic advantages to industry; splendid labor conditions, good transportation facilities, proximity to markets; factory buildings for sale or space available for rent. Inquire Trenton Chamber of Commerce.

FACTORIES. CHESTER FACTORIES.
Large and small factories for rent, with or without railroad sidings or water front facilities; labor cheap and plentiful; taxes low; special concessions to highly responsible firms. Delaware County Chamber of Commerce, 511 Welsh St., Chester, Pa.

WELL-KNOWN CANDY FACTORY AVAILable for one with $12,000 capital; completely equipped with refrigerating plant, modern candy-making machinery; new building; reasonable rent. Further information call at 653 11 Av., 14th floor, or telephone Lackawanna 3044.

WATERFRONT, RAILROAD SIDING, 200x 250, Brooklyn end proposed vehicular tunnel; cold storage, general warehouse; can be used any purpose; property and going business; price, terms reasonable. 53 N. Y. Times Brooklyn Branch.

PENNSYLVANIA FACTORY — SUBSTANtial buildings; low operating cost site; siding; small water power plant; commercial power available; at 65 cents sq. ft; easy terms. Y 2310 Times Annex.

FOR SALE—CURTAIN PLANT, COMPLETE, reasonable; good opportunity. Howard, 541 Broadway.

LARGE PRINTING PLANT; GREAT REturns on investment and chance for increased business. B 397 Times.

CLEANING AND DYING PLANTS FOR sale with latest equipment. Y 2252 Times Annex.

SILK DYING PLANT WITH LATEST equipment for sale. Y 2225 Times Annex.

Stores and Shops.

LEADING MEN'S STORE OF THE TOWN for sale; long-established men's wear business is offered for immediate sale; located in a thriving community in Westchester County; enjoys a good, steady clientele; 100% location and surrounded by live-wire concerns; most modern front and interior equipment; carries the most popular of nationally known lines of merchandise; good lease; good terms; owner retiring from business. Y 2201 Times Annex.

DEPARTMENT STORE, ESTABLISHED 37 years; average sales, $100,000; 4 business floors; groceries, dry goods, notions, underwear and shoes; inventory, $16,500; 2 squares to business centre; city 80 miles from New York. Y 2269 Times Annex.

DENTAL OFFICE, EQUIPPED OR UNequipped, in office building on 5th Av. in Grand Central zone; unobstructed north light; use of reception room, dark room and laboratory. Caledonia 4731.

JACKSON HEIGHTS—TWO-STORY BUILDing and store, will sell or lease store reasonably; best location. Walter O'Meila, Jackson Heights, 37-59 82d St. Subway station.

DRUG STORE; HUDSON RIVER MANUfacturing town, near New York; population, 3,500; exceptional opportunity progressive druggist. Write M. E. Rohrbaugh, 114 Liberty St., New York.

LADIES' SPECIALTY SHOP IN THE 80S, one of the best sections of New York; low rent, long lease, A1 reputation for 14 years; must sell; buyer must have not less than $5,000 cash. S 421 Times.

BEAUTY SHOPPE, WESTCHESTER, 20 years established; exclusive clientele; 5 booths; rent $100; weekly $250; terms. S 422 Times.

COMMERCIAL STATIONERY - PRINTING store, well established; good livelihood; building coming down; must be moved; sacrifice. B 380 Times.

FOR SALE—STORE WITH IMPROVED dwelling above; suitable for bakery; population 2,000; no bakery here; $7,000. Box 431, Cornwall-on-Hudson, N. Y.

I AM IN A POSITION TO TURN OVER TO the right party a hardware store fully equipped for business. Any fair cash offer will be considered. Y 2246 Times Annex.

DELICATESSEN, DAIRY AND GROCERY, Madison Av., uptown; 10-year lease, all new fixtures and equipment; will sacrifice at quick sale. Stuyvesant 6066, ext. 14.

TEA ROOM, LEXINGTON AV., NEAR Bloomingdale's; long lease, cheap rent; sell reasonable. Regent 7290. Herbst, 784 Lexington Av.

RADIO—AUTO SUPPLY—HARDWARE.
Retail store, established business; 30 miles from New York City; on main street; $8,000 cash required. B. C., 143 Times.

HOSIERY STORE, 34TH ST. OPPOSITE Macy's; sacrifice $250; cheap rent. Lackawanna 5349.

53D ST., EAST—HIGH-CLASS BRIC-A-BRAC store for sale; owner going abroad. B 356 Times.

STORE FOR MILLINERY APPAREL OR shoes; near Gimbels; reasonable. T 447 Times.

DRESS SHOP (PRIVATE TRADE), LEXington Av. (60s); sell, sublet reasonable. Regent 7290.

COAT DRESS DEPARTMENT, 100% LOCAtion; established department. The Corrine, 62 South 4th Av., Mount Vernon, N. Y.

CLUB ROOMS, LARGE, FACING BROADway, fully equipped. Hotel Claridge, 44th and Broadway.

VALET SHOP FOR SALE, LARGE, NEW apartment house; reasonable to right party. Inquire Laundry, 510 East 72d.

LADIES' DRESS SPECIALTY SHOP, PORT Chester, N. Y. Fox Clothing Co., 392 Atlantic St., Stamford, Conn. Phone 42417.

FOR SALE—MEN'S FURNISHING STORE; a large stock. 406 Main St., Paterson, N. J.

SELL LADIES' UPSTAIRS SHOE PARLOR, 100% location; reasonable. B 398 Times.

Hotels and Furnished Room Houses.

MOUNTAIN RESORT FOR SALE; MODern inn, cottages and camp; 50 acres; secluded amidst the higher southern Catskills; superb view; well suited for private club or institution; delightful climate; reasonable. Box 892, Kingston, N. Y., uptown.

LAKE GEORGE—ESTABLISHED 50-ROOM furnished hotel; 400 feet shore; State road entrance; 4 acres, steamboat dock, beach; bargain, $38,000; also other Adirondack hotels, tourist inns. Deininger-Leavitt, Lake George.

FURNISHED 100 ROOMS, ELEVATOR building, near Drive; 87 rooms, midtown, substantial income; 34 rooms, 23d, lease 17 years, cash $3,000; good bargains, small hotels, 40s, 8th and Lexington Avs.
L. D. STERN, 1,819 Broadway.

FURNISHED ROOMING HOUSE, NEW fireproof building; elevator; running water every room; gross income $28,000; 15 years' lease; rent $11,000, including free steam, hot water; only $15,000 cash required. Hughes, 143 West 72d. Endicott 7810.

BROADWAY (VICINITY 104TH ST.)— Eleven-year lease, consisting 4-5 room apartments and stores; elevator building; 100% rented; sublease; only security required. Suite 1004, 551 5th Av. Vanderbilt 4858.

FAMOUS OLD CAPE COD INN FOR SALE; season June, October; near beach and golf; 18 rooms, dining room seats 100; excellent clientele; completely equipped; $20,000; $5,000 cash. B 384 Times.

SACRIFICE WONDERFUL BEACH FOR pavilion, bath houses; fronts large lake; terminal for thousands of automobiles and buses; great bargain; terms. Browne (Apt. 3A), 225 West 106th St. Phone Academy 8017.

APARTMENT, BROADWAY SECTION; seven rooms, attractively furnished home; income; permanent tenants; reasonable. B 396 Times.

CONVENT AV.—FURNISHED HOUSE, 11 rooms, 3 baths; monthly income, $335; rental, $175; convenient location; good living for right party. Sasse, 2,096 8th Av.

HOTEL, 12-STORY FIREPROOF, 212 rooms; 4 stores; vicinity 5th Av.; lease 21 years; fine income; security only required. Farrell, 1,775 Broadway, Room 765.

FURNISHED HOUSES, HOTELS, LEASEholds, properties, all sections, some direct from owners; easy terms; investigate. Winters, 239 East 79th.

INN AND TEA ROOM, BEST LOCATION Westchester County; 8 guest rooms, dining rooms seat 60; lease and furniture for sale, bargain. S 420 Times.

TWO 8-ROOM APARTMENTS, WELL FURnished, rented; exceptional; West 85th. Endicott 4462.

HOTEL, 150 ROOMS; VICINITY CENTRAL Park; only security required. Crowe, Times Building.

APARTMENT 8 ROOMS, 90S; WATER every room; attractive, newly redecorated; big income over rental; illness. E 275 Times.

RESORT COLONY, HOTEL, 32 BUILDINGS; golf. Poe, 355 Albany Av., Kingston, N. Y.

HOTEL MAN WANTS HOTEL, MANHATtan; has $15,000. Box 820, 303 West 42d.

For Sale.

Hotels and Furnished Room Houses.

COUNTRY HOTEL—FURNISHED.
Two acres, Route 21, State road to Berkshires, 6 miles Poughkeepsie, artery new Poughkeepsie-Highland bridge; three-story hotel, large porch, 2 complete baths, 2 washrooms, 17 large, airy bedrooms with closets; newly equipped dining room 18x44, fireplace, 10 windows, living room 18x38; amusement room 18x20; card room, kitchen, pantry, closets; large two-story garage, chicken house, sheds, other outbuildings; heat, electricity, abundant supply water; purchased place 4 months ago with intentions of operating first-class dining room and hotel; have redecorated major part, but due to unexpected illness must abandon plans; this place positively out of the ordinary; must be seen to be appreciated; can prove it; price $28,500, half cash; principals only. Owner, Y 2320 Times Annex.

FOR RENT—A HIGH-CLASS INN, EXquisite New England Colonial house, 13 rooms, unfurnished; attractively landscaped grounds; all improvements; in select neighborhood 50 miles New York, adjacent to heavily traveled highway; owner would consider joint operation on share basis with party of proved experience and responsibility with requisite capital and connections. Y 2202 Times Annex.

UNUSUAL ROOMING HOUSE OPPORTUnity in the West 90s, near Central Park West; 5 apartments aggregating 40 rooms in one building; been successfully conducted for years as rooming house; can be rented furnished or unfurnished. Apply Room 507, 2,061 Broadway. Tel. Endicott 8558.

WEST 80S—4-STORY AND BASEMENT, 17 rooms, 7 baths; furnished; fully rented; refined clientele; profitable lease; big income; rent $300. B 375 Times.

Restaurants and Tea Rooms.

RESTAURANT, NIGHT CLUBS—MR. LIVE Wire, here is opportunity! For rent, long lease, at Connecticut's most progressive Summer resort; open policy; ideal conspicuous location for night club, restaurant; 4,200 sq. ft. floor space, 3,000 sq. ft. roof space. Primrose's, Walnut Beach, Milford, Conn.

RESTAURANT, HIGH CLASS, LOCATED in progressive city, main thoroughfare, among theatres and business section; long lease; fully equipped; low rental; $40,000 proposition sacrifice for $25,000; reasonable terms; splendid opportunity; quick action necessary. B 394 Times.

HOTEL EXECUTIVES.
Why lose money on your dining room? You can rent on percentage basis to experienced manager, or will do analysis work and show you how to operate profitably; small fee. M. Gurvitz, Room 803, 570 7th Av., city.

OPPORTUNITY TO LEASE RESTAURANT in large apartment hotel on the Boardwalk at Long Beach, L. I.; attractive all-year proposition to the right party. For particulars, write H. L. Ross, president hotel, or phone Long Beach 3000.

CAFETERIA, LARGE STORE, FULLY equipped, located at subway station; excellent opportunity; sell reasonable; good lease. I. Steinberg, 37-66 82d St., Jackson Heights, L. I.

BELVEDERE HOTEL, RESTAURANT, large grounds, water front, bath beach. J. A. Voorhees, 1,740 Cropsey Av., Brooklyn. Tel. Bensonhurst 0020.

TEA ROOM-RESTAURANT, VERY ATtractive proposition; excellent location; doing good business; price reasonable. Inquire Unity, 38 Park Row.

THRIVING RESTAURANT, REASONABLE rent; personal reason. 30 Lexington Av. Gramercy 6341.

LUNCHEONETTE, SODA, WAFFLE SHOP; Broadway, Times Square; $1,600 weekly. Crowe, Times Building.

TEA ROOM, MIDTOWN, FINELY equipped; closed Sundays; $1,500 cash. Crowe, Times Building.

LUNCHEONETTE, FINANCIAL SECTION; reasonable price; owner leaving town account health. Barclay 7921.

TEA ROOM FOR SALE, BROOKLYN; SACrifice to quick buyer. B 379 Times.

Garages.

GARAGE, NOW GOING BUSINESS, IMportant thoroughfare Manhattan; ample transient storage, night storage trucks, large gas sales, easily accessible; offered for net lease by owner; no charge for good will; principals only. S 325 Times.

SELL OR EXCHANGE, 2-STORY GARAGE, 100% fireproof, about 40,000 square feet, will be completed April 1; good location, Bronx; particulars. Phone Olinville 0584.

GARAGE AND AGENCY FOR POPULAR line of cars; large monthly storage; building 75x100; growing Bergen County town; lease and option $10,000. Write P. O. Box 614, Ridgewood, N. J.

GARAGE FOR SALE OR LEASE, 20,000 sq. ft.; residential and business; new apartment house development; opportunity of a lifetime. Harry Levy, 85 Gramatan Av., Mount Vernon, N. Y.

GARAGE, NEAR CENTRAL PARK; 175 cars now; very unusual chance; partners disagree; only $8,000 required. Crowe, Times Bldg.

BUILDING TO LEASE, 1,275 JEROME AV. (167th-168th St.)—Suitable service station, laundry or other business; reasonable rent. Inquire M. Schnurmacher, 150 East 93d.

GARAGE BUILDING, MANHATTAN, IN hands second mortgagee, for sale or lease at bargain, including business. Smith, 1,457 Broadway.

SUCCESSFUL GARAGE, OWNERS WISH to retire; $35,000 required for the business. Phone Hollis 6354 for full particulars.

Patents.

MANUFACTURING PLANT, 27,000 SQUARE feet and 5,400 yard space, for lease or sale, on extremely reasonable terms; now housing company manufacturing metal goods; low manufacturing costs. H-Company, Middletown, Conn.

INVENTIONS PATENTED; CONFIDENtial advice; inventions developed; representative for Blair Tool and Machine Corp.; trademarks registered. Edward Gottlieb, patent attorney, 5 Beekman St., New York.

INVENTIONS WANTED—HAVE YOU A patented or unpatented idea, new process or product for sale? If so, write Hartley's Reliable Patent Sales Agency, Inc., Bangor, Me.

PATENT YOUR INVENTION; CALL WITH sketch or model; free confidential advice; literature. Polachek, Patent Attorney-Consulting Engineer, 1,234 Broadway (at 31st). Phone Longacre 3088.

INVENTIONS PATENTED AND EXPLOITed by former United States Patent Office examiner. Address Benj. Webster, Suite 1708A, 15 East 26th St., New York.

INVENTIONS, TRADE-MARKS, COPYrights protected; book, data free. Charles A. Clark, 110 West 40th, New York. Longacre 9979.

INVENTIONS PATENTED, TRADE-MARKS registered; prompt service, moderate terms. Peter M. Boesen, Attorney, 100 William St. Telephone Beekman 7947.

FOR SALE—PATENT ON USEFUL 10-cent metal novelty. T 439 Times.

ELLIPSOGRAPH COMPASSES, PATENT for sale. Stoessel, 240 East 69th St.

Leases.

21 YEAR RENTAL, FINEST LOCATION IN Southern New England, between Liggetts and Woolworth stores, first floor, 8,949 square feet; ground floor, 8,805 square feet; second floor, 8,949 square feet; third floor, 3,304 square feet; 100% sprinkler system; parking space; possession arranged. Thos. N. Cook, Inc., 217 State St., Westport, Conn. Telephone 1008.

99-YEAR LEASEHOLD.
Close to Times Square, 118,000 square feet of land and 300,000 square feet of manufacturing space; produces exceptionally high income; only partly improved and balance can be improved out of existing income; priced right but prompt investigation necessary. S 306 Times.

15 YEARS' VALUABLE LEASE, 25-FOOT building, 57th, for long term; 3d Av. corner, 50s; other valuable 3d Av. locations for chain stores available.
D. STERN, 1,819 BROADWAY.

50 ROOMS, NEWLY ALTERED BUILDING; 21 years' lease; low rental; ideal location; rooming; immediate occupancy. Wells. Trafalgar 8414.

VALUABLE THIRTY-YEAR LEASEHOLD, adjoining Woolworth, Kresge, Grant and other chain stores; owner retiring; reasonable. B 374 Times.

Miscellaneous.

BUNGALOW COLONY DEVELOPMENT, Lake George; sell bargain, terms; consider sales organization or builder. Y 2139 Times Annex.

GAS STATION, LARGE ROAD STAND, brick garage, tools, furnished cottage; road 9-W; $1,000 cash, balance $15,000 easy terms. Schoentag, 355 Albany Av., Kingston, N. Y.

GAS STATION REFRESHMENT ROOM, most attractive place in Westchester; 10-year lease; no good-will; small security. Pelham 2406.

CAMP, SALE OR RENT, PURCHASE OPtion, Adirondacks; fully equipped 100 boys; occupancy coming Summer; bargain. B 370 Times.

CORNER BUILDING, 36TH AND 9TH AV., especially suitable pawnbroker, market; rental, percentage gross receipts. Wyckoff, Murray Hill 8392.

BUSINESS SITE, 20x100, AT BATHING beach and boardwalk fronting boulevard; ideal for concessions; $1,500, easy terms; no brokers. A. R., 600 Times.

CAMP, WALKILL RIVER, ON NEW YORK bus line; 14 acres, 5 bungalows; mile village 6,000. H. M. Green, Real Estate, Stone Ridge, N. Y.

ESTABLISHED LETTER SHOP IN GRAND Central district; sacrifice quick buyer. Vanderbilt 7341.

GYMNASIUM GARMENT CENTRE, LOW rent, lease, clientele; quick action. B 401 Times.

LONG-ESTABLISHED, PAYING COMMERcial employment agency, with exclusive clientele. B 399 Times.

For Sale.

Miscellaneous.

CANDY CHAIN, THREE STORES WITH tearoom-soda, includes candy factory; established reputation quality candy; extremely low price, based on equipment value and stock; ranges between $25,000-$30,000. This is a legitimate proposition requiring immediate action. Write phone number for appointment. B 361 Times.

ESTABLISHED MAIL-ORDER BUSINESS retailing a patented processed violin, having wide circulation; profitable business with promising future; must be sold account death; no experience necessary; will sell at inventory; amount about $6,000. The K. & S. Ins. & Realty Co., 110 East Lexington St., Baltimore, Md.

KATONAH—LARGE HOUSE ON SHADED plot, 112 feet frontage on Bedford Road; zoned for business; suitable for gas station and lunch room; prominent location; ample parking space. Apply for particulars to Burke Stone, Inc., at Hotel Gramatan. Telephone Bronxville 1480.

DOCTOR'S OFFICE, HEART OF GARMENT centre, 22-story building, suitable for compensation doctor; old established day hospital same floor; other attractive features. 141 West 36th, near Broadway. Apply Room 203 or your own broker.

FULLY ESTABLISHED BUSINESS, EXcellent trade, manufacturers of brass and bronze products for 40 years; sold everywhere in United States, Canada, Cuba and Mexico; owner retiring from business. Y 2076 Times Annex.

FOR SALE—SANITARIUM FOR NERVOUS cases, well established, very attractive; excellent income; splendid opportunity for physician specializing in nervous cases; terms arranged to suit; must be seen to be appreciated. Y 2113 Times Annex.

CORPORATION HOLDING SOLE UNITED States agency for exceptionally meritorious imported waterproofing cement; sell out on account of insufficient capital to market, or consider financial backing. Y 2073 Times Annex.

WILL SELL OUTRIGHT, OR ROYALTY, new wet, dry cleaning device for use in factories, public buildings, garages, household; sells $3.50; big hit, patented. W. B. Lynch, 118-36 195th St., St. Albans, L. I. Laurelton 4830.

LABORATORY, ESTABLISHED, FULLY equipped, manufacturing fine line of toilet preparations, &c.; valuable formulas; illness reason for selling; $2,500 cash required. Y 2218 Times Annex.

LUMBER YARD, NASSAU COUNTY, EXcellent location, on main highway; good office and sheds; can be purchased very reasonably; terms arranged. Z 2376 Times Annex.

COLONIC IRRIGATION, PHYSIOTHERAPY practice; centrally located; established clientele; 6 booths, fully equipped; receipts $600 monthly.
MERCHANTS SALES, 11 WEST 42D.

CAMP, COMPLETELY EQUIPPED, 30 acres, on beautiful lake in Adirondacks; ideal for children's camp; ready immediate use; sale or lease. M. Berenson, 1,328 Broadway.

TRADE JOURNAL IN PLEASANT FIELD; excellent one-man proposition; opportunity for young advertising or editorial man to purchase small going business; price $3,000 cash. H 506 Times.

FOR SALE—GYMNASIUM, WELL ESTABlished; block from Grand Central; excellent clientele; occupies top floor and roof; owner forced to sell in order to take over family business. Y 2292 Times Annex.

FOR SALE—WHOLESALE CAKE ROUTE, Manhattan-Bronx, doing $600 week; day work, no Sundays; genuine opportunity; comfortable living; $3,000, includes new Dodge. President 1266.

GAS STATION PLOT FOR LEASE, NORTHeast corner 1st Av. and 108th St., 26 feet by 21 feet; $150 per month. B. Z. Construction Co., 175 5th Av.

FOR SALE—CONFECTIONERY STORE AND building; established 10 years; near school; death in family; $6,500. J. N. Engbers, Cornwall-on-Hudson, N. Y.

FOR SALE, ALL OR HALF INTEREST IN going business, manufacturing automobile specialty; could be bought for $2,000; good reason for selling. B 358 Times.

BILLIARD PARLOR, ESTABLISHED; long lease; 10 tables; $2,325. 759 Allerton Av., Bronx.

CAMP FOR BOYS FOR SALE; ESTABlished 25 years; fully equipped for 100 boys; terms. R 640 Times Downtown.

ROUTE OF VENDING MACHINES; PROFitable; suitable part-time proposition. B 268 Times.

DENTIST, SELL OFFICE, GERMAN neighborhood, 16 years established. Horowitz, 1,640 York Av.

MOVIE THEATRES, 1,500-1,000-600 SEATS; money-makers; partnerships. Blake, Times Building.

GASOLINE STATION, REFRESHMENT stand to lease; main highway; established over 3 years. Box 145, Brightwaters, L. I.

Business Service.

REJUVINATE YOUR BUSINESS!
Idea Man! Offers ideas that are new, different, modern; copy that attracts, sparkles, lives; booklets that visualize, dramatize and glorify; have resigned brilliant agency career to free lance in the unusual in advertising. Paul B. Adams, 56 East 66th St., New York City.

MANUFACTURERS AND INVENTORS—EXperimental work, models, dies, tools, instruments, light machinery; general manufacturing; inventions developed; customer's supervision in machine shop permitted; over 30 years specialized experience. Manufacturers' & Inventors' Electric Co., 228 West Broadway, New York.

SELL DIRECT THROUGH THE MAIL TO your customers and prospects with facsimile typewritten letters; 500 facsimile typewritten letters, $2.50; samples on request. Carol & Co., 132 Nassau St. Beekman 8279.

YOUR BUSINESS SOLD; CITY, COUNTRY; capital and partners procured; substantial business, all lines on hand. Crowe Agency, Inc., Times Bldg. Established 43 years. Bryant 7153-7154.

MACHINE AND TOOL SHOP, FULLY equipped; can do all sorts of work of accuracy such as tools, dies, stamping, &c. Grand Engineering Works, Inc., 173 Lafayette St., New York City.

QUICK PRINTING—200 LETTERHEADS, $1.50; billheads, cards, envelopes, same; combination, $5; booklets, folders, labels; everything low; stock certificates, bonds. Call's, 13 East 16th St. Algonquin 6147.

CORPORATIONS ORGANIZED; NEW YORK, New Jersey, $90; Delaware, $85; includes fees, outfit. Marks, 1,547 Broadway. Chickering 1622.

ACCOUNTANT, CREDIT MAN, EXECUtive, also notary public, will render services evenings and Sundays; price reasonable. B 319 Times.

COMMERCIAL ART WORK, DESIGNING, covers, figures, lettering; reasonable free lance cost. Schacks' Art Studio, Room 611, 258 Broadway. Worth 1777.

INVESTIGATE BEFORE, NOT AFTER, YOU put money in a business, home or investment. N. L. Wymard, Investigator. Barclay 5463. 11 Park Place.

TOOLS, DIES, MACHINERY BUILT ON contract, stampings, experimental work, manufacturing. Universal Tool Co., 226 Jelliff Av., Newark.

PRINTING OF BOOKLETS, FOLDERS, AC., with sales-producing ideas; low-cost production. The Charles Press, 24 East 12th St. Stuyvesant 2195.

ADVERTISE—28 WORDS IN 62 DIFFERent country town newspapers, $3.40; lists free. Miller, Box 14, Elmwood Station, Syracuse, N. Y.

BAD DEBTS. WHO OWES YOU MONEY? We'll collect it. Bonded lawyers everywhere. NO CHARGES UNLESS SUCCESSFUL. COMMONWEALTH CORP., 1,457 B'WAY.

EVERY CLASSIFIED ADVERTISER should have a copy of our catalog; it's free; 25 years in business. Ankrum Advertising Agency, 100 N. La Salle, Chicago.

MULTIGRAPHED LETTERS, $2.50 THOUsand; quick service. Federal, 8 East 12th. Stuyvesant 9431.

SELL YOUR PRODUCTS THROUGH MAIL order; we show you how. Particulars. Franklin Mail Order Experts, 246 5th Av.

ADVERTISE 300 COUNTRY NEWSPAPERS, 28 words $12; lists, catalogue. Owl, Times Building.

ANY BUSINESS SOLD QUICKLY AND confidentially; city or out of town. Merchant Sales, 11 West 42d. Pennsylvania 7225.

TAX REPORTS — RELIABLE INFORMAtion furnished by experienced practicing accountant. Taussig, 1,265 Broadway.

Business Loans.

DO YOU NEED MONEY?
We lend from $50-$5,000 for one year or less. Repay us weekly, monthly; quick, confidential service; no bonuses; supervised by State Banking Department.
PEOPLES INVESTMENT CORP.,
447 7th Av., near 34th St.

DO YOU NEED CASH?
We purchase conditional contracts, chattel mortgages, payable in monthly instalments; quick service.
A-BELL INDUSTRIAL CORPORATION,
141 West 19th St. Chelsea 2731.

OUTSTANDING ACCOUNTS FINANCED; liberal terms; low rates; confidential, quick service assured.
MERCANTILE FACTORS CORPORATION,
230 5th Av. Ashland 9506.

ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE DISCOUNTED on DIGNIFIED and SATISFACTORY basis. Absolute confidence assured.
271 Madison Av. Caledonia 4787.
MADISON INDUSTRIAL CORPORATION.

MONEY ADVANCED MANUFACTURERS, wholesalers on outstanding accounts, lowest rates; quick service assured; consult us.
STANDARD TRADING COMPANY,
1,170 Broadway (cor. 28th). Ashland 0604.

WE FINANCE CORPORATIONS ON THEIR outstanding accounts; low rates; confidential service. Chase Trading Co., 119 West 57th St. Circle 6186.

FIRST ASPARAGUS OF SEASON ARRIVES

But Most Vegetables Advance in Price, State Survey of City's Markets Shows.

VEAL DECLINES SHARPLY

Butter Remains Unchanged While Eggs Rise—Live Poultry Supply Moderate.

The approach of Spring is presaged by the arrival of California fresh asparagus on New York's wholesale markets last week, Dr. Arthur E. Albrecht, director of the New York office of the State Department of Agriculture and Markets, reported yesterday in his weekly survey of market conditions. The shipments consisted of small lots, however, he said, and the wholesale price put asparagus into the luxury class. Week-end prices were $18 to $50 per dozen bunches, or at the rate of $1.50 to $4.16 per bunch.

The supply of asparagus, according to the report, will be somewhat larger than last year. The acreage in South Carolina has increased 10 per cent, while in Georgia there has been a decrease of 7 per cent. There has been an increase of 3 per cent in California, the report shows, and small increases in Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan and Washington. In the late producing group of States the acreage remains the same as in 1929.

String Beans Advance.

"The price trend on fancy tender string beans, "continued the survey, "was higher at the close of the week and the demand was more active. The best green and wax beans sold as high as $7 per bushel hamper.

"Owing to the scarcity of bunched beets, prices advanced. On the other hand, increased supplies of carrots resulted in a decline in prices. Beets came chiefly from Texas, while carrots came from Arizona, California and Texas.

"Prices on Southern new crop cabbage steadily advanced during the week. Supplies were relatively light and the demand active. The season for New York State old crop cabbage is fast drawing to a close. To meet the city needs for this type of cabbage, local dealers are having imports made from Holland.

"California cauliflower was one of the reasonably priced vegetables in the wholesale markets during the week. Supplies were generous and more than adequate to meet trade requirements. Crates of 8 to 14 heads sold at the close of the week at $1 to $1.75 per crate.

"Florida was the chief contributor of the city's supply of celery. Shipments recently have met a ready sale and prices have slightly advanced.

"After an absence of many weeks, several small shipments of cucumbers grown outdoors in Florida were received this week. Most of the cucumbers available at this season of year are drawn from Cuba, the Isle of Pines and Porti Rico, in addition to the supplies grown under glass in Western States.

"Escarole and chickory have both been scarce and in consequence prices on these two salad vegetables were sharply higher.

"Eggplants and green peppers have varied greatly in price again this week, due to the wide range in size and quality. Both of these vegetables were in plentiful supply.

"Heavier arrivals of the iceberg type of lettuce from California have brought about a steady price decline. The latest wholesale prices on crates containing four to five dozen heads ranged from $2.50 to $4.25 per crate. On the other hand, higher prices were obtained for the big Boston lettuce, particularly when fancy. The supply is very limited and arriving exclusively from Texas and Florida.

"Green pea prices have recently advanced. The demand has been more active and supplies have become less plentiful. Most of the peas received during the week were imported from Mexico.

Spinach Shows Decline.

"Texas continued to furnish most of the city's supply of spinach. However, arrivals caused a price decline. Most of the wholesale transactions were reported at $1.12½ to $1.25 per bushel basket.

"Tomatoes were reasonable in price at the close of the week. The supplies were drawn from Cuba, the Bahama Islands, Mexico and Florida.

"The butter market practically remained unchanged during the week at wholesale. The egg market, however, showed a sharp advance in prices at the end of the week, owing to diminished receipts and a good demand.

"The live poultry market was moderately supplied with broilers but only lightly supplied with fowls and chickens. Trading was fair and prices remained on a level with the previous week.

"Country dressed calves declined sharply in price on account of the heavy supply of Western dressed calves. To meet the competition from these calves, wholesale receivers of country dressed calves had to sell their arrivals at low prices. Consumers, therefore, should be able to purchase veal at reasonable prices from their retailers."

PICKETING RIGHT UPHELD.

Maryland Court of Appeals Reverses Decision Against Union.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 15.—The right of members of labor unions to protest against employers' activities by peaceful picketing was upheld in a decision by the Maryland Court of Appeals today.

The verdict was in the case of the International Pocketbook Makers' Union versus Orlove & Schwartz and M. J. Fox & Co., pocketbook manufacturers, whose employes recently were enjoined from picketing during a strike which terminated several weeks ago.

Under an earlier decision by Judge Bond in Baltimore the strikers were enjoined from picketing because it was held an unlawful strike. The decision pointed out that the strike followed efforts of New York labor leaders to organize workers in Baltimore for the benefit of New York manufacturers who were under contract to the union.

Attorneys for the union appealed the decision, which was reversed today.

MARY E. NEWHALL KILLED.

She and Companion Die in Auto Crash at Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—Miss Mary Elizabeth Newhall, day supervisor of nurses at the Episcopal Hospital and a member of a socially prominent Philadelphia family, was killed today when the automobile in which she was riding crashed into a telegraph pole after a tire blew out.

Kenneth C. Wallace, 24, a chemist, who was driving the car, died several hours later without regaining consciousness. Robert W. Walker, his room-mate is expected to recover.

Miss Newhall was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Newhall of Media. Her father is the manager of the Manhattan Rubber Company here. She was educated at the Springside School, Chestnut Hill, and was graduated from the Nurses' Training School at the Episcopal Hospital in 1926, making her début socially in the same year.

STORY OF TRANSPORT TOLD IN EXHIBITION

Models of Clermont, Lincoln's Carriage and Mississippi Boats Shown.

FIRST AIRPLANE ON VIEW

Display, Costing $150,000, to Be Placed on Truck for Tour of the Country.

An exhibition giving the story of transportation in America, in pictorial and relief form, the result of about one and one-half years of research work and in producing, at an estimated cost of $150,000, was shown yesterday at the studio of Messmore & Damon, creators and producers, at 404 West Twenty-seventh Street.

Next month the exhibition will be taken on a coast-to-coast tour, in a specially constructed truck. It is said to be the only one of its kind ever prepared, and is an instructive production, with every detail historically correct.

A booklet has been prepared for the tour, to make it easier for the public to understand the historical events portrayed, from the Indian pony drag, one of the early modes of transportation in America, to the first airplane, "Kitty Hawk."

The exhibition is built in ten tableaux. Each tableau takes in a space of from six by fourteen feet to seven by twenty feet, according to the space allotted. The figures are one-third life size, and most of them carved out of wood. The ground and water effects are made on rubber glue and can be rolled up, like the borders and back drops, for touring purposes. The frame-work is made of sectional tubing, and the houses can be folded up. The coaches, carriages, steamboats and early automobiles, however, are perfect working models.

Miniature Western saddles of sixty years ago, army saddles of the Civil War period, and little buckles, bits, chains, rings and stirrups, in use more than 100 years ago, are on view.

Robert Fulton's "Clermont," an exact reproduction taken from drawings made more than a century ago, and the Robert E. Lee and Natchez steamboats, made famous by the Mississippi River steamboat race in the 70's, are included in the exhibition; also a model of Abraham Lincoln's carriage.

The first locomotive, called "Tom Thumb," is shown in a race with a gray mare, a momentous event of Aug. 30, 1828, in Baltimore, Md. George B. Sleden's self-propelling vehicle, operated by a gas engine, is displayed in a setting depicting West Lake Avenue, Rochester, N. Y., where it was used in 1877.

The Conestoga wagon, the first long distance freight carrier, the Deadwood coach, and the pony express, in which Buffalo Bill (William F. Cody) is shown, are among other early modes of transportation presented.

WILL LECTURE ON PEACE.

Prof. Eagleton to Give Weekly Talks Under Auspices of N. Y. U.

The Extension School of Adult Education of New York University has started a course of lectures on "Government Steps Towards World Peace," to be conducted by Associate Professor Clyde Eagleton and given in the Washington Square Building of the University on Tuesday evenings, from 8 to 9:30. The first lecture was delivered on Feb. 11.

The course will cover the subject in al lits phases including the basis and membership of the Community of Nations, the development of the ideal of peace, arbitration, disarmament, the Permanent Court of International Justice, the working of the league system, &c.

HONOR SUSAN B. ANTHONY.

Hundreds at Rochester Mark Birth Anniversary of Suffragist.

ROCHESTER, Feb. 15 (AP).—Hundreds of persons in every walk of life paid tribute here today to the memory of Susan B. Anthony on the one hundred and tenth anniversary of her birth. Club women and school children took part in ceremonies at her grave in Mount Hope Cemetery and at the house from which she conducted her campaign for the emancipation of womanhood.

Miss Anthony was born in South Adams, Mass., Feb. 15, 1820, and in 1826 moved to Washington County, New York. In 1846 she came to Rochester. At that time Miss Anthony was an ardent worker for the cause of temperance, but in 1850, when she was denied the privilege of speaking at a meeting because of her sex, she turned to the campaign for equal rights for women.

Carlsbad Sprudel Salt

The natural remedy for CONSTIPATION

Drs. Ewald and Ortner regularly prescribe the natural Carlsbad Sprudel Salt dissolved in a glassful of lukewarm water early in the morning, and 2 at bedtime, which will insure certain and quick relief.

Use no substitutes. Write for booklet.
Carlsbad Sprudel Water, bottled at the springs, also imported by Carlsbad Products Co., New York

Famous HALF PRICE DAYS in Ludwig Baumann's February Sale

All Stores Open
MONDAY, WEDNESDAY AND SATURDAY NIGHTS

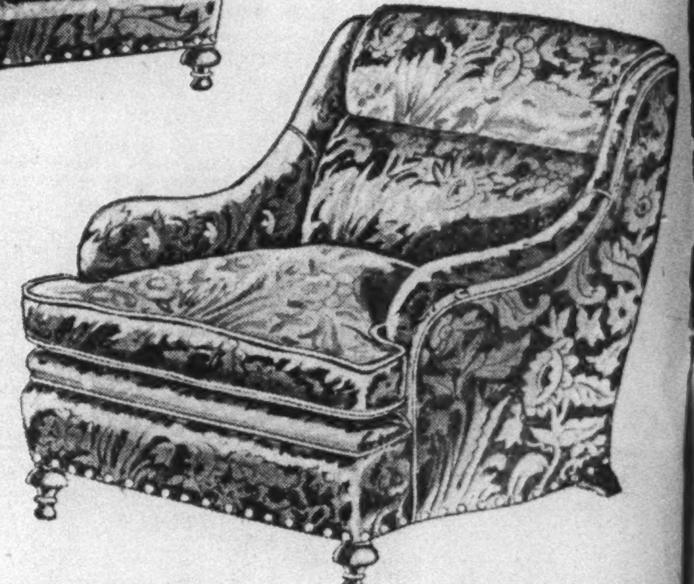
ALL New York is talking about the Ludwig Baumann HALF PRICE DAYS and the amazing values. Thousands of dollars' worth of the better kind of furniture reduced a full 50% to end our greatest February Sale. Broken lots, sample suites and odd pieces left out of suites being closed out at half price. In addition you will find furniture and homefurnishings reduced 15% to 40%! We show seven values to give you an idea of the savings. You'll find hundreds in our stores for every one that is advertised.

5% DOWN

18 Months to Pay

You may open an account with as large or as small a purchase as you want . . . including, of course, any of these advertised Specials! Weekly or monthly payments to suit.

If you prefer, you may open the usual charge account which allows payment in from 30 days to 6 months.



Your Choice
TAPESTRIES—MOHAIRS
BROCATELLES
in these colors
RUST — GREEN — RED
WALNUT — MULBERRY

HALF PRICE! Luxurious 2-Pc. Suite Filled with Hair and Down

$249

Regularly $395! A distinctively proportioned living room suite built along English lines. It boasts a luxurious pillow back for extra comfort. Has HAIR interiors, DOWN CUSHIONS, and all webbed construction. Also solid mahogany legs and the additional beauty of antique nails.

HALF PRICE! 4-Pc. Bedroom Suite

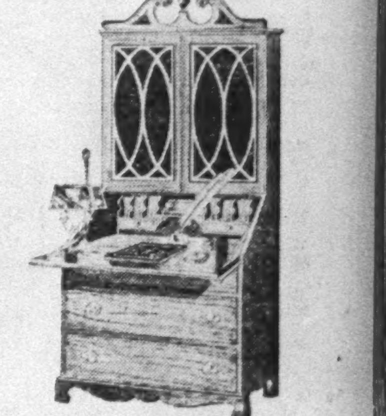
Five-ply veneers of American Walnut and Gumwood are enhanced by beautiful Mahogany overlays in this 4-piece bedroom suite. The pieces feature center drawer guides and French plate mirrors. Suite consists of dresser, full size bed, vanity, 50-inch dresser and chest. Twin beds, chair, bench and night table may be had to match.

$109
Regular $225 Value!

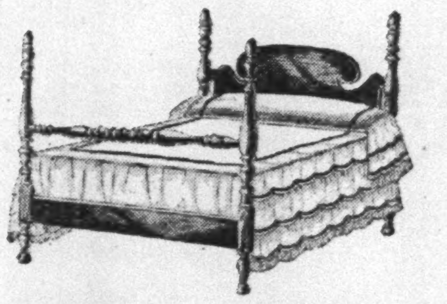
HALF PRICE! 34.50

Regular $69 Value! Note the diamond-pleated backs and shaped base. Consider that the seats, backs and sides are webbed, that the interiors are of moss and white cotton. Then think of being able to buy this chair for $34.50! Choice of tapestries in new smart colors.

SPECIAL! 37.50



Regularly $59.75! A handsome Secretary Desk sturdily constructed of mahogany veneers and gumwood. Will prove a very useful piece because of its three large drawers and roomy storage space for books or china and linens.

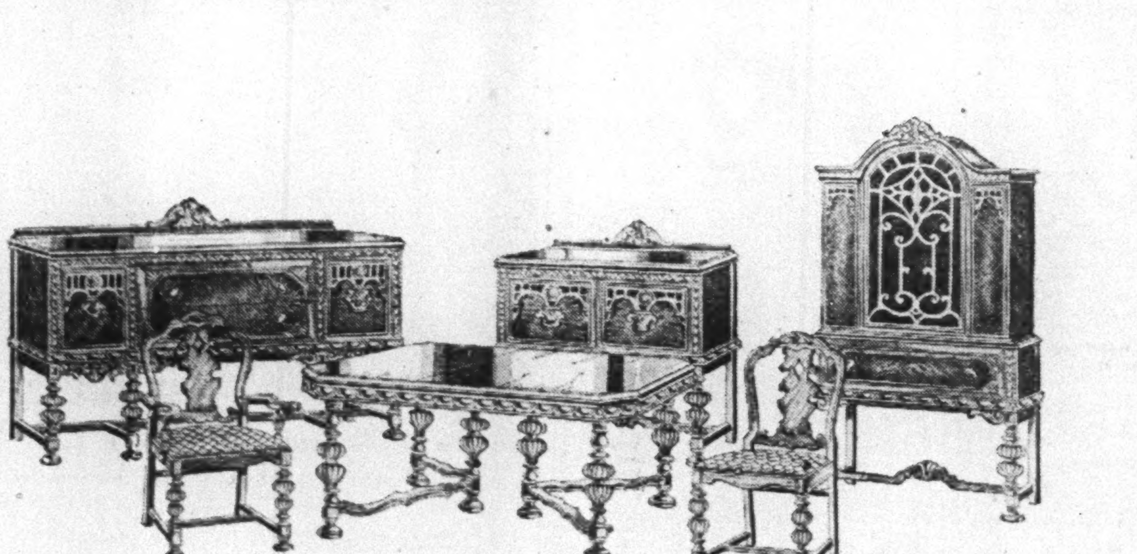


HALF PRICE! 14.84

Regularly $29.75! A Four Poster Bed, the typical Colonial style. This bed may be had in maple, mahogany or walnut veneers in all standard sizes.

HALF PRICE! 6.95

Regularly $13.95! This Boudoir Chair comes in your choice of GREEN, TAN or ROSE cretonnes. Well upholstered, with resilient springs contributing comfort. One to a customer.



HALF PRICE! 10-Pc. Dining Suite

A massive Jacobean dining room suite, developed in burl walnut veneers and maple grill work. The handles are hand carved. Suite consists of extension table, china cabinet, buffet, server, host's chair and five side chairs. The chairs are covered in an attractive tapestry.

$198
Regular $398 Value!

LUDWIG BAUMANN

35th Street EIGHTH AVENUE 36th Street

BRONX	125th STREET	BROOKLYN	NEWARK	JAMAICA
2918 Third Avenue Near 152nd St.	Between Lenox and Seventh Avenues	Our Only Store Hoyt & Livingston Sts.	Broad St., Cor. Central Ave. also 49-51 Market St.	Jamaica Ave. & Merrick Rd. Next to Valencia Theatre

Also 5 Stores devoted to Radio

OPEN MONDAY, WEDNESDAY AND SATURDAY NIGHTS

Section 3

EDITORIAL
TIMES WEEK-END
CABLE REVIEWS

The New York Times.

EDITORIAL
WATCH TOWER—CORRESPONDENCE
EDUCATIONAL

Section 3

E
Copyright, 1930, by The New York Times Company.
SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1930.

E

THE NEWS OF EUROPE IN WEEK-END CABLES

BRITAIN STILL CHEERY

Declines to Take French View That Naval Parley Marks Her "Tragic Hour."

NATION BACKS MACDONALD

With Conservative Party Divided, Political Prospects of Labor Party Are Seen as Bright.

By ERNEST MARSHALL.
Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald reported to the House of Commons this week that good progress had been made all along the line at the naval conference, and for once Parliament was content to accept this official, albeit possibly calculated, optimism as a fairly accurate survey of what actually had been accomplished since King George welcomed the delegates of the five powers at the inaugural meeting in the Royal Gallery of the House of Lords.

There is, however, an undercurrent of opinion that the situation in retrospect is better than the situation in prospect. The obstacles in front loom larger than the difficulties behind. There is no apprehension of serious danger of a break up.

The conference was called to treat the disease of bloated armaments. The patient has been examined at every angle and by every school of practitioner. National requirements have been exposed, as one commentator put it, in all their nakedness. All the doctors and surgeons have made their diagnoses. None of them can afford to let their common patient die for lack of agreement among themselves. The eyes of the whole world are upon them, and their future reputation depends upon the relief they obtain by whatever treatment they decide to follow.

There are some impatient observers calling for a surgical operation, but who is to apply the knife? Careful treatment is as yet all that is requisite, for the patient's organism is sound, and with good nursing and solitude and the prayers of peace lovers all over the world there is no reason to despair of his ultimate recovery. Universal disarmament may be an impossible dream, but limitation and even reduction of armaments fortunately remain within the range of international achievement.

Although the world was informed this week on the authority of a distinguished Parisian journalist that "this is Britain's tragic hour," there are not many people of judgment in London disposed to take such a gloomy view as all that of affairs generally and the naval conference particularly.

The Submarine Issue.

It is thought here that, as the First Lord of the Admiralty, A. V. Alexander, said, a great opportunity has been missed in failure to abolish submarines, but as general agreement on that point could not be reached, it is at least satisfactory that some understanding as to their regulation in size and restriction in use appears likely.

In the British contention for abolition of the submarine the main technical argument is that its value in warfare is not equivalent to its cost in construction and maintenance, and the hope is expressed that expert naval opinion of other countries will in course of time come to the same conclusion, and that in consequence unanimity may be found at some future conference.

At present the most regrettable feature of the stand made for the submarine is, in British opinion, that it reduces the possibility of cutting down costs of naval armaments, but with some exceptions there is tolerant acquiescence in the view that if other nations insist on submarines they will be paying a heavier price for their obsolescent theories than this country purposes to do.

Indeed, from looking upon the conference as marking her most tragic hour, Great Britain, on the whole, is inclined to consider that in point of prestige she has done more than fairly well for herself. What the average Englishman wants much more than prestige just now, however, is reduction of his taxation, and he will measure the comparative degrees of success or failure of the naval conference by the standard of his pocket.

A $4,000,000,000 Budget.

In little more than a month from now Philip Snowden will be introducing the budget, which at the lowest estimates will necessitate the levying of taxes to the amount of some $4,000,000,000. The Chancellor of the Exchequer has already intimated that he does not expect to be very popular when he lays down his estimates for the next financial year, and this week he has had the first taste of opprobrium likely to be heaped on his devoted head.

Winston Churchill, whose own experience with budgets should have taught him how impossible it is for the Chancellor of the Exchequer to give any indication of his plans till he is in the position to review the national finances as a whole, charged Mr. Snowden with motives of personal vanity and arrogance in refusing to pledge himself to maintain the duties on silks.

Mr. Snowden was relieved by the Speaker of the House of Commons from any necessity of repudiating the accusation, but Mr. Churchill will lose nothing by waiting, for a little later in the debate the Chancellor gave the House a taste of the quality of his tongue by his comment on an assertion that Lancashire had abandoned Cobden's doctrine of free trade.

"I believe it is a fact," he said

Continued on Page Three.

Drowsy Customers May Nap In New Berlin Restaurant

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—The tired Berlin business man will soon be able to have a nap included with his luncheon. In the busiest section of the city a lunch room will be opened in the Spring, in which every table will be equipped with a black velvet curtain which can be drawn around the guest. The seat can be converted into an easy chair and a ventilator will provide cool air. An alarm clock will warn the guest when it is time to return to his office. Attractive waitresses, clad in black silk knickers and blouses, will wait on him.

The management of the new enterprise is convinced that the innovation will be a great success because of the traditional German habit of following the noon meal with a nap.

SPAIN IS APATHETIC TO NAVAL PARLEY

Attitude of Skepticism and Criticism Is Still Evidenced by Comments of the Press.

LOCAL POLITICS CONFUSED

Football and Other Sports Claim the Chief Attention of Madrid's Young People at Present.

By FRANK L. KLUCKHOHN.
Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Feb. 13.—Because of the internal political crisis the Spanish papers this week have devoted less attention to the Naval Conference. General Primo de Rivera's statement gave official wishes for the conference's success and the new government has been too busy to notice it, but the general attitude of Spain's press continues one of skepticism.

A. B. C., the largest newspaper, in a representative editorial, says:

"Despite having accepted as a basis of discussion the compromise project of France, the London conference has scarcely mentioned it. It is still discussing the size of heavy cruisers and the guns they can mount, the size and proportion of the Japanese Navy compared with the navies of England and the United States, the legitimacy of submarines and the tonnage of capital ships, but the problem of Franco-Italian parity is not mentioned, it being considered advisable to hide it in the background.

"Neither has it been decided whether destroyers will form the same group as light cruisers, as France and Japan requested, or if they must form separate groups. Italy, who holds the balance of decisive projects prefers to remain silent until the real battle of figures comes. It looks as if the decision will be in favor of listing kinds of boats instead of tonnage, or in other words the English point of view will triumph over the French.

"Neither is it probable that the French delegation, despite its ability, will be able to prevent a great reduction, both in tonnage and numbers, which reduction Spain opposes.

"Premier MacDonald needs to triumph in order to reinforce his political position in England. To have a general comprehension of the conference entails nothing but knowledge of foreign and national politics. It is said that if the conference is a complete success MacDonald will dissolve Parliament and hold new elections with the hope that the English people will appreciate the elimination of controversies with the United States and give an absolute majority to the Labor Government.

"Behind the fight for heavy cruisers, torpedo boats and submarines are hidden large and small political problems."

Primo de Rivera's Position.

General Primo de Rivera's own attitude toward his position for six years is in modified form very much that of Kipling's Spanish Admiral, Diego Valdez, who said:

My dream I held before me, my visions of my rest;
But crowned by fleet and people and bound by King and Pope
Stands here Diego Valdez to rob me of my hope.

Primo felt himself appointed Spain's saviour, and, according to continued party endeavors, still does. Despite the personal recrimination and ridicule showered on him one has only to look at what the country was like six years ago and what it is like today to realize that much of such criticism is unjust. Whatever sums he has spent, he opened the country up and improved conditions as no one else had. He met the post-war need when a universal Red scare was on and murder rife in the streets, and most foreigners in Spain think he did much for the country and the crown.

But as time passes the snarl into which the dictatorship has involved the country becomes more evident. Return to the Constitution of 1876 does not merely mean pleasantly and easily going back to something already possessed. It is virtually like building an entire new system behind the formation of the new government, as the United States did after the formation of its Constitution. Besides, it is probably necessary to modify the Spanish Constitution more or less.

The formation of political parties has not been a quick amalgamation of men of kindred ideas, as might

Continued on Page Three.

TREATY WITH ITALY STIRS AUSTRIANS

Pan-Germans Are Chagrined, but Chancellor Schober's Prestige and Popularity Increase.

ANSCHLUSS POLICY SHAKEN

Aversion to Being Handed Over to "Prussia" Comes With Returning National Consciousness.

By JOHN MacCORMAC.
Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Feb. 13.—The most notable occurrence in Austrian external politics for years has been the visit to Rome by Chancellor Johann Schober and his conclusion there of a treaty of arbitration and friendship with Italy.

It was the first stirring of the still waters of Austrian foreign policy, long stagnated by the contention that anschluss with Germany should comprise the be all and end all of her activities abroad, and has therefore been regarded with much disapproval by the Pan-Germans and even the German press.

In Belgrade it was sourly accepted as a sign of the closing of the last gap in the ring with which Yugoslavia is surrounded.

In Prague it was regarded as evidence that Austria had finally refused the long-standing invitation to attach herself to the Little Entente.

The Italianized South Tyroleans heard of it with despair, discerning therein, and doubtless correctly, proof that their Austrian compatriots had finally abandoned them to their fate and fascism.

And finally there were those who saw in Herr Schober's journey merely fascism's insistence that the white-haired Chancellor give a visible sign of Italy's conquest of Austria by acting as the modern equivalent of those barbarian princes forced by the Duce's imperial predecessors to creep through the Roman yoke on the Forum.

This last view is not general in Austria, where on the whole the Chancellor's pilgrimage is greeted as the first sign of healthy foreign activity and evidence that the country has ceased to deserve Mussolini's scornful assessment of her importance a few years ago: "Austria is what she is."

Looked Up To as Leader.

Chancellor Schober now in fact is the most popular man in Austria. His fellow-citizens see in the speed and apparent ease with which he has already overcome so many inner and outer difficulties evidence that they can confide their destinies to him with that somewhat childlike trust which Austrians like to place in their leaders.

When there is talk of problems today, it is not long before one hears: "Der Schober wird es schon machen"—Schober will soon settle it.

The Chancellor's success and prestige are not an unmixed joy for Austrian partisans, whether in the government or out of it. Herr Schober is in no sense a party man, and if he represents anything it is the bureaucracy. The parties follow him in the hope of shining in his reflected glory, but none can honestly write him down as a member. It is true the Heimwehr represent themselves still as his enthusiastic supporters and claim him as one of themselves. He makes no attempt to repudiate affiliation; he even took in the Heimwehr parade a few days ago. It is equally clear that the plan of the Heimwehr leaders, Steidle, Pfreemer and Pabst, for a dictatorship and permanent Parliament can expect no support from him and that all putsch attempts can be sure of instant and powerful suppression.

On Austria's fateful alternative, that of continued independent existence or anschluss with Germany, no one is quite sure where the Chancellor, as Chancellor stands. Uneasiness has been growing in pro-anschluss quarters. Stress has lately been placed by many Christian Social politicians on maintenance of the old Austrian tradition in uniforms, rank, insignia and customs of the army, and the adoption of the old imperial hymn as the national anthem has excited their suspicion.

Pan-Germans Are Worried.

Recent assertions by some Heimwehr leaders that the anschluss question was "not actual" roused the ire of the Pan-German party, and only with difficulty were these open supporters of union with Germany maintained in the common anti-Socialist front. The announcement of Chancellor Schober's visit to Rome increased their apprehensions. It was murmured that he would confirm in Rome the tentative promise he was reported to have already been forced to give in The Hague, that Austria would relinquish her anschluss aspirations in return for a loan. It was recalled that Herr Schober while Chancellor in 1921 had signed the Lana convention with Dr. Benes, the Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, regarded at the time with much disapproval by Pan-Germans.

In this already troubled atmosphere arrived the information that the Chancellor would promote Herr Prost, the anti-German Minister to Warsaw, to a post of political director of the Austrian Foreign Office. The Pan-German newspapers attacked the appointment bitterly on the grounds that Herr Prost by refusing to make common cause with the German Minister in Warsaw had damaged German interests and that his promotion could only be regarded as an affront to Germany.

These attacks momentarily lifted the veil which hides from the eyes of the outside world the true orientation of Austrian parties in relation to the anschluss movement.

The Christian Social Reichspost answered the assault on Herr Prost's appointment in a mordant editorial stressing the fact that Austria was not a Prussian State and that her Minister had only done his duty in representing Austrian, not German, interests in Warsaw.

The Christian Social leader Kunschak followed with a speech demanding that Germany demonstrate her racial union with Austria by

Continued on Page Seven.

Canada Reports an Increase in Divorce Rate; Many Come Across Border to Obtain Decrees

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12.—Whatever the cause, and whatever the social consequences, Canadians are going in more strongly for divorce. Last year, according to official figures just compiled, 816 marriages were dissolved in the Dominion—578 through the Provincial divorce courts in the six Provinces which possess such judicial machinery, and 238 by special acts of Parliament to residents of Ontario and Quebec, which have no divorce courts. The total was an increase of thirty-one over the number of divorces granted in 1928.

Prince Edward Island, also distinguished as the only Province which does not permit the legal sale of liquor as a beverage, is unique in its regard for the marital tie. Since confederation in1867 only one divorce has been granted by Parliament to that Province, the sole case being recorded in 1913.

The announcement of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics admits that in addition to divorces granted in Canada many citizens of this country have sought redress in the American States which possess more liberal laws in that respect. It calls attention to the fact that in 1922, the latest year for which complete statistics are available, 1,368 divorce decrees were granted in the United States to couples married in Canada. This number formed 36.2 per cent of the number of divorces granted in the United States in that year to couples married in foreign countries, while at the same time the percentage of the Candian-born population to the total of foreign-born amounted to only 8.1 per cent. From this it is inferred that many Canadians establish residence across the border for the sole purpose of obtaining divorce, and if the proportion of 1922 held good in 1929 it follows that something like 2,000 must be added to last year's known total to arrive at the correct figure.

DENY POLAND SEEKS MILITARY ALLIANCE

Observers Score Talk of Move Against Soviet—Stress Aim for Practical Peace.

MERCHANT FLEET GROWS

Thirty-four Ships Now Fly the Polish Flag Compared With Five in 1921.

By JERZY SZAPIRO.
Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Feb. 13.—For the third time since it regained the status of the capital of an independent State, Warsaw has given hospitality to the head of another country, for Dr. Otto Strandman, president of the Estonian Republic, was received here last week-end.

In 1923 King Ferdinand of Rumania came here to return Marshal Pilsudski's visit of the year before, and he was the first crowned guest of Warsaw since independence was won. He stayed at the beautiful eighteenth century Lazienki palace, and his visit added strength to the Polish-Rumanian alliance. A number of outstanding problems were settled during his stay.

Five years later another King arrived—Amanullah of Afghanistan, who called on President Moscicki on his extensive European tour. Together with a large suite he was accommodated at Government House, the Prime Minister's residence. That was considered enough for a tourist visitor.

The best rooms of the old royal castle, the President's seat, were chosen for Dr. Strandman, head of the Baltic Republic, which is the smallest of the new States which sprang to life with the Czarist empire's fall. He came just as a friend, seeking nothing, having no particular business and only desiring to manifest friendship and loyalty.

Common Interests Stressed.

Poland cordially welcomed the leader of the smallest but not the least heroic Baltic nation, which, together with other subjugated peoples, gallantly fought for many centuries for common liberation. In the many speeches exchanged during Dr. Strandman's stay, once again those gloomy Czarist days were recalled, days when the two nations suffered and fought for freedom and independence. All the nations on the Russian Empire's western borders—Poles, Lithuanians, Latvians, Estonians and Finns—had common aims in the past and they cannot deny they have common interests now. But, observers emphasize, they realize they would gain little by hostilities against their more powerful neighbor, Soviet Russia, and not even the Communist press believes all the talk of warlike preparations against Russia, invented by the Communists to justify their extensive military preparations and to keep the Russian populace in a state of permanent nervous watchfulness.

Poland is accused in certain foreign circles of aiming at the hegemony of the Baltic and is said to want the Baltic States to serve her own egoistic interests. Poland, critics say, is preparing a coalation against Russia which, in case of war, would mean the immediate invasion of the Baltic States by Russian armies and the loss of their independence.

Defensive Plan Denied.

To this the Cracow newspaper, Czas, an authority on foreign affairs, gives an outspoken reply. Poland, the paper says, is vitally interested in the security of the Baltic States. Poland does not want to drag her

Continued on Page Eight.

RHODE ISLAND SEEKS ANOTHER RAILROAD

Wants Southern New England Completed to Compete With the New Haven.

WOULD GIVE CANADA ENTRY

Situation Contains Possibilities of Lively Battle Coupled With Much Expense.

By F. LAURISTON BULLARD.
Editorial Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BOSTON, Feb. 12.—The industrial and commercial interests of Rhode Island are vociferous in their demand for another railroad; the Interstate Commerce Commission has announced its consolidations plan with the proposal that New England shall have two railroad systems, one covering the northern States and the other the southern, the latter to be essentially the New Haven system of today, and the New England committee of five members from each of the six States has begun its hearings for the examination of the present situation and the formulation of a New England railway consolidations policy.

These three events are intimately related. The committee may or may not indorse the plan of the commission. The Rhode Island group of business men disclosed their desire for the completion of the Southern New England line from Palmer to Providence somewhat earlier than they had intended. They had expected to await the promulgation of the Interstate Commerce Commission plan, but after almost a year of quiet study they revealed their views a little sooner than planned, perhaps partly because of the approaching expiration of the Massachusetts franchise of the Southern New England, and partly, rumor says, because of reports of trunk-line buying of New England railroad stocks.

Move Regarded as a Spur.

The elements of the situation are few and simple, but the uncertainties are many and speculation is decidedly interesting. For example, some competent observers are of the opinion that the Rhode Island campaign is really designed not so much to obtain the completion of the Palmer-Providence line as to induce action on the part of the New Haven management. That conclusion is based on these arguments: that no announcement has been made as yet of the completion of a certain preliminary fund of $50,000, that Providence will have somehow to raise several millions (unless the New Haven itself should build the line), and that a road designed to bring grain to the Rhode Island metropolis might find itself with no place to go on the waterfront once it actually arrived in Providence. Again, the New Haven promises to produce important proposals soon, and Rhode Island may be merely waiting with something other than idle curiosity to see what is going to be offered.

What is publicly proclaimed is that the old Grand Trunk line must be completed, that a roadbed half finished which carries no rails, and abutments half erected which support no bridges, must be utilized for their original purpose of uniting Providence with a great Canadian railway system, and substituting competition in Rhode Island for the monopoly of the New Haven.

Some twenty years ago there was incorporated in Massachusetts the Southern New England Railroad Corporation and in Rhode Island the

Continued on Page Six.

THE NEW YORK TIMES
ANTARCTIC and AVIATION EXHIBITS
Now on View at

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK—
Abraham & Straus, Fulton at Hoyt St.—until Feb. 28.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA—
Paramount Theatre—(Sponsored by Atlanta Journal)—until Feb. 21.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—
Gimbel Brothers—until Feb. 21.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—
B. Nugent & Bros. (Airplane Model League of America) until Feb. 23.

Watch for the Opening Dates in the Following Cities:

New York—New York—Gimbel Brothers—February 26—March 5.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Mastbaum Theatre—March 15-30.

Chattanooga—Tennessee—Tivoli Theatre—(Sponsored by Chattanooga Times)—March 2-16.

CANADA WILL MOVE TO BAR BORDER RUM

Government to Introduce Bill Denying Clearance to Liquor Shipments Here.

ITS PASSAGE IS EXPECTED

Proposal Will Figure in the Coming Election—Hope of Influencing Tariff Action Seen.

By V. M. KIPP.
Editorial Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—It can now be stated positively that the Government of Canada, at the session of Parliament which opens next week, will introduce, and no doubt pass, legislation to prohibit the clearance of liquor from Canadian ports to the United States. It is almost equally certain that a general election will be held in the Dominion this year, and these two developments are not without relation one to the other.

This legislation will cost Canada millions of dollars a year, what with revenue lost and new border services made necessary for enforcement of the law. It will add new perils and additional expense to the business of frontier rum-running, thereby increasing the cost of illegal beverages with genuine Canadian seals in American cities on the boundary. But critics of the proposal, and they are numerous, point to the undisputed statement that only about 2 per cent of the liquor consumed in the United States has its origin in Canada, and that the greater part of the rum-running traffic is in the hands of American citizens. They declare the Dominion is undertaking a huge and thankless task which in the end will serve no useful purpose; that no appreciable reduction will be made in American drinking.

Issue Long Debated.

The issue long has been in doubt. In Parliament last year W. D. Euler, Minister of Customs, was emphatic in denouncing the plan to prohibit American exports. Later, it became apparent the Prime Minister was considering the idea. There were obvious political difficulties and equally important advantages. Eight of the nine Provinces have liquor-control systems. The government has an annual revenue of about $13,000,000 as the excise tax on liquor shipped to the United States which will be lost. The brewers and distillers have influential friends and a powerful lobby. On the other hand there is a strong prohibition factor in the country, with considerable newspaper support, which resents vociferously anything seeming to indicate tacit or active cooperation of the Government of the Dominion with a lawless gang engaged in systematic violation of the laws of another country. This element declines to consider the question of revenue in a matter of conscience, and all last session members of the Cabinet were bombarded with petitions demanding action. Ontario, it is stated, alone sent in 100,000 signatures urging the government to go to the aid of the beleaguered American drys.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King has considered all these factors, and has decided to accede to the repeated request of the United States Government that exports be prohibited. Undoubtedly, he hopes thereby to gain support from Canadian prohibitionists, who have little to hope for in this country during the next decade but who, perhaps for that reason, have a profound interest in, and concern for, the fate of the American dry laws. It is suggested, too, in political quarters that Ottawa's magnificent gesture in the cause of North American temperance may be not without effect on such unrelated questions as the United States tariff, the St. Lawrence waterways project and the matter of radio channels.

There is little reason to doubt the government's bill will pass Parliament. If it were introduced as a private bill, with members free to vote as they pleased, no doubt it would fail. No doubt some government supporters will refuse to fall into line, but these will be balanced by Conservative members from dry areas who will back the bill from personal conviction or political necessity.

An Election Influence.

As a weapon in the impending general election the government's course may have a considerable effect, particularly in Ontario, which will be perhaps the major field of battle. The election could be put off at the most until next year, but it is not considered good political practice to wait until the very end of a term and it is probable Canada will go to the polls in the coming Fall.

It follows, therefore, that the session of Parliament about to open will be one of great interest, because the parties will be seeking posts of vantage on the great issues and there will be much talking to the country from the national forum. We shall hear much about the tariff, particularly from the Conservatives. The enactment of the new United States schedules has been so long delayed that the anxiety of last year largely has been allayed, but if the bill should be adopted with provisions which are injurious to the Dominion the government will be obliged to answer them in some effective way to save Canadian trade. However, C. A. Dunning, the new Minister of Finance, has intimated there will be no general increase in the rates.

One of the most important proposals of the government will provide for the establishment of a national radio broadcasting system with the cooperation of the Provinces along the lines recommended by a recent royal commission. A committee of the House will hear arguments for and against the bill, but it is likely to be adopted. There are no indications that any great impression has been made on the public by arguments advanced in behalf of private broadcasting interests which do not contemplate with equanimity the extinction of their privileges, and great numbers of public bodies have come out emphatically for nationalization of the industry. The tendency of American broadcasting chains to secure Canadian outlets has convinced many Canadians that under private ownership the Dominions broadcasting facilities in a few years would be dominated by

Continued on Page Seven.

OBSERVATIONS FROM TIMES WATCH-TOWERS

Church Bells Odd Penchant Of Missouri-Kansas Thieves

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 14.—Unless some one puts a stop to the activities of church bell thieves this part of the country is going to wake up some Sunday morning and listen in vain for the familiar call to worship.

Two weeks ago a church bell weighing about 500 pounds was found at Third Street and Grand Avenue. Residents in the vicinity said they heard it fall off a truck about 3 o'clock in the morning.

Certainly, police said, no one would be out with a church bell that early if something were not amiss.

Now they have evidence that not only this bell, but others as well, were stolen. The latest report came in a letter from the Methodist Church at Harrisville, Mo., requesting the police to be on the lookout for its bell. In addition the Salem Methodist Church at St. Louis, the Blue Springs (Mo.) Christian Church and the Cedar Vale (Kan.) Methodist Church have reported missing bells.

VIRGINIA TAKES UP RACIAL INTEGRITY

Legislature Yields to Demand for Broader Definition of Term "Colored Persons."

SOME INDIANS EXCEPTED

Persons of Ascertainable Negro Blood Included in Scope of New Legislation.

By VIRGINIUS DABNEY.
Editorial Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RICHMOND, Feb. 13.—The Virginia Legislature has been considerably agitated in recent weeks over racial integrity, a problem with which it has been actively concerned since 1924, when it passed a racial integrity act, at that time the only act of its kind in the world. This measure forbids the intermarriage of Caucasians and persons having any negro blood or as much as one-sixteenth of Indian blood.

But while this law set up a barrier to the marriage of whites and persons with a single drop of negro blood, it did not change the legal definition of a "colored person." Under an act passed prior to 1924 a "colored person" was one with one-sixteenth or more of negro blood, and this definition was permitted to remain. Since the public schools of the State are divided into two groups, one for white persons and one for colored persons, it follows that under the above definition all persons with less than one-sixteenth negro blood must attend the white schools.

Definition Altered.

The immediate cause of the recent agitation in the Virginia Legislature lies in the discovery that a large percentage of the pupils in some of the white schools are negroid, and the further discovery that nothing could be done about it, unless the existing definition of a "colored person" was altered. It was pointed out that unless the statute was amended these negroids would soon be seeking admittance to the institutions of higher learning in the State, and that it would be impossible to keep them from entering those institutions.

Hence a bill was introduced in both branches of the Legislature defining any person with any ascertainable negro blood as a "colored person." Before its passage by the Senate the measure was amended to except members of the Pamunkey and Mattaponi tribes of Indians, who would be deemed "tribal Indians" rather than colored persons, as long as they have more than one-fourth of Indian blood and less than one-sixteenth of negro blood and are domiciled on their reservations. The House passed the bill without exceptions as to the Indians, but will probably agree to the Senate amendment.

This Indian question has given the advocates of racial integrity in Virginia more trouble than any other. Dr. W. A. Plecker, State Registrar of Vital Statistics, declares that although there are some 3,000 persons in the Commonwealth claiming to be Indians, all of them have a certain amount of negro blood in their veins, and many have no Indian blood at all. On the other hand, the Indians have thousands of white friends in the State who feel that the redskins have suffered enough and that they should be left alone.

When attempts were made in 1926 and 1928 to strengthen Virginia's racial integrity law it was found that in one way or another the Indians would be adversely affected, and there was a great uproar. Similarly, the movement at the present session to change the definition of a "colored person" roused friends of the Indians, who felt that the Chickahominys and Rappahannocks, as well as various groups in Halifax, Amherst and Rockbridge Counties calling themselves Indians, should be excluded from the terms of the act, as well as the Pamunkeys and Mattaponis.

See Danger to White Civiliaztion.

John Powell, the Richmond pianist, is chiefly responsible for the enactment of the Virginia racial integrity law of 1924. Mr. Powell, Dr. Plecker and their co-workers are convinced

Continued on Page Two.

DEMOCRATS ALL SET UP

Vote in Massachusetts Gives Hope of Greater Strength in Congress.

REPUBLICANS NOT SANGUINE

Many Concede That Party Majority in Both Houses Will Suffer in Fall Elections.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.
Editorial Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The result of Tuesday's Congressional by-election in Massachusetts has revived interest in party politics, and it may be taken as giving a start to the preliminaries of the general elections for the Senate and the House of Representatives, all of which will take place in November, except in Maine, where the contests will be decided in September. Party primaries for the choice of candidates for Senators and Representatives will be begun in a couple of months, and there is every indication that many of them will be spirited and the outcome problematical in a considerable number of cases.

It is apparent that Democratic politicians here, in Congress and out, have been greatly encouraged by the election of a Democrat in a Massachusetts district which never had chosen other than a Republican in the nearly four decades since the district was organized. When the result was made known there was an almost immediate revival of Democratic hopes, and now it is being asserted by some politicians of that party that there is a very good chance of Democratic control of the House in the next Congress which will come into being in March, 1931. With the Senate only nominally controlled by the Republicans, for real control is vested in the coalition majority of Democrats and insurgent Republicans, President Hoover would be confronted by an embarrassing state of affairs midway of his administration, and would be under the depressing effect of danger threatening his own political fortunes and those of his party in the Presidential contest of 1932.

Not All Democrats Confident.

But the inclination of the generality of Democratic and neutral observers appears to be that the Republicans will still retain actual control of the House and nominal control of the Senate as a result of the elections this year. Equally general is the belief, which many Republicans concede is based on substantial grounds, that the party majority in both Houses will be decreased. Republican prospects in some States which will elect Senators in November are none too good, and the adverse conditions affecting their chances are expected to be reflected in the Congressional elections.

Leaving aside political conditions which are likely to play a part in some contests for the Senate and House, Democratic politicians are placing great reliance as a help to their party's chances of success in what they assert is a widespread lessening of prosperous conditions. They declare that unemployment is much more general than has been supposed, and that the program for intensive public and private construction which was the outgrowth of President Hoover's conferences with financiers, industrialists, business men, labor leaders and representatives of agriculture has not materialized, with the result that the slack in employment has not been taken up. According to their argument, unless this condition is overcome quickly—that is, within the next few months—the electorate in many parts of the country is likely to go to the polls in a dissatisfied state of mind and inclined to hold the party in power responsible for the depression.

It happens that in all except two of the States which will elect Senators to succeed sitting Democrats the chances are very favorable to the return of Democrats, most of whom will be the present Senators. One of the exceptions is North Carolina, where a bitter battle to oust the veteran Senator Furnifold M. Simmons is under way, the opposition to him being based on his bolting of the Democratic ticket in the last Presidential election. The other exception is Iowa, a rather consistent Republican State. Senator Daniel F. Steck, Democrat, whose term will expire next year, was seated by the Senate as a result of a contest against Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Republican insurgent, who had received the official certificate of election. Subsequently, Mr. Brookhart won the other Iowa seat.

It happens also that in a number of States where seats in the Senate now held by Republicans will be fought for, Democratic chances seem to run all the way from fairly to very good. It likewise is apparent that insurgent Republican Senators who will be candidates for re-election in November have superior chances of being returned. Among these are Borah of Idaho, McMaster of South Dakota, Norris of Nebraska and possibly Pine of Oklahoma.

The New Jersey Situation.

New Jersey is to have a heated intraparty Republican contest over the election of a Senator to fill out the unexpired term of Walter E. Edge, who was appointed Ambassador to France. Mr. Edge's seat is now being filled temporarily by David Baird Jr., who has consented to withdaw from the coming contest and in common with the bulk of the State Republican organization will throw his influence toward the choice of Dwight W. Morrow, Ambassador to Mexico, who is now serving as a member of our delegation in the London naval conference. While President Hoover has followed the policy of keeping hands off the New Jersey party situation, as far as any public utterance is concerned, it is taken

Continued on Page Two.

America Today as Seen From Times Watch-Towers in Various Parts of Country

GAMECOCKS AN ISSUE IN NEBRASKA COURT

Noted Architect Contends His 150 "Chickens" Are Not a Neighborhood Nuisance.

DEFENDS COCK FIGHTING

Millions Expended on Sport, Thomas R. Kimball Declares, Despite Laws Against It.

By ROLAND M. JONES.

Editorial Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

OMAHA, Feb. 11.—In the foreground of this Watch-Tower observation is a strictly localized anti-noise crusade, but beyond it is revealed a situation which bears more or less directly upon the general subject of law enforcement and enforceability. It begins with the objection of the neighbors to the maintenance of poultry on the premises of an eminent architect and leads to a glimpse of the ancient sport of cock-fighting, long suppressed by law but so vigorously flourishing in fact that, if it were carried on openly and its activities were reported in the sport pages, it would rank well up with some of the major pastimes.

Thomas R. Kimball is the eminent architect in question. He is the creator of many notable buildings, public and private, in the Corn Belt. He is a former president of the American Institute of Architects. He was at the head of the program committee and, as such, the guiding spirit, of the contest which resulted in the selection of the late Bertram Goodhue to design Nebraska's already celebrated State Capitol, and is at present one of the supervising architects keeping check on the progress of construction. If this structure will be a monument to Mr. Goodhue's artistic genius, it will be no less a monument to Mr. Kimball's zealous leadership. Without that leadership Nebraska would have found itself with a Capitol representing a late edition of almost any one of forty-seven other State Capitols.

But There Are the Chickens.

Barely a dozen blocks from the busiest corner in Omaha stands Mr. Kimball's home and only a block from that the beautiful residence of a member of his family. On the large grounds surrounding the latter place Mr. Kimball keeps, each in its separate pen, about 150 gorgeous game cocks. They have to be thus segregated since game cocks are birds of a feather which do not flock together. They are such aggressive individualists that two birds on opposite sides of a knot hole with food in plenty by their side will starve to death watching each other.

These birds are a hobby of Mr. Kimball's which he follows with a passionate earnestness. Somewhat cynical over the follies and foibles of humankind, he finds in the courage and the haughty independence of his game cocks qualities that excite his constant interest and admiration. Explaining how he came to be a game cock breeder, he says:

"An irrepressible Mendelian curiosity early led me to experiment with the only bit of material that I could be automatically sure had not suffered by man's interference. God made the game cock; a single drop of other blood banishes the game quality forever. In man or rooster game means not only the willingness but the ability to die rather than run. My experiments of over fifty years have been overflowing with absorbing discovery and an ever-increasing desire to continue my barnyard laboratory, as evidenced by a Supreme Court appeal soon to be heard in Lincoln."

The Neighbors Objected.

But that is getting ahead of the story. This "barnyard laboratory" is flanked on one side by a Christian Science Church and on the other by a maternity hospital, while across no man's land, represented by an alley, are half a dozen small apartment houses. From a sanitary standpoint this plant is admitted by all the neighbors to be unobjectionable, but unfortunately Mr. Kimball has never found a way to muffle the crowing of his cocks. As a result there has been irritation in that block for years, evidenced at times by such measures as the hurling of gin bottles across the alley at the cock pens. But these only had the effect of exciting the birds and causing them to crow defiance during hours when they ordinarily are quiet.

Finally the owner of one of the apartment houses took his complaint into court and asked for the abatement of what he called this nuisance. The court, after listening to the cocks as well as the evidence, decided the neighbors had cause for complaint and issued the requested order. Mr. Kimball has a farm or two to which his laboratory might be transferred, but he would no longer be able to give it his constant personal watchfulness as his professional duties keep him too much in town. Therefore, emulating the fighting character of his birds, he has gone to the Supreme Court in defense of what he believes to be his rights.

And this leads to Mr. Kimball's comments on cockfighting and law enforcement. He would not sit at a pit side or a wet dinner table and then tip off the police. But just as an indication of what is to be expected of "unenforceable" laws he has ventured these discreet remarks:

"Unenforceable is an adjective quite popular today, but long since forgotten as applied to the laws that sought to suppress the gamecock. There is not a single State in this Union where the last stand of honesty in sport is not taboo where the laws to end cock-fighting have not been finally accepted as unenforceable.

Millions of Dollars in It.

"That the laws are not enforced would seem to be fairly evident from a recent survey of the situation, wherein the measure of the pastime in the United States in terms of dollars is conservatively placed at from eighty to ninety millions per annum, representing the value of the cocks fought at not to exceed $10 each, and in which the Mexicans' fancy is annually served by American breeders to the tune of from seven to ten millions in money at about the same unit of value. From another point of view consider that more than one thousand American breeders advertise the 'Warhorse' and that strain is only one of more than a thousand that at present claim a place in the sunlight of the sport.

"I use the word advertise advisedly, for there are several ably managed and well edited magazines that monthly circulate the news of the pit in the United States and one at least is supposed to enjoy a paid circulation of from seventy to one hundred thousand copies.

"Twenty years ago the word raided almost invariably referred to cock fights. Today a raid means just one thing; its symbol is the padlock. It is a rare occasion where misguided enthusiasm seeking praise, news or votes, makes the mistake of a legal visit to a cock pit. Believe it or not, laws aimed at suppressing chanticleer are unenforceable."

Here in the heart of the Corn Belt, popularly supposed to be the stronghold of twentieth century Puritanism, this sport flourishes as Mr. Kimball indicates it does everywhere else. Its devotees include men of character. They declare it to be the only sport incapable of being fixed. The gamecock's one gift which he possesses in a degree above all other creatures is gameness. If a bird hasn't it, he isn't a gamecock; if he has it nothing can rob him of it.

The cock fighters indulge in their pastime quietly. They do not invite trouble. But for some such incident as that affecting Mr. Kimball's breeding experiments the public might suppose the gamecock in America to be as dead as the dodo, although scarcely more than a century ago it came within a single vote in Congress of occupying the emblematic position of the eagle and was subsequently adopted as a symbol of the Democratic party. On the other hand no legal effort is made to detect and punish and stop the sport. There are no smelling squads, no spies, no agents provocateur. In a word the law has become stabilized as unenforceable.

Press Services Alter South's Sentiment Toward Lincoln

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAVANNAH, Feb. 12.—It becomes more difficult each year to have the school children of Georgia understand that celebrations throughout the State on Feb. 12 are not because of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln but in observance of the anniversary of the State of Georgia.

The weekly newspapers here are giving more space to the announcement of Lincoln's birthday than ever before. This is due largely to the fact that many of them subscribe to Northern illustrated news services with the result that when Lincoln's birthday rolls around the papers receive a liberal supply of pictures and articles dealing with the subject and much of this matter is printed. Twenty-five years ago a Georgia editor who did this would have been practically ostracized. Now the practice arouses no comment.

DEMOCRATS SET UP BY BAY STATE VOTE

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Continued from Page 1, Column 8.

for granted that Mr. Morrow's candidacy for the Senatorial nomination will have at least the moral support of the Washington Administration, regarded as a considerable asset.

Even if Mr. Morrow should win out in the party primary, an equally hard contest will come in the campaign against his Democratic Senatorial opponent. A somewhat similar situation prevails in Massachusetts where the Republican workers are at odds over the choice for Senator, and the danger of losing the seat now held by Senator Frederick H. Gillette is accentuated by the Democratic victory in the Second District which Mr. Gillette represented for thirty years in the lower house without once suffering a defeat.

In Rhode Island the Republican chances are believed to be none too good. Democrats already are looking forward to a Senatorial victory there, and most of them are predicting that their party's candidate will be former Senator Peter G. Gerry, who was defeated last November by Senator Felix Hebert. The sitting Republican whose term is about to expire is Jesse H. Metcalf.

Another situation which gives the Democrats cause for hopes exist in Kentucky where animosities between Republican politicians have disrupted party solidarity. It was in the hope of remedying this situation that Frederick M. Sackett was induced to resign from the Senate to become Ambassador to Germany.

In addition to those named the Senators whose seats will be filled in the November elections are Blease of South Carolina, Democrat; Bratton of New Mexico, Democrat; Brock, of Tennessee, Democrat; Capper of Kansas, Republican; Couzens of Michigan, Republican; Deneen of Illinois, Republican; Glass of Virginia, Democrat; Goff of West Virginia, Republican; Gould of Maine, Republican (successor to be elected in September); Keyes of New Hampshire, Republican; Harris of Georgia, Democrat; Harrison of Mississippi, Democrat; Hastings of Delaware, Republican; Heflin of Alabama, Democrat, who has been denied a place on the Democratic primary ballot because he bolted the Smith-Robinson national ticket and will seek renomination as an independent; McNary of Oregon, Republican; Phipps of Colorado, Republican; Ransdell of Louisiana, Democrat; Robinson of Arkansas, Democrat; Robsion of Kentucky, Republican; Schall of Minnesota, Republican; Sheppard of Texas, Democrat; Steck of Iowa, Democrat; Sullivan of Wyoming, Republican, and Walsh of Montana, Democrat.

From now on the national workers for both major political parties will undertake to check up on the trend of political thought throughout the country. The Democrats are alive to getting reliable information as to conditions of unemployment, with its reflection of depressed business conditions. According to the claims of some of them the great popularity possessed by President Hoover at the time of his inauguration less than a year ago has waned amazingly, due to a combination of circumstances, among them his inability to dominate the unruly Republican Senate, his failure to keep the tariff bill within the bounds of the "limited revision" which he called for, and disappointment in the feeling that he would be able to accomplish wonders for the public welfare. However, the other side of the picture, according to the Republicans, is that the workings of the new farm board system has brought him the support of the agricultural elements in the West and the Northwest which were strenuous opponents of his nomination for President, and that the country is still Republican-minded and not inclined to entrust the Democratic party with power in Washington.

ALABAMA IS SEEKING ECONOMIC STABILITY

State Sees Great Future in Plans for Labor, Farming and Business Readjustment.

IT HAS MOVED TOO RAPIDLY

Rush to Exploit Resources Has Resulted in Mistakes Which Must Be Corrected.

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES 2d.

Editorial Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BIRMINGHAM, Feb. 12.—Little as some sections of public opinion may suspect it, Senator Heflin is not Alabama's only activity these days. Since the Senator himself is wont to enumerate crowds by the "acre" rather than the head, it may appropriately be said that there are "acres of Alabamians" to whom the Heflin campaign for re-election, with all of the accompanying noises of rum, Romanism and party rebellion, is only a side-show to the considerably more fundamental and far-reaching things that are going on in the "big tent" where this State's social and economic problems are in performance.

This is particularly true since recent events have marked Alabama for a major part in the two most significant movements in the South today, namely, the campaign of the American Federation of Labor for organization of the Southern laborer, and the efforts of the Federal Farm Board to organize the Southern cotton farmer. Alabama's contact with the labor campaign is assured not only by the fact that Birmingham was chosen as headquarters for the Federation's Southern drive and was the scene last month of President William Green's first address in formal outline of the labor program, but also by the vast and growing industrial activities of the State and the diversity of industrial operations involved therein.

Plans for Cotton Growers.

Similarly, a close contact with the campaign for organization of cotton farmers is promised. Alabama's annual cotton acreage is about one-tenth of the total of the South, and its cotton textile industry represents about the same proportion in mills, spindles and cotton consumed. But the State's importance in the Federal plan for cooperative marketing of cotton and stabilization of cotton prices is enhanced beyond this proportion by the part which individual Alabamians will play in it.

Allen Northington, of Montgomery, is president of the huge American Cotton Cooperative Association which has been launched under chaperonage of the Federal Farm Board for coordinating and consolidating the work of the various State cooperatives and participating in the financial aids to cotton farmers which the Farm Board proposes. In addition, President Bradford Knapp, of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, who is Alabama's representative on the Federal Farm Board's advisory committee for cotton, has recently been named president of the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers.

Seeks Economic Stability.

Alabama today, like most other Southern States, is intent upon the business of putting its economic house in order. The desire comes in part of the distress which has resulted from time to time from a lack of order, but in greater part from an anticipation of the vast potentialities which may be realized here when order is attained. It sees itself as a land where a wealth of natural assets, climate, and human resources has so lately and suddenly been understood that the rush to exploit these things has resulted inevitably in maladjustments. Its ideal is to correct these maladjustments not necessarily as they have been corrected in other parts of the country with the growth of industrialism, but in a manner which will profit by the mistakes of others and develop here a civilization to which industrialism will be not an end but a means to an end.

It sees itself burdened for the time being with an overproduction for which its own enthusiasm and its own sense of coming economic might is responsible. In Alabama, as in most other Southern States, there is more cotton than can profitably be sold, more labor than can be decently employed, more developed industrial capacity than can find satisfactory markets for its products. That time and the increasing turn of national attention to Southern opportunities will eventually remedy this situation, is not doubted. But there are many Alabamians who discover in the present trend toward organization—in agriculture, industry and business—a thing to hasten the remedy and capitalize more fully upon the promise.

In the organization of farmers they see an opportunity to give Southern agriculture a bargaining power, a control over supply and demand, a stability and a dignity that will make farming something more than a gamble and will prevent the constant glutting of the Southern industrial labor market with disgruntled farm workers. In the organization of labor they see an opportunity to save the more enlightened Southern employers from competition on a basis of labor exploitation and to improve the laborer's lot not only for his own sake but for the sake of the increased capacity for purchasing Southern products which that improvement will bring him. And in the organization of business into larger and more efficient units they see an opportunity to command wider markets with better goods at lower prices, to reach or attract markets through advertising, and to make possible the higher wages which labor will demand and should have if there is to be real prosperity.

In this philosophy the organizers of labor may be as well received here as the organizers of agriculture and business. But the labor leaders will certainly be asked to treat wages in terms of purchasing power rather than dollars and cents, and to recognize the fact that climate and other living conditions in these parts may make 75 cents here about as good as a dollar in colder and older sections.

With things of this sort in mind, Alabama can be forgiven if it refuses to take Mr. Heflin, the Ku Klux Klan, rum, Romanism and party rebellion as seriously as it has in other days. Its most enlightened interest runs, rather, to the approaching conference of Southern Governors at Little Rock, Ark., next month, when Governor Bibb Graves of this State is to make a keynote address on the "Coordination of Southern Development."

Virginia Paupers Long for Old Poorhouse; Too Much Stress Laid on Bathing in New One

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RICHMOND, Feb. 12.—Former inmates of the old Campbell County poorhouse are greatly dissatisfied with the far more modern almshouse into which they have been moved, because it has "too many comforts" and includes such up-to-date appurtenances as bath tubs and shower baths, it has developed at the session of the Virginia Legislature here.

Senator R. H. Langhorne of Campbell County has introduced a bill to permit any county which has entered into an almshouse consolidation with other counties to withdraw whenever it desires to do so. His reason for offering the measure is that the new consolidated almshouse at Chatham, maintained by half a dozen counties, is too "highfalutin" for those indigent citizens of Campbell who had become accustomed to the more primitive conditions prevailing in the county poorhouse at Rustburg.

The Senator, who is related to Lady Astor, the former Nancy Langhorne of Virginia, says that the feeling of the former Campbell County inmates is entirely comprehensible. He explains that they are mostly old people who have suddenly been asked to change the habits of a lifetime. For example, they see no occasion for frequent bathing and consider it a hardship to be required to take baths at regular intervals.

SALT BARRIER PLAN GETS NEW IMPETUS

San Francisco, Visioning Great Future Growth, Favors Aid for Upper Bay Deltas.

IT WOULD COST $70,000,000

Barring Sea Influx Would Create Great Fresh-Water Lake Where Water Is Vital Problem.

By FREDERICK F. FORBES.

Editorial Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 11.—Two related events of the recent past hold possibilities of first importance in their bearing on the future of this region. One is the organization of the joint Federal and State Commission, appointed at the suggestion of President Hoover to make a comprehensive study of California's water needs and resources. The other is the formal indorsement given by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce of what is familiarly known here as the salt-water barrier project. This involves the building of a dam across one of the straits and by keeping the salt water out of the upper bay the creation of a great fresh-water lake at San Francisco's back door.

Since the subject was last discussed in this correspondence the appointment of the joint commission and the indorsement by the San Francisco business interests have given the salt-water barrier idea an importance which it had not attained before.

No one, of course, can with certainty forecast the recommendation of the joint commission. But engineers who have studied the possibilities of the salt-water barrier look on it as a project with such assured dividends in the conservation of water and the development of communities that indorsement is expected to follow any impartial investigation.

Water a Vital Problem.

The most vital problem facing California is water. Upon the foresight and care with which the water resources are conserved and used the future growth of the State depends. No single project now discussed other than the salt-water barrier seems to hold such large promise of benefits measured by the amount of investment.

Nevertheless, the action of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce in indorsing the salt-water project has a very special significance. It indicates that the leaders of business and industry in this city have enlarged their vision of growth far beyond the city limits. It is a manifestation of a new spirit of cooperation among the communities in Central California.

For the fresh-water lake which would be created by the salt-water barrier would not directly touch San Francisco. The city's industries could not tap the great reservoir for water supply. Nor would they need to do so, for directly now the city will have an abundant supply of fresh water coming through the aqueducts and tunnels of the $80,000,000 Hetch Hetchy project. The municipal resources will also include the $40,000,000 Spring Valley water works, and altogether will be quite equal to any domestic or industrial demands within the city for an indefinite future.

What the business and industrial leaders see in the proposed fresh water lake is the basis for a vast industrial development stretching from Oakland to the deltas at the upper end of the bay.

Great Industrial Benefits.

The barrier project was first proposed as a measure of protection for the delta lands, threatened by the salt influx due to the diversion of the river water for irrigation. What support the project received was based on a sense of justice. The State had permitted the diversion of the river water. It should protect the delta communities from injury resulting from a State policy. The first site proposed for the barrier was Carquinez Strait. A dam at this point would restore the fresh water condition to the upper end of the bay.

But the industrial possibilities of a great fresh water lake in a region where water is the chief problem are so apparent that San Francisco business interests are enlarging the idea purely on industrial grounds. They are considering the feasibility of putting the barrier at Point San Pablo. This would make a fresh water lake with an axis of thirty miles and at places ten miles wide.

The estimated cost of the larger project is $70,000,000. As an investment in industrial supremacy it would be dirt cheap.

Berlin Leads Cooperatives.

With an increase of 16,000,000 marks (worth 23.8 cents apiece) in its business turnover in 1929, bringing the year's total up to 76,000,000, the Consumers' Cooperative of Berlin passed its friendly rival in Hamburg and took its place at the top of the list of 1,000 local securities affiliated with the Central Society of German Consumers' Cooperatives. Both of the leading units were founded in 1899, but while the Hamburgers took to the cooperative idea at once, the Berliners were much slower in realizing its advantages. The membership of the Berlin organization at the beginning of 1930 was 192,876.

TEXAS DEMOCRATS' DAYS ARE TROUBLED

State Committee's Barring of Bolters Brings Probability of Two Tickets.

MOODY MAY RUN AGAIN

Should Governor Seek Re-election, It Would Do Much to Settle Party Difficulties.

By IRVIN S. TAUBKIN.

Editorial Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DALLAS, Feb. 12.—The Democratic State Committee did what both loyal and disloyal Democrats expected it to do when it barred bolters as candidates from the party primaries the other day by a vote which was not so close as had been anticipated—21 to 9. Loyal Democrats had been crying for revenge; and disloyal Democrats know the value of such martyrdom on the political exchanges. However, the matter has still to be fought out either in the State courts or in the Legislature. The committee's action is expected to be sustained, and it appears, therefore, that two Democratic tickets will enliven the dog days this Summer when the primary campaigns take place. Meanwhile, the political scene is kaleidescopic.

What the committee did was to declare that at its June meeting it would refuse to certify for places on its ballot any candidates who "voted in the Democratic primary in 1928 or participated in any of the primaries or conventions of the Democratic party in 1928, and in said primaries and or convention took the prescribed pledge to support the nominees of the party, and then broke his pledge and bolted the ticket and voted for the nominees of any other party." At the same time it extended "an invitation to all qualified voters, regardless of previous political views or affiliations, to enter and participate as voters in its nominating primaries and conventions who are willing and do take the statutory party pledge."

Slap at Love's Candidacy.

Plainly this was more than mere retributive justice. It was more than an answer to Committeeman Maury Hughes's demand, voiced by all the loyal sons, that the party do something "to preserve its honor, dignity and integrity." It was a direct thrust at State Senator Thomas B. Love, seeking to nullify his candidacy for governor. Love was the State's outstanding bolter, leader of the Hoover Democrats and closer than any of them to the Republican direction. His political power has made him the target for more abuse than any of the other bolters. When he retired from the race for lieutenant governor two years ago, ostensibly to devote himself to the Hoover campaign, it was really, so it is said, because he feared sure defeat by Barry Miller. Miller is the present Lieutenant Governor, and will announce for governor when he retires as head of the Odd Fellows in the State early in March.

Senator Love did not take the action calmly. Immediately he came out with an "I have just begun to fight!" statement, vowing that the committee could never make him "abdicate" his conscience. In order to have the Supreme Court pass on the matter immediately, he is pushing a bill through the Legislature to give them original jurisdiction.

Immediately, too, the second party bobbed into sight. Alvin Moody (no kin to the Governor), a Houston insurance man and chairman of the Anti-Tammany Democrats, called on the bolters to stay out of the primaries in which they cannot be candidates. The inference is plain.

Love pointed out with political shrewdness several things about the committee's action. First, it was taken in the face of the Attorney General's ruling that it is illegal. Against this the committee members showed that Robert Lee Bobbitt, the Attorney General, is now a candidate for election to the position to which he was appointed some months ago. Therefore, they said, his opinion is colored.

Second, Mr. Love indicated, the committee took care not to injure the chances of Barry Miller, one of their "Tammany" crowd, by specifying the year 1928. Miller appears to have bolted the party along with other now loyal Democrats during the Ferguson fracas. And, although mayhap inadvertently, he showed how, nevertheless, they had provided for the candidacy of Jim Ferguson, deposed Governor, who seems to have an itch to be a candidate again, if the haze which surrounds his amnesty can ever be cleared.

Mr. Ferguson has been projecting himself into the picture again. He attended the committee meeting with his shoulder bandaged, hurt when he fell out of bed during a nightmare recently. He disagreed with the committee's action, although agreeing with its aim. He declared then, as he had in previous statements, that he thought they should forget the past, but make adequate provision against future bolting. Mr. Ferguson has a past. In 1920 he was his own American party's Presidential candidate. In 1922 he campaigned for the Republican Senatorial candidate. Should he choose to be a candidate this year it will be confusion worse confounded.

SEEK TO DISSOLVE FAMOUS TRUST FUND

Mullanphy Heirs Ask Division of Property Left to Aid Needy Covered Wagon Folk.

NOW VALUED AT $1,500,000

Willed to St. Louis in 1851, It Is Known as Classic Example of Misdirected Philanthropy.

By LOUIS LaCOSS.

Editorial Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 11.—Bryan Mullanphy, philanthropist and one-time mayor of St. Louis, made a will eighty-one years ago in which he stated: "One equal undivided one-third of all my property, real, personal and mixed, I leave to the City of St. Louis, in the State of Missouri, in trust, to be and constitue a fund to furnish relief to all poor emigrants and travelers coming to St. Louis, on their way, bona fide, to settle in the West."

When Mullanphy died in 1851, the property composing the fund was estimated to possess a value of $571,832, consisting of thirty-eight parcels of real estate in St. Louis and 176 acres of unimproved land in St. Louis County. Today the one-third of the Mullanphy estate is valued at more than $1,500,000 and more than 100 heirs of Mullanphy, scattered in all parts of the United States and one, the Countess Thérèse Taylor de Noue, a resident of Paris, are now attempting to obtain an order from the court dissolving the will and permitting them to share in a division of the property. The case which is now being heard in the Circuit Court is one of the most unusual in the State's legal history and the outcome will be watched with much interest by the bar as the attacks on the will, if sustained, will set a precedent in that phase of jurisprudence—the construction of wills—which is ever a fruitful source of dispute.

Covered Wagon No Longer Rolls.

It is the contention of the heirs that the original purpose of the will which Mullanphy had in mind, is now obsolete. It was, obviously, his desire to aid poor emigrants who were en route to the then sparsely populated West and found themselves unable to proceed because of lack of funds. No such emergencies exist today, they insist, because there are no pioneers going West and only on rare occasions have the commissioners of the fund been called upon to render aid. The sums advanced have been so trival that it is ludicrous to tie up a fund of $1,500,000 for that purpose.

The City of St. Louis, named as a trustee in the will, is opposing the action. It is the position of City Counselor Muench that the validity of the trust was established many years ago, shortly after the death of Mullanphy, and that the Missouri Supreme Court in 1899 held that the fund could not be diverted, as the purpose of its establishment still existed.

The hearing has served to recall the early days when St. Louis was the natural gateway through which travelers entered the West. Bryan Mullanphy in 1849, the year he made his will, was probably the most prominent St. Louisan. He was the heir to a large fortune left him by his father, John Mullanphy, who, it may be remarked, was an emigrant from Ireland of the type that his son sought to aid. Bryan was the social lion of his day, a gay, dashing figure. Possessed of wealth which was tremendous in his time, he was conspicuous for his extravagance, but he likewise was extremely free-handed in his philanthropies. Stories are still told of his generosity to the poor.

St. Louis Was a Gateway.

He was elected mayor of St. Louis in 1847 and his official post brought him in close contact with the hordes of emigrants passing through St. Louis to settle in the West. Many of them were ill and destitute. A witness at the present hearing recalled when the emigrants arrived in St. Louis by boatloads, many of them debilitated and feverish from the long voyage. At one time 350 of them came to the city and were here indefinitely when an epidemic of cholera broke out.

To meet such conditions various relief societies were organized and Mullanphy was named president of one of them, the Irish Emigrant Society. He was impressed with the necessity of aiding needy travelers, hence the trust fund.

Thirty years ago the city of St. Louis, now protesting the suit for division, was the plaintiff in a suit to divert the money to a more useful purpose. The cyclone of 1896 had wrecked the City Hospital and there were no funds for a new one. The city, contending that the fund was obsolete, asked for authority to use it to build a new hospital. The courts refused. In 1917 another effort was made by the city to dissolve the trust. In this proceeding it was joined by the heirs who at that time numbered upward of fifty. The State Supreme Court again refused to grant the dissolution and explained its action naively by saying: "We cannot take it upon ourselves to say that the westward movement of immigrants has ceased forever."

The result was a legal deadlock that still exists. The heirs failed to get the money and so did the city. The fund, then amounting to more than $1,000,000, was used to finance a small booth at Union Station, where on occasion a traveler called for enough money to get him to the next town.

Only Small Sums Disbursed.

The various suits have revealed that at no time did Mullanphy's philanthropy reach the heights to which its author aspired. The tide of emigration was highest in 1871, yet during that year only $11,084 was disbursed. During a ten-year period from 1864 to 1874 when it might be expected that the West would be an attractive goal for thousands of emigrants, the average yearly expenditure was $5,176. From 1880 to 1890 the annual disbursement was $2,462. Of late years the expenditures have been even less.

Various technical points are involved in the suit. The heirs claim that the fund now constitutes a "constructive trust" and the court is being asked to order an accounting and to appoint a master for the disbursement of the moneys. The ancient legal doctrine of cy pres is being invoked. This means, according to the plaintiff's attorneys, that the will must be construed "as nearly as possible" with what the original intention of Mullanphy might have been. This doctrine has been upheld in other cases. The manner of present disbursements is also being attacked, the heirs asserting that travelers of every description and of destinations in all points of the compass are being assisted. They insist that a man from Kansas City whose Ford broke down here while he was en route to Louisville would scarcely qualify as a "needy emigrant" envisioned by the late Mr. Mullanphy.

It will be recalled that Julius Rosenwald, Chicago philanthropist, announced recently that all moneys given by him for charitable purposes will be disbursed within twenty-five years after his death. He cited the Mullanphy Fund as a classic example of misdirected philanthropy.

Japanese Oyster Grows Foot Wide in Puget Sound

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP).—Transplanted Japanese oysters in beds at Oyster Bay, near Olympia, Wash., have reached a size of twelve to fourteen inches across, Professor Trevor Kincaid, head of the zoology department of the University of Washington, has revealed.

The mollusks were planted about seven years ago to determine whether the Oriental oyster would thrive and spawn in Puget Sound waters. They have never been marketed and now are valuable only as curiosities.

Following the experiment at Oyster Bay, the Japanese bivalves have been planted for commercial purposes in several places along the south tip of the sound.

AMERICAN SHIPS CARRY 47% OF CANAL CARGO

Total of 31,450,493 Tons Were Handled at Panama in 1929 in Ships of 24 Nationalities.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALBOA HEIGHTS, C. Z., Feb 6.—Merchant ships of the United States carried 47.2 per cent of the 31,450,493 tons of cargo passing through the Panama Canal during the year 1929, and paid $13,107,488 of the $27,592,715 collected in tolls. British ships carrying 8,262,855 tons of cargo and paying $7,694,711 in tolls ranked second with 26.2 per cent of the total cargo, and Norwegian ships came third with 5.7 per cent, carrying 1,784,651 tons of cargo and paying $1,362,977 in tolls.

Ships of twenty-four nationalities made up the commercial traffic for the year. Over 91 per cent of the total commercial transits of the canal were by vessels of eight nationalities and these ships carried 93.5 per cent of the total cargo in transit through the canal.

The United States, with 2,681 ship transits in 1929, showed an increase of 213 over the previous year, and Norway, with the second best gain, had an increae of eight-five ships. The number of vessels of British registry, 1,667 in 1929, decreased 149 as compared with 1928.

At present, tolls are collected at the rates of $1.20 per net ton (100 cubic feet of cargo space) for laden vessels, and 72 cents for vessels in ballast, computed on the basis of the Panama Canal rules for measurement, with the provision that tolls shall not exceed $1.25 per ton nor be less than 75 cents per ton, as determined in accordance with the United States rules for measurement of net registered tonnage. This dual system of measurement is due to a decision of the Attorney General's office interpreting "net registered tonnage," as used in the Panama Canal act, as referring to such tonnage adduced from United States instead of Panama Canal rules of measurement.

The actual cost per ton of cargo averages considerably less than the rates indicated above. It is possible to get a number of tons of certain commodities in a space of 100 cubic feet. Iron ore, for instance, has set a low record of 21 cents per ton. Complaints regarding the tolls rates at the canal never mention the actual or average cost per ton of cargo transported.

Rent Rises Halted in Berlin.

Because of the increases in the price of gas, electricity, water and transportation on the municipal traction lines and the suburban lines of the Reichsbahn imposed upon Berliners through the refusal of the president of the Reichsbank to sanction a new city loan unless such increases were made, there will be no immediate rise in house rents, according to an announcement issued by the Central Housing Office shortly after Jan. 1. This means that for a while, at least, tenants will continue to pay only 20 per cent more than pre-war rates, compared with a general rise in the cost of living of about 50 per cent.

VIRGINIA TAKES UP RACIAL INTEGRITY

By VIRGINIUS DABNEY.

Continued from Page 1, Column 7.

that it is only through the passage of such legislation that white civilization can be saved from destruction. They have convinced a considerable number of prominent citizens of this and other States that their conclusion is sound. It is the conviction of this group that ours will ultimately become a mulatto civilization unless the mingling of white and negro races in this country is stopped at once.

In support of this argument, they point to other countries in which white and black races have lived side by side for centuries. They declare that in every such case in history the races have amalgamated and the white civilization has been destroyed. Examples cited by them include Egypt, which was peopled by a white race in her prime and whose decline dates from the period when the Pharaohs began to extend their dominions southward into negro territory; India, where the Aryan civilization of 4,000 years ago finally went under when the races mingled, and modern Mexico and South Africa and parts of South America and the West Indies, where the union of white and black races has brought about similar results.

On the other hand, many leading citizens are of the opinion that Mr. Powell and his followers have conjured up chimeras. They see no justification for the fear that the civilization of the United States is in danger from miscegenation, and believe that the agitation over racial integrity does much more harm than good, in that it arouses animosities between the races.

The advocates of racial integrity have procured the passage in Georgia and Alabama of racial integrity laws similar to that of Virginia, and are of the opinion that all the other Southern States and some of the Northern ones will ultimately fall in line. Eight States, in addition to the three mentioned, have laws forbidding intermarriage between whites and negroes, but it is not known how strictly they apply those laws or how they define the term "negro." Eighteen States and the District of Columbia permit free intermarriage between whites and blacks.

AUCTION SALES

RAINS GALLERIES INC.
Auctioneers & Appraisers
3 East Fifty-third Street
WILL SELL AT AUCTION
WED., THURS., FRI. & SAT.
February 19th, 20th, 21st & 22nd
At 2:15 P. M. Each Day
RARE
ANTIQUE HANGINGS
TAPESTRIES, SILVER
OLD FURNITURE, JADES
ORIENTAL RUGS
AND MAGNIFICENT HOUSEHOLD EMBELLISHMENTS
ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT SALES OF THE SEASON EXHIBITION
MONDAY & TUESDAY
February 17th and 18th
From 10 A. M. to 5:30 P. M.
SPECIAL EXHIBITION
TODAY (SUNDAY)
From 2 to 5 P. M.
S. G. Rains
Auctioneer

VAN BRINK'S
BROADWAY ART GALLERIES
1692 Broadway, at 53rd St.
Sells at Public Auction
(This) Thursday, Friday & Saturday
Feb. 20, 21 and 22
at 2 o'Clock Each Day
Antique and Modern
FURNITURE
(Complete suites and individual pieces)
Exquisite Bronze and Marble Statuary, Vases, etc.
Persian and Chinese Rugs
Sterling Silver, Sheffield, elaborate Limoges Dinner Sets, table and floor Lamps, Ivories, Curios, Bohemian and Venetian Glassware, Hangings.
Exhibition Daily, 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.
Sale Conducted by MR. A. BLEIMAN

STEAMSHIPS

CRUISE TO CALIFORNIA with round-the-world travelers

JOIN a smart coterie of Round-the-World travelers on your cruise to California!

Chat with people who know Shanghai, Singapore, Egypt. Share their travels . . . and enjoy glorious days of luxury on a Dollar Liner bound Round the World!

Fortnightly sailings via gay Havana and Panama as Dollar Liners enter Boston and New York. First class exclusively, every cabin an outside room amidship with real beds. Free Parlor Car Bus service from Herald Square, New York, to the Liner.

Next sailings:
S. S. President Garfield ..... Feb. 27
S. S. President Polk .... Mar. 13

Special Roundtrip Winter Fare to California on Dollar World-Liner, return by any direct rail route, now in effect. Open until Mar. 27.

DOLLAR STEAMSHIP LINES
604 Fifth Avenue, New York
BRYant 5900
25 and 32 Broadway, New York
DIGby 3260 or DIGby 7394

Topics in the Leading Capitals of Europe Told in Week-End Special Cables

PARIS TURNS CYNIC ON RED ABDUCTION

General's Disappearance Viewed as Possible Coup to Aid White Russian Cause.

GOLD RUSH ON RIVER ISLE

Gilt Fingernail Mode Follows Red Lacquer Mode—Aged Actor Hailed in Revival.

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—The Parisian public, perhaps in common with the peoples of other great cities, is fickle on matters of news. A new sensation will engage undivided attention for a few days, but, generally speaking, it will then abruptly turn its mind to something else.

In the Koutiepoff affair, however, Parisians have broken precedents. Seldom have Frenchmen followed the course of current events as attentively and consistently as they have the mysterious disappearance of the head of the exiled soldiers of Czarist Russia.

For nearly three weeks this secret service thriller out of real life has occupied hundreds of columns, often taking precedence over the London naval conference. Certainly, if one asked the average man or woman which story they preferred or, indeed, which story they were reading, the answer would be, "Naturally, L'Affaire Koutiepoff."

The fever pitch to which the press has raised the public's attention culminated this week in several mass meetings, one of White Russian aspect and the other of distinctly Reddish color to protest against the protesters.

But, like every good news story, the Koutiepoff affair seems to have reached its end, and only some sensational development can now restore the public's lost interest. The Koutiepoff case might be called "the mystery of a thousand clues."

Hundreds of the best secret service agents and detectives in France have been hurrying here and there and everywhere, only to run up against the same thing—a blank, impenetrable mystery. With all of the "evidence" sifted, the only thing the police seem to be sure about is the fact that the General left his house on Sunday morning, Jan. 26, and has not been seen since.

White Russian Coup Suggested.

It is not surprising that the failure of the usually effective French police system to uncover the slightest trace of the missing General has caused a certain amount of cynicism regarding the case. Several newspapers have openly suggested that the whole thing was a brilliantly conceived plan to revive the rapidly waning anti-Bolshevist cause. The General, it is said, was deeply worried about the low state of White Russian propaganda, and recently spoke of the necessity of some coup to put White Russianism on its feet once more. It was after this, so the story goes, that he decided to disappear.

If his mysterious disappearance is ever shown to have been premeditated, then it must be admitted that the scheme succeeded admirably. Not only has it brought together several disputing anti-Soviet factions, but public opinion in France, as well as other countries, hitherto completely indifferent or lukewarm to White Russian aims, has now found them to be objects of deep interest and sympathy. The affair has also served another of the White Russian desires, namely, to hold up the Bolsheviki as enemies of all that is civilized and decent.

As a matter of fact, the present European outcry against the Soviet régime had its inspiration in the Koutiepoff affair and whether he was spirited away and murdered by agents of the dreaded Soviet Secret Service, as his supporters insist, or whether his disappearance proves later to be a master stroke of strategy to resuscitate a dying cause, the results have been the same. For the time being, at any rate, General Koutiepoff has wittingly or otherwise served his exiled countrymen far better than he could have hoped.

Gold Rush Begins.

A French gold rush similar to that of the historic days of '49 would be about the last word in thrills for the jaded tastes of Europeans, but this is not quite so far fetched as it may seem. In the Rocky Valley of Isle, one of the chief rivers of the Department of Dordogne, and near the ancient city of Perigueux, scores of excited fortune hunters are nervously turning over the sandy river bed in the hope of finding the precious metal.

It has all come about through the dogged efforts of an engineer who, convinced that the district is rich in gold, has been dredging the River Isle. The people of Dordogne smiled sympathetically but remarked that the only things that ever had been found in their country has been foie gras and truffles.

One day last week, however, the persistent engineer came upon large patches of gold grains the size of maize kernels. Immediately hundreds flocked to the scene. Property owners became alert and overnight there was no more land for sale for miles around.

To add to the intensity of interest another patch of gold was found next day by a group of diggers in the plain of Savignac les Edlises, just a few miles above Perigueux, and now panning for gold has become the most popular of outdoor pastimes in the Department of Dordogne.

Pacifist Writings Assailed.

No less distinguished a soldier than General Debeney has taken issue with the authors of the new school of war books who have gained such enormous popularity because of the cold, penetrating light of reality they shed upon modern fighting. Writers like Remarque and Ludwig Renn at last seem to be working upon the nerves of patriotic French military chiefs and it is not unlikely that General Debeney's vigorous counter attack will be followed by others.

General Debeney believes these books, however personal the experiences may have been, do not give a true picture of the last war. Wonderful self-sacrifice, love of country and sustained courage—all these inspiring elements which were so pronounced are now dismissed as almost nonexistent, General Debeney complains. Instead we receive an impression of a vast, anonymous and cruel undertaking hurrying a large number of frightened, wondering men to awful death.

The General cites the story of Verdun, when thousands of the best men of France nightly exposed themselves to the most terrible danger, bringing up relief and supplies.

Cowards and shirkers could have done almost as they wished, the General says, but instead "these reliefs were accomplished thoroughly and promptly—these simple, normal operations represented a tremendous sum of individual and voluntary acts of courage."

Nevertheless, after the military position has been defended, the conditions of modern war are almost making it picturesque. Poison gas, high explosives, air attacks and many other "improvements" have done much to eliminate the sporting chance which existed before the days of "efficient" warfare and made of it a much-sought-after adventure.

Gold Finger Nails for Women.

Parisian women do not like to follow the fashions of other countries. They feel, with a certain amount of justification, that style and customs in dress and feminine ornamentation exist and have their being in Paris.

This, however, did not prevent smart Parisians from taking up the transatlantic style of varnishing their finger nails blood red, but having paid the Americans the compliment of imitation, it would appear that those same chic women who are just a bit in advance of "what is really smart" are going America one better. A number of them recently were seen in public places with their nails painted a glittering gold.

The effect was startling, but no more so than the first appearance of the blood red nails. For the dark-complexioned women who abound in Europe the golden nails are said to be more becoming than the red.

The devotion of the French people to their favorite theatrical stars is well known to all. The passing of beauty, and even the advance of old age, seldom diminishes the loyalty of the theatregoing public, provided ability and technique remain. Thus it is that the return of Eugéne Silvain, the famous doyen of the Comédie Française, at the age of 80 after a retirement of some years, is not as amazing an event in France as it would be elsewhere.

M. Silvain is still vigorous and has just disclosed that his retirement has been spent in writing a translation of the Philoctetes of Sophocles. When it is produced at the Odéon M. Silvain will play the title rôle.

Balkan Village Is Punished For Stealing a Whole Forest

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Feb. 3.—The entire village of Zude, near Belgrade, has been charged with stealing a whole wood, surely a record in criminal history.

The women of the village, though they shared in the theft, were not haled to court, but the sixty-eight male inhabitants appeared. Evidence showed that they had cut down and consumed as fuel the entire municipal forest near the village. Their defence was that otherwise they would have frozen, since great economic distress prevailed in the village.

The whole village was found guilty and the men were sentenced to brief terms of imprisonment and fines. Their offence is unlikely to be repeated, since, as one villager replied when the judge admonished him not to do so, "Your Honor, that is impossible. I myself took home the last tree within miles and burned it."

GERMAN UNION MUST PAY.

Highest Labor Court Holds It Responsible for Strike Loss.

German trade unions whose members go on strike in what may be interpreted as a violation of their working agreement are liable to damages resulting to their employers from such action, according to a recent decision by the Supreme Labor Court reported in the Berlin Vorwärts.

It appears that in January, 1928, the members of the Union of Food and Drink Workers employed by a Berlin confectionery concern struck for a week to bring about a wage increase. The confectionery company averred that the strike had caused a loss of 4,000 marks ($952) through the spoiling of partly finished wares and sued the union for that amount on the ground that the men had gone out in violation of a general agreement calling for six weeks' notice before it could be abrogated by either side.

The union's lawyers contended that the workers had struck, not under the general agreement, but under a special wage pact which had terminated on Dec. 31, 1927. Furthermore, they insisted that the union could not be held responsible for damages due to acts of its members over which it had no absolute control. The local Berlin Labor Court dismissed the case, but the Provincial Court awarded the employing company 1,600 marks damages and its decision has just been uphold by the Supreme Labor tribunal.

WINTER PASSES TURKEY BY.

Trees Bloom in Anatolia Where Zero Weather Is Due.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 29.—Weather-wise sages are scratching their heads in puzzlement, for here it is the end of January and Winter has not yet begun in parts of Anatolia. Kars, where it is usually below zero at this time, reports trees in bloom and balmy Spring air. The cold port of Samsun, on the Black Sea, is enjoying the same sort of weather.

American tourists who arrived in Constantinople last night on the first cruise boat of the season, the Laurentic, are sightseeing in sunshine, whereas last year's less fortunate visitors did not even trouble to go ashore in the deep snow.

Germany Buys Stresemann Film.

BERLIN (AP).—The government has bought a copy of the film showing the funeral of the late Dr. Gustav Stresemann. This marks the beginning of a collection of historical film material by the German Government.

IRELAND LOOKS HERE TO SELL HER BONDS

But London Market Is Not Yet Closed in Clash Over Colonial Stock Act.

OLD PAINTING DISCOVERED

Dr. Starkie, Who Has Been Invited to University of Chicago, Has Many Interests in Dublin.

By M. G. PALMER.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Feb. 13.—Speaking during the week-end at the annual dinner of the Society of Accountants in Dublin, Ernest Blythe, Minister of Finance, disclosed that a Free State national loan probably would be floated in Autumn, if not earlier. He rejoiced that the country's finances stood the test in the recent depression in the money market, and the drop in the bank rate arouses his hope that the second instalment of the national loan will be issued on more favorable terms. He said previous issues were necessitated by abnormal conditions, but that future issues would be made entirely for productive purposes, such as the Arthur development, the Shannon scheme and the housing project.

The difficulties over the colonial stock act may result in Mr. Blythe investigating the possibilities of a United States market, but at the same time London is not yet closed to him. Although the Free State Government still firmly adheres to its decision not to give the British legislature the right of veto over Saor State legislation, as required by the act, there still seems to be a possibility of an agreement. The alternative course is suggested in the report of the experts' conference, which says:

"The general question of the terms on which loans are raised by one part of the British Commonwealth and should be given the privilege of admission to the trustee list in another part calls naturally for determination by the government of the latter, and it is for the other governments to decide whether they will avail themselves of the privilege on the terms specified."

This obviously was intended to smooth the path of the Saor State to the British market, but Mr. Blythe has taken the precaution in the meantime to open negotiations with Wall Street. The amount of the loan will be $25,000,000.

Rare Art in Old Houses.

Ireland's moldering mansions have provided rich pickings for discriminating art collectors. Like their English fellows, the Irish aristocrats who made the grand tour in the eighteenth century rarely failed to bring back pictures from half a dozen Continental countries. Their descendants, who care more for horses and hounds than for possible Holbeins and Bellinis, as often as not left these canvases to gather grime in smoky halls and passages. Not all these are masterpieces, but in many cases the changes in art and fashion have enormously increased the value of works which were acquired for a song in the days of flounces, waistcoats and red-heeled shoes.

Few men have a keener instinct for finding this kind than Dr. Thomas Bodkin, director of the Irish National Gallery. Recently in a Dublin dealer's shop he came across a Flemish genre picture which had been discovered in an old Irish house. The artist had painted on a panel of oak which had become separated into longitudinal parts. Dr. Bodkin, believing this was the original of "The Peasants' Wedding," painted in 1620 by Pieter Breughel, bought the picture for the National Gallery at a moderate sum.

He was aware that the National Gallery at Stockholm and the Johnson collection at Philadelphia contained copies of "The Peasants' Wedding," each of which has been claimed as the original. Dr. Bodkin's purchase is now on view in Dublin, and his opinions are backed by Continental critics, such as Dr. Max J. Friedlander and Dr. Gustave Gluck. Dr. Joblom, director of the Royal Museum of Stockholm, wrote a letter to Dr. Bodkin, in which he said:

"Your version of the composition is much better than ours."

This appears to dispose of the Stockholm claim and artistic Dublin is wondering if Philadelphia will yield as easily.

Dr. Starkie's Many Interests.

Nobody could be more unlike the traditional professor than Dr. Walter Starkie of Trinity College, Dublin, who has been invited to deliver a series of lectures at the University of Chicago. Dr. Starkie specializes in romance languages but his overflowing energy refuses to be confined in academy swaddling bands. In addition to his work at Trinity he was recently appointed to a professorship in the University of Madrid. To lecture both in Ireland and Spain, with flying visits to the United States, would almost seem to demand a power like Boyle Roche's bird to be in two places at the same time.

Dr. Starkie, however, takes these jobs in his stride and in the interval finds time to be director of the Abbey Theatre, to write books on Pirandello and the Spanish drama and to attend more social affairs than anybody else in Dublin. No festive gathering is complete without him, from a state banquet at the vice-regal lodge to a students' concert where in the small hours of the morning he obliges with tunes on his beloved fiddle.

He admits he is happiest in the long vacations, when he roams over half of Europe with "the raggle-taggle gypsies," whose language he speaks and on whose folk songs and legends he is perhaps the best living authority.

Plan International Honors For Father of English Pottery

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—So great is the interest in the bicentenary of Josiah Wedgwood, the Father of English pottery, which is to take place this Spring, that plans have had to be made on an international scale. Wedgwood Week in Stoke-on-Trent in May will be followed by Wedgwood Week in London, while special exhibitions of Wedgwood ware will be held simultaneously in New York, Paris and a number of other American and Continental cities. Queen Mary will lend Wedgwood objects from Windsor Castle. The Archbishop of Canterbury will attend the religious services at the celebration's opening and the Archbishop of York will be at the concluding service.

TURKEY'S CHANGE SEEN IN CHILD'S COMPLAINT

Modern Procedure Frowns on School Beatings, Ignored Under Old Regime.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 29.—How times have changed in Turkey! Yesterday a 14-year-old student of the Kabatach Licee went to the nearest police station and complained that his teacher had beaten him. A few years ago he would have thought himself lucky to be sent home smarting. Charging a teacher with being abusive is a new thing in this country.

Less than fifteen years ago the "falaca" was the popular form of punishment in the schools. Scarcely a day went by but that somebody was treated to this species of juvenile torture. Score was kept against each pupil and punishment was measured by the number of bastinado strokes he or she would receive on bare soles of the feet. The child was made to lie down, the feet tied to a bar, the falaca; then it was hoisted up and the beating administered. Usually the youngster was unable to walk home and someone had to carry him. After that he might remain in bed several days before his feet were healed.

Customary punishment for whispering a few years ago was striking the open palm of the hand with a ruler. If the child drew away his hand, the number of strokes was doubled. Depending upon the temperament of the teacher, hair might be pulled. Children have been known to die as the result of being struck on the head with a chalk box or stick. For the very young children an ordinary punishment was denying them their lunch at noon.

Enlightened Turkey frowns upon such procedure, and the child's complaint is likely to receive a fair hearing before the police.

OLD BERLIN HOTEL REOPENS

The King of Portugal, Dating From 1699, Has Been Restored.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—The King of Portugal, Berlin's oldest hotel, has just been restored to its old splendor and reopened. The inn is first mentioned in the annals of the city in 1699, when the elector, Frederick III, granted Frau Elizabeth Hammerstein of the Wedigen family a loan of 2,000 reichstaker (about $1,500) for the erection of an inn on the street named Holy Ghost.

The name by which the inn is known now, it received about 1750 when a Portugese embassy came to Berlin and took up its abode there. Since then The King of Portugal has seen many distinguished and even royal guests within its walls.

Innumerable anecdotes are connected with the old hotel. The house even had its own private ghost for a while, and there is a story of a secret tunnel, connecting the Church of St. Mary with The King of Portugal and the Royal Castle, which is said to have witnessed some hair-raising incidents in the history of the Hohenzollerns.

Old British Ship to Go.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The torpedo school ship Defiance at Devonport, the last "wooden wall" of England, is expected to be sold soon. The Defiance was launched in 1861, when the navy learned that sailing battleships were of no further use but had not appreciated the possibilities of the ironclad. Although a big ship, her design provided for a reduced battery of ninety-one guns only, in order to make room for boilers and machinery of 800 horsepower, calculated to give a speed of eleven knots.

War Mines Still at Large in Sea.

KIEL, Germany (AP).—Floating mines still imperil navigation in war zone waters. Three fishermen who tried to salvage one of the deadly things were blown to pieces when they tried to haul it aboard their craft.

SPAIN IS APATHETIC TO NAVAL PARLEY

By FRANK L. KLUCKHOHN.

Continued from Page 1, Column 2.

have been expected. There is a dazed attitude about all such effort and not too much interest except in radical and moneyed quarters. It seems to observers that the Radicals do not know exactly how radical they care to be and the Conservatives do not know how conservative they can afford to be. Spain—especially her youth—is politically bewildered after years of political paralysis.

Sports to the Fore in Madrid.

One healthy sign is that a game of football between Basques and Madrillians drew a crowd of 20,000 Spanish youth just after the government's fall. Large numbers of young people take more interest these days in skiing and numerous sports than in political breeding places like cafés. Politics as every man's secondary amusement has done Spain more harm than good in the past, many Spaniards feel.

Some English spectators of the football game showed amusement when the husky Basque captain handed the captain of the Madrid team a bunch of red and white flowers before the game began, but the subsequent hard action erased their first impression.

LONDON HAILS REA AS GUILD'S AGENT

Producer Is Expected to Forge Stronger Link With Stage of American Metropolis.

HONOR CALLED DESERVED

New Representative of New York Group Has Staged Many Notable Plays in Eleven-Year Career.

By THURSTON MACAULEY.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Commenting upon the recent appointment of Alec L. Rea as the English representative of the New York Theatre Guild, one London newspaper said that the blue ribbon of the Anglo-American theatre had been conferred upon him. The Guild's choice of Mr. Rea to replace Harold Rubinstein, who was forced to relinquish the post because of the pressure of work, is felt to be a well-earned honor. The people of the theatrical world know just how well earned it is, even if most playgoers do not, because of the recipient's exceptional modesty.

Unlike some producers Mr. Rea is one who has removed himself as far as possible from the limelight, devoting his talents and energies to the development of the theatre here along the same line the Guild has followed in New York.

It has been justly remarked that the London legitimate theatre probably owes more to Mr. Rea than any one else in respect to the number of fine plays presented under his auspices, fine talents revealed and technical advances made.

Mr. Rea graduated to the West End Theatre management via the repertory movement which, however, is something he has never resigned his interest in since. He is founder and was for some time chairman of the Playhouse in Liverpool, where he was born a little more than fifty years ago. He first came to London in 1919, bringing with him the promising young director Basil Dean, and the Reandean management, which the pair organized, soon did much to restore life to a theatre hard hit by four years of war.

Forty Plays Produced.

Since the first Reandean production "Sacred and Profane Love," Mr. Rea has been responsible directly or partly for more than forty plays in the West End. He aided in the development of Galsworthy as a dramatist, presenting his "The Skin Game" and "Loyalties." Other outstanding successes of his have been "Rain," and "Berkeley Square" and the kinship of his policy with the Guild's is seen in the fact that he has done here three plays they had given in New York—"R.U.R.," "The Silver Cord" and "They Knew What They Wanted."

The Playbox under the Reandean auspices was a sort of miniature Theatre Guild, although it did not develop here owing to insufficient support. Mr. Rea remarked, concerning this project, that there seemed to him a keener spirit in America for the "uplift" of the theatre and that the American people were more prone to support en masse what appeals to them as worth while.

The encouragement Mr. Rea has given to young actors and actresses who appeared in his productions has resulted in fostering much new talent. Many of the now leading players in New York and London had their first chances with Mr. Rea at St. Martin's Theatre. A few who might be mentioned are Beatrix Thompson, Ian Hunter, Jean Forbes-Robertson and Clive Brook, who since has achieved prominence as a film actor.

Treasurer of Drama League.

Mr. Rea is honorary treasurer of the British Drama League and a zealous propagandist for the community theatre. He is, however, strongly against the national theatre movement as at present being campaigned for here by Bernard Shaw and others, as he believes centralization of theatres more advantageous for the people in the Provinces than one State theatre opening within the metropolis. His Guild appointment is especially interesting because his wife is an American, the former Marguerite Requa, daughter of the late Charles Requa, of New York.

Mrs. Rea is director of her husband's theatrical programs, playing an active part herself in all productions as general artistic adviser.

It also happens that Mr. Rea's town house, at 10 Stratton Street, Piccadilly, has been rented furnished and with a complete staff for the duration of the naval conference for the use of the American delegation. It is conveniently situated, only a short distance from the delegation's headquarters at the Ritz Hotel.

Mr. Rea as liaison officer between the London Theatre and New York Theatre Guild here is regarded as a singularly felicitious arrangement, from which both England and America should reap benefits. He is to advise the American organization regarding new plays produced here, also to assist in productions of the Guild on this side.

Harold Rubinstein, it should be mentioned, remains the Guild's legal adviser here.

ACTOR ABANDONS REALISM.

Achmed's Hanging Scene Was Too Nearly Fatal to Be Repeated.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 27.—In Galata is a small theatre principally patronized by laborers and porters. Its tendency toward realism has always drawn a clientele who enjoy thrills

A few days ago Achmed Effendi, one of the actors, thought to outdo previous performances and arranged a hanging scene. The attempt was an artistic success. The audience applauded frantically the struggles of Achmed in his noose.

Other members of the company, however, wondering at the ovation, looked out and saw that all was not well with Achmed. The manager cut him down just in time. It was several hours before he recovered from his fright.

The execution scene has since been eliminated from the program.

Russian Influence Is Noted In Lord Mayor's Soup Course

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The traditional turtle soup at the Mansion House has been ousted in favor of Russian bortsch. It appears when the Court of Aldermen dined recently with the Lord Mayor for the first time within a century at least there was no turtle soup, heretofore the usual prelude to a Mansion House banquet.

The city banquet has been a last refuge of the genuine turtle, but it now seems that the soup is going the way of turtle fins, once one of the courses at the Lord Mayor's table. Nevertheless, the City Fathers are reported to be quite pleased with the Russian soup.

TRIPTYCH REASSEMBLED AFTER FOUR CENTURIES

Church, Two Museums and a Private Collector Give Up Parts of Famous Masterpiece.

A triptych, said by Jean Guiffrey, Conservator of the Department of Painting at the Paris Louvre, to have been made at Aix-en-Provence in the fifteenth century, was reassembled at the Louvre after its parts had been separated for several centuries. One church, two museums, both of them foreign, and one British private collector gave up the parts which have now been restored to their ancient juxtapositions.

The central panel, on which the colors are said to be splendidly preserved, represents the "Annunciation," and comes from the Church of the Madeleine of Aix-en-Provence, where it had formed the altarpiece for over three centuries. The right panel represents the prophet Jeremiah in the robes of a Cardinal. This is loaned by the Musée d'Art Ancien of Brussels.

The left panel had been separated into two pieces. The principal piece shows a full figure of the prophet Isaiah. It is the lower part of the panel, and had been used as the front of a seventeenth-century cabinet when this cabinet was obtained at auction by Sir Herbert Cook of Richmond, England, some years ago. The upper part was incorporated in a bookcase belonging to the Ryks Museum, Amsterdam, when discovered and identified.

The side panels were identified by their backs being parts of an identical scene: Christ standing with His right hand elevated in benediction over the head of Mary Magdalen, who kneels at his feet.

The central panel, that representing the "Annunciation," was shown at the exhibition of French primitives in Paris in 1904, when experts decided its identity and a search was started for its sister panels. The first to be identified was that in Brussels. The museum there had purchased from a private collector, in 1923, a panel representing the prophet Jeremiah. On examination it was established that the Gothic molding surrounding it was identical with that on the "Annunciation" at Aix, and, taking into consideration the dimensions of the two pictures, which corresponded exactly, it was realized that one of the missing wings had been found.

For some time there was no trace of the others. Then it was noticed that a panel in the collection of Sir Herbert Cook and another belonging to the Amsterdam Museum were in reality the halves of the missing wing, which had been sawed in two horizontally.

Thus from Aix, Brussels, Amsterdam and England the Louvre has obtained on loan the component parts, and will be able to reveal once again as a whole this long-since dismembered triptych, the painter of which, however, still remains unknown.

The reassembled triptych is to remain in the Louvre until the middle of March, according to M. Guiffrey, during which period experts will be at work trying to solve the problem of its authorship and the mystery of its dismemberment. It will then go on tour provided sufficient funds for its transportation and protection have been raised. Otherwise it will again be dismembered and the parts restored to their owners.

Deposed Shah Takes Life Easy.

PARIS (AP).—Ahmed Mirza Kadjar, deposed Shah of Persia, who has made his home in France since the Persian Parliament dethroned him four years ago, shows no signs of wishing to return to the cares of the Peacock Throne. Like his father, Nohammed Ali Shah, who was forced to abdicate in 1909, he is not taking his fate tragically. On the contrary, he lives a placid existence, attended by a small court and served with his favorite Oriental dishes by a Persian cook.

SHAKESPEARE AGAIN FASHION IN PARIS

Revival of Two Plays Brings Periodic Renewal of France's Interest in Bard of Avon.

NEW STUDY IS PUBLISHED

Comtesse de Chambrun's Work on "Hamlet" Deals With the French Sources of the Playwright.

By MAY BIRKHEAD.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—At the moment Paris is witnessing a renewal of interest in Shakespeare. This phenomenon often has been observed here in the past and doubtless will go on indefinitely in the future. There exists in France a deeply grounded and widespread interest in the sweet singer of Avon, but usually it requires some new performance of his plays or some special event to reveal the extent of the Shakespearean public on this side of the Channel.

Several recent events have given the great playwright actuality. The translation of "The Tempest" by Guy de Pourtales and a recent run of "The Merry Wives of Windsor" in a highly vernacular French version have drawn large audiences, captivated by their vitality and extraordinary variety. The Odéon still gives regularly a richly colored interpretation of "The Merchant of Venice."

Frequent reference has been made recently to the influence of Shakespeare's plays on the romantic revival which began here more than 100 years ago, some of whose important centenaries are being commemorated this year.

New "Hamlet" a Source Book.

Those interested in the historical aspect of Shakespeare's genius, the French sources he used and his influence in France will find much in the new work on "Hamlet," just published by the Comtesse de Chambrun. It will be remembered that this Shakespearean authority, who before becoming the wife of General Comte Adalbert de Chambrun was Clara Longworth, produced several notable studies of the dramatist. Three years ago in her "Shakespeare, the Actor and Poet" she dealt particularly with the "dark lady" of his sonnets and with the relations between Florio, translator of Montaigne, and Shakespeare.

The other day, just before leaving to join her husband, who is Governor General of Fez, the Comtesse de Chambrun gave a reception in her Paris home on the occasion of the appearance of this interesting volume of "Hamlet." The hostess had the happy idea to display in her salons a collection of Shakespeariana, some of whose items are extremely rare and curious. Naturally, Florio, to whose rôle in the development of Shakespeare's genius Mme. Longworth Chambrun made such important contributions, bulked large with his dictionary of the year 1598, his translation of Montaigne's essays, his manuscripts and other autographs. There was also a copy of the precious second folio of the year 1632, with portraits in costume of such stage celebrities in "Hamlet" as Talma, Charles Kean, David Garrick, Charles Kemble and Sarah Bernhardt. The showing included de la Croix wash drawings of scenes from "Hamlet" from the originals now in the Bibliothèque Nationale.

The Comtesse de Chambrun plans to be in Fez with her husband until June.

Violin Prodigy Heard.

Among the week's interesting musical events, a youthful prodigy who already had made a public appearance in Paris performed at an informal Sunday tea given by the Duchess de Talleyrand, the former Anna Gould, for her young daughter, Violet de Talleyrand.

Paul Makanovitzky gave a remarkable exhibition of violin playing with a fluency, musical intuition and with a finished ease which seemed almost incredible for one of his years. Aside from his extraordinary musical endowment he seems to be a normal boy. His mother, who was among the guests at this party, considers he shows, in addition to his skill as a virtuoso, signs of becoming a composer, although he has not yet mastered the composers' instrument, the piano. The boy's teacher, Jean Galamian, professor at the Russian Conservatory in Paris, also was present.

Another of the guests was Elde Norena of the Paris Opéra, who talked with the young artist in her native tongue. Although of Russian parentage, Paul was born in Stockholm, where his father was a teacher of the violin. Mlle. Norena, who has just appeared in opera here with great success in the revival of Meyerbeer's "The Huguenots," now is going to Monte Carlo, where she will create the rôle of Eve in Raoul Gunsbourg's new work, "Satan," also singing for the first time in France the rôle of Minetta Hohann in Strauss's "Une Nuit à Venise," with its lush, delicious melody. This has been sung in Vienna by Jeritza.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Post and Mr. and Mrs. J. Woodward Haven are among the recent arrivals who were dinner hosts at a Sunday dance at the Ritz. They are going soon to Egypt. Russell A. Colt is on his way South to visit his young daughter.

FRENCH VIEW FAILS TO WORRY BRITONS

By ERNEST MARSHALL.

Continued from Page 1, Column 1.

suavely, "that fourteen men met in a supper room in Manchester and passed a resolution that the silk duties should not be repealed, and that next morning the Tory newspapers came out with a big headline, 'Lancashire Declared for Protection.'"

Apart from the special campaigns which Lords Rothermere and Beaverbrook are waging for their particular variants of protection, the main point in the agitation now being worked up by Conservative politicians and newspapers throughout the country generally is concerned with the question of industries already safeguarded under Mr. McKenna's preferential duties. It is almost safe to assume that Mr. Snowden will not greatly interfere with these, if at all, because of their revenue-producing quality.

In regard to other aspects of the Tory campaign, the Chancellor of the Exchequer is in the position to charge his adversaries with not knowing their own minds and being at variance one with another in their views as to either what the country wants or what they think it wants.

Conservative Party's Plight.

The Conservatives stand in a house divided against itself, and even Stanley Baldwin's leadership is in doubt. It is significant that a few days ago The London Times, referring to suggestions that some delegates to the naval conference had doubts as to the present government's continuance in office, stated that Ramsay MacDonald knew better than anybody else that if he went to the country now he would be returned with a greatly increased majority.

This would be true not only in regard to the point of whether Mr. MacDonald has the backing of his countrymen in the naval conference, but also because the Labor party has gone on growing in strength while the Conservatives have been weakened by their internal dissensions.

Stanley Baldwin's idea appears to be that if the Labor party has another two years in office the traditional swing of the pendulum in British politics will bring the Tories back to power, but if the present disintegration process continues the Conservative party bids fair to be only a shadow of its former self within a year hence.

One of the chief items in the political gossip of the hour is that, given even a fair measure of success with the naval conference, Ramsay MacDonald will himself decide upon an appeal to the country on either Philip Snowden's budget or any other related issue, and that there will be a general election in the Summer.

Were such a thing to happen perhaps the most disgruntled man in England would be Lord Rothermere, for by no glimmer of possibility could his friend, Lord Beaverbrook, within so short a period have succeeded in forming that "new party" which Lord Rothermere believes to be "an imminent and almost inevitable development" of the present confused situation in British domestic politics.

If Lord Beaverbrook had the same faith in his own destiny as Lord Rothermere professes, possibly the world may yet see the exciting spectacle of the two noble lords forming a deputation to 10 Downing Street to beseech Ramsay MacDonald to postpone a general election until such time as Stanley Baldwin has been definitely deposed from the leadership of the Opposition.

NEW BANK OF ENGLAND BUILT FOR 1,000 YEARS

"Old Lady of Threadneedle Street" Will Appear in Thoroughly Up-to-Date Guise.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Fifty vaults, with steel and concrete walls eight feet thick, will be a striking feature of the new Bank of England, now in course of construction. One of them is fifty feet below the level of Threadneedle Street.

Arrangements almost melodramatic in character have been made for the protection of the vaults in the event of civil disturbance or a raid by thieves. Despite the fact that their doors, which open by electricity, weigh eight tons each, plans have been made for flooding the vaults in emergency.

This would be carried out simply by pressing any one of three electric buttons, which are being connected to the vaults from the inside of the bank itself from a point "somewhere in London," and from another place ten miles outside the metropolis. While the completed building might be captured, it could not be destroyed, for its walls will be made thick enough to withstand the most powerful guns or bombs.

Meanwhile, the new works are being guarded by a detachment of soldiers, a practice recently defended by Tom Shaw, Minister of War, on the ground that the Bank of England was the government's banker and responsible for the register of government loans and for the country's gold reserve.

A large open court will replace the old Garden Court. Around it the new bank will rise in a group of pavilions and terraces, lighted by overhead windows of vitaglass, through which the sun's natural ultra-violet rays will reach the clerks at their desks below, thus creating an artificially sunlit basement. Lloyds are the pioneers in this "Brighter Bank" movement.

The new building, which is being erected to last for at least 1,000 years at a cost of $25,000,000, will not be completed until 1935. During the excavation work for the vaults many relics of old London were unearthed. One of them was a pipe-clay statuette of Venus, a very rare piece of work by a Roman artist, which has been presented to the British Museum.

DAVID

The leading shirtmaker

in PARIS

32 AVENUE DE L'OPERA

will arrive in New York

February 18th, 1930

for a special showing of the newest creations in men's wear and ladies' sport dresses for the coming season.

Address communications to

Mr. PAUL DAVID

Room 1420

Biltmore Hotel, New York

YTEB

DRESSES COATS

SPORT SUITS

14, Rue Royale

PARIS

European Hotels and Resorts

Hotel Continental

3 Rue Castiglione (facing the Tuileries)

PARIS

Parisian atmosphere, famous cuisine American comforts

PARIS at its best

HOTEL LOTTI

7 Rue de Castiglione (near the Tuileries)

is the first of PARIS FIRST-CLASS HOTELS

BADGASTEIN Hotel "Der Kaiserhof." Refinement and Comfort. Finest position. Latest improvements.

HOTEL DIRECTORY

METROPOLITAN HOTEL, 5 Rue Cambon, Paris. Most central. A home away from home.

MAJESTIC HOTEL, Paseo de Gracia, Barcelona. 1st class, 200 rooms, 150 baths. Mod. rates.

PARIS EDOUARD VII—39, Avenue de l'Opera. Moderate terms (no taxes).

PARIS HOTEL ASTOR—11 rue d'Astorg. Moderate terms—near Madeleine.

PARIS HOTEL DU PALAIS D'ORSAY. Cable add.: Palaisorsay 44 Paris

PARIS GRAND HOTEL TERMINUS St. Lazare. Cable: Terminus 118.

PARIS HOTEL DU LOUVRE Place Theatre Francaise. Cable: Louvrehotel 111.

The New York Times

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

"All the News That's Fit to Print."

Published Every Day in the Year by THE NEW YORK TIMES COMPANY.

ADOLPH S. OCHS, President and Publisher.

B. C. Franck, Secretary.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1930.

OFFICES OF THE NEW YORK TIMES

NEW YORK CITY, Telephone Lackawanna 1000

TIMES BUILDING.......Times Square
TIMES ANNEX.......229 West 43d Street
DOWNTOWN.......7 Beekman Street
WALL STREET.......165 Broadway
HARLEM.......127 West 125th Street
BROOKLYN.......300 Washington Street
BRONX.......2,829 Third Avenue (149th St.)
FORDHAM.......120 East Fordham Road

MINEOLA.......Tel. Garden City 2605. 457 Franklin Av.
NEWARK.......Tel. Mulberry 3300. 17-19 William St.
WHITE PLAINS....Tel. White Plains 5300. 171 Main St.
WASHINGTON.....News, Albee Bldg.; Advtg., Star Bldg.
BALTIMORE.....Sun Building, Baltimore St. and Sun Sq.
CHICAGO..News, 435 N. Michigan; Bus., 360 N. Michigan
ST. LOUIS..Globe-Dem. Bldg.; DETROIT..Gen. Mot. Bldg.
BOSTON....18 Tremont St.; LOS ANGELES....Times Bldg.
SAN FRANCISCO, 742 Market St.; SEATTLE..Stuart Bldg.
LONDON..News, Printing House Sq., Bus., 8 Salisbury Sq.
PARIS....16 rue de la Paix; ROME....55 Via dell' Anima
BERLIN.....Kochstrasse 28; BUDAPEST.....29 Eotvos Ucca
VIENNA, 8 Rosenbursenstrasse; BUCHAREST Delirfanea, 24
GENEVA.......Villa Bon Abri, Chene-Bourg
COPENHAGEN Politiken Bldg.; MOSCOW Bolshaya Ordinka 53
BELGRADE..Pregled Skoplianska 18; WARSAW..Warecka 7
TOKIO, 18 Yamashita-cho, Kyobashi-ku; CAIRO Sphinx Bldg.
JERUSALEM Hotel Allenby; MEXICO CITY 5 de Mayo Nº 1
BUENOS AIRES.......Avenida de Mayo Nº 1144—5º Piso

2 cents Greater New York; 3 cents within 200 miles; 4 cents elsewhere except 7th and 8th postal zones; Sunday, 5 cents Manhattan, Bronx, Brooklyn; 10 cents elsewhere except 7th and 8th postal zones.

[Entered as second-class mail matter.]

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: UNITED STATES.

Edition.	1 Yr.	6 Mos.	3 Mos.	1 Mo.	2 Wks.	1 Wk.
D. & S.	$15.00	$7.50	$3.75	$1.25	$ .70	$ .40
Weekday	10.00	5.00	2.55	.85	.55	.35
Sunday	5.00	2.60	1.40	.50	.30	.20

United States Possessions and Territories, Canada, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Haiti, Mexico, Newfoundland, Spain and colonies, Central and South America, except British Honduras, British, French and Dutch Guiana.

Edition.	1 Yr.	6 Mos.	3 Mos.	1 Mo.
Daily and Sunday	$18.00	$9.00	$4.50	$1.50
Weekday	12.00	6.00	3.00	1.00
Sunday	6.00	3.00	1.50	.50

Other Foreign Countries.

Edition.	1 Yr.	6 Mos.	3 Mos.	1 Mo.
Daily and Sunday	$32.00	$16.00	$8.00	$2.75
Weekday	20.00	10.00	5.00	1.75
Sunday	12.00	6.00	3.00	1.00

ANNALIST (Fridays), a year, $7; Canada, $7.50; other countries, $8. Binder, 26 issues, $1.50.
THE NEW YORK TIMES BOOK REVIEW (weekly), a year, $2; Canada, $2.50; foreign, $3.
MID-WEEK PICTORIAL (weekly), United States, Canada, Mexico, Central and South America, a year, $4; other foreign countries, $5.50.
CURRENT HISTORY MAGAZINE (monthly), a year, $3; Canada, $3.75; foreign, $4.25; a copy, 25c.
THE NEW YORK TIMES INDEX—8 monthly pamphlets, 4 quarterly cumulative volumes, $12; Annual Cumulative Index (rag paper), $25; Monthly, Quarterly, Annual Cumulative Indexes, $32.50.
THE NEW YORK TIMES rag paper edition for permanent preservation, daily and Sunday, cloth bound, 2 volumes per month, $170 per annum.

The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for republication of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper, and also the local news of spontaneous origin published herein. All rights of republication of all other matter herein are also reserved.

UNSEEN DIPLOMATS.

Reports that President HOOVER cut short his vacation in Florida so as to get more quickly in touch with our delegation at the London Naval Conference are probably unfounded. No crisis in the negotiations has arisen to demand direct action by the President. The fullest possible instructions were given to Secretary STIMSON and his colleagues before they sailed. They have naturally been sending ample reports to the White House, but except in one or another minor detail it is not probable that they have as yet presented any matter requiring Mr. HOOVER'S intervention and decision. Yet it is provocative of thought that, with modern facilities for rapid communication what they are, he is, in effect, sitting, as it were, behind a screen in the room where the diplomats are conferring in London.

Other unseen diplomatic influences may powerfully affect the London deliberations. A distant event may prove more conclusive than any argument on the spot. Prime Minister MACDONALD has dwelt soberly upon British responsibilities in various parts of the earth, and the need of a naval force to make sure that, in any emergency, they can be discharged. If it should happen that at the very moment when he was proposing a cut in the British Navy serious disturbances should break out in India, or the Chinese Nationalists should begin another boycott on British trade, or Egypt should be shaken by a spirit of revolution, obviously Mr. MACDONALD'S naval policy might have to be reconsidered. This would be a reversal of MACAULAY'S famous paradox about European politics causing Indians to scalp each other on the banks of the Mississippi. This time it would be as if the banks of the Mississippi shaped counsels on the shore of the Thames.

It is pleasanter, however, to think of the other unseen diplomats, present only in spirit, who must be constantly in the mind and on the conscience of the delegates who are visible. They cannot be unconscious of the hopes and fears, the longings and aspirations, of the multitudes in their own countries and in all other parts of the earth who are fixing an anxious gaze upon the proceedings at London. They have no spokesman with direct access to the gathering. They cannot send their pleadings by cable or radio. But in these days of instant contact of mind with mind throughout the whole world, there must be something like telepathic communication between these masses of plain men and women in every nation and the responsible statesmen assembled at London. What the former beg for, the latter cannot wholly deny. The diplomats who are seen must always be acutely conscious of those who remain unseen, so that when it may become necessary to make a stand in the Valley of Decision, they may bid those who hesitate or object to lift up their eyes to the hills and perceive that those that are with them are more than those that are against them.

FASHIONS FROM LONDON.

In the years immediately after the Armistice the British Labor party exercised upon a certain fraction of American opinion an influence nothing short of hypnotic. British Labor was accepted as the model upon which a radical political movement in this country could and should shape itself. With time the spell weakened. That it did not entirely disappear was shown after Mr. NORMAN THOMAS'S impressive run for Mayor of New York on the Socialist ticket last Fall. The quest for a Third Party, an activity that had been flagging of late, was resumed. Differences of opinion naturally arose as to the precise kind of a Third Party the country and the times were clamoring for; and just as naturally the British Labor party figured among the models proposed. The enthusiasm displayed was not equal in amount to the devotion of ten years ago, but there seemed to be no difference in the thoroughness with which people ignored the utter contrast between conditions in Great Britain and this country in the matter of labor, radicalism and politics.

That difference has once more been illustrated in the Armageddon fought over the body of Mr. HUGHES in the Senate between the angelic hosts arrayed for the vindication of Human Rights against the forces of darkness rallying to the defense of Property. In Great Britain, or anywhere else in Western Europe, it is axiomatic that the votes cast against Mr. HUGHES would have come from the urban constituencies, from the great factory districts inhabited by a proletariat determined to assert the only thing it did own, its human rights. The votes cast in favor of Mr. HUGHES would have come from the rural and lower middle-class constituencies, where conservatism has its stronghold in every European country. It is in the open spaces that die-hard and feudal influences still flourish in England, France, Germany, Austria. Indeed, historically the city has always been tinged red; the sturdy farmer has always been the brake upon revolution.

It is unnecessary to enumerate the States which on Thursday cast one or more votes against Mr. HUGHES and property rights. It was the original farm bloc reinforced by recent allies from the agricultural South. Michigan and Missouri were the only two industrial States, and their Senators split two ways on Mr. HUGHES. But industrial States like New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Ohio and Illinois, despite their millions of voting workingmen, declared for Property and against human rights. New York is particularly noticeable, with its two Democratic Senators. If it be argued that Senators do not really represent the people but only the Interests, the rule ought to work for NORRIS and BORAH as for WAGNER and COPELAND. Actually it is a matter of common knowledge that WAGNER and COPELAND are not much more conservative than the American Federation of Labor when it is a question of third parties and a new economic system.

In Europe labor is radical and agrarianism is conservative. In this country labor is conservative, and all our radical movements have been agrarian. The fight for human rights and against property rights has been waged in this country by the class with incomparably the widest distribution of property. It would not be necessary to restate these commonplaces of our political and social history if it were not for the recurrent prospectuses of an American political movement on the model of the British Labor party.

A FRENCH COLLECTOR OF INCOMES.

Mme. BOURGEOT, whose profession for thirty years was that of a "collector of incomes," has been sent to jail for five years by a Versailles court. She had managed to collect between eleven and twelve million francs, most of which has mysteriously disappeared. Her pompous title had something official and seductive in it. It impressed her clients, mainly small bourgeois, priests innocent of business, old folk living on small fixed incomes. Her functions, if they had been honestly performed, were those of an agent who cuts off and cashes coupons, transmits dividends and sometimes advises how to "play the Stock Exchange." She "played" it herself with not her own money, sometimes with considerable success.

In effect, she was a private banker, who never kept any accounts. She did go so far as to give receipts. Only by their means have the experts been able to follow her operations and estimate her deficit. In Versailles, as everywhere else, there are those strange people, at once suspicious and trustful, who won't put their money or even their securities in the bank; who, if they want to buy and sell on the Stock Exchange, prefer some dubious outsider to a member. This hallucination and this dupery are too common and widespread to justify any improving moral observations on this case. It is enough to say that on the day after the woman's arrest a client wrote her: "Even if you are found guilty, I shall never believe in this shameful charge."

A priest had deposited eleven stock certificates with her. When she gave back only ten, he remonstrated mildly. She was nobly angry. The next day the priest apologized humbly. "I crave your indulgence." Her severity, outward piety and shady financial operations inevitably send the Parisian commentators to BALZAC. Her morals were strictly correct. Every Sunday, a prayer-book in her hand, her eyes fixed on the ground, she went to church, from which she returned to read financial papers and go through complicated transactions on the Exchange. In Figaro, M. GEORGES CLARETIE makes us see her:

> Thin, dry or rather dried up; gray hair puffed over big ears; a long face with wrinkled cheeks, yellow as old parchment. A wretched black gown with a little collar of white embroidery. A black hat hides hard eyes. She looks like a beggar woman; but when you go over her harsh features in detail, when you look at the sharp lips, the peevish eyes, the toothless mouth, you think of those schoolmistresses of whom DICKENS speaks, at once austere and cruel, who will hardly give their pupils a few crumbs of stale bread or dry pudding.

One may be reminded, perhaps, rather of COLLEY CIBBER'S compliment to "the most damned forbidding virtuous "countenance that smallpox and natural "ugliness ever compounded." This air of severity and "respectability" must have been useful. It testified to her honesty, as her shabby dress did to her wealth. Mme. BOURGEOT must have great conversational powers. In court she sat mute, save for an occasional protesting "Oh!" Once she transgressed her rule. Her counsel rose to say that she had a statement to make. Tears poured down the wrinkled face: "I'm awfully sorry (j'ai énormément de regrets)." So far as we can make out, 350,000 francs, said to have been spent on her son, are the only accounted-for part of the deposits made by some three hundred customers.

The income collector is 64. Has she a small fortune to look forward to when her seclusion ends, or did she gull herself as well as the three hundred?

THE MISSING HAND.

Lives there a man with soul so dead that he will not pause long enough between the sporting page and the financial news to read about the discovery of a new tomb in Egypt? "RA OUER, in-"timate friend of the King, master of the "royal robes, master of ceremonies, bar-"ber of the King, well beloved of the "King"—so runs the inscription on a statue in the great tomb, said to contain eighty compartments and thirty labyrinths, just unearthed by the Egyptian University expedition. The words carry one out of this world of movies and motors, skyscrapers, politics and traffic jams, back to a civilization in its way no less material than ours, but filled, at least in retrospect, with enviable mystery. The tomb lies in the shadow of the Sphinx. One can imagine the excitement there on the edge of the desert, when the sands that drifted in through the centuries had been patiently dug away and the stone removed from the entrance, and the discoverers stood aside for the first rush of foul air before daring to penetrate recesses that had lain undisturbed for 5,000 years.

In the mummy's coffin they found a human hand, and near by the skeleton of a man with one hand missing, and on the ground a wonderful necklace of 4,000 gold and lapis lazuli beads. The throat of the mummy was damaged. According to the cables, archaeologists assert that by a "strange coincidence" heavy masonry must have fallen on the man and cut off his hand in the very act of robbing the dead. In the name of romance, we protest. What reader of mystery tales will for a moment believe that it was a coincidence? Surely it was by design that the heavy lid fell on the intruder. Perhaps there was a secret attached to it, as in one of our modern tales. Or is there an echo here of the ancient story of Rhampsinitus? His memorial, HERODOTUS tells us, was the western forecourt of the temple of Hephaestus, before which he set two statues of 25 cubits height. "The north-"ernmost of these is called by the Egyp-"tians Summer, and the southernmost "Winter"; Summer they worship, but "do contrariwise to the statue called Winter," as was fitting enough in a country blessed with such a climate, and wishing, no doubt, to advertise it to the rest of the world.

Rhampsinitus had great wealth of silver. That he might store his treasure safely, he erected a stone chamber, one of its walls abutting on the outer side of his palace. But the mason who built it craftily contrived that one stone should be so placed as to be easily removed. He told his two sons about it, and after his death one of them, coming to the palace by night, entered the chamber and stole much of the treasure. Later he returned, only to be caught in a trap which the King had set for him. With great presence of mind and filial devotion, he called to his brother to come and cut off his head, lest he should be recognized and the family disgraced. Thereupon the King determined to solve the mystery of the headless thief, and having apparently less regard for the family honor, set a human trap for the culprit in the person of his daughter, instructing her to compel every man who came to her to tell what was the cleverest trick and the greatest crime of his life. In some way the surviving brother heard of the King's plan and decided to circumvent it. He went to the Princess, carrying under his cloak a dead man's arm. Boldly he told her all about his crime and how he had cut off his brother's head:

> Hearing this, the Princess would have laid hands on him, but the thief in the darkness gave her the dead man's arm. She seized that, thinking that she was grasping the arm of the thief, who, having given it to her, made his escape by way of the door.

Readers of those days, as of our own, evidently demanded a happy ending to their novels, for HERODOTUS confides to us that Rhampsinitus so admired the man's ingenuity and daring that he married him to his daughter.

THE CRITICAL TEST.

The most pungent review of a book ever written was not intended as a book review. It is the sonnet by JOHN KEATS "On First Looking Into Chapman's Homer." CHAPMAN is little HOMER and less poetry, but for KEATS the volume opened so startling a world he could think of himself only as a watcher of the heavens across whose vision a new planet swims,

> Or like stout CORTEZ, when with eagle eyes
> He stared at the Pacific—and all his men
> Looked at each other with a wild surmise—
> Silent, upon a peak in Darien.

KEATS was as little a critic as he was historian. But he has gone to the first principles of criticism. He has furnished the formula by which a book must be judged. What his sonnet testifies to is the impact of the Greek epic on a sensitively attuned mind. Therein is the test. If the reader is unaware of any impact from a book, that book is, for him, a failure. It may remain a useful book merely for the information contained, or for any one of a score of purely extraneous reasons. But it cannot be included in the category of the great. Not all the ineptitudes and lapses CHAPMAN committed could lessen or divert the Homeric impact.

Perhaps it will be felt that to make the critical test so exclusively the degree of the individual's response is to surrender to the dictum so dear to French critics, that literary criticism is one's personal adventures with a book, and to ignore all requirement of literary standards. But this is not to go below the surface. For the "adventure," if it is to be anywise profitable, presupposes on the part of the adventurer the possession of standards of taste and appreciation, albeit these may have been arrived at unconsciously and retained unconsciously. The two schools of criticism are not so far apart as they seem. If a reader finds himself compelled to exclaim, "There is a good book!" he can count on being right. The crucial point, however, is the degree of compulsion. And the same applies in all other fields of art—the drama, music, painting. The only task laid upon the professional critic, from which the non-professional critic is free, is that he shall analyze his experience carefully so that he may discover in the work before him the force that lies behind the impact. But for both, the real test will have been the same.

LEGAL "INBREEDING."

Dean SMITH of the Columbia School of Law, in his annual report published last week, had some rather sharp criticisms of the teaching of law in this country. Whether the student is trained, after the old fashion, in general legal principles, or obtains his knowledge of the law through the now favored "case method," he is not led away, or is not able to get away, from "the traditional concepts of the lawyer." He is told what judicial decisions have been. From them he is expected to deduce generalizations or rules universally applicable. Thus, asserts Dean SMITH, "the intellectual inbreeding goes on."

> In the course of three years the student becomes familiar with various legal concepts, he acquires legal habits of thought, he develops a fair skill in the use of legal data, and he obtains considerable knowledge of the history and meaning of rules of law. The instructor devotes himself assiduously to his teaching but rarely extends his research beyond the collection of court decisions and statutes. Little thought is given to the validity of established legal doctrine. Little time is spent in ascertaining how the law is actually working.

As a corrective of this system, Dean SMITH urges a larger amount of legal research. Several undertakings of that kind are already under way through the efforts of the Columbia Law School. There is, for example, to be an exhaustive study of "recent trends of corporate development." Another field to be explored is that of "family law." Still another survey is to be made to decide whether an institute of criminology should be established in this country. Other investigations of the sort are planned or are urged. Doubtless they would be of value in collecting materials and throwing a certain light upon the developments of the law in our time. But whether such a course of treatment would automatically free lawyers from narrowness and stagnation may be doubted. Researchers sometimes tend painfully to inbreeding. And it may well be that a student thoroughly grounded in the principles of law would not find it too difficult to extend its great tradition to new social and business conditions as they arise from time to time.

LINCOLN AND KNOX COLLEGE.

At a recent dinner held by the graduates of Knox College in New York, attention was called to a Lincoln monument that should not be allowed to disappear. It is the central college building, now called "Old Main," by the side of which the fifth of the Lincoln-Douglas Debates was held. On a chill day in October of 1858 there was gathered in Galesburg, Ill., the largest audience that LINCOLN ever addressed on a purely political subject. It had been planned to hold the Debate in an open square, but a cold northwest wind was blowing and a temporary platform was erected on the east side of the college building, then but two years old. So it came about that LINCOLN, who said in an autobiographical sketch that he was "never in a "college or academy as a student and "never inside of a college or academy "building till since he had a law li-"cense," passed through the halls of Knox College and "graduated" through a window upon the platform with DOUGLAS.

It is the only building now standing that had such an intimate association with any of these historic Debates. It is reported that the speech of DOUGLAS was not heard by all, though LINCOLN'S was. Dr. BARTON, in describing the two voices, writes:

> When people heard LINCOLN and DOUGLAS on the same platform they almost invariably remarked that the little man had the big voice and the big man the little voice. LINCOLN'S voice was not falsetto and not effeminate, but it was of high pitch and was particularly so when he felt under constraint to make a large company hear. * * * DOUGLAS, with a rich baritone, had a long uvula that irritated his throat. He abused his voice and was not always well heard.

The walls which hold still the memories of these voices are beginning to crumble, and unless they are soon repaired the last monument of those great contests will soon have vanished. The building itself is a beautiful example of Tudor-Gothic architecture, is structurally sound and needs only restoration and proper care to give it at least another century of life. Here it was that LINCOLN had in 1860 his first honorary degree conferred upon him before there was certainty of his election as President of the United States. Here his intimate friend, Dr. NEWTON BATEMAN, later became president of the college. Here thousands upon thousands have come to celebrate the anniversaries of the Debate. Presidents and others of America's greatest among them. And here LINCOLN'S memory and that of the great Debates, except for which LINCOLN would never have been nominated or elected President of the United States, should be kept in this building restored to its pristine beauty as it stood on that October day in 1858. The college is not in funds to do it without the special help which one or many will doubtless be eager to give.

PEGASUS IN POUND.

This month and year mark a literary centenary encouraging to all rebels against tradition. If young men and women in studio apartments are today fighting for new ideas in drama or poetry it may hearten them to recall that Feb. 25, 1830, was the night of the première of "Hernani" at the Théâtre Français. Although it is a hundred years since VICTOR HUGO recruited the motley claque from the garrets of Paris to see justice done to his insurgent play, literary and dramatic historians have not forgotten. Urchins threw vegetables from the gutter at the Romanticists who waited at the theatre doors with their red cards marked "hierro," and jeered at the Robespierre waistcoats and Spanish cloaks which were all the finery these literary crusaders owned. A cabbage stalk struck BALZAC as he marched into the theatre; GAUTIER'S scarlet gilet won the portal unstained. Amid alternate hisses and wild cheers "Hernani" was enacted, and, as HUGO said, its success pulled "the last tooth from the old Classic Pegasus." The fight was over the right of the playwright to choose time, place and theme for his play and no longer to be bound to the tradition of RACINE and CORNEILLE. The sharp line between tragedy and comedy, which was the only division made at the Théâtre Français, was wiped out. From the moment of "Hernani's" première the Romantic movement succeeded the Classic in France, not to be displaced until the Realists came in.

If a New York audience does not like a play on its opening night in these timid times, it laughs, whispers, shifts its feet or leaves the theatre. Not so with the audiences of Paris when the eighteenth-century Pegasus was making his last flight. The first night of "Hernani" would have brought a riot call in this century; and every night of the forty-five performances (an unparalleled run) the tumult continued. DAVIDSON, that "scholar of Keble," whose work on HUGO is standard in these particulars, supposes that each separate line of "Hernani" was hissed in the course of the run. The Traditionalists died hard, but they died. The poet's eager claque was on duty every night to see that appropriate cheers should greet the epochal apostrophe: "Vous êtes mon lion superbe et généreux." Afterward they would rush to HUGO'S apartment to rejoice anew over the victory. They made so much noise that the hero was asked to leave 11 Rue Notre-Dame-des-Champs, where the landlady wanted "a quiet house," and he removed to the Rue Jean-Goujon, where they were not so particular. In those days the author, whom this generation knows only from steel engravings as an old, bearded man, was "the Young Sun-God," head of that cénacle which did some mutual "log-rolling" that could furnish ideas to our own New York synod of columnists. The log-rolling and the triumph over the Classicists were not only a moral victory for HUGO; "Hernani" netted him over 2,000,000 francs.

Now, by the inevitable swing of the pendulum, the Romantic of 1830 is the Classic of 1930. It is against such things as "Hernani" that the current New Movement turns. STENDHAL understood this well. He said that the New Movement common to every age "is the "art of presenting to people the litera-"ture that in their existing state of "mind gives them most pleasure."

AIR CARRIER LAW.

As a body of law novel in many respects but based upon principles of the common law will be evolved from transportation by air over land and sea, laymen as well as lawyers will be interested in a publication the purpose of which is to follow the development of this modern branch of jurisprudence. There will be many cases in the courts growing out of the carriage of goods and passengers, out of the rights of owners of land which aircraft fly over, out of the violation of national, State and municipal regulations, and out of public utility air franchises. The literature on the subject promises to be voluminous, but especially needed is legal and technical treatment of it. In its first number The Journal of Air Law, edited by university schools of law in conjunction with the Air Law Institute, gives a good deal of space to the "Carriage of Passengers by Air." E. A. HARRIMAN of the Washington bar points out the difficulty of applying whatever law is available:

> Precedents in the law of carriage by land and by sea are important but not conclusive in the law of carriage by air. The task of the courts is to apply the principles of the existing law to the new situation created by the inventions which have made air traffic possible; and the task of the lawyer is to advise his client, as best he can, what will be the probable attitude of the courts on the new questions thus arising.

"There seems to be no reason," says Mr. HARRIMAN, "why the general rules "with reference to the limitation of a "carrier's liability should not apply to a "carrier by air." Passengers are cautioned to study ticket conditions which may affect their rights before starting on an air journey.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

He Rode With Lee.

Of the next Congress it can be said—as it was not possible to say for the past sixty-five years—that it will not contain a single member who fought with either the Gray or the Blue. Major CHARLES MANLY STEDMAN of North Carolina has finally persuaded his constituents to permit him to retire from public life. He is 89 years old and has been in the House for a number of years. Several times before, this former staff officer of General LEE has signified a wish to spend his days under his vine and fig tree, but the Fifth District would not hear of it. The surest way to be socially ostracized around Greensboro was to suggest running for the Democratic nomination for Congress.

Before the death of Senator WARREN of Wyoming there was one Union and one Confederate veteran in Congress. For several months Major STEDMAN has been alone. His appearance and deportment well qualify him for the distinction. In bearing, figure and physiognomy the Major much resembles General LEE. Put him in his old gray uniform and the likeness would be striking. His gentle, old-fashioned courtesy has made him the favorite member of the House.

To friends in the press gallery the Major for years has been saying: "As an education in style you should read ALISON'S 'History of Modern Europe.'" He has undoubtedly added to the circulation of that hornbook of his own generation. As he goes into retirement many will wish that, like TENNYSON'S Ulysses, he may "find the happy isles and see the great Achilles," whom he knew.

Animals in the Talkies.

Any handsome young dog in the Madison Square Garden show who finds the applause of the crowd going to his head had better think twice before leaving a happy home to go West and win fame in the films. Rin-Tin-Tin was a great dog in his day, but that was when pictures were still silent. Now that the talkies have come, unemployment in the best animal circles in Hollywood is simply appalling.

The difficulty, according to one animal expert, is that you can't control the noises that animals make. To have the dog hero suddenly yap at the studio cat when he was supposed to be registering silent devotion to his master, would ruin the scene and the dog star's chance of success. Lions and tigers, whose random growls and roars could never be overlooked in a sound film, are being sold first from studio zoos.

One film concern which prided itself on its collection of lions and leopards has disposed of them all. It took three days, and perhaps more than a mile of walking, to find a camel for a recent comedy film.

The Growth of Oklahoma.

Oklahoma ("Land of the Red Man") could have no better advertiser than Governor HOLLOWAY. He has lately told the story of his State's marvelous growth. Since 1890—Oklahoma did not become a State until 1907—the population has increased tenfold, and now exceeds 2,500,000. The "Sooners," who evaded the government regulations in the opening rush into Indian Territory on April 22, 1889, and took up lands, furnished Oklahoma with a nickname. Its citizens are proud to have it known as the Sooner State.

Oklahoma, 500 by 350 miles, is remarkable for agricultural and mineral wealth. "Since 1922 we have surpassed all other States in the Union," says Governor HOLLOWAY, "in the value of petroleum produced." Farm property increased in value from $250,000,000 in 1900 to $1,250,000,000 in 1925. Last year Oklahoma stood first among the States in the production of broom corn, second in grain sorghums, third in wheat, fourth in cotton, fourth also in pecans, and sixth in peanuts.

In citizenship the Sooner State is almost entirely native American. The percentage of foreign-born is only 2.2. Specialized and advanced instruction distinguishes the educational system. Paved roads are building in every part of the State, penetrating to the rural districts. "Watch Oklahoma Grow" is a popular slogan.

Quick Lunches in Berlin.

No connection has ever been established between efficient business methods and the habit of eating rapidly. But in many minds the two are associated.

Berlin offers a case in point. Since the war the Germans have made a marvelous recovery, substituting up-to-the-minute business methods for the habits of pre-war days. Before the war, like all Continentals, they were in the habit of lunching leisurely. But now with increased industrial activity has come a speed mania in eating as well. Berlin begins to rival New York in its facilities for feeding in the shortest time possible.

There are cafés where the tired business man can drop into a comfortable armchair, give his order for a light lunch, eat it, pay his bill and be outside the door within fifteen minutes. There are buffet lunches for the hurried customer who hasn't even the time to sit down. Here the tables, like their American counterparts (or perhaps we should say originals), are built shoulder-high to facilitate eating while standing. There are automatic lunch rooms also, calling for 10-pfennig pieces instead of nickels. For speed these are rivaled only by pay-as-you-enter restaurants, where you pay for your sandwich and coffee in advance and gulp it down in three minutes or less.

If speed in business and in eating continues to rise in Berlin, Germans may soon be copying the American magazine which gives the reading time for its stories. Menus would then offer the eating time for each item—coffee, one minute; ham sandwich, two minutes, &c.

BENEDICTION.

Far to the west was where he dreamed
Were lands that every joy possessed.
But as he neared them, still they seemed
Far to the west.

Life's morn he gave to souls distressed;
Its noon with love's sweet service beamed
Upon mankind as on he pressed.

Its evening was like some high crest,
Above the dark, on which light streamed—
The benediction to his quest,
Far to the west.

FRANCIS L. MONTGOMERY.

BY-PRODUCTS.

As a result of recent dragnet arrests in Chicago a notable decline in the number of robberies is reported. Most of the innocent citizens having been picked up by the police, there was no way for the robbers to get at them.

Mr. Coolidge's own Congressional district going Democratic for the first time almost deserves a couple of words in that 500-word history of the United States.

People who once upon a time were sorry they could not contribute because of so many other demands upon them are now in no position to help because they were caught in the market.

The ideal naval conference would be one in which each nation was allowed to designate the class of ships it wanted everybody to scrap; this would result in total disarmament.

Shackles Old Abe Did Not Strike Off.

Last Tuesday, Feb. 11, a judge was charging a jury in a criminal case. "If you come to the conclusion," he said, "that the alibi was false and a fabrication and not true, you have the right," &c.

Possibly the judge was in some haste to get away for a Lincoln's Birthday holiday. Otherwise, he might have gone on to warn the jury against an alibi that might turn out to be meretricious, faked, manufactured, fraudulent, spurious, feigned, dissembled, simulated, invented, counterfeited, lying in its throat, sailing under false colors, concocted out of the whole cloth, and other things that an alibi should not be.

On Monday, Feb. 10, a United States Senator remarked in the course of debate: "The objections to Mr. Hughes, as I look at the question, resolve themselves into two fundamental reasons why his appointment and confirmation is unwise." Here the sentence would have done much better to stop after the word "reasons," since it is obvious that an objection to Mr. Hughes is a reason why he should not be appointed and confirmed.

On Tuesday, Feb. 11, on the very eve of Lincoln's Birthday, another United States Senator rose in his place and remarked:

"I read that decision not because Justice Hughes was a member of the court, but for the reason that, in my opinion, Justice Hughes is associated in his views with the contention which is sustained by the majority and which in the end, if carried to its logical conclusion, must result in great economic oppression of the people of the United States."

This is considerably above the average of Senatorial rhetoric, but just the same it is a pretty terrible bit of asthmatic cross-country high-stilt exercise, with its associations and contentions and conclusions.

Soft and Woolly.

The conclusion is irresistible that, if Abraham Lincoln in his time succeeded in doing so much for himself and for others, one reason was that he knew how to get out of the English language effects other than those of a pair of carpet slippers on a newly varnished floor. When he wrote it was not as if in a dream, and when he talked it was not as if on a bet. The comparison is not necessarily between today and the Gettysburg Address. In 1849 Lincoln wrote a letter on the extremely prosaic subject of a political job, and this is the way he put it:

"Dear Sir: It is now certain that either Mr. Butterfield or I will be Commissioner of the Land Office. If you are willing to give me the preference please write me to that effect, at Washington, whither I am now going. There is not a moment of time to be lost. Yours truly."

Can you imagine any politician today lining up for a job worth more than $300 a year, in fifty words? If Lincoln were writing in the manner nearly everybody does nowadays, he would have begged to inform his correspondent that his attention had been called to the fact that a vacancy had occurred in the position of Commissioner of the Land Office, and that yielding to long and ultimately irresistible pressure from his friends he had reluctantly consented to avail himself of the opportunities for service in connection with said post of Commissioner of the Land Office in consideration of the contemplated organization of methods of cooperation for the preparation of the inauguration, &c.

Words.

One of the principal things that are wrong with our law enforcement is just plain verbiage. Judges use five words where one would do, and lawyers use twenty-five words—long ones. Expert opinions run on for hours. Thirty witnesses are summoned where two would be enough to establish a point. Briefs run to the brief length of a hundred thousand words. It is the same with semi-judicial procedure. In the course of hearings before a Senate committee some one always "reads into the record" a trifle of 600 pages and 180,000 words on grade-crossings in the southern parishes of Louisiana. Our public life is increasingly congested with skyscraping edifices of words, shutting off each other's light and air and inducing paralysis of traffic.

If Abraham Lincoln were emancipating the slaves in the 1930 manner he would do so because his attention had been called to the existence of negro slavery in the United States, and he would never get all the negroes emancipated in less than 20,000 words.

Harmony between New York Democrats and Republicans on the subject of waterpower is becoming so close that inevitably one suspects the secret discovery of a new motor force that has made waterpower obsolete.

Enforcement undoubtedly will show better results if drinkers are arrested, consumers of liquor nowadays being a much milder group of citizens than bootleggers and hijackers.

It will be noted that whenever a new government agency is proposed the first thing mentioned is the salary of the commissioner and the three deputy commissioners. Ultimately it is revealed what the new department is being created for.

Before a stroke of work has been done on Boulder Dam the project has generated enough power to set half a dozen States by the ears.

Speaking of naval categories, it is the opinion down in Little America that you can't ask for a better ship than the little old City of New York.

Timely Letters to the Editor From Readers of The Times on Topics in the News

ANTI-PISTOL LAW SHOULD AIM AT CRIMINAL, NOT HONEST FOLK

We Should Acquire a Reputation for Being Mean and Brutal in Our Treatment of Murderers and Bandits

To the Editor of The New York Times:

State Senator Baumes's proposed statute to limit pistol-carrying to peace officers and "shooting club members" has its unconscious humor. If the law passes, the east side will soon have as many "shooting clubs" as speakeasies.

Seriously, a pistol-prohibition law will be as ineffectual as the present liquor prohibition law. Criminals who are not deterred from committing murder during their hold-ups by fear of electrocution will not be deterred by fear of minor legal penalties for carrying the pistols necessary for their hold-ups.

An anti-pistol law aimed specifically at criminals and not disarming honest folk is what is needed. Make pistol hold-up punishable by life imprisonment, and make this sentence mandatory on Judges and juries. Holding up United States mails with gun-play was made punishable by life imprisonment some years ago and stopped much of that kind of crime.

As an official of a crime insurance company, I spend several hours daily in a cashier's cage. I don't suppose my .32-Colt would be much use against a carefully planned attack by experienced criminals armed—as some are these days—with machine guns. But it might help a bit against a poorly organized raid by less experienced bandits. And the general knowledge that my associates and myself are armed must certainly be a deterrent to hold-up gangs.

We crime insurance folk have always been stanch supporters of the Baumes laws, especially the mandatory life sentence for fourth offenders. Although the mandatory life sentence may seem severe for shoplifting and picking pockets, the fourth offense shows the complete perversion of the criminal. It is not necesary these days to steal to keep from starving.

Politicians Are Blamed.

Politicians who use criminals are just now conducting a pious-mouthed propaganda against the anti-crime laws. Whenever they meet a simple-looking newspaper man they put on solemn faces, shed a few tears and orate as follows:

"These ill-advised anti-crime laws. They overcrowd the prisons. They cause these dreadful prison riots. Reformers should stop sending criminals to prison. Then prison riots would stop. Slip a few lines about this into your next crime story, young man, and don't, of course, quote us."

Recent prison riots have been planned and instigated outside the prisons to descredit the anti-crime movement and its heavy prison sentences. Before printing any more obvious pro-criminal propaganda, newspaper editors should investigate the source.

The cure for prison riots is more—and more firmly disciplined—prisons. And the cure for pistol hold-ups is not to take pistols away from honest folk, but to teach every professional gunman that, whenever he steps out o' night with a pistol, he goes to his own swift and inevitable imprisonment for life.

We Americans have luxuriated in freedom and prosperity so long that we have become good-natured and easy-going. We class murderous criminals as mere nuisances, like street beggars, card sharps, book agents and Wall Street customers' men.

My own attitude is different. Even if we have to pock-mark the State with prisons, we should put every confirmed criminal in one and keep him there. He will be just as happy and comfortable in jail as out—and he will not be able to harm honest, useful citizens. It is far better for our communities that all professional gunmen receive harsh prison sentences than that even one faithful policeman should be shot down, one honest citizen murdered in cold blood, one innocent woman bereaved, one helpless child orphaned. Unlike the pious-mouthed criminal lawyers and politicians who have always fed fat on our foolishly and fatuously lax crime policy, I believe with all my heart in discriminatory legislation—discriminatory against criminals. Let's discriminate a lot! Let us get a reputation all over the world for being a mean and brutal race in our treatment of murderers, bandits and gunmen.

I do not believe that the armed burglar who invades my pantry to steal my silver should have any rights at all—either in the pantry or, later, in the law court. And I certainly believe that mercenary politicians, lawyers and magistrates who are giving elaborate legal privileges and protection to professional gunmen and murderous criminals are paving the way to a period of lynch law.

Too Many Confirmed Criminals.

I admit that most of our criminals are the victims of the selfish exploitation of our industrial system. Honest work does not pay even a bare subsistence to millions of our population. This economic injustice creates poverty, desperation and the slums; and these, in turn, breed the blind and ignorant social rebellion which we call crime.

But let us face unpleasant truths squarely. This crime-breading exploitation has gone on for so many generations that many of the exploit class have become too brutalized to be able to respond to descent and humane treatment. These are the "confirmed criminals." Economic injustice has warped their natures beyond mending. We hate to admit this. We prefer to delude ourselves that confirmed criminals can be reformed. But as long as we continue thus to delude ourselves, our confirmed criminals will continue to commit hold-ups and shoot citizens.

Public-spirited Americans, who seek to solve the crime problem, must wage two distinct battles—one to sternly repress criminals and another to reform and ameliorate the industrial exploitation which makes criminals. And the battle against industrial exploitation will be the harder and longer of the two!

RANULPH KINGSLEY.
New York, Feb. 11, 1930.

ASSAILING A RACE THEORY

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May we say a few words which are inspired by the letter published in THE TIMES of Jan. 5 of James D. Sayers.

After saying something about the fusion and non-fusion of the proto-negroid Grimaldi man and the Caucasian Cro-Magnon man, he abandons the paleontological field, takes up history and delivers the following pronunciamento:

"Studying the testimony of known history, we know that every instance of ancient culture called civilization was the work of the white type, and that declines of those cultures invariably resulted from admixture of the black type."

Mr. Sayers's history is of a piece with his paleontology and ethnology. If we are to believe this writer, pre-Columbian civilization and culture as seen in Mexico and Peru, were the work of whites; all those relics of a by-gone civilization which flourished in Central Africa, were the work of whites; so is Chinese civilization the work of whites, and here Mr. Sayers gives us a specimen of his logic by telling us that China was white while she flourished, but as soon as she began to decline she turned yellow! Rama, Krishma, Gotama Buddha were all white, of course; a bit red if you like, but still white.

Mr. Sayers has invented a peculiar system of argumentation which defies refutation; he calls black white and white black, according as it suits his purpose; he continually begs the question; he fails clearly to distinguish between cause and effect, makes the boldest assumptions, hazards the wildest of guesses, and then calmly sets these down as proved facts.

Again Mr. Sayers would have us believe that Assyria, Greece, Rome, Spain, all owed their decline and fall to the "admixture of the black type." Now, we know for certain that the Greeks practiced eugenics and frowned upon intermarriage with foreigners; and yet "Caucasian" Greece fell. The causes which led to the downfall of Rome are too notorious to need repetition by us.

Let us take another case. Spain attained the zenith of her power and greatness in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, that, seven centuries after the decidedly black Moors had conquered and overrun the peninsula. It would be curious to hear Mr. Sayers's explanation of the cause of the downfall of Spain. And yet another. The Egyptians were copper-colored, with a strong dash of black; they were neither wholly black nor wholly white, but belonged to Mr. Sayers's "mongrel" type. In other words, the "black admixture" had taken place and was anterior to the development and greatness of the empire.

That man may be said to have read history aright, whose mind has been taught to distinguish in the records of peoples what is essential from what is merely accidental; what is transient from what is eternal, and whose unerring eye can mark and follow amid the tangled threads of events the growth of those germs of decay which every natural organism and every human society fatally carries within it. All alike must obey the inexorable law of birth, growth, decay and death. But alas, the philosophy of history seems to have no meaning for Mr. Sayers.

JORGE STRONACH.
Caracas, Venezuela, Jan. 27, 1930.

CONCERNING PUBLIC SCHOOLS

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I correct an erroneous impression created by the headline of an article in THE TIMES reporting a luncheon at the City Club and headed "Charge Breakdown in School System." I was one of the speakers, and notwithstanding all that was said by Dr. Tildsley from the floor, I do not feel that this headline is justified.

Dr. Courtis of the University of Michigan, one of the experts who participated in the school survey made for the Board of Education in 1924, was the principal speaker. He made a presentation of the present form of organization of our school system, and gave a graphic picture of its unique size and the need of conducting it on the highest possible plane. He gave constructive ideas for improvement and reorganization.

I followed Dr. Courtis and told of a bill which had been introduced at Albany providing for a single-headed board of superintendents with assistant superintendents, selected by him and approved by the Board of Education. It was particularly pointed out that this was a move for a more scientific form of organization with individual instead of divided authority.

There is much splendid work being done in our public schools, and to give the uninformed public, the parents of our school children and the children themselves the idea that there is a crisis or a breakdown, is doing irreparable harm.

The policy of the United Parents' Associations is to secure desired reforms and improvements in our school system through helpful suggestions and constructive criticism. I should therefore like to correct any misunderstandings which may have been brought about and which might leave your readers under the impression that there had been any change in its policy.

ROBERT E. SIMON.
Chairman Governing Board United Parents' Associations.
New York, Feb. 10, 1930.

A TRIBUTE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After many years, I have just found out why I so love THE TIMES. It is not because it is so masterful and strong; not because it is so almost omniscient and always so reliable, but it is because it is so human—because, with the strength of a giant it can be at times as gentle as a mother and as tender as a babe.

I have just read the account of old Sam Wood. I didn't know old Sam till today, but when I see the giant TIMES turn aside from world conferences, from Wall Street, from the doings of the great and mighty to drop a flower on the bier of an old shipnews reporter, my heart beats a little faster and I thank God that Mammon has not yet killed the spirit of Christ.

T. W. McNEIL.
Dayton, Ohio, Feb. 10, 1930.

AUSTRALIANS PLANNED HINDENBURG LINE ATTACK

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES accounts of the Twenty-seventh Division reunion at Saratoga recently, emphasis was placed upon "the history made" and "the capture of the Hindendenburg Line" by the Twenty-seventh Division.

The whole plan of attack, in which the Twenty-seventh and Thirtieth Divisions took part, was conceived and successfully directed by the Australian Army Corps commander, Lieut. Gen. Sir John Monash. In his book, "The Australian Victories in France in 1918," he gives a complete description of those operations against the Hindenburg defenses, which encourages the belief that the unfortunate experiences of the Twenty-seventh Division, A. E. F., could do with less publicity, and that credit for "the capture of the Hindenburg Line"—in the area under consideration—should be alloted to the Third, Fifth and Second Australian Divisions.

C. S. GALBRAITH.
New York, Feb. 12, 1930.

DISPUTING LUDWIG

That Writer's Statement About Lincoln and Bismarck Doubted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES Magazine of Feb. 9, Emil Ludwig says that whereas Lincoln is unknown to most of even the fairly well educated people on the European Continent, every school child in America knowns of Bismarck. Having some doubts of the latter statement, I inquired among a dozen available children of grammar-school age in Weekawken. Although a majority were of German ancestry, not one had ever heard of Bismarck. The curiosity of one boy was aroused, for the next day he reported that he had investigated, and had been informed by his aunt that Bismarck was a politician. Obviously our public schools are devoting no undue amount of time to the exploits of the Iron Chancellor.

As to the contemporary failure to appreciate the greatness of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, I can give corroboration from a curious and perhaps little known source. In England there were powerful and active anti-slavery societies, particularly among the nonconformist churches, and these naturally were in sympathy with the North during the Civil War. James William Massie, a Congregational clergyman, was sent to America in the Summer of 1863 on a mission from one of the British anti-slavery conventions.

It must not be forgotten that the Emancipation Proclamation affected only the area in actual insurrection, and accordingly the freedom of the slaves in the loyal border States was not affected, and their status was still in doubt. So an important part of Dr. Massie's mission was to encourage complete emancipation. He brought letters from Richard Cobden and John Bright to Senator Sumner, so he had no difficulty in obtaining an audience with Lincoln. Massie speaks in the highest terms of the President, and was greatly impressed with his sincerity and ability. He spent many months delivering addresses all over the North, and on his return to England published the usual book on his travels.

Now the curious thing is, that although he devoted several pages to quotations from the speech of Edward Everett at the dedication of the Gettysburg battlefield, and speaks of it as the "funeral oration eloquently and pathetically consecrating a national mausoleum," he does not even record that Lincoln spoke on the occasion.

STALLO VINTON.
New York, Feb. 12, 1930.

THE COMSTOCK LODE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES article about the Mackay fortune contains a few errors. The product of the Comstock lode is nearer one billion than any other large round number I have been able to figure it. Mackay and Fair did work with pick and shovel, as stated, but I believe only on the mother lode, in California.

I do not believe they went to the Comstock before 1866. They were staked by Flood & O'Brien, saloonkeepers on San Francisco's waterfront, and by one James W. Walker, who sold out to John W. Mackay after the first large fortune was realized.

The Comstock was discovered by Jim Finney, whose real name was Finlayson, and better known as "Old Virginny," being a native of the Old Dominion; Patrick McLaughlin and Peter O'Riley. Virginia City was named after "Old Virginny." They did not dig a hole for water; there were springs near the place of discovery.

Mackay and Fair made their first fortune through a lease on the 700 level of the Hale & Norcross mine. In April, 1869, Mackay presented a check at the agency of the Bank of California in Virginia City for $90,000, proceeds of their lease. The bank did not have that much on hand, and closed its doors, and I heard Mackay state on the sidewalk opposite the bank that it could not pay 10 cents on the dollar. Money was hurried from Sacramento and he was paid two days later. Mackay and Fair then began to sink on the California mine, using a little stationary engine at first. They struck the Big Bonanza on the 1,200 level in 1871.

ALFRED CHARTZ.
Carson City, Nev., Feb. 10, 1930.

PLAIN STEUBEN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Friedrich Wilhelm August Heinrich Steuben was the son of William Augustin Steuben. The correct monument inscription method would be to engrave the General's name simply as Steuben.

"De" Kalb's correct name was plain Johann Kalb. The Marquis of La Fayette's name was Marie Motier. He wasn't La Fayette. He was Motier—of La Fayette.

DAVID G. BAILLIE.
Greenwich, Conn., Feb. 12, 1930.

A DRAWBACK.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I do not agree with Mr. Kempton's idea appearing in his letter to THE TIMES that a person falling on a slippery sidewalk should relax as a drunkard is relaxed, thus causing him less pain and possible injury. It would work all right perhaps in a country where there is no prohibition, but here one might get arrested or shot.

A. ARBACHIAUSKAS.
Norfolk, Va., Feb. 10, 1930.

CHAIRMAN BRITTEN'S REMARKS EVOKE PERTINENT QUESTIONS

Illinois Representative Should Explain Just What He Has in Mind for a Uniform Type of Naval Vessel

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On Tuesday afternoon, the eve of the anniversary of Lincoln's birthday, the national tranquillity of mind was rudely disturbed. At that time our country seems to have been reposing in sweet complaceny and in the happy impression that things at the London Naval Conference were getting along.

A result seemed to be in sight which would not only afford some much-needed relief to humble citizens in many countries, including our own, who are so heavily taxed to pay for their navies, but which would tend, in our time and generation, to make the horror of another war to end war still more remote. Worthy motives; neither entirely selfish nor entirely altruistic; and therefore deserving indeed of much sympathy, forbearance and assistance by the cool light of reason.

High Hopes Dashed.

The high aspiration and tireless effort of those in London who have gladly accepted so immense a responsibility had even caused some of us to regard them kindly and wish them well. We had even the temerity to take some comfort in the signal capacity of those chosen to represent the United States.

But on Tuesday, Representative Britten of Illinois, the remoteness of whose constituency from the saline sea so signally qualifies him for his functions as chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs of the House of Representatives, again undertook to relieve his conscience by telling his countrymen the terrible truth.

Here is a brief end to our fond hopes.

The chairman is reported to have stated that he is at a loss to understand what was being put forward by Secretary Stimson at the Naval Conference in London. Surely that is an astounding statement, yet who would be so bold as to challenge the nautical Representative's statement that his understanding is inadequate to the needs of the chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs?

Advice Long Withheld.

But that assertion is overshadowed by the startling novelty of the "best expert advice of the United States Navy," which he has received, and at this grave moment now condescends to make public. It seems "that our strength on the sea would lie on a uniform type of ship."

This, of course, changes everything.

We can only regret that the gentleman from Illinois was too preoccupied to let the administration into the secret when Ramsay MacDonald was here to discuss these matters with the President. What great and useless labor and anxiety would have been spared!

But even at this late date should not the learned Reprsentative tell the world, revolving in its asymmetrical orbit, what the uniform type of ship is in which our strength at sea would lie? Should our navy be all battleships or all seaplanes; all destroyers or all aircraft carriers; all submarines or all Presidential yachts; or is some amphibious collapsible modification of the Illinois scooter run by clock work what the learned and nautical Representative has in mind?

POSEIDON.
New York, Feb. 13, 1930.

FAVORING A BAR-PICKED BENCH

Selection of All Judges, It Is Held, Should Be Left Entirely to Lawyers

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Comments in the daily press and in private conversations indicate very clearly that the public is now thoroughly aroused over the recent judiciary scandals in this city. This subject has provoked much discussion of the judiciary and the time has never been more opportune for the suggestion of a new method of selecting the judges, which will cure this evil and elevate the courts in popular estimation. A deplorable feature of the present agitation is that able judges of high character now on the bench suffer in some measure from the incidental lack of confidence in the courts.

Numerous remedies have been offered, but none seems to be satisfactory. I therefore wish to suggest what I believe will be an effective solution of this vexing problem. As some evidence of its worth, I may say that every layman, without exception, whose opinion has been asked has expressed approval of it. It consists of a novel method of selecting judges, but one which I believe will commend itself to thoughtful reflection.

This proposed reform is no reflection upon the competent and honorable incumbents of the bench at the present time, but would guarantee that there would be no recurrence of the present conditions in the future. I submit that my suggestion is at least deserving of serious consideration.

The method of selecting judges in this State, from judges of the Court of Appeals to and including Municipal Court judges, city magistrates and justices of the peace, should be changed so that they will all be nominated and elected only by members of the bar duly licensed to practice law in the State of New York.

Lawyers are more capable than any other voters, and are, indeed, the only voters capable of knowing what qualifications judicial candidates should possess.

Laymen seldom know anything whatever of the character, ability, learning, temperament or true professional standing of judicial candidates. Lawyers, however, either have this knowledge or can acquire it when the occasion arises to do so.

To the objection that lawyers already have too much control in legal matters it can be justly replied that lawyers, nevertheless, represent every element of society. Their views and their interests are a cross-section of the views and interests of every class of people in the community. They would, moreover, in the selection of judges act most intelligently for all of the people, even for those who never have counsel, and far more intelligently than would the people themselves.

Appointment by Governors and Mayors has not proved in experience a success. Such selections are sometimes the result of influences inimical to the public good and often dictated by political expediency rather than by the merits of the candidates.

It is difficult to conceive of any prejudice or selfish interest or unworthy motive that could sway the entire bar in its choice of judges.

The bar associations which now serve as guides and mentors of the general electorate are not composed of the entire bar. They consist of only a small fraction of the bar; and the general electorate is under no obligation to follow their advice even when given with the best of intentions. However, the very fact that some lay voters do accept the judgment of bodies of lawyers is proof that those voters admit the superiority of the judgment of lawyers in such matters.

The State Constitution would need to be amended, but this would not deprive the citizen of any right which would work to his injury. On the contrary, his property and liberties would be better protected than they could be by himself.

Judges in the trial courts would then treat members of the bar with more respect than some now do. Lawyers are invariably treated with marked courtesy in the appellate courts, but not always in the trial courts. When a lawyer appearing in court conducts himself with propriety, it is not only due him, but particularly in the interest of his client, that he should be given a fair hearing and his client's case be decided after due and just deliberation.

CHARLES W. LEFLER.
New York, Feb. 12, 1930.

OBSERVATIONS ON THE UNIVERSE

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Regarding the recently proposed theory of the universe, the following observations may be made, and since it is necessary to be brief it is also necessary to be dogmatic:

Let us suppose the universe filled with very short radiation. (1) If this proceeds in certain directions rather than others, and (2) if the radiation absorbed by matter and reradiated is like any other known upon this earth, then in general there will be repulsion between bodies, not attraction. (3) If the radiation flows equally in all directions and (4) if the radiation absorbed by matter and reradiated is like any other known upon this earth then there will be neither attraction nor repulsion. (5) If the radiation flows equally in all directions and is so highly penetrating that it can pass through our 8,000 miles of earth, weakened, however, by every molecule of the earth, and (6) if the radiation absorbed and reradiated is unlike any other known upon earth in that it can never again be absorbed, then there would be attraction between bodies, but it would not follow the known law of gravitation. Let us see how intense that radiation would have to be for a special case.

Suppose a cubical tank one meter on a side is filled with water and is suspended one meter above the earth. Let us place below it a thousand-watt lamp and find how many of these would be necessary to hold up that tank of water by the pressure of the light emitted. It turns out to be thirty thousand million. This on the assumption that all of the light is absorbed. But radiation which can pass through the earth would scarcely be absorbed at all by this tank of water and we would have to multiply the above result by at least a million. Hence we would require about one hundred thousand million million kilowatt lamps below this tank of water to hold it up—in other words, to produce a force equal to the gravitational force between tank and earth. It might worry us to crowd this number of lamps into one square meter, and it might worry us more to pay for the power, which, at prevailing rates, would be ten thousand million million dollars an hour, unless we were consoled by the fact that that amount of power could not be purchased. The water, to be sure, would be rather hard boiled even though it absorbed only a millionth of the energy passing through it in one direction. And if we consider all other directions—! It might be noted that this radiation would not disturb a person's eyes any more than any other part of his body. It would merely cause one to go up in smoke in an exceedingly small part of a second.

But we have assumed—it was necessary to do so in order to get any attraction whatever—that the energy reradiated would never again be absorbed by matter. What does that do to the original radiation? Obviously, in time all radiation in the universe would be of this unearthly kind unless the original super-penetrating slightly absorbable energy were constantly generated.

To summarize, only by making the strange assumption that energy absorbed by matter and reradiated is unlike all known radiation can we hope to account for attraction between bodies as due to radiant energy, but even in that case the force would not be proportional to the product of the masses nor inversely as the square of the distance between them. And in the special case of the tank of water the intensity of the energy coming from above necessary to produce a force equal to the weight of the tank would have to be that of 100,000,000,000,000,000 kilowatt lamps.

I have left out of account the radiation passing through the earth from below, then through the tank. But that would tend to hold the tank up and would necessitate our having more energy coming from above.

Computations more or less similar to the above were made by me in a paper published in The Transactions of the Astronomical Society of Toronto in 1901 soon after Professor Nichols and I had detected and measured the pressure due to radiation.

GORDON F. HULL.
Dartmouth College, N. H., Feb. 11, 1930.

ENGLISH CAST BIG BELLS NEARLY 50 YEARS AGO

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We have noticed in an article headed "Carillon Donors Protest Duty Rate" the following statement:

"English manufacturers, the letter added, had never cast a heavy bell before they had orders. Their experience, it was said, had 'all been during the past few years while making the Bok and Rockefeller carillons'."

From the foregoing we think the general inference is that we had never cast large bells except during the past few years, but for the benefit of your readers may we mention that "Great Paul," the largest bell in the British Empire, weighing sixteen tons fourteen cwts. two qrs. nineteen pounds, which hangs in the southwest tower of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, was cast by us in the year 1881—nearly fifty years ago. At about that same period we cast many other large bells weighing up to nine tons each.

JOHN TAYLOR & CO.
Loughborough, Eng., Feb. 3, 1930.

SOPHISTICATION

Complaint Made That This Word Is Cruelly Overlooked.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is a widespread misuse of the word sophisticate and its derivatives.

If the etymology of words governs their legitimate use and if the dictionaries, supported by the etymology, are of any authority, the noun "sophistry" implies subtly fallacious reasoning or disputation. Its synonyms are: casuistry, chicanery, evasion, fallacy, hairsplitting, prevarication, quibbling, subterfuge, trickery.

The verb to sophisticate means to beguile with sophistry, to mislead, to alter deceptively, to adulterate, to render artificial.

From a collection or articles and advertisements, we have the following absurdities:

A sophisticated countryside.
Sophisticated comfort.
Sophisticated furniture.
Sophisticated calories.
Sophisticated simplicity (Ye gods!)
A sophisticated (clever) theatrical star.
Sophisticated stockings.
Sophisticated sportswear.
A sophisticated fur coat.
The sophistication of the evening.
Sophisticated lines (automobile).
Peppermints are sophisticated articles.
Music for sophisticated ears.

A noted mineral water is advertised as "a symbol of sophistication." Purity is the boast of the mineral water company. To say that the trade-mark name is a symbol of adulteration is not according to the intention.

Another very much misused word is the word "intrigue" as a verb, used in the sense of being fascinated or allured. The word means being won, truly, but by trick and unfair methods.

Serious writers should try to preserve the language from distortion.

LEWIS SAXBY.
Upper Montclair, N. J., Feb. 5, 1930.

PROTOPLASMS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Pearson's letter on protoplasms should interest the biochemists. His expression "nothing more than a chemical compound" should do more than that.

To term Dr. Heyl's attitude "scientific presbyopia, to which scientists are prone as they advance in years," is neither fair nor accurate. Dr. Heyl is anything but decrepit. Moreover, his attitude is shared by a constantly increasing number of the younger experimenters in his own field, not to mention those in cognate sciences such as psychology. Further, to say that this attitude "crops up perennially" is encouraging, since to the biologist the word "perennial" carries an implication of continual growth.

Mr. Pearson's argument from chick embryology is probably very subtle; otherwise I fail to see how its naïve contradictions support his plea for mysticism. In the first place, the "white of a living egg," or the albumen, does not contain protoplasm. The protoplasmic structures are in the yolk. Even if the white were a protoplasm, no biologist would attempt to study and formulate development and growth in terms of it alone, but would insist upon thorough knowledge of the important yolk protoplasms of the fertilized egg.

The further biology advances, the less tenable appears the position of those who would apply an occult meaning to such words as "life." The history of the subject is replete with cases in which mystical interpretations have been displaced by cause-effect analyses depending upon physico-chemical evidence. Mr. Pearson can obtain a glimpse of the immensity of the available evidence by examining such basic works as the cooperative "General Cytology," edited by Cowdry.

True science has no "Never-Never Land." Nothing is gained by explaining the unknown in terms of the unknowable. Countless unknowables have already succumbed to the experimentalist, who is now on the trail of many others.

T. C. SCHNEIRLA
New York University, Feb. 12, 1930.

A MEXICAN PROTEST.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is impossible, in a few lines, to discuss fully the criminal attack which was made upon Pascual Ortiz Rubio when he had just begun to serve his term as President. But we do wish to point out that this attack is not the result of a demonstration of insurrection. Everybody in Mexico is tired of war, and wants a régime of trust and credit to prevail, so that the very difficult problems of economic readjustment may be worked out.

It is probable that eight out of a hundred persons in Mexico believed that Ortiz Rubio was the only man able to restore order, keep the peace and protect individual and social rights before the law. The attack upon him brought the country to a crisis. No one can foresee what will happen in this time of disorder, but we hope that the members of the President's Cabinet will be ready to avoid conflicts made possible by this catastrophe, which otherwise will destroy the opportunity for progress and liberty.

We protest against and censure this act of barbarism, because of which all nations will think of Mexico as a country where property and even life are unsafe, personal liberty unknown and homes insecure.

ALBERTO MENDIOLA BRINGAS,
President Evolutionist Democratic Party.
Mexico City, Feb. 10, 1930.

ITALY DESIRES AN INDEPENDENT, TRANQUIL AND STRONG ALBANIA

Mussolini's Policy in Dealing With Balkan Country Is Viewed as Proof of Enlightened Action in Foreign Relations

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES editorial, "The Italian-Austrian Accord," breathes a spirit of moderation and exhibits a perspicacity seldom found in the American press when dealing with Mussolinian policies. May I not, as an old friend of Albania who loves that fascinating country and is personally acquainted with many of her forward-looking sons, including King Zogu, clarify a sentence of yours concerning "the complicated problem of Albania"?

Far from being an exception, the Italian treatment of that problem has been a shining proof that "il Duce's record in foreign relations has been an enlightened one," as you wisely conclude. Albania is now an ally, not a dependency of Italy. The reconditioning of the Albanian Army under Italian officers—a process which appears normal enough to all of us who remember how many Albanians learned military science in the Italian war schools of Modena and Turin before and during the world conflagration—is the only outward sign of Italian influence, while the Italian gendarmerie is still run by another country.

Little Influence on Education.

My friend, Mr. Hollingshead, the director of the American Industrial School at Tirana, who has seen every other American in the capital come and go, can bear me out when I say that Italy has done very little to permeate Albanian education with her nationalistically flamboyant "Italianitè."

The loan of 150,000,000 gold lire made by Italy two years ago has been used for strictly non-political purposes. It went and still goes into those four chief tasks of Albanian reconstruction which Professor Calmès, speaking for the financial committee of the League of Nations as early as 1922, had defined as foundation of a bank of issue, roads, search for mineral resources, and draining swamps. The bank of issue is the national bank of Albania, which issues gold currency obtaining a premium even on the United States dollar; the great north-to-south and east-to-west arteries, from Scutari to Valona and from Durazzo to Elbassan, are all but completed, including the long Zogu Bridge over the restless Mati; the search for minerals, hitherto rather disappointing, is being vigorously pursued; and in the draining of swamps and similar public works strenuous efforts are being made, so that the dreaded Durazzo, to mention only one city, is becoming one of the gems of the Adriatic.

You will be interested in the nationality of the firms to which contracts were let for such improvements: Albanian, 6; Italian, 3; German, 2; Austrian, 1; Greek, 1. Little does it matter to Italy how Albania can become strong; but strong she must be.

For just as any hasty politician in the United States might have made the mistake of annexing Cuba, so any hasty politician in Italy might have made the mistake of annexing Albania, which presents a remarkably similar problem geographically and politically. And just as a "sober second thought" persuaded this country that the Platt amendment and Guantanamo Bay satisfy the needs of the United States, so a similar spirit of reflection persuaded Italy that a hard-and-fast treaty of alliance with Albania, which automatically mobilizes Albanian forces in case Italy is attacked, but specifically excludes exchanges of troops or even of military leaders between the two countries, is far more profitable.

For the Albanian problem, difficult in itself, in addition to its local aspect has another and wider aspect—a general Balkan aspect—which Italy cannot afford to forget; that with the Little Entente in the hands of another European power, Southwestern Europe would be one solid anti-Italian block were it not for Hungary, Bulgaria and Albania, whose planetary system revolves around Rome instead of Paris. When one realizes how belligerent Yugoslavia is, and how plentifully France is already endowing her with submarines, one must conclude that the Italian cities on the Adriatic would be at the mercy of the Serb-Croat-Slovene State were it not for the happy fact that the Italo-Albanian alliance places efficient watch dogs at both sides of the entrance of that body of waters, which the Romans called Mare Nostrum and the most serene republic rechristened Gulf of Venice.

For a Strong Albania.

Hence Italy's interest lies not with a weak but with a strong Albania, not with an ever-rebellious Albanian protectorate, but with an independent, tranquil and prosperous neighboring kingdom under a strong and alert King who seems to have united North and South Albanians, "Ghegi" and "Toski," in the common aim of rebuilding a revolution-ridden land.

You seem to find puzzling the fact that "while much Fascist steam was blown off * * * the policy of the Italian Government remained sober." Of course it remained sober! Italy has no interest and no desire to interrupt the experiment with the corporative State and her far-reaching program of land reclamation, electrification, and reforestation, to mention only a few items, by a military adventure. Her apparent belligerency is due to her triple belief that somebody else will some day start a new war somewhere; that wars are no longer limited to two countries nowadays, but are bound to become universal, so that Italy will again be urged to join, as in 1914; and that only by being fully prepared spiritually as well as physically, and therefore dreaded, she may be treated differently than she was after the last conflagration, when she was given no share of the German colonies and not a shred of the Turkish inheritance.

BRUNO ROSELLI.
Vassar College, N. Y., Feb. 11, 1930.

THE DELIGHTS OF TRAMPING

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES editorial commenting on the recent celebration in London of the fiftieth anniversary of "The Sunday Tramps," an organization of "hikers" as you would call them, founded by Leslie Stephen in 1879, you say: "What these trampers of other days along the roads of England would do under modern conditions, when motor cars and char-à-bancs make life miserable for pedestrians, it is hard to say."

Thanks to the old-fashioned conservatism of the stubborn British who refuse to give up their dearly won rights-of-way across private property, it is still possible to take a leisurely stroll in the open in the British Isles, even in the home counties around London.

I know Buckinghamshire rather well. Ramsay MacDonald, a tramper himself, could the other week-end have taken the American delegates to the naval parley a delightful twenty-mile walk in Bucks across fields, along hazel and hawthorn hedges, through farmers' rickyards and woods soon now to be carpeted with primroses and bluebells.

Starting with his dogs from Chequers, Mr. MacDonald could have led his guests by footpaths over Velvet Lawn, a high knoll that snuggles under rich turf two feet thick, to White Leaf Cross atop the heather-covered Chiltern Hills, where, after feasting their eyes on the Vale of Aylesbury, with Prince's Risboro' and Monk's Risboro' below and the spires of Oxford in the distance, they could have stepped across the flinty road to the Pink and Lily to get their wind.

Here, after wiping the Chiltern chalk from their shoes, they could have read some verse that Rupert Hughes scribbled on the taproom wall while the English Prime Minister and his fellow-countrymen refreshed themselves with some foaming pale ale from High Wycombe, back in the hills, served in battered pewter pots.

From the pebble-stone tavern they could have gone across meadows and a bracken-covered common to Hampden House and the grave of John Hampden, perhaps stirring up a fox or a hare on the way. A walk down a mile-long drive with high holly and rhododendron hedges on either side, where in a few months the nightingales will be singing, would have brought them into the Glade, a two-mile slash through beech woods made in a night to allow Queen Elizabeth to reach Hampden House. Then over more paths to Hughenden and the grave of Disraeli, and on to the Chalfonts and the grave and birthplace of William Penn.

It would have been a good twenty miles perhaps—a little dirty underfoot, too, at this time of the year—but not more than a mile of it would have been on a highroad or even a lane. And the walkers would never have been more than thirty-five miles from Hyde Park Corner.

I wonder, by the way, what would have happened had Mr. MacDonald coaxed the Americans into a hike instead of an auto ride in Bucks, and to a glorious wind-up in the evening at the Crown, the Cross and Mitre, the Three Nuns, or some such place? Over their cheese and churchwardens and shag they might have decided once and for all what to do with subs, torpedoes and floating fortresses. Tramping is much better fun than blowing people to smithereens.

J. HERBERT DUCKWORTH.
New York, Feb. 12, 1930.

SHORT-SELLING A POOR STABILIZER

To the Editor of The New York Times.

The recent boom and crash in the stock market have exploded a long-cherished theory of the economists—that short selling is a most valuable stabilizer of stock values. The activities of the bears, according to this time-honored hypothesis, so neutralize the enthusiasm of the bulls that the prices of stocks are kept in line with earnings. Real estate is generally cited as the classic example of a market devoid of this benign influence.

The latest statistics tend to disprove this view. During the boom on the stock market, security values, despite the heroic efforts of the bears, parted company completely with earnings; and consequently, when the belated reaction occurred, industrial stocks declined 53 per cent.

To compare this with the farm real estate market since the war is enlightening. Precisely as the war-induced high prices for farm products boomed farm real estate, so the glut in the world markets for farm crops beginning in 1920 caused a collapse. But in Iowa, where $2 corn had boosted land values to unheard of levels, the decline in the value of farm land following the 1920 peak, was only 35 per cent. In South Dakota where furious speculation in wheat land had been engaged in, the fall was only 42 per cent. The greatest decline, 48 per cent, was in Georgia where huge tracts of marginal land passed out of cultivation entirely. In no State did the decrease in farm values equal the fall in industrial security values during the recent debacle; hence, we are forced to the conclusion that farm real estate values are more stable than stock prices.

Whatever the merits of short selling, it is a poor stabilizer. Consequently, the ancient theory referred to above seems doomed to the discard along with "new era" economic philosophy.

JOSEPH W. CHARLTON.
Grinnell College, Iowa, Feb. 11, 1930.

THE A IN RADIO.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Stuart L. Tyson, has repeated his error in his conflation of "statements which purported to be facts" but are not. Had he said "the quantity of a in radio was given * * * in Funk & Wagnalls as ai in wait," he would have been right; for, in Key 2 of that dictionary, the a with a macron over it is used to indicate the quantity of a in radio or ale, wait or rain—there is your correspondent's ai, if he please.

FRANK H. VIZETELLY.
New York, Feb. 10, 1930.

A NELSON ANAGRAM.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A famous anagram was not included among those in the recent article on the subject in THE TIMES Magazine.

After Lord Nelson's victory in the Battle of the Nile one was formed from the letters of his name—Horatio Nelson—Honor est a Nilo.

M. M. F.
Orlando, Fla., Feb. 10, 1930.

BATTLE LINES FORM IN WET-DRY COMBAT

Pennsylvania's Snyder Act to Be Bone of Contention in 1931 Election.

REFERENDUM IS SOUGHT

Drys Refuse Opponents' Proposal for State-Wide Expression of Public Opinion.

By LAWRENCE DAVIES.
Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—Before petitions of candidates seeking party nomination for the General Assembly are even in circulation and nearly a year before the next legislative session opens, battle lines are forming for a prohibition fight in Pennsylvania in 1931. Wets and drys have issued invitations and challenges for battle both in the Legislature and in a State-wide popular referendum. The tenor of their respective replies indicates that both sides mean business and that both are counting upon registering sufficient strengh in the coming primary and general elections to handle the prohibition situation as they see fit.

That there is a difference of opinion as to how the problem should be approached is evident. The wet leaders want a popular referendum and are so determined they will have it that they are about to launch a campaign throughout the sixty-seven counties to arouse public opinion to that end. The drys are content to fight the issue out in the Legislature itself, believing they can summon enough dry strength to crush any proposed wet legislation.

Present Law Called "Vicious."

The Snyder act, Pennsylvania's enforcement law, is the crux of the controversy. Passed by the Legislature i 1923, during the Pinchot Administration, it took the place of a measure of 1881, entitled "an act to restrain and regulate the sale of vinous and spiritous, malt or brewed liquors, or any admixtures thereof," and of an amendment to this earlier law passed in 1921. Both the original act and its amendment were repealed with the passage of the Snyder act, which has been attacked by wet leaders as "one of the most vicious laws of the State."

In opening their campaign the wets made the unusual proposal that the dry interests join with them in seeking a State-wide test of public opinion through a referendum. The suggestion was made by Robert Kelso Cassatt, a Philadelphia banker, chairman of the Pennsylvania Division of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, who addressed letters to Dr. Homer W. Tope, State superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League; Mrs. H. Clay Ferguson, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Philadelphia county, and Mrs. Ella Black, president of the Pennsylvania W. C. T. U.

Declaring his association sought the repeal of the Snyder act, Mr. Cassatt wrote further:

"If a referendum showed a vast majority in favor of its retention we, in Pennsylvania, would feel that the trouble may lie in lax enforcement methods, and should hardly feel justified in pressing for repeal. On the other hand, if the vote were close, or if a majority should favor repeal, we should feel that the law is not susceptible of enforcement and should feel bound to proceed with our program."

No Support From Drys.

The Cassatt proposal received no encouragement from the dry interests, at least in the absence of "some plan to substitute for the present dry laws." The Rev. Dr. Harry M. Chalfant, editor of the Pennsylvania edition of The American Issue, remarked that "for thirty years a wet Legislature refused to give us an opportunity to vote on prohibition," adding:

"Do you think that now we should take off our hats and coats and pitch in to give them a chance on a referendum? We are not afraid of a referendum, but let them come forward with some plan to substitute for the present dry laws, and then we'll give them their chance."

In a former reply to Dr. Cassatt's letter, Dr. Tope issued this challenge:

"Finally, if you want to secure the repeal of the Snyder-Armstrong act, the thing for you to do is to go directly to the Legislature. The Anti-Saloon League in the State will follow its traditional policy of advocating the election of members of the Legislature who are in favor of prohibition.

"The representatives of the people elected in the elections where this issue is raised are fully qualified to pass upon measures best calculated to promote the general welfare. The League is willing to abide by the outcome of the issue waged in the election of members of the Legislature, * * * but does not propose to be diverted from its main purpose by engaging in any sham battles or straw votes."

Calls Referendum Futile.

W. C. T. U. leaders said it was the policy of their organization to ignore referendums, which are "costly and futile" and "prove nothing."

"While we are not satisfied with the sincerity of this degree of enforcement, we do believe the present state of enforcement is entirely too good to suit members of your organization," Mrs. Ferguson replied to Mr. Cassatt.

Cooperating with Mr. Cassett's organization in the drive to obtain the next Legislature's consent to hold a referendum is the Women's Committee of the Organization for Prohibition Reform. Mrs. Graham Dougherty, its chairman, who started the present local agitation recently with a series of statements charging that most society parties were wet and urging that young people be taught to drink "like ladies and gentlemen," was accused by Dr. Chalfant of being at the head of "a lot of wealthy society folks in Philadelphia who are leading a drive against prohibition." Denying this, Mrs. Dougherty replied that her organization included "women from all walks of life and of all creeds."

The first day to secure signatures on petitions of candidates for party nominations for the Legislature is Feb. 19. Thenceforth the candidates will be urged by both sides to make their attitude toward prohibition and the Snyder act known to their districts. From now until the 1931 Legislature meets, the Pennsylvania electorate is likely to be reminded constantly of the "success" and "failure" of prohibition in this State.

Nature Has Carved a Statue In New-Found Yugoslav Grotto

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Feb. 3.—Three huge caves of great beauty have just been discovered in the Yugoslav lake district of Plitvice.

The largest grotto requires three hours to traverse. It consists of a series of passages and chambers glittering with stalactites and stalagmites. In one grotto nature has formed, perhaps in her own image, the almost perfect figure of a woman, on whose proportions no sculptor could improve.

The authorities of Plitvice regard their discovery as very valuable and have asked the government for a subsidy to develop the caves into a world attraction. It is believed that the whole district abounds in similar grottoes.

Bavaria Against "Schechita."

Under a law voted, 65 to 42, by the Bavarian Diet on Jan. 29, to become effective Oct. 1, all animals must be stunned before slaughter. This will put an end to the "schechita," the Hebrew ritual method of butchering animals for food, unless it is held unconstitutional by the German Supreme Court, to which Bavarian Jewish leaders are going to appeal on the ground that the law infringes the religious liberty guaranteed by the Constitution of 1919. The Jewish Telegraphic Agency reports that only the Deputies of the Bavarian People's party voted against the bill.

RHODE ISLAND SEEKS ANOTHER RAILROAD

By F. LAURISTON BULLARD.
Continued from Page 1, Column 5.

Southern New England Railway Company to build a line from Palmer in Massachusetts, where the Central Vermont, now a constituent of the Canadian National system, crosses the Boston & Albany, now for many years a constituent of the New York Central system, to Providence. Thus the Central Vermont was to get a through line from Montreal to Rhode Island. The New Haven fought the plan. The World War stopped the project. A big embankment was left unfinished somewhere midway between the proposed terminals. The company went into the hands of a receiver in March, 1926, and the Massachusetts charter expired at the end of the following June. The General Court extended the franchise until April next but with the stipulation that the bridge embankments along the route should be repaired to the satisfaction of the Massachusetts Department of Public Works by the end of 1929. This has not been done, and technically the franchise may be said to have lapsed.

Providence Feels Importance.

The arguments for the completion of the line are easy to state. Providence is the largest city in the United States with only one railroad. In the annual value of manufactures Providence rates fifth, with an output of $336,000,000. Indianapolis, Jersey City, Rochester and Toledo are only slightly ahead of that figure; but it is shown that Toledo has seventeen railroads, Jersey City ten, Indianapolis seven and Rochester six.

Then Rhode Island, small but mighty, deserves treatment more nearly equivalent to that enjoyed by the other States of the New England group. Massachusetts has four railroads. All three of the northern States are served by three roads.

Therefore Providence and Rhode Island, as represented by a large group of active business men, interested both in the industrial and the financial enterprises of the city and by several of the municipal chambers of commerce outside the capital, argue that they could appeal more prevailingly for new industries were they equipped with two transportation systems. They argue further that their harbor is useless because of the lack of railway connections. They must tap the Canadian grain fields. Why should not the Canadian National furnish Providence with grain as well as Portland, Me., in the season when the port of Montreal is sealed by ice?

The argument contra already has been intimated. The New Haven is supplying Rhode Island with good service. The completion of the Southern New England would not in itself be any guarantee of a boom for the port of Providence nor would grain begin automatically to flow to the waterfront. Shippers want service, and something more than a supply of bottom cargo must be available to obtain sailings of sufficient frequency and diversity to tempt exporters. There is nothing in the psychological argument about the advertising value of two roads. Anyway, there are numerous solicitors in Providence representing many of the outside roads, and Providence has more competition than Providence admits.

Silent on Thornton Meeting.

A few strokes to complete the picture. It is understood, but the Providence promoters are not giving interviews on the matter, that they have been in conference with Sir Henry Thornton with results that they are not disclosing. This might mean one of two things, either that Sir Henry was in no wise interested or that he had assured the Providence interests that if they built the road they could expect him to make use of it. The degree of encouragement the Providence projectors might derive from such an assurance would depend on the extent of the use the Canadian National's president intimated his Rhode Island friends might depend upon.

In any event it may be remembered that the Canadian National has a potential port at New London, where the Central Vermont terminates on the Sound, only a little west of Providence. It is understood also that President Crowley of the New York Central has been seen, and it is believed that he will not favor any invasion of New Haven territory by a New York Central road. There are suggestions that the State guarantee a return on the money for the completion of the Palmer connection. This would mean legislative action and politics, the assent of three-fifths of the electorate, and loud demand by the people who would be assumed to reap the benefits of the enterprise. The general opinion is that Providence will have somehow to supply the money if and when the Southern New England is continued into that city.

The New Haven today maintains what may conveniently be called a neutral attitude. Its directors were in conference with the Providence chamber a few days ago, and a formal resolution later passed by the directors stated the road had no objection to an extension of the Southern New England franchise "until such time as the management of the New Haven shall prepare and present to the Providence chamber of commerce a specific policy respecting the development of the port of Providence."

NEW SCIENCE BODY TO EXPLORE CANADA

Canadian Geographical Society Is Similar to Organizations Here and in Britain.

ALL DOMINION INTERESTED

Great Work Remains to Be Done, as Much of the Country Is Wholly Unexplored.

By V. M. KIPP.
Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12.—From one end of Canada to the other and from sister societies in Britain and the United States is coming approval and practical support for the newest of the Dominion's national organizations—the Canadian Geographical Society. Intended to fill such a place as is occupied by the Royal Geographical Society and the Royal Scottish Geographical Society in Great Britain and the National Geographic Society and the American Geographical Society of the United States, this infant Canadian association has been launched under the happiest of auspices and with a list of officers, headed by the Governor General as honorary patron, which is representative of every Province and the country's foremost scientists, explorers and professional classes generally.

The society came into existence during recent weeks, with a charter from the Dominion Government and a tentative slate of officials which will be confirmed at their first annual meeting on Feb. 19. Dr. Charles Camsell, Deputy Minister of Mines for Canada, is the first president and brings peculiar qualifications to that post. He was born in the Northwest Territories, son of a Hudson's Bay Company factor and endowed with the pioneering instinct. Early in life he traveled and explored extensively the watershed of the Mackenzie River and the regions extending west to the Pacific. Later he explored the great Slave Lake area and the Copper Mine River and, after joining the Geological Survey in 1904, continued to make pilgrimages into the Canadian North which added many square miles to the mapped and surveyed regions. With him on the board are a score of men almost as distinguished, the secretary being E. S. Martindale of the Interior Department, Ottawa.

Objects of Wide Interest.

Discussing the organization with THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, Dr. Camsell declared that the Canadian Geographical Society would prove of interest not only to geographers and explorers, but to all those who felt the resources, the geography, the peoples and the culture of Canada should be made better known. Need for such a society had been made apparent in recent years, he said, as the result of extraordinary activity in exploring and opening up the Canadian North.

"Canada," said Dr. Camsell, "is one of the largest countries of the world, yet fully half of it is very imperfectly known and about one-quarter of it, exclusive of the Arctic islands, is quite unexplored. Also, because of its size and the great distances separating one part from another even the settled portions of the country are not as well known to all the people of Canada as they should be. All Canadians appreciate this fact.

"The Canadian Geographical Society is organized not only for the purpose of advancing geographical knowledge of the more remote parts of Canada but of disseminating information on the geography, resources and culture of the more settled parts. In other words the object of the society is to make Canada known, first of all to Canadians and then to the rest of the world. In doing this the society feels it will render a real service which should have a unifying influence in the life of our people."

Dr. Camsell commented on the enthusiasm shown throughout Canada in the new organization and the cordial welcome accorded it by sister societies in the United States and Great Britain.

Membership Open to All.

Membership in the society is open to every one and all members will receive the Canadian Geographical Journal, the official organ which is to be published monthly as from April. The editorial work will be under direction of Lawrence J. Burpee, secretary of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission and it will combine characteristics of the Royal Geographical Journal and the National Geographic Magazine.

The society's advent occurs at an opportune time. Extensive and growing use of the airplane by official explorers and private parties each year is subtracting hundreds of thousands of square miles from blank spots on the map. Government survey groups sent into Northern Ontario and Quebec and the sub-Arctic last Summer found that thanks to the plane they could do in a week work which would have taken months under former conditions. Intensive mineral exploration has hastened this geographical development, and at the same time has quickened public interest in the physical features, and the possibilities of Canada's great unexplored regions. The Canadian Geographical Society thus steps into the field at a time when there is a keen demand for the services it can render and a generous appreciation of the intelligent patriotism of its promoters.

Rumanian Clergy Against Cuza.

The Catholic clergy of Rumania have begun a campaign against Professor Cuza, the prominent Rumanian anti-Semitic leader, because in a recent appeal published by the Cuza press anti-Semitism was labeled a religious Christian movement originating in the New Testament and Cuza was called the "thirteenth apostle." A Bucharest dispatch of Jan. 14 to The Jewish Telegraphic Agency says that the Bucharest priests Cordanu and Popescu have issued a manifesto in which Cuza is characterized as a false Messiah and a dangerous destroyer of the Roman Church, as well as a rebel against the civil and military authorities. The manifesto says that while Cuza pretends to defend Christianity from the "Jewish danger," it is known that in a well-known work written by Cuza atheism was lauded, religious instruction was declared to be a comedy and mention was made of a heaven without a God.

Legal Comment on Current Events

Marriages of Fourth Offenders Sentenced Under Baumes Laws Automatically Dissolved—Change of Name a Simple Matter in New York State.

Edited by Current Events Committee of American Association of Legal Authors.

Baumes Law "Divorces." The offense of adultery is frequently referred to as the single ground in New York for absolute divorce. But there are other grounds occurring after the consummation of a valid marriage upon which, as distinguished from annulment, the marriage contract and its resulting relations may be dissolved. One, fairly familiar, arises under the "Enoch Arden" law, whereby, after an absence of five years, accompanied by evidence raising a presumption of death, the dissolution of the marriage may be decreed. Another ground of dissolution, only recently added by statute, is incurable insanity for more than five years. A fourth ground is the final sentence of a husband or wife to life imprisonment for crime. From this it results that every fourth offender who receives a life sentence under the Baumes law, is, ipso facto, divorced from his or her spouse, the latter being immediately free to remarry, as though the earlier marrriage had never been. And, although a sentence to life imprisonment is the only one of the four grounds for the dissolution of a marriage, as distinguished from annulment, which does not require adudication by a court, it is significant that dissolution for this cause results by implication only, rather than by express provision of law. That is, dissolution of marriage for life sentence for crime is implied from the provision of the New York penal law to the effect that a person sentenced to imprisonment for life is deemed thereafter to be civilly dead, and the complementary provision of the domestic relations law, that a marriage is void if contracted by a person whose husband or wife by a former marriage is living, unless such former husband or wife has been finally sentenced to life imprisonment.

Only a few cases have arisen in which the effect of imprisonment for crime, as affecting a dissolution of marriage, has been considered; but one of these arose in Brooklyn some years ago and was decided by the late Supreme Court Justice Maddox (82 Misc. 667). It there appeared that one John Gargan, after a year of married life, killed his father-in-law, for which Gargan was indicted, tried and convicted of murder in the second degree. He was given an indeterminate sentence of twenty years to life. The woman whom Gargan had married, and whose father he had murdered, then decided to marry again and applied for a marriage license permitting her to wed one Weisheimer. This was refused by the City Clerk on the ground that the prospective bride had a living husband. Justice Maddox ordered the issuance of the license, declaring that the maximum and not the minimum of the sentence was to be considered, and that by such sentence alone the marriage had been completely dissolved.

Under the principle of this decision, the marriage of Mrs. Ruth St. Claire, the twenty-nine-year-old shoplifter, recently sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Levine of the New York Court of General Sessions, stands dissolved, unless the sentence is set aside on appeal; and, as an incident of the sentences of the hundred or more prisoners who, as fourth offenders, have begun the service of life terms under the mandatory provisions of the Baumes laws, the marriage of each has been dissolved. Furthermore, the pardon of a prisoner previously sentenced to life imprisonment and the restoration of his civil rights thereby, would not operate to re-establish a marriage previously dissolved by a life sentence for crime.

Changing One's Name. The refusal of City Court Justice Louis Goldstein, of Brooklyn, to grant the petition of salesman Louis Goldstein, of Brooklyn, for leave to change his name from Goldstein to Golding, has been formally recorded in the archives of the law, though not necessarily a final decision. Perhaps the reasons assigned by salesman Goldstein in his application to Justice Goldstein—that the name Goldstein was "not euphonious," that it was "un-American," that it was a hindrance and not a help to worldly success—would have made a stronger appeal to a judicial officer who did not feel that his own birth, life, observation, experience and career all combined in eloquent refutation of everything alleged to justify the change.

But in New York State the law is quite liberal in its attitude toward name changes by individuals, and to entitle a person to the privilege, it is, as a rule, only necessary that the court to which the petition is presented should be satisfied that the facts are truly stated and "that there is no reasonable objection to the change of name proposed." It is not required affirmatively that a reason should be assigned which impresses the judge who passes upon the application as a good and sufficient reason. Justice Goldstein, in Brooklyn, was at pains to point out that he did not consider Mr. Goldstein's reasons for desiring to become Mr. Golding adequate to invoke the relief sought; whereas, Section 63 of the civil rights law clearly contemplates that a judge to whom application for a change of name is made should allow the petition, in the absence of "reasonable objection."

Under the "reasonable objection" clause of the statute, judges before whom applications for changes of name have come have allowed others interested to oppose the relief desired. Thus, Justice Callahan of the New York City Court denied the application of a mother, who had remarried, of a boy five years old, to change the child's surname to that of her second husband. The boy's father, who had been divorced in Nevada for desertion, opposed the change. In denying the application, the justice declared that the court "will not and should not interfere with the usual custom of succession to paternal surname, nor foster any unnatural barrier between father and son" (121 Misc. 151).

The laws of some of the other States differ from the New York statute. In Nebraska, for example, for a change of name there must be submitted "proof of proper and reasonable cause for the change." Under this statute a change of name from John I. Taminosian to Mahommed Nadir, was refused, though the latter was the name under which the petitioner had been admitted to the religion of Islam and it had been used by him from time to time thereafter. But the wife of Mr. Taminosian did not want to become Mrs. Mahommed Nadir, and the court decided that such a matter was "not subject to the whim of every petitioner," and that the sensibilities of the wife and children should be taken into consideration.

In Baltimore, several years ago, a family named Booze, consisting of a mother and two sons, 17 and 19 years old, successfully sought the aid of the courts in having their common surname changed to Hughes; and one Otto Hell, who came from Germany and settled in Oregon, was allowed to change his name from Hell to Hall, upon the plea that his neighbors, business associates and correspondents delighted in using only the initial of his first name, in combination with his surname, in addressing him.

New Names Without Court Orders. The New York statute can afford to be liberal toward name changes because a resident of New York does not need the aid of the statute at all. That is, a natural person in New York may assume a new name without any legal formality or order of court. As was pointed out by Judge Vann of the New York Court of Appeals (197 N. Y. 428), while "the statutory method has some advantages because it is speedy, definite and a matter of record, so as to be easily proved even after the death of all contemporaneous witnesses," nevertheless "a man may lawfully change his name without resort to legal proceedings and for all purposes the name thus assumed will constitute his legal name just as much as if he had borne it from birth." But this is not the law in all the States. In Pennsylvania it is unlawful, except by order of court, for any person "to assume a name different from the name by which such person is known." In New York, strangely enough, it is only after one has acquired a new name by judicial decree that one may not acquire another without resorting to the courts.

Furthermore, the law does not recognize any exclusive or superior right in a family name in the sense that a member of the family or one of the name may prevent its assumption by a stranger. It has been said, accordingly, that "the proudest patronymic in the land is available to the lowliest individual," and this without so much as "by your leave." It will be recalled that in Philadelphia several years ago a man by the name of Kabotchnick applied to the Court of Common Pleas for permission to change his name to Cabot, whereupon various members of that well-known Massachusetts family, and also the Pennsylvania Society of the Order of Founders and Patriots of America, rose in protest. But the protests were in vain, and Mr. Kabotchnick, by decree of court, is now Mr. Cabot.

Under the rule of Judge Vann's decision any one may become George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Douglas Fairbanks, Grover Whalen, Thomas A. Edison, Calvin Coolidge, Henry Ford or Herbert Hoover. A life insurance solicitor, a subscription canvasser, bond salesman or other importunate visitor might call at any office in New York and send in by a wide-eyed office boy to a surprised and inaccessible member of the firm a gleaming pasteboard bearing any of these illustrious names without committing a violation of the law. This, because a name adopted may belong truly to a brand new Calvin Coolidge, for example.

Of course, if one individual impersonates another and thereby perpetrates a fraud, a distinct crime is committed; and it is a misdemeanor, also, for a person to use for advertising purposes or for the purposes of trade, a name, portrait or picture of any living person without consent. But having assumed another name, as one may in New York without legal formality, it is doubtful if the statute last cited would apply to the use, in the manner described, of a recently adopted cognomen. Finally, there has never been doubt that a man may bind himself by contract by any name by which he has contracted. The law holds one estopped from denying or repudiating an obligation thus incurred (2 Hilt. 566).

GERMAN INSURANCE SOUND.

Unemployment Fund Only Weak Link in Social Protective Chain.

Although recent dispatches from Berlin have told of sharp protests by the leaders of the German trade unions against a proposal by Dr. Paul Moldenhauer, Minister of Finance, to reduce the National Treasury's burden this year by meeting the deficit in the unemployment fund through loans advanced by the other sections of Germany's comprehensive social insurance system, examination of a report on the financial condition of those sections printed in Berlin in January indicates that they are quite able to make the advances suggested.

In 1928, the last year for which complete data are available, the receipts of the various social insurance funds, not including the unemployment division, amounted to 4,200,000,000 marks ($999,600,000) and their expenditures to 3,400,000,000 marks. In 1929 the estimated receipts were considerably higher than in the preceding year, with a corresponding increase in expenditures, but there is every reason to believe that last year also saw a substantial addition to the total net resources of 3,400,000,000 marks held by the various funds at the beginning of 1929. It is expected that when unemployment in Germany is cut down to normal proportions the income of the fund devoted to taking care of the involuntary idle will be more than sufficient to meet expenditures.

TRAFFIC JAMS COSTLY.

Expert Figures They Cause Loss to Paris of $20,000,000 a Year.

While the Paris Prefecture of Police is chiefly concerned with the loss of life and limb in trying to solve the traffic problem and to quicken transportation by various reforms, its reports show that the matter of time is only thought of when a new regulation tends to improve it.

For example, when its inspectors saw that it took a taxi fifteen minutes to go along the Avenue de l'Opéra from the Palais Royal to the Place de l'Opéra—about the distance from Times Square to Fiftieth Street—a regulation was made which reduced the time to ten minutes.

But Pierre Bourdeix, a Parisian civil engineer, has been interested in the time made by traffic for another reason. Day after day he has posted himself at various traffic centres and has asked himself the question: "What is the value of the time lost by people who travel by bus or taxi on account of avoidable delays in traffic?"

The final result is an impressive array of figures, apparently proving that in time and general material wasted the congestion represents an annual loss to Paris of 500,000,000 francs, or $20,000,000.

FARM BOARD PLANS UPSET SOUTHWEST

Wheat Marketing Machinery of Section at a Standstill Owing to "Pegged" Price.

BULL MOOSERS AROUSED

MacNider Speech Stirs Independent Republicans, Who Promise Hard Political Fight.

By ROY BUCKINGHAM.
Editorial Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 12.—The marketing machinery of the Southwest, the grain commission companies here and in Wichita, Hutchinson, Dodge City, Oklahoma City and other grain centres, is at a standstill because of the Federal Farm Board's grain relief measures. With the National Grain Corporation purchasing wheat at "pegged" prices, several cents above the market, the traders who usually are moving much grain from the market at this time of the year are buying nothing.

"We don't know where we are," a Board of Trade member said. "We don't know what the stabilization corporation will do to wheat. We never had a more demoralized market than we have now, and with the promise of another huge wheat crop in the Southwest hard wheat belt the market situation is a puzzle."

The problem which causes anxiety now is what is to become of the 1930 crop. Wheat purchased now by the National Grain Corporation is stored wherever possible. However, storage is so scarce that with a 100,000,000 bushel crop this year it will be a difficult task to find places to put it. Kansas City's 25,000,000 bushel storage facilities are filled with grain, some of which has been in storage two years. New storage built in the Southwest this year and which will be ready for the 1930 crop will not exceed 10,000,000 bushels and the wheat production from Ford County alone would nearly require that much.

No Crop Reduction.

Facing this prospect, the wheat producers in the Southwest are in the same confused state of mind as the commission men. They, however, are going right ahead buying combines and tractors as never before. Apparently the crop reduction request of Alexander H. Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, did not register.

The marketing structure making it possible for all wheat raisers in the Southwest to participate in the benefits of the National Grain Corporation apparently was completed last week when a regional group for Kansas and Colorado was formed. This group had its genesis in the ten-year-old quarrel between the cooperatives and the wheat pool. The Kansas wheat pool always has had poor sledding in Kansas. Its membership to begin with was negligible. Its fiscal policies were not successful enough to win the wheat growers. However, Ernest Downie and John Vesecky have battled opposition and sought to do everything to bring the pool to a solvent condition.

When the National Grain Corporation announced it would work through the major cooperatives, the Farmers' Union, Equity and Farmers' Graindealers associations endorsed the national plan and came into the national group without changing their set-up. However, the wheat pool's set-up and membership were inadequate and the pool began agitation for the regional agency. The independent cooperatives in Kansas and Colorado who could not qualify under the requirements of the National Grain Corporation, joined the pool in a clamor for a regional sales agency. This sales group is to be capitalized at $1,000,000. Those participating in it will receive the benefits of the National Grain Corporation, although their individual identity will be lost in the new agency. The major cooperative groups have a more direct hook-up with the National Grain Corporation.

Bull Moose Aroused.

The Bull Moose rampant might be the proper figure for independent Republicanisms' coat of arms if the Kansas party needed a heraldic device. Any Republican in Kansas will tell you that the spirit of Armageddon is abroad and before the election is history a man-sized political fignt will have been waged.

Progressive Republicans got out their swords and pistols after Hanford MacNider of Mason City, Iowa, read them out of the party at the annual Kansas day dinner. The Iowan and former national commander of the Legion excommunicated Senator Henry J. Allen, Governor Clyde M. Reed and the good-natured William Allen White when he blasted the Republicans who would not train with the industrial barons of New England. While the Progressives took their castigation with good grace and told Mr. MacNider what a good speechifier he was, things were different when they returned to their home base. Mr. White let Mr. MacNider have both barrels on the editorial page of his Emporia Gazette. The Wichita Beacon, in which Senator Allen has large holdings, dropped an editorial burst around the Iowan.

Mr. MacNider, however, rallied the progressive Republican element so effectively that friends of Governor Reed and Senator Allen predict an easy victory. The Bull Moose element has always been noted for its fighting ability and this year it has been aroused as never before. However, the Old Guard Republicans who have trotted out Frank Haucke, former State commander of the American Legion, say they have a line up that will smash the Allen-Reed domination of the party in Kansas.

Legion Takes Leading Part.

Aside from the usual animosity between the two wings of the Republican party in Kansas, another interesting feature is the prominence the Legion is playing in the preliminary skirmishes. Of course, every one knows Legion members detour political pitfalls, but the managers of Mr. Haucke are not hesitant in calling attention of the voters to his war record and his direction of the State Legion. The Haucke men evidently are counting on organizing the service men vote in Kansas for Haucke and this may be strength that will cut in on Allen and Reed votes.

The editorial comment which has developed so far indicates a bitter campaign in Kansas. Governor Reed has made mistakes of policy and administration. Some of his campaign promises have not been kept. The Governor, however, is no man to apologize or dodge criticism. He is a political scrapper of the Allen mettle. Veteran observers say if Reed and Allen carry the fight they are capable of, the State fair will become a side-show attraction compared to the Summer hustings.

Turkish Woman's Snake Story Sets Record for Nature Fakers

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 29.—For sheer imagination it would be hard to match the tale of a snake which Millyet publishes in a dispatch from Broussa.

It seems that a certain woman took a nap out of doors four months ago and while she was asleep a small snake crawled into her mouth. Since then, she asserts, it has been living in her stomach and coming up in her throat every day to breath.

Lately it has become troublesome and, says the newspaper, surgeons are preparing to operate on the woman and remove her unwelcome boarder.

MEXICO CITY MARKETS ALWAYS FULL OF LIFE

What With Cockfights, Concerts and Brawls Time Never Hangs Heavy.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 10.—Whether it is a cockfight, a concert, or a friendly brawl between two mandaderos, there is always something going on in the markets which dot the city of Mexico.

The live stock department adjoins the flower market, and with fragrant whiffs of heliotrope and lilies, is mingled the pungent odor of young goats, chickens, turkeys, ducks, guinea pigs and rabbits. It is here that the cockfights take place, though it is against the law. Men and boys, crowned with huge sombreros which almost hide the spectacle from the passer-by, bend in a close circle over the two roosters. The birds are never very animated, but push each other around in a desultory fashion, butting each other with their heads rather than doing any damage with their bills.

There are always three or four small orchestras of stringed instruments in the market, but the place is large, covering several square blocks, so that they do not interfere with each other. They play the popular songs of the people which are sometimes almost Russian in their mournfulness.

Tidy old women go around begging from stall to stall. When they receive the unplucked wing of a chicken, or some fruit, they cross themselves with it and kiss the gift to show their appreciation.

Everything that is necessary to start housekeeping with may be bought at the market, from charcoal stove to bedroom set, especially since the bed of most of the poorer classes consists of a woven rush mat, six feet square, which can be purchased for 60 centavos. Chairs are just as cheap. Little hand-made, reed-bottomed chairs, for which American women scour the antique shops, cost 50 cents to $1 apiece. If one decides to refurnish a room and wants to carry home a half dozen chairs, a few cabinets and several rush mats, any mandadero will ingeniously tie them together and carry them all on his head for 25 centavos.

The native pottery is held in high scorn by the middle class Mexican family, though the poorer people know no other. However, if they possess a Woolworth cup and saucer, which costs five times as much here, they consider their table swanky. The pottery, a rich brown and highly glazed, can be used over the hottest fires and afterward put on the table to eat from.

Luther Exhibit at Coburg.

COBURG, Feb. 3.—In connection with Augsburg's 400th celebration of the "Augsburg Confession," Coburg will have an elaborate program of Luther memorial celebrations from April to October this year. There will be a Luther exhibit in the "Veste," the ancient fortress above the city, where the great reformer lived for some time, and a series of plays dealing with him will be given, including Strindberg's "Luther."

QUAKER STATE GIRDS FOR POLITICAL FIGHT

Repetition in Heat and Bitterness of 1926 Primary Campaign Is Seen as Likely.

VARE AND GRUNDY AT ODDS

Failure to Agree May Bring Independents Into Senatorial and Gubernatorial Contest.

By WILLIAM T. MARTIN.
Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 13.—The attempt to unite the two big city political units, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, behind a Grundy ticket as a starter toward State harmony is recalling to Western Pennsylvanians the philosophy preached at such great expense four years ago.

Of course, it is natural enough to seek such an arrangement, but then Pittsburghers and others were told, in the $2,000,000 Senatorial and Gubernatorial campaign of 1926, that no worse fate could befall the rest of the State than to come under the dictation of the Philadelphia machine. That, voters were assured, would surely happen if Mr. Vare should be elected.

Later some of the Western Pennsylvania Republican leaders who talked in that strain were obliged to eat their words and join, from the constitutional standpoint, in the fight against the denial to Mr. Vare of the seat to which he was elected. With his rejection, however, not even a gesture was made by the State organization toward slating him to run again for vindication. But, with his announced intention of doing this on his own accord, he at least gives his organization a strong lever for an attempt to dictate the selection of a candidate for the Republican Governorship nomination to run with Grundy.

At this writing, as has been generally proclaimed, the Vare "war board" has an ultimatum before the forces of Grundy to accept Francis Shunk Brown of Philadelphia for a running mate or fight.

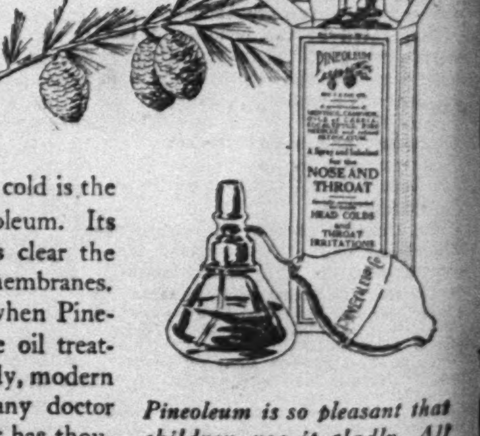
In the latter event the implication is that Vare would make good his promise to run again for the Senate, with a complete ticket of his own, an eventuality that would threaten a repetition of the 1926 primary fight in vigor and bitterness, if not in money.

If the Vare and Grundy forces could not get together, then, it is accepted, former Governor Pinchot and other independents could not resist the temptation to get into the race. Ordinarily Pinchot is discussed in connection with the Governorship, but it is pointed out that his ambition to go to the Senate has been demonstrated by two campaign efforts.

Meanwhile the assumption that the Pittsburgh-Allegheny County Republican organization is sewed up for Grundy and a gubernatorial candidate acceptable to him is being subjected to some qualifications. While it is generally believed that so far as State political matters are concerned it will, in the main, follow the Mellon desires, it has for some time been a very much shot-to-pieces organization. Only recently there was the three-cornered fight for the Mayoralty of Pittsburgh. Lately Mayor Kline, instead of taking conciliatory steps, has been keeping the wounds fresh by ridding the municipal payroll of persons who were not for him in the contest.

The Mayor has indicated that he intends to take an interest in State politics, but his machine apparently is of a strictly local character, although this includes some evidence of a link-up with certain county officers. Among the local leaders, some feel that Brown of Philadelphia will be slated for the Governorship. Others are found talking for Secretary of Labor James J. Davis of Pittsburgh, Samuel S. Lewis of York and State Treasurer Edward Martin of Washington County. Some of the State leaders have suggested Attorney General Cyrus E. Woods of Westmoreland County as a possible compromise, but he has been quoted repeatedly as declaring that he will not be a candidate.

Use this potent oil treatment vs. Colds!



The first sneeze of a cold is the sign you need Pineoleum. Its healing, pleasant oils clear the passages, soothe the membranes. Germs can't thrive when Pineoleum is there. The oil treatment of colds is speedy, modern and certain. Ask any doctor about Pineoleum. It has thousands of professional friends.

Pineoleum is so pleasant that children use it gladly. All druggists sell it.

Colds yield quickly to Pineoleum
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

SAYS DRUG TRAFFIC UNDERMINES EGYPT

Russell Pasha, Cairo Police Head, Finds Western Makers Turn Out Narcotics by Ton.

SEEKS TO HELP VICTIMS

Laws of Many Countries Are Too Loosely Drawn to Stop Flow, He Asserts.

By P. S. TAYLOR.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DRIVES ON DRUG TRAFFIC.

Hanselmann.

Russell Pasha, Commandant of Cairo City Police Since 1918.

CAIRO, Feb. 1.—The report of the Central Narcotics Intelligence Bureau, which has just been published, makes interesting reading. Incidentally, it is a sweeping denunciation of Western countries where the drugs are manufactured for shipment to Egypt and the Far East. In the covering letter to the report Russell Pasha, chief of the bureau, informs the Minister of the Interior that the period covered by the document is from Jan., 1929, to Nov. 30 only, as he desired to place it before his superior before his own departure for Geneva, where he will represent the government of King Fuad at the convention of the Anti-Opium Advisory Commission of the League of Nations.

The Pasha, who has been in Egypt since 1902, and has commanded the Cairo city police since 1918, in this covering letter states "* * * in the Central European manufacturing countries the unit of calculation when talking of narcotics is the ton," and adds that recently "a neighboring country", requested the French Government, who refused, permission to send four tons of heroin to the East through France. A thousand kilogrammes make a ton. The cost of a kilogram is £10 (Egyptian), the selling price is from $130 to $140. "It is clear, therefore," says the report, "that the narcotic manufacturers of Central Europe are making colossal fortunes by pouring their poisons into Egypt and the Far East. What do they care if they ruin thousands of Egyptians so long as they can fill their own pockets. * * * Egypt is the victim. She has the right to raise her voice against these poison factories. She has facts and not mere theories to support her protest."

Manufactured by the Ton.

These facts are enumerated in the report. From one source of Egyptian supply, discovered by the apprehension last year of the Zelinger gang, it was found that the manufacture of narcotics during the last four years was according to the following table:

	Kilograms. Heroin.	Morphine.	Cocaine.
1926	1,063	165	...
1927	667	130	...
1928	4,349	477	205
1929 to June	335	151	...
Total	6,414	913	205

It is estimated that the legitimate scientific and medical requirements of one European country of 53,000,000 inhabitants are fifty kilograms of heroin per annum," says the report. "If the population of the world is taken as 1,646,000,000 and an allowance of heroin given at the rate of one kilo per million, the world requirements in one year would be about 1,700 kilos of this drug. In the year 1928 (as per above) Roessler Fils manufactured 4,349 kilos of this drug, i. e., two and a half times the legitimate requirements of the world; and this is only one of several factories in Central Europe."

One of the chief difficulties of the police is the looseness of the laws of many countries regarding the manufacture of drugs. By the slight alteration of a formula one can defeat the law, while preparing as deadly a narcotic as the one whose precise formula has been avoided. This especially applies to dionyl, which has been landed in Egypt and confiscated to the police. It is not mentioned in the British pharmacopeia, but at the instance of Russell Pasha was examined and found to be dipropionyl morphine. It is similar to morphine, but cannot be included in a categorical list. This calls for international revision of laws relating to formulae.

Organizations Are Widespread.

The organizations which the police have unearthed are at Mulhouse, Basle, Zurich and Constantinople. No pity need be shown to these foul traffickers. I realized that when the other day I was invited by Russell Pasha to visit the Governorate to inspect the 250 riff-raff his officers had collected that morning in the slums of Cairo, as a move in the battle against drugs.

The Pasha explained to me that these folk were not under arrest, that each would receive a square meal and a piastre, and be permitted presently to depart. He also added that they were not all drug addicts, nor had all bad characters. He had gathered them together in an effort to help them.

I was assured that cures were carried out, and that the addicts themselves were intensely grateful toward the officials who took an interest in them. Russell Pasha told me that the chief trouble with regard to cures was the total lack of probation officers and social workers in this country. The only people who will take an interest in these cases are the Y. M. C. A. and the American Mission.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT TO RETURN TO ITALY

Fascist Minister of Justice Includes Other Drastic Penalties in New Code.

ROME (AP).—Death and confiscation of property as a punishment for murder return to Italy after many years with life imprisonment as the highest penalty, under the new penal code drawn up by Alfredo Rocco, Minister of Justice.

The death penalty and many other new provisions are designed to combat Italy's increasing crime. Conviction for two offenses, each one of which draws life imprisonment, brings the death penalty. Confiscation of property includes all the worldly goods of the accused, present and future.

Conditions of emotion or passion are declared by Article 93 of the code to be of no avail in diminishing the guilt of the accused. Thus the code specifically refuses to sanction Italy's traditional plea of the unwritten law when a husband kills an unfaithful wife or her lover or both. Habituality in crime is dealt with by doubling the ordinary penalty.

Italians are particularly interested in the provisions relating to dueling. A person challenging another to a duel or accepting a challenge is liable to a fine of from $25 to $100, even if the duel is not fought. If arms are actually used, a duelist is punished with imprisonment up to two years if his opponent receives a serious wound. But the old Italian predilection in favor of duels comes to the fore in the provision punishing a duelist who kills his opponent. In this case it seems that the death is not regarded as murder, for the penalty is only from one to five years' imprisonment.

A new provision is that relating to the spreading of contagious diseases, mentioning particularly tuberculosis and social diseases. A person spreading such diseases will receive a sentence of from one to three years in prison. If the person catching the contagion dies, the penalty may reach eight years.

A criminal, Italian citizen or not, who has committed a crime abroad and been convicted abroad may be retried by an Italian court if the Minister of Justice so orders.

QUEBEC LIQUOR PROFIT INCREASED $1,885,904

Provincial Commission Says Wine Consumption Has Grown 125 Per Cent in Five Years.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MONTREAL, Feb. 12.—A net operating profit of $8,043,752 was earned in the last fiscal year by the Quebec Liquor Commission on total sales, which amounted to $27,007,430, it has been announced in the Legislature. For the same period the Province paid to the Federal Treasury for customs, excise and sales tax the sum of $9,334,619. The operating profit increased over the preceding year by $1,885,904, and the total sales by $2,777,806, both figures being higher than ever before.

The commission points out that there has been a higher percentage of increase in the sales of wines than of spirits. During the last five years sales of wines have increased 125 per cent and spirits have gone up only 37.1 per cent. This significant comment is made: "To those who are aware of the dimensions to which the tourist traffic in our Province has grown, and of the annual increase in this traffic, these figures show that the increase in the sales of wine practically keeps pace with the growth in our native, and especially our transient, population, while the percentage of increase in the sale of spirits is certainly at a much lower rate."

In detail it is shown that sales of wine advanced from 716,015 gallons to 1,611,040 gallons in the five-year period. Total sales of spirits were 984,857 gallons, Scotch whisky leading the list with 341,500 gallons. There were 250,272 gallons of gin, 146,460 of brandy, 110,425 of rye, and only 3,766 gallons of Irish whisky. Three more retail stores were added to bring the provincial total to 104, and 3,587 broken bottles were reported.

TO "COLLECTIVIZE" JEWS.

Their Agricultural Colonies Covered by Soviet Program.

The Jewish agricultural colonies in Soviet Russia must be 100 per cent "collectivized" during the current year, according to a decision adopted at a conference of leaders of the "Comzet," the government commission for settling Jews upon the land, held in Kharkof, reported in a Moscow message of Jan. 20 to The Jewish Telegraphic Agency.

At this conference, which was participated in by J. Merezhin, head of the "Comzet" and Dr. Rosen and M. Lubarsky of the American "Agro-joint," it was decided that individual Jewish colonists must submit their entire livestock as well as their inventory to collective barns; that cows which have been given in credit to new Jewish settlers be henceforth not given to them directly, but to the collective; that houses which the American "Joint" and other organizations build for colonists should henceforth have no stables; that in the future, houses be built to accommodate several families instead of one, and that houses built since 1925 be remodeled so that they should now have two families living in one house, instead of one as formerly.

CANADA WILL MOVE TO BAR BORDER RUM

By V. M. KIPP.

Continued from Page 1, Column 6.

foreign management—and they do not like the prospect.

There is reason to believe the government will do nothing more than report progress in regard to the St. Lawrence scheme. Conversations are proceeding between the Federal Government and the governments of Ontario and Quebec in an effort to arrive at an understanding as to the ownership of the power rights involved, and a complete settlement there is an essential preliminary to any agreement with Washington for actual construction. Ontario interests are carrying on an agitation for immediate action, but there is little indication of a general public demand and the government would be glad to put the election behind it before committing itself to the heavy expenditures involved.

LONDON IS GOING IN FOR CITY PLANNING

But Everybody Seems to Possess Different Ideas About What Should Be Done.

COMMITTEE SEEKING PLAN

Metropolis Is Spreading Out and Means Are Sought to Coordinate the Movement.

By ERNEST MARSHALL.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—When General Smuts was in America recently, he paid New York the compliment of saying that it was a city, while London was only a great over-grown town. So much did some Cockney soul take to heart this aspersion on what they themselves affectionately call "the little village," that one of them was moved to write as follows in a popular paper: "To General Smuts we may reply that certainly London is a town grown great, though far from overgrown. That is its chief charm. It is bigger than New York, but still as agreeable to live in as sweet Auburn (the poet Goldsmith's 'loveliest village of the plain'). It is the universe's hub, but its aggregate voice is not that of the cash register. It welcomes all—but lies in wait for none. It is a town still because, in spite of everything that modern civilization can do, it retains the quiet dignity, the serene charm, the companionable humanity of any 'rose-red city half as old as time.'"

Being all that, it might be imagined that Londoners would be well content to leave London as it is. However, it is still growing so fast that stern circumstance necessitates some effort being made to devise a general plan under which its expansion may take on aspects of both esthetic and utilitarian value.

There is now in the press a bulky volume which records the labors of a committee which has been sitting for a year or more past to consider proposals by which homogeneous form may be given to the ever-spreading population in the outlying districts of the British metropolis. In some of the railway stations and hotels in Central London may still be found tables on which are inscribed the distances in miles from Charing Cross. In the old days of the hackney carriage, hansom, or "growler," fares were computed at so much a mile from a starting point which could be fairly correctly fixed by its relationship to the bottom end of the Strand. With the advent of the taxicab those tables of distances became an archaic survival, and it is only here and there that they are preserved as relics of a day long past.

The Underground Has Changed.

London now stretches fifty miles from North to South, and more than that from East to West. The "underground" which is now a network of tubes and electric railways connecting every part of London and extending as far as Richmond, Harrow and Southend in westerly, northerly and easterly directions, began its development under the fostering care of Charles T. Yerkes of Chicago, and has grown even more rapidly under the wand of its present chief, Lord Ashfield, who, though born in England, got his early instruction in railway management in the United States. What a change from the old Metropolitan and District Railway whose insalubrious, even asphyxiating, fumes are well remembered by some generations of Londoners still alive, to the ozone-filled tubes of the present day.

Hardly less remarkable than the changes which have taken place in the underground transport of London are some of the transformations which are taking place or are contemplated in the surface conditions of the Greater London of the not far distant future. "Westward the course of Empire takes its way," and westward is to some extent the trend of the center of London. There is little chance that the area in which Charing Cross, Picadilly, the Marble Arch, St. Giles's Circus, the Bank of England and the Mansion House are situated will lose its pre-eminence as the nodal point of London life, but Park Lane and Mayfair have already lost to a large extent their pride of place as residential districts and even such sanctuaries of aristocratic abode as St. James's Square are threatened by the invader who wants to buy up and tear down ducal mansions and erect in their place caravanseries and so forth which will be more productive of revenue. A few weeks ago it was rumored that Norfolk House, the historic home of the premier dukes of England, was about to be sold to a syndicate which intended to build a huge apartment house on its site in St. James's Square, but at the time of writing the solicitors for the ducal family state that the offers received have not been attractive enough to make the family eager to sell the property. Lady Astor, who lives in the same square, was possibly relieved by the announcement.

Dr. Raymond Unwin is one of the protagonists in a movement designed to relieve the London of the future of the reproach implied in General Smuts's comparison of it as an overgrown town while New York is a city. Dr. Unwin in a measure agrees with General Smuts. He believes that London has grown up, but without any plan. He points to Berlin, Amsterdam, Rome, New York and Chicago as cities which are evolving order out of chaos, and he wants London to begin to do likewise by a system of regional planning which in the first instance can be applied to the newer districts and, as opportunity offers and necessity demands, can be put into effect in the older quarters. Dr. Unwin is the author of a plan for a circular road running round the north of London which it is understood will be embodied in the proposals which the Minister of Transport, Mr. Morrison, is preparing for the regulation of metropolitan traffic.

Would Bring Order Out of Chaos.

That is only part of Dr. Unwin's program which he recently outlined in a paper to be read before the Royal Institute of British Architects. London is being constantly pulled down and rebuilt. It is pushing out its tentacles like an octopus into areas which were once rural. Factories recently erected in the area of Greater London are causing 20,000 people to move into it every year. In three years 125,000 houses have been built to accommodate the increased population, and next to nothing has been done as it should have been done—that is as Dr. Unwin puts it—with a view to bringing "order, health and beauty out of chaos."

The chief difficulty in the execution of a program such as Dr. Unwin suggests is that in the Greater London area there are 140 separate local authorities. The work of the Greater London Regional Planning Committee is to get these district authorities to agree to a general plan which will coordinate all the work in hand and projected. One London paper, commenting with approval on the Unwin thesis, said that "having before our eyes the experience of 150 years of industrial revolution, it is a dismal reflection on our civilization that we should not have built up an organization to avert by planning an evil occasioned by sheer neglect."

A number of bills designed to give effect to the proposals for bringing "order out of chaos" in Greater London along lines recommended in the Regional Planning Committee's report will find their way before Parliament in the course of an early session; but meanwhile Londoners have evidence before their eyes of the advantages of utilizing expert knowledge in the beautifying of the city whenever new construction is called for. The Aldwych and Kingsway, which is the only important piece of city planning carried out in the past quarter of a century, is now completed, the last stone having been put in place a few weeks ago on the façade of India House. Together the Aldwych and Kingsway present an imposing vista, with Bush House as its chief feature. A general plan has been followed, and while the various buildings in the street have special characteristics, there is not a jarring note. Here and there in other districts the reconstruction of London is being carried out with a sense of responsibility as regards the general effect.

Charing Cross Bridge Plans.

But these are minor matters in comparison with the question of Charing Cross Bridge and the removal of the railway station at the bottom of the Strand to the south side of the Thames. There is now before Parliament a bill embodying a scheme worked out by the London County Council, the Southern Railway and the Ministry of Transport. It holds the field as the official scheme, and it is said to command itself to nobody but the officials. Certainly the opposition includes a large number of the most eminent town-planning experts, together with the heads of practically every society representative of the fine arts. Sir Reginald Blomfield, R. A., as spokesman for the Royal Academy, has criticized the London County Council's plans on the grounds of cost, traffic and architecture.

The cost is estimated at £12,500,000 sterling, and Sir Reginald does not think the public will be getting value for its money. He pointed out that, instead of relieving traffic, the congestion on both the Surrey and Middlesex sides of the Thames would be increased, and on the southern bank particularly there would be created a solid wedge behind which would be a hinterland of slums in perpetuity. Lord Crawford, president of the London Society, condemned the L. C. C. proposals as entirely lacking in vision from the point of view of town-planning, and Frederic Towndrow sardonically suggests that the London County Council ought to know better than to make two Trafalgar squares and two traffic roundabouts next to each other. "This is a piece of gratuitous civic grandeur," he says, "which would be more welcome in many other parts of the centre of London."

In reply to these and other representations made to him, Mr. Morrison, Minister of Transport, has stated that at this stage he could not undertake on behalf of the government to ask the London County Council to withdraw the bill now before Parliament and start more or less de novo. All amendments presented when the measure came before the House would receive most careful consideration.

Even at this eleventh hour, however, it does not appear at all certain that the new Charing Cross Bridge proposals will be carried into effect. If they are not, as Sir Percy Simmons, speaking on behalf of the London County Council, said, "This generation will have lost its last chance of getting a Charing Cross bridge." It is now over thirty years since the need of one first made itself apparent, and during those thirty years almost an equal number of schemes have been put forward. Of them all the one which, in the opinion of the Council and the Ministry of Transport, comes nearest to providing a solution of the problem is embodied in the bill before Parliament. The supreme consideration is the requirements of traffic, as Sir Percy Simmons added, though criticisms might be made from an architectural standpoint, the Council's scheme had contained the full approval of no less an authority than Sir Edward Lutyens, whose work in the making of the new Delhi had established his fame beyond dispute.

TREATY WITH ITALY STIRS AUSTRIANS

By JOHN MacCORMAC.

Continued from Page 1, Column 3.

deeds instead of words. The eternally protracted Austro-German negotiations for a commercial treaty were no striking evidence of the good-will of the German Reich. In certain Austrian circles, said Herr Kunschak, Germany was now coming to be regarded as a foreign enemy, and this more so since she hindered Austrian agricultural exports by every kind of red tape.

Controversy Rages in Press.

These pointed remarks by one of the leaders of the Austrian Parliamentary majority were answered by a howl of rage from the Pan-German press and a sharp denial from semi-official German sources.

This did not end the matter. The German Leipsiger Neueste Nachrichten referred caustically to a mentality which made it possible for Austria to expect every help from Germany and give nothing but unkind words in return. A sharp answer came from the Christian Social newspapers, in whose columns for the first time appeared phrases about "Prussians" and the "primacy of Austrian culture," which could formerly have been expected only on the lips of anschluss opponents.

Meanwhile, of course, the work of steady correlation of the legal, postal and railway systems of the two countries goes on and as yet no leader of public opinion has openly confessed himself against anschluss. But with returning national consciousness comes corresponding aversion to the prospect of being handed over nolens volens to Prussia.

"We want to join the German Reich, but not a Germany centralized from Berlin," is the way this feeling is commonly expressed.

In his private capacity Chancellor Schober has given many pledges for anschluss. But he is a realist and as Chancellor his gaze seems to be fastened on the problems of today, or at most the next day. Now that he has saved Austria from the danger of civil war and lifted from her shoulders the burden of reparations he seems determined to place her on her feet financially and economically.

But a self-subsisting Austria would more likely remain a nation than become part of even so powerful a federation as the German Reich. She might even justify last week's statement by the Italian ex-Minister Signor Alberti—so bitterly resented by anschluss partisans—that "Austria is already on the way to become an economic and financial Switzerland."

NANKING NOW OFFERS A 'BILL OF RIGHTS'

Measure Drafted to Protect People From Military and Political Tyranny Given to Council

WOULD CURB KUOMINTANG

Foreign-Language Newspapers in China Doubt Reform Can or Will Be Enforced.

By HALLETT ABEND.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 22.—Progress toward defining the rights and privileges of the Chinese people and toward giving them legal protection from the whims and tyrannies of military leaders and political dictators, is being made at Nanking, where a "Bill of Rights" has been submitted to the Central Political Council, and new regulations checking provincial governments have been laid before the State Council after framing by the Legislative Yuan.

The Bill of Rights, if adopted and actually upheld and enforced, will go far toward meeting the criticisms leveled against the Nanking Government by such Chinese of note as Dr. Hu Shih, the philosopher, and other leaders less well known abroad. Some of its salient proposals are:

"All subjects of the Chinese Republic" shall enjoy equal status before the law, irrespective of race, sex or religion.

No person may be deprived of freedom of action except in accordance with the law. In cases of arrest, causes for detention must be made known within twenty-four hours and immediate preliminary trials must be granted. Trials by military courts, except when martial law exists, may not be imposed upon civilians.

"Freedom" of Speech and Press.

All persons shall enjoy, "within the limits specified by law," freedom of speech, press "and other modes of expressing his or her views." This paragraph is held to be meaningless because of restrictive laws and mandates.

The paragraph dealing with the rights of freedom of forming organizations and of holding meetings is also of doubtful value to the people in view of existing restrictive mandates.

Another section proposes that no residence shall be subject to entry or search "unless by consent of the party concerned, or by due process of law."

Protection of property is also to be guaranteed, and confiscations are to be forbidden "except in accordance with law."

The new regulations designed to curb the tyrannies of provincial governments and local administrators are supplementary to this Bill of Rights and provide that any measure of a provincial government "which is likely to constitute a restraint upon the freedom of the people, or to increase their financial burdens" must first be referred to the State Council at Nanking for approval.

The phrase about "financial burdens" is considered to be of prime importance, for though national taxation is not heavy in China, local taxation is often crushing and hitherto has been imposed by local authorities without restraint of any kind. This measure is part of Nanking's general plan to centralize financial control of the country, to do away with "tax farming" and to try to abolish likin or transit taxes by Oct. 10 of this year.

The regulations give the provincial governments the power to suspend enforcement of or cancel any orders issued by "subordinate local authorities." This is interpreted as devising a check upon the various local Kuomintang party committees which in many parts of the country have usurped the functions of governments, have instituted their own courts, have called boycotts, levied fines and directed strikes.

EDUCATIONAL

LANGUAGE

BERLITZ SCHOOL OF LANGUAGES Announces NEW ELEMENTARY CLASSES
FRENCH
Beg. Feb. 17—Mon. & Thurs., 7 P. M.
Beg. Feb. 18—Tues. & Fri., 7 P. M.
SPANISH
Beg. Feb. 17—Mon. & Thurs., 10 A. M.
Beg. Feb. 17—Mon. & Thurs., 6 P. M.
GERMAN
Beg. Feb. 18—Tues. & Fri., 8 P. M.
ITALIAN
Beg. Feb. 17—Mon. & Thurs., 4 P. M.
Present this advertisement for free trial lesson
Intermediate and advanced classes at all hours
30 West 34th Street Penn. 1188

CLARK SCHOOL OF LANGUAGES
Languages quickly, easily, thoroughly acquired. Start any time, day or evening. Conversation, fluency, excellent pronunciation a specialty. Let's help you decide. Trial lessons free by DR. THATCHER CLARK, One of America's foremost linguists, and language teachers.
1819 B'WAY (AT 59th ST.) COL. 7376

UNIVERSAL INSTITUTE FRENCH-SPANISH
GERMAN ITALIAN
Simplified Conversational Method. Cultured Native Instructors. Est. 18 Yrs. PRIVATE LESSONS, 75c
1265 LEXINGTON AVE. (Cor. 85th)

SERGIO SCHOOL OF LANGUAGES
ALL CLASSES LIMITED TO 5 PUPILS
New Classes start every other week. Our Logical Method and incomparable Native PROFESSORS make Languages easy even for those who utterly failed elsewhere.
Free Trial Lesson. Established 1906.
62 MADISON AV. (59th St.) Tel. Volunteer 7378.

FRENCH By Parisian Instructors Special Classes, 2 P. M. Miss Buccini's system of teaching gives the most gratifying results. All modern languages. BUCCINI SCHOOL, 5 COLUMBUS CIRCLE. Est. 1909

FRENCH Spanish, Italian, German; native teachers; conversational method; private lesson 75c; short course; daily 9 to 9. Fisher's School of Languages, 1,264 Lexington Av. (northwest cor. 85th.)

NEW ENGLAND French priest, Parisian, Sorbonne graduate, English speaking, experienced tutor, would receive two private pupils; classical course; German; also holiday pupils. Y 2150 Times Annex.

ENGLISH GRAMMAR, rhetoric, literature; Boston pronunciation; Americans, foreigners. Miss Blanchard, 37 Madison Av. Tel. Lexington 6881. Extension 706.

SPANISH Prunera School of Spanish, 562 West 164th. Billings 4825. 39 Cortlandt St. Cortlandt 5253. Conversation; Classes. $10 monthly. Est. 1903.

FRENCH, fluent conversation rapidly acquired by the Guyard Scientific French System. Native teacher. Jules Guyard, 11 West 42d St., Salmon Tower Bldg.

TEACHER, experienced, public school, college graduate, tutors, English, French, Latin, mathematics; students rapidly advanced. Miss Munro, Wickersham 0640.

FRENCH by native professor; easy method; daily 9 to 9; private and small classes; reasonable. Roger Perreau, 682 Ocean Av., Brooklyn.

STANDARD English speech; correction foreign accents, regional dialects; scientific; reasonable; studio East 17th. Helen Cross. H 484 Times.

FRENCH Young Parisienne, Sorbonne graduate. Mlle. Haumant, W. 84th. Susquehanna 4979.

SPANISH through conversation by native lady professor. Commercial, College Preparation. Endicott 4155.

FRENCH Conversation. 8 lessons $12. Mademoiselle Roland. Bryant 1847. Apt. 617.

ENGLISH—Thorough drilling in grammar, diction, composition, literature, by Englishwoman. Miss Kay, 131 West 56th. Circle 5083.

FRENCH in 3 months. Conversation only. Davoust-Galissie, 261 W. 85th. Teacher Y. M. C. A.

FRENCH taught with correct accent, easy method; your home or 116 E. 83d St. Madame Deschamps. Rhinelander 9621.

FRENCH lessons, grammar, conversation, Broadway subway at 96th St.; mademoiselle. Riverside 1234.

GERMAN taught thoroughly; easy method; experienced Hanoverian instructress. 1,947 Broadway, Studio 408.

FRENCH Refined French gentleman, highly cultured. d'Oumbert, 617 W. 143d. Bradhurst 2627.

SPANISH native teacher, conversation, grammar, your residence, studio. Senora Seva, 614 West 136th.

SPANISH, thoroughly taught, experienced lady professor and writer. Arteaga, 601 West 135th St.

RUSSIAN by professional teacher, Imperial University graduate. Michael Jerlitzyn, 25 West 23d. Harlem 0487.

GERMAN conversation taught; competent, mature woman. Miessner, 78 W. 48th St. Bryant 3964.

FRENCH lessons, conversation, grammar, literature, by young Parisian lady. Susquehanna 2446.

SPECIAL

SPRING NATURE STUDY GROUPS
For children, ages 8 to 12 and 5 to 7. Conducted by a teacher at the Ethical Culture School and the American Museum of Natural History. Address Mary Greig, 523 West 121st St., New York City. Phone Cathedral 0340, evenings.

McDOWELL SCHOOL DESIGNING and MILLINERY
Dressmaking, Draping, Patternmaking Thoroughly Taught. Individual Instruction Day, Evening. Est. 1876. Visitors Welcome. 71 West 45th St. Bryant 3085.

Drama Appreciation Classes for those who enjoy reading aloud; members prepare poetry and drama recitals, story telling. Tuesday at 2 and 8. JANE MANNER, 60 W. 68 St. Endicott 8460.

PUBLIC SPEAKING
English for Native and Foreign Born. Walter O. Robinson, Carnegie Hall. Circle 4252.

ENGINEER teaches arithmetic, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, calculus, physics, drafting, surveying, prepares colleges, Cooper Union, aviation. Mondell, 1440 Broadway.

THREE ARTS REPERTORY PLAYERS, 1,658 Broadway—Training; weekly performances; engagements; free trial; also Catskills Summer camp theatre school.

School of Good Speech
164 West 86th St. Susquehanna 6398

LESSONS in Auction and Contract. I make a specialty of Beginners and inexperienced players. Muriel Parker Studios. Circle 5813.

WOMAN TEACHER with 20 years' experience; sightless people taught to read raised print; private lessons. Tel. Sterling 5473.

INSTRUCTRESS, teach backward, subnormal children; enroll, new class; reasonable. P 278 Times.

THE Speaking Voice, advanced diction, conversation; private, professional woman. P 277 Times.

EDUCATIONAL

PREPARATORY

RHODES-UNIVERSITY Preparatory SCHOOL
8-14 WEST 125 STREET. Tel. HARLEM 3090-6817
A consolidation of Rhodes School and The University Preparatory School
REGISTERED BY N. Y. BOARD OF REGENTS
Regents College Entrance Commercial
The leading preparatory school, offering thorough time-conserving preparation for all colleges, professional schools, and business.
Day & Evening Sessions
Catalogue upon request

ERON Preparatory School
Chartered by N. Y. Board of Regents. Regents examinations given in the school.
Prepares for all Academic and Professional Colleges
Special Department for Secretarial Courses, Comptometry and Electric Bookkeeping. Day, Evening. Co-ed.
ENROLL NOW FOR NEW TERM.
853 B'way Union Square, Cor. 14th St. New York City
Stuyvesant 2587 Est. 1901

TUTOR—Experienced teacher, college graduate; grammar and high school subjects, languages. Successful with problem children. Endicott 4770. Rudolf Steiner School, 20 W. 73d.

GRAMMAR, Arithmetic, Spelling, Pronunciation, Punctuation, Correspondence, History, Literature, Latin. (Neglected Education Specialty.) Private, 1 West 34th, Suite 710.

COLLEGE entrance; English, mathematics, physics, history, languages; individual tutoring; retarded students rapidly advanced. Heidemann-Bryan's, 105 West 94th.

PRIVATE LESSONS, all high school subjects; tutor, gentleman, 15 years' experience; specialist neglected education; reasonable. A 187 Times.

MATHEMATICS TUTOR (male)—I prepare you for technical school, college; formerly mathematics instructor Columbia University. H 454 Times.

EXPERIENCED teacher, lady, tutors adults and children in English, reading, spelling, writing and grammar. Cathedral 7380.

SUMMER CAMPS

BOYS AND GIRLS EUROPEAN CAMPS
Two Months, with Trans.—$390
L. Forsyth Coffey N. Y. Representative Phone Circle 8100
P 283 TIMES.

BUSINESS

Staff Auditing—in this highly specialized and technical division of the modern organization many thousands of accountants find interesting and profitable employment. Every merger of local business enterprises creates new staff auditing positions to be filled. In every part of this country, and in many foreign lands, oil, transportation, manufacturing, chain-store, utility and other organizations verify the records and transactions of local branches and units by staff auditors.
"Prepare at Pace" for the responsible duties of the staff auditor, for technical usefulness, for earning ability. Meet in intimate contact, in limited class groups, instructors experienced in the practical application of the subjects they teach. Convert overtime into technical organization ability. Day or evening classes in Accountancy and Business Administration begin as follows:
Day School: Monday, Feb. 17, at 9:30 A. M.
Evening School: Monday, Feb. 17, at 8 P. M.
Monday, Mar. 10, at 6 P. M.
Apply for details of classes (day or evening) to the Registrar. Telephone Barclay 8200. Pace Institute, 225 Broadway, New York.

MOON'S SCHOOL PRIVATE SECRETARIAL AND FINISHING COURSES
The private secretary is a highly paid confidential executive. Our course of intensive training in secretarial duties, tactful correspondence, stenography, accounts and banking assures you of an excellent position through our placement bureau upon graduation. Special courses for one month and three months' duration. Catalogues and illustrative lessons on request.
521 FIFTH AVENUE AT 43d ST.
NEW YORK—Phone Vanderbilt 3896

WARNER SCHOOL Y. W. C. A. 124th St. & Lenox Ave.
SHORTHAND TYPEWRITING
ENGLISH FRENCH
BEAUTY CULTURE COSTUME DESIGN
INTERIOR DECORATION BRIDGE
PLEASING SPEECH PERSONALITY
MUSIC ARTS AND CRAFTS
Other Cultural and Business Courses
Call or Write for Catalog T
Y.W.C.A., 124th St. & Lenox Av., N.Y.C.
HARLEM 2000

PACKARD SCHOOL 72ND YEAR
SECRETARIAL COURSE, modern, complete. GENERAL BUSINESS COURSE, banking and marketing. Accounting, Business Administration, Shorthand, Typewriting. Write for booklet or phone Caledonia 7139. Day and Evening Sessions. Enter any Monday. 261 Lexington Ave., at 35th St., N. Y. C.

Bookkeeping
Course Conducted by Public Accountants, Evenings. Will equip you with necessary knowledge to accept position as bookkeeper.
Class forming . . . OPEN TO ALL.
Call or write for Booklet "99"
K. of C. School, 799-7th Ave. (52nd St.)

COLLEGIATE SECRETARIAL INSTITUTE
Individual Instruction in All Business Subjects. Day and Evening. Special Courses for College and High School Graduates. Personal application. No solicitors. Positions secured.
S. E. Brown, Prin., 41 E. 42d St. Mur. Hill 7510

SHORTHAND ACCOUNTING-SECRETARIAL COURSE
Day and evening sessions now organizing
Established 1894
MILLER SCHOOL
Broadway at 112th Street

FILING & INDEXING
We want girls to fill positions after a three to four week course. Day or evening classes. Call or write
NEW YORK SCHOOL OF FILING
19 West 44th Street

Modern Machine Methods Remington-Dalton
ADDING - CALCULATING BILLING - BOOKKEEPING ACCOUNTING
Complete Courses—Electric Machines
Day and Evening Classes. Nominal Fee
REMINGTON RAND BUSINESS SERVICE, INC.
Room 723 205 East 42nd Street

Secretarial Classes at Pace Institute—evening classes begin as follows:
Beginners February 19, at 6 P. M.
Second Semester March 4, at 6 P. M.
Advanced Secretarial Duties February 18, at 6 P. M.
Immediate registration is advised. Detailed information is available on request. Call, write, or telephone Barclay 8200. Pace Institute, 225 Broadway, New York.

WOOD'S SCHOOL Fifth Ave. and 125th St.
Business—Secretarial—Stenographic
Enter Any Time
Day and Evening Classes
A Good Position for Every Graduate

BROWN SCHOOL of COMMERCE
Secretarial, Stenographic, Bookkeeping. Individual Tutoring. Graduates placed. Begin any time.
Special department for adults.
Write for Catalog or Phone Bryant 0786.
25 West 45th St., New York City.

PRATT SCHOOL
BUSINESS and SECRETARIAL TRAINING, 62 West 45th St. VAND. 0896
INDIVIDUAL INSTRUCTION. DAY AND EVENING. REFERENCES REQUIRED. STUDENTS UNDER SIXTEEN NOT ADMITTED.

UNITED STATES Secretarial School
527 Fifth Avenue, N. Y. City
Secretarial and Business Training
Day and Evening Sessions. Enroll Now.
Send for Catalog T. Vanderbilt 2474

Merchants and Bankers'
Business and Secretarial Schools
Day—Evening. S. C. Estey, Director.
122 East 42d St., Chanin Bldg. Lex. 2486.
St. Nicholas Ave. at 181st St. Wads. 9719.

WALWORTH INSTITUTE 1860 Broadway
Oldest Shorthand and Secretarial School.
Thorough Individual Instruction.

ART

Interior Decoration
ACTUAL PROFESSIONAL TRAINING
Practical Course—Four-Month Term
Classes Day—Evening. Home Study Classes
Send for booklet: "What a Decorator Should Know"
WINTER INSTITUTE DECORATIVE ARTS & TECHNOLOGY
Est 1916 261 West 70th St.
(Formerly New York Professional School of Interior Decoration)

Fashion Art—Costume Design
For trade, screen and stage. Individual instruction. Direction of EMIL ALVIN HARTMAN, America's foremost instructor of design. Catalog on request. 16 East 52nd St., Fifth Ave., New York City.
FASHION ACADEMY

ART instruction. Life drawing and painting. Evenings, Saturday, Sunday afternoons. Art Studio, 25 East 14th St. Algonquin 2412.

VOCATIONAL

How you can earn more money
LEARN ELECTRICITY
Big demand for our graduates. Big pay for experts in Automobile, Airplane, Motorboat, Electricity. Act today and start your professional career in this important field. Call, telephone or write for free catalog.
THE NEW YORK ELECTRICAL SCHOOL
32 West 17th St., New York City
Chelsea 2633

DANCING

De Revuelt 11 West 86th St. Schuyler 9631
Specialize Exhibition Dancing, Ballroom for Professionals to dance and teach correctly; also acrobatic adagio; Classes or Private Instruction.

ARTHUR MURRAY
America's finest teachers of ballroom dancing. Private lessons exclusively. Free dancing analysis. Special rates now. 7 E. 43d St.

MARJORIE TOWNSEND—Individual instruction modern ballroom dancing. 46 West 54th. Circle 1044.

MILDRED MATHEWS, perfect ballroom instruction; class dances. Trafalgar 3196. 144 West 72d.

BETTY LEE STUDIO—Beginners' specialists; Arthur Murray method. 7 E. 43d St.

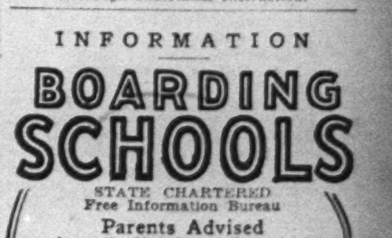
SWIMMING

SWIM-EXERCISE.
Luxurious Pool—Scientific instruction.
MARY BEATON, R. L. S. E.
The Barbizon, 140 East 63rd St.
Send for Booklet S. Regent 7794

LEARN TO SWIM.
Individual Instruction.
Call or write for Booklet T.
DALTON SWIMMING SCHOOL,
19 West 44th St. (31st year) New York City

INFORMATION

BOARDING SCHOOLS
STATE CHARTERED
Free Information Bureau
Parents Advised by authorized School Inspectors
Call, or write, for free Catalogs of both Endowed and Private Schools:—
AMERICAN SCHOOLS ASS'N
1212 Times Bldg., Times Sq., 42 St.
Phone Bryant 1141
24th Year



PRIVATE SCHOOL INFORMATION
DAY and BOARDING
CONSULT STAFF REGISTERED BUREAU MAINTAINED BY PRIVATE SCHOOLS, ALSO SUMMER CAMPS for supplying FREE authentic advice and catalogs. Call or write, giving approximate price, location and course desired. All information FREE.
NATIONAL BUREAU OF PRIVATE SCHOOLS
522 Fifth Avenue, Dept. C, New York. Murray Hill 8422

STATE CHARTERED EDUCATIONAL ADVISERS, 23 years. American Schools, 1213 Times Bldg., 42d St. Tel. Bryant 1141.

OTHER EDUCATION ADVERTISING MAGAZINE SECTION PAGE 22

RUSSIANS TALK WAR TO SPUR RED DRIVES

Vice Commissar Unshlikt Says Industries Must Serve a Double Purpose.

RYKOF SEES FOREIGN FEAR

Premier Says Soviet's Anti-Religious Campaign Is Being Exploited in Other Countries.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Feb. 13.—A significant event this week was the opening of the congress of the official League for Aviation and Chemical Research in the Grand Opera House, which was crowded to the doors by 2,000 delegates, nearly all young militants.

Such a congress at this moment will, it is hoped, show the foreign statesmen who are attempting to settle their rivalries in London in order, it is assumed here, to have their hands free to strangle the Soviets that the Soviet Union also is ready for war. This league, with its 5,000,000 members, of whom every serious industrial worker and Soviet scientist is expected to be one, is the Red Army's puissant ally in preparing for a "counter-attack."

The league has presented hundreds of planes and scores of tanks to that army as well as initiating millions of workers into the secrets of anti-gas warfare and teaching them to fight and shoot straight.

Calls for Wide Organization.

None the less, I. S. Unshlikt, Vice Commissar for War and the Red Army's best organizer, in his address told the league that it was not yet organized enough.

"We have got to give military training to every one of our young Communists," he said. "They have got to be militarized 100 per cent. Furthermore, we must teach soldiering to all volunteers who have tried to join the Red Army and also to the millions of women workers."

The league, he said, must be a living organism for supplying officers for the army. Emphasizing the rôle the league is expected to play in stimulating war industries, the Vice Commissar brought out the full importance of the five years' industrialization plan as a measure of national defense.

"We need," he explained, "1,000 tanks, and the problem of tank construction is closely linked to the problem of tractor construction. [It will be recalled that a giant tractor plant at Stalingrad has just been completed under American direction, and also that a second great plant has been begun under American supervision at Cheliabinsk.] This link is enormously important for our fighting capacity. The Red Army must be supplied with enough tractors to take the field.

"Moreover, in this age the mechanized military transport and the automobile daily grow more important for the national defense. The Red Army must have an adequate supply of cars for war." (The Nijni Novgorod automobile plant is being pushed ahead fast.)

Turning to the chemical side of this league's industrial activities, M. Unshlikt declared:

"Without nitrogen we cannot make war. It is necessary to press the production of nitrogen fertilizers, for which a powerful group of plants must be built. Again, the aniline industry is a foundation for a number of chemical war industries. Special attention must be given to producing sulphur, arsenic, chlorine and coal tar products."

Finally, M. Unshlikt brought out the military importance of collectivized farming under the new centralized management.

"Now," he said, "owing to the collectivization of our villages, we in our league will be able to train each collective as a military unit.

"We must not for a single moment neglect to mobilize mass attention on our major problem—the preparation of the masses to counter-attack the international capitalists' armed attack upon us."

Rykof Talks of Attack.

Premier Rykof the next day, in emphasizing that the five-year plan for collectivized farming would be realized in three years, further stressed foreign agitation for a combined armed attack on the Soviet, asserting that for this purpose foreigners were exploiting the Soviet's anti-religious policy and were fanning up fear of the Soviet's industrial exports.

The Soviet is exporting everything from mineral water to silk stockings, that frustrated dream of all Russian women, including women Communists. The government is collecting, with the Ogpu (Russian State police) helping to direct the operations, all sorts of "useful rubbish" for export or to cut down on imports, such as raw rubber. It is proposed to refuse to sell any one a pair of rubber overshoes unless he hands in his old pair. Actually 5-ruble ($2.50) bonds, to run ten years and purchasable with "useful rubbish," have been floated.

In every Russian family there is a big, untidy coffer called a "sunduk," in which old clothes, trinkets and the like are stored. It is proposed to take a levy on these sunduks. This has been done already in cases where valuables or little reserves of clothes are suspected. From Gomel, a White Russian district, one hears of Red caravans of militant women collecting "colored metal scrap," chiefly gilt metal objects of devotion, as well as earrings, rings and old coins. The collections are said to have assumed a mass character.

But the finest "bag" for hunters of useful rubbish is certainly the great bells of St. Isaak's Cathedral in Leningrad, built by Peter the Great. They will be handed over to the metal industry after their sounds, famous for their beauty, have been recorded in a sound film in one final clanging by their veteran ringers. They are doomed then to the melting pot.

"Judas" Latest Anti-Religious Film.

There is much clanging of monastery bells in "Judas," the latest anti-religious movie. Films of this kind are usually trite and dreary in the extreme, but this one, although its plot is banal enough, is a masterpiece of good photography, with beautiful plastic effects. There is humor in it, and although it involves an incident of the civil war there is less mass murder than one usually has to put up with in these propaganda pictures.

Judas is a simple-minded holy man preaching non-resistance, which results, of course, in a temporary triumph for the Whites, with some slaughter of the rising peasants. From the doctrinal viewpoint, such an object lesson on the dangers of "pacifism" is excellent, but unfortunately this movie falls into heresy in another way—the holy man indignantly exclaims to critics that he ought to have been portrayed as a treacherous crook deliberately betraying the peasants into the hands of their class enemies.

Two Greek Farmers Murdered For "Cheating" Robber Band

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Feb. 1.—Despite the price of $40,000 put on his head by the Greek Government, the robber-Captain Gyagyas not only manages to escape justice but administers it on his own account. With two comrades he made a raid a few days ago on the village inn at Drapha, where two wealthy farmers were sitting at supper. The farmers who under compulsion had several times sold fodder to the bandits, were taken into the woods, bound to trees and shot.

When the police discovered them they found a placard above their bodies inscribed: "The Justice of the Bandits. These two dead men constantly cheated us robbers, especially our two comrades, Babanis and Jangulis. Let no one hope to escape our vengeance."

Police investigation showed that the dead men had refused free board and lodging to some of the bandits.

BANDIT GANGS RAVAGE CHINESE PROVINCES

Towns Raided and Looted, and Atrocities Committed—Army to Hunt Marauders.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 17.—While it has become an accepted commonplace to hear of large towns and even cities in the interior provinces being raided by bandit gangs, lawlessness is becoming so general that within the last three weeks there have been half a score of such cases in the provinces around the mouth of the Yangtse River and within short distances of Shanghai and Nanking.

Most shocking of all recent bandit raids was the double pillaging and ultimate ruin of the prosperous city of Liyang, on Taihu Lake, only forty-five miles south of an important town on the Shanghai-Nanking Railway.

Twice before within the last three years bandits have raided Liyang, but this time the gang was more than 3,000 strong and got away with loot valued at $3,000,000, besides killing more than 350 men, women and children and destroying $10,000,000 worth of property by incendiary fires.

The bandits captured this walled city by a ruse. About 500 of them, disguised as farmers, entered the city by twos and threes and went to small inns. Late at night these conspirators gathered, overpowered the guards, opened the city gates and let their fellows in. Telegraphic appeals were sent to Nanking, troops arrived and drove out the bandits and two days later the bandits returned, drove out the troops and finished their work of murder, rapine, looting and incendiarism. More than two score of the gentry were finally taken away to be held for ransom.

Another raid has ruined the city of Wutsun, on the Chekiang-Kiangsu border. This bandit gang, about 500 strong, obtained more than $500,000 in loot, killed seven men, wounded ten others, carried off four for ransom and attacked the women and girls of Wutsun with great savagery.

The people of this district, which is threaded with canals, are now trying to raise money for a shallow-draft gunboat which will be equipped with machine guns and serve as protection from bandit raids.

Several cities along the border of Kiangsi and Fukien provinces have also suffered bandit raids with all the usual accompanying horrors and atrocities. Waman, Taiho, Yungsin, Lienwha and Ningkang have been looted within the last six weeks. At Ningkang the bandits killed the chief magistrate by pouring boiling water over him while he lay bound hand and foot in the street.

Belated tidings from Lo-Chi, in southern Kiangsu province, tell of a raid perpetrated on Christmas Eve. These 200 raiders professed to be Communists. They did not rob the poor, but took even the clothing of the rich.

Three days later the same gang raided Wu-Tzen, killed two policemen, took loot worth about $200,000 and carried away three leading citizens to be held for ransom. Other towns in this same district which have suffered bandit raids are Hsio-Fong, Changchow and Nyi-Hsing.

Nearly every province in China is terrorized in one or more districts by bandits, but the evil is particularly acute in the provinces directly controlled by the Nanking Government.

PORTO RICO MOVES FOR TOURIST TRADE

Business Men Awake to the Fact That the Island Has Lost Through Lack of Effort.

STUDENTS ACT AS GUIDES

They Report Amusing Questions Due to Visitors' Slight Knowledge of Conditions.

By HARWOOD HULL.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Feb. 10.—Porto Rico is commencing to show signs of tourist consciousness. Repeated newspaper stories of thousands of persons going to Florida and Cuba when only tens and dozens come to Porto Rico have resulted in business men and others asking themselves why this should be. It is quite generally agreed that the answer is that the island has made no special effort either to attract visitors or to entertain them when they do come.

Some one has taken the trouble to figure out that of some forty steamships making cruises through the West Indies this Winter only one-third are scheduled to stop at San Juan. This, of course, does not include the steamers with regular sailings out of New York for Porto Rico. Probably the fact that the number of cruises through the West Indies out of New York has been ascertained is best evidence of increasing interest in the island's neglected tourist possibilities. And after years of apparent indifference there are increasing indications that self-interest alone demands that an effort be made to do something for the casual tourist once he is here.

Student Guides Recruited.

For the first time so far as any one can recall an effort is being made to provide guides for tourists who come ashore from the cruise ships. Generally, they are here only a few hours, and in the past many of them were permitted to wander about through San Juan seeing what they could, but knowing little or nothing about what they saw. Many of them found themselves handicapped by not knowing Spanish. They could not even ask directions to a given place without some difficulty unless they happened to inquire of some one who spoke English. Those who were fortunate enough to be met by friends, or those who came with letters of introduction, usually have left with delightful memories of the generosity of Porto Rican hospitality. Recently, students from the University of Porto Rico have been recruited for guides, and the plan seems to be working well.

At first, however, the student guides did not do so well about fees. No announcement had been made to the tourists that the fee for the guide was not included in the lump-sum paid to the steamship line for the shore excursion. Some of the guides, therefore, received nothing for their day's work, and they returned to the university with somewhat altered ideas of the reputed spendthrift habits of traveling Americans. One junior in the law school garnered the total of 10 pennies for his day's work. Of the students who worked as guides for tourists on the first cruise ship no one could be found who had earned as much as $1. When the next ship arrived, proper announcement was made regarding the guides, and they fared better.

In addition, Boy Scouts have been asked to help out, but here as elsewhere the Scouts are not permitted to accept tips or fees. Mostly the Scouts make themselves useful in directing strangers to some one definite place and of course they cannot be on the job on school days.

Little Known About Island.

Quite unconsciously many of the visitors have shown a lack of information about Porto Rico that has surprised many of the student guides. As the guides relate it, the tourists show varying degrees of interest in the old Spanish fortifications and the remaining sections of the old walled city. Usually they are interested in La Fortaleza, the Governor's palace and the old churches. Apparently every one wants to see the monument to Ponce de Leon, in the cathedral, the oldest church under the American flag. But despite all they may be shown, whether in San Juan or in near-by towns quickly accessible by motor, there is frequently something, or several things the average visitor thinks he is missing.

After a party of four had made a hurried trip through San Juan and motored about seventy-five miles and had seen all there was to be seen quickly and within the time they had ashore, there were still points they thought they would like to cover. One suggested he would like to see the President of Porto Rico.

"I'm sorry, but he isn't here now," the student guide replied.

"Where is he?"

"He's in Washington."

"That so. What's his name?"

"Herbert Hoover."

"Another wanted to see a "savage" village, and was not wholly assured when told there were no villages more savage than those he had seen. Still another felt the urge to see some real natives, if it could be done before the last launch left for the ship.

"Well," said the young student, "I've been with you all day. I'm one."

"But you speak English as well as I do," was the response as the tourist stepped aboard the launch still somewhat credulous.

DENY POLAND SEEKS MILITARY ALLIANCE

By JERZY SZAPIRO.

Continued from Page 1, Column 4.

Baltic friends into any defensive scheme. Their military forces, the article adds, are too small to be taken into account, but their neutrality is important as regards Poland's contacts with the outer world by reason of their ports. Poland's policy is not one of cheap altruism but of practical interests.

Observers here agree Czas hits the nail on the head. Poland, they say, wants peace for herself and in no event does she want the Baltic States to be involved in any adventurous enterprise. When the Soviet invited Poland to sign the protocol for the immediate enforcement of the Kellogg pact the Poles proposed the Baltic States should also sign the protocol. In fact, no treaties bind Poland and Estonia and the other Baltic States except treaties of arbitration and the Moscow protocol to the Kellogg pact, besides, of course, the League of Nations covenant. No written undertakings, it is held, are needed among friends.

Post Activities Expand.

Dr. Strandman's visit coincided with the tenth anniversary of Poland's regaining access to the Baltic Sea. On Feb. 9, 1920, soon after the Versailles treaty ratification, the Poles again received such access after 150 years. In the ten-year period wonders have been performed. The old Hanseatic Danzig has regained its importance as a great seaport serving the Polish hinterland, and the new port of Gdynia has risen near by to cope with the increasing traffic.

A new mercantile marine under the Polish flag has appeared in the Baltic.

It started in 1921 with five old ships totaling 4,000 tons. Five years later the State-owned company acquired five 3,000-ton vessels and today thirty-four steamers fly Poland's flag. Several foreign companies, among them the American Scantic Line, run direct service to Gdynia.

At Gdynia is stationed the Polish navy consisting of five small torpedo boats and several smaller vessels, totaling about 5,000 tons. Two destroyers and three large submarines have been ordered from France to complete the not too ambitious Polish naval program.

Charm that lasts

Soft, dainty skin and beautiful, lustrous hair—the basis of woman's charm—can be made to last! Simply by using CUTICURA SOAP regularly, and CUTICURA OINTMENT occasionally.

The Soap is cleansing and soothing, and leaves a delightful after-fragrance; the OINTment is antiseptic and healing, restoring skin and scalp to natural health.

Cuticura Soap 25c. Ointment 25c. and 50c. Talcum 25c. Proprietors: Potter Drug & Chemical Corporation, Malden, Mass.

SOVIET UNION SEAMEN COMPLAIN AT MEETING

Delegates to National Convention Tell of Bad Working and Living Conditions on Shipboard.

Although the membership of the Russian Seamen's Union has risen by 20,000 during the last couple of years, and has reached 190,000, according to a report presented to the ninth convention of the organization, held recently in Moscow, by President Bystrof, and its financial position is improving, working conditions in the vessels of the Soviet Union leave much to be desired.

Many of the delegates, as reported in Transportnaya Gazeta, the official organ of the Commissariat of Transport, asserted that the seamen were compelled to work under appalling conditions, that the technical protective equipment was inadequate, that accommodations on shipboard were very bad, and that the government's ocean and river transportation enterprises did not have enough money to make things much better.

It was also pointed out that the great difference between the wages paid in the different undertakings and the fact that a qualified engineer received 350 rubles a month (about $175) on the railways, against only 225 in the mercantile marine, was the cause of a rapid labor turnover detrimental to the service. The engine room staffs were reported as agitating for an increase of wages. At present stokers and mechanics were receiving the same wages as deck hands, and this seemed to them unfair in view of the much more trying nature of their work. The result of the reform of wage scales had been to reduce the wages of the lower paid groups and had given rise to intense dissatisfaction. Many delegates stated that the real value of wages had declined by reason of the increase in the cost of living. N. A. Uglanof, Commissar for Labor, declared in his address to the congress that the principal task of the Commissariat of Labor was to maintain the real value of wages at the present level. Uglanof considered that the trade unions should make a resolute attack on the question of the cost of living. Unless retail prices fell the real value of wages would be endangered.

Deputy Commissar of Transport Poluyan advised the union to devote great attention to the improvement of labor discipline in sea and river transport undertakings. At present there were numerous cases of accidents and of serious damage, and, whatever might be said to the contrary, the Commissariat of Transport was of the opinion that these were less often the result of criminal actions than of culpable negligence and want of discipline. Sea and river transport undertakings were in general in a very difficult position, since they had not the necessary funds to increase the number of their vessels, and at the same time the competition of the railways prevented river transport from making sufficiently rapid progress. At the present time the tonnage transported by river was only 81 per cent of the net tonnage so transported in 1913. For maritime transport the proportion was only 55 per cent.

M. Melnitchansky, member of the General Council of Trade Unions, strongly criticized the work of the retiring executive committee of the Seamen's Union, especially that of President Bystrof, whom he accused of failing to follow the instructions of the Communist party and of sympathizing with the right-wing Opposition. After the address of Melnitchansky all the delegates who took part in the discussion made serious charges against the committee. Among other things it was accused of timidity, weakness toward the local trade union organizations, &c. Bystrof replied that 95 per cent of the charges against the retiring committee were based only on false or misleading information, and in addition that neither he nor his colleagues of the retiring committee would have been exposed to such violent and unjustified criticism had it not been for the intervention of the representative of the General Council of Trade Unions. The congress, however, decided on the proposal of Melnitchansky not to re-elect the retiring committee, and passed a vote of censure upon it. Bystrof was replaced by Borissof, a former worker and a member of the Communist party.

Einstein on Classifications.

According to a Jewish Telegraphic Agency dispatch of Dec. 3 from Berlin, German papers have featured a summary of the address made by Professor Albert Einstein when the Sorbonne recently conferred an honorary degree upon him. He is reported to have said: "If my theory of relativity is proven correct, Germany will claim me as a German and France will declare that I am a citizen of the world. Should my theory prove untrue, France will say that I am a German and Germany will declare that I am a Jew."

GREETING CARD AND STATIONERY MEN

One of the leading manufacturers of Greeting Cards is looking for a man as New York City representative. This opportunity will appeal to the best Greeting Card or Stationery salesman in New York City. The Vice President will interview applicants this week in New York City. Please give complete information about yourself in first letter and, if possible, enclose photograph, which will be returned. All letters held in strictest confidence. Liberal drawing account against commission. Sales representatives of this company have been informed of this ad. Address Y 2207 Times Annex.

ISLAND FOR SALE

Ten thousand acres off the Georgia coast. Deep water and heavily timbered. Ideal for hunting or fishing preserve, private estate or club. At the price offered of $125,000 an unusual investment opportunity is also afforded. Located across the sound from Jekyl Island. Also but few miles from beautiful Sea Island. One of the largest island properties with tremendous potential possibilities. Address Owner, G. F. S., 138 Marietta Street, Atlanta, Ga.

PHOTOGRAPHS COPIED—RENEWED ENLARGED—BY -Bachrach-

507 Fifth Avenue Vanderbilt 7400 and eight suburban studios

SOCIETY FOR ETHICAL CULTURE

Central Park West and 64th Street
Sunday, February 16

11 A. M., DR. FELIX ADLER
"The Greatness of Abraham Lincoln: In What Did It Consist?"

8 P. M., MR. ALFRED W. MARTIN
"Savonarola—The Jeremiah of the Renaissance"

Suicide Scared to Death In Act of Aiming Pistol

RIBNITZ, Mecklenburg (AP)—Arnold Seidler, a bookkeeper, melancholy because of the death of his wife, planned suicide in the forest here.

As he was aiming a pistol at his head he became so frightened at the sound of approaching footsteps that he dropped dead from heart failure.

AMERICANS NEED AID IN WORK OF MERCY

Group in Constantinople Strives to Save 1,200 White Russian Refugees From Starvation.

PITIFUL PROBLEM REVEALED

Almost Hopeless Situation Is Faced With Total Funds Reduced to a Few Dollars.

By LUCILLE SAUNDERS.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 19.—Faced with tremendous financial odds, a little group of Americans here is endeavoring to help the remaining White Russian refugees in Constantinople through one more hard Winter. International orphans, with few lands open for adoption, these people present an almost hopeless problem.

While the work of helping them came under the League of Nations, most of the money was furnished voluntarily from American contributions and was administered here by Miss Anna Mitchell and Miss Alma Ruggles, both of whom have returned to the United States to attempt to raise more subscriptions. Meanwhile just $1,000 remains here and another $500 in a New York bank.

By March 1, if no additional donations are forthcoming, the work must cease. After that no one can predict what is to become of the 1,200 refugees remaining here. Many are self-supporting and able to look out for themselves, but illness quickly reverses the situation.

Last week a Russian doctor died, a well-known heart specialist in his own country. He had given freely of his time and services to help less fortunate compatriots, but when he suddenly became ill himself his wife reluctantly asked if the American committee could arrange so that her husband might enter a hospital at the special reduced rate of $1.25 a day, because she was unable to pay more. He died there a few days later, virtually a charity case.

Every effort possible has been put forth to evacuate these refugees, who have repeatedly been warned to leave Turkey.

Nineteen Students Swell Colony.

Yesterday the already harassed workers were notified that nineteen Georgian students had been deported from Kars, where they had sought refuge. "You'll have to take care of them," the police informed the committee. All were willing to work, but no employment was available. Insufficient funds were on hand to send them to South America, and now, until a solution can be found, the committee has housed them in a ramshackle dwelling and given them 12½ cents apiece daily for food. They invest this sum in bread and cook a large kettle of soup.

Many of the refugees are ill and undernourished, which has worked against their ability to obtain evacuation papers. The committee has had to allow many special sums for milk, eggs and substantial soups so that they might pass medical examinations and obtain visas. Dr. Popoff, one of their number, is employed for $25 a month attending Russians in the hospitals and those who are ill at home. The Greek and Bulgarian hospitals allow the refugees special rates of 50 cents a day, but the food is not sufficient to hasten their recovery.

Another hindrance to obtaining papers for departure is non-payment of debts. No one with a debt may obtain these papers. Invariably such debts are mainly concerned with the government road tax, and when it is discovered that a refugee has not previously paid this assessment he is fined an additional 50 per cent of the amount.

No social service centre in a large city is furnished with more problems than the Russian relief office. It is difficult to refuse aid to any one, no matter how unworthy, for if the person falls ill or is locked in jail the cost to the committee is invariably more than the original sum requested. Anything that can be done to keep a Russian warm, clothed, fed and employed is more profitable.

Twenty-one desperate-looking Russian girls were jailed not long ago on charges of immorality.

"They are not our citizens," the officers announced. "You'll have to evacuate them."

Many refugees are so ill and old they are simply waiting here to die. But when they are gone it is the fund which pays the funeral bills, and invariably some other needy case rises to take the place of the one that has passed away.

Some Typical Cases.

Few stories duplicate each other. Yesterday was a fair sample of the business of the office. The niece of a lady-in-waiting of the late Czarina, member of a once-rich family, asked for a stove for her draughty room so that she might save a few pennies hitherto spent for oil. She exhibited her total capital in a little tin box—less than 5 cents. She really didn't know how to eat or keep warm that day. A Caucasian Prince, the father of her child, had deserted her and gone to Paris. The child had long since been given to Turks so that it might receive better care.

A pantomime actor wished $9 with which to buy a second-hand tuxedo so that he might accept employment in a restaurant. As proof of his ability to entertain, he drew from a patched overcoat pocket two wooden salad spoons and played jazz on them. He could earn a few pennies from day to day to buy bread, but he wished to go back to his old profession.

A pleasant-faced Russian carpenter, who had fallen from the second story of a building he was working on and spent forty days in the hospital with a broken leg and wrenched hip, asked $5 to redeem the coat of his Greek wife, so that she could go to work selling pastry.

Another had just arranged to get a visa and go to Serbia, when that country closed its doors to further Russian émigrés. The man worked in a restaurant, lost his job there and now wants the price of shoemaking tools so that he can return to his old trade.

Another with heart trouble sang in a restaurant until his health would no longer permit. He has two little children, too small to leave with a sick man while his wife seeks employment.

Two dollars a week is the most that can be given from the fund to any one person. Some clothes have also been purchased, for who can deny an overcoat to a man just out of the hospital?

Another Name for the Finest in Motor Cars:

PIERCE-ARROW

WHEN the first Pierce-Arrow was built, early in the century, it was the finest car of its day. Scores of other fine cars have since come and gone—and the finest car of its day is still Pierce-Arrow.

The Pierce-Arrow fame, however, was not earned cheaply. It was born of stern, uncompromising ideals. It has endured through reverence of fine tradition—and a determination to preserve always the patrician quality.

Does this sound idealistic? Then look at the rare hand-tailored fabrics—the specially created colorings—the exquisite appointments that are the newest expressions of Pierce-Arrow.

Compare the low-swung, slender grace of the new Pierce-Arrow models—and their luxurious loveliness of interior—with the richest foreign car ensemble you know.

Try the new Pierce-Arrow transmission, with its silent gear-shift, at any speed—and an intermediate with a capacity of 60 miles an hour, without the usual noise or vibration.

And understand finally why, beyond all its features, the greatest element in Pierce-Arrow is Pierce-Arrow—and why the name has long been synonymous with America's finest motor car.

In the purchase of a car from income, the average allowance on a good used car usually more than covers the initial Pierce-Arrow payment.

Three New Groups of Straight Eights

Group A: 132 Horsepower	144-inch Wheelbase	$3975 to $6250
Group B: 125 Horsepower	134 and 139-inch Wheelbase	$3125 to $3825
Group C: 115 Horsepower	132-inch Wheelbase	$2695 to $2875

(All Prices f. o. b. Buffalo)

All models have Silent Gear-shifts . Non-shatterable Glass . Hydraulic Shock Absorbers . Super-safety Brakes
Pierce-Arrow or Bracket Headlamps optional without extra charge. Pierce-Arrow Engineering and Coachwork throughout

PIERCE-ARROW SALES CORPORATION

Broadway at 57th St., New York
980 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn
Louis XIV Ballroom, Hotel Plaza, New York
2104 Grand Concourse, The Bronx

Larry Friedman, 843 Bushwick Ave., Brooklyn
Joseph Bayer Motor Sales, Long Island City, L. I.
Wilson Brothers Corp., Flushing, L. I.
Fausner Motor Car Co., Jamaica, L. I.
Frank Hauman, Bay Shore, L. I.
Drucker Motor Sales, Glen Cove, L. I.
LeFevre-Newins Corp., Rockville Centre, L. I.
John R. Swezey, Patchogue, L. I.
Fox Motor Service, Inc., Great Neck, L. I.
Becker & McKay Bros., Hempstead, L. I.
Hampton Garage & Supply Co., Inc., Southampton, L. I.
Walter H. Flessel, Huntington, L. I.
A. F. Allen Motor Car Corp., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.
H. Field Horne, Peekskill, N. Y.
Forsythe & Davis Motor Car Co., Inc., Kingston, N. Y.
Graney Motor Car Corp., Pearl River, N. Y.
McCall & Rizzute, Inc., Ossining, N. Y.
I. D. Vance, Middletown, N. Y.
Fleet Motor Car Corp., St. George, S. I.
Blake Motor Car Co., New Rochelle, N. Y.
Blake Motor Car Co., Port Chester, N. Y.
Lewa's Garage, Inc., Yonkers, N. Y.
White Plains Motor Service Co., Inc., White Plains, N. Y.
F. L. Mills Arrow Co., Bridgeport, Conn.
Tedesco & Wagner, Stamford, Conn.

WASHINGTON MOTOR CAR COMPANY
6-8 Elizabeth Avenue, Newark, N. J.
3923-25 Boulevard, North Bergen, N. J.

Ralph Atkins, Paterson, N. J.
H. Sherman Beatty, Inc., Hackensack, N. J.
H. Sherman Beatty, Englewood, N. J.
Wilcox Motors, Inc., Montclair, N. J.
Stuyvesant Motors, Inc., Elizabeth, N. J.
Stuyvesant Motors, Inc., Plainfield, N. J.
Johnston Motor Co., Morristown, N. J.
J. Arthur Applegate, New Brunswick, N. J.
J. Arthur Applegate, Perth Amboy, N. J.
J. Arthur Applegate, South River, N. J.
J. F. & M. M. Stein, Red Bank, N. J.
J. F. & M. M. Stein, Asbury Park, N. J.
Johnston, Inc., Trenton, N. J.

The New York Times
Book Review

Section 4

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1930. FORTY PAGES

(Copyright, 1930, by The New York Times Company.)

THE GUN THAT FIRED ON PARIS

After Twelve Years, Its Story Is Told for the First Time

THE PARIS GUN. By Henry W. Miller. 228 pp. New York: Jonathan Cape & Harrison Smith. $3.75.

By T. J. C. MARTYN

THE next war will be carried to the centres of civilization. ,The armies of the future will not be the fighting forces on the front line, but whole nations in arms in the cities and towns behind the lines. How often we have heard such prophecies! And yet, as this book reminds us, in the World War Paris was bombarded by long-range guns. It is a grim and fascinating story, here pieced together for the first time.

On March 20, 1918, this reviewer, after having said farewell to his commanding officer, who was leaving the squadron to become a Colonel, escorted in an airplane his car as far as Abbeville from Iselles-Hameaux, a few miles north of Amiens and directly to the rear of Arras. The return journey to the aerodrome remains an indelible memory. The sun was setting, a blood-red ball of fire, bathing the country below in a beautiful but ominous glow. The shades of night were marching from the east. With them came a low-lying, fleecy blanket of clouds, as if to shut out the horrors of war beneath from the peaceful aspect of nature above. Soon the stars began to twinkle in their firmament. All was quiet. On the ground there was a hush, as if expectant of an approaching storm. For hours all was quiet. At 4 o'clock in the morning the western front, amid crashing drumfire of mighty cannon, broke into a storm of blood and fire. The first German offensive had begun.

It is here that Colonel Miller's story starts. To the south, in the Bois de St. Gobain, near the village of Crépy-en-Laonnois, the finishing touches were being put to the most stupendous weapons of war that the world had yet seen—the German long-range guns, commonly called "Big Berthas." Two days later all was in readiness. The drumfire of the artillery was its mark.

At 7 o'clock on Monday morning the people of Paris were astir. The day was cloudless. At 7:20 something exploded violently on the Quai de Seine. An air bomb! This was nothing new for Paris. Planes had repeatedly bombed them, but not for years in the daytime. Why no alarm? Twenty minutes later another "bomb" exploded near the Gare de l'Est, close to a Métro entrance on the Boulevard de Strasbourg. Eight persons were killed, thirteen wounded. In all seven "bombs" exploded that day, but it was not until after the seventh had done its deadly work that the alarm was sounded and all Paris was thrown into confusion.

Long before this Paris officialdom was at work. Anti-aircraft observers scanned the skies vainly. Planes soared aloft to give battle to the enemy planes; there was none. Headquarters at the front were telephoned to ask why no alarm had been sent, as was usual, of the approach of aircraft. Observers at the front insisted that no aircraft had passed the lines. The artillery office got busy. Fragments of the "bombs" were analyzed. A most remarkable conclusion was arrived at: the grooves and copper bands showed the "bombs" to be projectiles fired from a gun! The suspicious French at first thought French guns had been trained on the capital. But for short-range shooting the aims were erratic, some of the shells falling almost five miles away from each other. The idea was dismissed.

The shells must have come from beyond the German lines. But how? The nearest point of the lines was more than seventy miles away. Absurd! No gun could fire even half of that distance, not even the huge 15-inch naval guns. The fragments were again examined. It was assumed to be a fairly light shell and the width of its grooves and the curious stepping of the shell aroused the conjecture that it had been fired from a high velocity gun having an extremely long bore. On the assumption that the shells had come from a German gun, the shots were plotted on a map of Paris. A straight line drawn between them led to the nearest point of the front lines. This led to the assumption that a gun was emplaced in the St. Gobain Wood. Aerial photographs were scanned and showed some fresh railroad spurs into the wood. That was enough. Heavy naval guns were ordered up to counter-attack.

For months the shells continued to rain on Paris. Sometimes there was an interval of a few days, once of a month. Many of the shells fell outside of the city, but many of them hit the target, some of them doing considerable damage. On Good Friday a shell hit the Church of St. Gervais.

The place was crowded [writes Colonel Miller]. It was just 4:30. Suddenly the hundreds of kneeling worshipers were startled by a terrific crash overhead, an explosion. A projectile had struck the roof. Those looking up quickly saw a stone pillar crumpling, beginning to fall. Then the stone vault supported by this pillar began to crack, crumple, and in a second scores of tons of stone, some blocks weighing a half ton, were pouring down upon the mass of people. To try to escape was futile. In a twinkling the cathedral resounded with the crashing of the roof, the impact of the masses of stone, the shrieks of the injured and dying. Those not caught in the fall made a rush for the doors, for blocks and fragments of stone continued to fall. The scene was indescribable. * * * Gradually the dead and dying were uncovered and, receiving the blessings of the Archbishop of Paris, were carried past the bowed onlookers. Pools of blood were everywhere, over the floor, the steps in front. Eighty-eight were dead, nineteen men, sixty-seven women, two children, and sixty-eight more were injured.

The German Long-range Gun.

The men on the German side responsible for this carnage were not thoughtful of it; as artillerists they were bent upon the performance of a gun which was to them a valuable and fascinating toy. If they thought of the suffering and damage their shells were causing in Paris, they thought of it in terms of moral effect, quite impersonally. At headquarters, when it was known that an immense public funeral was to be held for the victims of Good Friday's outrage, firing was ordered stopped. As a gesture it is unique.

Early in 1916 Dr. von Eberhardt presented theories and calculations showing that a gun of sixty miles range was possible. For once the military powers were enthusiastic and the building of the gun began. At the end of the year Ludendorff saw that a gun with a range of only sixty miles would be useless, and he telegraphed Krupps to increase the range of the gun to seventy-five miles. To the technicians he seemed to be ordering a miracle; but Krupps performed one for him. Three guns were ready in March, 1918.

The emplacements necessary were enormous, the steel carriage plates weighed hundreds of tons, the gun carriage hundreds of tons more, and the gun proper, as high as the average ten-story building, weighed almost 200 tons. A monster, indeed! Its shell, however, was relatively small, 264 pounds, of curious shape. The bore was but 8.26 inches, and—extraordinary feature—smooth; the shell turned itself. It had a range of seventy-five miles and its trajectory was twenty-four miles high! Five guns were used in this emplacement. Four of them rapidly wore themselves out, one exploded prematurely. The French began bombarding the gun position. Another site was chosen and rebored guns having a larger calibre went into action. Seven guns in all were made or rebored. When the last shot was fired in August a total of 367 had been fired at Paris.

The remarkable thing about the operation of the guns was the extraordinary precision of every detail, especially the calculations by the ballistics officer. Each gun had a pressure chamber, and, after the gun had fired, this officer read the pressure in the barrel and from it was able to compute, within a relatively few yards, where the shell had struck. If the pressure was high, the gun overshot; if it was low, the shells fell short. Each shell fired had a new position in the gun, each new position required a new calculation. There were three powder charges: a variable charge in a silk bag, a standard charge in a silk bag, and a huge cartridge charge for firing. Each shot required a different charge in the first silk bag and calculations had to be made of the temperature of the powder and of the gun. Even the curvature of the earth was figured.

This is the story which Colonel Miller tells in his book. It is told with a clarity and fidelity to detail which can be described only as enthralling. The excitement, the horror, the devastation in Paris; the excitement and tension and tragedy at the guns—all find a logical place in a narrative of great power and lucidity. The Paris gun—a collective name—caused more than 1,000,000 people to leave Paris and as many people ought to read about it, for it was one of the World War's most dramatic chapters.

Readers choose these SIMON and SCHUSTER books for high honors in 1930

TWELVE AGAINST THE GODS

The Story of Adventure by

WILLIAM BOLITHO

CONTROVERSY rages in critical camps about WILLIAM BOLITHO's "demoniacal dozen of society's pests and benefactors" . . . but merely as an expression of violent preferences for certain favorites portraits among the twelve . . . . ALEXANDER THE GREAT (The Adventure of Youth and How Philosophy Tamed It), or CASANOVA (He Who Went Furthest Into the Forbidden Country of Women), or ISADORA DUNCAN (The Dance of Life on a Tight Rope Strung Over Europe), or the glamorous chapter on WOODROW WILSON (Single Combat). All agree in hailing Twelve Against the Gods as rare and exciting reading . . . a book stamped on every page with the "endlessly amazing" personality of its author. From coast to coast, this story of the world's true adventurers is reflecting the growing interest of readers by appearing first on representative Best Seller lists of non-fiction.

Seldom has a new technique of story-telling received such immediate and rapturous praise. "Don't consider yourself really educated until you have read it," advises HEYWOOD BROUN. "Superb," says EDNA FERBER, while WILLIAM MCFEE writes, "Reading Twelve Against the Gods is a very thrilling experience!"

"All publishing activities might just as well cease for the rest of the season," says the Springfield Union, "for the most fascinating book of non-fiction of the year has made its appearance." And the Macon Telegraph exclaims, "Here, patently, is a man who knows everything!"

New York Herald Tribune
The Six Best Sellers
The following books are reported by Brentano as being most in demand during the past week:
NON-FICTION
TWELVE AGAINST THE GODS, by William Bolitho (Simon & Schuster). Biographical sketches of twelve notable adventurers, from Alexander the Great to Isadora Duncan.
PETER ARNO'S PARADE (Liveright). Bold and sharp satirical sketches of contemporary foibles.

First on General Literature Best Seller lists at Brentano's, Macy's, and leading bookstores throughout the country. Fourth large edition. $4.00

• • •

THE ANAGRAM BOOK

By SILAS F. SEADLER

The newest fad of the illuminati. With Venus Pencil. $1.35

• • •

CROSS-WORD PUZZLE BOOK

Series 14

Non-stop best-sellers: the first million copies were the hardest. With Venus Pencil. $1.35

(Series 15 is coming in March.)

• • •

BELIEVE IT OR NOT!

By ROBERT L. RIPLEY

Incredibly, irresistibly fascinating. Words and Pictures by "Curiosity's Passionate Henchman." Another non-stop best-seller. $2.50

"—& CO."

By JEAN-RICHARD BLOCH

Before its publication in America, this epic novel of an industrial family overwhelmed by business was greeted by ROMAIN ROLLAND, ARNOLD BENNETT, PAUL VALERY, PAUL CLAUDEL, VAN WYCK BROOKS, WALDO FRANK and other eminent men of letters as a novel in the grand tradition of classic French literature.

Now "—And Company" . . . which ROLLAND compared to BALZAC's Human Comedy for the power of its story and characterization . . . takes its place high in the esteem of American readers.

"—And Company" is a vast epic—one of the richest achievements in the history of literature."
—New York Herald-Tribune

February Choice of the Book League of America On fiction best-seller list. $3.00

• • •

THE ART OF THINKING

By Abbé ERNEST DIMNET

England, like America, is lavishing praise on this stimulating book which makes thinking a joy. Written by a Frenchman, The Art of Thinking has already earned a place in English letters as a key to all other books.

"A little masterpiece . . . a fascinating book which all who wish to get the best out of life will buy."
—North Mail and Newcastle Chronicle

Ranking First in Non-Fiction for the Entire Year 1929

130,000 copies sold in America $2.50

• • •

WOLF SOLENT

A Novel

By JOHN COWPER POWYS

The famous lecturer, critic and poet writes in Wolf Solent his first important novel, telling in a monumental narrative of great beauty of the loves and lusts of the Dorset countryfolk. After attaining both critical acclaim and immediate best-sellerdom, POWYS has reached the wide audience in America which his genius deserves.

" . . . POWYS has written himself into immortality with a classic."—TED SHANE in Judge.

2 volumes, boxed $5.00

• • •

THE MANSIONS OF PHILOSOPHY

By WILL DURANT

A companion volume to The Story of Philosophy, offering the more than one million men and women who found in that book an enjoyable illumination of the great philosophers WILL DURANT's own attempt at a consistent, modern philosophy of life.

"An even finer book than The Story of Philosophy."
—Philadelphia Public Ledger. $5.00

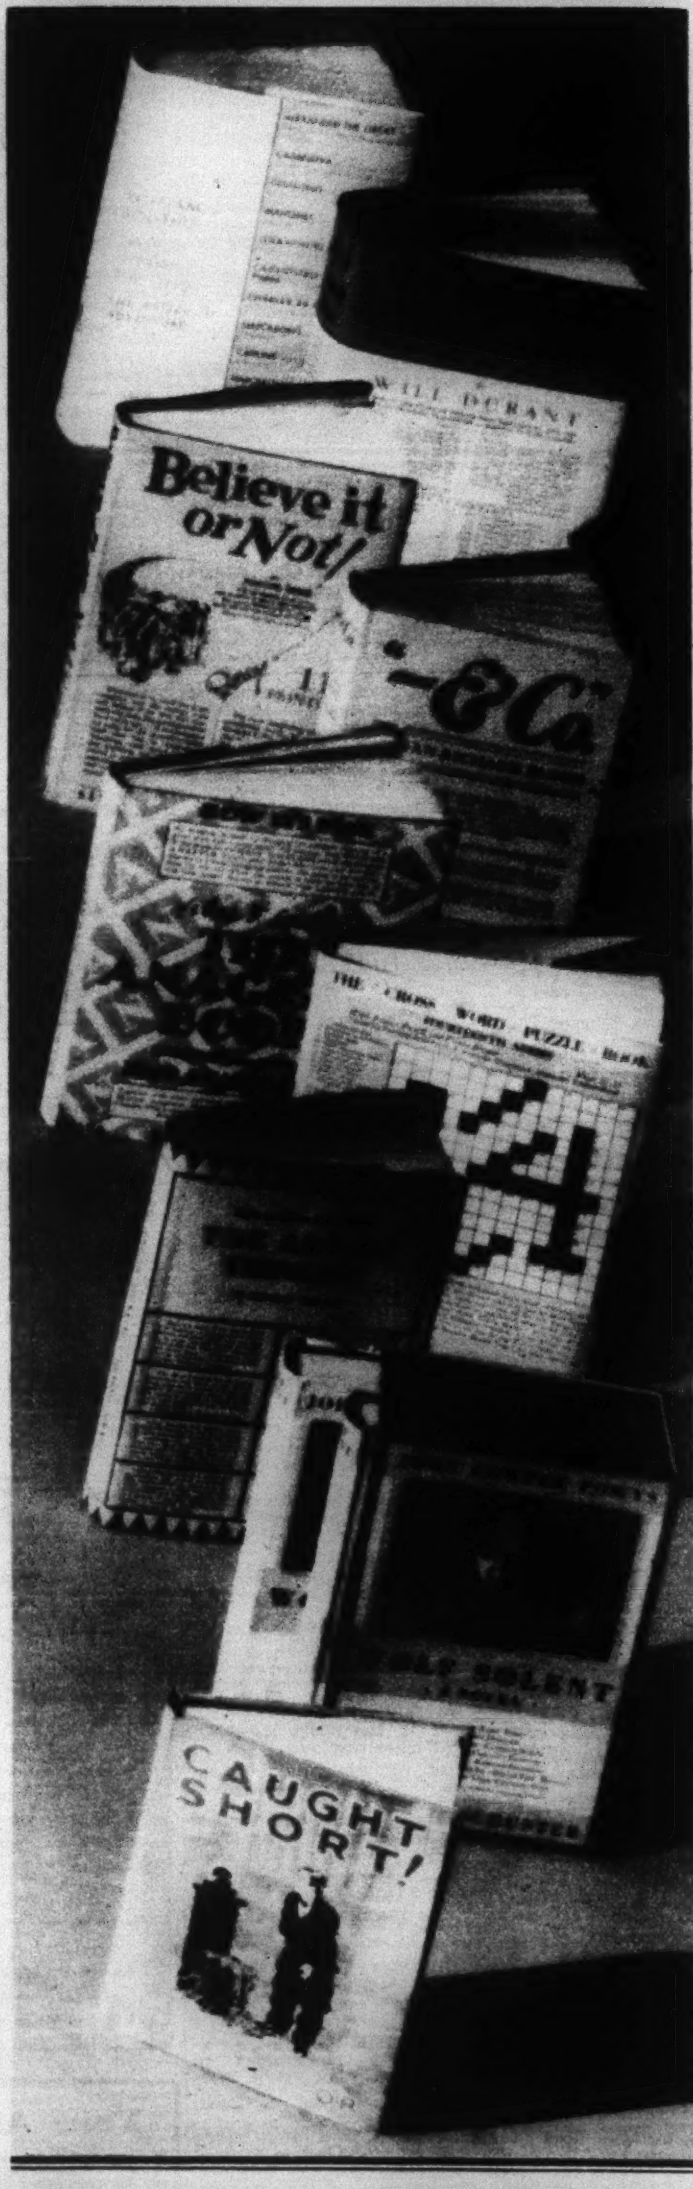
• • •

CAUGHT SHORT!

By EDDIE CANTOR

The latest volume to make havoc and whoopee with best-seller records: a saga of Wailing Wall Street by the Kuhn of Kuhn, Loeb and Co. $1.00



from THE INNER SANCTUM of

SIMON and SCHUSTER

Publishers · 37 West 57th Street · New York

Joaquin Miller, "A Western Understudy to Whitman"

Harr Wagner Writes the First Biography of the Picturesque "Poet of the Sierras"

JOAQUIN MILLER AND HIS OTHER SELF. By Harr Wagner. 312 pp. San Francisco: Harr Wagner Publishing Company.

By UFFINGTON VALENTINE

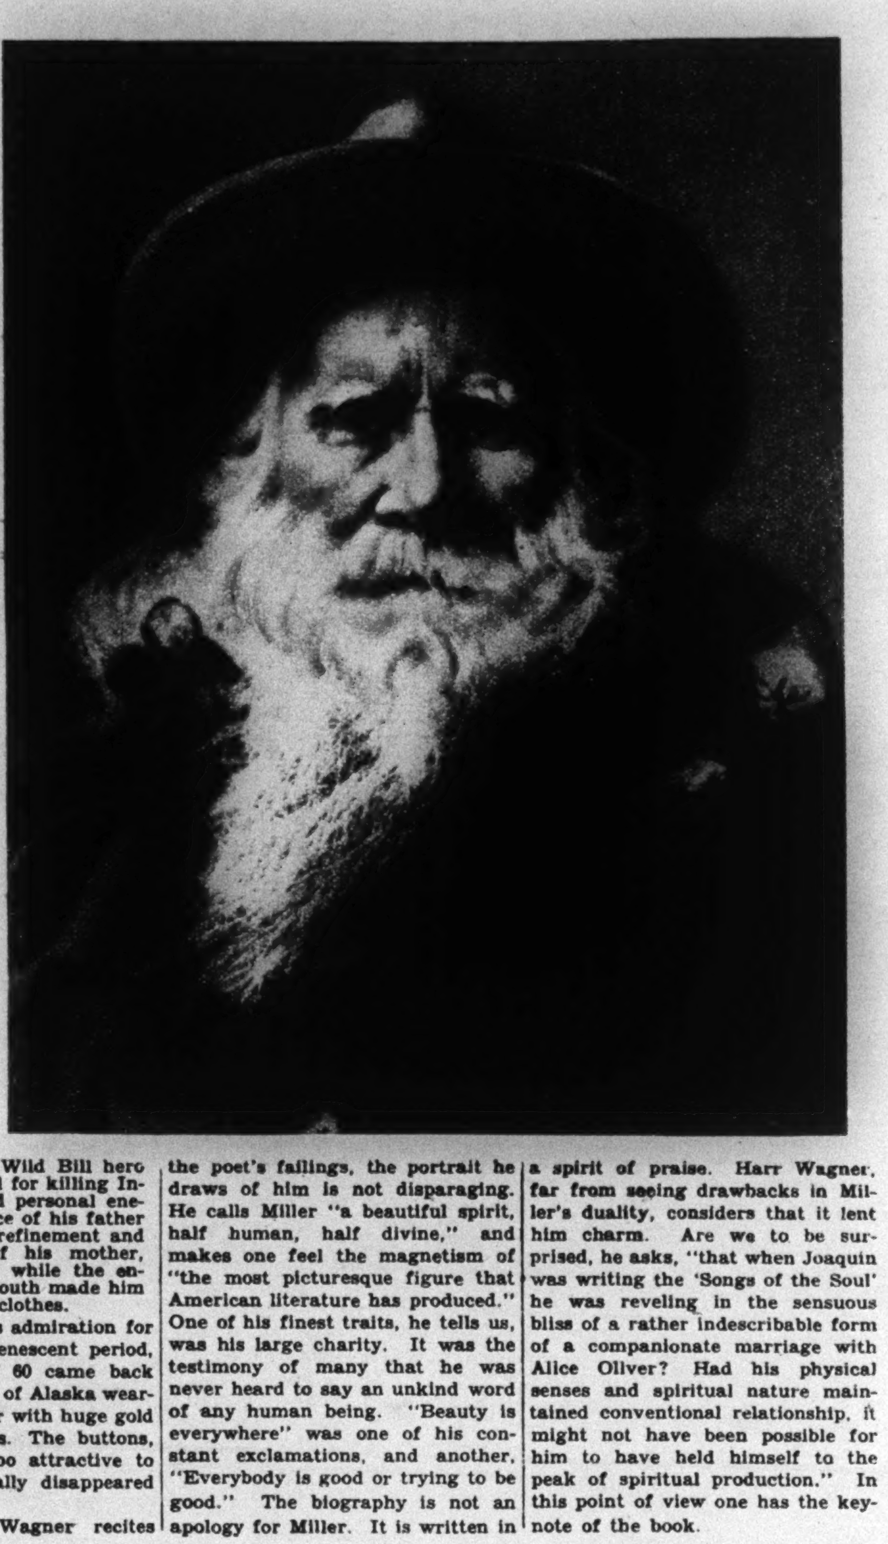
THE Hoosier-bred poet, Cincinnatus Miner Miller, or Joaquin Miller, as he renamed himself, may be called a Western understudy to Walt Whitman. There was a physical similarity in the two men, a common ruggedness of character; they had the same assertive ego and love of pose, and their verse expressed much the same sturdy kind of Americanism. The difference was in the mold of their ideas, in the quality of that spontaneity both largely possessed, in the force of the one and the lack of force in the other. It was the difference between what was genius and what was not—a difference that gives "Leaves of Grass" a permanent life and has relegated "Songs of the Sierras" and the rest of Miller's verse to the dust of oblivion except for a California public. Californians still peruse Miller and proclaim his greatness. But California has appropriated the Poet of the Sierras. It has for him the partiality of a State where, if poets are rarely born, many are made, and California did much toward the making of Miller. He sang its Sierras into world fame, and that alone gives his poetry its high place in Californians' regard.

Harr Wagner, whose provocatively entitled work is the first biography of Miller that has appeared, was an intimate friend of the poet. The intimacy has not, however, deterred him from dealing frankly with his subject, and there were some scandalous sides to Miller's life as well as much stirring adventure. The greater part of the adventure belonged to the poet's youth and has been set down by him in his "Unwritten History; or, Life Among the Medocs," the strict veracity of which is generally discredited. It records his experiences as a child in crossing the plains in a covered wagon with his family from his birthplace near Liberty, Ind., to Eugene, Ore., a ten years' journey; his life in the mining camps and among the Indians of Northern California; his trips to Mexico and Central America; his student days at Columbia College, Oregon; his school teaching and his souvenirs as a Pony Express rider. Harr Wagner, who gives the edited substance of these colorful episodes, states that Miller never dwelt among the Medoc tribe, but says that he was actually wounded in an Indian mêlée and that it left him with the limp he was accused by Ambrose Bierce and others of assuming.

Following his express rider days, Miller married Minnie Myrtle Dyer, conducted a newspaper, which was suppressed by the government, took up law, and would have been nominated for an Oregon supreme judgship had his wife not created a scandal by starting divorce proceedings. This caused him to abandon the legal profession and go to Europe. In London he brought out at his own expense his "Pacific Poems." The Athenaeum gave the volume high praise, and Miller, in his sombrero and red shirt, became the lion of the moment. A more extended visit to Europe was made the next year; Miller then settled in New York to enjoy the benefits of the transatlantic rage. He contributed largely to Frank Leslie's magazines, wrote "Danites," "49," and other plays, but did little to justify the expectations his earlier verse awakened, and, after shifting to Washington for a while, he returned to California. There he built his Mount Shasta cabin, called "The Hights," and there he passed the remainder of his days except for some lecture tours, a trip to the Klondyke, and one to China during the Boxer War as correspondent for the Hearst papers. He died in 1913 in his seventy-third year.

Harr Wagner's main effort is to give the human, unconventional side of Miller. He ascribes to him "an extreme form of dualism," but finds no antagonism between his spiritual and physical self. Miller was as reconciled in his dual personality, he contends, as was St. Paul in his letter to the Romans, where he says, "So then with the mind I myself serve the law of God, but with the flesh the law of sin." The dualism of Miller, according to the writer, was never more clearly defined than in his relationship with women, and a long chapter is devoted to its range from the spiritual and Platonic to sheer libertinism. Among the many women he was in love with was Mrs. Frank Leslie, the inspiration of his poem "The One Fair Woman," and to whom he dedicated several of his volumes of verse. Harr Wagner relates that Miller vowed if she ever married he would leave the country. When she became the wife of Willie Wilde, Miller sent him a letter to San Diego addressed to her and asked him to cross the Mexican border at Tia Juana and post the letter from Mexico. Miller "wanted to keep the letter of his word," he remarks, "even if he failed in the spirit." In several of his more sordid affairs Harr Wagner, by his own account, proved useful in extricating the poet from serious predicaments.

On the paternal side Miller was of Quaker descent, and the writer thinks it due to that heredity that in later years the poet sang songs of peace and would not glorify the heroes of war. "It is easy to understand," he remarks, why Joaquin did not become a Buffalo Bill or a Wild Bill hero and make a record for killing Indians, outlaws and personal enemies. The influence of his father as a teacher, the refinement and beautiful spirit of his mother, made him a poet, while the environment of his youth made him wear picturesque clothes.



Joaquin Miller.

Miller carried this admiration for show even to his senescent period, and at the age of 60 came back from the gold fields of Alaska wearing a full suit of fur with huge gold nuggets for buttons. The buttons, however, proved too attractive to women and gradually disappeared from his coat.

Although Harr Wagner recites the poet's failings, the portrait he draws of him is not disparaging. He calls Miller "a beautiful spirit, half human, half divine," and makes one feel the magnetism of "the most picturesque figure that American literature has produced." One of his finest traits, he tells us, was his large charity. It was the testimony of many that he was never heard to say an unkind word of any human being. "Beauty is everywhere" was one of his constant exclamations, and another, "Everybody is good or trying to be good." The biography is not an apology for Miller. It is written in a spirit of praise. Harr Wagner, far from seeing drawbacks in Miller's duality, considers that it lent him charm. Are we to be surprised, he asks, "that when Joaquin was writing the 'Songs of the Soul' he was reveling in the sensuous bliss of a rather indescribable form of a companionate marriage with Alice Oliver? Had his physical senses and spiritual nature maintained conventional relationship, it might not have been possible for him to have held himself to the peak of spiritual production." In this point of view one has the keynote of the book.

An Italian Writes Charmingly of "Unromantic" Spain

UNROMANTIC SPAIN. By Mario Praz. Illustrated. 271 pp. New York: Alfred A. Knopf. $4.

IF Mr. Praz is right, those travelers who are looking for the mythical Latin nation which is pleasure-loving and fond of dancing and light wines had better not go to Spain. Instead, they should go to Italy. Mr. Praz is an Italian who teaches his native language at the University of Liverpool. He has too keen a sense of humor and is too genial a scholar to be described as having a chip on his shoulder, yet his book, originally published in Italian, has a distinctly Italian bias. In a sphere far removed from that of Mark Twain it has some of the aspects of an Italian "Innocents Abroad," with sly digs at the French, English and American romanticists who have created a picture of Spain that does not seem to him at all accurate. Gautier, Borrow and Washington Irving are all targets for his gently ironic shafts. Yet he writes less in the mood which one associates with the Italy of Mussolini than in that of a highly civilized and pleasantly disillusioned Frenchman. The great Anatole himself might have found elegant diversion in his pages and even envied him two or three of his passages.

It should be noted that Signor Praz does not deny the charm or even the picturesqueness of Spain. He has no apparent and sinister connection with the Italian travel bureaus. But he does not wish us to go to Spain with a baggage of untenable illusions. So he maintains "that the Spanish national character can be a source of the picturesque for foreigners chiefly by way of contrast," that the true secret of Spanish manners "is the desire to get you to play into their hand, to wink at something or other, to be one of them," that bull fights are more than likely to be "a sort of uneventful butchery," that the ceremonies and processions of Holy Week in Seville are, for the non-devout outsider, repetitious and dull, that Spain "is a country to which sexually obsessed intellectuals are sure to turn sooner or later," that the Arab-derived architecture of the Alhambra provides at best "a dreamy monotony," and that the peasant dancing girls of Andalusia are "dowdy and rather thick-set."

This would be more discouraging were it not for Signor Praz's admitted conviction that > perfect picturesqueness exists only in the oleographs, in the cabarets, in the descriptions of imaginary travelers, because there the strange exotic elements are wrenched from their vital sod and distilled into a formula, whereas in real life they are intermixed with so many other human, universal elements which are common to all peoples in all climates.

It is clear that Signor Praz was looking for anything but romance. He was not even looking for something grandiloquently called "the soul of Spain." The same attitude and the same tactics would have produced the same results elsewhere. For if Signor Praz proves anything it is not that there is no romance in Spain but that, intrinsically, there is no romance anywhere.

No man need write a book of 271 pages (including the index) in order to make this point. It has been made many times before, about geographical localities and about traditions and ideas. Whole nations, like the Chinese, seem to have gotten along comfortably without the concept of romantic love. But Signor Graz's book has an importance apart from the thesis of its title in that it is really an excellent book about Spain. Its material as well as its method is highly diversified. Though Signor Graz is sufficiently impressed by the monotony, as he sees it, of the Spanish landscape and the Spanish style, he belies his own thesis to some extent by producing a far from monotonous book about them. He gives us a picture of the Holy Week ceremonies through the eyes, as he imagines them, of a "Broadway blonde"—though not exactly the kind of blonde one remembers seeing most often on Broadway. He writes of the pathology of bullfighting. He belittles the Alhambra in terms so charming that one cannot but wish one's self there. He accidentally commits a sacrilege in his zeal to inspect the shrouded paintings in the Cathedral of Segovia, and his subsequent adventures have even a faintly Stevensonian ring. He writes a rather terrible chapter on an Archbishop dreaming of death and corruption, as men who were neither Archbishops nor Spaniards have done. He stages a debate on mysticism. And he hurries pantingly over the brown hills of Andalusia in his effort to debunk the castanet and the seguidilla.

All this is highly entertaining, though some readers will want to skip the chapter on mysticism. The prose is excellent—it is, indeed, the kind of prose Signor Graz would not write had he not been reading the romanticists. But it cannot be said that he has established anything beyond his own personal tastes. The bare brown hills which he finds far from diverting may still mean a good deal to those who like that sort of thing. The fake romanticists will find their lot harder because of Signor Graz, which is fair enough. But the true romanticists will almost certainly go on romancing, and if they do it as well as Signor Graz does his deromancing will be sure to have a hearing.

"Matisse," to be published soon by Alfred A. Knopf, contains fifty-one examples of the work of Henri Matisse and a critical preface by Henry McBride, art editor of The New York Sun and formerly art editor of The Dial. It includes reproductions of famous canvases which are unknown in the United States but which are regarded in Europe as supreme examples of Matisse's art

BOOK EXCHANGE

Continued from Preceding Page.

Stamps

DOLLARS—MANY SLEEPING IN OLD trunks and boxes; do you know old letters with stamps are worth money? Send them to us registered or insured, and we will tell you their value; we buy old United States and Confederate stamps, preferably on original letters used before 1880; also envelopes with patriotic designs and slogans used during the Civil War, U. S. Civil War Revenues; collections, accumulations, loose or in books at highest prices. Weiskopf, Inc., 505 5th Av., New York City.

14 DAYS' REDUCTION SALE AT 50% TO 75% in all single stamps, also in complete sets; packages, 1,000 different, 80 cents; 2,000 different, $2.90; 3,000 different, $5.75; 5,000 different mounted in booklets, $18; 10,000 different mounted in booklets, $65; 15,000 different mounted in booklets, $190; 20,000 different mounted in booklets, $325. Lexington Stamp Co., 584 Lexington Av. (between 51st and 52d Sts.), New York City. Telephone Wickersham 1893. Open evenings 10 P. M.

SELL YOUR STAMPS! WE ARE INTERested in any collection or accumulation worth $100 or more. Send complete description first; do not send stamps until you hear from us. We pay good prices. Our reputation for fair dealing is worldwide. H. E. Harris & Co. (Largest Stamp Firm in New England), 535 Commonwealth Av., Boston.

ROMANTIC IS THE STORY OF THE Princes of Thurn and Taxis, who issued their last stamps in 1867; we offer 2 values of these obsoletes for only 10 cents to approval applicants. Globus Stamp Co., 214 3d Av., New York.

EVERYTHING FOR THE STAMP COLlector! Illustrated lists free; interesting articles, unsurpassed values. H. E. Harris & Co., 535-A Commonwealth Av., Boston.

ILLUSTRATED DESCRIPTIVE UNITED States list price, 50 cents; large, complete United States price list, 1930, free; United States Library, 4 volumes, $2.50. Stanley Gibbons, 38 T Park Row.

OUR BOOKLET, HOW TO COLLECT stamps and 1,000 all different fine stamps for $1; 1929 price list free on request. The Hoffman Stamp Co., Inc., 29 West 34th St., New York.

ADVERTISER HAS A SUPERB LOT OF Early British Colonials, picked copies, for disposal at one-third catalogue. Approval, references. "B" 6 Westhill Rd., Wandsworth, London, S. W. 18.

200 VARIETIES FRENCH COLONIES for $1.00; many unusual and scarce stamps. Ask for our latest price list. Mower, 12 Geary St., San Francisco, California.

STAMP HEADQUARTERS, MOST COMplete in the city; illustrated price lists free; special daily bargains; free Christmas stamp club. F. Marquis, 30 Ann St. (at Nassau St.), New York City.

COLLECTIONS 1,000 VARIETIES, $1; 2,000, $3; 3,000, $8; fine bank mixture, $2 one-half pound; price list free. Times Square Stamp Co., 1,480 Broadway.

HIGHEST PRICES IN THE COUNTRY paid for stamps, collections, old correspondence, revenues, &c. Frank Marquis, 15 Park Row, New York City.

OLD POSTAGE STAMPS, PRIOR 1870, on or off covers, also collections, we buy for highest prices. Cross Stamp Co., 79 Halsey St., Newark, N. J.

STAMP COLLECTORS—PHILLIPS' monthly bulletin (free) offers 2,000 items each issue, 32 or more pages. Phillips, Box 1012, Hartford, Conn.

125 DIFFERENT WEST INDIES, $1.65. 50 West Africa, $1. Select Approvals. Fred Besson, 1 East 132d St., New York.

BOOKS, STAMPS, MAGAZINES, BOUGHT, sold; old American stamps specially wanted. Mittler's, 57 4th Av., 9th St.

SCANDINAVIAN, DANZIG, GERMANY. Price list free. Niland, 79 Crescent Place, Yonkers, N. Y.

300 DIFFERENT STAMPS, 20 CENTS; 600, 50 cents; 1,100, $1; 2,000, $3. Fred Onken, 630 79th St., Brooklyn.

25 SCANDINAVIAN STAMPS, 10 CENTS. T. Gustafson, 766 East St., New Britain, Conn.

Book Plates

EX LIBRIS — ARTISTIC DUO-TONE book plates reproducing old woodcuts and engravings, on antique-tint vellum paper; your name imprinted; $2 to $5 per hundred; send 10 cents for new catalogue. Iskor Press, 286 5th Av., New York.

BOOK OF 100 DISTINCTIVE BOOKplate designs, 10 cents; individual, artistic, descriptive. Stenzel Company, 420 Madison Av., New York.

COPPERPLATE STYLE, COLORED woodcuts, $3, $3 per hundred; samples for 10 cents. Franklin Bittner, 251 High St., Nutley, N. J.

Printing

BOOKS—HISTORICAL, GENEALOGICAL, biographical, scientific; printed in a modern plant; expert layout, efficient service, fine bindings; large selection of type faces; personal attention to all book manufacture by expert master printers. Rumford Press, Concord, N. H.; known from coast to coast as fine magazine and book printers.

PRINT YOUR OWN STATIONERY, cards, bookplates, Christmas cards, circulars, books, pamphlets, &c.; Junior Press, $5.90; Job Press, $11 up; Rotary, $149. Easy and interesting; rules sent. Write for catalogue presses, type, paper, &c. Kelsey Company, T-52, Meriden, Conn.

Maps and Prints

OUR RARE PICTURE SERVICE DEpartment supplies desired portraits, historical views, and old prints of any subject. American Historical Bureau (Established 1926), 70 Fifth Av., New York. Algonquin 1299.

OLD PRINTS—CURRIER & IVES LITHOgraphs, views of Old New York, railroad prints, clipper ships, sporting prints. We buy also. Gottschalk's Old Print Shop, 150 Lexington Av.

Back Numbers

NEWSPAPER HEADQUARTERS, 306 West 40th St.—Back dates New York and out-of-town newspapers, lowest prices. Medallion 2460.

BACK NUMBERS OF MAGAZINES TO be had at Abraham's Bookstore, 145 4th Av.

Latest Books

(Continued from Page 37)

biography with supplementary material.

SHIPS ON THE SEVEN SEAS. By Hawthorne Daniel. 8vo. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co. $2.50.

A new edition of this history of the development of ships, first published in 1925. Illustrated with drawings by Francis J. Rigney.

LIFE AND LETTERS OF EMILY DICKINSON. Edited by Martha Dickinson Bianchi. 8vo. Boston, Mass.: Houghton, Mifflin Company. $5.

A new edition of this biography, first published in 1924.

THE ADVENTURES OF JOSEPH ANDREWS. By Henry Fielding. 12mo. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $1.

A new edition of this novel in the Modern Students' Library, with an introduction by Bruce McCullough.

THE HEALTH CARE OF THE BABY. By Louis Fischer. 12mo. New York: Funk & Wagnalls Company. $1.

An eighteenth edition revised.

THE BEGINNINGS OF NEW ENGLAND. By John Fiske. 8vo. Boston, Mass.: Houghton, Mifflin Company. $2.50.

A new edition issued in observance of the tercentenary of the founding of Boston in 1630.

FILSON'S "KENTUCKE." Edited by Willard Rouse Jillson. 12mo. Louisville, Ky.: John P. Morton & Co.

A facsimile reproduction of the original Wilmington edition of 1784, with notes, a sketch of Filson's life and a bibliography.

THE LIFE OF GEORGE WASHINGTON. By John Marshall. 8vo. New York: Walton Book Company. Two volumes. $15.

A new edition of this famous biography.

SUSAN LENOX. By David Graham Phillips. 12mo. New York: D. Appleton & Co. $2.50.

A new one-volume edition of a novel, first published in 1917.

THE DUNCIAD VARIORUM. By Alexander Pope. 8vo. Princeton, N. J.: Princeton University Press. $4.50.

With the prolegomena of Scriblerus. Reproduced in facsimile from the first issue of the original edition of 1729, with an introductory essay by Robert Kilburn Root.

THE SHRIEKING PIT. By Arthur J. Rees. 12mo. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co. $2.

A new edition of this detective story, first published in 1919.

THE JAPAN YEAR BOOK. 1930. By Y. Takenobu. 8vo. Tokio, Japan: The Japan Year Book Office. Distributed in New York by Dixie Business Bookshop. $10.

The new edition of this annual reference book of general information and statistics on Japan and Japanese territories.

TERRY'S GUIDE TO CUBA. By T. Philip Terry. 12mo. Boston, Mass.: Houghton, Mifflin Company. $3.50.

A revised edition of this handbook for travelers.

WINTER. By James Thomson. Pamphlet. New York: Oxford University Press. $2.50.

A facsimile reprint of the first edition of this poem, published in 1726.

THE AUTHOR'S ANNUAL, 1930. Edited by Josiah Titzell. 12mo. New York: Brewer & Warren, Inc.

The second annual publication of this literary handbook.

THE RISE OF AMERICAN CIVILIZATION. By Charles A. Beard and Mary R. Beard. 8vo. New York: The Macmillan Co. $3.

A new edition, two volumes in one, of the Beard History.

THE CIVILIZATION OF THE RENAISSANCE IN ITALY. By Jacob Burkhardt. 8vo. New York: Harper & Brothers. $12.50.

A translation from the fifteenth edition of the German original, with more than 200 illustrations in color and black and white. The first illustrated edition in English.

THE CREDIT MANUAL OF COMMERCIAL LAWS WITH DIARY. 1930. Edited by Frank A. Fall and others. 8vo. New York: National Association of Credit Men.

A new and revised edition.

THE TRAVELS OF BARON MUNCHAUSEN. 8vo. Introduction by Carl Van Doren. New York: The Limited Editions Club.

A new edition limited to 1,500 copies, with illustrations by John Held Jr.

THE APOCRYPHA ACCORDING TO THE AUTHORIZED VERSION. 8vo. London, England: The Cresset Press. New York: Distributed by Walter V. McKee, Inc.

Illustrated from wood engravings by fourteen artists.

Miscellaneous

LINO PRINTS. By Margaret Dobson. 12mo. New York: Pitman & Sons. $1.

An illustrated handbook on the making of linoleum prints.

MASTERING A METROPOLIS. By R. L. Duffus. 8vo. New York: Harper & Bros. $3.

The authorized popularization of the ten detailed and technical volumes planning the future of the New York region published by the Committee on the Regional Plan of New York and its Environs.

FLOWER AND VASE. By Anne Lamplugh. 8vo. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $1.75.

An illustrated monthly key to room decoration.

WILD FLOWERS AND STATE FLOWERS OF NORTH AMERICA. By Lydia Northrop Gilbert. 12mo. New York: George Sully & Co. $1.50.

Descriptions, with plates in color.

THE CHALLENGE OF THE PROPHETS. By Oswald Ryan. 12mo. Anderson, Ind.: The Warner Press. $1.

An application of the teachings of the great prophets of Israel to present day problems.

MRS. GRUNDY IS DEAD. By Doris Webster and Mary Alden Hopkins. 12mo. New York: The Century Company. $1.25.

A code of etiquette as practiced by young people today.

UNIFORM CRIME REPORTING. 8vo. New York: International Association of Chiefs of Police.

A complete manual for police.

PROGRESSIVE TEACHING. By A. Gordon Melvin. 12mo. New York: D. Appleton & Co. $2.

An interpretation for the guidance of teaching in the public schools.

Textbooks

BUSINESS COMMUNICATION. By Carl Lewis Altmaier. 12mo. New York: The Macmillan Co. $1.80.

A handbook of business correspondence.

STUDY AND APPRECIATION OF THE SHORT STORY. By Roy Ivan Johnson and others. 8vo. New York: Silver, Burdett & Co. $1.20.

A reader in the short story arranged for classroom use.

PRINCIPLES OF PROPERTY INSURANCE. By F. E. Wolfe. 8vo. Thomas Y. Crowell Co. $3.

A textbook describing various classes of insurance covering property.

Humor

TWENTY-ONE DELIGHTFUL WAYS OF COMMITTING SUICIDE. By Jean Bruller. 8vo. New York: Covici, Friede, Inc. $2.

With drawings in color by the author illustrating each method, and a preface by Corey Ford.

Pamphlets

FORT LEWIS: A COMMUNITY IN TRANSITION. By Floyd Nelson House and others. Pamphlet. University, Va.: Institute for Research in the Social Sciences.

A report based on a study made by the Community League of Fort Lewis, Roanoke County, Virginia, under the auspices of the Cooperative Educational Association of Virginia, with technical assistance by the School of Sociology of the University of Virginia.

THE RUBIACEAE OF COLOMBIA. By Paul C. Standley. Pamphlet. Chicago, Ill.: Field Museum of Natural History.

Scientific descriptions of a family of tropical shrubs and trees.

BOOK EXCHANGE

Autographs

AUTOGRAPHS OF CELEBRITIES bought and sold; highest cash prices paid for original letters and documents of Presidents of the United States, especially Washington and Lincoln, signers of the Declaration of Independence, particularly Benjamin Franklin; letters of noted authors, statesmen, scientists, composers, &c., also purchased; catalogues issued; correspondence invited. Thomas F. Madigan (successor to Patrick F. Madigan, established 1888), 2 East 54th St. (corner 5th Av.), New York. Telephone Wickersham 1812.

AUTOGRAPHS OF CELEBRITIES bought and sold. Cash paid for original letters, documents and manuscripts of distinguished personages. Inquiries receive careful attention. Correspondence invited. John J. Madigan, 13 East 47th Street, New York. Telephone Wickersham 1981.

AUTOGRAPHS OF FAMOUS PERSONS for sale. Lists on request. I buy letters and other papers signed by the Presidents; prominent authors; soldiers; scientists; statesmen, etc. Look through your family papers. Adeline Roberts, 43 Fifth Avenue, New York.

AUTOGRAPHS OF PRESIDENTS, LETters and manuscripts of famous men and women, and historical documents bought and sold. Dauber & Pine Bookshops, Inc., 66 5th Av. at 12th St., New York. Algonquin 7880-7881.

AUTOGRAPH LETTERS AND MANUscripts of famous men and women, historical documents bought and sold. Carnegie Hall Bookshop, Inc., 158 West 57th St. Circle 8370.

AUTOGRAPHS, MANUSCRIPTS, DIAries, old letters and documents always wanted. Union Square Bookshop, 30 East 14th St., N. Y. City.

AUTOGRAPHS — LITERARY, HISTORIcal; bought and sold; important catalogues upon request. John Heise Autographs (Est. 1885), Syracuse, N. Y.

FAMOUS AUTOGRAPHS WANTED. Walter R. Benjamin, 578 Madison Av., New York City.

AUTOGRAPHS — SEND FOR CATAlogue. Autograph Agency, 31 and 33 High Holborn, London.

Bookbinding.

I SPECIALIZE IN BINDING THE NAtional Geographic Magazine, missing numbers and complete volumes supplied; prospectus on application; also do all other kinds of binding. H. Kaufman, 217 East 38th St., New York.

SEND YOUR NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC Magazines, periodicals, for Eggeling's guaranteed binding, $1.50; request descriptive literature. Eggeling Bookbindery, 35 East 11th. Stuyvesant 3083.

CORLIES MACY & CO., 441 PEARL ST. New York. Magazine, periodical and fine bookbinding. Established 1857.

Law Books

OLD LAW BOOKS WANTED—EARLY Acts and Laws, all States. Send list or brief description. Business established thirty years ago. Address C. S. Hook, Weymouth Apts., Atlantic City, N. J. Traveling representative will call if important.

He Denounces People's Pet Notions and Makes Them Like It!

WORKS OF CLARENCE DARROW

$1 POST PAID

Astounding Bargain! Best Liberal, Progressive, Reading —1,157 Pages, 300,000 Words, Almost 2 Pounds for $1

CLARENCE DARROW

The name of CLARENCE DARROW is famous throughout the world as that of a liberal, agnostic, progressively forward-looking lawyer. In the courts Clarence Darrow has proved himself an attorney extraordinary, but he has done more. He has always defended, and in his defense of great labor cases; in his defense of Dr. Sweet, the Detroit Negro accused of murder when defending his home from an angry mob; in his defense of Scopes, the Dayton teacher who taught evolution in Tennessee—in all of these and other cases, Darrow has shown magnificent generosity to the oppressed and a depth of human understanding and sympathy that has seldom been equated. Clarence Darrow believes in humanity. As a liberal and agnostic, Darrow is better known and has more influence probably than any man since Col. Ingersoll. In his debates with such men as Prof. Foster, Will Durant, Frederick Starr, John Haynes Holmes, etc., Darrow shows the same likable qualities, the same dynamic personality, the same wit and the same pity for those needing defense. Read the works of this man; be amazed, be enlightened, be persuaded! Just a dollar bill—the greatest bargain in the history of publishing.

All These Titles for a Dollar Bill

18 INTRIGUING SECTIONS
CONTAINING THE FOLLOWING TITLES

Is Capital Punishment Justified? Debate vs. Judge Talley.
Is Prohibition Right? Debate vs. John Haynes Holmes.
Is Life Worth Living? Debate vs. Frederick Starr.
Is the Human Race Getting Anywhere? Debate vs. Starr.
A Persian Pearl. Essay on the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam.
Insects and Men: Instinct and Reason.
Voltaire, Who Fooled Priest and King.
The Skeleton in the Closet.
Essay on Walt Whitman.
Essay on John P. Altgeld.
Realism in Literature and Art.
Essay on Robert Burns.
Essay on Geo. Burman Foster.
Some Paragraphs Addressed to Socialists.
The Ordeal of Prohibition.
The Edwardses and the Jukeses. Question of Heredity.
Are We Machines? Debate vs. Dr. Will Durant.
Can the Individual Control His Conduct? Debate vs. Prof. Smith.
Dry Law Debate vs. Wayne B. Wheeler.
Do Human Beings Have Free Will? Debate vs. Prof. Foster.
Resist Not Evil. Discussion of Non-resistance.
An Eye for An Eye. Complete novel.
Plea in Defense of Loeb and Leopold, the Boy Murderers.
Darrow vs. Bryan in the Famous Scopes Anti-Evolution Case.
The Defense of a Negro. Famous Dr. Sweet Case in Detroit.
A Day With Clarence Darrow.

Easily Worth $3—All Yours for $1

$1 WE PAY THE POST-AGE!

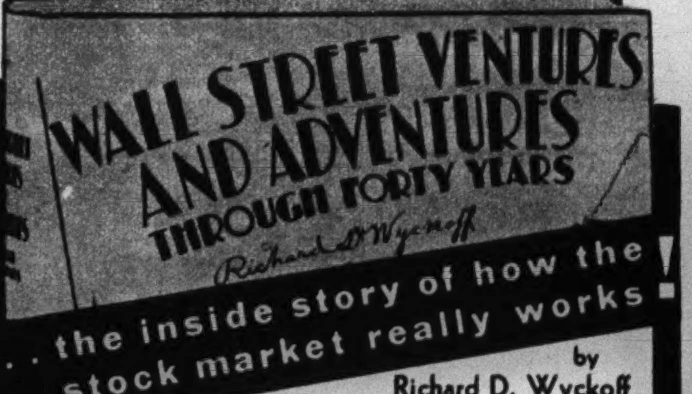
HALDEMAN-JULIUS PUBLICATIONS
Dept. R-108 Girard, Kansas

JUST PIN A DOLLAR TO THIS BLANK

Haldeman-Julius Publications
Dept. R-108, Girard, Kansas

I enclose $1. Send me postpaid the Works of Clarence Darrow, in 18 intriguing sections, containing 26 titles.

Name ....
Address ....
City .... State ....



. . . the inside story of how the stock market really works!

by Richard D. Wyckoff
Founder and long-time editor, "The Magazine of Wall Street"

HOW does the market actually function? What real chance have you to beat it? How do the great manipulators form pools, influence prices, take profits? Here at last is the real "low-down" on Wall Street, written by a man who made fortunes for himself, and many more for those who used his famous advisory service.

It is packed with invaluable advice for traders—on reading the tape, forecasting the market's trend, how traders like Livermore work, etc. It also contains scores of inside stories of actual pools, corners, and manipulations; and pen portraits of Morgan, Dillon, Schwab, Durant, Rogers, etc.

A fascinating introduction to the Street, for all who ever take a "flyer" in it. Price $5.00

FREE EXAMINATION COUPON T-1
Harper & Brothers, 49 E. 33rd St., New York
Please send me a copy of Wall Street Ventures and Adventures, $5.00
☐ I will remit $5 in 10 days or return book
☐ Check is enclosed. ☐ Send C. O. D.
Name
Address
Business Connection
(Please fill in)
Sent on approval only in U. S. and Canada

Your Ancestry

If you are interested in your family history, send 10 cents in stamps for our 168-page priced catalogue of over 4000 genealogical books.

Goodspeed's Book Shop
Established 1898
7 Ashburton Pl., Dept. C-2 Boston, Mass.

OLD LAW BOOKS WANTED

ESTABLISHED 1898

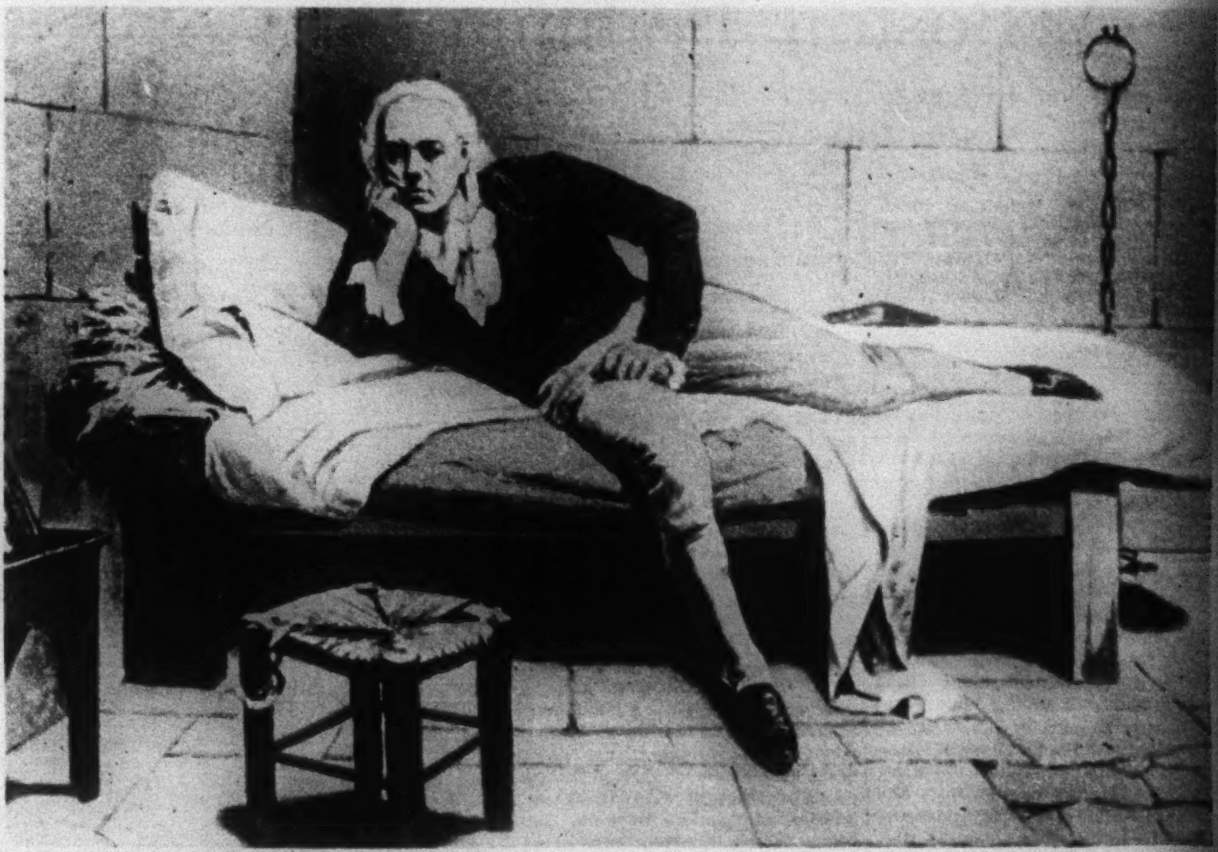
Prompt Cash for ACTS AND LAWS of all States.

Send List or Catalog of Books you have for Disposal to

C. S. HOOK
WEYMOUTH APTS. ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

Miranda, Romantic Figure in Three Great Revolutions

Professor Robertson's Biography Of a Spanish-American Knight-Errant



Miranda in the Prison of La Carraca.

From the Painting by Arturo Michelena.

THE LIFE OF MIRANDA. By William Spence Robertson, Ph. D., Professor of History, University of Illinois. In Two Volumes with Thirty-eight Illustrations. 327 and 306 pp. Chapel Hill: The University of North Carolina Press. $10.

By T. R. YBARRA

BEHIND Professor Robertson's book about that veritable romance of history, the career of Francisco de Miranda, lies a veritable romance of research. Fascinated by the story of the Venezuelan whom he calls "Precursor, Knight-Errant, and Promoter of Spanish-American liberty," Professor Robertson wrote some time ago an essay and a full-sized volume on Miranda. In the course of his preliminary studies for these works, he found documents which convinced him that, shortly before Miranda fell into the hands of the Spaniards in 1812, after his unsuccessful attempt to free Venezuela from Spanish rule, a mass of valuable papers accumulated by him in the course of his adventurous wanderings in the United States, England, France, Russia and other countries had been spirited away to London and deposited in the custody of Lord Bathurst, British Secretary for War and the Colonies.

So Professor Robertson went to England and searched assiduously but vainly in the Public Record Office and elsewhere. Then, following a clue which proved to be providential, he secured permission from Lord Bathurst, descendant of the holder of the title a century ago, to continue his search at the Bathurst country seat near Cirencester. There, finally, amid a heap of old papers, Professor Robertson discovered the lost Miranda documents—sixty-three folio tomes, containing, as he tells us, "a veritable legion of diaries, letters, squibs, newspaper clippings and intimate memoranda"—a treasure-trove, this, of a sort calculated to give a researcher a thrill like that felt by Columbus when he first sighted land in America! So valuable was the find, so eloquent the words with which Professor Robertson painted its value, that the entire mass of documents was later purchased by the government of Venezuela and transported from England to Miranda's native country, for the freedom of which that romantic adventurer toiled from his earliest youth, only to go from one tragic failure to another until death overtook him at last in a Spanish dungeon.

Perusal of the Miranda documents which he had discovered made it instantly clear to Professor Robertson that the revelations in them were such as to render imperative the rewriting of the life story of Francisco de Miranda. Without loss of time he set to work; the volumes now being reviewed are the result of his labors.

No wonder Professor Robertson has been fascinated by the career of the South American patriot. Born in 1750 in Caracas, Venezuela, Miranda soon tired of staying at home and, while still a mere youth, embarked upon the life of adventure which was to bring him fame and death. During the American Revolution he served against the British in Florida and was present at the capture of Pensacola. Then he went to Europe and, already imbued with the desire to bring freedom to his native land, he sought to interest the British Government in his project. Finding, however, nothing but polite words, he proceeded to the Continent, where his wanderings took him through Greece and Turkey to Russia. There he won the friendship of the great Prince Potemkin, favorite Minister of the Empress Catherine, who had him introduced to that ruler. The Venezuelan so ingratiated himself with her that he was looked upon as one of her prime favorites and aroused no little jealousy at the Russian court. Professor Robertson dismisses as unfounded the story that there was a love affair between Catherine and Miranda, though it is widely believed in South America, both because of the sentimental proclivities of the Empress and the no less ardent leanings of Miranda to passing amours.

From Russia the Venezuelan went to Prussia and thence to France, where he rose high in the armies of the French Revolution, eventually being placed in command of the French left at the Battle of Neerwinden. After Dumouriez, his chief, had betrayed the revolutionary cause Miranda was tried as one of his helpers, but the court acquitted him. He then made his way to England, where he redoubled his efforts to get British aid in wresting the Spanish colonies of South America, especially his native Venezuela, from Spain. He had interviews with Pitt and other leading Englishmen of the day, but again nothing came of his endeavors, despite his eloquence.

So he crossed the ocean to the United States and tried to interest the American Government in his project. There were more interviews, with President Jefferson, Secretary of State Madison and others. At last the long-sought-for aid was found—not, however, from the United States Government, but from New York merchants, who equipped and placed at Miranda's disposal a vessel called the Leander, in which he sailed for Venezuela, accompanied by a number of citizens of the United States.

The Spaniards, who had got wind of the venture, met the Leander and two unarmed vessels which she was convoying and forced Miranda to fly to Trinidad, leaving the convoy to its fate. Some of the prisoners taken by the Spaniards in the affray, including a number of Americans, were hanged and their heads exposed on pikes.

Soon afterward Miranda landed on Venezuelan soil and captured the city of Coro; but, finding the people hostile, he re-embarked his forces and, returning to Trinidad, gave up his expedition and set sail for Europe, where he spent the next few years in constant plotting against Spain.

Simon Bolivar, destined to be the Liberator of northern South America, found Miranda in London in 1810, and caused him to return to Venezuela. After that land had declared its independence of Spain in 1811, he was made Commander-in-Chief of the patriot forces. But a combination of bad luck and bad leadership culminated in Miranda's surrender, at San Mateo, to the Spaniards, and an attempt by him to flee the country. But Bolivar and others, incensed at what they considered his perfidy, arrested him when he was about to board a vessel bound for foreign parts, with the avowed intention of having him tried and shot. The Spaniards however, got their hands on him before this plan could be carried out. Miranda was then confined successively in damp, noisome dungeons at Puerto Cabello, Puerto Rico and, finally, at the fortress of La Carraca at Cadiz in Spain. While, far away in South America, Bolivar, San Martin and other champions of liberty, who had taken up the struggle initiated by Miranda, continued it doggedly until success at last crowned their efforts, the unfortunate Miranda—he who had found favor in the eyes of an Empress, commanded French divisions, pleaded the cause of his native country before Pitt, Jefferson and other leaders of the time, and struck the first blows for independence on Venezuelan soil—lay shackled to the wall of a cell like a common criminal, until finally, on July 14, 1816, he died.

Such a career offers dazzling opportunities to a biographer and Professor Robertson has not missed them. His is a work primarily for students, for it is provided at almost every paragraph with footnotes giving the author's authority for his every statement, and there is such a wealth of detail that the course of the narrative is slowed up on almost every page. Nevertheless, Professor Robertson has an easy style and a good sense of the dramatic.

Miranda's latest biographer proves himself again and again a cool, impartial judge. When he reaches the great crisis of his hero's career—the series of events culminating in his relinquishment of the fight against Spain in Venezuela and his attempt to escape from that country after signing an armistice with the Spaniards—he makes no attempt to conceal or palliate the damaging evidence against Miranda, on which other biographers—and, it may be said, most students of South American history—have based their charges of incompetence and even cowardice and treason against the ill-fated adventurer. Concerning this crucial climax and the unsuccessful expedition financed by New York merchants which preceded it by a few years, Professor Robertson writes:

> The mildest judgment upon his attack upon Venezuela in 1806 is that it was indeed quixotic; his flight from the Spaniards who attacked the unarmed schooners was more prudent than chivalrous. For the fateful surrender of San Mateo the generalissimo was denounced and betrayed by his own compatriots. Nevertheless, a careful study of this event * * * discredits the view that he was a traitor to the cause of Venezuelan independence. The fairest interpretation of his actions which can be made is that he wished to evade his implacable enemies and later to resume the struggle for independence.

That is certainly damning with faint praise! Similarly, in the matter of the arrest of Miranda by Bolivar and other Venezuelan patriots, when their chief was about to embark for abroad, Professor Robertson, unlike certain other champions of Miranda, by no means exonerates the latter at the expense of the man chosen by destiny to succeed where Miranda failed. Some have gone so far as to say that Bolivar caused the arrest of Miranda in order to save his own skin by delivering up his commander to the Spaniards. Professor Robertson, however, takes no such view. Though he seeks to make out as good a case as possible for Miranda, he is equally conscientious as regards Bolivar—the truth in this matter, one of the most controversial chapters in the interlocking life-stories of Bolivar and Miranda, lies, according to the latter's American biographer, somewhere between the two extremes of exoneration and condemnation reached by the numerous writers who have contributed to the controversy.

Throughout his book Professor Robertson makes copious use of the immensely valuable Miranda documents which he unearthed, after a century of oblivion, in England. This fact alone gives to his work an extraordinary interest for all students of Miranda's career. Indeed, it is not too much to say that Professor Robertson's new life of Miranda will easily leap to first place among all the books about the great South American adventurer and apostle of liberty; not one of the works written up to now about him—so far as the present reviewer is aware—equals it in scope and depth of research Francisco de Miranda.

BOOK EXCHANGE

The New York Times makes an earnest effort to keep its advertising columns free of deceptive and dishonest announcements. Readers are requested to report unsatisfactory dealings with any advertiser.

Bargain Offers

FAUST BOOK SERVICE (NEW YORK'S bargain centre), 61 East 8th St., offers following choice books (new) at great savings: Balzac's Droll Tales, unabridged, 450 Dore illustrations ($7.50), $4.75; Satirical Tales, Voltaire, $2.95; Superwomen, $2.50; A Rebours, Huysmans, $3; The Devil's Pool, George Sand, $2.75; Moscow Art Plays (includes Lysistrata), $1.50; Intermediate Sex, Edward Carpenter, $2.50; Vampires and Vampirism, $2.20; Psychoanalysis, Andre Tridon, $1.50; Unexpurgated Petronius ($7.50), $3.75; Blake's Poetical Sketches, Scholartis Press, $3.25; Gilles de Rais (Bluebeard), $2; All Quiet on Western Front, English edition, $7.50; Lincoln, Emil Ludwig, $3.95; Well of Loneliness, $4.25; Essays, Oscar Wilde, $1.50; Man, God, Immortality, Frazer, $1.50; Casanova's Memoirs, 2 volumes, boxed, $7.50; Remy de Gourmont's Works, 2 volumes ($10), $4; Lamiel, Stendhal, $1.50; Memoirs of a Nun, Diderot, $3.50; African Slaver, Canot ($4), $1.50; Gallant Ladies, illustrated, $1.50; Farewell to Arms, $1.95; following publisher's surplus, $1, formerly $3, &c.: Shadowings, Lafcadio Hearn; Boccaccio's Untold Tale; Wild Body, Wynham Lewis; Musical Essays, Debussy; D'Artagnan, Dumas; Up from Methodism, Asbury; Field of Mustard, Coppard; Thais, Anatole France; Iolaus, Edward Carpenter; Burning Secret, Stephen Zweig; Hawthorne, Gorman; Virgin Heart, De Gormont; Imperial Purple, Saltus; Beethoven, Krehbiel; Odtaa, Masefield; Priapus, Aiken; Essays, Huxley; Schimpflexikon, Mencken; Mozart, Krehbiel; Pontius Pilate's Letters; Waldo Frank Munson; Phantom, Hauptmann; Work, Zola; postage extra, $5 orders, postpaid; catalogues monthly. Stuyvesant 0995.

LANGTON BOOKSHOP, 647 LEXINGTON Av., offers Andersen's Fairy Tales, Nielsen illustrations, limited, artist's signature, vellum, $12.50; Morris, Arts and Crafts, London, 1899, $3; Eden Phillpotts, Girl and Faun, Brangwyn's illustrations, limited, author and artist signatures, $12.50; Brangwyn's Bookplates, $10; Lanzi's History of Painting, 6 volumes, London, 1828, $20; Rackham's Sleeping Beauty, $2.50; Rackham's Shakespeare's Tempest, $3.50; Gollancz's Tophet and Eden, $3.50; Rossetti's Dante's Vita, illustrated, $3.50; Vera Willoughby's Vision of Greece, limited, $10; Burns's Complete Works, finely illustrated, beautiful morocco binding, $10; Cowley's Works, Faithorne's portrait, coeval calf, small folio, London, 1681, $20; Pope's Works, coeval calf, London, 1753, 9 volumes, fine set, $35; all fine copies.

SCHULTE'S BARGAINS—COUNT GRAMmont's Memoirs, illustrated, limited edition, $6; Walpole's Castle of Otranto and Mysterious Mother, colorplates, limited edition, $6.50; Koechlin-Migeon's Oriental Art, 100 large colorplates, $6.50; Sharp-Oppe's Historical Survey of Dancing in Europe, colorplates, $5; Macquoid's Four Centuries Children's Costume, colorplates, 3 volumes, $3.50; Clifford's Junk Snupper, adventures of antique collector, $2; Don Marquis' Out of the Sea, first edition, $1; George Bernard Shaw's On Going to Church, privately printed, Hillacre, 1915, $2.50; James Thomson's Poems, including City of Dreadful Night, $1.25; Ezra Pound's Lustra, first edition, $1.75; James Oppenheim's The Sea (collected poetry), $1; catalogues free. Schulte's Bookstore, 80 4th Av. (10th St.).

SOUTHERN COLLECTION OF FIVE thousand books, pamphlets, manuscripts, all relating to North Carolina from Colonial days to date, is offered to some institution; price five thousand dollars; selections also considered; catalogue 50 cents; also fine collections relating Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Tennessee. Aldine Book Company, 1,873 61st St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

FEBRUARY BOOK SALE, BOOKS AT reduced prices—Physiology of Marriage (Balzac), $1.60; History of Noted Pirates, $1.60; My Dear Girl, illustrated, $1.90; Kuprin's Gambrinus, $2; Huysman's Against the Grain, $3; send for list of unusual books at unusual prices. Charlotte Book Company, 307 5th Av., New York City.

IRISH PEDIGREES, 2 VOLUMES, 2,000 pages, by John O'Hart, Ltd. American edition, contains the pedigree stem of every Irish family entitled to Heraldic Honors. Over 1,100 coats of arms in their proper colors. Price $18. Free 50-page booklet on request. Murphy & McCarthy, 86 Walker St., New York.

THAT BOOK YOU WANT! WE HOLD 2,000,000 of the best books—new, second-hand, out-of-print, rare—all subjects. Also sets of authors. Catalogues free (25 issued). Outline requirements and interests. Books sent on approval. Foyles, Charing Cross Road, London, England.

BOOK COLLECTORS—CLARK'S STANdard Slip Cases will care for your books and pamphlets. Low priced, durable and attractive. Circular on request. The Glens Falls Paper Products Company, Glens Falls, N. Y.

BALZAC'S DROLL STORIES, COMPLETE translation with 425 illustrations, $7.80; Boccaccio's Decameron, complete edition, illustrated, $7.80. Renaissance Book Company, 131 West 23d St., New York City.

ESCO BOOK SERVICE, 151 5TH AV. New York, offers: Satyricon of Petronius, translations, ascribed to Oscar Wilde ($10), special $4.85; free list of unusual books.

AMERICANA, ESPECIALLY LINCOLNiana, Western and Southern local items. New list ready. D. H. Newhall, 100 East 42d St., New York.

BOOKS OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS, AMERican, German, French, art magazine periodicals. Catalogue 10 cents. Landau Library, 211 East 14th, N. Y.

CORRESPONDENCE COURSE—TEXTbooks bought, sold, exchanged; bargain catalogue free. Hanfling, T-790 Broadway, New York.

DECAMERON, RABELAIS, $1.50 EACH; send for free list of unusual books. Spear Book Company, 507 5th Av., New York City.

O'MALLEY'S BOOK STORE, 329 COlumbus Av., 75th St.—Large stock of good old and new books. Reasonable prices and expert service. Open evenings.

TOMLINSON'S ALL OUR YESTERDAYS, first edition, $6.50; write for unique catalogue now ready. Argosy Bookstores, Inc., 45 4th Av., New York.

O'FLAHERTY, RETURN OF THE Brute, first edition, $2.50. Gotham Book Mart, 51 West 47th St.

SEND FOR OUR CATALOGUE OF UNusual items. Alpha Book Co., 17 East 14th St., New York.

20% DISCOUNT, POSTPAID, ANY book published (texts 10%). Book Bazaar, 1,743 47th St., Brooklyn.

WRITE FOR LIST OF RARE WESTERN Americana. M. H. Briggs, 506 South Wabash, Chicago.

WRITE FOR LIST OF REAL BARgains in modern first editions. Address W 571 Times.

JUST RECEIVED A MEDICAL LIBRARY. Davis Bookstore, 83 4th Av.

Bargain Offers.

DAVIS' BARGAINS—DURANT, MANsions of Philosophy, $3. Drinkwater, Pilgrim of Eternity. Byron, A Conflict, $2.50. Elson, Book of Musical Knowledge, $3. Lodge, Survival of Man, $2. Burton, Anatomy of Melancholy, $2.75. Kellock, Houdini, $2.25. Hammond, English Verse between Chaucer and Surrey, $4. Summers, The Vampire, $3.50. Poe, complete works in one vol., india paper, flexible leather, $3.50. Fay, Franklin, the Apostle of Modern Times, $2.50. Sandburg, American Songbag, $4.50. Hall, Well of Loneliness, $4. Gann, Discoveries and Adventure in Central America, $3. Sunderland, India in Bondage, $2.50. Horton, Recollections (Mediterranean Consul), $2.50. Krassnoff, From Double Eagle to Red Flag, 2 vols., $3.50. Van Loon, Fall of the Dutch Republic, $3. Amundsen and Ellsworth, First Crossing of the Polar Sea, $2.50. Ostrander, History of Brooklyn, $4. Levermore, Forerunners and Competitors of the Pilgrims and Puritans, $5. Catalogue ready. Davis' Bookstore, 83 4th Av.

DRASTIC REDUCTIONS—MENNINGER'S Human Mind, $3.95; Dimnet's Art of Thinking, $1.95; Is Sex Necessary, $1.60; Great Russian, French or German Short Stories, $2.35 each; Nitti's Escape, $1.95; Robert Graves's Good-Bye to All That, $2.35; Robert Graves's Poetry, 3 volumes, boxed, $2.95; Bulliet's Venus Castina, Alexander King illustrations, limited, $12; Gautier's One of Cleopatra's Nights, $1.50; La Fontaine's Tales and Novels, unabridged, 2 volumes, $5.50; Gilles de Rais, $2; Balzac's Droll Stories, completely translated, over 400 illustrations, $4.75; all books perfectly new and original editions; no cheap reprints; catalogue of book bargains issued. Gryphon Book Service, 63 Court St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

SENSATIONAL PRE-SPRING SALE OF our entire stock; prices drastically reduced; here are some of our bargains—Oscar Wilde's Intentions, $1.50; Rabelais, Decameron, Rousseau, Droll Stories, $1.50 each; Priapus (Aiken), $1; Arts of Cheating, $1.75; Great American Ass (anonymous), $2.50; Vampires and Vampirism, $2.25; Pagan Poems ($10), special $4.25; Monsieur Croche (Debussy), $1.90; Story of the Mormons, $4; Wanderings in Arabia, $2.75; Carpenter's Iolaus, completee, $1.75; Stendhal's Lamiel, $2; Rousseau's Reveries of a Solitary, $4; send for our catalogue of real bargains. Field Book Service, Inc., 1,261 Broadway, New York City.

FRIEDMAN'S SPECIAL OFFER—Browning, 6 volumes, $7.50; Modern Achievement, 10 volumes, $7.50; Campbell's Lives of Lord Chancellors, 10 volumes, $12.50; Ainsworth, 20 volumes, limited edition, $22.50; Makers of Literature, 32 volumes, $18; Crevier's History of Roman Emperors, 10 volumes, 1814, $12; Whittier, 9 volumes, $8.50; Irving, 20 volumes, national edition, $20; Markham, Real American in Romance, 13 volumes, $24.50; Webster, 6 volumes, $10; Historians' History of the World, 25 volumes, $32.50; send for 20% sale catalogue of first editions and others. Friedmans', 53 West 50th St., New York.

DAUBER & PINE BOOKSHOPS, THE meeting place of all booklovers, carry the largest and most interesting stock of second-hand, rare and old books on all subjects; first editions, fine sets, choice bindings, Americana, rare and unusual items at reasonable prices; visit our attractive shop or write for free catalogues specifying your interests. Dauber & Pine Bookshops, Inc., 66 5th Av. (at 12th St.), New York. Open until 10 P. M. In our annex (around the corner, 8 West 13th St.), you'll find thousands of good books at 10 cents to $1.

BUSINESS & TEXTBOOK CO., 152 West 42d St., New York—New books only; business books of every description for employer, executive, employe, student; books on management, accounting, finance, commercial law, real estate, advertising, secretarial duties, excellent books on investing in stocks, merchandising, banking, reference and handbooks. Write your wants.

Rare and First Editions

RECENT CATALOGUES FREE ON REquest; old colored aquatints of English scenes, modern first editions, old books, gardening and botany. Apply Dulau & Co., 32 Old Bond St., London. (Established 1792.)

CURIOUS, UNUSUAL AND EXTRAORdinary books; Americana, autographs. Write for catalogues; state own wants and interests. Union Square Bookshop, 30 East 14th St., New York City.

SEND FOR OUR CATALOGUE OF FIRST editions, Americana, private presses and unusual books. Corner Bookshop, 120 4th Av. (corner 12th St.), New York. Telephone Algonquin 8308.

BENJAMIN HAUSER, 60 EAST 42D ST., New York, has released his newest catalogue of modern first editions which will be sent on request.

RARE BOOKS, AUTOGRAPHS, AMERIcana and prints, bought and sold; lists mailed of interest to collectors. F. J. Benedicks, 123 East 27th St., New York.

FIRST EDITIONS, AUTOGRAPHED AND association copies, manuscripts and rare books. Phoenix Bookshop, 41 East 49th St., New York.

RARE BOOKS, FIRST EDITIONS, AUTOgraphed copies, old maps; catalogues gratis. Antiquarian Book Co., Birkenhead, England.

RARE BOOKS, FIRST EDITIONS; AUtographed letters; catalogues according to specified interests sent on request. Harry Stone, 24 East 58th. New York.

TOBACCO—VALUABLE COLLECTION; 300 books and pamphlets; Machen, Thorious, &c. 1,480 Broadway, Room 510.

Educational

WHAT DOES YOUR STORY NEED TO make it salable? To writers of prose and poetry is offered our dignified, competent literary service which, in its "Five-step" plan accords you complete assistance from first reading, through revision and marketing. You incur no obligation by sending your manuscript. Hydra Book Corp., Dept. 92, 100 5th Av., N. Y. C.

HOME STUDY TEXTS, ALL SCHOOLS and subjects, sold complete at bargain prices, because slightly used; write for free catalogue. Economy Educator Service, B112 East 19th St., New York.

CZECHOSLOVAK CHILDREN'S BOOKS, in English, colorfully illustrated. Szalatnay, 542 East 79th, city.

Advertising rate 17 cents a word.

Books Wanted

THOMS & ERON, INC.—A CORPORAtion with experience of thirty years in New York City, dealing in the fine editions of Standard Sets, old and rare books and other literary property, &c., &c., are the largest buyers and distributers of standard works in sets and second-hand books in this country. We are in the market to buy for spot cash books in large or small quantities and entire private libraries. We especially desire limited sets, editions de luxe, Encyclopaedia Britannica, Book of Knowledge, Harvard Classics, &c., &c. Absolutely the highest prices paid. Our buyers make calls by appointment to appraise and pay cash for purchases. Books packed and removed promptly at our expense by our expert packers. In competition we have bought some of the largest private libraries that have ever been sold, and can furnish convincing recommendations that our dealings are fair to those disposing of their books. If you have a large private library anywhere in the United States and want to get New York prices for your books, which are better than those you can secure from local dealers, it will pay you to communicate with us. Executors of estates having books to dispose of should get in touch with us. The advantages accruing to the seller of books in dealing with a large concern are obvious. Thoms & Eron, Inc., 89 Chambers St., near B'way, New York. Telephone Worth 0367-0368-0369.

MADISON BOOKSTORE IS ALWAYS prepared to purchase large libraries, small collections of desirable books, and even single outstanding items, at the best current prices. We are particularly eager to obtain fine and well-bound sets of Dickens, Mark Twain, Kipling, Conrad, O. Henry and other eminent authors; the Harvard Classics and the Book of Knowledge; rare Americana, Anthropology, Art, Classics, First and Limited issues of English and American authors, Philosophy, Mythology, old Colorplate and Sport books, Private Presses, Manuscript, Autograph and Association material of a literary character; late editions of such encyclopedias as the Britannica, New International, Catholic and Jewish, as well as good miscellaneous books of every description. We are conducting two of the finest old and rare bookshops in the city (Madison and Savoy), located in the heart of the literary and art world for 20 years. Our trade is tremendous and our stock is constantly in need of replenishing. We arrange to have our buyers call at your convenience and estimate, and if offer is found satisfactory, they will pay immediate cash and remove books by automobile without any expense or annoyance to you. Careful consideration is given to out-of-town lists of saleable books. Madison Bookstore, 55 East 59th St. Telephone Volunteer 2130-2131 and Savoy Bookstore, 123 East 59th St. Telephone Volunteer 3079.

DAUBER & PINE BOOKSHOPS, INC., known as the largest and most interesting rare and old bookshop in the city, desire to purchase for cash, and will be glad to pay full market value for entire libraries or small collections of valuable books. We are always interested in fine library sets, rare, early and first editions of esteemed American and English authors; autographs, manuscripts and association copies; books, pamphlets, maps, runs of newspapers and magazines referring to American history, exploration, travels, the Indians, the West and South, State, local and family histories; natural history, sport and colorplate books; fine and applied arts; typography and fine presses; general literature; the classics, history; philosophy, occult sciences and magic; anthropology and folklore; early Christian Science, and all other literary property. Those having books for sale, owners, estates, executors, will do well to communicate with us, as our reputation assures them a fair and satisfactory deal. We call anywhere, pay spot caan and remove books promptly at our expense. All calls receive prompt and personal attention. You cannot afford to sell your books without getting our estimate. Phone, call or write Dauber & Pine Bookshops, Inc., 64-66 5th Av., near 12th St. Phone Algonquin 7880-7881.

BOOKS BOUGHT IN ANY QUANTITY. The Carnegie Hall Bookshop, Incorporated, one of the largest book stores in New York, located in the most exclusive shopping centre in the city, desires to purchase complete libraries or small collections of books. Our enormous retail outlet requires our constant hunt for new libraries and enables us to offer you better prices than the smaller dealers. We are especially interested in purchasing first editions of the outstanding English and American authors, autograph letters, manuscripts of authors, statesmen or other celebrities; complete sets, de luxe editions and miscellaneous books on art, architecture, music, philosophy, anthropology, Americana, &c. Estimates for your books cheerfully given. Our representatives will call anywhere. Cash paid and prompt removal. For information phone, write or call. The Carnegie Hall Bookshop, Inc., 158 West 57th St. Telephone Circle 8370.

BOOKS WANTED—CASH; IMMEDIATE removal with automobile; no packing; call promptly; entire libraries, small quantities, old, modern, miscellaneous books; fiction, sets, specialized collections, music, autographs, stamps; purchases made with desire of recommendation to others. Hart, 164 West 116th, New York. Monument 7568.

ORIENTAL—ANY BOOKS, JOURNALS, &c., about Asia, wanted; especially volumes of China Review and Chinese Repository; also Perry's Japan Expedition, 3 volumes. Kegan Paul, booksellers, 38 Great Russell St., London, England.

FIRST EDITIONS, AUTOGRAPHED letters and manuscripts James Fenimore Cooper, H. D. Thoreau, E. A. Poe, J. M. Barrie, G. B. Shaw; wanted for immediate cash. Harry Stone, 24 East 58th St.

WANTED—SET OF ROSENTHAL OR language phone records and books for instruction in French; also German set; state price wanted and describe their condition in reply. G. F. S., 1015 Highland Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

BARTLETT'S, AN OLD BOSTON FIRM, established 1839, buys books of all kinds, pays honest prices promptly; correspondence invited. 37 Cornhill, Boston.

WANTED — FOR HUSBANDS ONLY, short story, by G. B. Stern, appeared 1915 in Parisienne Magazine. Urgent. Tel. Circle 7100. Scenario department.

BOOKS WANTED IN ANY QUANTITY. Will pay good prices. Address W 570 Times.

DAMATO'S BOOKSTORE, 165 EAST 24TH St. Books bought and sold. Lexington 4046.

HIGHEST PRICES PAID FOR FINE sets and rare books. Thoms & Eron, Inc., 89 Chambers St., near B'way, N. Y.

SEND 10c FOR LIST OF GRAMMARS and dictionaries wanted. Benj. F. Gravely, Martinsville, Virginia.

Books Wanted

SCHULTE'S BOOKSTORE BUYS BOOKS, one or thousands; New York's largest second-hand bookstore gives full value for libraries or small lots; expert appraisals by courteous and experienced men who do not haggle over prices; all purchases carted away at our expense; particularly wanted: Fine sets, rare books, autographs, manuscripts, first editions and all literary property of the better kind. Call, write or phone, Schulte's Bookstore, 80 4th Av. Algonquin 2550.

WILL PURCHASE FINE SETS AND rare books. Guy Stonestreet, 507 5th Av., New York.

ASK FOR MY LONG LIST OF BOOKS wanted. Dunbar, Rowena St., Boston.

Literature of Other Nations

THE UNITED FRENCH PUBLISHERS, specially organized for the benefit of libraries, universities, public institutions and boards of education; all French books direct from France; no stock; strictly mail orders; information and catalogues upon request and production of credentials. 1,819 Broadway. Columbus 1551.

EUROPEAN PUBLICATIONS, LARGEST assortment newspapers, magazines, books from all parts of the world; open evenings, Sundays. Overseas Publications, Inc., 1187 6th Av. (between 46th and 47th Sts.). Telephone Bryant 5722. Catalogues on request.

THE ENGLISH ILLUSTRATED MAGAzines delivered to any address in the United States at English prices; also the art, architectural and technical publications at English prices; a few exceptions only. The Empire Press, Walkerville, Ont., Canada.

FRENCH BOOKS OF ALL FRENCH publishers, over 500,000 in stock, lowest prices. Mail orders promptly. Catalogue 20c (stamps). The French Bookshop, 556 Madison Av. at 56th. "New York's largest French Bookshop."

THE FRENCH BOOK STORE, 556 MADIson Av., at 56th, New York, always in the market to buy cash valuable French books and libraries. Generous prices paid for really out-of-the-way and unusual books.

VISIT OR WRITE THE FRENCH BOOKman, 202 West 96th St. (near Broadway). "Headquarters for French Books and Magazines." Careful, prompt attention and reasonable prices; bargain catalogue, 5 cents (stamps).

FRENCH, GERMAN, ITALIAN, SPANish books. Catalogues free. State language desired. Schoenhof's, 387 Washington St., Boston, Mass. Established 1856.

GERMAN BOOKS — LARGE, DIVERSIfied stock, catalogue 10,000 titles upon request, also bargain list. Beyer's, 8 East 29th St., New York.

LIBRAIRIE FRANCAISE, COIN DE France, 66 West 51st St., New York. Everything in books and French magazines; mail orders; open evenings.

SWEDISH, NORWEGIAN AND DANISH Books, music and cards. Books in English by Scandinavian authors. Catalogues free. Bonnier's, 561 3d Av.

SPANISH—EN BUSCA DEL GRAN KAN (Unknown Lands), by Ibanez, $1.10; catalogue. Libreria Gomez, 42 7th Av., city.

FOREIGN NEWS DEPOT, TIMES BUILDing, headquarters for newspapers and magazines from all parts of the world. Telephone Bryant 8336.

Out-of-Print

OUT-OF-PRINT LIBRARY SERVICE, Times Building, New York, America's largest out of print book supply. Large stocks on hand in our book warehouses for immediate delivery. If unsuccessful elsewhere try us for that book or magazine you want. We are also large buyers of old books and libraries and pay good prices. Either in buying or selling, advise us always. Telephone Bryant 2034.

LIST YOUR BOOK NEEDS WITH US without charge or obligation. Out of print and rare books, genealogies, English publications, National Geographics, supplied promptly. Lowest prices. National Bibliophile Service, 347 Fifth Av., N. Y. Caledonia 0047.

BOOKS, FIRST EDITIONS, RARE AND out of print, supplied, any subject; state wants; 100,000 in stock. Catalogues free. Baker's Great Bookshop, John Bright St., Birmingham, England. Established 1884.

DAUBER & PINE BOOKSHOPS, INC., 66 Fifth Avenue, New York. Specialists in out-of-print and rare books. Intelligent service and reasonable prices. Telephone Algonquin 7880-7881.

KESPERT, CHARLES — OUT-OF-PRINT books supplied. Catalogue. 62 Catawba. Boston, Mass.

OUT-OF-PRINT BOOKS. STAMMER. Bookhunter, 61 4th Av., New York. Telephone Stuyvesant 2448.

OUT-OF-PRINT BOOKS FURNISHED. Catalogues issued. E. R. Robinson, 410 River St., Troy, N. Y.

Books for Writers

GAMALIEL BRADFORD WRITES ON "Biography as a Fine Art" in the February Writer (Pioneer magazine for authors). Other features: Rules of a new contest for Modern Fables; prizes for book reviews; latest manuscript tips from editors; literary contests totaling more than $66,000. "The One Indispensable Magazine for Writing People." Send $1.00 for 5-month, subscription (yearly rate $3.00, 25 cents at newsstands) and list of 100 Markets for Articles. The Writer, Harvard Square, Cambridge, Mass.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE OF THE Writer's Library, sample copy of The Writer's Monthly and particulars of Dr. Esenwein's famous forty-lesson course in Short-Story Writing free; write today. The Home Correspondence School, Dept. 26, Springfield, Mass.

MANUSCRIPTS—CRITICISM, REVISION typing, marketing; 25 years as writer, editor, publisher; 30 writers' textbooks; catalogue. James Knapp Reeve (Founder The Editor), Dept. T, Franklin, Ohio.

Code Books

GENERAL TELEGRAPH CODE IMproved; complies with new cable regulations; most complete code published; copy submitted for examination. The Business Code Co., 2 Rector St., New York.

BENSINGER, CABLE CODE, DEALERS, 15 Whitehall St., New York; everything in telegraphic codes.

Specialists

THE BOOKS YOU CAN'T GET ELSEwhere may be rented for a nominal fee! Members throughout the United States have access to a collection of rare, scarce, unusual out-of-print and curious books chosen largely by themselves. Limited editions, privately printed items, unabridged translations and exceptional reprints may be had through this entirely unique service. You may now read without buying, at moderate cost, both the quaint old books and the extraordinary new ones. Please state occupation or profession when writing for information and lists. Esoterika Biblion, Inc., Dept. A2, 45 West 45th St., New York City.

STILLWELL'S HISTORICAL AND GENealogical Miscellany relating to N. J., 4 volumes, new, $15; Brantz Mayers, Mexico, &c., 2 volumes, $3.50; Stevens, Central America, &c., 2 volumes, $3.50; Kane's Arctic Explorations, &c., 2 volumes, $3.50; Shourd's History of Fenwicks Colony New Jersey, $17.50; Johnson's History of Salem, N. J., $17.50; Heston's History of Atlantic City and County, N. J., $15; N. J. historical and genealogical books always in stock. Send us your wants. F. N. Culmer, Box 8, Palmyra, N. J.

THE NORTH NODE BOOKSHOP, 30 EAST 60th St., N. Y. C., books on Occultism, Mysticism, Metaphysics, Astrology, The Kabbalah, The Tarot, Hermetics, Alchemy, Symbolism, The Rosicrucians, Theosophy, Comparative Religions, Ancient Civilizations, Mythology, Folklore and kindred subjects—old, rare and out of print, new and contemporary.

MASONIC BOOKS, BIBLES, MONITORS; books on strange subjects; Masonic and Eastern Star jewelry, novelties, leather goods; visit our store; free reading room; send for "Masonic Readers' Guide." Macoy Publishing and Masonic Supply Co., 35 West 32d St., New York.

ROSICRUCIAN WISDOM TEACHINGS direct from the fraternity itself; extension courses in spiritual science and mysticism guide to constructive living and self-development; booklet on request. Society of Rosicrucians, Inc., 420 City Hall Station, New York.

THE ROSICRUCIANS—FACTS NOT FICtion; who and what they are according to history and their own teachings; literature mailed on request. Philosophical Publishing Co., Beverly Hall, Quakertown, Pa.

MASONIC BOOKS, MONITORS, HIStories, &c. Come in and visit our book shelves. Send for Catalog T. Redding Masonic Supply Co., 200 Fifth Av., New York.

AMERICANA, GENEALOGIES, LAW books, libraries, bought and sold; catalogues furnished. Illinois Book Exchange, Hunter Building, Chicago.

OVERLAND NARRATIVES, THE INdians, Slavery, the Civil War. Catalogs on request. Cadmus Book Shop, 342 West 34th St., New York.

WHO WERE YOUR ANCESTORS? FAMilies traced. Write S. A. Merriam, Genealogist, 50 Waldron Court, Marblehead, Mass.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LITERATURE bought and sold. Rare Book Company, 99 Nassau St., New York.

SEXOLOGY; PSYCHOANALYSIS; CATAlogue 10c. Book League, 47 West 42d, New York. Established 1899.

Professional Services

WHAT DOES YOUR STORY NEED TO make it salable? To writers of prose and poetry is offered our dignified, competent literary service which, in its "Five-step" plan accords you complete assistance from first reading, through revision and marketing. You incur no obligation by sending your manuscript. Hydra Book Corp., Dept. 92, 100 5th Av., N. Y. C.

SELL YOUR STORY! FOR ADEQUATE representation among talking picture producers, New York market, send your stories promptly. No special form, theme, dialogue or length required. The story is the thing! Correspondence invited. Daniel O'Malley Company, 1776 Broadway, New York.

SPECIAL ARTICLES, REVIEWS, PApers, prepared for busy professionals, on literary, educational and other subjects; prompt, scholarly service. Authors' Research Bureau, 516 5th Av., New York.

MATHILDE WEIL, LITERARY ADviser. Books, short stories, articles and verse criticized and marketed; special department for plays and motion pictures. The Writers' Workshop, Inc., 135 East Fifty-eighth St., New York City.

AUTHORS' PUBLICATION SERVICE—Will make your manuscripts into books for you; exceptional facilities; estimates given. Walton Book Co., 143 West 41st St., New York.

AUTHOR'S TYPING SERVICE; MANUscripts, plays, parts, by one who understands; quick service; reasonable rates. Natalie Gural, 145 West 45th. Bryant 7219.

MANUSCRIPT TYPING SERVICE—EXcellently typewritten manuscripts; misspelled words, mispunctuations, &c., corrected; very moderate rates. Pauline Resnikoff, 113 West 42d St., New York.

SHIPMAN SERVICE FOR WRITERS (Est. 1921). Complete service for writers; reading, revising, editing, typing, selling; nominal rates. 814 Times Building, New York City. Bryant 4896.

WRITER - PUBLISHER FOR FIFTY years, will criticize manuscripts and advise writers. Chester Clark, 811 Murdoch, Parkersburg, W. Va.

AN INTELLIGENT SERVICE FOR Writers. Advice; Selling. McIntosh & Otis, Inc., 112 West 42d St., New York.

EXPERT TYPING OF MANUSCRIPTS, neatly, accurately, promptly; 45 cents per thousand words. Telephone Flushing 7744. 109 Botanic Place, Flushing.

EXPERIENCED EDITOR, WRITER, proofreader, stenographer; work home or office. Olcott. Cathedral 8821, Apartment 61-2.

HOW TO TRACE YOUR OWN ANCEStry, detailed instructions, information sources; book, $1. S. Merriam, Marblehead, Mass.

PICTURE FRAMING, COMPLETE LINE, latest moldings, shown at your residence; orders taken and delivered. Stuyvesant 9797.

THEATRE REPRESENTATIVE DESIRES plays meriting immediate production. Theatre Cooperative Service, 1,520 Broadway.

MANUSCRIPT TYPING, LONG EXPERIence; 50c per 1,000 words. Gertrude Campbell, 211 West 102d. Clarkson 5157.

Marine Publications

SHIP MODEL BUILDING, PROFUSELY illustrated; circular free. Marine Research Society, Dept. 3, Salem, Mass.

Continued on Following Page

Thomas Sergeant Perry, A Boston Brahmin

His Selected Letters Give a Picture of a Vanishing Type And Its Set of Standards.

LETTERS OF THOMAS SERGEANT PERRY. Selected and edited with an introduction by Edwin Arlington Robinson. With frontispiece. 255 pp. New York: The Macmillan Company. $3.

By KATHERINE WOODS

THIS is the portrait of a Bostonian. A portrait, that is to say, of that particular type of gentleman and scholar which still comes to our mind when the word "Bostonian" is heard. A portrait, not of a person who lives in Boston, or who represents the things that Boston suggests most quickly to us, today, but of a man who stands for a definite, an almost if not quite vanished, kind of personality, mind, set of standards. Thomas Sergeant Perry was a great Bostonian as Weir Mitchell was a great Philadelphian. Both men were lately living, and Perry died very recently. Yet it almost seems as if their civilization itself had died also. Certainly the words "Philadelphian" and "Bostonian" are historic words and the selected letters of Thomas Sergeant Perry constitute a historic document.

He was, John Addington Symonds told Edmund Gosse, "one of the most bright-souled students of literature in America." He was a great scholar, who read everything that he found worth reading, who studied Russian in middle life so that he might read great Russian literature, as he read other literatures, classic and modern, in the original tongue. He was a great gentleman, who found it easy and simple to get along with a Ford car, but could not get along with mob thinking or bad manners or crudity or slovenliness in thought or speech or life. He was a man of violent prejudices, who none the less kept his important public ideas and convictions untrammeled by personal dislike and uninfluenced by personal friendship. He was a realist and an aristocrat. With the general ideals and desires and ambitions, the tolerances and intolerances, of this day with our short-cuts to proficiency in half-known facts, our materialistic standards, our sentimentalized opinions, our Puritanism and its antitheses, our self-conceit and our idiotic optimism and our syrupy hypocrisy, he could have nothing to do. And yet he believed that we can win out of it. He could believe in the possibilities of progress, even though he was impatient of, or failed to understand or even to see, some of the factors which do make for very real progress today.

He was first, Edwin Arlington Robinson tells us, a man of books; books were to him like human beings. Yet it is not merely as a man of books—it is scarcely at all as a man of books per se—that he lives vividly for us in these letters, but as a man of thought, a man thinking, moreover, of questions and conditions which are vital in the world. He was, too, a "many-sided" man. His comments on life and character are keen and suggestive, as when he wrote during the Dayton trial, "I have a tremendous respect for science. * * * Remember, it is the one manifestation of human thought in which one struggles to find one's self wrong. That is to its credit," and when he expressed his feeling about democracy in the sentence, "Root is a very able and very wise man, and it is very strange that he has risen so high in spite of these obstacles." And then there are delightful bits of sheer humanity, such as his praise of French cooking, to which he adds:

> Yet, so mysterious are the ways of Providence, this culinary skill, which is one of the brightest ornaments of France, is one source of its weakness. It is one of the little ties that (as happened to Gulliver) binds the Frenchman to his soil and make him incapable of living elsewhere. The Englishman is glad to leave home. He can't feed worse anywhere else and so he conquers the world.

And, by way of another contrast, the correspondence with William James over the reading of "Varieties of Religious Experience" and "Pragmatism" is charming. Perry was not a philosopher, and he was always frank; but he was also urbane, as he was witty.

The letters are grouped wholly by their recipients, not chronologically, an arrangement which is a bit confusing. Naturally, as time went on, Mr. Perry's views changed on several subjects. In the arrangement of the letters we go back to the beginning, so to speak, a good many times. The outstanding development, of course, was in his feeling about his own country, from his first young ardency of "Americanism," through his distress over our neutrality in the war, his sense of national shame at the repudiation of the Treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations, and his discouragement over later examples of national selfishness and self-conceit. "We are the worst winners in the world," he said, bitterly, and in another letter, in 1923.

> I am sorry this country so persistently makes itself detested. It holds an odious position, combining extreme selfishness with practical unwisdom. The country is so large, the mass is so great, that any change of opinion is very slow; but I am sure one will come. I hope not too late. * * *

He loved his country, suffered over it, had faith in what was good in it, held to his hope and began to see the beginning of better things.

Thomas Sergeant Perry.

His prejudices were extremely conspicuous, and they ranged all the way from Wagner's music to woman suffrage. The outstanding one of them all was his intense dislike of Woodrow Wilson. And yet that very disapproval, which was both bitter and extravagant, brings out one fine trait in Thomas Sergeant Perry, the thinker and the man. Not all his prejudice against Wilson could turn him against the League of Nations, or could sway his public ideals. Not all his warm personal friendship for Henry Cabot Lodge could win him to support of Lodge's stand. After inveighing repeatedly against Wilson's "obstinacy" and "tactlessness," he wrote, in the sad days of 1921, to a friend in Europe to whom he was trying to explain matters here, "Lodge has a narrow vision, and is as obstinate as Wilson." And of an article written by another personal acquaintance, "He is a worshiper of Roosevelt, and would kill Wilson slowly with his own hands. I am fond of him, though I am far from sharing his simple taste for the blood of his enemies. He can't help exaggerating. * * *" Prejudiced, yes, but not sentimental, nor inconsistent; in spite of prejudice, a fundamentally honest thinker; never swayed to mob "thought." To the present reviewer, who was a supporter of Wilson and a worker for woman suffrage, and who quite disagrees with Mr. Perry's opinion of George Bernard Shaw, while sharing his feeling about the movies, these prejudices do not detract from admiration of Mr. Perry's processes and his passionate sincerity.

The letters are addressed to a number of interesting people, among them Moorfield Storey, John T. Morse Jr. and Mr. Perry's son-in-law, Joseph C. Grew. Edwin Arlington Robinson's introduction is a piece of the fine and incisive and beautiful writing which one expects when a great poet writes prose. The book is valuable as portrait and as history.

When England Was Fighting for Dominion in India

THE CAMBRIDGE HISTORY OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE. Vol. IV. British India 1497-1858. Edited by H. H. Dodwell, M. A. 683 pp. New York: The Macmillan Company. $8.

WHEN Prince Henry the Navigator was training his pilots and forecasting their voyages along the coasts of a dim and little-known world, he must have been indeed both seer and poet if he had any inkling of the magnificent twin adventure that was to spring out of his imaginative plans. Every one in the United States is sufficiently instructed as to the great voyage of 1492, whether as a student at school or as an immigrant who has in a measure repeated the brave undertaking of Columbus and discovered this New World. But not enough is known of the companion voyage of 1497, through which Vasco da Gama and his followers succeeded in the adventure in which Columbus in fact failed; the finding of a new way to the Indies, to circumvent the blocking of the old way across the Isthmus of Suez, which had been seized by the conquering Turks. The virtue of the volume under review is that it at least gives magnificent and stimulating glimpses into the eastern half of the twin epic which Prince Henry's school of seamen has given to the world.

Both voyages, that of 1492 and that of 1497, had the same goal. It is quaintly worded by an early chronicler of Vasco da Gama, who tells us that the original idea underlying the mission of 1497 was "to find spices and Christians." But, in point of fact, the first aim was not spices in general but one particular condiment; not cinnamon and nutmegs, mace and cloves, but pepper. That was the spice that launched a thousand ships, and, because Columbus sought the lands of pepper and was under the mistaken impression that he had found them, the name "Indian" is even today written across the Western World. It was pepper that Vasco da Gama sought when he felt his perilous way around the Cape of Storms, which, following the superstitious precedent of the old Greek navigators of the Euxine, was thereafter named the Cape of Good Hope. It was pepper that the emulous Hollanders had in mind when they followed in Vasco's wake. It was pepper that the English desired when they in their turn pursued the Dutchmen. And it was the English failure to oust the merchant seamen of Holland from the island stronghold of pepper that sent the forerunners of Clive and Warren Hastings to the mainland of India in quest of alternative commodities. Therefore the writers of the economic theory of history might justly emblazon the one word "pepper," not at the head of one chapter, but at the opening of an epoch.

Many of us have a certain general acquaintance with the later doings of the English in India, perhaps through what Macaulay later called his "flashy" essays on Clive and Warren Hastings or through the famous campaign of Burke. This is the book to make that knowledge precise and detailed, and to develop, especially on the economic side, some of the results that ensued to India. And, even though the story is not really "British" for more than a century after the first date given on the title page, we think it a singular merit in the historians of this volume that they have given a richly colored account of the earlier doings of the Portuguese and Dutch. Many of us, perhaps, have the impression that the great history of Portuguese colonial empire closed long ago, but there are fossil relics of that period still in the Indian peninsula: At Goa, which is a considerable settlement; at Daman to the north of Bombay, and on the island of Diu, where the Portuguese Almeida won a great naval battle 420 years ago. For four centuries and more Portugal has held these posts, and their history is now excellently told.

After 1600 the English became a growing power in the Eastern seas, rivaled on the oceans by the daring captains of the Netherlands, who, more than sixty years later, sailed their warships up the Thames and menaced London. And it is worth remembering that Holland had a circlet of rich colonies around the globe, in Guiana, South Africa, Ceylon and among the Malayan islands, large sections of which colonies fell to Britain during the period when revolutionary France, at war with England, had taken possession of Holland. Sea power was decisive in changing the world-wide dominion from Dutch to English.

But on land, especially in India, the French were England's potent rivals. And it is interesting to remember that, when England and France were at war in the middle of the eighteenth century, Clive and Colonel Washington were fellow-officers in the same war: while Colonel Clive was planning the decisive victory of Plassey, Washington was wrestling with the problems of Fort Cumberland. Our Cambridge historians do justice to the Frenchmen Dupleix and Bussy in India; they make it quite clear that, had the British not been there, India would now be a colony of France, as is the great island of Madagascar, with its 240,000 square miles a stepping stone to India.

Our historians are so greatly preoccupied with the material results of the English occupation of India that they wholly lose sight of the return wave: the intellectual and spiritual results of that occupation on England and indeed the whole Western world. From their pages we should not gain any inkling of the great part which Warren Hastings played in laying the foundations of Oriental studies through his effective patronage of the Asiatick Society of Bengal. But we may remind ourselves that it was Warren Hastings who, in writing the introduction to Wilkins's translation of the "Bhagavad Gita," recorded his conviction that the Sacred Books of India would survive "when the British dominion in India shall have long ceased to exist, and when the sources which it once yielded of wealth and power are lost to remembrance."

CHARLES JOHNSTON

Latest Books Received

History and Biography

THE BUSINESS BIOGRAPHY OF JOHN WANAMAKER. By Joseph H. Appel. 8vo. New York: The Macmillan Company. $5.

The story of a good business and its founder.

LINCOLN AT GETTYSBURG. By William E. Barton. 8vo. Indianapolis, Ind.: Bobbs-Merrill Company. $4.

"What He Intended to Say; What He Said; What He was Reported to Have Said; What He Wished He Had Said." The foremost Lincoln authority makes an exhaustive investigation of the facts about the famous speech at Gettysburg.

ARNOLD DAMEN, S. J. By Rev. Joseph P. Conroy. 12mo. New York: Benziger Brothers. $2.25.

The Biography of a Pioneer Immigrant Priest, and the story of his mission work in Chicago and the West.

THE LIFE STORY OF KING GEORGE V. By Richard C. Dent. 12mo. New York: E. P. Dutton & Co.

A biography.

I SAW BOOTH SHOOT LINCOLN. By W. J. Ferguson. 8vo. Boston, Mass.: Houghton Mifflin Company. $2.50.

The story of the assassination told by an eye-witness.

THE LIFE OF SOLOMON. By Edmond Fleg. 8vo. New York: E. P. Dutton & Co. $3.

A biography translated from the French.

JEWS WITHOUT MONEY. By Michael Gold. 12mo. New York: Horace Liveright. $3.

Reminiscences of New York's east side.

MASTERS IN MINIATURE. By George C. Jell. 12mo. New York: Barse & Co. $2.

Biographical sketches of the great composers.

THE TRAIL OF THE THREE-NOTCHED ROAD. By M. Ethel Kelley Kern. 12mo. Richmond, Va.: The William Byrd Press, Inc.

The history of an old Indian road in Virginia.

CAPE COD. By Henry C. Kittredge. 8vo. Boston, Mass.: Houghton Mifflin Company. $5.

Its people and their history.

SAVONAROLA. By Piero Misciattelli. 8vo. New York: D. Appleton & Co. $3.

A biography translated from the Italian.

LORD CHESTERFIELD AND HIS LETTERS TO HIS SON. By Temple Scott. 8vo. Indianapolis, Ind.: Arthur Zinkin.

A biographical essay in an edition limited to 200 copies.

LOYALISTS IN EAST FLORIDA, 1774-78. By Wilbur Henry Siebert. 8vo. Deland, Fla.: The Florida State Historical Society. 2 volumes. $14.50.

The most important documents pertaining thereto with an accompanying narrative.

PAGAN REGENERATION. By Harold R. Willoughby. 12mo. Chicago, Ill.: Chicago University Press. $3.

A study of mystery initiations in the Graeco-Roman world.

THE DIARY OF TOLSTOY'S WIFE. Vol. 2. 8vo. New York: Payson & Clarke, Ltd.

The concluding volume of these journals, translated from the Russian.

GREAT ONES OF ANCIENT EGYPT. 8vo. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $10.

Portraits in color by Winifred Brunton. Historical studies by various Egyptologists.

Literature and Essays

HOW TO WRITE GOOD ENGLISH. By Henry Bett. 12mo. New York: Frederick A. Stokes Company. $1.

A handbook dealing with the principles of style.

THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY. Edited by Evert M. Clark. 12mo. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $1.

An anthology of seventeenth-century English literature, with a historical introduction by the editor. A new volume in a series of anthologies under the general title of "English Literature."

RESTORATION TRAGEDY, 1660-1720. By Bonamy Dobree. 12mo. New York: Oxford University Press. $3.

A study in literary history.

THE BOOK OF DIOGENES LAERTIUS. By Richard Hope. 12mo. New York: Columbia University Press. $3.50.

A study of its spirit and method.

CONCERNING "CONDENSED NOVELS." By Bret Harte. 8vo. Stanford University, Cal.: Stanford University Press.

Bibliographical notes by Nathan Van Patten. Edition limited to 150 copies.

AN ANTHOLOGY OF INVECTIVE AND ABUSE. Compiled and edited by Hugh Kingsmill. 12mo. New York: The Dial Press, Inc.

A collection of prose and verse from English and American literature.

ESSAYS IN SATIRE. By Ronald Knox. 12mo. New York: E. P. Dutton & Co. $2.50.

A collection of essays on literary and other topics.

THE ROMANTIC PERIOD. Edited by Albert G. Reed. 12mo. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $1.

An anthology with a historical introduction by the editor. A new volume in a series of anthologies under the general title of "English Literature."

Fiction

STORM. By Leonie Aminoff. 12mo. New York: E. P. Dutton & Co. $3.

A new volume in the author's series of Napoleonic romances; this one deals with the divorce from Josephine and the Russian campaign.

THE WHITE SATIN DRESS. By Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews. 8vo. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. 75 cents.

A Lincoln story.

PAY DAY. By Nathan Asch. 12mo. New York: Brewer & Warren, Inc.

The story of a New York office worker.

RETREAT. By C. R. Benstead. 12mo. New York: The Century Company. $2.50.

A British war story.

LOVE'S ILLUSION. By J. D. Beresford. 12mo. New York: Viking Press. $2.50.

A story of first love.

THE LADYE OF SHALOTTE. By Mary Pelham Gibbs. 12mo. Boston, Mass.: Richard G. Badger.

The story of an unhappy marriage.

THE MISTRESS. By George C. Foster. 12mo. New York: The Macaulay Company. $2.

The story of a woman's life.

CARL AND ANNA. By Leonhard Frank. 12mo. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. $2.

A translation from the German. The novel from which the play of the same name was dramatized.

PENDING HEAVEN. By William Gerhardi. 12mo. New York: Harper & Bros. $2.50.

A comedy of romantic entanglements.

BRIGHT TIGER. By Alice Glasgow. 8vo. New York: The Dial Press. $2.50.

A story of New York in the '60s.

THE MALTESE FALCON. By Dashiell Hammett. 12mo. New York: Alfred A. Knopf. $2.

A detective story.

THE CIRCLE OF VENGEANCE. By Nora and George E. Jorgenson. 12mo. New York: D. Appleton & Co. $2.

A mystery story.

CROWD YOUR LUCK ON DEATH. By Harry Kapustin. 12mo. New York: Harcourt, Brace & Co. $2.50.

Short stories.

PIRATE JEAN. By Reginald Wright Kauffman. 12mo. New York: Macaulay Company. $2.

A romance of old New Orleans.

THE REDEMPTION OF MORLEY DARVILLE. By Stephen McKenna. 12mo. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co. $2.50.

The story of a young literary man in London.

THE MYSTERY OF A BUTCHER'S SHOP. By Gladys Mitchell. 12mo. New York: The Dial Press. $2.

A mystery story.

WHO KILLED CAVELOTTI? By Audrey Newell. 12mo. New York: The Century Company. $2.

A mystery story.

WASTED SALT. By George W. Ogden. 12mo. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co. $2.

A story of the cattle country.

THE AMAZON. By Elliot Paul. 12mo. New York: Horace Liveright. $2.50.

A story of women in the war.

TODAY'S DAUGHTER. By Berta Ruck. 12mo. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co. $2.

Romance on the Riviera.

THE CITY OF DESIRE. By Juanita Savage. 12mo. New York: The Dial Press. $2.

Romance and adventure in Central America.

TENTHRAGON. By Constance Savery. 12mo. New York: Alfred H. King. $2.

A study of boyhood.

A LITTLE WAY AHEAD. By Alan Sullivan. 12mo. New York: E. P. Dutton & Co., Inc. $2.50.

A story of the London stock market.

ELLA. By Elizabeth Wilkins Thomas. 12mo. New York: The Viking Press. $2.50.

A story of childhood and young girlhood.

THE REDHEAD FROM SUN DOG. By W. C. Tuttle. 12mo. Boston, Mass.: Houghton Mifflin Company. $2.

A Western story.

NATIVE SOIL. By Allan Updegraff. 12mo. New York: John Day Company. $2.50.

The story of the homecoming of a Paris expatriate.

THE TETHERED BUBBLE. By Fanny Lee Weyant. 12mo. New York: The Century Company. $2.50.

A story of life in a women's college in the '90s.

DUSTY DAN DELANEY. By Clem Yore. 12mo. New York: Macaulay Company. $2.

A Western story.

Philosophy and Religion

THE ETERNAL MAGNET. By Siegfried Behn. 8vo. New York: The Devin Adair Company. $4.

A history of philosophy, translated from the German.

JEREMIAH, THE PROPHET. By Raymond Calkins. 8vo. New York: The Macmillan Company. $2.50.

A study in personal religion.

THE RESURRECTION OF MAN AND OTHER SERMONS. By the Rev. R. H. Charles. 8vo. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $2.50.

A collection of sermons preached in Westminster Abbey.

CHRISTIAN REUNION IN ECUMENICAL LIGHT. By Francis J. Hall. 12mo. New York: The Macmillan Company.

With a foreword by Bishop Manning.

THE MISSIONARY EDUCATION OF INTERMEDIATES. By Mabel Gardner Kerschner. 12mo. New York: Missionary Education Movement. $1.

A handbook in religious education.

THE LOST "BOOK OF THE NATIVITY OF JOHN." By Hugh J. Schonfield. 8vo. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $1.75.

A study in Messianic folklore and Christian origins, with a new solution to the Virgin birth problem.

Juvenile

ERNEST, THE POLICEMAN. By S. G. Hulme Beaman. 8vo. New York: Oxford University Press. $2.

Stories for children with illustrations by the author.

IN XAVIER LANDS. By Neil Boyton, S. J. 12mo. New York: Benziger Brothers.

Short stories of India for young readers.

FEATHERLAND. By Etta Corbett Garson. 8vo. New York: Robert M. McBride & Co. $1.50.

Stories about birds for little children, with illustrations by the author.

Poetry, Drama and Art

METEOR. By S. N. Behrman. 12mo. New York: Brentano's. $2.

A play in three acts.

THE LURE OF THE TROPICS. By A. Hooton Blackiston. 8vo. New York: The Knickerbocker Press. $2.

A collection of poems.

THE PAINTER'S CRAFT. By Royal Cortissoz. 8vo. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $3.50.

A collection of essays on painting, sculpture and architecture.

ARTIST'S SCRAP BOOK. Arranged by Pedro J. Lemos. 8vo. Worcester, Mass.: Davis Press. $7.50.

A collection of over 1,000 sketches and decorative ornaments, arranged by the director of the Museum of Fine Arts, Stanford University.

Economics and Sociology

AMERICA CONQUERS BRITAIN. By Ludwell Denny. 8vo. New York: Alfred A. Knopf. $4.

A study of the economic tensions and conflicts between the two countries.

TRENDS IN LOCATION OF THE WOMEN'S CLOTHING INDUSTRY. By Mabel A. Magee. 12mo. Chicago, Ill.: University of Chicago Press. $2.

A study in industrial development.

THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION PROBLEM IN NEW YORK STATE. 8vo. New York: National Industrial Conference Board, Inc.

A new volume in "Studies in Social Legislation."

Science and Psychology

PLEASURE AND INSTINCT. By A. H. Burlton Allen. 8vo. New York: Harcourt, Brace & Co. $4.

A study in the psychology of human action.

PHOTOELECTRIC CELLS. By Norman Robert Campbell and Dorothy Ritchie. 8vo. New York: Isaac Pitman & Sons. $4.50.

Their properties, use and applications.

CHASING ECLIPSES. By Rebecca R. Joslin. 8vo. Boston, Mass.: Walton Advertising and Printing Company.

An account of the total solar eclipses of 1905, 1914 and 1925.

Business

INVESTMENT TRUSTS—HOW AND WHY. By Israel Baruch Leibson. 12mo. New York: Rena Press, Inc.

An exposition of the underlying principles of the investment trust business.

EFFICIENCY AND SCARCITY PROFITS. By C. J. Foreman. 8vo. Chicago University Press. $4.

An economic and legal analysis of the residual surplus.

Government and Politics

FRANCE: A NATION OF PATRIOTS. By Carlton J. H. Hayes. 8vo. New York: Columbia University Press. $4.50.

A study in national psychology.

UNITING EUROPE. By William E. Rappard. 12mo. New Haven, Conn.: Yale University Press. $3.

A study of the trend of international cooperation since the war. Published under the auspices of the Institute of Politics with a preface by Edward N. House.

TOWN GOVERNMENT IN MASSACHUSETTS, 1620-1930. By John Fairfield Sly. 12mo. Cambridge, Mass.: Harvard University Press. $2.50.

A study of its development and an analysis and appraisal of its contemporary aspects.

New Editions and Reprints

NORTHERN ITALY, INCLUDING RAVENNA, FLORENCE AND PISA. By Karl Baedeker. 12mo. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $6.

A handbook for travelers. The fifteenth revised edition.

THE DIARY OF A COUNTRY PARSON: THE REV. JAMES WOODFORDE. Edited by John Beresford. 8vo. New York: Oxford University Press. $4.25.

Vol. IV. 1793-1796.

MRS. EDDY. By Edwin Franden Dakin. 8vo. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $2.

A new edition of third recent

(Continued on Page 39)

CAPITAL AND LABOR UNDER FASCISM

BY CARMEN HAIDER

How do the Fascists conceive this new system and is it a working reality? Miss Haider is the first to have undertaken a thorough investigation of the subject through a study of the documents and other available material and through personal observations on the spot. She has supplemented this work by long and frequent discussions with the leaders of the Fascist State, including Mussolini himself, while her contact with the opposition elements in and outside Italy has enabled her to take an impartial view.

Professor Herbert W. Schneider, author of THE FASCIST STATE, says, "...the most careful study yet made of the economic institutions and policies of Fascism. It contains strictly up-to-date and first-hand information regarding the actual workings of the 'Corporative State.' It should interest every student of labor problems and politics. Useful for both prophet and historian."

$4.50

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY PRESS

A NEW DUTTON SUCCESS

Dutton books are never submitted to any Book Club.

4th large printing.

Called by American critics, "The greatest living Dutch writer," the author takes us philandering, half seriously, half humorously, with a modern Dutch Don Juan. New York the background. Enthusiastic reviews from all sides. Especially recommended by Harry Hansen and The New York Times. $2.50

E. P. DUTTON & CO., Inc., 681 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.
Publishers since 1852

"NEWS-GATHERING SKILL AND PUBLIC SERVICE"

* * I have been a reader of The New York Times for the past twenty-five years and have been gratified at the ever increasing evidence of editorial power, news-gathering skill and public service displayed in its columns.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Along the Blue Bay's Hook To Provincetown

Henry Kittredge Writes an Absorbing History of Cape Cod And Its Sturdy Inhabitants

CAPE COD. Its People and their History. By Henry C. Kittredge. 305 pp. With illustrations, notes and indexes. Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company. $5.

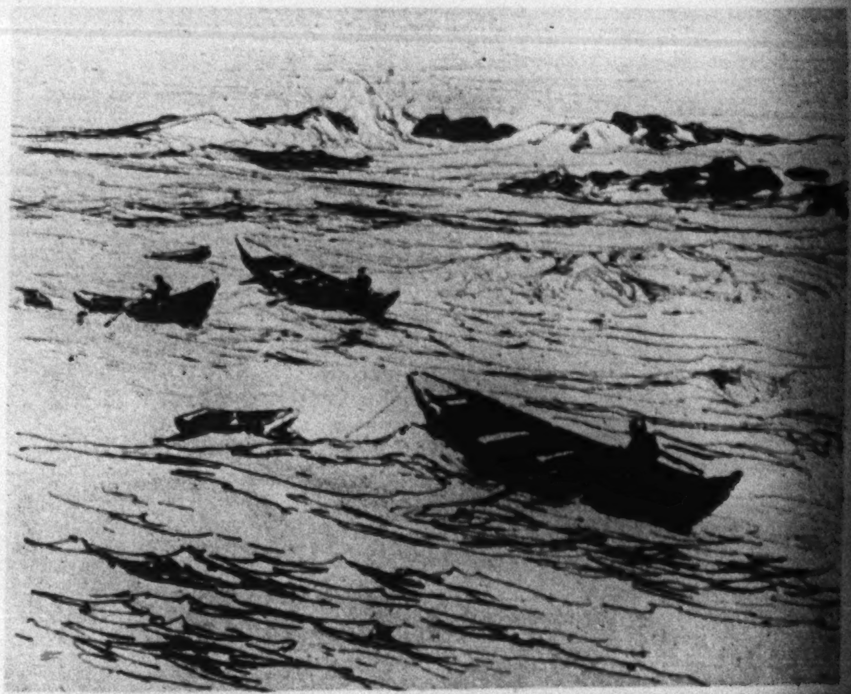
By PERCY HUTCHISON

BETWEEN the Canadian border and the southern tip of the Florida peninsula more than one cape is thrown out into the sea. But when a person speaks of "the" Cape he is never misunderstood, for there is but one such arm of land so distinguished and so honored. And that is Cape Cod. Of late years the region has come chiefly to be known as New England's Summer playground, the railroad company that serves it having been at pains to disseminate such an impression. Yet if the profits from the vacationists are greater than ever accrued from whaling and from fishing, Cape Codders are not so materialistic but that they take pride in the sturdier days that are gone, not because they themselves have waxed supine, but because a changing civilization has passed them by.

And they are justified in their pride, for the history of the Cape is part and parcel (its earliest history a very large parcel and part) of the story of the Colonies. And now this history has been ably culled and pleasingly narrated in a book called "Cape Cod," by Henry C. Kittredge. On one side of the family Mr. Kittredge is by inheritance a "native," being descended from the first settlers of 1639. He is the son of Professor George Lyman Kittredge of Harvard, whose Summer home is the family estate at Barnstable. Henry Kittredge, therefore, writes of a land in which his contacts are both wide and deep. And the known passion of Professor Kittredge for accuracy of information and thoroughness in interpretation will not be found lacking in the son. The book is eminently sound.

It is probably not necessary to inform even those living inland that the Massachusetts shore south of Boston is not the "stern and rock-bound coast" of which school children were wont to recite. Plymouth Rock is carefully preserved under its canopy; but it is about the only piece of stone to be found along that shore. Sand dunes and sand beaches form the littoral. Harbors are shallow, and vessels of any draught must either lie far out or channels be dredged to let them come in. And the Pilgrims, although they may have used the rock as a stepping-stone when landing from the Mayflower, actually came thither from Provincetown, at the end of the Cape, where in the land-locked harbor they had dropped anchor a month before. However, since the Mayflower company merely landed at Provincetown to explore, and did not settle, Plymouth has a distinction which is not to be denied. Incidentally, it was Bartholomew Gosnold who named the Cape and the bay from the vast numbers of codfish he found there in 1602, eighteen years ahead of the Pilgrims. Gosnold founded no settlement, either on the mainland or the Cape, though clearly he landed. Nor did Champlain some three years later. The French explorer had no gift for conciliating the Indians, and it is fortunate he did not elect to remain. By nature the redman of the Cape district was peace-loving and friendly, and because he was well treated by the Pilgrims he treated them well in return. Nor were the Indians a nomadic people. On the contrary, they lived in huts, not wigwams, and tilled the soil.

The Pilgrims [writes Kittredge] instead of carving a republic from a Western wilderness, stumbled into an organized community. Behind the screen of pine and oak were clearings dotted with Indian dwellings and connected by well-worn paths with other groups of dwellings. These were dwellings in the strictest sense of the word, fixed abodes, inhabited by generation after generation of natives.



"Easterly Coming." From an Etching by Charles H. Woodbury.

From "Fine Prints of the Year: 1926." (Minton, Balch & Co.)

Actually Plymouth history is not Cape history, yet because the Pilgrims sailed across the bay from Provincetown to establish their community before a community was established on the Cape itself, Plymouth's story cannot be separated from the narrative of the region. Moreover, in 1630 the whole Cape was annexed to Plymouth Colony, from which it was settled—settled from the mainland out, instead of from the tip in, as would have been the case had Miles Standish not repaired the shallop of the Mayflower in Provincetown harbor and gone across the bay exploring.

On the sociological side Cape history is unusually interesting. Asking what manner of men these were who started civilization on that long neck of woods and sand and fertile corn land, Mr. Kittredge answers: "They were, first of all, men to whom democracy, as a theory of government or as a way of life, was unheard of. * * * Plymouth Government scanned the applicants for admission to its towns." And the feeling of superiority and aristocracy thus engendered persisted for many a generation. The Cape Codders are a proud people today. Slavery was indulged in by the early inhabitants, although it did not persist so very long.

It was on the Cape that the whale industry was started which was to make the names of New Bedford, on the mainland, and Nantucket Island ports known the world around. But the Cape men did not originally go after the whales—the whales came to them. Now rarely come upon, if they are not indeed extinct, blackfish used to swarm in Cape Cod waters, and scores of this not valueless species would frequently be beached on the sands by driving gales. Even so late as 1884 a school of 2,000 was taken at Provincetown. But they were an inferior breed, and New Bedford early had the inspiration to go in pursuit of species from the capture of which not merely revenue but wealth should be derived. The point made by Mr. Kittredge is that although relatively few Cape men went into the industry on the grand scale, both New Bedford and Nantucket received their impetus from the "land whalers" of Cape Cod. Occasionally, as Massachusetts records prove, the captain of a deep-sea New Bedford vessel made a slight error in navigation, and found himself collecting blacks in Africa instead of oil and bone in Bering Sea. The Kittredge book makes no mention of this deviation, and perhaps no Cape whaler ever lost his bearings in this way.

In the three centuries that have elapsed since Gosnold sailed into Provincetown the shores of the Cape have furnished a graveyard for ships. Monomoy Shoals, off Chatham, at the "heel" on which the Cape turns, so to speak, from east to north, are dreaded by sailormen who find themselves in the vicinity. Powered vessels, which rounded the Cape in considerable numbers before the shorter passage through the canal was made available, were generally able to negotiate the skirting of the shoals in safety, but many a luckless windjammer has struck, never to be got off. Peaked Hill Bars and Monomoy Shoals have taken their toll indiscriminately from Cape Cod sailors, and sailors from other parts. But the seas off Georges Banks, scarcely over a day's sail from Provincetown, have taken a generous quota, and the Grand Banks have also seen their share of drownings. It has always been from Cape Ann, however, not from Cape Cod, that the majority of the Grand Banks fishermen have sailed, from Gloucester, not Provincetown, or Truro, or Wellfleet.

Not infrequently, on the other hand, the wrecks (when they were not of native craft) like the stranded blackfish, brought gifts to the Cape Cod folk. Mr. Kittredge insists that those on land never lured a ship to destruction by false lights, as sinister tradition would have one believe of certain other parts of the coast. But if a ship broke up on the sand, and valuable cargo floated ashore, did not finding justify keeping? The settlers so interpreted the action of the sea, in spite of fulminations of State authorities. And in respect to one wreck, at least, such a distribution of its cargo was only just retribution. This was the pirate ship Whidaw, which foundered in the breakers off Wellfleet in 1717 with a loss of 144, including the notorious leader, Bellamy. Who could say that he had not, in the course of his infamous career, made more than one Codder walk the plank?

The reviewer finds that he must make an end of this book by Henry Kittredge, engrossing as it is. Whether those less familiar than himself with the Cape (pardon, the Cape!) will be more willing to lay the volume aside, he cannot say. But even inlanders should enjoy the anecdotes which cram the pages; while all who are interested in American history will turn to the book eagerly. The Kittredge family has made another invaluable contribution to American annals and American literature.

"Fisherman With Basket." From a Dry Point by Gifford Beal.

From "Fine Prints of the Year: 1928." (Minton, Balch & Co.)

Tennyson's Unpublished Juvenile Drama

THE DEVIL AND THE LADY. By Alfred Tennyson. Edited by his grandson, Charles Tennyson. 67 pp. Edition limited to 500 copies. New York: The Macmillan Company. $5.

ALTHOUGH the only juvenile poems by Alfred, Lord Tennyson, to be preserved in the collected work of the poet are survivals from that little volume which he published with Charles in 1827, "Poems by Two Brothers," it has long been known that even before he had been attracted by the lyric muse he had attempted a drama. The Laureate's son, Lord Hallam, made mention of this play in the memoirs on his father, and included a short quotation from it. But he did not publish the play in its entirety. This has now been done by the grandson of the poet, Charles Tennyson, from the manuscript given by the author to Trinity College. The title is "The Devil and the Lady."

Tennyson, although but 14 years of age when he set to work on his drama, had fed both extensively and intensively on Elizabethan drama, not only on the works of Shakespeare but on the plays of Shakespeare's contemporaries as well. "The Devil and the Lady" is, in point of fact, actually nothing but an exceedingly accurate and precocious imitating of Elizabethan drama. Both verse structure and vocabulary find their parentage there. On the other hand, there is something of originality in the story that is dramatized; and the fact that the reader will be at a loss to say just what that story is, confirms rather than refutes this conclusion. The youthful Tennyson was so preoccupied with making his blank verses that he himself became too confused to make his meaning clear. Had he purloined the plot of his comedy—for that much is clear, it is comedy—there would have been no such confusion.

However, one is not greatly concerned either with the subject-matter of "The Devil and the Lady" or with the drama as drama. Youthful efforts in art have relative value only, not positive value. Those who are moved to read this boyhood product will do so for one of two reasons—either out of curiosity, or to complete their acquaintance with Tennyson's work. Their interest will be in the light it sheds on the development toward maturity. And they will be struck with three features of "The Devil and the Lady." First, the effort shows a very distinct apprehension of the problems of dramatic writ-

(Continued on Page 18)

Queries and Answers

(Continued from Page 34)

That brow was no home for such frowns to have met;
O, how could our spirits e'er hope for the skies,
If Heaven refused—to Forgive and Forget.

"A Frog Hops Through the Field"

Mr. GEORGE D. CHESSON, Springfield, Mass.—In your issue of Jan. 26 W. H. W. requested the poem containing the lines

A Frog with frogling by his side,
Came hopping through the plain,
onetide;
There he an ox at grass did spy;
He said: Lord God, what was my sin,
Thou mades me so small and thin?

It is by Ulrich Boner, a preaching monk in the first part of the fourteenth century, born at Berne, Switzerland. The poem, a copy of which I enclose, is taken from his collection of fables called the "Edelstein."

Mrs. Robert Sherburn, Kearny, N. J., also answered this request.

"Sandals Dipped in Dew"

MISS JOSEPHINE ATKINSON, New Brunswick, N. J.: The poem asked for by H. U. F. in your issue of Jan. 12 is enclosed herewith. The lines wanted may be found in the first stanza. Mrs. Anna L. Clarke Giles, Troy, N. Y., daughter of the author, sent the poem and writes that her father was born in New York State in 1836 and died in El Paso, Texas, 1870. Mrs. Caroline Denham, Huntington, N. Y., also answered this inquiry. Because of the many requests during the past year for this beautiful poem we publish it in full at this time:

LIFE LEAVES
By the late Judge Gaylord J. Clarke

The day, with its sandals dipped in dew,
Has passed through the evening's golden gates,
And a single star in the cloudless blue
For the rising moon in silence
waits;
While the winds that sigh to the languid hours
A lullaby breathe o'er the folded flowers.
The lilies nod to the sound of the stream
That winds along with lulling flow,
And either awake, or half-a-dream,
I pass through the realms of long ago;
While faces peer with many a smile
From the bowers of memory's magic isle.
There are joys and sunshine, sorrows and tears,
That sheck the path of life's April hours,
And a longing wish for the coming years,
That hope ever wreathes with the fairest flowers;
There are friendships guileless —
love as bright
And pure as the stars in the halls of night.
There are ashen memories, bitter pain,
And buried hopes, and a broken vow,
And an aching heart by the reckless main,
And the sea breeze fanning a pallid brow;
And a wanderer on the shell-lined shore,
Listening for voices that speak no more.
There are passions strong and ambitions wild,
And the fierce desire to stand in the van
Of the battle of life—and the heart of the child
Is crushed in the breast of the struggling man;
But short the regrets, and few are the tears,
That fall at the tomb of the vanished years.
There are quiet and peace, and domestic love,
And joys arising from faith and truth,
And a truth unquestioning, far above
The passionate dreaming of ardent youth;
And kisses of children on lip and cheek,
And the parents' bliss, which no tongue can speak.
There are loved ones lost! There are little graves
In the distant dell, 'neath protecting trees,
Where the streamlet winds, and the violet waves,
And the grasses sway to the sigh-
ing breeze;
And we mourn for pressure of tender lips,
And the light of eyes darkened in death's eclipse.
And thus, as the glow on the daylight dies,
And the night's first look to the earth is cast,
I gaze, 'neath those beautiful Summer skies,
At the pictures that hang in the hall of the past;
O! sorrow and joy chant a mingled lay,
When to memory's wildwood we wander away!

"When Pinks and Daisies Closed"

MISS LOUELLA D. EVERETT, Boston, Mass.: Enclosed is the poem "The True Lovers' Discussion" asked for by C. B. in your issue of Jan. 19. The author's name is not given. The poem contains fifteen eight-line verses, the first of which is:

One pleasant evening, as pinks and daisies
Closed in their bosoms a drop of dew,
The feathered warblers of every species
Together chanted their notes so true.
As I did stray, wrapped in meditation,
It charmed my heart to hear them
sing;
The silent orbs of night were just arising,
And the air in concert did sweetly
sing.

Mary J. Tully also sent the poem.

"'Neath the Mistletoe"

P. V. MAHON, Chicago, Ill.: In reply to E. D. S. (Jan. 12) the writer has "Peter Newell's Pictures in Rhymes," published by Harper & Bros., 1899, in which the rhyme in question appears as follows:

GOODLY ADVICE AND TIMELY.

Little maiden, young and tender,
if you needs must go
Where suspended from the ceiling is a mistletoe,
This remember, this remember,
never, never fail
To retire your comely features in the meshes of a veil.

Mrs. Peter Newell, the wife of the artist, sent a copy of the verses. Mrs. Newell is now living in that city, where the family has resided for many years.

"In the Land of Gold"

MR. SAMUEL HILL, N. Y.: In reply to the request of S. H. in your issue of Dec. 1 for the poem containing the lines: "There came a man in days of old, to hire a piece of land for gold," I am glad to enclose a copy of it herewith.

THE CROP OF ACORNS.
By L. H. Sigourney.

There came a man in days of old,
To hire a piece of land for gold,
And urged his suit in accents meek,
"One crop alone is all I seek;
The harvest o'er, my claim I yield,
And to its lord resign the field."
The owner some misgivings felt,
And coldly with the stranger dealt;
But found his last objection fail,
And honeyed eloquence prevail;
So took the proffered price in hand,
And, for "one crop," leased out the land.
The wily tenant sneered with pride,
And sowed the spot with acorns wide;
At first like tiny shoots they grew,
Then broad and wide their branches threw;
But long before those oaks sublime,
Aspiring reached their forest prime,
The cheated landlord moldering lay,
Forgotten, with his kindred clay.
O ye, whose years, unfolding fair,
Are fresh with youth and free from care,
Should vice or indolence desire,
The garden of your souls to hire,
No parley hold—reject the suit,
Nor let one seed the soil pollute.
My child, the first approach beware;
With firmness break the insidious snare,
Lest, as the acorns grew and throve
Into a sun-excluding grove,
Thy sins, a dark o'ershadowing tree,
Shut out the light of heaven from thee.

"The Gift of Pain"

FREDA FENTON, Rutland Heights, Mass.: N. B. in your issue of Jan. 19 requested the following poem, which appears in a collection of poems entitled "Bittersweet":

DISILLUSION.
By Rebecca McCann.

To the one who gave me the gift of pain
I ought to write in a thankful strain.
I hungrily looked for love till he Gave my own heart back to me.
He gave my own heart back at last;
Not hungry—it had broken its fast.
So full of pain my heart was filled,
The gnawing hunger for love was stilled.
Now I can look at everything
And never feel sharp envy's sting.
Now I can choose that love or this.
It's I who can give the careless kiss.
Complete and dreamless as a stone,
Resigned, for I know that hunger
they must,
Who cannot acquire a taste for dust.

"A Poem on Bismarck"

CATHARINE M. WHEELER, State College, Pa.: In your issue of Jan. 26 G. E. M. wanted a poem on Bismarck that appeared in one of the leading magazines during the early part of the great war, which I take pleasure in enclosing herewith. It was published in The Independent, March 29, 1915, and is entitled "The Iron Chancellor," by George Sylvester Viereck. The poem contains eighteen stanzas of four lines each, the first of which is:

Above the grave where Bismarck sleeps
The ravens screeched with strange alarms;
The Saxon forest in its deeps
Shook with the distant clash of arms.

N. H. Browning, Hudson, N. Y., and A. S. Roberts, Kent, Ohio, answered this request. The latter informs us that the poem appeared also in The Literary Digest, April 17, 1915, and Current Opinion, May 15, 1915.

"To a Young Musician"

MISS MARY E. BURT, Fall River, Mass.: In answer to the request of H. C. (Jan. 26) I enclose the song desired, entitled "The Old Musician and His Harp," words by William S. Pitts and music by H. M. Higgins. It contains three stanzas and a chorus. The first stanza follows and contains the lines wanted by H. C.:

Years have come and pass'd away,
Golden locks have turn'd to gray,
Golden ringlets once so fair,
Time has changed to silvery hair;
Yes, I've neared the river-side,
Soon I'll launch upon its tide . .
Soon my bark with noiseless oar
Safe will pass to yonder shore.

Florence Gardiner, N. Y.; Mrs. Leila D. Thompson, Rutherford, N. J.; Mrs. J. D. Farrell, New London, Conn.; Miss Louella D Everett, Boston, Mass.; J. B. O'Reilly, Ottawa, Canada, and Mrs. Mary R. Massey, Brookline, Mass., also sent copies. The latter writes that the song is contained in Volume 2 of "Good Old Songs," published by C. H. Ditson & Co., New York.

"An Exile's Return"

ALFREDA CROWLEY, Islip, N. Y.: Here is the poem wanted by M. C. C. in your issue of Jan. 26. It is entitled "The Exile's Return," and the author's name is John Locke. The poem contains eight stanzas and is too long to print in full, but the lines desired by our correspondent occur in the first given herewith. The opening words are from the Gaelic and mean "My Soul to God":

M'anam do Dhia! But—there it is:
Dawn on the hills of Ireland!
God's angels lifting the night's black veil
From the fair, sweet face of my sireland!
O Ireland, isn't it grand you look—
Like a bride in her rich adorning!—
And with all the pent-up love of my heart,
I bid ye the top o' the mornin'!

A number of readers answered this request, many of whom contributed the complete poem. Others sent information that it may be obtained in Frothingham's volume, "Songs of Adventure" (Houghton, Mifflin Company), volume 2 of the Golden Treasury of Irish Songs and Lyrics (Dodge Publishing Company, N. Y.). Miss Louella Everett, Boston, Mass., tells us that Mr. Locke was known as the "Southern Gael." He died in New York, Jan. 31, 1889.

"To a Young Physician"

MRS. OPDYCKE, N. Y.: M. V. N. in your issue of Jan. 26 wanted the poem entitled "To a Young Physician," which follows:

TO A YOUNG PHYSICIAN.
By John Greenleaf Whittier.

The paths of pain are thine. Go forth
With healing and with hope;
The suffering of a sin-sick earth
Shall give thee ample scope.
Smite down the dragons fell and strong,
Whose breath is fever fire;
No knight of table or of song
Encountered foes more dire.
The holiest task by Heaven decreed,
An errand all divine,
The burden of our mortal need
To render less is thine.
No crusade thine for cross or grave,
But for the living man,
Go forth to succor and to save
All that thy skilled hands can.
Before the unveiled mysteries
Of life and death, go stand
With guarded lips and reverent eyes
And pure of heart and hand.
So shalt thou be with power endued
For Him who went about
The Syrian hill-paths, doing good
And casting devils out.
That holy Helper liveth yet,
Thy friend and guide to be;
The Healer by Gennesaret
Shall walk the rounds with thee!

George D. Chesson, Springfield, Mass., also sent a copy. Dr. J. A. Hagemann, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Miss V. E. Bean, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs. C. McLaughlin, N. Y.; Miss Hattie Travis, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Dr. Charles B. Van Zand, Denver, Col., answered this request.

if you're sick today YOU'RE LUCKY

YOU might have shared a bed with a corpse 200 years ago—in a hospital where one-fifth of the patients died and few recovered from surgical operations. Four, five and six patients were placed in the same bed, regardless of age, sex, or disease. 200 sick children were distributed in eight beds. Wounds were cauterized with boiling oil.

Hospital Patient in Bed with a Corpse

A Sixteenth Century Amputation

YOUR surgeon would have been a barber—no anesthetic would have eased your pain. Women in childbirth were bounced and shaken to hasten labor. Nothing was known of germs or infection; amputations were frequent because no one understood blood-poisoning. Smallpox and other plagues were accepted as acts of God; diseases were the reward of sin.

EVEN in 1850 the insane were publicly exhibited, like animals in a menagerie. Even today Faith Healing and witchcraft have fanatic followers, although we have come far from the dark ages. The fantastic, almost unbelievable story of medicine's battle against ignorance and superstition is one of unending fascination. You'll admit that you're lucky to be alive when you have read to the end of—

Quack removing a stone from the head of an insane woman

6th Printing

DEVILS, DRUGS AND DOCTORS

by Howard W. Haggard, M. D.

150 rare old illustrations

$5.00
405 pages

"Every page is crowded with astonishing information . . . perfectly priceless illustrations . . . a welcome addition to any library."—N. Y. Eve. Post

FOR SALE AT ALL BOOKSTORES

HARPER & BROTHERS N.Y.T. 2
49 E. 33rd Street, New York City
Send me a copy of DEVILS, DRUGS AND DOCTORS
☐ I enclose $5.00 ☐ Send C. O. D.

Name ....

Address ....

An Amazing Human Document

To the reading public:

If you cannot get this book in your book store, send direct to us. You must not miss it. The moment we read the manuscript, we decided that it must be published. No one could possibly make it up. Since the days of Marie Baskirtseff there has been no such laying bare of a young woman's life and soul. Its title is

MANHATTAN FEVER

The author, Sally Brookes, actually came to New York only a short time ago, to make her way alone. This book is the startling exposé, in intimate confessional form, of what a twenty-year old girl goes through mentally, emotionally and physically, when she comes alone to New York City and works for her own living. Price $2.50

SEARS PUBLISHING COMPANY
114 East 32nd Street New York

Finely Printed Books

A catalogue of the English, Continental and American presses for which we are American distributors will be sent upon request.

WALTER V. McKEE
56 W. 45th St., New York

WHITING'S BOND

A SPLENDID PAPER
100 Sheets 7 x 9½ and 100 Envelopes 4 x 7½ $1.00

All printed with your monogram or name and address in black, blue, green or purple. Sent postpaid promptly. Samples on request.

J. C. CHILDS
200 WEST 31st ST., NEW YORK

DR. JOHNSON'S PATIENCE TRIED AND FOUND WANTING

In William Shenstone's Day Landscape Gardening Was a Novelty. One Rainy Day He Managed to Lead the Wheezy, Sneezing Samuel Johnson About His Grounds and Bade Him Admire a Simpering Stone Italian Divinity. It Was the End of Their Friendship.

"The Love of Jeanne Ney" and Other Recent Fiction

THE LOVE OF JEANNE NEY. Translated from the Russian of Ilya Ehrenbourg by Helen Chrouschoff Matheson. 388 pp. New York: Doubleday, Doran & Co. $2.50.

THERE are two ways to review this book. The first is to accept it for what it is, an exciting and extraordinary story compounded of many elements, to take pleasure in Ilya Ehrenbourg's talents rather than exception to how wildly they are commingled, and to be grateful that an intelligent reader can be so richly fed. The second and more academic, but perhaps as legitimate way, is more captiously to inquire what "The Love of Jeanne Ney" means as art. To do that does not necessarily presuppose that it means little. It simply raises questions that involve more than the story-teller in Ehrenbourg.

For this book is not only an exciting story; it is also a book of varied and remarkable human types, it is also a tale of strong and unquenchable love, it is also an expression of that Fate against which man is powerless, which dooms him in a network of ghastly coincidences. And beyond all that it is a book in which the author sardonically turns philosopher and moralist, showing us the spirit of good in conflict with the spirit of evil. Such a book obviously cannot be dominated by a sense of order or a sense of unity. Realism and imaginative penetration are thrown in with the company of fantasy, exaggeration, theatricalism. We are asked to believe that what seems least true is truest.

The mere fable of the book is a love story, the story of Jeanne Ney and Andrew Luboff, a Bolshevik who killed her father in the days following the war, two people drawn irresistibly together in spite of a dozen handicaps, constantly separated by the tricks of fate, and finally, when happiness seemed in sight, separated forever by the horrible chain of circumstances which send Andrew to the guillotine for a murder which he did not commit. This fable is knit together with all the tight-drawn improbability of the wildest thriller, and the characters it involves are as simply good and as simply bad as the heroes and heroines and misers and villains of the most out-moded melodrama. Indeed, "The Love of Jeanne Ney" is the old shocker reversed; the villains triumph and the hero is overwhelmed.

But these good people and bad; though few of them are real in a more than one-dimensional sense, may also be regarded as moral symbols, and their struggle as a moral struggle, with goodness doomed to lose in a spitefully deterministic world. The cards are faultlessly stacked against Andrew and Jeanne. All that remains morally possible to Ehrenbourg is the spiritual growth in Jeanne, a growth sketchily indicated rather than clearly revealed. And after reading this book with considerable excitement, admiring the inventiveness, the fecundity and wit and narrative skill of its author, one cannot help asking one's self how much it means as art, as interpretation of life. Is it, in the profoundest sense of the term, serious or frivolous literature?

So far as characters go, the bad ones would fit quite well into a novel by Julian Green and the good ones into Dostoevsky. But Ehrenbourg has not sounded their capacities as Dostoevsky or Green would have done, and in their struggle these two sets of people affect one another only in matters of plot, not in matters of character. Cannily drawn as Halibieff and Raymond Ney are, or Jeanne and Andrew, they do not really live; they are merely dedicated to love, or work, or money, or villainy. So much for the characters; now for the plot. It is safe to use the time-dried axiom that coincidences and improbabilities of plot are allowable if they wisely serve the higher ends of character development and moral conflict.

As art then, except to the most thorough-paced fatalist, "The Love of Jeanne Ney" fails to reach a level it might have achieved. Its moral conflict is really neither true nor deep; its characters are not inwardly developed by its action so far as they should to be really moving (Jeanne's growth seems, on mature reflection, conventionalized); its many talents are not centripetal; they are genuine and varied, but ununified. This is a real pity. But it is unfair to emphasize this failure too much. It is important to repeat that here, often, is masterly story-telling, creative imagination and a mind that is almost always interesting.

A SIMPLE COUNTRY LIFE

DOWN IN THE VALLEY. By H. W. Freeman. 321 pp. New York: Henry Holt & Co. $2.50.

IN his first novel, "Joseph and His Brethren," published last year, Mr. Freeman described—very engagingly—the rural life of a fertile valley in Suffolk. His characters were farmers, more or less simple people, whose outlook and experience were limited by their growth with and attachment to the soil. In this, his second novel, Mr. Freeman has employed the same scene, and a group of similar characters, but he has brought into the picture, for the sake of contrast, a man from the city, whose ways are foreign to the ways of the peaceful village of Lindmer.

When Everard Mulliver—after the death of his domineering mother—suddenly realized that he was at last free to consult his own inclinations, he set out to initiate his freedom by getting drunk. The drive in search of a tavern led him to the Suffolk village of Lindmer, and the quaint, undisturbed, unworldly charm of Lindmer led him to the purchase of a thatched cottage. There he proposed to spend his week-ends quietly, cultivating his garden and pruning his orchard as long as daylight lasted, reading poetry in the evening by his fireside. Everard had a certain natural aptitude for rural pursuits. He found more pleasure in the compliment of a passing villager upon the workmanlike fashion in which he was trimming his hedge, than he had all the rest of the week in the conduct of the thriving grocery business he had inherited from his father. Everard's week-ends in Lindmer became longer, his gardens proportionately sleeker, and the county families roundabout began to receive inferior blends of tea and coffee.

Before long, Everard Mulliver, comfortably settled in his cottage under the care of a Lindmer housewife, began to be accepted by the men of Lindmer as a true countryman and a sound fellow, a good companion at the tavern, a stout hand at quoits, and a plowman who could drive as straight a furrow as the next. After the day's work was done, Everard beguiled the evenings in company with Ruthie Gathercole, an amorous, golden-haired country lass. In fact, he found life in Lindmer so much to his liking, that he presently sold the grocery business to a trust, bought a farm, and settled down to marriage with Ruthie Gathercole. This is the story of "Down in the Valley."

Whatever implausibility it contains—and there appears at a glance to be a good deal—is offset by the gusto of Mr. Freeman's style. He writes very engagingly of the picturesque side of country life.

It was most soothingly pleasant to lie there in the scent of his own apple blossoms, lazily watching the withered cowslip heads jostle the sturdy spikes of the purple orchids that were now pushing up out of the grass * * *, it was pleasant to be surrounded by the works of his own hands, the vegetable garden in front that he had dug and planted, the trees above that he had pruned * * * it was pleasant to be tired, cleanly, bodily tired after yesterday's hard long bout of digging in the fields.

"Down in the Valley" has a genuinely idyllic quality which almost convinces the reader, against his will, that Everard Mulliver might really have preferred simple Ruthie Gathercole as a bride to "some fine lady from Bury," and that he might actually have chosen to till and drain and break to the plow a Suffolk field, rather than to continue in the proprietorship of a grocery business which was making him rich.

UNREASONABLE PEOPLE

THE WISDOM OF LOVE. By Jakob Schaffner. 379 pp. New York: Coward-McCann, Inc. $2.50.

IN spite of a translation the unevenness of which is immediately perceptible, there is a power to "The Wisdom of Love" that is no less strong because it is unreasonable. Occasionally there is written a book in which the characters and their emotions take on that exaggerated importance of a nightmare, and this book is one of that type. Every incident on which the action hinges is trivial, yet so intensely do the characters react that a brooding heaviness is lent words and deeds not otherwise heavy. The result is gripping and more than a little morbid. When one has finished the book he feels like immediately opening the windows and letting in good bracing wintry air.

Emil and Meta are a happily married couple in Berlin who have living with them Meta's niece, Alma, whose engagement to a neighbor, Julius, is about to be announced. Shortly before the meeting of the two families which will decide the engagement, Emil wakes up to the fact that the child is a child no longer and has very definite charms which might be for him. He so worries her with his attentions that her attitude toward Julius is changed and she cannot make up her mind about him. After a nightmarish meeting between the families, when Julius's father, old Lippke, is as disagreeable as any man could possibly be, Mrs. Lippke falls ill, and Alma does not call on her. This lack of courtesy preys upon the minds of every one in the Lippke family until Julius and old Lippke are almost insane. The mother dies, still unvisited by her prospective daughter-in-law, who has, in the meantime, given herself to her foster-father and run away from home, to suffer in a dirty boarding house across the city.

Meta, told of her husband's infidelity, is willing to give him up to Alma, or do anything to make the people she loves happy. Were it not for old Lippke, this adjusted state of affairs would be as satisfactory as possible to all concerned, but the old man cannot leave Emil alone. He is oppressed with the feeling that Emil and his deed are destroying his family, and is himself so insanely unreasonable that through his machinations Alma dies in a premature childbirth and Emil shoots himself.

The book, which is really a study of the abnormal psychology of a man with a sense of inferiority, is Lippke's, in spite of the predominance of the other characters. All are affected by him and owe their unhappiness to him. The author has succeeded admirably in portraying a most unadmirable character. There is sureness and strength in his brush strokes, and if the subject is an unpleasant one, that does not lessen the workmanship.

The translator, who is not named, has done a poor job. The inversions peculiar to German grammatical construction are often allowed to remain in the English sentences, which are too frequently more carefully than understandingly rendered into our tongue. The title of the book seems to have no justification at all.

ENCHANTING IRELAND

TAKING CHANCES. By M. J. Farrell. 303 pp. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott Company. $2.50.

OCCASIONALLY there appears a book which disarms criticism. "Taking Chances" is one of these, perhaps because Ireland gives enchantment always, and Miss Farrell had laid her scene there. To most people there is something much dearer and even much more exciting about familiar things than unfamiliar. Recognition can be more wildly rapturous than discovery. Everything in this book is delightfully familiar to any one who has read any good Irish novel before: the bog, the hunting, the weeping skies, the charming people, the innumerable dogs and horses—all are here.

Apparently modern Ireland is as good a place as the old Ireland; and, by Miss Farrell's convincing interpretation, even cigarettes and cocktails become part of the most romantic equipment of love. Of fox-hunting one might imagine that everything had been said, but Miss Farrell makes it afresh the most glorious experience that can fall to the lot of man. Whatever quality this is that she possesses of making the ordinary exciting, the dull brilliant, the foolish very engaging, is put most to the test and is most successful in her relation

Notes on Rare Books

ON Tuesday, Aug. 23, 1768, J. Todd and H. Sotheran (successors to the late Mr. Hildyard) booksellers in York, began the sale of a curious and valuable collection of books, among which were included the entire library of the late reverend and learned Laurence Sterne, A. M., Prebendary of York, &c., &c., author of "The Life and Opinions of Tristram Shandy, Gent" and several other works of wit and humor. The sale was heralded by a catalogue of ninety-six pages in which over 2,500 books are listed and the prices at which they are offered, "exceeding cheap," printed with almost every number. This catalogue, which is a document of extraordinary interest, has just been reproduced in facsimile from a unique copy (in whose possession it is not stated) by James Tregaskis & Son of London. There is a very fine introduction by Charles Whibley, which indicates several of the outstanding features of the library and discusses the important bearing it had on Sterne's writing. The book has been nicely printed on handmade paper at the Curwen Press in an edition limited to 330 copies. They are distributed in America by Edgar H. Wells at $8 apiece.

Messrs. Todd and Sotheran were proud to announce that they gave "the utmost value (in ready money) for any library or parcel of books." Yet the cruel truth of the matter is that they paid only £80 for Sterne's entire library, a sum which exceeded by £20 the amount realized for his horses and chaise. But that they were to a certain extent guileless in this transaction can be seen from a glance at the prices they subsequently asked for the separate books, which were generally described as in good condition and handsomely bound. That 3 shillings might have bought a "Gulliver's Travels," 1726, even though exactly which issue is not stated, is hardly evidence of enterprise on the part of a shrewd or grasping bookseller. Nor would any sophisticated collector begrudge the half crown asked for Dryden's "Hind and the Panther," together with eight other pamphlets; the few shillings which would have purchased Fielding's "Amelia" or his three-volume "Miscellanies"; or the similar modest sums that would have fetched a Gerard's "Herbal," Johnson's "Lives of the Highwaymen," or that other Johnson's translation of "Father Lobo's Voyage to Abyssinia." What a library this was, with its gorgeous array of classics, of French and Italian literature, of learned and frivolous volumes of important authors and of innumerable dead and forgotten books and pamphlets of no importance whatsoever. It is typical of Sterne that his collection should abound in duplicate titles. Locke's "Essay" is met with at frequent intervals, and so it is with other favorites. Such repetition would not have bothered Sterne any more than he or his booksellers were disturbed by questions of the right issue of a book.

***

APART from the antiquarian interest of the catalogue it is of considerable importance for what it reveals of Sterne's library. For, as Mr. Whibley is at some pains to point out, Sterne was unquestionably a man of his books, and one of the most courageous and skillful plagiarists that ever set pen to paper. The toll he exacted from Burton and Rabelais is something scandalous, and Mr. Whibley exposes his system in a most agreeable manner. These two as well as other authors whom Sterne cited in his writings were all to be found on his library shelves. Such were Cervantes and Voltaire, Sir Thomas Browne and Bishop Hall, and no surprise is occasioned on discovering such incongruous titles as Nicholl's "Treatise on the Art of Midwifery" and Vauban's "New Method of Fortification."

A large number of the dealers' catalogues received so far this year wear an aspect of unusual importance. For collectors who save catalogues, these will be of value not so much as records of prices—prices are too unstable, anyhow—but as mines of information about books and authors and printing and bibliography. Maggs Brothers of London have just started what promises to be an invaluable series of catalogues of Incunabula. These lists are to be confined to the art and development of printing in the fifteenth century, as illustrated in the work of presses from just 100 towns. Part One comprises 113 examples taken from towns of Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, England and France and it is an example of the customarily thorough and lavish Maggs manner. To begin with, there is a frontispiece map of Europe on which are indicated the 259 towns in which printing occurred before the sixteenth century, where collectors may see at a glance the location of the great printing districts all the way from Cracow to Lisbon, and from Rostock to Massina. The catalogue abounds in reproductions of title pages, wood-cut illustrations, text pages, colophons, printers' devices and bindings, and the historical and bibliographical information is unusually rich. A list of contents reveals eighteen towns and sixty-six printers and publishers as included in this portion of the catalogue, and there are further indices of the nationality of authors and printers, subjects, authors and references to Hain.

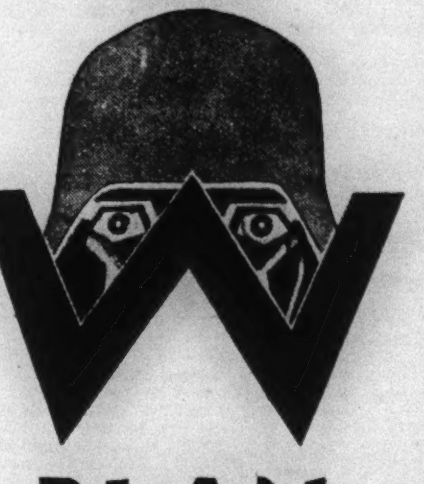
The arrangement by towns is based on the consideration that the primary appeal of Incunabula is to the work of the printer rather than to the author or text, and the sequence decided upon makes for convenient reference. But Maggs's purpose in this catalogue is clearly propagandist and the foreword suggests other lines besides towns which the tyro might pursue, namely, Subjects, Primitive Printing (before 1470), Printers, Authors, Wood Engravings, Types, and Stamped Bindings. Of especial interest in Part One are Caxton's English translation of St. Jerome's "Lives of the Fathers," printed by Wynkyn de Worde in 1495, £1,250; "The Epitome of Livy" by Florus, printed at Paris, 1471, £375; the first edition of Bede's "Ecclesiastical History" printed by Eggestein, Strassburg, about 1475, £175; Boccaccio's "De casibus virorum illustrium," by Husner of Strassburg, about 1473, £150; and St. Augustine's "Letters," the first edition printed by Mentelin of Strassburg, about 1471, £250.

***

OTHER additions to "permanent" catalogue making would be two lists, Nos. 27 and 28 from Elkin Mathews, issued from their new quarters at 33 Conduit Street, London. The first of these contains merely Fifty Famous First Editions, described with clarity and a pleasant literary flavor. They consist chiefly of English literature of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries.

The American Art-Anderson Galleries will sell on the afternoon of Feb. 19, 250 choice selections from the library of a Chicago collector. The tone of this sale is decidedly modern and popular, including first editions of English and American authors most in vogue. Among them are a presentation copy to Wordsworth of Mrs. Browning's "Poems," a first edition of her "Sonnets from the Portuguese," "Two Years Before the Mast," a presentation to Edmund Gosse of Hardy's "A Group of Noble Dames," "The Scarlet Letter," "A Shropshire Lad," Johnson's "Plan of a Dictionary," Lowell's "Poems" on large paper, Reade's "The Cloister and the Hearth," Shelley's copy of "Tasso," "Treasure Island," and many other presentation copies of favorite modern authors.

Of this smashing war mystery
Sir Arthur CONAN DOYLE says:



THE W PLAN by Graham Seton

"I do not know when I have been more thrilled."

And he, master thrill creator, knows what story telling, what writing it takes to hold you page bound as THE W PLAN does. In the adventures of a lone spy who matched wits up and down the Western Front with the German High Command, you'll find the all-absorbing excitement and the unshakable grip that makes a superior thriller the best reading. The N. Y. Times says, "A really capital spy story, especially unusual in its refusal to gloss over the unpleasant side of the business. High above the average thriller."

third printing $2.00

COSMOPOLITAN BOOK CORPORATION

YALE

FRANCE
A Study in Nationality
By Andre Siegfried

Everyone, and there are many, who read "America Comes of Age" will enjoy this new book by the distinguished French author. Here is the psychology and philosophy of French politics shrewdly and delightfully portrayed. $2.00

UNITING EUROPE
By William E. Rappard

Colonel Edward M. House says: "In the flood of books, good, bad, and indifferent, that have been written of the Great War and its aftermath, 'Uniting Europe' ranks among the best. It is of especial concern for Americans as it shows how inextricably our interests are interwoven with those of other nations." $3.00

BOOKS

Cicero Had No Use for Caesar—

A visit from Julius Caesar described by Cicero

"However, he isn't the sort of guest to whom one would say, 'I should be delighted if you would look in on your way back.' Once is enough."

$3.50

PRIVATE LETTERS PAGAN and CHRISTIAN

Actual letters written 2,000 years ago by politicians, courtesans, philosophers, statesmen, saints and other erring citizens.

E. P. Dutton & Co., Inc. New York

"Oh! Monsieur—"
"Mademoiselle—"
and right there the conversation breaks down!

HOW can we call ourselves educated if we don't have a working knowledge of at least one language besides our own? If you favor French—that beautiful, clear and sprightly language—and once studied it, or are taking it up now, you can derive pleasure and make a good deal of progress by simply reading

LE PETIT JOURNAL

LE PETIT JOURNAL is a small newspaper, carefully edited, printed on glazed paper of good quality, profusely illustrated, giving extracts from the French press. It covers a wide range of topics interesting to Americans — travel, fashions, old world customs, world events, general news. It is just long enough so that one has time to read it thoroughly twice a month. No one human being could possibly read the quantity of French journals and dailies from which are culled their choicest items.

Next TWELVE ISSUES for $1.00

Here is a rare opportunity to brush up on your French and at the same time come into closer touch with the spirit of France and of Paris. Think of getting lots of entertainment and 12 splendid lessons in French for just one dollar! Order Le Petit Journal for yourself or for your friend who is interested in France or studying French.

Doubleday, Doran & Co., Inc.,
Dept. 216, Garden City, N. Y.
Enclosed please find $1, for which kindly send me Le Petit Journal for your special trial offer of 6 months (12 issues).
Name ....
Address ....

THE NEW YORK TIMES BOOK REVIEW, FEBRUARY 16, 1930

of the passionate love of Mary and Rowley. Mary is an enchanting character, vindicating all that is foolish, helpless, rash, unvirtuous and entirely modern in any woman. She is touching from the moment when the porter on the deserted railway platform informs her that her train is not due for an hour and suggests that she should warm herself by the fire.

But Rowley came to the rescue, and drove her back to the house of her friend and his fiancée, Maeve Sorrier, whose bridesmaid she was to be. Every one in the house, including Maeve's two brothers, Roguey and Jer, love Mary, but Rowley loves her most of all. His marriage to Maeve takes place, and Mary's to Roguey unexpectedly and desperately follows, but that is not the end. Before it is reached there are foxes to be hunted, snipe to be shot; Mrs. Squiffy, Mary's "much waisted and very morose little terrier," to be rescued from drowning, and Mary's and Rowley's love to run its difficult and reckless course. It makes a very good story.

NEW ENGLAND CONTRASTS

HEIRS. By Cornelia James Cannon. 309 pp. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $2.50.

MRS. CANNON has turned her back upon the wheatfields of Minnesota which supplied the theme and locale of her novel "Red Rust" and has come back to New England for a sociological parable in fictional form on the conquest of New England by the immigrant. Her laboratory demonstration of the fact of this conquest is conducted in the test tube of Lovell, a New Hampshire mill town. The more intelligent Yankee stock had moved West and the Walton woolen mills, faced with a dearth of laborers, had imported Poles. The New Hampshire merino sheep had also gone, and the wool came from the Antipodes. One of the characters observes: "It's funny economics. We import raw materials from the West and raw workers from across the ocean and try to make them both into something." The aboriginal Yankees of the vicinage are decadent and dwindling. They scorn the Poles who buy up their farms, work the mills and keep the town going. But the future lies with the fecund Poles, with their low standards of living and their high per capita average of children.

This statement is not very startling, and is even less exciting when it is worked out in terms of a novel. Marilla Lamprey, an eager New England girl, comes to Lovell to teach school. She falls in love with and marries Seth Walton, owner of the woolen mills, who is trying to keep "his corner of the old State flourishing." But it is all too late. Hers is a childless marriage and a Boston doctor tells her, "You ought to know that there are strange blights which fall upon races and breeds within races, which suddenly reduce their fertility. You may be the victim of such a biological change."

The Yankees of New England are "crystallized and finished like the rocks." They said, "We've got to have some one to do the digging for us, haven't we?" The result was the Poles, who breed like rabbits and "do not live in America, they live underneath America. America goes on over their heads. A poorly paid laborer cannot afford to be an American." Then the demand for pure-wool fabrics falls off. Seth Walton starts a new line of goods—heavily symbolical—wool mixed with rayon, in new gaudy designs. The new line sells like hot cakes. In the end, Seth becomes a paralytic and Marilla resigns herself to childlessness and decides to live for Seth and the mill and the Poles whom she has befriended.

As an honest statement of what is happening to New England and why, "Heirs" is a sound contribution to sociology. If its action is more mechanical than is customary in a novel, it is certainly more animated than is usual in a tract. Puritan New England is rapidly becoming a geographical expression for a territory which is inhabited by lusty, prolific Slavs, Gaelic and Latin Catholics. The Yankee citadel is no longer Boston, but Indianapolis or Wichita. The moral of the story is a plea for closer sympathy between the Yankee rear guard and the army of alien occupation which is making the rock-ribbed galaxy of commonwealths vigorous and prosperous once more. Only if "Heirs" is considered as a novel can it be dismissed as obvious and banal; as argument and proof of the cause and cure for New England's sterility, it is unanswerably accurate.

USELESS PENANCE

THE RELUCTANT MADONNA. By Marguerite Steen. 314 pp. New York: Frederick A. Stokes Company. $2.50.

FOR one passionate hour the seventh Earl of Beauminster lived as his more robust ancestors had done. The rest of his life was a penance for that hour, out of which his son, the Viscount Malstrom, was born. Although the penance in no way demanded a like renunciation of the world from his wife, Beauminster never lived with her again after their marriage—society, however, never being allowed even to imagine the true state of affairs in the household. First her husband, with his ascetic habits, then her adoring son put Miranda Beauminster in a niche as something to be worshiped. It is only when she has her portrait painted for the family walls that Dorival, the artist, discovers her to be a reluctant madonna, a woman who, under other circumstances, would be a flesh and blood woman, and not an enshrined ideal.

With a delicacy of touch and a sympathetic delineation of all of her characters, the author has built up a novel around the life of Miranda and her son, young Malstrom. The lords of Beauminster have been a peculiar lot, lecher and monk following each other in succession through the dynasties. The seventh Earl, Malstrom's father, has developed the monk inheritance. Malstrom, resembling in appearance his grandfather, one of the least monkish of the line, combines the full-blooded animal desires with an idealism given him by his mother and father. The conflict of his inheritance and his ideals comes near to wrecking his life and that of his mother.

At a house party Malstrom receives the confidences of his valet, who "has gotten a girl in trouble" and does not want to marry her, as she is inferior to him and will drag him down. In place of sympathy, Malstrom gives the valet rather sententious advice to marry the girl, and the man hangs himself that night.

With this incident always vivid in his mind, when Malstrom finds himself in the same position, he feels that there is nothing he can do but marry the girl, an artist's model far below him in rank. This he does, in spite of his mother's resistance. The marriage is doubly binding because he has, a short time before, been able to resist involving himself in a similar affair with a girl of his own station.

Although Malstrom occupies most of the immediate attention of the reader, it is Miranda, the reluctant madonna, who is the motive force of the book—she and her husband whose eternal penance becomes increasingly pathetic as its utter futility is demonstrated through the years. An auxiliary character is Laura, second wife of Malstrom's grandfather, one of his former mistresses and a devilish old lady to the last. Laura has many parties for young people, who find themselves hard put living up to her notions of how the "wild" younger generation should act.

In her minor as well as her principal characters, Miss Steen has devoted her attention to those details which suggest real flesh and blood beneath conversation and action. Characters fall into place and remain true to themselves and the story in a manner that combines to make an effective and a moving work.

BURLESQUING THE WAR

THE GOOD SOLDIER: SCHWEIK. By Jaroslav Hasek. Translated from the Czech by Paul Selver. 448 pp. New York: Doubleday, Doran & Co., Inc. $2.50.

AMERICAN satire may be depended upon to make its point quickly. It evokes the sudden laugh. We have all been brought up on the quick assaults of this satire, and because of the early training of our tastes this story of Schweik, the "good" soldier who fought the great war for the Austro-Hungarian empire in every way that could prove the least effective, will seem too ambling, too lackadaisical. To some of us the quiet humor of the English is an alien commodity; how much more alien, then, is "Schweik?"

There are some sections, it is true, which will delight any one. The story opens with the murder of Archduke Ferdinand at Sarajevo in 1914, and Schweik, a self-confessed imbecile, is unable to determine whether the Ferdinand in question is the one who does jobs for Prusa, the chemist, and drinks hair oil by mistake, or the Ferdinand who goes round collecting an unpleasant commodity. But at length Schweik gets it through his cranium that the Ferdinand who has been killed is a member of the royal family. He at once grasps the point: it will mean war. So, with all the omniscience of the Delphic oracle, the good soldier predicts the alignments. Austria will declare open hostilites with Turkey, and Serbia and Russia will come in on the side of Austria. The Germans will attack Austria because they and the Turks, being "a low lot, the scum of the earth," stand up for each other. But this won't matter, says Schweik, for "we can join France. There won't be half a bust-up."

This method of showing how little the so-called average man understood the forces that brought about the European conflict is Jaroslav Hasek's way of satirizing the war guilt problem. Offhand, one would predict a fine effectiveness for this method. We are told by the publishers (who may be taking a leaf from Hasek's hyperbole), that the Czech's read this novel in 1916, "burst into guffaws and giggles, mutinied and refused to fight."

Certainly it is true that "Schweik" is subversive. For the "good soldier" undergoes all sorts of experiences that are calculated to bring laughter down upon militarism, patriotism, and the concepts of glory, old-style. One really funny (to an American) chapter of Schweik's adventures is the one which tells of the treatment meted out to objectors, conscientious and otherwise. Does a Czech, or an Austrian, or a Hungarian, claim to have a serious case of rheumatism? The cure for that claim is "absolute diet," consisting of a cup of tea morning and evening for three days, accompanied by doses of aspirin to produce sweating. To this absolute diet treatment is added a regimen of "ample doses of quinine in powder," a "rinsing of the stomach twice daily," the "use of the clyster with soapy water and glycerine," and "swathing in sheets soaked with cold water." Thus, in Hasek's opinion, did Austria induce patriotism.

Schweik manages to outlast some of the treatment in a laughable chapter, but he is not of the stern stuff which prefers six feet of earth to a surrender of principles. So he winds up, successively, as orderly to a chaplain and "batman" to a lieutenant. The chaplain interlude allows Hasek to satirize the service which was rendered by religion to the war spirit, and the lieutenant interlude permits him to score off professional soldiers. Many of Hasek's shots are mildly effective, but they are hidden in the stretches of unimportant (to an American) incident. The whole story of Schweik's adventures is diffuse, watered. To say that the Czechs like this sort of thing is no reflection upon them, for they probably would be bored stiff with a translation of Robert Benchley. But the book is now offered to an American audience. The fate of Schweik on this side of the Atlantic will be an interesting commentary on just how "national" humor is.

SUPERIOR MELODRAMA

RETURN OF THE BRUTE. By Liam O'Flaherty. 196 pp. New York: Harcourt, Brace & Co. $2.

LIKE so much of Conrad, Liam O'Flaherty's novels are melodrama—with a difference. They have been called melodrama because their action is of the terrifically intensified sort that one never encounters in a life spent in going from office to home and away in the Summer for vacation. But, until "The House of Gold" came along last Fall, they have been uniformly sound in their psychology; the O'Flaherty informers, assassins and black souls have been whipped

(Continued on Page 24)

Man's Eternal Warfare With Society

THREE CAME UNARMED. By E. Arnot Robertson. 328 pp. New York: Doubleday, Doran & Co. $2.50.

THIS brilliant and subtle novel by a young Englishwoman is a product, and, in a certain sense, a culmination of a long process of artistic thought. In "Three Came Unarmed," E. Arnot Robertson attempts to grasp the meaning of man's position in civilized society—to state, concretely and yet suggestively, the basic conflict which takes place in every intelligent human being. This conflict—born of the unbreakable solitude of personality and the unavoidable claims of a gregarious society—has occupied, in the past hundred years, an increasingly larger place in literature. Miss Robertson has brought to the subject a notable brilliance and lightness of touch.

Perhaps unjustifiably, but very persuasively, she personifies society as a brutal herd—swayed by stupid passion, smeared with sentimentality, grossly cruel and infinitely to be feared by "the ungregarious of mind."

Incapable of reason, of forming or revising a judgment, the herd can only hate and pursue to extermination anything which falls outside the narrow lines of its preconceptions. Certainly there is nothing in Miss Robertson's view of society which resembles the pity and the mellow justice of Dreiser. As a one-sided argument—indeed, as an argument at all—"Three Came Unarmed" falls definitely below the level of artistic greatness. But, if Miss Robertson reasons rashly, she pours into her writing a Voltairean bitterness as fine and strong and penetrating as a thin, well-tempered steel blade. It is an invigorating quality, not easily to be dismissed, and certainly not easily to be forgotten.

Miss Robertson's quarrel with society, which is the underlying motive of her book, has been illustrated in "Three Came Unarmed" by a more than usually skillful narrative. John Druce, an English missionary, drinks himself to death in an isolated trading post in Borneo, leaving his three active, capable and intelligent children to their own devices. Under the direction of Herel, the oldest boy, they derive a living from the jungle, hunting, fishing and trapping in native fashion. It was a hard and precarious existence, which developed the muscles and sharpened the senses to ever-present danger. At the time of Druce's death, all three are nearly adult, and except for the ability to read and speak cultivated English, completely savage—alert, suspicious, unsentimental, and not particularly gregarious. Druce had a sister in England, to whom, as he felt death approaching, he confided the care of his children. Thus, in the course of time, Herel and Nonie and Alan were introduced as curiosities in the village of West Mersea, to the society of Mrs. Evered's eminently respectable friends.

These three, who had learned in the jungle to value food and physical comfort and safety, found the standards of civilization—the recurrent stress upon money and social position and the good opinion of one's neighbors—strange and a little ludicrous. They encountered a host of social usages of which they were ignorant, and a variety of incomprehensible small hypocrisies and accredited lies which held together the tissue of society. As months passed, and they began to conform more or less in outward appearance to the standards of their neighbors, the hostility which was everywhere aroused by their essentially alien quality became apparent. They despised the stupid, sluggish, soft-living people who appeared to compose civilized society, and in return they themselves were regarded uneasily and with suspicion. In spite of an apparent adaptability, each one failed, in some indefinable fashion, to fit the pattern set for him by society. The consequences were tragic—spectacularly so in the case of Herel, who was victimized by mob-fury in a strike which he precipitated at his uncle's factory. The book achieves a powerful and brutal conclusion in the death of Herel, although there is perhaps more strength and cogency in the spiritual catastrophe which overtakes Nonie. As a final commentary upon the ways of civilization, Alan—the only one of the three who was able to do so—returned voluntarily to his birthplace in Kapal Pechah, on the edge of the jungle.

E. Arnot Robertson.

From the Portrait by James McBey, Entitled "The Red-Haired Girl."

A mere outline of its contents seems to impute to "Three Came Unarmed" a quality of fanaticism which it does not display. Miss Robertson has brought to the telling of her story a flashing wit and a quality of vital imagination. Whatever one may think of her ideas, one can hardly fail to be captured by the form in which they are set. As any successful novel of ideas must be, "Three Came Unarmed" is first of all a good story.

MARGARET WALLACE.

Queries and Answers

This department is designed to assist in the location of complete versions of poems and their sources, the names of authors, &c., which cannot be found through the usual channels of anthologies and books of reference. The Times receives a great many more queries than it can publish. It endeavors, therefore, to select those of the greatest general interest. Queries should be addressed to the Editor of Queries and Answers, New York Times. They should be written on one side of the paper only, and must contain the name and address of the writer as evidence of good faith. Requests for poems that appear in these columns must be accompanied by postage.

QUERIES

"From Lear to Pericles"

E. C.—Wanted, contemporary verses on the death of Richard Burbage, leading actor of Shakespeare's company. Some lines are:

His stature small, but every thought and mood
Might thoroughly from his face be understood;
And his whole action he could change with ease,
From Ancient Lear to youthful Pericles.

"The Wonderful Meadow"

R. J. C.—Requested, a poem by E. C. Poland, published many years ago, entitled as above. The first stanza runs like this: "Down in the meadow in the sand and in the sun sat a mother hop toad and her little toadies one."

"The Hand That Rocks the Cradle"

G. C. L.—Desired, the poem by Bishop Doane which begins:

O, the hand that rocks the cradle,
 But there is no such hand;
It is bad to rock the baby,
 They would have us understand.

"Cast in a Diviner Mold"

F. H. S.—Wish the name of the author and the poem from which these lines are taken: "Cast in some diviner mold let the new cycle shame the old."

"Stalactite Meets Stalagmite"

A. C.—Wanted, the name of the author and the poem entitled "Silence," which contains the lines, "where stalactite meets stalagmite."

"The Rights of My Birth"

E. H.—Requested, the author's name and the poem in which these lines occur:

Joy upon joy and gain upon gain,
 Are the destined rights of my birth;
And I shout the praise of my endless days,
 To the echoing edge of the earth.

"What Are We Living For?"

D. D.—Desired, the complete poem from which the following quatrain is taken: "What are we living for, to breed a race, to take our place, is that what we are living for?"

"What Unto Is Money Good?"

P. F.—Wish the name of the author and the poem containing these lines:

What unto is money good?
Who has it not has hardihood,
Who has it had much trouble and
 care,
Who has had it has despair.

"About Florida"

E. T.—Wanted, the poem extolling the beauties of Florida. It ran something as follows:

Punta Gooda! Here I am.
Come sip the nectar from my ruby lips,
Come see the wind fill the sails of my ships.

"I Have Knelt Too Lowly"

W. A.—Requested, a poem by Whittier, which is not in his collected works. Some of the lines follow:

I know that I have knelt too lowly
 For smiles so oft withdrawn;
That, trusting love, received too slowly
 The lesson of thy scorn.

"Until Then"

B. B.—Desired, the complete poem by Adelaide P. Love, entitled as above.

"Laddie"

C. W. H.—Wish the name of the author of the enclosed poem of two stanzas, written during the war, which begins: "Laddie, you've come into a world at war, a world that's all too rough for baby feet that should not tread upon a path less sweet."

"A Woman's Sphere"

E. F.—Wanted, a short poem, containing these lines: "They talk about a woman's sphere as if it had a limit; there's nothing much of weel or woe, there's not a whispered yes or no, without a woman in it."

"The Weaver's Watch"
"Bold Packenham"

L. S. B.—Requested, the poem in which this line occurs: "Twelve o'clock by the weaver's watch," and also the rest of another poem describing the battle of New Orleans containing these lines:

Bold Packenham he made his brags,
 If he in fight were lucky,
He'd take our girls and money-bags
 In spite of old Kentucky.

"The Curse of Cain"

A. C. H.—Desired, the name of the author and the poem in which these lines occur:

And yet a little time it seems
Since Frenzy ran so high,
A nation by a gibbet stood
To watch a woman die;
A woman weak and trembling,
Yet guiltless as a child;
But a victim of a frenzy,
A passing fierce and wild,
And then the great God
In His might
Stretched forth His hand again
And wrote upon a nation's brow
The awful curse of Cain.

"Where Beauty Lies"

C. G. P.—Wanted, the origin of this quotation: "Beauty lies in the eyes of the beholder."

"Water Lilies"

M. S. K.—Requested, the poem beginning: "In the time when the water lilies waved their green and gold o'er mountain and lake," and further on speaks of Charmian and the "golden hour" in which he lost her.

"Blue Butterflies"

V. W.—Wish the author's name and the poem entitled "A Fancy," which begins:

Blue butterflies that on faint wings
 Float where the azure myrtles creep,
Out of what dreamland came you
 forth?
 Return you to what sleep?

ANSWERS

"Forget and Forgive"

Miss Katherine C. Farnan, Albany, N. Y.—In your issue of Feb. 2 M. P. B. requested the enclosed poem. The lines wanted are the opening ones:

FORGIVE AND FORGET

By Charles Swain

Forgive and forget! why the world would be lonely,
 The garden a wilderness left to deform,
If the flowers but remembered the chilling winds only,
 And the fields gave no verdure for fear of the storm.
Oh, still in thy loveliness emblem
 the flower,
 Give the fragrance of feeling to sweeten life's way,
And prolong not again the brief
 cloud of an hour,
 With tears that but darken the rest of the day!

Forgive and forget! there's no breast so unfeeling,
 But some gentle thoughts of affection there live;
And the best of us all require something concealing,
 Some heart that with smiles can forget and forgive.
Then away with the cloud from those beautiful eyes;

(Continued on Page 36)

Now You May Secure
A Superb New Edition of

ANATOLE FRANCE

On Easy Payments

So popular have the stories and tales of Anatole France become that a widespread demand has grown for a special edition of his greatest works at a price easily within reach of all and on easy-payment terms that can be fitted into any budget. Now that demand is met in a very handsome edition at a sensationally low cost payable in small installments. This is your first opportunity to own, to know, to enjoy the works of France—to revel in his boisterous humor, to feel the exhilaration of his Gallic wit, to get the thrill that comes with the first reading of the irresistible stories of this great French Master.

20 Volumes in 10

At a Saving of 50%

For the first time you may have the benefit of a remarkable bargain, of easy terms of payment, and of free examination. Twenty regular $3 volumes selling in bookstores for $60 have been bound up in ten handsome books—a superb edition with an introductory price that is less than half the regular price and for which you may pay at the rate of a few cents a day. And you may have the complete set for free exmination. This special offer is designed to make the inimitable works of Anatole France easily available to every booklover.

FREE

Illustrated Folder
And Complete
Information

Without any cost or obligation whatever we will be glad to send you complete details of this remarkable offer—the special Introductory Price and easy terms of payment together with a fascinating story of France and his works in a most interesting illustrated folder. No cost to you. just mail the coupon, and learn how easily you may own these volumes which you will find a fountain of life and love and laughter—a source of brilliant and constantly amazing entertainment.

Everyone Who Is Truly Cultured Must Know His Immortal Works

France stands alone in the world of letters as the one figure in whom is blended the rich wisdom of the past, the sophistication of the present, the mysticism of the future. His works are a liberal education—a course in self-cultivation giving you a breadth of knowledge and a keenness of perception that will be a joy to you and a source of admiration to your friends.

Mail This Coupon

Wm. H. Wise & Co., Dept. 13
50 West 47th St., New York, N. Y.

Send me the free illustrated folder and full information about your new edition of ANATOLE FRANCE, the special introductory price and easy terms of payment.

Name..............................

Address..............................

City....................State..........

PAY DAY

by Nathan Asch

The subway in the rush hour. The movies. The speak-easy. Dancing, drinking, arguing. The taxi. The fight. Unconsciousness. Dawn . . . The staccato style which Mr. Asch uses to record what happened to Jim on pay day, brings home to the reader the truthfulness of this hectic life—which is the life of three-fifths of New York $2.50

THE DIARY OF TOLSTOY'S WIFE

Vol. II, completes this remarkable diary which is one of the most astonishing collections of self-revelations given to the world . $3.50

FIREHEAD

by Lola Ridge

"The exquisite understanding of this poem combined with the music of its verse, makes it the most important writing in its field."—New York Post . . $2.50

VICTOR HUGO

by Raymond Escholier

The real romance and intimate life of this great Frenchman is at last revealed to the world. "A book that is thoroughly accurate and that could not fail to be interesting, for Hugo's life is quite beautiful." — André Maurois . . . $5.00

FROLIC WIND

by Richard Oke

"An exceedingly amusing and witty book about four sisters who lived at Pagnell Bois with their peacocks. Has a pungent and spicy flavor."—Phila. Record . $2.50

JOY IS MY NAME

by Sarah Salt

Joy's progress from the stage to the streets. "Miss Salt is a gifted and brilliant writer with a compelling style."—New York Times . $2.50

THE OMNIBUS OF CRIME

by Dorothy L. Sayers

A volume that will in years to come clearly stand as the classic anthology of stories of mystery and detection. 62 stories, 1200 pages $3.00

DOWN IN FLAMES

by Ben Ray Redman

"A magnificent collection of flying stories."—Russell Crouse in N. Y. Post $2.00

OREGON DETOUR

by Nard Jones

"Tough-fibred epic of love and death in the Oregon wheat country."—N. Y. Post $2.50

BREWER & WARREN, Inc. 6 E. 53rd St., N.Y.

It will remind you of "K"—

JENNY

The Romance of a Nurse

BY NORMA PATTERSON

Jenny captures all hearts. She is one of those characters that are created only once in a decade—and all the world loves them. A novel of laughter and tears and honest-to-goodness sentiment. $2.00

And every one is reading Young Man of Manhattan, Katharine Brush's great romance. 45th thousand, $2.00

FARRAR & RINEHART

When the Manchus Were in Power

Princess Der Ling Recalls the Quaint and Distant Days of Life in China Before the Boxer Rebellion

The Illustrations on This Page Are From Drawings by S. Pinkus for "Kowtow."

KOWTOW. By Princess Der Ling. Illustrated by S. Pinkus. 322 pp. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co. $3.50.

By ROSALIND IVAN

IN "Kowtow," Princess Der Ling tells the story of her life for about ten years preceding the Boxer uprising of 1900, shortly after which the book is brought to a close. During those ten years we read of her youth that was spent in China, Japan and France. There is no reflection here of the China we have heard about since the Revolution of 1911, where, with the exception of Russia, more tremendous changes have taken place in the realm of government, in education and in customs than in any other country in the world. This is a story of magic lands, a world of strange and beautiful processions, of gardens of cherry blossoms and willow trees, of a house where goldfish swam in a great Sung bowl, where a little girl with toy gunboat feet rode in a sedan chair! Of a father who wore a plum-colored coat, black satin boots and mandarin beads!

And it is of that father that the daughter writes so enchantingly. He was a Manchu official and his name was Lord Yü Keng. In her story, we first read of his residence at Sha-ssu, where he was such a favorite that when he left there to become Provincial Treasurer at Hupeh, the people of Sha-ssu presented him with two great umbrellas; many ribbons of different colors hung from their edges and on the ribbons were the names of ten thousand men! To present the "ten thousand men umbrella" to an official was the greatest honor they could confer upon him.

Little is written about the war with Japan, but a brilliant account is given of official life in Tokio, where Yü Keng went as Minister to Japan when the war was over. Until the death of the great Empress Dowager the Manchus were in power, but always their official life was difficult and Yü Keng's was no exception. However, in telling his story, Princess Der Ling stresses only the picturesque and touches as lightly as possible upon any unpleasantness that occurred, making it, whenever possible, entertaining and amusing. The love that existed between father and child was such a vital force that she makes it the vital interest. Their devotion to each other, their sympathy and understanding toward each other, are the most beautiful attributes of the book.

It was a matter for grave disapproval among Orientals that Yü Keng should have had his daughters educated. Learning the Chinese classics, and foreign languages besides, created caustic comment. Then, Yü Keng was rather an extraordinary father! He did not even register his daughters when they were born! As the children of an official of the first rank, they, upon reaching the age of 14 or 15, were eligible to become secondary wives or concubines of the Emperor, and the Lord Yü Keng did not care for such an honor as might be his "through allowing his daughters to become playthings of any man, whether Emperor or commoner." Neither would he "arrange" a marriage for them, which is the Oriental custom.

Now that many of the elaborate forms of courtesy are abandoned, it is interesting to read of the quaint customs among high-born Chinese of which the Princess writes with so much charm. She tells an interesting anecdote concerning Kaiser Wilhelm and the kowtow, which is the Chinese form of salutation from an inferior to a superior! It seems that at the time of the Boxer Uprising, when von Kettler of the German Legation at Peking had been killed, the German Emperor demanded that a Manchu prince of the royal blood should be sent to Berlin to apologize. Prince Chun was sent. The Emperor demanded that he kowtow. This the Prince refused to do. "A Prince of the ruling house of China kowtows to no Emperor save his own!" was his reply. After all, kowtowing is a Chinese custom, not a German one!

Tea-drinking is a ritual of great importance, and many courtesies are exchanged without speaking a word. Whereas in Japan, the people who come to call drink the tea and eat the cakes offered, among the Chinese, the politest thing is not to eat! It is not considered polite to come right out and state your business without verbal circumlocutions, and visits are terminated at the host's convenience by signals. The first signal is the appearance of a servant with a huge red calling card, at sight of which the guest rises and prepares to go. The second signal is the entrance of the servant to remove the tea-things, whereupon the visitor removes himself!

Presents in China are made in pairs or in even numbers of four, six or eight or so on, and it is a breach of etiquette to give only one of anything. The Empress's birthday was a most costly affair, and all over China officials who served the crown sent extravagant gifts of Old Testament lavishness.

The descriptions of the family's moving from one place of residence to another are highly entertaining. Although the removal from Sha-ssu to Hupeh was an affair of pomp and splendor, it was completely eclipsed by the glory and magnificence of that from Peking to Japan. Yü Keng's own family circle consisted of about fifty people, and every official in Peking, who could be spared from his duties went as far as Tungchow to see them off. There were friends and friends' friends and the servants' friends besides.

The Princess writes:

It was a never-ending thrill for me to look back along the trail where there were curves, and see the cavalcade stretched out behind us, like a great serpent who, crawl however he may, still has endless miles of tail behind him which never comes to view. There were Peking carts which bounced and jounced, sedan-chairs without number which swayed and rocked, mules and donkeys that brayed, horses that whickered, jangling their rich and gaudy trappings; colors which dimmed the glory of rainbows, an endless river of colors stretching back and back.

No black shadows darkened their lives until the time of the Boxer uprising, which occurred in China while the family was in residence at the Chinese Legation in Paris. What occurred then was of immense dramatic interest in showing the superb courage of the father when he faced an infuriated French mob.

Quietly, with no fuss or feathers, father prepared to go to see the Foreign Minister. He went down to the street. * * * Without a glance to right or left, without even a pause, without a second of hesitation, he strode directly toward the mob as though he hadn't a care in the world, as though he had no personal interest in the reason why the mob had gathered. * * * That mob which surrounded the legation, mouthing threats to avenge the "brutal murder" of Pichon in Peking, opened up for father, far to right and left, and he walked through them, calm and sure of tread, without looking to right or left, unhurried, unafraid, without so much as a cane in his hand for protection. * * * He did not even look back, and silence fell over the mob which he had so simply ignored.

It became impossible, however, for Yü Keng and his family to remain in France, and after traveling in Europe for a while, the family returned to China, where, in the last chapter, we come to the passing of a great man.

The illustrations by S. Pinkus have the same quaint and youthful freshness which characterizes the style of the writing.

Belloc's Portrait of Joan of Arc

JOAN OF ARC. By Hilaire Belloc. 128 pp. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1.75.

THE heroic Joan of Arc is always a winsome figure, and the world never tires of her pathetic story. Hilaire Belloc is a master of English prose, and his interpretation of this sublime personality is given with a calm sincerity that befits his theme. Through his deep sympathy and understanding we see Joan the Maid living her simple life and following the call of her Voices with serene certainty of her mission and the courage of her exalted faith. The book is a gem. Some passages are so lovely that we read them again and again. Belloc has written no finer book, and no more beautifully realistic story has been written of the Maid.

We meet first the old mad King of France whose wife was a German harlot, mocking him, though the story goes back to King John to explain the various divisions of France and the men who ruled them, or sought to rule them, by battle, bribery or intrigue.

Most unfortunate of all these contestants for sovereignty, and the most ill-equipped, was Charles the Dauphin, called the Bastard. The death of the King set each faction determinedly on success, but the situation of the Dauphin became ever more deplorable:

Shut in his closet alone, the Dauphin despaired. A doubt took him whether such misfortunes were not proof that the tale was true, he was none of the King's blood. He prayed there apart, a strong particular prayer, well remembered, deeply graven into his heart. In this prayer he prayed that if indeed he were not of the Blood Royal but a Bastard born as his base mother had proclaimed, then let God remove from his heart the desire for sovereignty. But at least not let him be killed or captured, but escape to safeguard in the court of Castille or of Scotland, friends from of old with the Lilies. And he besought God, if indeed he were Dauphin of the Great Line, to grant him a sign. But how could a sign be given? So he prayed; and he told no man living of his prayer.

While France was in the unhappy state of chaos Joan was born. Her father was a yeoman. She grew up tall and sturdy, strong of body and clear of mind. She tended the sheep and plowed her father's land. And she was famous at her needle. Her mother taught her the prayers and creed of their Catholic faith.

In her thirteenth year she heard her first Voice. It spoke of Faith and its observance, and gave order that she should seek the uncrowned King of France, rescue him and crown him at Rheims. She was young and fearful. She told only the priest, but became more pious and devoted and vowed herself to God, living in the companionship of St. Catherine and St. Margaret. "I saw them with the eyes of my body as plainly as I see you now."

Women of that day had little freedom of action, and daughters were subject to their parents, so Joan was unable to set forth on her mission till three years later. Then she brought to the Dauphin the longed-for sign. We know her story; her struggles for recognition, her battles with those who sought to defeat her purpose, her victories, her defeats, her suffering and her death. And above all her serene faith that the High Ones of heaven are wiser than men.

After 500 years she is the most adored saint of France and the world's best-loved heroine. Her gallant courage, her true devotion, her gentle manner throughout her prosecution, and the childlike faith with which she faced her martyrdom, make a tale that never loses its interest and charm. It is the story of a simple maid who won a kingdom, crowned a king and was done to death by those who feared and hated but could never understand her.

MARY ALLAN STUART.

Books in Brief Review

(Continued from Preceding Page)

from the ordinary than a dozen years ago would have seemed the lark upon which in 1926 Viola Irene Cooper and her friend, Jean Schoen, set forth from San Francisco. They had wanted, longed for, determined to have, a long sea voyage in a windjammer—and so, of course, they got it. Miss Cooper writes the story of their two months' trip from Vancouver to New Caledonia in a graphic, lively narrative which a good many kinds of people will find very interesting—such as those who delight in ocean trips and think they would enjoy such a long sojourn as this on the sea, and those who delight in adventure, and from first page to last will be envious of the good luck of these two girls, and those who delight in unhackneyed, zestful description of unusual experiences.

Miss Cooper and Miss Schoen succeeded in getting themselves signed on as "midshipmen" to the ship's company of the Bougainville, a three-masted barque flying the French flag. After sixty-three proud years of ocean service she was on her last sea voyage and was taking a cargo to the French colony, where she was to be dismantled and become a storage barge. Miss Schoen assisted with some of the least important duties of navigation, but Miss Cooper, the captain, having early discovered that she had no gifts as a sailor, was assigned to the work of keeping the ship's journal. She kept her own diary and has used it in re-creating for the reader the story of their voyage. Apparently the narrative is all fact, without even the little broideries of fiction that sometimes help to give vivacity to sea tales. But it is fact seen through the eyes of a lover of sea and ships and adventure, for whom whatever happens has its own glamour. Her account of their shipmates, the ship's cats, the cannibal cabin boy, the gallant French captain, the work of the sailors, the thrills of tuna fishing and of shark shooting, the gorgeous colorings of Pacific Ocean sunsets and sunrises, fierce tropic storms, doldrums, tropic heat, their daily lives, is written with the zest of first experience of something long desired, and she has succeeded in putting into her narrative the freshness and the charm it all had for her.

A POPULAR WATER SPORT

OUTBOARD MOTOR BOATS AND ENGINES. Water Thrills and Sports for Every One. By Bradford Burnham. Illustrated. 182 pp. New York: Frederick A. Stokes Company. $3.50.

OUTBOARD motor boating is rapidly becoming one of the most popular of water sports, and the outboard has for some years been steadily proving its usefulness in inland waterways. And so, what with thrills and uses, the little boat has recently come very much to the fore. Mr. Burnham is an expert in this kind of boating and an ardent enthusiast about it, but he has learned, he says, that "the fun in outboarding, whether racing or runabouting, all depends on knowing how." And so he has written this book to give the beginner his expert advice and counsel about the sizes, types and uses of the outboard and the selection of a boat; about hulls and engines and equipment, ond other matters that the beginner needs to know. And he has assembled also much data that those who are no longer beginners will be glad to have in such convenient form.

COLONIAL FREEMASONRY

FREEMASONRY IN THE THIRTEEN COLONIES. By J. Hugo Tatsch. Illustrated. 245 pp. New York: Macoy Publishing and Masonic Supply Company. $3.15.

MR. TATSCH brings to his comprehensive and detailed study of Freemasonry during Colonial times wide knowledge and great enthusiasm. A banker on the West Coast, he gave up his banking connections eight years ago in order to devote his entire time to Masonic research and literature. He is the author of half a dozen books dealing with the history and literature of the Masonic order. In this volume he considers briefly a few unauthenticated accounts of prehistoric and early American Freemasonry, then sketches briefly a general picture of the conditions of Colonial life as a background for his narrative, and then takes up the story separately in each of the thirteen Colonies and tells it in each case with full detail. The accounts include in each State the establishment of independent Grand Lodges, which in some of them carries the story on for several years beyond the Colonial period. Mr. Tatsch's extensive researches while preparing the material for this book led him to the discovery of several matters of importance in Masonic history, among them being the existence during Colonial times of a hitherto unknown French lodge in New York City and of another working in the German language in Virginia during the Revolution.

EUGENICS DEFINED

WHAT IS EUGENICS? By Major Leonard Darwin. Introduction by James R. Angell. 88 pp. The Forum Series. New York: Galton Publishing Company. $1.

IN his very brief introduction to this little book President Angell of Yale University tersely states the importance of its theme, saying that "no thoughtful person can have the slightest doubt that the population problem is going quickly to take on vastly greater importance," and that both national and international relations "are certain to be increasingly and often critically affected by it." And Major Leonard Darwin, famous son of a more famous father, feels even more strongly about it, so strongly that, as he tells us in his short preface, it has been for almost twenty years his constant study, while for more than half a century it has been much in his thoughts. This little book is, mostly, a condensed statement of the views set forth in his larger volume, "The Need for Eugenic Reform," which appeared four years ago.

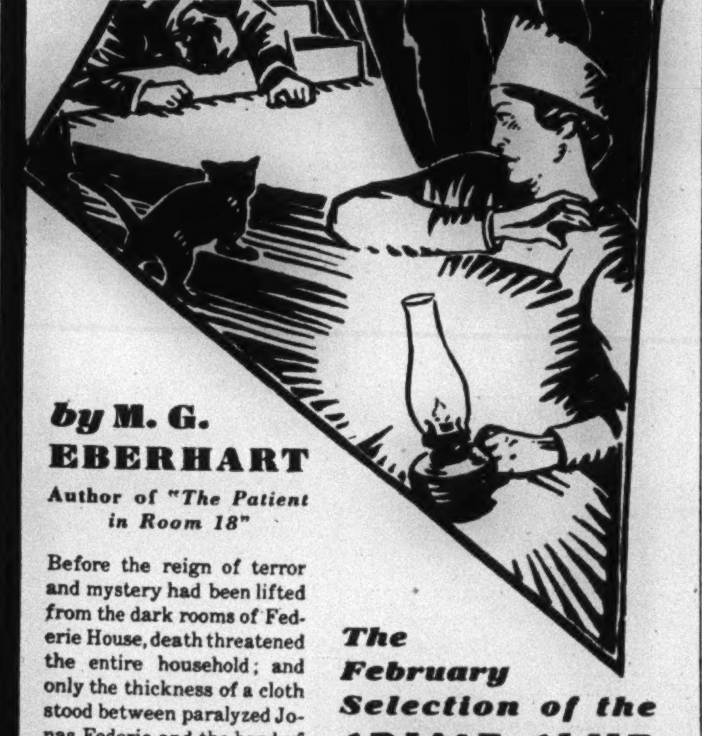
POST-WAR GERMANY

SEEING GERMANY. By E. M. Newman. Illustrated. 406 pp. Newman Traveltalks. New York: Funk & Wagnalls Company. $5.

THERE is a deep and vital difference," says Mr. Newman in his introduction, "between the present-day Germany and the old empire of the Hohenzollerns," and he adds that it is this different Germany, this modern republic, that he has endeavored to enable the reader to see and understand in this new volume of his "Traveltalks." He guides the reader round about in Munich, Bavaria, Oberammergau, the Black Forest, Baireuth, Dresden, Leipzig, Heidelberg, Berlin, down the Rhine to some of the northern ports and to other cities and regions of interest. He pays a good deal of attention to the notable artistic treasures of the various cities, musical interests, memories of famous personages, but passes rather lightly over historical associations. There is much all through the book about the activities, scenes and people of daily life as the author has seen them on his journeys during recent years. The volume is copiously illustrated with over 300 reproductions.

Awarded the SCOTLAND YARD PRIZE for the Year's Best Detective Story!

WHILE THE PATIENT SLEPT



by M. G. EBERHART

Author of "The Patient in Room 18"

Before the reign of terror and mystery had been lifted from the dark rooms of Federie House, death threatened the entire household; and only the thickness of a cloth stood between paralyzed Jonas Federie and the hand of the murderer. Detective Lance O'Leary, with the help of Nurse Keate, solves the strangest problem of his career. No wonder this has been proclaimed the best detective novel of 1930!

The February Selection of the CRIME CLUB

Just out! Get this prize winning thriller at your bookstore today. . . . $2.00.

CRIME CLUB, INC. Garden City, N. Y.

"The outstanding piece of work in war literature"

RETREAT

A NOVEL OF 1918

BY C. R. BENSTEAD

THE WAR BOOK THAT IS STIRRING THE THOUGHT OF TWO CONTINENTS

The Manchester Guardian calls RETREAT "the outstanding piece of work in war literature. If not on a plane with Greek tragedy this book comes very close to it."

MOST ORIGINAL WAR BOOK

Dean Inge, famous leader of the Church of England, says: "Benstead has written one of the best and most original of the new war books."

NEW ANGLE OF APPROACH

John Haynes Holmes, liberal clergyman and pastor of the Community Church of New York, writes: "RETREAT is a new and remarkable contribution to the war literature of our time. I would not have believed that so new an angle of approach could have been opened at this late day."

THRILLING AND THOUGHTFUL BOOK

Bruce Gould, of the New York Evening Post, says: "When the final roll call of war books is sounded, RETREAT will answer from the front rank. It is a thrilling book; but even more it is a thoughtful book, with devastating implications."

REPRESSED POWER—STARK VERACITY

Du Bose Heyward, author of "Porgy," etc: "I'd like to speak for this masterpiece. RETREAT is as British as 'Journey's End.' It speaks with the same repressed power—the same terrible and stark veracity. I cannot conceive of a better written war book than RETREAT."

RETREAT

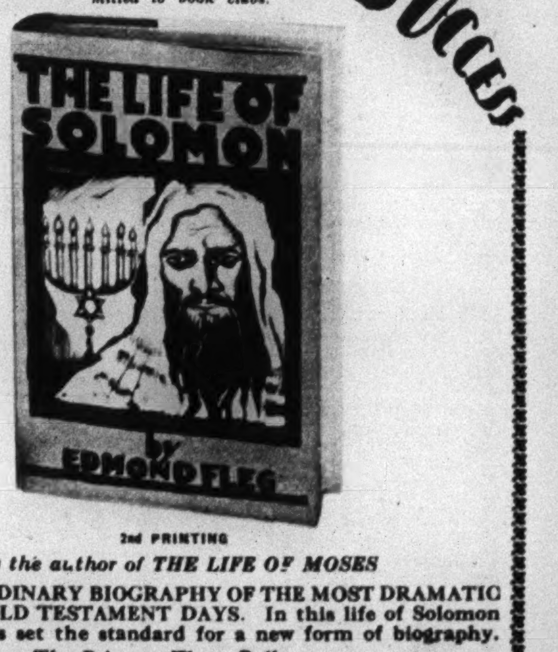
A NOVEL OF 1918

BY C. R. BENSTEAD

At All Bookstores, $2.50 THE CENTURY CO.

A NEW DUTTON SUCCESS

Dutton books are never submitted to book clubs.



2nd PRINTING

By the author of THE LIFE OF MOSES

AN EXTRAORDINARY BIOGRAPHY OF THE MOST DRAMATIC FIGURE OF OLD TESTAMENT DAYS. In this life of Solomon the author has set the standard for a new form of biography.

The Price——Three Dollars.

E. P. DUTTON & CO., Inc., 300-4th Avenue, New York, N. Y. Publishers since 1858

News and Views of Literary London

LONDON.

NO one is better qualified than H. Wilson Harris to interpret for the general public the meaning of the London Conference. In "Naval Disarmament" (Allen) he has provided us with a convenient and trustworthy handbook tracing the development of the problem from the end of the World War to the present day. Another useful publication with the same title has been written by Hugh Latimer and issued by the Royal Institute of International Affairs. Benn, too, announces a timely volume on "Naval Warfare" by Admiral Sir Herbert Richmond. George Glasgow's "Continental Statesmen" (Bles) throws light upon the personalities and careers of some of the leading delegates to the conference as well as several other prominent figures of European politics. Briand, Poincaré, Schacht, Mussolini, Masaryk and Venizelos are among the subjects of his graphic pen portraits.

Mr. Glasgow is no hero worshipper. He ascribes much of the present trouble in Europe to "the poor quality of the average European politician, combined with the abnormal prestige attaching to his name." The political career, however, whether in Europe or elsewhere, has found a zealous defender in F. S. Oliver, previously well known for his brilliant life of Alexander Hamilton and for that provocative piece of war literature entitled "Ordeal By Battle." His new book, "The Endless Adventure" (Macmillan) is the first instalment of a three-volume study of Sir Robert Walpole and his times, and is of such high quality as even to enhance his reputation. An elaborate introduction, running to more than 100 pages, discusses the theory and practice of politics, for the adventure with which Mr. Oliver deals is the adventure of governing men. He admits that it is the "most hazardous of all manly professions." There is not another in which a man may so easily lose his own soul. Yet, with all the temptations, dangers and degradations that beset it, it is still "the noblest career that any man can choose." Mr. Oliver is equally uncompromising in his defense of party. "Internal antagonisms," he boldly declares, "are the heart beats of a nation's life, and when these antagonisms cease its history is ended. A nation 'where none is for a party, but all were for the State' would be no more, upon the most favorable computation, than an impotent babel of virtuous voices." Obviously there is much highly controversial material in such pronouncements, and some of the reviewers of this book criticize it severely, but they all recognize its value as a contribution to the study of public affairs. Even those who find the argument of its introduction unconvincing have nothing but praise for the historical part of the book, which is remarkably sympathetic and vivid and includes a whole gallery of brilliant vignettes.

***

THE Book Society's latest choice is H. M. Tomlinson's "All Our Yesterdays" . . . Another war book that has received high praise is Richard Blaker's "Medal Without Bar" (Hodder). Its special features are that it is a gunner's novel and a subaltern's novel. . . John Galsworthy's speech to the Associated Societies of Edinburgh University, outlining a philosophy of happiness, is to be issued by Mathews in a signed and limited edition under the title "A Rambling Discourse."

Edmund Blunden succeeds Leonard Woolf as literary editor of The (London) Nation. . . . Benn reports the complete success of the scheme he introduced last June by which a bookseller may return any Benn books in good condition, for full credit, if at the same time he orders double their value in other books from the same publisher's current general catalogue. He now revises this plan and puts it on a permanent basis by making this offer contingent on the purchase of double values in any Benn books published not less than two years previous to the date of the order. . . . In his novel, "A Painted Cloth" (Cassell) Guy Chapman gives pictures of the London publishing business from the inside.

***

H. A. L. FISHER (warden of New College) and E. L. Woodward are collaborating in a history of the times of the Khedive Ismail, which the Clarendon Press will publish. The book is being prepared at the request of King Fuad, who placed the archives of Abdin Palace at their disposal during their recent visit to Cairo. . . . "Ancient Egyptian Masonry" (Oxford Press), by Somers Clarke and R. Engelbach, will be a detailed account of the technical methods of construction used by the architects of ancient Egypt. . . . Sir Arnold Wilson's forthcoming "Bibliography of Persia" (Oxford Press) will be of value not only to archaeologists but to business men interested in the development of Persia's oil resources. . . . Frank Hives's "Ju-Ju and Justice in Nigeria" (Lane) describes the thrilling experiences of a district commissioner in suppressing the terrorism exercised over the Aro people by priestly fetishes.

Maude Royden is at work on a new book on modern sex ideals. . . . The first volume of the Scott centenary literature is "Sir Walter Scott's Congé" (Black), by Lord Sands. It tells the story of an early romantic attachment and is based on two hitherto unpublished letters to an intimate friend. . . . Dent has in preparation a centenary edition of Hazlitt in twenty-one volumes. . . . J. C. Squire is editing for Harrap a new series entitled "The Sportsman's Library." It will consist of reprints of sporting classics.

HERBERT W. HORWILL.

Three New Novels by Hungarian Writers

LESZ-E REGGEL! (Will the Dawn Come?) By Jozsef Remenyi. Kassa: Kazinczy Kiadovallalat.

MARIKA, ENEKELJ! (MARIKA, SING!) By Lajos Kassak. Budapest: Dante Kiadas.

A SZOKEVENY (THE DESERTER). By Lajos Zilahy. Budapest: Uj Idok.

HUNGARIAN authors can afford to be sincere and outspoken; they can afford to appear rhapsodic and fantastic. Their exotic language is a serious barrier to mass production and the élite they reach is seldom surprised and never offended. Their readers like caricatures in which they recognize themselves, they like novels that are critical and cruel, sweeping indictments of society and social classes. The Magyars liked Shaw's plays long before England did. Hence, Hungarian literature is often subjective and nearly always analytical. The authors seldom write merely for the sake of entertainment. They have preserved the tradition of being considered as fledgling apostles, biblical seers in modern evening dress.

The Magyars have retained their contact with nature more than the Western nations. The country's population is mainly agricultural and the sand of the puszta encroaches on the capital, Budapest, while from the mountains skirting the Danube the perfume of lilacs pervades the city. They are possessed of the sentimentality of the soil, coated with a superficial sophistication. They have the sense of futility and tragedy of country people who are contending against destructive natural forces.

Few authors are as outspoken and conscious of this futility as József Reményi. The hero of his "Will the Dawn Come?" is an addict to the favorite pastime of many Hungarian intellectuals, worrying about mankind and trying to save it. His plan is to destroy superfluous life through a sort of huge suicide club, but he is frustrated by the most elementary instinct, the will to live. Undaunted by his initial failure, he falls back on man's greediness and founds a corporation whose success is dependent on the destruction being carried out on a large scale. It is too late for him to realize that his Faustian despair had misguided him and he dies, the only victim of his gigantic plan, confident that the dawn will come.

Reményi is a Hungarian-American and his problems are complicated by the continual comparing of two civilizations. Through this additional facility for training his sense of values Reményi can see man more clearly—the absolute man, divested of the trappings of his environment. In a powerful novel whose four volumes remind one occasionally of the heroic combats of Jean Cristophe, "Men Don't Cry!" the author had set out to find that elusive abstraction: the universally human. A solitary man is transplanted to a strange continent. A Hungarian intellectual in America—is this not an echo of Reményi's own experiences?—he cannot and does not want to conform to his new surroundings. He is like a meteor dropped out of a passing planet and he sleeps a lifeless existence until the end of the world. His tragedy is that he succumbs to the dollar, doomed to death by life itself.

***

MARIKA, the heroine of Lajos Kassák's new novel, is another victim of life. A peasant girl comes to town and looks into the face of a new life which bewilders and fascinates her. Hers is the frightened scream of a newborn child, clinging tenaciously to an existence that is cold and cruel. In her new surroundings there are no safeguards for the integrity of womanhood, and she goes back to the village, a fallen woman inescapably lost, yet purer in heart than her slanderers. Her tragedy is all the more enormous because she is unaware of it. Inarticulate and primitive, Marika represents humanity in its infancy. The song had died on her lips and now she is waiting for a great spiritual resurrection, doubts growing in her simple heart that everything is as it should be.

Not long ago Lajos Kassák was a wayward poet who wrote cubistic verses that seemed to most critics very artificial and stilted. In his novels, and especially in his magnum opus, "A Man's Life," he has adopted a style that is almost classical in its simplicity. He makes the best use of his gift to describe everyday events in their relation to cosmic forces. Kassák has re-

(Continued on Page 14)

Castle Vajdahunyad, Budapest.

Goncharov's Classic Novel, "Oblomov"

OBLOMOV. By Ivan Goncharov. Translated from the Russian by Natalie A. Duddington. 525 pp. New York: The Macmillan Company. $3.

HERE is the first complete English translation of Ivan Goncharov's "Oblomov," a book that has been available to English readers in the past only in an abridged, crippled and inadequate version. By its publication in full an important gap in the list of English translations of the Russian classics is filled. For the place which "Oblomov" holds in the Russian literature of the nineteenth century is as important as it is unique.

Goncharov's literary career was strange. He was a very slow and unprolific writer: his entire literary output consisted of three novels, a novelette and a travel-diary. Of these five works four decidedly belong to second-class literature: the travel-diary and the novelette are quite unimportant, while two of the novels, "The Commonplace Story" and "The Abyss" are marked not only by evidences of a great talent, but also by important artistic shortcomings. Had Goncharov been the author of these four works only he probably would have been forgotten long since, obscured by such great contemporaries of his as Turgenev, Tolstoy and Dostoyevsky.

But he also wrote "Oblomov" (on which he worked for eleven years, from 1847 to 1858); and in this novel he rose so far above his usual level that it "made an epoch" (the success it won on its publication was enormous) and still survives as one of the Russian masterpieces of the nineteenth century.

Contemporaries liked the novel chiefly for its social-political side. In Oblomov, with his fabulous laziness and weakness of character, with his lifelong day-dreaming on the sofa and with his shrinking from the necessity to dress and go out as from a heroic effort, the liberal and radical critics of the day saw a Russian gentleman "reared on the soft bed of serfdom" and demoralized by it; and with Oblomovka, the hero's somnolent country estate, they identified the old, patriarchal Russia at large. So the novel was taken as a satire; and the word "Oblomovism" has been ever since the novel's publication the generally accepted (and terribly banalized) synonym for inactivity, or "laisser aller." That the novel has a satirical meaning is true. Yet, while reading the book, one feels that Goncharov loved tenderly his hero. Moreover, it cannot be doubted that the novel has strong autobiographic roots. Of course Goncharov did not spend his life lying on the sofa (he was a bureaucrat and a very conscientious one, at that). Yet, laziness, inactivity and abnormal fear of any change in the established routine of life (for instance, fear of moving to a new apartment) were his characteristics, too. Thus, to arrive at Oblomov, he merely had to exaggerate and caricature his own strangenesses. It is, by the way, this autobiographic character that made for the perfection of "Oblomov": Goncharov was a strictly subjective writer; he could describe well only that which was close to himself.

It is not easy to sum up the novel's artistic qualities. Goncharov's narrative is unusually slow; to use the words of a Russian critic, it takes Oblomov a whole chapter to get out of bed. Yet this slowness is so well harmonized with Oblomov's character that, instead of being irritated, the reader is drawn into the novel by sure steps. Although a caricature, Oblomov is as convincingly alive as a man in a book only can be. But the chief source of the novel's impressiveness lies in this hero's drama. In the first parts of the novel, shaken up by his friend Stoltz and falling in love with an intelligent and energetic girl of his class, he is on the point of conquering his weakness and of becoming a normal man. But no, his weakness conquers him: although suffering atrociously, he gives up the girl—to love her is an effort too great for him. Although realizing the horror of it (he is an intelligent, kind idealist), he succumbs to a more and more complete paralysis of will-power; and his gradual downfall (he ends by marrying almost a servant) is drawn with such simple, sustained and relentless convincingness that one feels as though one were watching a man being gradually drawn into the ooze of a swamp. No matter what "Oblomov's" political-satirical side—uninteresting in our day—may be, this strange drama is so intensely human that the whole novel acquires an undeniable value as a work of art. It is this value that makes it live.

ALEXANDER NAZAROFF.

Books in Brief Review

THE CONQUEST OF THOUGHT BY INVENTION: In the Mechanical State of the Future. By H. Stafford Hatfield. 80 pp. The New Science Series. New York: W. W. Norton & Co., Inc. $1.

ONE can always be fairly sure of finding in the little red-jacketed books of this series intellectually pugnacious stuff, stuff that slaps in the face complacently accepted beliefs and startles the reader into serious attention. Mr. Hatfield, an English writer who seems to have delved a good deal into psychology and into mechanistic theories of science, behavior and life, and is also an inventor of machines for the control of electric and chemical processes of high consequence in industry, is one of the most pugnacious of them all. But his intellectual fists, and good strong ones they are, are not on the side of those theories. He is a man after our own Mencken's heart in his attitude toward standardized life and mechanized society and he writes of them with a delicate facility in the use of the sneer and the gibe that even Mencken might envy. His thesis is that the whole trend of modern society is toward complete mechanization of all phases of its activity, the realizing of such stability and security for every one that life will become a mere matter of routine, no longer demanding much in the way of real thought or purposive effort, and his conclusion is that, unless there should be some serious disturbance by other races, > the white races can and will settle down to live in a manner closely analogous to that of other routinized organisms, such as ants and bees. * * * All this is happening, it seems to me, in so inevitable a manner that any argument concerning its desirability appears futile. It is true that only England, Germany, Italy and possibly Russia are finally and irrevocably set upon this path. France has traveled but a short distance, and it is quite likely that she will go no further. * * * English individualism is now quite dead. The French brand shows more vitality; Marianne is not so easy to tame. I leave it to my American readers to consider which way their country is moving and which way they would like it to move.

Mr. Hatfield argues his proposition cogently, with much provocative evidence from social and political developments of the last two or three decades and with lively comparisons of the reactions of populace and individuals a few years ago and now to mechanizing processes.

BROADWAY'S STORY

HERE'S TO BROADWAY! By Edward Ten Broeck Perine. Illustrated. 321 pp. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. $4.50.

IT is an engaging toast to New York City's famous street that Mr. Perine offers here, colorful and sparkling, rich with information, quite often somewhat delirious with excitement. For it is a tale of great days and nights on Broadway—and whoever knows the New York of today will be much entertained by the story of how throughout Broadway's history the street has always been able to rise and shine and shout itself hoarse at a moment's notice. Mr. Perine does not attempt to tell the full story of the street, but only to give full views of it at some of its high moments, and to preface and surround these with a narrative of contemporary events that led up to them and not some picturing of the life of the time and of the people connected with the episodes described. His twenty-one chapters, which begin with the laying of the cornerstone of St. Paul's Chapel in 1764—a serious and solemn forerunner of later happenings—and end with the welcome to Lindbergh, June 13, 1927, portray a series of picturesque and significant episodes which, if it does not tell the full story of the street, at least shows how perennial is the city's youth and how undulled forever remain its spirit and its capacity to feel emotion.

First of the pageants and colorful gatherings to be described is the first inaugural of Washington, April 30, 1789, and then follows the account of the first official welcome to the city of a distinguished personage when Lafayette came back in August, 1824. It was a magnificent and spectacular occasion that set a high standard for welcomes that were to follow, and it so greatly surprised its hero that Mr. Perine comments that "measured by innocent lack of expectation, nothing ever happened like it, before or since, save only the arrival of Lindbergh in Paris bearing his treasured letters of introduction." Some of the other outstanding events in the story of Broadway about which the author tells are the Macready-Forrest riot, the departure of the Seventh Regiment for the Civil War, the welcome to Jenny Lind, the funeral processions of Lincoln and of Grant and, coming down to later days, the Hudson-Fulton celebration, the Equitable Building fire, the armistice celebration, the return of the Twenty-seventh Division of the A. E. F.

Mr. Perine has evidently read widely, for the preparation of each of his narratives for his text is always full of colorful backgrounding information and interesting detail.

LINCOLN'S DEATH

I SAW BOOTH SHOOT LINCOLN. By W. J. Ferguson. Illustrated. 63 pp. Limited edition. Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company. $2.50.

ON the night of Lincoln's martyrdom the author of this monograph stood on the stage of Ford's Theatre and witnessed the tragedy. He was a lad in his middle 'teens and for some time had been employed as a call boy in the theatre, but he had recently been allowed to take small, unimportant parts, and on the night of April 14, 1865, had been hastily assigned to take the place of a regular actor who had fallen ill. During the progress of the play he was rehearsing with Laura Keene his lines and business with her and in the third act he was standing with her in the first entrance just back of the acting part of the stage, his position being such that he could look straight into the President's box. He was so looking when he heard the shot and saw Lincoln's head go back against the wall, saw Booth mount the railing, give a backward slash with his knife to free himself from Major Rathbone's grasp, jump to the stage, rush off between Miss Keene and the author, "so close," he says, "that I felt his breath on my face," and disappear into the alley. He thinks that not more than a minute elapsed from the moment of the pistol report until Booth had mounted his horse and was galloping away. His testimony contradicts two of the legends of the assassination that have gained some credence and are still being perpetuated by those who like to add sensational touches to the tragedy. He declares that Booth stopped for nothing but to regain control of himself after he fell on one knee on the stage, that he did not flourish a dagger and cry "Sic semper tyrannis"—though he may have hissed these words in Major Rathbone's ear as he slashed that officer's wrist—and that he had no encounter with the leader of the orchestra.

Mr. Ferguson vividly pictures the stunned inactivity of the people in the wings of the stage—the acting part of the stage being empty at the moment—as Booth rushed past them and out of the door into the alley. Nobody, he says, turned off the gas, there were no levers in the gas box by which it could be done and the house was not plunged into darkness. He knew Booth well before the assassination and looked up to him with the hero worship of a boy for a favorite actor who in his daily life was genial, full of fun and much given to laughter-provoking practical jokes.

Among the illustrations is a diagram of the stage of the theatre at the moment of the murder, and with the help of this Mr. Ferguson makes clear the exact situation and traces Booth's movements with detail. His recollections correct some mistakes that have crept into general accounts of the event and illuminate some points in its history. He says that interviews with him have misquoted him and he has written this exact and detailed account in order to make his contribution to the story of that night just and accurate. It is a contribution well worth putting into book form.

THE TREATY VETO

THE TREATY VETO IN THE SENATE. By Denna Frank Fleming. 325 pp. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. $3.

THERE have been during the last few years so much discussion of the principle and results of the right of veto which the Senate holds upon treaty making and so much evidence of revolt against it that Mr. Fleming's book comes at a most opportune moment. He is Assistant Professor of Political Science in Vanderbilt University and to his present theme has given much special study. He begins by examining the historical origin of the American Senate's power over treaties, unique in the constitutional systems of the world, and shows it to have been a quite natural consequence of the political conditions under which the nation was born and its Constitution written and of the political thinking of the makers of that instrument, and follows this with an exposition of the part the Senate has played in the negotiation and the consideration of treaties ever since that time, and an inquiry into the consequences following the different methods that have been adopted. One entire chapter is devoted to study of the Senate's rejection of the various treaties it has refused to approve and the reasons for its action, and another to its attitude upon the several series of arbitration treaties.

Half the book is devoted to the still unsettled controversies over the instruments that resulted from the Peace Conference at Versailles, which the author calls "the greatest of the struggles" that have been caused by the Senate's insistence upon its right to veto. He admits that he has watched it with a degree of interest that those who believe history should not be written by contemporaries who have convictions upon its issues may think should disqualify him. In answer to any such objection he merely asks his readers to try as sincerely as he has tried to weigh all his evidence fairly. In all the phases of this controversy—the struggle over the League of Nations, the reservations demanded by the Senate to the Treaty of Versailles, the long drawn out discussions over entrance into the World Court, the Senate's reservations, the Paris Peace Pact—Mr. Fleming reviews and discusses events and Senatorial action with a just and impartial pen, although he sometimes cannot resist using the sarcastic note which the situation invites. In view of recent developments and others yet likely to come his survey of the entire matter is valuable. The final chapter discusses the whole question of the legislative control of treaties in equable temper and with wide information of usages in other government.

TO THE SOUTH SEAS

WINDJAMMING TO FIJI. By Viola Irene Cooper. Illustrated. 295 pp. New York: Rae D. Henkle Company, Inc. $4.

UP to the moment of going to press no woman has yet started off South-Pole-ing, or even North-Pole-ing, but it would be a safe wager that within the next two or three publishing seasons a book will come forth bearing some such title as "Peeking at the Pole" and a feminine name on the title page. Such a venture would be no further

(Continued on Following Page)

Here is the answer to the universal request for an explanation in simple language of the spectacular discoveries and startling theories which bid fair to overturn the whole philosophy of life.

By FLOYD L. DARROW

Author of THE STORY OF CHEMISTRY

The NEW WORLD of PHYSICAL DISCOVERY

A BOOK for those who realize how distorted their comprehension may be of these brilliant new theories of the nature and action of the atom; of electricity, light and heat; of Einstein's theory of relativity and the quantum theory—for those, in short, who want to acquire a reliable talking knowledge of these thrilling mysteries which have upset previous conceptions and made a topsy-turvy world.

The New World of Physical Discovery is scientifically correct and endorsed by leading scientists. Mr. Darrow is at his best in his presentation of contemporary physical progress with its kaleidoscopic changes which cause even the trained physicist to stand breathless at the spectacle.

Gives a new meaning to the phrase "humanizing knowledge"

Illustrated. $3.50

SCIENTIFIC BOOK CLUB SELECTION

Chosen by Vote of its Distinguished Editorial Committee

KIRTLEY F. MATHER, PH.D., CHAIRMAN
ARTHUR H. COMPTON, PH.D., LL.D., SC.D. HARLAN T. STETSON, PH.D.
EDWARD L. THORNDIKE, PH.D., SC.D., LL.D.
EDWIN G. CONKLIN, PH.D., SC.D., LL.D.

New Edition
Containing An Account of Latest Discoveries
The STORY of CHEMISTRY
By FLOYD L. DARROW

THE MOST striking feature is its timeliness. Here we have the last-minute news of the laboratories and the factories. Nothing of current chemical interest seems to have been omitted. Mr. Darrow's straightforward account of how chemistry came to be a potent factor in the development of an industrial civilization is to be welcomed.—New York Times. Illustrated $5.00

BOBBS-MERRILL

"One of the most tender and heroic novels to come hurtling out of ink and paper since...1918. It gets under the skin....one of the few real jewels among a lot of...war brummagem."
—Brooklyn Daily Eagle

The Whistlers' Room

PAUL · ALVERDES

A very gentle, a very moving story."—N.Y. Herald-Tribune

"A remarkable bit of writing... conveys an ineradicable picture."—Harry Hansen.

"The more I think of The Whistlers' Room, the more perfect it seems to be."—Walter Yust, Philadelphia Public Ledger.

COVICI · FRIEDE $1.50

THREE DRAWINGS BY WILLIAM NICHOLSON

The Illustrations Above Are From a New Edition of "Memoirs of a Fox-Hunting Man," by Siegfried Sassoon. (Coward-McCann.)

Changes Undermining the Family as an Economic Unit

Mr. Wood Shows How the Chain Store Idea Is Revolutionizing Community Life in the United States

THE PASSING OF NORMALCY. By Charles W. Wood. 309 pp. New York: B. C. Forbes Publishing Company. $3.

By R. L. DUFFUS

MR. WOOD went forth into the hinterland of America last year to "visit some small town where there seemed to be a chain-store problem and discover what was happening to human life." By the process of eliminating towns which for one reason or another were not typical he hit upon Ohio and upon the town in that State which has been more or less celebrated as the home of the late President Harding. However, his book is not really about Marion, or about Ohio, or about chain stores. Mr. Wood is keenly aware of the changes in American life which have, in some degree, "destroyed the home," weakened the hold of old-fashioned morality and broken down the nineteenth century community life. He has been looking for some Messianic force which will unite mankind as it was formerly united by family life, community pressure and the church. He finds this force potentially existent, believe it or not, in the growing interdependence of all humanity which is typified by the chain store. He does not give his readers much about the economics of chain-store management. He does not even tell much about Marion that is not recognizably true of hundreds of other towns. He is out for larger game. He is writing about a greater Marion, which stretches from ocean to ocean and of which even New York City is a part—a great community whose interests, as he sees them, are just as much in common as those of Marion were in the horse-and-buggy days.

The book consequently bears no resemblance to the excellent survey of "Middletown" carried out by the Lynds. Its objective facts are only such as are necessary to carry the argument. The real interest lies in Mr. Wood's opinions, not in his discoveries. To some extent this is a defect. One would like to visualize Marion a little more definitely. One would like to have some of Mr. Wood's soaring theories anchored to solid earth. This would have been easy enough, for no one doubts his ability as a reporter. Nevertheless, the theory or theories which he presents are their own excuse for being. If the reader grapples with them intelligently he may not know much more about the United States than he did before, but he will be able to think about it more accurately and realistically. He will not even have to agree, for disagreeing with Mr. Wood furnishes lively exercise for one's mind. But if he disagrees it will probably be with Mr. Wood's prognosis rather than with his diagnosis.

Mr. Wood points out that Marion, as it was a generation ago, no longer exists. It is still a home-loving town, but "in an age when something terrible is happening to the home." Family ties are weakening. Divorce is increasing. Marriage vows are taken more lightly, even when there is no divorce. People still go to church, but the church has not the hold it once had. To some extent its place has been taken by the movies. Citizens of Marion do not pay their bills as scrupulously as they used to and the local storekeepers find it hard to keep up the old practice of extending credit in time of need. The young people might like to have a moral code to live up to, but they have lost faith in the old one and have not been able to find a new one. Most of the evidence is negative. "It is impossible to say just what Marion is today; but one thing is certain—Marion isn't Marion any more." What have the chain stores to do with all this? In Mr. Wood's parable—for it comes near being that—they represent the greater, nation-wide Marion which has replaced the little parochial one. They are the beginnings of a vast cooperation into which the old neighborliness, the old individualism is being sucked.

For those who love the town as it used to be, or who think they do, this is an unmitigated calamity. The chain stores cannot think in local terms. They measure their success by a hundred or a thousand towns, not by one. They cannot give credit as the old-style merchant did. They must give equal service to all, not personal service to old customers who are also old friends. All this seems to Mr. Wood a natural product of "The Machine." "The Machine" operates in other ways. It draws people's thoughts outward. It must, because more and more of the things upon which Marion citizens depend for their comfort and entertainment come from outside. The home grows smaller and less important, because it is cheaper to buy things outside the house than to make them inside. The patriarchal prestige has vanished, because nearly the whole family can earn money and need no longer depend either economically or spiritually on the male parent. In the same way the old friendliness between neighbor and neighbor has cooled off, for in Marion neighbors are no longer dependent on one another.

But the mitigating circumstances, as Mr. Wood sees them, are positively dazzling. The transition period is full of > all sorts of strange antagonisms—antagonism between the older and the younger generation; antagonism between the local merchants and the chain stores; antagonism between the churches and the movies; and an ever-increasing antagonism between the generally accepted formulas of living and the actual events of life.

But this is a passing phase of an age of confusion, so thinks Mr. Wood. Who knows, he asks, but that the chain stores may yet discover, "if they carry this fact-finding far enough, that the law underlying this process of supplying human needs is not the law of antagonism between groups and groups but the law of human love?" To him there is a close connection between the material things by which we live and the spiritual things. "If we are to depend upon this new industrial set-up for our food and clothing and shelter, we must depend upon it also for our spiritual life." "It is in the way that people get their living that their relation to other people is determined." If we got our morality from the family while the family was the centre of economic life, we will get it from business as soon as it is thoroughly understood that business has superseded the family as the centre.

Mr. Wood takes the business man's talk of "service" seriously. He believes that business men are really beginning to comprehend that "business cannot be run successfully in the interest of any particular individual or any special group, but that if it is to serve anybody very well it must be devoted to the widest possible human service." He thinks that not competition but "the perfect coordination of all members is now the life of trade." Finally:

> What is necessary is that modern business take on the ancient characteristics of the home. That, in fact, is what it is doing. . . . The Machine came not to destroy the Family; the Machine came not to destroy but to fulfill.

Whether Mr. Wood has or has not been successful in reconciling Christian morality and economic determinism is, of course, for the individual reader to decide. During the past nineteenth century mankind has found it possible to reconcile that morality, at least nominally, with the anarchy of the decaying Roman Empire, with feudalism, with the absolutism of the late medieval monarchies, with human slavery, with war and with democracy. Whether or not a better and more honest synthesis can be obtained under a business régime will probably remain for a while an open question. But Mr. Wood does set up a code for enlightened business men to try to follow. By dint of much repetition and moralizing—in the better sense of that word—he does show what may be a way out of the existing confusion. If one believes in progress at all one may well believe in Mr. Wood's doctrines. Unless, of course, one can suggest a better 'ole.

Prohibition in Its Relation to Prosperity

PROHIBITION AND PROSPERITY. By Samuel Crowther. Introduction by Loring A. Shuler. 81 pp. New York: The John Day Company. $1.

RUTHLESSLY hard-headed is Mr. Crowther in his inquiry into the question of how far prohibition is responsible for the unexampled prosperity which this country enjoys. He waves aside every aspect of the problem except the simple one of whether or not prohibition pays in actual dollars and cents. He has collected considerable evidence to prove that it does, and he presents and discusses this in a series of eight short chapters which have had previous publication in a popular magazine of wide circulation. He offers the solid, bare facts that tell stolidly the story of how the wealth of the nation and the prosperity of its citizens have advanced in the last decade and then takes up as the key question of the whole matter the inquiry as to whether the workers of the country are spending less or more money for drink. In order to answer it with as much accuracy as possible he went to the employers of labor, and he fills the longest chapter in the book with their answers to his question, deducing from them the conclusion that "Prohibition, it appears from the letters I have received, has definitely switched the spending of wages for drink to the spending of wages for goods." He offers figures to show how huge the sum is that has thus been switched into industry and commerce, finds in it a big proportion of the basis for the mounting wealth of the nation and comes to this conclusion:

> If the drink money that is now going into goods were turned back into drink again, we should simply start down the hill. We should cut consumption and therefore cut production and therefore cut wages. That is the tie-up between prohibition and high wages.

His final conclusion is that "It would seem that prohibition is fundamental to our prosperity—that it is the greatest blow that has ever struck poverty." Mr. Crowther writes with forcefulness and presents his impressive array of evidence and his argument in concise language that is wholly without the taint of emotionalism or of propagandism. His book would have had a wider scope if he had paid more attention to the arguments of those who insist that there are other and more important causes for the increase in our spending power than prohibition.

China and Its People

CHINA, THE LAND AND THE PEOPLE. By L. H. Dudley Buxton. With a Chapter on Climate by W. G. Kendrew. 333 pp. New York: Oxford University Press. $5.

THAT there is a China quite apart from the one which figures so prominently in the newspapers is often forgotten—an immense country, teeming with a thrifty, courageous, hard-working people, different in no important respect from the countless millions of their ancestors who for thousands of years inhabited the land before them. Superficially, the twentieth century has made its mark on China, but three decades, however much may have happened in them, could not make any fundamental impression on a race whose traditions were formed three millennia ago.

For a scientist especially, civil wars and political changes have little interest. Mr. Buxton's book is written with a serene disregard for war lords and nationalism. With dispassionate eyes he looks at the Chinese people, at the land they live on—their geography, their agriculture, their flora and fauna—and sets the data before us for what they are worth scientifically. Mr. Buxton is a distinguished Oxford anthropologist whose information is largely based on personal knowledge, supplemented with all the available data collected by fellow-scientists.

What feeling there is is one of sympathy for a patient, long-suffering race, extracting with incredible ingenuity a living from a land which at best has barely enough to keep its population from starvation.

The Chinese, as he points out, are an extraordinarily homogeneous race. This he acribes partly to "the comparatively recent origin of the Chinese, geologically speaking," partly to the common written language, which is everywhere the same, and partly to the tradition which has made the family, throughout China's long history, the cultural and social unit of the country. He sees a difference between the Northern and Southern Chinese, which is the difference between a nomad and an agricultural people, but it is not fundamental.

Very little is known of the prehistory and ethnology of the Chinese, and the author makes no attempt at rash speculation. The recent discoveries near Peking unfortunately came too late to be incorporated in his book. Of the various types or races of Chinese, the least well defined are the aborigines—the Chinese themselves. They form, however, one of the races symbolized in the five bands on the flag of the Republic of China—Chinese, Manchus, Tibetans, Mongols and Moslems.

Physically, Mr. Buxton sees little difference, not only among the Chinese races themselves but as compared with Occidentals. The real cleavage between East and West is a matter of culture, which is so fundamental, according to the author, "that it is unlikely that except in very few cases either should understand the other."

China is primarily an agricultural country, although only about one-third of its area is cultivated. There are deserts and mountains and great marshes and barren plateaus which no amount of patience and primitive skill have made arable. And then there are the inviolable graves. "In a land where no one will ever plow up the graves of his family," writes Mr. Buxton, "and where the family graves may be known for very many generations, it will readily be understood that small holdings readily shrink."

Holdings are so small, indeed, that unbelievable patience and skill are needed to support the farmers, and nothing can afford to be wasted.

In order to produce so heavy a crop elaborate methods have been devised by the Chinese. It is a general principle that as far as possible all that is taken from the soil should be returned to it. All the night soil is therefore collected and stored in tanks until it is in the proper condition and then it is restored to the land. Farmers whose land abuts on frequented ways make arrangements for halting places in order to obtain the waste products of man and beast. The waste vegetable products, stems and leaves, which are of no value for burning, are made into a compost and restored to the land. Further, those vegetable products which can be burned are first used to cook food and then the ashes are returned to the land.

One unfortunate result of such thrift is that China, once heavily forested, is now denuded of trees, and none is permitted to grow, for as soon as the young shoots are detected they are grubbed up.

W. G. Kendrew, who contributes the chapter on climate, is a meteorologist of world fame, with an extensive personal knowledge of China. His studies show the unusual character of the country, which is colder than any other part of the earth of the same latitude.

Objection and Reproof

Editor The New York Times Book Review:

The very kind review allotted to my book by Mr. Matthews in your columns needs a little eclaircissement, due to the fact that my work was treated along with the opus by Dr. Brunelli of Padua and your reviewer took seriously Mr. Machen's introduction to Brunelli's book, where it says that "Whatever record leaps to light, it seems that Casanova never will be shamed; at all events, on the accusation of lying."

Your reviewer then says that all Casanovists can be divided into three schools, viz: (1) Machen's, who holds that Casanova was never convicted of lying; (2) Gugitz, who sees in the Memoirs nothing but romanticizing; (3) the eclectics, like myself, who weigh truth and falsehood. Finally, Mr. Matthews says that while in my introduction I lead the reader to believe that the Memoirs are more of fiction than truth, I actually uphold Casanova most of the time.

Now, in the first place, a serious study of Casanova can have nothing to learn from Mr. Machen, who, if he had devoted only one week to the study, would know that dozens of documents have leaped to light that completely confound Casanova. The second point I wish to make is that if in my book I seem to be constantly upholding Casanova. That is due not so much to Casanova's truthfulness as to the fact that the censorship laws of the United States would not permit my devoting large portions to the retelling of erotic passages which I could then demonstrate were inventions of Casanova's mind. That would not have been good sense on my part either.

Carlo Curiel blasted the lengthy episode of the wholesale seduction of the innkeeper's relatives.

Gustav Gugitz demonstrated that the meeting with the delegation in Lyons, which Casanova describes with such a wealth of detail, is invented from beginning to end.

Walther Ilges has gathered together four different versions, by Casanova's own hand, of the story concerning the editor of the Cologne Gazette. They cannot all be true and are probably all false, for the editor was not a man but a woman.

And the incestuous tale of Leonilda has been shown to be a merely mental assault upon traditional morality; the pipedream of a rake.

Now, where Casanova's errors are not so enormous one may be either severe like Gugitz and rule out everything in the least suspected, or lenient like myself. There is no other school that can stand on any legs. The above examples are based on documents.

S. GUY ENDORE.

New York City.

FRANCE

A NATION OF PATRIOTS

BY CARLTON J. H. HAYES

This book is a study of national propaganda. It tells of the efforts that are being made to stimulate patriotic force, speech and action at the expense of at least un-national, if not international indoctrination. Professor Hayes has done an intensive and intensely interesting analysis and investigation of French school books, journals, newspapers, and the activities of the church, cinema, radio and the many patriotic societies.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY PRESS

2960 BROADWAY , , , NEW YORK CITY

PRAISE FROM EVERYWHERE

GOOD-BYE TO ALL THAT

ARNOLD BENNETT IN THE EVENING STANDARD:

"The vogue of GOOD-BYE TO ALL THAT was instantaneous. In the first week of its life it had an enormous sale. And I don't know why. For a book so well written, so sensitive, so original, so odd, so challenging, so annoying to the sedate, seldom—hardly ever—captures the public with a single blow."

TIMES LITERARY SUPPLEMENT (LONDON):

"One may be certain that the quality of anything that Mr. Graves writes will make it different from that which other people may write in the same kind; thus the hesitation which might be felt in approaching the autobiography of any other man of thirty-three is absent with this book."

BOSTON TRANSCRIPT:

"As flaming as 'an army with banners' comes this book across the sea, its candor rivaling that of even the most candid of books about the Great War."

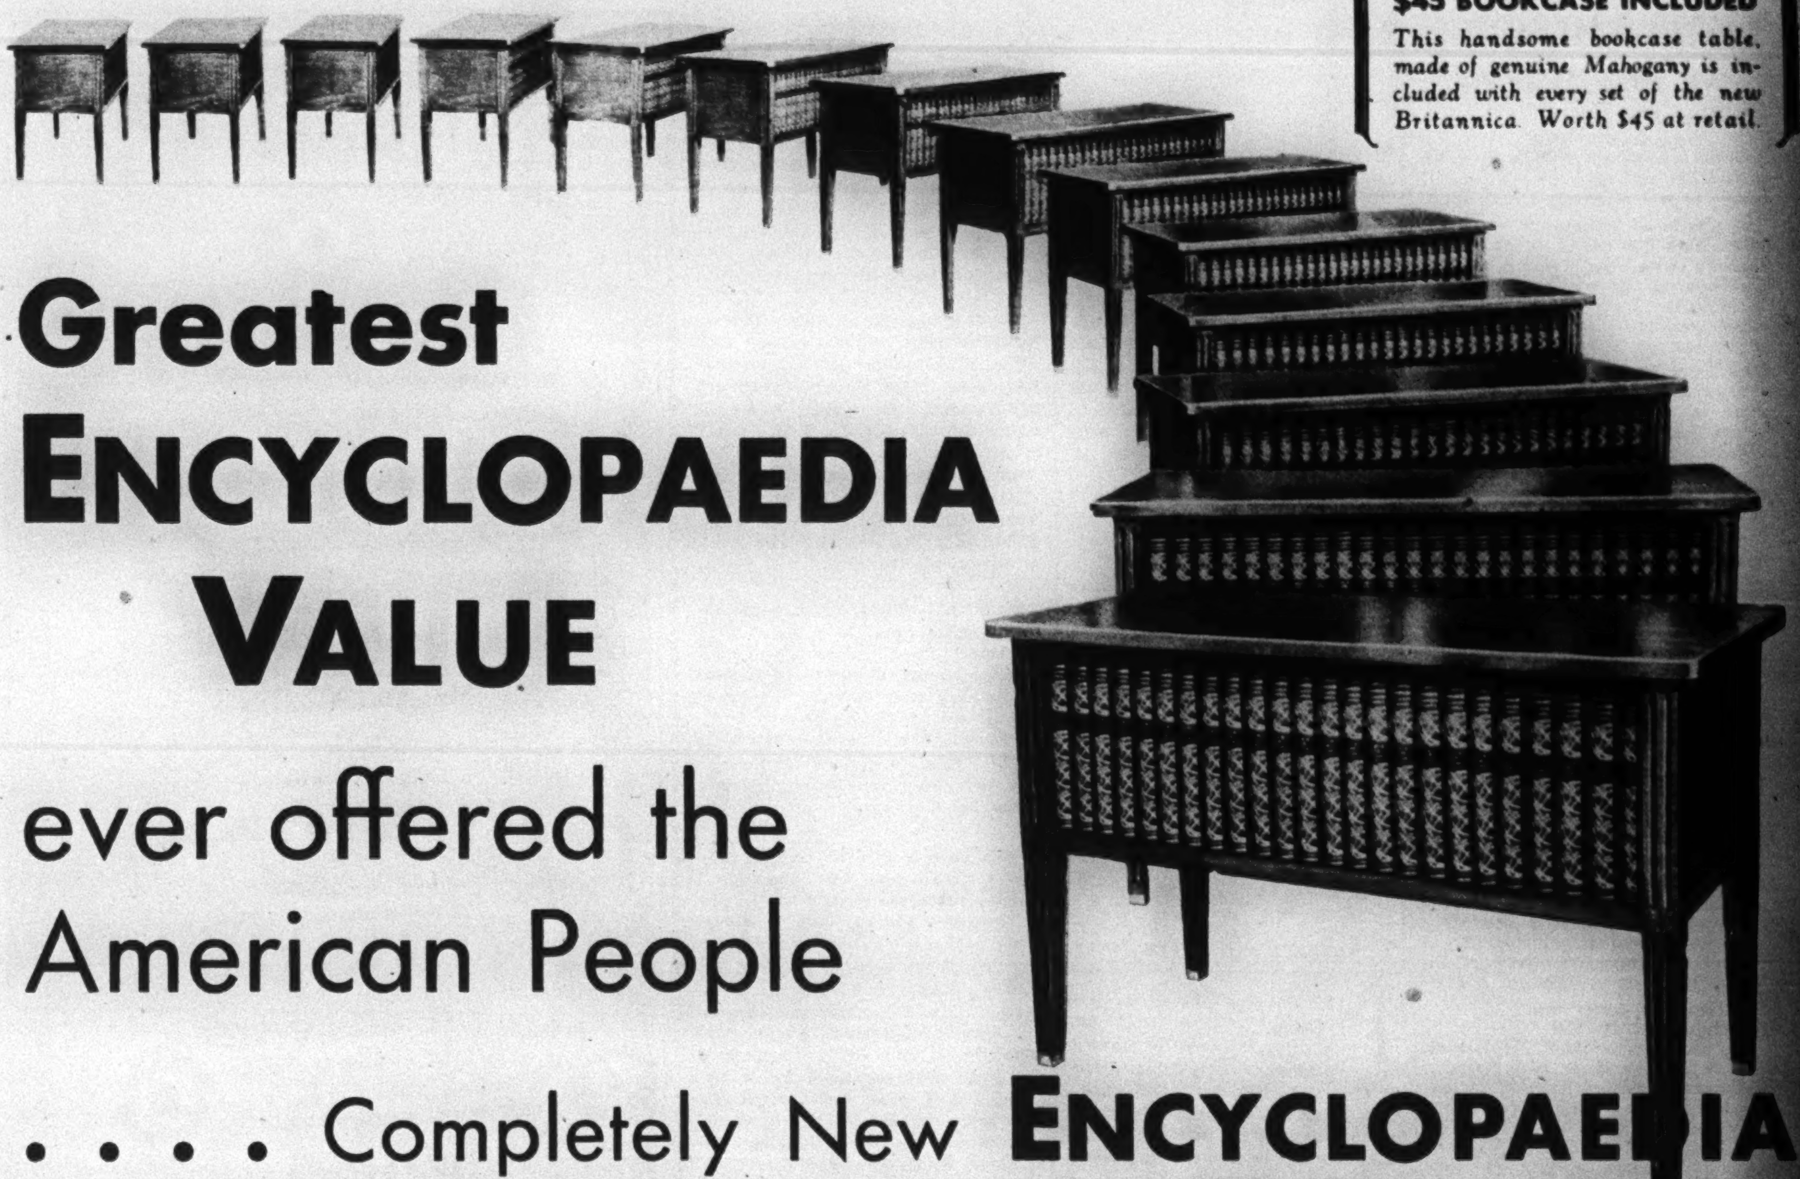
ROBERT GRAVES

3D PRINTING $3.00

JONATHAN CAPE & HARRISON SMITH, NEW YORK

$45 BOOKCASE INCLUDED

This handsome bookcase table, made of genuine Mahogany is included with every set of the new Britannica. Worth $45 at retail.



Greatest ENCYCLOPAEDIA VALUE

ever offered the American People

. . . . Completely New ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA

EVERY FAMILY, every wide-awake man or woman, can now own this newest, finest Encyclopaedia Britannica! Mass production on a scale never before possible brings you this superb 14th Edition at a new low price—the lowest at which any completely new Britannica has been offered in more than 60 years!

Never before in the history of encyclopaedia publishing has such an opportunity been given American readers.

More For Your Money
A $2,000,000 Work

When you buy the new Encyclopaedia Britannica you buy sound built-in value that is little short of amazing. Nearly three years of intensive editorial effort, the best work of 3,500 world-famous contributors, the expenditure of $2,000,000, these are highlights in the preparation of this superb 14th Edition.

At the present low price the new Britannica represents greater value for your money than any other book published.

You get the equivalent of 500 ordinary books in the text matter alone—and at one-tenth their cost. Here is literally the sum total of human knowledge in 24 compact readable volumes!

You get the varied richness of 15,000 illustrations—paintings, photographs, maps and drawings, a unique gallery of art, science and mechanics, worth many times the cost of the books. Full page half-tones, color plates and sumptuous gold tones make vivid every section of the new Britannica.

You get the writings of 3,500 authorities—of men and women whose services only the world-wide prestige of the Britannica could command. Here is authority, accuracy, fresh interpretation direct from the best minds of the century.

You get up-to-date knowledge—the time-proven learning of the past, the latest discoveries of today, the promised progress of tomorrow. New facts, clearly interpreted, give freshness and interest to every paragraph.

You get a wealth of practical information for every member of the family. It answers every "what," "who," "why" and "when." But it also answers thousands of "hows." It is the finest guide to doing things ever published.

You get, in short, what critics have called "the finest encyclopaedia in English"—a book that brings you fully half again as much material as any other encyclopaedia or general reference work published today.

For every American home the new Britannica with handsome bookcase table, its superb bindings, its wide range of help for work and play, is a center of interest for every member of the family.

SPECIAL OFFER—only $5 DOWN

Large scale production makes possible the present amazingly low price. A deposit of only $5 brings the 24 volumes and genuine mahogany bookcase table to your home. Balance may be paid in convenient monthly payments.

Send For Free Booklet

Send for the handsome new 56-page booklet containing numerous color plates, maps, etc., from the new edition and giving full information about it, together with details of bindings, low prices and easy payment plan.

You needn't risk a cent. The booklet is yours FREE, without the slightest obligation. Now—while you have this page at hand—tear out the coupon and send it in.

"Now you can tackle any subject known to man"

"THESE handsome books, on their shelf in my office, seem to beckon and say: 'All right, now you can tackle any subject known to man, whether of land or sea, the heavens above or the hidden depths, and we are here to see you safely through.'" So writes Marlen Pew in the EDITOR & PUBLISHER, the "newspaper man's newspaper."

SEND FOR THIS FREE BOOKLET TODAY

If you wish to see the books, call at the Britannica Bookshop, 342 Madison Ave. (Near 44th St.)

ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA, Inc. Y.T.B. R.3-E4
342 Madison Avenue, New York

Please send me by return mail, without any obligation on my part, your 56-page illustrated booklet describing the new Britannica, together with low price offer, etc.

Name ____________

Address ____________

City ____________ State ____________

Wolfe and the Fall of Quebec

WOLFE AND NORTH AMERICA. By Lieut. Col. F. E. Whitton. Illustrated. 322 pp. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $4.

READERS who like history of the old-fashioned kind, replete with detailed accounts of battles, discussions of military strategy and analyses of the quarrels of European kings, will find many hours of solid reading to their taste in the closely packed pages of this new biography of James Wolfe, "the hero of Quebec," with which is combined an exhaustive survey of the century and a half of struggle between France and England for empire in North America. Its author, Colonel Frederick Ernest Whitton, who saw a deal of military service in British possessions in the Western Hemisphere and who was severely wounded in the first battle of Ypres in 1914, is a direct descendant of the Goldsmith family to which Wolfe was closely related, and so by reason of ties of kinship as well as professional interest is particularly sympathetic toward Wolfe. Yet, while giving him his meed of praise, and ranking none higher, in British army annals, for devotion to duty, resolution, courage, for gifts of personality and leadership, he does not believe in giving Wolfe all the credit, at the expense of others deserving of their share. He prefers to consider the conquest of Canada as accomplished not by one man or by one service, but by a cooperation and coordination between statesmen, sailors and soldiers of a kind until then unique and unparalleled in the history of England.

Thus, he believes that Pitt, Anson, First Lord of the Admiralty; Earl Ligonier, Commander-in-Chief of the British Army; such sailors as Boscawen, Hawke, Saunders and Holmes; and such soldiers as Amherst, Forbes, Rogers, Johnson, Murray, Monckton and Townshend, were all as deserving as Wolfe of sharing in the credit for the wresting of Canada from the French.

Colonel Whitton begins his book with a long chapter on "France and England in North America Until the Time of Wolfe's Birth," in which he sketches the intermittent struggles throughout 150 years between France and England for territory in North America, and analyses the basic causes for each fresh outbreak in the long series. And he deprecates what he calls "the common belief" that, with the capture of Quebec, French resistance collapsed and that, in a moment, British supremacy over North America was at once and forever assured.

> The popular delusion [he says] as to the completeness of Wolfe's dramatic success does injustice not only to many others but to Wolfe himself. * * * In the story of the particular operations which culminated on the Heights of Abraham on Sept. 13, 1759, it is inevitable, if unfortunate, that the solid assistance of the fleet should be overshadowed by the more vivid occurrences of the actual battle on land. But there is no excuse for overlooking Hawke's splendid victory at Quiberon Bay in European waters, on November 20th of the same year. Wolfe's capture of Quebec was not permanent. It was quickly challenged, and the fate of the fortress depended upon which side could secure the sea communication between Quebec and Europe. It is no exaggeration to say that the destiny of Canada was decided amid the shoals of Quiberon no less than upon the Heights of Abraham.

James Wolfe was born on Jan. 2, 1727, in the little town of Westerham in Kent. His father, grandfather and great-grandfather had all been soldiers in the British Army, and before the boy was 15 he received a commission as Second Lieutenant in his father's regiment of marines. He never served with the marines, but within the year was transferred to the line with the rank of ensign, and in 1742 began active soldiering in Flanders. Frail in constitution, sickly, having scant education except for what he acquired by reading, his advancement was nevertheless amazingly rapid. He was made a captain at 17, a Major two years later, was wounded in the Battle of Laufeld (July 2, 1747), and celebrated his coming of age at home, with the knowledge that he had been recommended for a Lieutenant Colonelcy; was appointed by Pitt as a brigadier to serve under Amherst for the taking of Louisburg when he was barely 31, and was only 32 when, as Major General in command of the expedition, he was killed at the capture of Quebec. Here is Colonel Whitton's description of Wolfe's appearance and personal characteristics:

> In physique he was tall and thin—6 feet 3 in height and of a slenderness so pronounced that he described himself as "a skeleton in motion." His hair was red—aggressively so; his eyes blue and piercing. His personal appearance, so far as the conventional proportion and disposition of features are concerned, was marred by an extraordinary retrocession of chin which has led many to describe him as unprepossessing. Sir John Fortescue frankly calls him "ugly." His profile was certainly peculiar, for in addition to the retrocession of chin there was a well-marked doubling in it. His forehead sloped backward; the nose was long and slightly retroussé. The upper lip was attached to the nose further forward than is normal and sloped downward and backward toward the mouth. His cheek bones were high and his complexion dull. His great height enabled him to carry off some of the disadvantage of appearance, but was negatived to a great extent by his narrow, sloping shoulders and awkward gait. His constitution was feeble and his health almost always wretched. * * * But the shard of a feeble and emaciated frame housed a spirit of unquenchable fire. Of dauntless courage, unflagging energy, and endowed with the priceless gift of vision, Wolfe was every inch a soldier and a born leader of men.

Wolfe's letters (and indeed some of his actions) show him to have been of an impulsive and excitable nature. In many of his letters it is clear that he wrote under a momentary stress of nervous irritability, probably due to his chronic bad health. Handicapped as he was, to have reached in his brief span of life the rank he achieved in the leadership of men, there must have been in his nature a great and exceptional reservoir of personal magnetism. But its sources are not even hinted in this volume, although Colonel Whitton concludes that "Nothing—not even the infatuated adoration of his worshipers—can ever diminish or obscure Wolfe's title to fame."

Concerning the famous episode of Wolfe's quoting from Gray's "Elegy" before attacking Quebec, we are told:

> It seems that during a reconnaissance—probably that made on Sept. 10, when the Anse du Foulon was pointed out to the two brigadiers—mention was made of Gray's "Elegy," and some one in the boat quoted the line, "The paths of glory lead but to the grave," whereupon Wolfe replied that he would rather be the author of that poem than take Quebec. The more popular legend is that Wolfe recited the stanza and made the remark during the actual passage down river on the night of the actual attempt. For this preposterous perversion there is not a particle, a scintilla, an iota of evidence. It may be mentioned that several leading modern historians omit this "Elegy" incident altogether.

G. W. HARRIS.

A Life of Sir Walter Scott

A GREAT RICH MAN. THE ROMANCE OF SIR WALTER SCOTT. By Louise Schultz Boas. 224 pp. New York: Longmans, Green & Co. $3.50.

ALTHOUGH the life of Sir Walter Scott was perhaps less romantic than that of many another fiction writer and poet, it was certainly packed with interest surpassing that of not a few heroes of popular novels. The story of his rise to fame and fortune, of the overwhelming recognition that greeted first his verse and later his prose romances, reads a little like the inventions of a Horatio Alger; while the devastating financial blow that struck him in later life and the prodigious efforts he made to rally from his defeat are tinged not only with that irony which some master fiction-writer might have given to his tale but with something of that heroic quality which one finds only in the strongest men of fact or fancy. Thus the life of Sir Walter, taken in its entirety, is a compound of a multitude of opposing influences that offer striking opportunities to the biographer and a rare promise to the reader.

Those opportunities have been realized in part, but only in part, by Louise Schultz Boas, who sets out to present the chief facts in the life of her hero in an informal and popular style. She begins by describing Scott, the youthful swain; she tells of the disappointment of his first love affair, and of the success of his second; she follows him in his career in the law courts, in literature, and in the printing business; she traces his relationship to his publishers, to his critics, and to the public; she describes the growth of his worldly position and gives some indication (an all too feeble indication!) of his idiosyncrasies and personal leanings; she depicts the financial fiasco that set him to turning out novels with demoniac speed, and makes a passing reference to the melancholy close of his life.

In all this material there is a deep inherent interest that no biographer could quite conceal; and it is therefore not surprising if Mrs. Boas's pages are interesting. But the amount of research and understanding revealed by the book is small; there is no evidence of a comprehension of Scott's character or of an appreciation of his work; and the inconsistencies in the author's statements are so glaring and fundamental that it would be an injustice to any prospective reader not to mention them. Thus, the singular title of the book, "A Great Rich Man," would naturally lead one to expect Mrs. Boas to connect her central thesis somehow with her subject's wealth; and the expectation is fulfilled in the foreword when she writes: "This is the story of a man who found literature magnificently profitable. To him prose and poetry were alike romantic in the sense that Big Business is romantic. More idyllic than the adventures of his poems and novels were his own adventures through life, adventures in success measured in material things, in things purchasable by the hard round gold his pen earned for him. * * * The trail he blazed was the broad highway of commercial success." Here is a thesis which, however little credit it may do to Scott's sincerity as a writer or his talents as an artist, is perhaps worthy of being developed; how strangely does it strike one then when, on page 41, the author flies in the face of her original contention! Referring to Scott's practice of the law, she thus shows how he clung to "the broad highway of commercial success": "For Scott's heart had never been in his profession; winning a lawsuit had never held for him the satisfaction of tracking down one romantic ballad. Tales of daring, tales of horror, anything romantic and full of action pleased him more than a fee."

Consistency is perhaps not the most priceless of all the jewels in an author's crown; but a biographer may reasonably be expected to cover forty pages without forgetting the assertions she made in her preface.

STANTON A. COBLENTZ.

Coming Late February

BYRON

By ANDRÉ MAUROIS

Author of "Disraeli", "Ariel: The Life of Shelley," etc.

Place Your Advance Order Now at Any Bookseller's

This is an Appleton Book. Illustrated $5.00

Walter Hampden's

new stage success now ready in book form

RICHELIEU

By Arthur Goodrich

Author of "Caponsacchi"

This adroit adaptation of Bulwer-Lytton's famous play comes as one of the most distinguished dramatic offerings of recent years. Using as his foundation the Bulwer-Lytton text, Mr. Goodrich has built a play as admirable and impressive in its way as "Caponsacchi," which was an adaptation of Browning's "The Ring and the Book." With portrait of Walter Hampden. $2.00

This is an Appleton Book

Another printing needed of the laughing knockout

EPIC PETERS

Pullman Porter

By Octavus Roy Cohen

The hilarious escapades of one of the best negro characters Mr. Cohen has ever created. $2.00

This is an Appleton Book

For a delightful Spring Holiday in fiction reading, try

PAMELA'S SPRING SONG

By Cecil Roberts

Instantaneous popularity has come to this charming romantic story of a girl who quits her job for a surprising holiday in the Austrian Tyrol. "A ticket for mental paradise" is one reviewer's happy description of the book. 3rd printing. $2.50

This is an Appleton Book. At All Booksellers

D. APPLETON AND COMPANY, 35 West 32nd St., New York

FIVE EDITIONS IN SHORT ORDER!

The White House Gang

By EARLE LOOKER

AT ALL BOOKSTORES James Montgomery Flagg's Illustrations $3.00

NEW BOOKS
WE RECOMMEND

The Bookshop Mystery
By James Saxon Childers. An international mystery novel involving an old manuscript and the secret diplomatic agents of several governments. $2.00

The Circle of Vengeance
By Nora and George Jorgenson. A thrilling mystery story with a battle of wits between the criminals and a famous doctor—both employing methods made possible by the latest scientific inventions. $2.00

The Eyes Through the Trees
By Maude C. Keator. Into an idyllic town in the Pennsylvania mountain region stalks terror, frightfulness and murder. "A rattling good mystery story."—Vincent Starrett. $2.00

Susan Lenox
Her Fall and Rise
By David Graham Phillips. This great American classic published for the first time complete in one volume. $2.50

Hudson River Bracketed
By Edith Wharton. Enthusiastically recommended by readers and reviewers. A best seller everywhere. $2.50

The Galaxy
By Susan Ertz. "One of the bravest and most human of contemporary novels."—Hugh Walpole. $2.50

La Fayette
By Brand Whitlock. "We have rarely found a biography so entrancing."—N. Y. Herald Tribune. Illustrated. Two volumes, boxed. $10.00

Savonarola
By Piero Misciattelli. The life and times of the impassioned Dominican Friar who played the principal part in one of the greatest episodes of the Italian Renaissance. Illus. $3.00

A History of American Magazines—1741-1850
By Frank Luther Mott. A comprehensive account of the early years of American magazines. "Mr. Mott has spread before us all that we could hope for or wish to know."—N. Y. Herald Tribune. Fully illustrated. $10.00

The Naval Blockade 1914-1918
By Louis Guichard. A lucid and straightforward account of what the Allied Naval Blockade accomplished in the World War. $3.50

Flashing Oars
By Ralph Henry Barbour. A rousing story of school sports, in which the boys solve the problem of Alumni support. $2.00

Carol of Cranford High
By Earl Reed Silvers. Carol, in this story for boys and girls, learns the real spirit of Cranford high school and joins in a series of merry adventures. $2.00

Even Sara
By Gladys Blake. A thrilling and vivid story for girls of a girl who helped a great President. $2.00

At All Booksellers

D. APPLETON AND COMPANY
35 West 32nd Street, New York

He relived the life of Robinson Crusoe

RICHARD HALLIBURTON'S amazing new book

New Worlds to Conquer

by the author of Royal Road to Romance, Glorious Adventure

$5.00 each BOBBS-MERRILL

Books and Authors

FORTHCOMING BOOKS

FICTION.

"CIMARRON." Edna Ferber. (Doubleday, Doran & Co.)

"THE PURPLE CLOUD." M. P. Shiel. (Vanguard Press.)

"SONG-BIRD." Sophia Cleugh. (Houghton Mifflin Company.)

"THE CRIME OF THE JUST." Andre Chamson. (Charles Scribner's Sons.)

"DANDELION DAYS." Henry Williamson. (E. P. Dutton & Co.)

"THE ADVENTURES OF MR. QUINN." Agatha Christie. (Dodd, Mead & Co.)

NON-FICTION.

"DANIEL O'CONNELL: THE IRISH LIBERATOR." Denis Gwynn. (Frederick A. Stokes Company.)

"THE AYAR INCAS." Miles Poindexter. (Horace Liveright.)

"AN AMERICAN JEZEBEL: THE LIFE OF ANNE HUTCHINSON." Helen Augur. (Brentano's.)

"HIZZONER BIG BILL THOMPSON." John Bright. (Jonathan Cape & Harrison Smith.)

"THE TALKIES." Arthur Edwin Krows. (Henry Holt & Co.)

"ACCORDING TO THE FLESH: A BIOGRAPHY OF MARY BAKER EDDY." Fleta Campbell Springer. (Coward-McCann.)

THE announcement of the symposium, "Humanism and America," edited by Norman Foerster, to be published soon by Farrar & Rinehart, has apparently aroused the opponents of Humanism to action. Another symposium now in preparation by Brewer & Warren (formerly Payson & Clarke) will be called "The Critique of Humanism, Essays in Opposition." The book will be edited by C. Hartley Grattan and will contain fifteen articles by outstanding critics, whose names will be announced later, examining and opposing the movement which is defended in "Humanism and America." After these opening guns in the campaign, we may look forward to more attacks and counter-attacks—provided that the public displays enough interest in the subject to warrant the expenditure of more ammunition.

This evening at 8:30 the Selwyn Theatre, 229 West Forty-second Street, will be the scene of a debate between Hugh Walpole and Thornton Wilder on the subject, "Resolved: That reading great fiction and drama throws a better light on experience than reading great history and biography." Mr. Walpole will take the affirmative and Mr. Wilder will support the negative. Both contestants are declared to be in the pink of condition.

Another new publishing house has entered the field. It is called the Newland Press, and its offices are at 25 West Forty-fifth Street. Sidney Rubinzahl, from whom the announcement comes, writes that the first book to bear the imprint of this house will be "Generations of Adam," by Dr. A. L. Wolbarst.

Suzanne La Follette, author of "Art in America" and editor of The New Freeman, will talk at the Barbizon, Lexington Avenue and Sixty-third Street, on Thursday evening, Feb. 20, at 8:30.

Bob Davis, author of "Bob Davis Recalls" and other books, has on exhibition at the Anderson Galleries, 30 East Fifty-seventh Street, 150 life-size portraits, or "psycho graphs," of writers, scientists, statesmen and others distinguished in the world of creative art. Many of Mr. Davis's excellent camera studies have been reproduced in THE NEW YORK TIMES and other publications. The exhibition will continue until March 1.

The early March publications of the Macmillan Company will include Delia Akely's "Jungle Portraits"; Edwin Seaver's novel, "Car of Croesus," which is an Arabian Nights adventure in New York; Arthur Bullard's "Volcano," a novel of the West Indies, and a "Short History of the French People," by Charles Guignebert, professor in the University of Paris.

The third volume of Harvey Wickham's trilogy, which began with "The Misbehaviorists" and continued with "The Impuritans," will appear about the middle of March under the title of "The Unrealists." Among the men whom Mr. Wickham brands as "unrealists" are James, Bergson, Santayana, Bertrand Russell, John Dewey, Alexander and Whitehead. The book will be published by the Dial Press.

Maurice Leblanc, creator of Arsene Lupin, expects to pay a visit to America soon. Besides being a prolific writer of detective stories, M. Leblanc is an authority on criminology and has often been consulted by the Paris police. His new book, "The Melamare Mystery," has just been published by the Macaulay Company.

John Langdon-Davies, whose new book, "Man and His Universe," will be published shortly by Harper & Brothers, put his foot in it the other day while lecturing at a certain mid-Western university. In the course of his talk he said: "I have been told that somewhere in America there is a college where you can take the science of cheer-leading for your major subject for a degree; but I have long suspected this story as one of those which Americans love to tell Englishmen in their youth in order that they may have something to laugh at in their old age." After the lecture a member of the faculty drew Mr. Langdon-Davies aside and said: "Did you know that this was the university that once had a course in cheer-leading?" The moral is that jokes should be told only to hand-picked audiences.

E. R. Morrough, who writes for The London Mercury under the name of "Abu Nadaar," is the author of "The Temple Servant and Other Stories," which Longmans, Green & Co. will publish early in March. The book contains eighteen short stories, chiefly about Englishmen who live in mysterious Egypt.

The background of Elizabeth Madox Roberts's new novel, "The Great Meadow," to be published on March 1 by the Viking Press, is the settling of Kentucky by the first

(Continued on Page 14)

An Idyll of a Father's Love for his Son

"A compelling, haunting story . . . A book of very unusual calibre, so saturated with realities that it almost hurts you to read it."
—Philip Tillinghast, The Book Review

DRUM and MONKEY

Third Large Printing. $2.50

HORACE LIVERIGHT NY

THE THING
WHY I AM A CATHOLIC
by
G. K. Chesterton

Why did Chesterton join the Catholic Church? The answer is a militant defence of his faith. His discussion makes a tremendously exciting and stimulating book which no one interested in contemporary philosophical and religious thought can afford to leave unread. $2.50

THE REDEMPTION OF MORLEY DARVILLE
By Stephen McKenna
A young English novelist discovers the secret of popular success only to learn that a woman may love a man for something else than his money. $2.50

THE PRINCE'S DARLING
By George Preedy
The author of General Crack writes a stirring novel about a girl who was mistress to the prince and secret lover to the man she was compelled to spurn. $2.50

THE GO-BETWEEN
By Therese Benson
A charming novel about a girl who fell in love with a man who was only a name to her. $2.00

WASTED SALT
By George W. Ogden
A realistic story of thrill and adventure in the cattle-country along the Kansas-Oklahoma line. $2.00

By H. V. Morton
IN SEARCH OF SCOTLAND
"The most fascinating piece of descriptive writing on a tour in Scotland since Sam Johnson's Journey to the Western Hebrides. If it be a guide book, it is the best of its kind; but it is more, it is enchanted writing which makes the wonderful, beautiful and memorable panorama of our country live again."—Thomas Johnston, Under Secretary for Scotland. Illustrated $3.00

DODD, MEAD & CO., 440 4TH AVE., N.Y.

"Mystery, surprise and suspense are woven into this adroit novel.—N.Y. Sun.

JUDGE AND FOOL

By VLADIMIR JABOTINSKY (Altalena)

"Jabotinsky has made the world of three thousand years ago as real, as exciting, as bitter to the modern reader as it was to the people who lived in it. He has the gift of creating great tragic characters and great tragic situations. I do not know any historical novel which so splendidly recreates the way of life of a forgotten nation. . . The book is in the grand manner."
—Elmer Davis, N. Y. Herald Tribune. Just Published. $2.50

HORACE LIVERIGHT N.Y.
GOOD BOOKS

Current Magazines

THE most interesting news of the week in the magazine field is that The Freeman is about to undergo a resuscitation. It will be published as The New Freeman, from 112 East Nineteenth Street. Suzanne La Follette, formerly an associate of The Freeman of the days of Albert Jay Nock, will be its editor. The first issue will be ready March 15, and it will be published as a weekly thereafter. According to the editor's forecast, the magazine "can assure its readers of an unbiased, non-partisan and undogmatic treatment of public affairs, making its appeal to intelligent common sense, rather than to prejudice or special interest. It will deal similarly with current developments in science, literature and the arts, with especial recognition of the new social forces that are molding the life of our time." * * * Advance reports have it that Newton Arvin, editor of Hawthorne's Journals and a member of the faculty of Smith College, will be its literary adviser. This is welcome news, since Mr. Arvin is a continuator of the tradition of Van Wyck Brooks, a tradition which flowered largely through the help of the old Freeman.

In Vanity Fair for February Walter Lippmann has decided that lobbying is not a crime if practiced openly. When the Caraway committee convened in Washington to investigate lobbying, says Mr. Lippmann, "the word lobbyist was an epithet which damned any man to whom it could be attached." The action of Senator Bingham, who had the "folly" to introduce a "paid agent of the Connecticut manufacturers into the executive sessions of the Senate committee which was writing the tariff," was "universally condemned"; but since then Senator Grundy has spoken. According to Mr. Lippmann, the Grundyian words brought about a revulsion of popular feeling: they resulted in a "dim sense in the community that clouds of cant had been dispelled." And "it may be worth even the price of Mr. Grundy's temporary beatification if the American public is awakened to a realistic view of lobbying. For [continues Mr. Lippmann], in any realistic view of government in the modern State, of the nature of public opinion and of the processes of law-making, it is beyond dispute that lobbying is an essential part of representative government." But only, Mr. Lippmann concludes, if it is not practiced furtively.

Opportunity: Journal of Negro Life has an interesting editorial in its February issue on Frederick Douglass, the negro who did so much to arouse the conscience of the North against the institution of slavery, and an article by Sterling A. Brown on the "Negro Artist's Audience Within His Own Group." According to Mr. Brown, the negro is often wont to look "upon negro books, regardless of the author's intention, as representative of all negroes," or to insist that "negro books must be idealistic, optimistic tracts for race advertisement," or to criticize from the point of view of * * * racial apologists." Such avenues of approach to literature are fallacious, in Mr. Brown's opinion, and it is to the correction of the fallacies that the article is applied. Mr. Brown aims at the audience because, as he says, "without great audiences we cannot have great literature."

The Theatre Guild Magazine for February has an article by G. W. Bishop called "Sean O'Casey, Genius." Included in this article are some interesting letters which passed between George Bernard Shaw and O'Casey and O'Casey and Yeats. In Mr. Bishop's opinion, the most "extraordinary thing" in one of the Yeats letters is "the implication that a dramatist cannot deal with something he has not experienced," an implication which evidently surprised Shaw as well as O'Casey. The author of "The Silver Tassie" and "The Plough and the Stars," answered Mr. Yeats by asking if Shakespeare was present at Actium or Philippi. According to Mr. Bishop, Shakespeare was O'Casey's education. The article will be interesting to those who witnessed the production of "The Silver Tassie" recently at the Greenwich Village Theatre.

Ernest Elmo Calkins looks into "The California Legend" for the February issue of The Atlantic Monthly. After glancing all about him, he decides that California—or Southern California, to be more precise—"has the goods." He is amused by the "strange forms" that outdoor advertising takes in Southern California, where, "instead of the two-dimensional poster we have in the East, there is three-dimensional advertising; in other words, statuary of a kind." "A wayward refreshment stand specializing in chicken dinners has a huge hen, fifteen feet tall, surrounded by a brood of gigantic chicks worked out in staff or some plastic material, like a scene in Chantecleer." Mr. Calkins sounds very cheerful and optimistic all through his article; but to us he makes Southern California appear a little gimcrack.

Also in the February Atlantic is Leslie Hotson's concluding article on "Shelley's Lost Letters to Harriet." Mr. Hotson, who told how he came to ferret out these letters in the January issue of the magazine, says the "discovery of these letters has not only extended our knowledge of Shelley's life during the obscure months of destitution and illness in the Autumn of 1814, but has also given us authentic evidence of the progress of his relations with Harriet" Westbrooke, his first wife. There is nothing in the letters, however, "which changes our conception of the essential nature of Shelley as a man."

McCall's for February contains Ernest Poole's bit of clever eavesdropping in the Grand Central Terminal, where Mr. Poole gathered much revealing gossip by hanging around the desk of the Traveler's Aid Society. Discounting something for romanticizing, Mr. Poole's collection of travelers' tales is a neat bit of human interest reporting.

Pictorial Review for February prints a piece by Rebecca West on "Gossip." Says Miss West, the gossips include "people who 'feel they could have written if ' they had not refrained from doing so, and all the stupid women who hate all clever women, and the even more formidable array of all the stupid men who hate all clever women." That sounds like a cry from the heart. Somebody, somewhere, has been stepping on Miss West's toes.

In the February number of The Graphic Survey William Bolitho writes on "The Psychosis of the Gang." He refers specifically to the Chicago specimen. He represents the gangster as one who has failed to get through the narrow gateway of adolescence. "The elements of the boy's social outview," he says, "are nearly complete in their outline. He has the most ancient right and wrong clear now. Right is the clan; wrong is the rest of the world. Right is to steal, to dare, to venture, to stand brethren, thick or thin. Wrong is to deal with the enemy, to shrink, also (and this is as far as the gangster will ever go) to steal from a poor or friendly person." The guardian of the gate of adolescence, according to Mr. Bolitho, is woman, "the chief plotter in the great conspiracy of social stabilization," whose "gang" is that of the "Joneses." But in Chicago, and elsewhere, there are numbers who fail, or refuse, to pass the gate, and they stick to the "boy's social outview," magnify it to fit the adult world and become predatory Capones and Dion O'Banions.

Anne Austin scores again!

HER THIRD HIT IN THREE YEARS

FIRST, JACKSON STREET, an intensely human novel, praised universally. Then BLACK PIGEON, one of the big mystery hits of last year.

And now THE AVENGING PARROT—her best book—a thrilling detective story, already a best seller.

Frederic F. Van de Water, Judge of the Detective Story Club, who gave it first choice, says: "This is a thoroughbred detective story. The writer plays fair with the reader. Nothing that the detective discovers concerning the crime is concealed. Miss Austin has a good plot, a gift for characterization, and a surprising yet completely logical climax."

Carolyn Wells, another judge who gave it first choice, says: "This bright young writer has a way of making her people seem real and human; and her detective is a peach."

Bob Davis, famous writer and editor, says "Anne Austin cannot write a dull tale. The art of her dialogue, the perfection of police patois, the unerring character drawing among a group of sinfuls, and her genius for sticking eternally to the theme in hand will take this novel across the threshold of myriad readers."

The AVENGING PARROT

by Anne Austin $2.00 at all bookstores

GREENBERG: PUBLISHER
160-FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

Begin

with your favorite author

—You have a motor car
—You have a comfortable home
—You enjoy good books
—You appreciate the best in music
—You know the old masters and You follow the newest developments in the art world
—Now begin to enjoy the companionship and friendship of a really good library

You can have all or any of these fine editions delivered to your home and pay for them on convenient terms

BARRIE, 12 VOLS
DAVIS, 12 VOLS
DICKENS, 18 VOLS
DUMAS, 18 VOLS
FIELD, 12 VOLS
GABORIAU, 12 VOLS
GALSWORTHY, 22 VOLS
JAMES, 26 VOLS
KIPLING, 28 VOLS
MEREDITH, 20 VOLS
PARKER, 23 VOLS
POE, 10 VOLS
ROOSEVELT, 20 VOLS
SHAKESPEARE, 12 VOLS
STEVENSON, 25 VOLS
THACKERAY, 26 VOLS
TOLSTOI, 24 VOLS
TURGENIEFF, 16 VOLS
VAN DYKE, 18 VOLS
WELLS, H. G., 24 VOLS

Use the coupon

ONE SET AT A TIME OR ALL AT ONE TIME—BUILD A FINE LIBRARY

T-2-16-30

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, 597 Fifth Avenue, New York

I am interested in having a choice library of my own. Send, without obligation on my part, information concerning your generous subscription plan.
I am interested in the following sets:

Name ____________________

Address ____________________

"Dreiser draws these women with a surety of hand that seldom falters. He is at his best in just such character sketches, and he has a special skill at getting under the skins of women . . ."
—H. L. Mencken, American Mercury.

Never in the history of this publishing house have so many enthusiastic letters been received about a book. Daily we receive communications from readers all over the world, from critics, from other authors—all in regard to Dreiser's A Gallery of Women.

Theodore Dreiser

"For thirty years he has been a figure in American literature, a force for twenty, and a power for five. These two volumes increase his stature on every count."—The Outlook.

"Most other American novelists of his generation have been going downhill of late, but Dreiser seems to be holding on pretty well. The youngsters coming up offer him nothing properly describable as serious competition."
—H. L. Mencken, American Mercury.

A GALLERY OF WOMEN

Two Volumes Boxed $5.00

HORACE LIVERIGHT N.Y.

THE NEW YORK TIMES BOOK REVIEW, FEBRUARY 16, 1930

THE NEW YORK TIMES BOOK REVIEW, FEBRUARY 16, 1930

A New History of Science

A HISTORY OF SCIENCE—ITS RELATIONS WITH PHILOSOPHY AND RELIGION. By W. C. D. Dampier-Whitham, M. A., F. R. S. 514 pp. New York: The Macmillan Company. $6.

By MAYNARD SHIPLEY

THAT Sir Isaac Newton probably "spent more time over alchemy and chemistry than over those physical researches which made him famous"; that the story of a fire's destroying his papers, including among them "twenty years' work on optics," is mythical; that an ancestor of the author, William Dampier, who began his career as a buccaneer, wrote the first classic of meteorology and also "made notable advances in knowledge both in hydrography and in terrestrial magnetism"; that Gall (a name familiar to American readers in connection with the follies of phrenology, thanks to his dismissed assistant Spurzheim) was first to demonstrate the real structure of the brain and to drive Galen's "animal spirits" from its ventricles (a belief still prevalent among competent anatomists as late as 1796); that it was Oxford University which sent Bishop Wilberforce to the Oxford meeting of the British Association in 1860 to oppose Darwin's theory, the Bishop being regarded by his alma mater as "a master of all branches of natural knowledge"; that the electrons which constitute atoms are no longer to be regarded as discrete particles or "corpuscles" of electricity, revolving like planets around a central sun (the atomic nucleus), but as disembodied systems of waves, having a "structure" of more minute parts, hence not themselves the ultimate units either of electricity or of matter—these are merely examples, selected at random, of the iconoclastic and astounding statements to be found in the pages of Dampier-Whitman's fascinating new history of science, brought well down into the year 1929.

Only a few weeks previous to the appearance of the work under review, the same publisher issued the late Dr. Harvey-Gibson's "Two Thousand Years of Science," an excellent, thoroughly reliable handbook of the history of science during the Christian era. Why another volume along the same lines, published by the same house, virtually simultaneously? Harvey-Gibson, valuable as his work is, wrote in the manner of preceding short histories of science, and attempted no independent speculation. This is not the case in the present instance. Dampier-Whitham has accomplished a far more ambitious task, in line with the classical traditions of Whewell's great work of nearly a hundred years ago, and the comparatively recent contributions of the late J. T. Merz.

Our author has not merely set forth in chronological order the achievements of men of science during the past 3,500 years—he begins with the primitive science which arose in the valleys of the Euphrates, the Tigris, the Indus and the Nile—but has accompanied his narrative of facts by interpretative and philosophical reflections concerning the development of scientific and religious thought. Doubtless some readers will find themselves at certain points not entirely in sympathy with the author's point of view, but in no case will they be bored.

Again, in covering, as this book does, almost the whole range of man's scientific progress, from the dawn of civilization down to yesterday, it is to be expected that certain topics will be rather sketchily treated, or that minor errors may creep into the text here and there. But, even so, one might expect to find at least a paragraph concerning the great scholar Cardinal Nicolas of Cusa, who exposed the fundamental errors of the Ptolemaic system, years before Copernicus gave his views to the world, and who is rated by some authorities as a greater thinker and scholar than Albertus Magnus, teacher of Thomas Aquinas. On the side of biology, one misses the name of J. F. Meckel, "the German Cuvier," who foreshadowed Haeckel's so-called biogenetic law, in accordance with which the higher animals during embryonic development pass through the ancestral forms of lower animals. Dampier-Whitham attributes this idea to Von Baer, who thus "forged one link in the chain of evidence which binds man to the rest of creation." This link had already been forged by Meckel.

Then we are told that the "first successful determination of the parallax of a fixed star was made by Henderson at the Cape of Good Hope in 1832." This is not the opinion of most astronomers. This achievement is accredited to F. W. Bessel, director of the Observatory of Königsberg, and was so accepted by the Royal Astronomical Society. It occurred in 1838, when Bessel measured the parallax of 61 Cygni, obtaining the value 0''.31, the value now accepted being 0''.30. The value obtained by Henderson is not given by Dampier-Whitham. Sir James Jeans is given credit for originating a theory of the solar system which he learned from Chamberlin and Moulton, both of the University of Chicago.

"Knowledge of Neanderthal man," we are told further, "whose bones were first discovered in the valley of that name in 1856, has been increased by the finding of similar remains in Jersey and Weimar." Considering that the sole Jersey remains consist of thirteen teeth, from one skeleton, and that the Weimar (Ehringsdorf) relics consist of two lower jaws, parts of a child's skeleton and a portion of a thigh-bone; and that, on the other hand, fourteen other localities in Europe and Asia have yielded Neanderthal remains—some virtually complete skeletons, and in one burial parts of more than twenty skeletons—the statement quoted must be considered both inadequate and misleading. The whole subject of the Neanderthal, Aurignacian, Solutrian and Magdalenian races is dismissed in fifteen lines.

The author seems to be more at home in discussing the history of physics and chemistry. But the chapter on the Arabian school and the revival of learning in Europe is superb. As a matter of fact, one must say of the book that as a whole it far surpasses in excellence any one-volume work of the kind that has so far appeared in the English language.

A feature for which all readers will be grateful is the addition of marginal subheadings, which appear on every page, supplemented by a fully adequate index. Bibliographical references are given throughout the book in association with the special topic under discussion.

Sun Yat-sen as a Symbol

THE LEGACY OF SUN YAT-SEN, a History of the Chinese Revolution. By Gustav Amann. Translated by Frederick Philip Grove. 302 pp. New York: Louis Carrier & Co. $3.75.

TIME has played a not uncommon prank with the figure of Sun Yat-sen. He plays an infinitely more important part in China, now that he is dead, than he ever did alive. The same thing has happened to Lenin—it even occurred in the case of the first Napoleon. It shows the tremendous power of the symbol in history, for a name is as good as a flag about which to rally the masses of any nation.

The odds that Sun Yat-sen fought against in life were too strong for him, and often since his death, and up to and including the present time, his unscrupulous opponents have known only too well how to use him to serve their own purposes. Yet the best elements in China still glorify him and still raise the standard of his ideals about which to fight. As Cavour used Garibaldi, as Stalin used Trotsky, so Yuan Shi-kai and Chiang Kai-shek used Sun Yat-sen. It needs no prophet to tell, however, that in the end the victor will be Sun.

This is the point of view that Gustav Amann takes in his sympathetic and valuable account of the early days of Nationalism. Being written in the heat of the struggle, and finished even before Chiang Kai-shek started the drive north which was to conquer the country, it could hardly be detached or unbiased, but it is the work of a keen observer, who takes the point of view of the Chinese—a difficult thing for a foreigner—and who never lets his feelings run away with his good sense.

Sun Yat-sen, as Herr Amann realized even at the time, cannot be dismissed as easily and contemptuously as foreigners would have one think. Ask the average American in the Far East about Sun, and with an indulgent shrug of the shoulders he will tell you about the "childish" political philosophy of the Chinese leader—overlooking the fact that, childish or not, the politics of Sun are the guiding tenets (in theory, at least) of his people, and to every Chinese, Sun Yat-sen is the greatest man and leader that the revolution produced. His most important dictum—that foreign "imperialism" must be overcome—is the greatest motivating force in China today.

In Herr Amann's account of his life there is little, naturally, that is new, but in his interpretation of the actions of Sun, he offers much valuable food for thought. He holds that despite the fact Sun called upon Lenin for aid, he was not himself communistic, using Bolshevism simply as the means to achieve his end. That Chiang and the Nationalists so considered the Russians is obvious, but Sun is usually credited with more sympathy for his allies.

The author gives a due meed of credit to the Reds, and especially Borodin, for the remarkably efficient work they did. As he truly says:

> It was a thorny path which Borodin had to walk; for the disappointments which the Chinese know how to prepare for a passionate creative urge are heartbreaking.
>
> Borodin succumbed in the end to that terrible disappointment which no foreigner is spared who devotes himself unconditionally to the service of this people.

The keenness of the writer's judgment of the great figures of those days is really remarkable. He foresaw the dictatorial and militaristic aims of Chiang Kai-shek long before he became the President of China. He saw in T. V. Soong the greatness that has since given evidence of the most powerful genius Nationalism has produced. Without Soong there would be no Kuomintang now, and in Herr Amann's sympathetic picture of him in the critical early days in Canton one can appreciate that fact.

The author predicted, too, the militaristic chaos which was to follow the exploitation of Sun Yat-sen's "legacy" by the war lords who have made a shambles of the country in recent years.

"Again," he says in conclusion, "a newly arising empire lies in ruins, the world of Sun Yat-sen."

But on that score one may still believe that Herr Amann has spoken too soon.

It is regrettable that so fine a book should suffer from so slipshod a translation. It reads as if Herr Amann himself were writing English with a German accent. And the spelling of names is inexcusable.

HERBERT L. MATTHEWS.

New MACMILLAN Books

At $3.00

If You Want a Copy You Must Get It Now

THE RISE OF AMERICAN CIVILIZATION

By Charles A. Beard and Mary R. Beard

This limited, one-volume edition, priced at $3.00 has been completely sold by the publishers to bookstores, where it will be available for only a short time. The book will not be re-issued at this price. Place your order today.

The Most Powerful Personality Now Affecting Destiny

MAHATMA GANDHI'S IDEAS

Edited by C. F. Andrews

The world's chief practitioner of the doctrine of non-violence has, through the force of his ideas, started a movement in India which is deeply affecting the whole world. To understand the news, read this book. $3.00

Behind the Scenes of the ex-Kaiser's Private Life

Letters of the EMPRESS FREDERICK

Edited by Sir Frederick Ponsonby

These letters of the former Kaiser's mother, smuggled out of Germany under his nose, are now available in a new edition at half the former price. They make an unusual revelation of conditions at the court in the days of the old Empire. $4.00

Selected Simultaneously by Two Business Book Clubs

JOHN WANAMAKER

By Joseph H. Appel

This business biography of John Wanamaker, founder and builder, merchant and public servant, contains much of direct interest for every business man and woman. $5.00

For Every Investor

THE STOCK MARKET CRASH AND AFTER

By Irving Fisher

A sober, helpful analysis of the Wall Street debacle by one of America's foremost economists. To be published February 18. Probable price $2.00

If You Are Over Forty...

SALVAGING OLD AGE

By Lillien J. Martin and Clare de Gruchy

How to live sanely, and usefully, and interestingly. "It deserves to be read by everyone who has passed his fortieth birthday." —New York Times $2.00

The LABOR INJUNCTION

By Felix Frankfurter and Nathan Greene

Is the labor injunction a desirable social policy? This question has agitated America for three decades, and is still acute. This new book presents the labor injunction in all of its many phases. $5.00

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY
60 Fifth Avenue New York

Books and Authors

(Continued from Page 12)

pioneers during the stormy days of the American Revolution. The significance of the title is that Kentucky is an Indian name meaning "the great meadow." Daniel Boone is one of the characters in the book, and practically all of the narrative is based on actual happenings of the period.

Dr. J. G. Carter Troop, widely known as a lecturer, particularly for his Sunday lectures on books delivered at the Hotel Majestic and more recently at the Pythian Temple, died at the Hotel Embassy, New York, on Thursday morning, Feb. 6. Dr. Troop had been seriously ill for some time, but he carried on his work up to the very last. A lecture, never to be delivered, had already been announced for Sunday, Feb. 9.

New York in the nineties is pictured in "The Devil's Booth," by Percival Wilde, to be published on Feb. 20 by Harcourt, Brace & Co. In gathering material for this novel Mr. Wilde had considerable difficulty in finding an authority on horses and carriages who could tell him what particular type of vehicles were correct for certain occasions. He finally found the man he wanted in Earl Chapin May, who writes about horses for The Saturday Evening Post. "The Devil's Booth" is Mr. Wilde's first novel, his former literary efforts having been devoted chiefly to one-act plays.

In "Shirt-tail and Pigtail: Nonchalant Adventures in Central Asia," by Henry A. Schroeder and Laurance A. Peters, two Yale undergraduates tell of a journey toward Kashgar in Chinese Turkestan by way of Constantinople, Bokhara and Samarkand and home again by way of Siberia, Manchuria and Japan. The book is illustrated with more than fifty half-tone reproductions from photographs and has an introduction by Kermit Roosevelt. It will be published on Feb. 21 by Minton, Balch & Co.

Hungarian Writers

(Continued from Page 9)

come the poet of the inarticulate and downtrodden.

* *

THE books here reviewed are representative of the naturalism of the young Hungarian authors. Lajos Zilahy, author of "The Deserter," is a trifle less realistic than the two others. The hero of this novel is a coward, or at least so he must have appeared to many of his contemporaries. Yet the author leaves no doubt that, although a deserter, he was a hero in the noblest and most human sense of the word. The novel is pulsating with action, with battle scenes, adventurous escapes, revolution, bolshevism and counter-revolution, passionate love for a woman and duel in a café which ends all. In spite of this it is obvious that the author has succeeded in subordinating his story telling facility to a higher purpose. He has performed a vivisection on human beings and the result is devastating in its exposure of hidden ills. Here we have the most ideal surroundings to study man's reactions to a large variety of unforeseen and unrelated events which have actually taken place. What has happened to man and his ambitions in this whirlwind of fantastic happenings? Has he learned from the catastrophe or will he bungle his way into a new disaster? This is a novel with a moral and yet without any attempt at moralization. It is a credit to the author, who is one of the most talented representatives of modern Magyar literature.

EMIL LENGYEL.

BOBBS-MERRILL BOOKS

By G. M. DYOTT

Man Hunting in the Jungle

The story of the search for Col. Fawcett in the Brazilian jungle is easily the best of the travel books.—Harry Hansen in New York World. Filled with rapids and snags and dust and heat, savages, plots and mystery. A swell book. —F. P. A. in N. Y. Post. A breathless narrative, real, human, thrilling.—Percy Hutchison in N. Y. Times. Illustrated. $5.00

* * *

By PAUL WILSTACH

Tidewater Virginia

A glowing theme ... a richly detailed book.—Harry Hansen in New York World $5.00

* * *

By SAMUEL W. LAMBERT and GEORGE M. GOODWIN

Medical Leaders

One of the most capable and perhaps quite the most interesting of all the accounts of the history of the development of medicine.—N. Y. Times Illustrated. $5.00

* * *

By MARQUIS JAMES

THE RAVEN

A romantic tale of a golden day in the great Southwest when Sam Houston lived and loved and lost and won through such a career as would balk Dumas—William Allen White Illustrated. $5.00

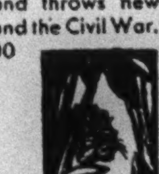
* * *

By WILLIAM E. BARTON

LINCOLN AT GETTYSBURG

Dr. Barton, the greatest living Lincoln authority, clears up the uncertainties about the Gettysburg address and throws new light on Lincoln and the Civil War. Illustrated. $4.00

* * *



By W. S. CHADWICK

GIANTS OF THE FOREST

African Hunting Adventures

Chadwick has a rare ability to tell a hunter's story so that not a single thrill escapes.—Roy P. Holland, Editor Field and Stream. Illustrated. $5.00

Write for terms of the $25,000. The Woman's Home Companion-Bobbs-Merrill Prize Novel offer of American City life.

BOBBS-MERRILL, Indianapolis

BISHOP MANNING has attacked BERTRAND RUSSELL and his views on marital relationships and the rearing of children.

F. P. A. says in the N. Y. World, February 3d:

We have not a large enough number of children to gamble their chances of happiness away, but if we had a few dozen, we would let two of them study for the first fifteen years of their plastic little lives under Bishop Manning, and two of them under Bertrand Russell. And at the end of the time we would bet the rest of the children against an empty collection plate that the Russell-trained kids would beat the Manning-trained kids the rest of their lives in happiness, health, achievement, and even in love of humanity. The Manning-trained kids might be wealthier, but we'd take a small bet against even that.

MARRIAGE and MORALS

by BERTRAND RUSSELL

"Here is a man of fine mind putting to rights the playroom of sensationalists, specialists, and sentimentalists. And here, too, is civilized thinking and an outline of civilized conduct."—The New Yorker.

"Mr. Russell has done what he set out to do—he has made 'a contribution to sexual morality' ... in a truly important book." —R. M. MacIver, The New Republic.

Fourth Large Printing. $3.00

■

EDUCATION AND THE GOOD LIFE

By BERTRAND RUSSELL

Ninth Printing $2.50

HORACE LIVERIGHT N.Y.
GOOD BOOKS

Latest Works of Fiction

(Continued from Page 25)

man of fiction to more refined and acute form of tyranny. His wife is a lovely American woman. The elder son, of whom he is proud, has lost an arm in the war; the younger, Victor, he detests. It is their response to his venom, this despair and defiant loyalty, that Miss Rives writes of in "Fire-damp." The tension of their apprehension reaches its crucial height when the elder son dies, and Victor is revealed to be of doubtful parentage. The rather dark picture here portrayed is greatly lightened by a charmingly sincere, delightful romance between Victor and Blair, his piquant young cousin from Virginia. For these two recognize their affinity on sight and never waver in their devotion.

The author has moments of rare insight in her writing, and for these we can readily forgive any effects of staginess we may detect. It must be admitted that she has allowed her story to drag, and has broken its unity with the quite irrelevant account of Victor's theatrical ventures in New York. But this cannot prevent the highly dramatic, human experiences of the Lyndons from creating for us a most absorbing story.

AMERICANS IN FLORENCE

CANDLES IN THE SUN, A SATIRE IN PASTELS. By Dorothy Graham. 297 pp. New York: Frederick A. Stokes Company. $2.50.

IT has become rather the fashion of late to write of Americans abroad and to expound at length upon our national characteristics as viewed from the foreign standpoint. It is very refreshing, therefore, to find so charming and distinctive a treatment of the subject as that which Dorothy Graham has given us in "Candles in the Sun." Her men and women are clear-cut, distinct figures, delicately traced against a Florentine background. And it is from their racial contacts, varied, swiftly pointed, that she has drawn the threads of her story.

To Dorothy Graham the Italian is vital, the American correspondingly inadequate. Gino is direct and forceful, while it is Enid Mallory whose life is frustrated through indecision. Gisela is ardently passionate, in sharp contrast to the shallow Mrs. Trent. For the author has endowed her Italians with such intensity that the Americans passing through their lives are "dazed by the clarity of realities" and are "dimmed in that too searching light-candles in the sun."

But though we may find much to quarrel with in her premise, we cannot feel that she has overstressed it. Her touch is too sure for that. Her satire is qualified by kindliness—a "Satire in Pastels." And the entire novel is possessed of a restraint and delicacy that are pleasantly arresting.

CONTRASTED LIVES

SLOWBAGS AND ARETHUSA. By Adrian Alington. 425 pp. New York: Harcourt, Brace & Co. $2.50.

IN "Slowbags and Arethusa," Mr. Alington has written a first novel of merit and charm. Into his book he has woven two distinct plots, fastening them together at the end. Each is a story in itself—one of Alexander Slow, "Slowbags," and the other of Arethusa Boysey. The uneventful existence of Alexander is fully supplemented by Arethusa's glamourous adventures.

There is a brilliant contrast between the two characters, and Mr. Alington handles both his contrasts and his situations well. The first third of the book he devotes to Alexander, the second to Arethusa. Each of these parts is carefully and ably done. The lives of the two are traced from childhood to the point where they are thrown together. Surprisingly, there is not too much painstaking detail in all this. The last third concerns both.

The story is written with an easy grace; there is humor and thought and good character drawing throughout. "Slowbags and Arethusa" has something which most contemporary romances lack. Usually the characters are insignificant, their lives whether tragic or no, so unimportant that no one cares particularly what happens to them. With Alexander and Arethusa one feels from their infancy that there is a chance of their developing into real human beings and so one cares what becomes of them.

A ROYAL ADVENTURE

A CROWN FOR CARLOTTA. By Daniel Henderson. 295 pp. New York: Frederick A. Stokes & Co. $2.50.

THIS is a rambling and diffuse novel based on the lives of Maximilian and Carlotta, the Austrian Prince and the Belgian Princess who became Emperor and Empress of Mexico. It is by turns absorbing because of its material, and exasperating because of its formlessness. Without distinction of style and apparently with only the most rudimentary gift of selection, Mr. Henderson seems to have gathered together all that he has read and believed about those glamourous and tragic sovereigns and by main strength crammed it into a book. His fact is better than his fiction. When Mr. Henderson tries to tell us what his characters thought his attempts are not felicitous. But we are grateful to him for having recalled so much of the dramatic action that swirled about Napoleon III's attempt to transpose the faded splendors of feudal Europe to Mexico. His main contribution to the known material is a new study of the character Agnes Joy, the American girl who as Princess Salm Salm insinuated herself into the presence of Maximilian, as she had made her way to the side of every man who interested her in the course of a spectacular career. The story of Agnes Joy might very well make a complete novel in itself. Here it is made a rather unnecessary bypath to the profoundly interesting road from Miramar to Queretaro.

COMIC COMPLICATIONS

THE GO-BETWEEN. By Therese Benson. 270 pp. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co. $2.

"THE GO-BETWEEN" is a light and fairly entertaining story of the complications that may arise when people use one name in private life and another in their work. This is the second novel by a well-known writer, also masquerading under a pen-name.

Jerry Kip, author of a notable novel, and Di Franklin, a manuscript reader through whose efforts his book was given a hearing, find themselves neighbors. As both use other names in their work neither suspects the identity of the other. In the easy intimacy that follows, one finds it difficult to believe that Jerry and Di could underrate each other's ability to the extent the author would have us believe. The arrival of an old friend of Jerry's, impersonating the author, brings further complications. The plot is rambling and stretched rather thin at times to obtain the desired situations, while the introduction of a large number of minor characters tends to confusion.

In Lin, self-appointed "go-between" to secure husbands for the "old maids," Miss Benson has created an original and delightful child. Lin finds that the Oriental wisdom she gained from her childhood in China is just as applicable in America. In writing of children Miss Benson writes surely and convincingly.

In "Phantom Walls," to be published in March by G. P. Putnam's Sons, Sir Oliver Lodge makes his most complete statement to date regarding his contention that the soul survives the material body. He considers that he has received indubitable proof of the "persistent continuity of individual personal experience," proof that his scientific mind holds to be perfectly satisfactory

YOURS WITHOUT EXTRA CHARGE 1930 ATLAS

Given to the readers of this newspaper who take advantage of this offer now made in connection with

Webster's New International Dictionary

Universal Question Answerer
To solve Question Games or Cross Word Puzzles, or to give you a quick answer whatever your question, you will find the New International indispensable. It is accepted as the highest authority everywhere.

Words of Recent Interest fourth dimension, Hooverize, audio-frequency, ethyl gas, eugenism, bokum, flair, helicopter, vitamin, broadcast, blimp, petit point. These are but a few from the thousands of late words—all clearly defined in this great work.

"The Supreme Authority"

The Merriam-Webster

A complete Reference Library in Dictionary Form—with 3,000 pages and type matter equivalent to a 15-Volume Encyclopedia, all in a single volume. India-Paper Edition in Dark Red Full Leather or Government Test Tan Buckram Binding, also Regular Edition in strong Red Fabrikoid, can now be secured by readers of this newspaper on the following remarkably easy terms:

THE ENTIRE WORK (WITH 1930 ATLAS)

Delivered for $1.00

with easy monthly payments thereafter
(on approved orders in United States and Canada) on SUPERIOR INDIA PAPER

Reduced about ONE-HALF in Thickness and Weight as compared with the Regular Edition

India-Paper Edition
Printed on thin, opaque, strong, superior India Paper. It has an excellent printing surface, resulting in remarkably clear impressions of type and illustrations. What a satisfaction to own the new Merriam Webster in a form so light and so convenient to use! This edition is only about one-half the thickness and weight of the regular edition. Size 12⅜ in. x 9⅜ in. x 2⅝ in. Weight 8¾ lbs.

Regular Edition
Printed on strong book paper of the highest quality. Size 12⅜ in. x 9⅜ in. x 5½ in. Weight 17 lbs.

Both editions are printed from the same plates and indexed.

487,000 Entries, including thousands of New Words, 12,000 Biographical Names, nearly 32,000 Geographical Subjects, besides thousands of other References. 3,000 Pages. Over 6,000 Illustrations. Constantly improved and kept up to date.

"To have this work in the home is like sending the whole family to college."
The only dictionary with the Divided Page, characterized as "A Stroke of Genius".

The Atlas

Is the 1930 "New Reference Atlas of the World," containing 180 pages. Maps are beautifully printed in colors, and include recent changes in boundaries, airway maps, and latest census figures, etc., all handsomely bound in cloth size 9¾ in. x 12½ in.

FREE TO THOSE WHO MAIL THIS COUPON AT ONCE

G. & C. MERRIAM CO. Home Office Department 5 Springfield, Mass.
(Publishers of Genuine Webster Dictionaries for 87 years)
Please send me free of all obligation or expense complete information including "125 Interesting Questions" with references to their answers; striking "Facsimile Color Plate" of the bindings with terms of your Atlas offer on WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY to readers of The N. Y. Times. 2-16-30

Name

Address

The Famous Box of
DOLLAR PERSONAL STATIONERY
WITH YOUR MONOGRAM — WNF — OR NAME & ADDRESS
WHITING'S CRANFORD VELLUM PAPER
THREE COLORS OF PAPER
FOUR COLORS OF INK
Satisfaction Guaranteed
CLUB SIZE 6⅞ x 5⅞
EITHER:— 200 Single Sheets & 100 Long Pointed Flap Envelopes
OR:— 100 Folded Sheets & 100 Long Pointed Flap Envelopes
$1
—ALSO—
University Size 5⅞x8½
Single Sheets Only
150 Sheets & 100 Long Pointed Flap Envelopes
$1
All Beautifully Printed with Your Name and Address or Monogram
With Monogram Order, Envelopes Are Plain
COLORS OF PAPER: White, French Gray, Bisque (light sand)
COLORS OF INK: Blue, Black, Green, Purple
ORDER BY MAIL. Send Check, Money Order or Currency. West of Miss. add 20c.
Dollar Stationery Co.
225 Fifth Avenue New York

. . . the actual picture of the great city of the future!

MASTERING A METROPOLIS

Planning the Future of the New York Region

By R. L. DUFFUS

THIS book is a mine of new ideas on every phase of city planning—for architects, planners, chambers of commerce, civic organizations, and all interested in a more beautiful America.

It is the only authorized condensation of the monumental ten volume survey prepared by the Committee on the Regional Plan of New York, at a cost of over $1,000,000, and selling for $50. It tells just how New York intends to control growth to assure an uncongested, beautiful region, and how every city faced with similar problems can adapt its plans.

F. A. Delano, Chairman of the Committee on the Regional Plan, says: "Mr. Duffus has been conspicuously successful in dealing with . . . the findings and proposals of the Committee in such a way that they will be widely understood and discussed."

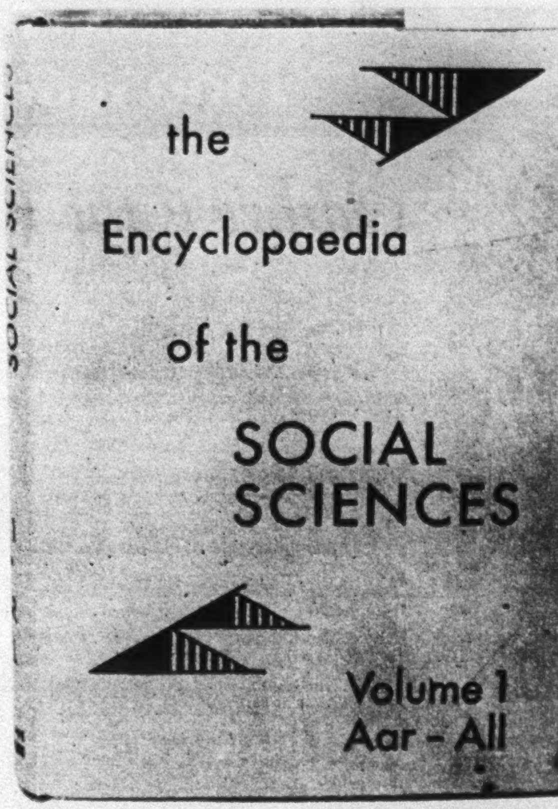
Profusely illustrated with maps, photographs, drawings. Price $3.00

FREE EXAMINATION COUPON
Harper & Brothers, 49 E. 33rd Street, New York
Send me a copy of Mastering a Metropolis, $3.00
☐ I will remit $3 in 10 days or return book.
☐ Check is enclosed. ☐ Send C. O. D.
Name
Address
Business Connection

"INVALUABLE"

"A work comparable in significance to that of the encyclopaedists of the eighteenth century...It has special uses for scholars in furnishing the foundation on which to build what they may gather in new researches, but will also be an invaluable source of information for the general reader." —New York Times

Volume I



"MONUMENTAL"

"A monumental reference work... Undoubtedly presents itself both as a historically discriminating survey of mankind's already accomplished facts in the social sciences, as a live and intelligent record of the immediate present, and as an understanding and tolerant prediction of future development."—N. Y. Evening Post

Now Ready

ENCYCLOPÆDIA of the SOCIAL SCIENCES

Edwin R. A. Seligman
Editor-in-Chief

Alvin Johnson
Associate Editor

TO BE COMPLETE IN 15 VOLUMES

"BOTH scientists and that larger group of informed people seeking to participate intelligently in our kaleidoscopic world owe a heavy debt of gratitude to those who have conceived and are carrying through this monumental task. It will immediately take its place among the great reference tools of the world. Sponsored by the leading social science groups of the United States, planned with the utmost scientific integrity and great editorial care, it presents concisely what is known about the staggering array of problems with which economics, psychology, sociology, political science, law, history and anthropology are concerned in their efforts at social understanding and control."—Robert S. Lynd in the New York Evening Post

John Dewey

"Carried out with accuracy, comprehensiveness and ability. When completed it will be a monument to the present state of learning in this country, as well as an indispensable book of reference to the great numbers interested in the social sciences."

Charles E. Merriam

"In view of the urgent necessity of integrating the social sciences more closely, this plan is a very timely one . . . I am confident that it will be one of the most useful contributions which could be made to social science."

Justice Harlan F. Stone

"Its general utility is, I think, too obvious to require any elaboration. What would perhaps not be so apparent is the fact that it would be of very great value to me in my work, as I belive it would be to most judges."

F. W. Taussig

"A boon to all teachers and students of social subjects, as well as to writers of all degrees of competence, and to the intelligent public. No reference book of the kind is available in English that at all meets the needs."

Clark Wissler

"Without such a reference source, the serious-minded individual, confronted by statements as to the bearing of scientific data upon social practice, will have no source to which he can turn for a verification, in confidence that an authoritative statement will be found."

Mortimer L. Schiff

"The encyclopaedia will surely be a valuable contribution both as a book of reference and for giving a better understanding of this important field of learning."

A descriptive brochure, which indicates in detail the scope of the Encyclopaedia, will be mailed to any address free upon request. Volume I is now ready and may be examined at bookstores. The price of the Encyclopaedia is $7.50 a volume, $112.50 the set. It is to be completed at the rate of three volumes a year, to be paid for by subscribers as they are issued.

ANTHROPOLOGY

You will find in this work how, almost from its outset, anthropology, the first of the newer social sciences, has succeeded in throwing light on early political, economic and legal conditions.

ECONOMICS

Every question on the science, the production and distribution of wealth, from its inception to modern times, is answered by an expert in these volumes. To the economist they offer a wealth of information.

EDUCATION

Education for the satisfactory accomplishment of the social duties is an indispensable part of all modern curricula. All educators will recognize the importance of having these volumes for ready reference.

HISTORY

History has become an indispensable source of material for the interpretation of all manner of social processes. Information on all men and events of social historic significance will be found in this work.

LAW

The survey of law in this work covers material from primitive times to the present. Contributions of the various nations are dealt with and special attention is given to modern jurisprudence.

PHILOSOPHY

The social relations of men have acquired a new significance as a recognized factor in the formulation of philosophic doctrines. Teachers and students of philosophy will find much material here.

POLITICAL SCIENCE

For authoritative enlightenment in any phase of political science from the days of the Greeks to the present time one can safely turn to this encyclopaedia.

PSYCHOLOGY

With the ever increasing knowledge of the mechanistic and biological foundation of thought and life, psychology is becoming social in a double sense.

SOCIAL WORK

The whole range of activities wherein scientific inquiry is combined with social action is covered in this encyclopaedia. Every social worker will find it invaluable for reference.

SOCIOLOGY

What sociology has done to lay bare the foundations of the functions and structure of society, and to elucidate the laws which lie at the basis of social intercourse is shown in this work.

STATISTICS

The importance of this encyclopaedia to every worker in the statistical field is self evident. It stands itself as a supreme result of the application of the science of statistics.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY — 60 Fifth Avenue — New York

Primitive Warfare

THE EVOLUTION OF WAR. By Maurice R. Davie. Yale Publications in Economics, Social Science and Government. 391 pp. New Haven: Yale University Press. $4.

By JOHN BAKELESS.

"THE EVOLUTION OF WAR" is an unfortunate misnomer for Professor Maurice R. Davie's really excellent new book. It is not a study of the evolution of war at all—not, at least, if the word "evolution" is used in its accepted sense to designate the process of slow change by which things have become what they are. The title leads one to expect a treatise on the origin of war as an institution, followed by some account of its gradual development from primitive combat with stone axes to the struggles of gigantic modern armies, equipped with ingenious mechanism for destruction.

But in the book one finds nothing of the kind. Instead, Professor Davie gives his readers an extremely vivid—though scholarly and carefully documented—account of the general conditions of warfare among savages. He might with reasonable accuracy have entitled it, "The Origin of War." He would have been perfectly accurate had he called it "Primitive Warfare."

The misleading title that he has chosen is a serious handicap for any book. But perhaps no great harm has been done in this particular case, since any one who is interested in the evolution of war will also be interested in the conditions of primitive warfare, and his chief emotion on discovering that Professor Davie's study is not quite what he expected, will be puzzlement that any man should deliberately hide such brilliant light under so odd a bushel.

As Associate Professor of the Science of Society at Yale, the author naturally writes with authority. His style is a little reminiscent of the style of W. G. Sumner, on whose "Folkways," "War," and other books he has drawn heavily for material. But it is no reproach to any one—least of all a sociologist—to write like Sumner.

Professor Davie deals first with prehistoric warfare—a difficult subject to treat intelligently, since almost all that we can possibly know of it is either painfully obvious or purely conjectural. Realizing this, he passes lightly over the whole matter, pointing out merely that "from earliest times to the present, man has always fought and has always had weapons, both natural and artificial." The rest of his chapter is based on what can be deduced from the evidence of epic poems, myths, and the weapons discovered by achaeologists.

One is not surprised to find that from the earliest times war has always been the dreary, bloody and savage business that this generation knows it to be. It is more startling to discover the far-reaching similarities between the customs of modern, "civilized" war and those of ancient and "savage" warfare. Declarations of war, peace treaties, diplomatic immunity and even efforts to ameliorate the horrors of war, are not modern but very ancient. Neither are such minor matters as decorations for valor, campaign badges, the lure of the uniform, and feminine incitements to "join the army." Indeed, Professor Davie devotes an entire chapter to "War and Women."

"Men have fought for and over women since time immemorial," he says. "Disputes involving women are especially prevalent in primitive societies, where the chief cause of trouble is the capture of women from other tribes." Wars may, however, be due either to wife-capture, elopements or adultery, but to the primitive mind all three remain "only a special form of war over property," since primitive man desires women mainly as workers or slaves. The more women he has to labor for him the more secure is his position in the struggle for existence. They are an economic asset for the work they do and the children they bear. Marriage among primitive peoples is primarily an economic affair.

Though women are no longer a cause of wars of this sort, another of their primitive relationships to war as an institution remains as important as ever.

Women may be a cause of war, not merely as the passive objects of capture, abduction and the like, but also as active instigators. When war is in the mores, when warlike qualities are approved and admired in the men, the women strengthen the mores by glorifying such qualities. By means of ridicule and approbation they exercise a large measure of control in primitive societies. Westermarck is of the opinion that women "instinctively prefer strong and brave men to feeble and cowardly ones." While questioning his premise, we may accept the facts and the cases he cites. Certainly women often encourage a warlike spirit.

Unfortunately, Professor Davie fails to make a very interesting, though somewhat obvious, modern application at this point. He is describing primitive society, but his words would apply equally to hysterical flappers handing out white feathers in London streets in 1914.

Savage methods of declaring war are at least as respectable as our own. Every one remembers the snake-skin filled with arrows which was sent to our own early settlers. But few realize that this, or something like it, was an ordinary custom among savage warriors. In Eastern Equatorial Africa the party declaring war sent his prospective enemy a bullet and a hoe. The enemy might choose either—war or submission. Among the Papuans a broken spear was sent as a declaration of war. Indians of the Algonquian stock in Canada used to send an axe with its handle painted red and black, the Huron-Iroquois a belt of black wampum. In ancient Peru and ancient Mexico the prospective foe always received advanced warning. But the Fijians followed the practice popular among certain modern powers and "usually the declaration of war took place in a more practical fashion by the surprise and slaughter of an unarmed party of the enemy—women fishing on a reef or a messenger returning home in his canoe."

The peace treaties of savages are sometimes almost as formal as our own. "They are invariably concluded with impressive ceremonies, for, in the absence of written language or other methods of recording events, it becomes necessary to impress their terms vividly on the memory of the contracting parties." The ceremonies include chopping a donkey's skull, exchanging babies, cutting a dog in two, sacrificing a goat, taking a spear between the teeth, or meeting at the foot of a sacred tree. All this is not quite the same as signing a paper in a hall filled with mirrors, but the differences are slight.

The neutrality of certain individuals, houses or localities, as well as the status of non-combatants, was sometimes recognized among savages. Diplomatic immunity seems almost universal. Professor Davie points out specific examples in Oceania, among North American Indians, and among the Ewe-speaking tribes of Africa. Curiously enough, he again fails to point out the similarity between these savage usages, the sanctity of heralds in the Middle Ages, and modern diplomatic immunity. This sort of recognition of the elements common to modern and primitive war would have made of the book a genuine treatise on the evolution of war had the author seen his true opportunity.

The story of the rescue of the Antinoe by the Roosevelt is told in a book-length poem which the Macmillan Company will publish this Spring. The title is "The Roosevelt and the Antinoe," and the author is E. J. Pratt, descendant of a race of sea captains, who was brought up by the sea in Newfoundland and is now teaching at Victoria College, Toronto.

Do you know:

Why more boys are born than girls? The factors that determine sex? How scientists have changed the normal birth ratio of 105 boys to 100 girls to that of 900 boys to 100 girls? How heredity points to the proper sex? Why finer children are born through a clearer understanding of these matters?

Two hundred and seventy pages of absorbing information about one of the most interesting subjects in the world—the determination of sex. It tells you why you are man or woman, why your ancestors were, and why your decendants will be.

Will Your Children Be Boys or Girls?

Read what scientists know and tell you in this book. Over 300 of them have contributed the results of their investigations in this field.

Compiled by Dr. A. L. Benedict, internationally known physician and scientist. Written simply, clearly and frankly that all may understand. Check the coupon below and mail today.

ALLEN ROSS & COMPANY
1133 Broadway, Dept. 14, New York City.
Gentlemen:
I should like to know more about "Why We Are Men and Women." Please send me Dr. Benedict's new book by that name.
☐ Send book C. O. D. ☐ I enclose $2.50
Name ....
Address ....
City .... State ....

The famous Jean Lafitte, pirate and hero—Half the romantic population of New Orleans worshipped him for his daring and gallantry.

PIRATE JEAN

Reginald Wright Kauffman

Pirate Jean was a real character. Mr. Kauffman has brought him to life again in all his glory in this charming romance, breathless with incredible feats of daring.

He is a rogue who torments sheriffs, jailers and armed pursuers. But he is a lovable rogue, as a brave young girl discovers.

From the masked ball where her engagement is being celebrated, Pirate Jean kidnaps her by a clever ruse. The whole town joined in the chase and thought they had him cornered on the roof of the jail. $2

MACAULAY · PUBLISHERS · NEW YORK

Make BOOKSELLING your CAREER

Open a bookshop of your own. Book buying is rapidly increasing in the United States—every community needs good book service. If you know books and have business ability and moderate capital we can help you. Our service is free and entirely advisory. For information, write to Bookselling Information Service, Room 1407 N. T.

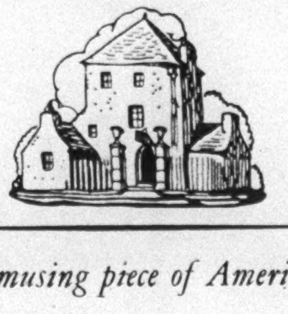
347 Fifth Ave. New York

Selections from

RANDOM HOUSE

Spring List



20 EAST 57 NEW YORK

An amusing piece of Americana

PARSON WEEMS ON MARRIAGE, DRINK & ADULTERY

A modern reprinting of these characteristic tirades

"a merry sight for the sophisticated eye embellished with original frontispiece cuts in the flavorsome style of the period"
THE NEW YORK SUN

1000 numbered copies $8.50

A book on famous Corsairs and Pirates

THE SCOURGE OF THE INDIES

From original texts and contemporary engravings by Maurice Besson

Profusely illustrated with color maps and pictures; describes in narrative style the adventures of the great French ruffians, The Brothers of the Coast.

1000 copies $10.00

Other Forthcoming Random House Books

FRANKLIN EVANS by Walt Whitman
A novel on prohibition, reprinted for the first time $10.00

THE PALETTE KNIFE by Christopher Morley
Six designs by René Gockinga done by hand with water color
Signed by the author $20.00

THE ADVENTURES OF TOM SAWYER by Mark Twain
Illustrated in two colors by Donald McKay $20.00

DON QUIXOTE
A Nonesuch publication Illustrated 3 volumes the set, $35.00

APHRODITE IN AULIS by George Moore
1000 copies signed by the author $20.00

Unlimited Random House Editions

CANDIDE With the Rockwell Kent illustrations $5.00

THE WEEK-END BOOK $2.50

COMPLETE POETRY AND SELECTED PROSE OF JOHN DONNE $3.50

THE PROSE AND POETRY OF WILLIAM BLAKE $5.00

TEN OF "THE FIFTY BOOKS OF 1929" WERE DISTRIBUTED BY RANDOM HOUSE

Editions distributed by Random House are restricted printings and it is the fault neither of the publisher nor of the bookseller that these books so often command a premium shortly after publication. The collector can be assured any book at the published price by ordering in time

For a copy of the new catalogue, write

RANDOM HOUSE

20 EAST 57 ST · NEW YORK

Children's Books

By ANNE T. EATON

THE GARDEN OF THE LOST KEY. By Forrestine C. Hooker. Illustrated by Elmer Hader. 285 pp. New York: Doubleday, Doran & Co. $2.

STORIES of two children and their parents who lived in the army posts of the frontier West during the last Indian Wars and later on a Western ranch. There are accounts of pets, Yappy the prairie dog, Patsy the deer, Brighteyes, the outlaw cow pony; Tatters, the dog, and others that will delight any child who loves animals. Other chapters tell of adventures with Indians, and there is a thrilling account of an escape from a mountain lion. Perhaps the title of the book and the fact that it is less definitely one story may cause it to attract fewer readers than the same author's popular "Cricket," "Star, the Story of an Indian Pony," and "Prince Jan." But it is to be hoped that many child readers will discover it because of its rare quality of good breeding and refinement and its authentic flavor of an earlier day. The very modern children of Elmer Hader's frontispiece leave something to be desired. They are as characterless and as prettyfied as the figures in a fashion catalogue and suggest in no way the sturdy little personalities in the book.

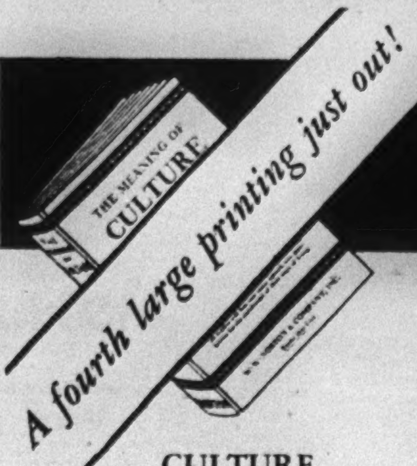
KASPERLE'S ADVENTURES. By Josephine Siebe. Translated by Florence Geiser. Pictures by Frank Dobias. 199 pp. New York: Macmillan Company. $3.

"Kasperle" in Germany corresponds to "Pinnochio" in Italy. In the Black Forest an old wood carver of "Kasperles" (or wooden dolls), discovers that the real and original Kasperle has been lying asleep in one of his carved wooden chests for the last ninety years. What the Kasperle did when he woke up, how he left the wood carver and his wife and pretty Liebetraut, their daughter, and set out on his travels, how he was in turn goose boy, cook's helper and schoolboy, how he escaped from a castle, pretended to be a ghost, and made two good friends who helped him through his difficulties and brought about a safe return to the wood carver's cottage, are set forth in a humorous and interesting fashion. There is a pleasant folktale atmosphere and the translation is excellent. The illustrations, by Frank Dobias, are humorous and spirited, and while some of them are too modern in tone, others suggest an Old World atmosphere appropriate to the story.

THE SCOUT JAMBOREE BOOK. By Fifteen Boy Scouts. With a Foreword by James E. West, Chief Scout Executive. With 31 illustrations. 177 pp. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. $1.75.

No doubt many of the American Boy Scouts present at the Scout Jamboree last Summer will be glad to have this book as a souvenir of their trip and it may be an aid in advertising the Scout movement and in recruiting members. Intrinsically its value is very slight; purporting to be the combined manuscripts of fifteen Scouts, it at times shows very evidently the work of an editor, and at other times the need of one. It raises again several questions relative to the value of books written by children and young people for other children and young people, and their popularity with the public for which they are intended. Perhaps more boys and girls than we realize feel as did a little group of 12 and 13 year olds who expressed their opinions about books written by children to this effect. "I don't seem to like books by children—they aren't interesting." "Books by grown-up people are much more interesting. Grown-ups have had more experience and they have

(Continued on Page 18)



A fourth large printing just out!

This message is reaching 1000 more homes each week—

Culture is the road to the happier life

CULTURE AND LOVE

By John Cowper Powys

"The state of being in love stirs up the secret nucleus of our personality. Without love the mind's awareness of what is happening to it is continually being drugged. Liberated by love the mind experiences an incredible relaxation. This lends itself to a vibrant sensitivity in which impressions are received and values noted that are fresh, thrilling, original.

"Awareness! Awareness! That is the essence of a cultured life, just as it is the essence of a lover's life. Uncultured people live in the world without being conscious that to be alive at all is the one grand mystery. . . The cultured consciousness uses the Universe precisely as an intelligent lover uses his dear companion. He secretly enjoys its miraculous beauty, even while he suffers from its unpredictable waywardness."

This is one among the many delightful passages which go to make up a book of enduring beauty and wisdom.

Quietly, unassumingly, a book is giving a new philosophy to America. The beginning of happiness is to know the true meaning of culture. In four months (time enough to bury most new books) this message has reached many thousands—has brought them something to live by. It has come through John Cowper Powys' book, THE MEANING OF CULTURE—a book whose vastly increasing success is the surest proof that this new philosophy works.

How Can We Become Cultured?

This philosophy works because it is not for one class, but for all classes. It is based on one sweeping idea—Culture is what you are, not what you know. That is why everyone—bankers and students, clubwomen and social leaders, people well read and people who read hardly one book a year—all are making this philosophy their own. For here are no cut-and-dried rules of life, but ever widening vistas of true living. At the end you will find your life surely, subtly enriched; you will have found something to live by.

What Advantages Does Culture Bring Us?

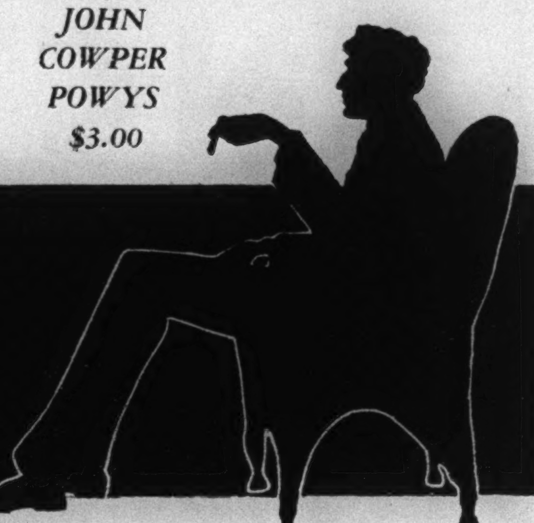
Surely culture is the greatest asset to us who live in the world with our fellows—to us who wish to understand that world. But culture is not only a social asset; it is more. For the cultured man is complete within himself. He is independent. He has lost that restlessness, that vague loneliness, which beset all of us before we have learned the true meaning of culture.

Noted Critics Urge You to Read It

That is why Will Durant, author of The Story of Philosophy, finds "A guide to happiness" in THE MEANING OF CULTURE; why he writes, "I have taken an almost sinful pleasure from every page!" That is why The New York Herald-Tribune says, "A rich mind spins these chapters, and in the pattern the richest glories of human experience are caught."

Read it yourself; and as these rich pages bring you a new meaning for your own life—as your heart beats faster and your mind springs to life in a new delight—you will understand why THE MEANING OF CULTURE is reaching hundreds of new readers daily—why America has made its philosophy her own.

By JOHN COWPER POWYS $3.00



THE MEANING OF CULTURE

Published by the publishers of John B. Watson's BEHAVIORISM; Bertrand Russell's PHILOSOPHY; H. A. Overstreet's ABOUT OURSELVES; etc.

W. W. NORTON & COMPANY, INC., 70 Fifth Avenue, New York. Books That Live

"A girl should never marry a man who understands women" says the celebrated, sophisticated

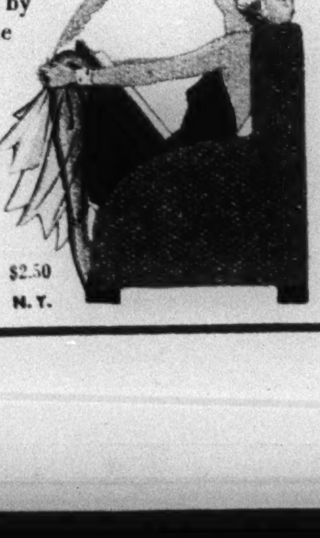
PEGGY JOYCE

MEN MARRIAGE AND ME by PEGGY HOPKINS JOYCE

She tells her life story in her own informal way, and it's gorgeous reading.

From the time she ran away from home for a stage career with a trick bicycle rider she has reaped a lot of very human experience. She tells it with gusto and with shrewd observation.

The girl who was glorified by Ziegfield and Earl Carroll, the girl who loved luxuries and good times, the girl who distinguished herself by a superior technique, tells an exhilarating story of her life. It is the sort of experience that makes modern life such an interesting spectacle.



$2.50

MACAULAY • PUBLISHERS • N.Y.

George Washington

Vol. III: The Savior of the States—1777-1781

by RUPERT HUGHES

"There is enough contradiction of many popular beliefs to make the book the focus for innumerable controversies . . . Against those times of dissension, disputing, ill feeling and defeat, Washington stands out like a rock. Mr. Hughes's biography, far from belittling the man, makes him appear greater by virtue of his ability to see the war through despite tremendous odds."—HARRY HANSEN, Literary Editor, The N. Y. World.

At all bookstores, illustrated, $5.00

WILLIAM MORROW & COMPANY

THE PERFECT LEAF

Something more than a novel, written by Frank A. Fortescue, recommended by the Book-of-the-month Club. Do these people live next door to you? (1) One brother, a clergyman, engaged to marry the girl, trying to do his best, filled with the desire to be of service, caring for his mother — but —

THE PERFECT LEAF

Recommended by the Book-of-the-Month Club. Do these people live next door to you? (2) The girl, charming, full of life, in love with her fiancé, the young clergyman, associated more or less with his mother and his brother, happy and without premonitions—but—

THE PERFECT LEAF

Recommended by the Book-of-the-Month Club. Do these people live next door to you? (3) The other brother, a young business man with success ahead, devoted to his brother and his mother, fond of his brother's fiancée, and troubled by no ulterior thoughts—but—

THE PERFECT LEAF

Recommended by the Book-of-the-Month Club. (4) The mother, filling her position in society, partial to the second son but caring for both, fond of the girl—but—in the words of the old Persian quotation—"Under the most perfect leaf lies an adder." Price $2.00

THE COWLED MENACE

Something new in detective stories by Willard E. Hawkins. A man is found dead. Police and coroner adjudge it a case of suicide. The super-detective studies the case and by his inductive reasoning, believes the man was murdered. Later it develops that someone shot the man. Doctors say that he was shot after he was dead. Why?

THE COWLED MENACE

Who shot Him? And why? Who killed him? And how? And why? What became of the two drinking glasses on the table? Who took them away? And why? Why?—Why?—all the way from page one to the end. Price $2.00

FAMOUS DUELS AND ASSASSINATIONS

A valuable and authentic contribution to books upon crime, by Louis Melville and Reginald Hargreaves. Profusely illustrated. Historical details of such assassinations as President Lincoln, President Garfield, extending from the 12th Century to the present time, as well as a score of historical duels. Price $4.00

SEARS PUBLISHING COMPANY
114 East 32nd St. New York

Latest Works of Fiction

(Continued from Preceding Page)

information to Perris. Then, with tragic calm and simplicity, bent on guarding his wife's good name from the venomous wagging of the small town tongues, Perris strangled Webster and hid the body. Gossip concerning Rhoda and Taffendale managed to leak out. The old custom of "stang riding" during which the incensed and drunken villagers burned two rudely fashioned effigies and set fire to the farm, make vivid and thrilling telling.

The dialogue is simple but pungent; the book has humor and wistfulness, but never deviates from its restrained and logical purpose.

SIXTEENTH CENTURY INDIA

THE NEAR AND THE FAR. By L. H. Myers. New York: Harcourt, Brace & Co. $2.50.

IN this new and decidedly unusual novel, L. H. Myers does frankly and avowedly what many writers have done more or less furtively; he takes a historical background, a few historical names, and adapts them to suit his own purposes. There is a short preface, which gives him an opportunity to declare, "I have done what I liked with history and geography; facts have been used when they were useful, and distorted or ignored when they were inconvenient." The place and period thus manipulated are India and the sixteenth century, when the "Great Moghul," Akbar, was Emperor and ruler of a supposedly united country. A contemporary of Queen Elizabeth, he was once visited by Admiral Sir John Hawkins, yet to the average reader he is as vague, as distant a figure as Hatshepsitut or Asshurbanipal. His name conjures up a vision of marble palaces, jewels, dancing girls, palm trees and elephants; little more. And it is on this "comfortable, normal ignorance," this somewhat confused sense of splendor and magnificent coloring, that the author avowedly counts. He uses it as a means of escape for his own imagination, an opportunity to show attitudes of mind practically universal, ways of facing the problems of life and its conduct which are to some extent at least common to all men who have reached a certain degree of culture and of sophistication. The manifestations of these varying attitudes are influenced by the period and the setting; yet they belong to all those eras of religion and moral skepticism, of questioning of once accepted, venerable creeds which come to civilizations grown old and tolerant.

It is of course a historical fact that the Emperor Akbar, though brought up in the faith of Islam, presently found that faith not altogether satisfactory and, becoming restless and unsettled, had a hall built in his palace at Fatehpur-Sikri, where he collected exponents of almost every form of religious belief. For a while he listened to their disputes, then at last invented a religion of his own, and proclaimed himself vice-regent of God on earth. This religion he called the Din Ilahi, and he intended that it should embody the best of every form of faith. But only a few courtiers professed the new religion, and the general results were quite other than the Emperor expected. He was a reformer, but

A moral and spiritual corruption had set in with the mingling of so many races and creeds. Races copied only each others' vices. Creeds, forced to tolerate one another, learned to tolerate their own decadence. So the Emperor had ordered an inquiry and tabulated the results; he had issued edicts and fixed penalties. But the people had only smiled.

Sixteenth century India is not without its parallels in our modern world. Outwardly, all was magnificence; beneath, there flowed "a subterranean stream of bane," in the worship of the fearful Goddess Kali, whose rites were religious orgies not untainted by human sacrifice, and whose power was "subtle and diffuse as a pestilence." Against this background of mingled splendor and corruption the author has placed his characters. There is the Rajah Amar, a Rajput and a Buddhist, devout in his religion of negation, on the point of leaving the world, his wife and son included, "for the yellow robe of a recluse, and the begging bowl." He expresses one point of view, that of a relentless logic, which yet leaves certain matters of importance out of account, his mind "stiffened by logic, being obtuse to the awful paradoxes of the world of spirit." A quite different mental attitude is that of his wife, the Ranee Sita, a Georgian and a Christian. His friend Gokal, the wise old Brahmin, who at last won through suffering to tranquillity, represents a third philosophy, and each of the three has its points of attraction and repulsion for the more worldly minded hill chieftain, Hari Khan, who may be taken as typical of the average man, at once sensual and spiritual. But though philosophy thus plays a large part in the book, since the beliefs of these people strongly influence their conduct, there is also plenty of action. For the two sons of Akbar are in revolt, one openly, the other secretly. Each has his own adherents, and the intrigues, the plots and counterplots wherein all the characters become involved, provide the novel with plenty of drama, while the intrigue of Hari Khan with Lalita, betrothed to Akbar's son, Prince Danyal, holds a threat of tragic consequences. But though the story arouses, it does not satisfy the reader's curiosity. This novel is only the opening part of the tale, and leaves characters and action alike in the air, for it is announced that the story will be continued in another volume. It is a notable book, very well written, the various points of view at once clearly and subtly expressed, the characters alive, the scene pictures deftly drawn.

THE WOMAN PAYS

THE PIPER'S PRICE. By Harriet T. Comstock. 303 pp. New York: Doubleday, Doran & Co. $2.

IF any one cares to learn through the perusal of a competent but unimaginative novel "what love cost a girl who kept her past a secret," he will be interested in Harriet Comstock's latest euphemistic treatise on the realities of life.

While the book is admittedly of a romantic tone, it manages to keep both characters and events fairly well within the limits of probability (that is, if we except a 4,000-mile journey, made on an unaccountable impulse by an old lady in Italy to the bedside of her erring granddaughter in Maine—the last five miles of which, in order to get grandma to her destination just in the nick of time, are done at a dog-trot along a muddy country road).

Yet, despite the rather incredible feat last mentioned and the unfortunate recrudescence of such time-tried relics of romantic technique as the cri du sang, artificial suspense, the long arm of coincidence, and "patterns, for the most part, designed, and merely handed to us to work out intelligently or fumblingly as the case may be," the plot is pleasantly knotted and, once the two hundred and fiftieth page is passed the urge comes upon one to stick it out to the end.

LORD OF THE MANOR

FIREDAMP. By Amelie Rives (Princess Troubetzkoy). 344 pp. New York: Frederick A. Stokes Company. $2.50.

MANY of us turn with pleasant anticipation to stories of English family life, backed by the familiar setting of ancestral home and ancient lineage. Therefore we must welcome accordingly Princess Troubetzkoy's recent novel on this theme. She has made of her Lord of the Manor a ruthless man, embittering the lives of his wife and sons with deliberate cruelty. Lord Lyndon, however, has progressed far beyond the dominating English-

(Continued on Page 27)

A DAUGHTER OF THE CZARS
whose descent into the depths brought her a new life.

PILGRIM TO THE ABYSS

by AXEL EGGEBRECHT

THE Princess Olga . . . proud, imperious, thin-lipped . . . who subjugated her woman's passion to an unbridled lust for power . . . then suffered a thousand nameless indignities at the hands of blood-drunk peasants . . . Miraculously, after the world had once more grown quiet, she discovered a new life, and found a happiness she had never known. After a great success in Germany, this fascinating fictionized biography is being published simultaneously here and in England. $2.50

"The story is kept in the dazzling, emotion-rending cadences of a great, international narrative." — Literarische Welt.

TENTHRAGON

by CONSTANCE SAVERY

THIS novel by a brilliant young English writer, built, as it is, mainly around a mysterious country house, is remarkable for its sensitive, understanding treatment of the central character—a youngster of seven. $2.00

"Paddy. Tenthragon tingles with life." —London Observer.

AT ALL BOOKSTORES

ALFRED H. KING, 8 WEST 40th St., New York

The TREMAYNE CASE

By Alan Thomas

Dead in a taxicab, stabbed to the heart! Who killed Victor Tremayne so soon after his engagement to lovely Claire Bastaple? And already on his way to another girl—a girl neither so lovely as Claire nor so good.

The extraordinary ingenuity and knowledge of psychology displayed by the author in building up the mentality and motivation of the murderer will keep you guessing. $2.00

LIPPINCOTT
WASHINGTON SQUARE PHILADELPHIA

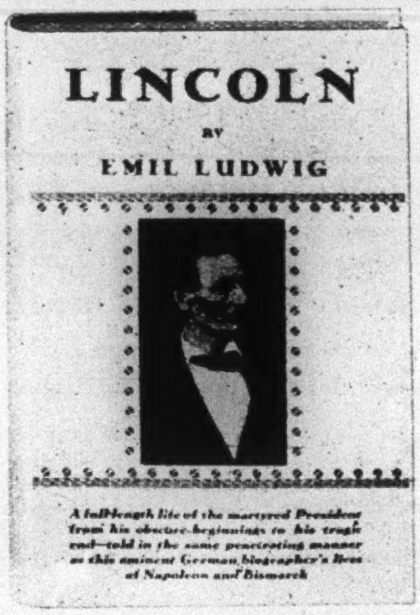
Give the boy a copy of

THE BOY SCOUT JAMBOREE

Fifteen Boy Scouts tell the story of the greatest experience in Boy Scout history—the World Jamboree held in England last summer which was attended by 50,000 Boy Scouts from all over the world. $1.75

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS NEW YORK

IF YOU ARE GOING AWAY you will add to the enjoyment of your stay by ordering The New York Times sent you regularly by mail. No other newspaper gives the same satisfying news of affairs throughout the world and no other newspaper has so comprehensive and authoritative a review of current literature. Discriminating book readers all over the country depend upon it. You will miss it while away if you do not order The Times. Weekday and Sunday editions, $1.25 a month. For other rates see editorial page.



More than Biography—the Human Story of the Great American

LINCOLN

By EMIL LUDWIG

Translated by Eden and Cedar Paul

The eminent biographer of "Napoleon" and "Bismarck" here presents Lincoln as a man of destiny—but most of all as a MAN—in a human story so beautifully written that you will come to know him as you might know a member of your own family. A reading of the first few pages will convince you that here is a biography totally different from anything you have ever read—a book that you must own and read.

"In the many years I have been studying and writing about characters I have never found a more lovable man than Abraham Lincoln, whom God created as a solitary diamond, hors concours."—Ludwig. A large octavo of 505 pages. With 15 illustrations, principally portraits, from the collection of Frederick H. Meserve. $5.00

SCOOP

By James S. Hart and Garrett D. Byrnes

This speedy yarn of a young reporter's dramatic exposure of state-wide political and judicial corruption was actually written in the city room of a big newspaper by two experienced reporters. An Atlantic Novel. $2.00

THE MIDNIGHT BELL

By Patrick Hamilton

"Deep human insight, rich humor and rare narrative skill characterize this vividly told story of the love of a waiter for a girl of the streets."—Philadelphia Public Ledger. 3rd large printing. $2.50

THE SUNKEN FLEET

By Helmut Lorenz

One of Germany's naval heroes, writing often of his own exploits, tells a moving and unusually vivid story of the World War at sea, revealing many of his navy's actions and plans. $2.50

MADDER MUSIC

By Mildred Cram

In a rich milieu of theatrical and musical tradition, Miss Cram has set this engrossing story of the fascinating Batemans—characters as unusual as those in "The Royal Family." $2.50

WARNING HILL

By John P. Marquand

The author of "The Black Cargo" tells, with great charm and understanding, this story of Tommy Michael, of his awe of the rich families of Warning Hill across the harbor, and of his conquering spirit. $2.50

RA-TA-PLAN—!

By Dorothy Ogburn

An intelligent story of murder during a wild storm on a Southern island, where is gathered a house party of intriguing characters. "A very unusual book."—Philadelphia Public Ledger. 2nd printing. $2.00

FRANKLIN: The Apostle of Modern Times

By Bernard Faÿ

"Incomparably the best biography of Franklin yet published. It answers the demands of scholarship and reads like a romance."—Allan Nevins in Saturday Review of Literature. 547 pages. 20 illustrations. 85th thousand. $3.00

GRANDMOTHER BROWN'S HUNDRED YEARS, 1827-1927

By Harriet Connor Brown

"Her life is a picture of a noble character and an epic of the later pioneer days in the Middle West."—American Library Association. Atlantic $5000 Prize Biography. 369 pages. 15 illustrations. 21st thousand. $3.00

ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT

By Erich Maria Remarque

The outstanding novel of the past year both here and abroad. "It is the truth, told by a man with the power of a great artist."—G. Lowes Dickinson in The Cambridge Review. 335th thousand. $2.50

A LANDLUBBER'S LOG:

Around the World as Sailor and Tramp

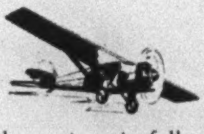
By Arthur Warner

"One of the truest books I have ever read. He is a traveler, like Richard Henry Dana, who knows how to make the truth more charming than symbols or ideas."—Mark Van Doren in New York Herald Tribune. $3.00

SKY HIGH: The Story of Aviation

By Eric Hodgins and F. Alexander Magoun

The first book to trace every development in aviation from the first experiments down to the latest seadrome. Edward P. Warner, editor of "Aviation", calls it: "A very important contribution to aeronautical literature." An Atlantic Book. With 105 illustrations. 3rd printing. $2.50



FALCONS OF FRANCE

By James Norman Hall and Charles Nordhoff

A colorful story of the Lafayette Flying Corps as told by two of its noted members. An Atlantic Novel. 4 illustrations in full color. 12th thousand. $2.50

A Vigorous Story of New England by the Author of "Red Rust"

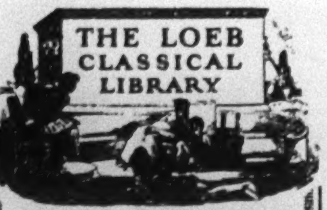
HEIRS

By CORNELIA JAMES CANNON

Centered in the persons of Marilla Lamprey, a young school teacher—heir of the New England tradition—and Seth Walton, owner of an inherited mill, the narrative reaches into mills and schools, Polish cottages and New Hampshire farms, antique shops and hermit shacks, all bounded by the beauty of the countryside. It is a story of contrast—the conflict between the conventional old blood and the expansive but ignorant new. Its threads form the whole pattern of contemporary New England on a warp of courage, suffering, self-sacrifice and love. An Atlantic Novel. $2.50

These books are for sale at all Booksellers

Boston LITTLE, BROWN & COMPANY Publishers



New Volumes in the Loeb Library

PLATO, TIMAEUS CRITIAS, CLEITOPHON, MENEXENUS, EPISTLES: Volume VII
With an English Translation by The Rev. R. G. Bury, Litt. D., Formerly Scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge.
No. 234, Greek.

ARISTOTLE
The Physics: Vol. I
With an English Translation by Philip H. Wicksteed, M. A., Litt. D. (Leeds), Litt. D. (Manchester) and Francis M. Cornford, Fellow of Trinity College and Brereton-Laurence Reader in Ancient Philosophy in the University of Cambridge.
The first of two volumes.
No. 228, Greek.

OVID
The Art of Love and Other Poems
With an English Translation by J. H. Mozley, sometime scholar of King's College, Cambridge, Lecturer in Classics, University of London.
No. 232, Latin.

LIVY: Vol. V
With an English Translation by B. O. Foster, Professor of Classical Literature in Stanford University.
The fifth of thirteen volumes.
No. 233, Latin

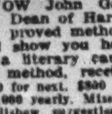
LUCIUS ANNAEUS FLORUS
Epitome of Roman History
CORNELIUS NEPOS
With an English Translation by Edward Seymour Forster, M. A., Professor of Greek in the University of Sheffield.
No. 231, Latin.

ARRIAN
History of Alexander and Indica
With an English Translation by E. Iliff Robson, B. D. The first of four volumes.
No. 236, Greek.

Cloth Binding $2.50. Leather Binding $3.50. Complete descriptive catalog on request.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS
2 West 45th St., N. Y. C.

Easy To Write Stories that Sell —his way!



JOHN GALLISHAW, discoverer of scores of writers whose names are now front-cover magazine features, reveals his successful methods—offers valuable Analysis FREE to users of his system. Coupon brings details.

NOW John Gallishaw, formerly Asst. Dean of Harvard, reveals his success-proved methods to develop your talent and show you how to reap rich rewards of a literary career. F. V. M., user of his method, received $100 for first story. $150 for next. $800 for novelette—income now over $20,000 yearly. Miss G. M., stenographer, adopted Gallishaw suggestions—sold first story, then six others at $300 each. Similar cases on record. John Gallishaw showed them how to meet editorial requirements. Find out how he can help YOU. Write for full details of his method (not an expensive correspondence course) and receive specimen of Free Analysis Certificate given to users of his system. Mail Coupon Today!

G. P. Putnam's Sons (Dept. 82),
2 West 45th Street, New York City.
Send details of John Gallishaw's Short Story Writing Method and specimen of Free Analysis Certificate.

Name ....

Address ....

Latest Works of Fiction

(Continued from Page 7)

through astounding crises and have always behaved in a manner consonant with their fundamental natures. "The House of Gold," which was bad melodrama, gave rise to the suspicion that O'Flaherty had been overwhelmed by his taste for hectic themes at last. Reading it, one thought that the startling psychologist had lost his hold on the actualities of human nature. But in the "Return of the Brute," a short and melodramatic novel of the war, he settles the suspicion. For here is a return to the good melodrama of "The Informer" and "The Assassin."

"The Return of the Brute" is a study in disintegration, a focusing of the novelist's searchlight on nine men who have been at war all too long for the good of human nerves. The theatre is that of the Western Front, but it is not the theatre of "All Quiet" or of "Journey's End." For O'Flaherty's men are not of the type produced, evidently, by the English public school system, nor are they of the sensitive-brave sort of Remarque's hero. They come from the lower strata of humanity, by and large. It is true that O'Flaherty introduces a stripling of quivering sensibilities into his book, but this stripling, Lamont, is a mother's spoiled darling, an only son who is about as fit to stand up under the shock of life in the trenches as a squirrel is fit for life in a lion house.

O'Flaherty's Gunn, a heavy fellow, with a "simple soul, which shone through his great blue eyes," a man "like a mastiff, that most ferocious-looking and most gentle of all animals," has good impulses. He has fought a long time, and has always prided himself on being a good soldier. The helplessness of Lamont disturbs him. He is driven into looking after the boy because he has "reached the age when a virile man, who has no children, begins to look upon youth with longing; when the fear of death and old age begins to conquer the arrogant confidence of youth." This sudden yearning to take care of Lamont saps Gunn's integrity as a good soldier. He begins to meditate on the uses of war, on reasons for fighting unknown men at the behest of an unseen authority, and the unaccustomed exertion of thinking abstractly unhinges him as an instrument of war. He commences to go mad.

All the circumstances combine to further Gunn's madness. For the bombing squad of Corporal Williams is sent over the top to aid in a great advance, and the nine men, what with the rain, the mud, the freezing cold, the lack of food, the getting lost between the lines on a dark night, and the increasing nerve fatigue, are all at cross-purposes. The end of the war is approaching, and they are weary. One by one they die: Appleby, the religious maniac, is lost in a quagmire; Friel is shot in the stomach; Jennings dies of a wound in the arm; Shaw is killed trying to run in some rations. Corporal Williams is doubly hard on Lamont, the helpless one, and Gunn hates him for it. And when Gunn saves Corporal Williams from the quagmire in which Appleby is lost it only serves to intensify the hatred. In the end, after Lamont has given up the ghost, Gunn goes berserk, hurls a bomb which kills both Williams and McDonald, and then runs toward the enemy lines. He is riddled with bullets, and Reilly, a professional soldier, is the one man of the squad who is left alive.

All this is of the horrible stuff which those who go back to Aristotle and Matthew Arnold's idea of Sophocles are likely to deplore as fictional material. If one is to ask each author for a balanced view of the world, then O'Flaherty is undoubtedly on the wrong course. But if one goes to all of literature for balance, then the work of O'Flaherty is a weight necessary to a true balancing of the scales. In any case, this study of the nine men, victims of war, is worked out with a wholly admirable skill. The memory of "The House of Gold" is offset, and one can hope once more for a continuance of good things from this Irish author.

OUT OF PRISON

THE PATTERN OF CHANCE. By Gordon Gardiner. 300 pp. Boston: Houghton Mifflin. $2.50.

THERE are novels which, although they do not convince one of their reality—and perhaps do not attempt to do so—yet have the ingratiating quality of making the reader wish to pretend that they are real. Such a novel is "The Pattern of Chance."

What reader could withhold his sympathy from a youth who is given his discharge from prison in the very first chapter of the novel? Particularly if the young man is painfully hoping for a new life and bitterly regretting the past. His mistakes, of course, were the result of bad upbringing and not to be attributed to any natural depravity of character. And yet Gordon Gardiner, the author of this story, has not made his young Englishman a martyr to circumstance. On the contrary, this petty thief is allowed by his creator to feel a sense of thrilling excitement at the moment of temptation. This is an indication that the hero is no stock character, but a real human being who wins one's sympathy rightfully.

It must be confessed that the other characters of the tale are storybook people, pure and simple. Yet it does not seem to matter, for Inez is so beautiful and so tragic that one is only too eager to play the game of make-believe. Inez is an English girl living in South Africa, where our young thief goes immediately upon his release. The two lonely young people cling to each other because the world will have little to do with either of them. The mystery which keeps the girl a prisoner during daylight hours is not revealed until the end of the book. If her secret is played up for all the suspense and horror there is in it, the reader need not fear that he will be let down by the dénouement.

There is considerable narrative skill displayed by Mr. Gardiner in the telling and a pleasant trick of making the reader fairly beg for details by his seeming reluctance to give them.

YORKSHIRE FARMERS

PERRIS OF THE CHERRY TREES. By J. S. Fletcher. 305 pp. New York: Doubleday, Doran & Co. $2.

NOVELS dealing with the soil almost invariably make their emotional appeal by stressing barrenness, decay and futility. In "Perris of the Cherry Trees" J. S. Fletcher has struck a somewhat different note. While his characters are unquestionably the result of their environment and are an integral, animate part of the sleepy small-farm Yorkshire countryside, he makes the reader feel for them and see them as they see themselves, without pity, without glamour. They are veritable human beings, leading their lives according to their own standards, and in the final analysis are judged by the narrow code of the community in which they reside. Events follow each other with the irrevocability of fate, while the author never obtrudes himself or in the tragic dénouement implies the slightest blame.

"Cherry Trees" was the ramshackle farm which for want of capital and initiative, the weak incompetent tenant, Abel Perris, could not make profitable. Faced with eviction, his energetic, young wife, Rhoda, took things into her own capable hands, borrowed money from their rich neighbor, Taffendale, dismissed the lazy, good-for-nothing handy man, Pippany Webster, and forced her husband to knuckle down to work. Webster swore vengeance, and when he discovered that Rhoda and Taffendale had been meeting in the woods at night, he tried to sell this

(Continued on Following Page)

BUY YOUR BOOKS BORZOI BOOKS BY THIS LABEL.
Inspect Them At Any Bookstore

THE HUMAN MIND
by KARL MENNINGER, M. D.
A book for every man and woman

"Dr. Menninger goes to the mat with the human machine in a manner so human and simple, dramatic and graphic that one is led on and on . . . Dr. Menninger's handling of psychoanalytic discoveries is very temperate and moderate and shows a wise discrimination in presentation of the mental mechanism with splendid case material . . . It is real and vital and just as scientific —if not more so—than if it were clothed in technical jargon . . . 'The Way of All Flesh' is here in bright and apt phrasing, temperate, entertaining, sound and helpful."
Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe, in The New York Herald Tribune. $5.00

AMERICA CONQUERS BRITAIN
by LUDWELL DENNY
Author of We Fight for Oil

The complete story of the exciting Anglo-American economic conflict which daily threatens the continuance of international peace. Avoiding all bias, Denny gives a thorough, convincing and impregnably documented analysis of the situation such as is nowhere else available. Any reader will thrill to the excitement of this book. $4.00

By THOMAS MANN
Winner of the 1929 Nobel Prize in Literature

BUDDENBROOKS
A new and cheaper edition of Mann's most popular novel. Over half a million copies have been sold in Germany in the last four months. 704 pages, cloth binding. $2.85

EARLY SORROW
This delicate portrayal of a young girl's inarticulate love is Mann's latest prose fiction. $1.50

THE MALTESE FALCON
by DASHIELL HAMMETT
Author of Red Harvest and The Dain Curse

"We want to go on record as saying that this story is a marvelous piece of writing—the finest detective story it has ever been our privilege to read in book form, in any magazine of any kind, or in manuscript. Don't miss it."
Joseph Shaw, editor of Black Mask. $2.50

NOT ON THE SCREEN
HENRY B. FULLER'S LAST NOVEL
By the Author of Gardens of This World

Embert Howell's metamorphosis from a shy bond salesman to a man-about-town is the most diverting story by a man who for over forty years has enriched American literature with his sensitive novels.

"It is almost perfect writing . . . read Ronald Firbank, read Norman Douglas . . . Then turn back to the man who could run rings around them at their own game."—The Outlook. $2.50

ALFRED·A·KNOPF ~ PUBLISHER
730 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

Arsene Lupin, the super-sleuth — a diamond studded tunic — a Paris mannequin — and a grim secret

THE MÉLAMARE MYSTERY

By MAURICE LEBLANC

All the world knows the exploits of Arsene Lupin, man of mystery, of infinite ingenuity, and of gay humor.

In all other cases he has worked with the bland composure of an impersonal interest. In the Mélamare case he cannot conceal his special interest in a delightful little mannequin. It is more than a case of missing diamonds and abduction. He must face death and even shame to win the girl.

The grim secret that cursed the house of the Mélamares' provides Lupin with the truly unguessable mystery of his masterful career. $2

MACAULAY · PUBLISHERS · NEW YORK

Her lovers were many and swift in passing

THE NOBLE COURTESAN

by the Princess Gervée Baronti

Her lovers never could be called last or first. They were simply numerous and competitive. No one exclusively shared a whole year of her life. But whenever she loved, she loved completely, unreservedly, and without a sense of sin.

Her only enduring love was for her ancient house, The Maledetto, the house of the curse. Here she could indulge her caprices and laugh at the harsh fate of those who had owned the house before her. Here at night came an Italian senator, rowing to take her on his luxurious yacht. And to this house she returned to struggle against her enslavement to her senses. $2

Macaulay Publishers New York

A corpse that returned to be buried again

THE Moat House MYSTERY

An unoccupied roadster without lights in front of the Moat House; in the house a murdered corpse, a crazed butler with a burial spade, and a frightened lady protesting innocence. A mystery contrived to delight cunning minds. $2

by R. FRANCIS FOSTER

MACAULAY PUBLISHERS NEW YORK

Tennyson's Drama

(Continued from Page 5)

ing, however inconclusively those problems may be solved. Second, Tennyson's early understanding of verse structure. And, thirdly, his ardent desire to find and employ descriptive words and phrases which are not hackneyed and which have color and individuality of their own. Even when he cannot discover these for himself, but filches from the dramatists who inspired him, his thefts are instinctively from among the treasures of his masters, not from their more commonplace possessions.

The play has nine characters, the principal ones being the Devil, a necromancer, Magus, and his wife Amoret. Magus appears to be more powerful than Satan, which adds somewhat to the confusion being out of tradition. The Devil assumes the rôle of Amoret, though for what purpose it is hard to say. Without attempting, therefore, to relate quotation to plot, a few lines may be transcribed solely to indicate the boy's achievement. In the following it is the Devil that speaks. Clearly, Tennyson's chief model is Marlowe's "Dr. Faustus" here.

The starry fires of yon Chrystalline vault
Are waning, and the airy-footed Night
Will soon withdraw the dismal solitude
Of her conspicuous pall, wherewith she clouds
Yon mighty and illimitable sky,
Monopolizing all the varied Earth
With her dim mantle. Oh! ye eyes of heaven,
Ye glorious inextinguishable lights,
High blazing mid the lone solemnity
Of night and silence, shall the poor worm, Man,
The creature of this solitary earth,
Presume to think his destiny enroll'd
In your almighty everlasting fires?

That there is real ability no one will gainsay, in spite of the palpable imitation. Stevenson said that by imitation one learned to write; and although many have held contradictory theories, viewing "The Devil and the Lady" in the light of Tennyson's later attainment, the dictum appears worthy of consideration.

Children's Books

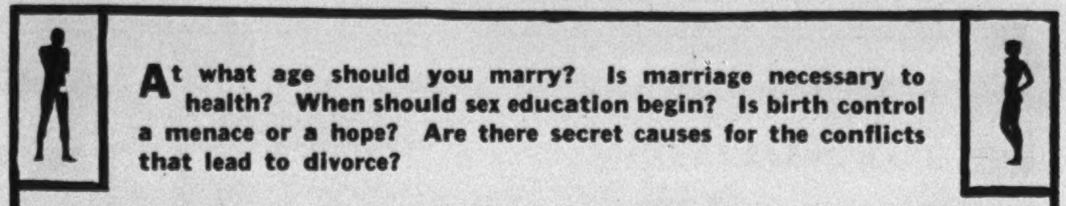
(Continued from Page 16)

more ways of expressing themselves."

Do boys ever really write like this when they are writing sincerely and naturally? "No wonder the British are proud of this simple, natural young man. He won the hearts of all the American Scouts the minute he entered our camp." "We had listened to him, smiled with him, laughed with him. Now a roar broke forth. Baden Powell received the cheer with his fine old eyes shining." The interest of the book is, to be sure, a current and temporary interest, still it seems as though it would have been worth while and of value to the Scout movement all over the world to have published something a trifle more dignified and less cheap in tone.

ANTON AND TRINI, CHILDREN OF THE ALPLAND. By Virginia Olcott. Illustrated by Constance Whittemore. 152 pp. New York: Silver, Burdette & Co. 75 cents.

Frankly an educational text, this little volume has nevertheless a pleasant story interest and a way of describing cheese making, wood carving, cattle herding, all day picnics, &c., with a zest that will make them interesting to children. The author tells something of the history, industries and daily life of the Swiss and translations of several folk songs are included. The book will be useful in class rooms where Switzerland is a topic for study.



At what age should you marry? Is marriage necessary to health? When should sex education begin? Is birth control a menace or a hope? Are there secret causes for the conflicts that lead to divorce?

Almost any question you may ask yourself can be found frankly dealt with in this wholesomely fearless, uninhibited and complete book by an authority who writes like a skilled narrator.

THE RIDDLE of SEX

The Medical and Social Aspects of Sex, Love and Marriage

by DR. JOSEPH TENENBAUM, with an Introduction by HARRY ELMER BARNES

Read What Critics Say About This Important Book

"If Americans know what is good for them, they will buy a million copies of this book." —Harry Elmer Barnes

"THE RIDDLE OF SEX has the high distinction of passionless detachment and scientific approach in its survey of our present state of sexual knowledge—and ignorance." —New York Herald Tribune

"Dr. Tenenbaum has written courageously and lucidly on the role of sex in all life."—The Bookman

"Doctor Tenenbaum has handled his subject in a masterly fashion—as physician, scientist and authority on sex matters. The book reads like a story—in fact, we would title this work, "The Story of Sex." A book on sex, as a doctor sees it, as a doctor tells it, as a doctor analyzes it." —Medico Masonicus

"His treatment of the subject inspires confidence." —Montreal Star

"A frank, illuminating discussion of sex." —Syracuse Post Standard

"A very complete discussion of the subject from conception to rejuvenation by a writer who is a man of much sense as well as a physician of skill and acumen." —Brentano's Book Chat

"A thoughtful analysis of the problems of sex." —New York Medical Week

"He presents the main facts with a fine background of practical psychology. The book ranges the entire gamut of sex subjects from birth, through adolescence, marriage, sexual aberration and disease, and rejuvenation. Dr. Tenenbaum has kept abreast of the literature in his field." —Journal of the American Medical Association

No book for the layman has ever before been written that so completely and so frankly deals with the whole life of sex. The chapter headings shown below give you only a hint of the thoroughness and scope of this great book. It is authoritative, scientific, complete!

Evolution of Sex	The Crisis of Marriage
The Human Life Cycle	Sex Hygiene
Puberty	Marriage at the Cross-Roads
Menstruation	Marital Dietetics
The Climacteric Age	Impotentia
Pregnancy	The Sex Complex
Abortion	The Cruelty Complex
Birth Control	Veneral Diseases
Sterility	The Failing Sex Hormone
Heredity	Hermaphroditism
Eugenics	Sex in the Laboratory
Physiology of Marriage
Martial Choice

THE RIDDLE OF SEX is truly a book not to be missed, a book of importance that you will read over and over again, and keep it in your library for constant reference.

Get a copy at any bookstore TODAY, or simply fill in and Mail the Coupon NOW!

To your Bookseller, or
THE MACAULAY COMPANY
257 Fourth Avenue, New York, N. Y.
Please send me THE RIDDLE OF SEX, for which I enclose $3.50 (plus 10c. postage).

Name ________
Street ________
City ________ State ________

Note: If you prefer C. O. D., simply sign and mail coupon; send no money.

THE MACAULAY COMPANY
PUBLISHERS
257 FOURTH AVENUE • NEW YORK, N. Y.

EMPTY VILLA

By JESSIE LOUISA RICKARD

Author of The Baccarat Club, etc.

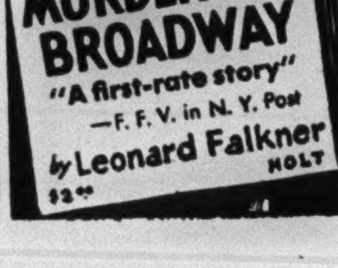
Once more the infamous Baccarat Club reaches out for loot—involving in its toils two beautiful girls, so much alike that one could be taken for the other, even by the lover who hoped to save her.

Just Published. $2.00

HORACE LIVERIGHT NY



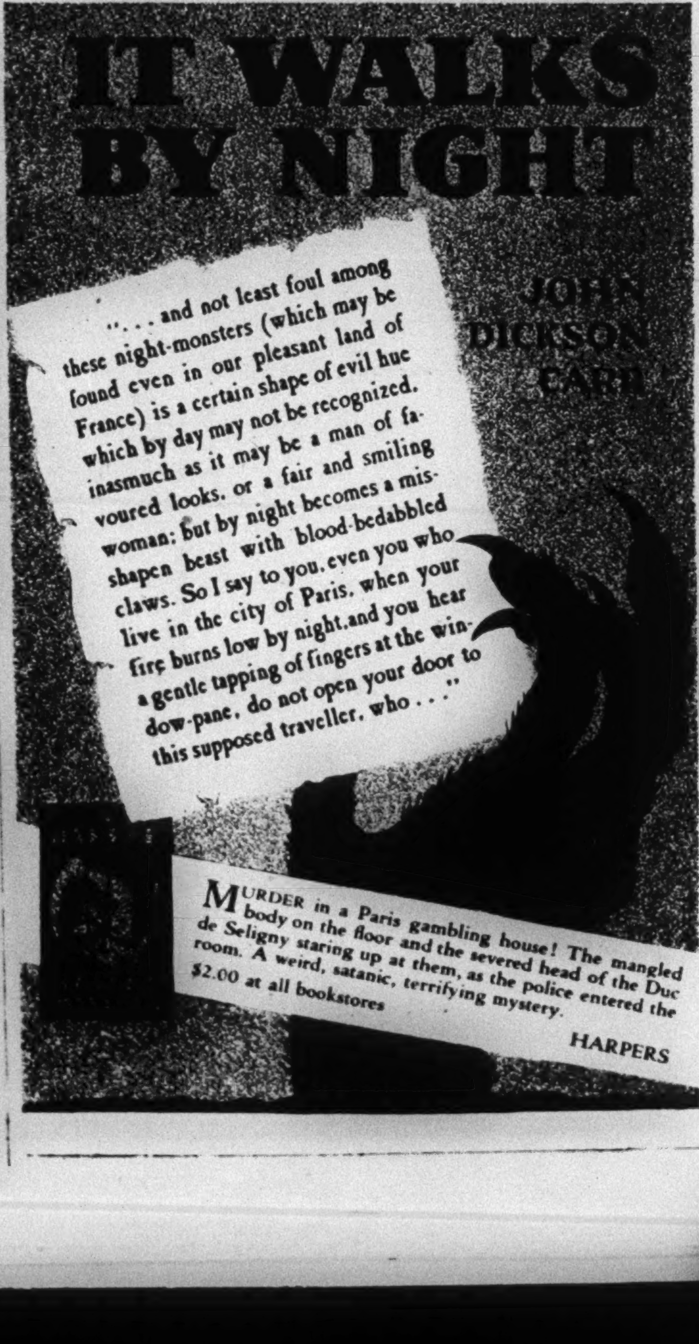
MURDER OFF BROADWAY

"A first-rate story" —F. F. V. in N. Y. Post

by Leonard Falkner

HOLT

$2.00



The Letters of Mark Hopkins

EARLY LETTERS OF MARK HOPKINS. And Others From His Brothers and Their Mother; a Picture of Life in New England From 1770 to 1857. Illustrated. 365 pp. New York: The John Day Company. $5.

OF all the many thousands who have quoted the aphorism, famous for the last half century, that a log in the woods with Mark Hopkins and a student sitting on it would be a university, how many have asked themselves, what innate gifts of mind and heart and soul, what careful training, what unceasing enrichments and use of his faculties had made Mark Hopkins worthy of such a tribute, one of the choicest, indeed, that one man ever gave to another? It was an achievement in personality worth exploring, and this volume of recently discovered letters helps to explain how the famous educator, who was president of Williams College for thirty-six years, was able so to impress his times. Other books have dealt with Mark Hopkins's later life, his fruitful influential years, but this one, which has interest and value for other reasons also, pictures the early formative period by the medium of letters, scores of them, intimate, informal family letters, written to one another by him and his parents, brothers, uncles, aunts, cousins, from the time he was a lad in his first teens until after he was made president of Williams. The first ones go back long before his own time to the years just before and after the Revolution, when his father and uncles as young men were writing to one another and his mother and her brothers were exchanging lively missives. All of this collection of letters, running through more than three-quarters of a century, from 1770 to 1857, have recently been discovered and this account of them in a prefatory page or two is interesting because of its picture of customs a century and more ago:

The letters in this volume were found yellowed and creased, the lines often so close together as to be almost unreadable. Frequently two or three letters were on one large sheet and the whole was folded to form an envelope, space having been left for the outside address, and the little package fastened together with a small round red wafer. In the writing desk belonging to Mark's mother was a special place for wafers, while near at hand stood the sand box with perforated top, the sand used to dry the ink, which remains wonderfully black even to this day. There were no stamps then; the postmaster wrote the amount of the postage near the address and apparently it was paid at either end of the journey.

